IRISH ARE FIFTH AT ANN ARBOR; MICHIGAN WINS

Kennedy Loses Shoe, Desch Tips Hurdle, in Day of Much Bad Luck

By THOMAS COMAN
ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 2.—The Notre Dame track team took fifth place in the Western Intercollegiate track and field meet yesterday at Ann Arbor, which was won by the University of Michigan by a score of 57 1-2, Illinois placing a close second with 57 points.

The Irish tracksters were jinxed from the start and hit by hard breaks at nearly every turn of the game. Captain Gus Desch failed to qualify in the 220-yard low hurdles when he tripped over the last hurdle while leading the field. In the final heat of the low hurdles, Brookings of Iowa raced over the timbers in .23 1-5, breaking the world's record. Wilson, also of Iowa, shattered the world's mark in the 220-yard dash, stepping the course in 21 1-5.

Breaks Other Way
The breaks of the day were all in Michigan's favor after Hubbard leaped to fame in the broad jump with a distance of 25 feet, 1 1-2 inches, for a new world's record. Wittman of the Wolverine was clocked in the century for .94.

Paul Kennedy, the Irish mainstay in the mile run, met with the greatest misfortune of his running career. Paul had an easy race for the first lap and was running in great form when he lost a shoe at the start of the second quarter and was forced to take the next half-mile on his bare foot. Pained to the extreme with a cinder-torn foot, the gritty star was obliged to drop out of the race at the start of the last sprint, with the finish almost in sight. Hall of Illinois crossed the tape in the slow time of 4:28.3.

Field Events.
Hogan tied for fifth in the broad jump, and Tom Lieb placed second in the discus throw. Lieb, who broke the state record last week with a toss of 140 feet, was unable to better the winning distance of 132 feet 9 1-2 inches. Dave Weeks of Notre Dame gave a great performance in the high jump, by qualifying at 6 feet, 1 inch, and tying for second place in the final, won by Smith of Michigan at 6 feet, 3 inches.

The javelin throw was won by Angier of Illinois, who bettered his own conference record with a peg of 198 feet, 10 1-4 inches. Oberst

TOLEDO CLUB HAS BANQUET

Plans for Summer Dances Discussed at Oliver Hotel Gathering

The Toledo Club banqueted last night at the Oliver Hotel. The event brings the club's activities to a close for this year. The club, under the leadership of Francis O'Boyle, has enjoyed a very successful season and has prospects of having even a better one next year. Though the club is organized for the benefit of Toledoans at Notre Dame it extends its usefulness to the home city. A semi-formal dance at the Inverness is planned for June 15. The Hard-Times dance on September 8 will be held at Collingwood.

So they may practice without the distraction of city life, four Corby men have been campused for tossing baseballs on the Corby lawn.

Owing to a Maccabee convention in South Bend most of the visiting Alumni will reside on the campus during their stay. Walsh, Corby, and Badin will be open to old grads during the week end.

SPECIAL MASS ON JUNE 10TH

Bishop Glass to Celebrate Mass; Msgr. Kirwin to Preach Sermon

A pontifical high mass coram episcopo celebrated by the Rt. Rev. Joseph S. Glass, bishop of the diocese of Salt Lake, in the Church of the Sacred Heart at 8:15 Sunday will be the most impressive religious ceremony of Commencement Week. Rt. Rev. Herman J. Alerding, bishop of the diocese of Fort Wayne will be on the altar and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. M. Kirwin, vicar-general of the diocese of Galveston will preach the baccalaureate sermon. The senior class flag will be blessed at the mass, and immediately following the services in the Church the flag will be raised.

Admission to the mass will be by ticket only. This regulation is made necessary by the limited seating capacity of the church. Tickets for admission will be issued to members of the senior class from the office of the Prefect of Discipline on Monday and Tuesday morning from 8 until 11. Relatives of seniors, members of the alumni, and friends of the University may also receive tickets of admission.

Classes Reunite in Senior Week

This year's Commencement Week will be marked by a renewed interest in Class Reunions. The class of '03 of which Rev. Matthew J. Walsh, president of the University, is a member, will be one of the classes to hold a reunion. Others are: The class of '13, the class of '98, the class of '93, the class of '83, and the class of '73.

More Invitations for Commencement

Seniors are asked to inquire for their leather Commencement invitations today, as more are expected to be available. The price of each is 55c; and six cents is necessary for mailing as first-class. Notices will be posted giving time and place of sale. Plain cards furnished by the University will also be distributed.

SWEATERS FOR BAND

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—On the proposition of awarding sweaters to the members of the University of Indiana band, a reporter for the Indiana Daily Student found ten opposed, two favorable, and one lukewarm. Those who opposed felt that some award was good, but that the award was properly given to athletes only.

DRIVERS AND PEDESTRIANS

Words are but vehicles for the expression of thought and may often carry riders beyond the point intended. The locomotive power of printed words is, to the new pilot, strangely powerful. The inertia of these Packard trucks startles the man who has previously driven 1909 Fords. He will often pass his destination before he learns to operate the new machine skilfully and accurately, before he learns how to stop at the exact point intended.

Those who watch the voyages often mistake the intention of the chauffeurs. A certain musical critic recently expressed a criticism in the DAILY. It has been said that the critic aimed his vehicle at a person. This is untrue, though it may be true that his words may have passed their mark. All things considered, he may have better aimed his words so that there could have been no chance of offense, even though none was surely intended.

Another pilot did bump a man as he journeyed along. Police officers, of all men, must not be bumped by men who drive cars—that is dangerous. As a matter of fact, men must never be hit by newspaper chauffeurs except in case of fair and true criticism or comment about persons or things before the public. Even in such cases, however, criticism is better aimed at acts than men. In this case such was intended, but truthfully, such was not expressed.

The DAILY endeavors to travel the course laid out in its first issue. In the rush of a strange car over new roads, some sign posts may be missed, but never purposely, for the drivers are sincere and want to aid the DAILY to realize its one purpose, the welfare of Notre Dame, institution, students, and faculty.

BUYING ESTEEM

In spring, at Notre Dame, a young man's fancy turns to politics. Spring has become the molting season for political ambitions. During the open season, as specified by the S. A. C. the eligibles come forth from their hibernacula properly incubated politically, and strut their stuff. Every motion is significant. An invitation to dinner, to take a hike or to enjoy a casual walk is freighted with possibilities. Those endeavors are part of the technique. They constitute a method of getting perspective on the potential vote—to see where you stand. And such methods are perhaps justified on the canon of results for many a race has been won in a walk.

Just as long as men like to rule there will be politics. As long as men differ in opinion there will be parties and organizations. But is the extreme intensity of feeling engendered by promoters justified or at all necessary?

After all is it worth while? What is the actual worth of any position in the realm of college politics? Any position is supposed to represent the esteem and good will of fellow students. Then isn't it paradoxical to organize and spread dissension, mar friendships, and generate rancor for the sake of any position? What will be more valuable in the future—the fact that you have gained a position by playing upon the credulity of your associates at a sacrifice of principle on your part, or the good will and sound confidence of your collegiate contemporaries based upon sound principle properly lived up to?

Any ambition is lawful except that which vaults from unprincipled technique cunningly executed. What will it profit you to gain all the positions if at the same time you sacrifice the good will of a large portion of your fellows? Perhaps that is the price one pays for leadership, but one is inclined to believe that it is the price paid for the wrong kind of leadership.

IT'S THE OLD STORY

(Daily Kansan)

Another year has rolled by and the old Alma Mater soon will graduate a large class of virile young men and women into other fields of work. In two weeks the capped and gowned procession of candidates for the various degrees will form in the roadway between Green Hall and Fraser, and after suffering heat and discomfort from standing will catch step and slowly wend their formal way to the age old ceremony—Commencement.

It is of little consequence to underclassmen, but to the student who has worked hard in the University and earned his degree through four years of constant labor, it is a different problem. Commencement is his last remembrance of college life.

Colyum O' Bits

By CLIFF WARD

Mr. Looking Glass, who propels this motor bus to the apogee of erudite intellection one day, while condoning our intended descent into insipid vacuity the next day, is a man of no mean parts. One inexplicable inconsistency perturbs our mental poise however. Why is he termed a conductor the day he pilots? Is this a mistake or a paradox?

Even in Siberian forests it is known that the Looking Glass portrays and reflects most brilliantly the passing show. In it now and then you see yourself with all the deformities that a polished mirror can create. Look at it and smile, and it smiles back. Leer at it, and it leers back. Ignore it, and it ignores you.

Mr. Kolars has committed one error, however, which this colyum wishes to correct. On occasions numerous and past, it has pleased our adversary to refer to us as Mr. Two Bits. Now we thank the worthy gentleman for the panegyric but—he has a Teutonic tendency to inflate currency, which is illegal and uneconomic. A plugged nickel would more conveniently fit the slot. Our blood buckets and sand wagons, we take, withdrawing from the arena. Oh, Rodolf, you darling—come do your stuff!

This colyum has ambitions neither amorous nor intellectual. From its posterior collar button to its occipital tonsure it is in a status atrophy. However rising from a chair after dictating to Nellie, our stenog, we noticed the Dome across the road, very charmingly lifting its head in a prayer for the salvation of Notre Dame men. Just sort of entre nous, Sisters, that particularly aspiring piece of architecture is sorely in need of paint.

This space so carelessly wasted is in receipt of a poetic amulet, which we set upon the table for your cardiac assimilation. The author of this verse is here honored for singular intuition—having penned it to the more fair and less reasonable species, which was rare judgment. Had it been adapted to us, we would have searched every psychopathic ward in the country till we revealed the culprit. This outburst being resplendent with thermal units, we must ask the fireman to give us aid. Thanks.

Take your buckets, boys, and go on home. We'll have no more of this, until the firemen's convention at Buchanan.

Mystical, loveable, sorrowful, sweet,
Wistful and pensive, still so discreet,
Cherish and love you, dream-scented rose,
Who could do other?—God only knows.

Fragrant with kisses of fairy sprites,
Warm with the winds of love-born nights,
Charlotte angelic midst the sky's azure hue,
Would suffer their beauty if likened to you.

This colyum wishes to let you in on a secret. We promised we wouldn't tell a soul, and not being Conan Doyle we didn't, but we'll tell you. Mr. Richard Lightfoot has revealed himself to the colyum as the author of "Among Us Immortals." Mr. Lightfoot, companion in modesty with the Chicago Tribune, the world's greatest newspaper, says his immortality is in no way connected with his longevity at Notre Dame. He wishes his pilotship of that interesting colyum which ran in the Scholastic all this year, known, and he also says he wishes to apologize for all wise cracks, and to accept thanks for all free and complimentary publicity therein given. Although Mr. Lightfoot was a good colyumist we are certain no one will deny that the conductor of this colyum towers head and shoulders above him at all times.

To the Readers:

We feel that we owe you an apology for the vitriol that leaked into yesterday's column. The column is written all in good fun, and in passing we might call your attention to the "Colossal Insult" that we ourselves handed the journalists in a recent number. Concerning the feelings of the law boys in general we are not at all dubious. We know that they are good sports. There is, we believe, no more to say about the thing. . . . Send in the banter. We love it. But no more direct ill feeling will find its way onto this page. We have tried it and the results were not at all desirable. —F. T. K.

Sleepy Sickness Has Come Upon Campus

The sleepy sickness has come upon Notre Dame. That dreaded malady, annually affecting this green campus, has spread rapidly with the warmth of the last few days. The colds and pneumonia of the winter months are gone, but this even more wide-spread infection is affecting men in every class. The worst effects are noticed during the three and four o'clock classes. The symptoms are generally yawning, and yearning gazes out of classroom windows. Professors have been unable to combat the disease and say time and frequent quizzes are the only means they can call to mind.

FOR COMMENCEMENT
Gerald J. Daily, Jr., Ph. B in Commerce '21. of Muskogee, Okla., is a visitor on the campus and intends to remain thru Commencement Week.

Bennett, of '97, Tells of the Yells That Won Ball Games Here

"They don't yell like they used to. We used to win games by rooting." James J. Bennett, Notre Dame man of '97, who was at Notre Dame Wednesday, made this comment on the Michigan game.

"Our old yell: 'N, hoor-ah, D., hoor-ah, N. D., hoor-ah,' wasn't heard out there at the game," he said. "Maybe you don't use that yell anymore."

Mr. Bennett felt that the spirit of his days wasn't here any longer. It was suggested that the separation of so many men from the campus may have had something to do with it, and he agreed. "But the place looks good," he said, "and you are doing many more things and better things than we used to do, and I thought we had a smart bunch."

Mr. Bennett is now with the Southern Schoolbook Depository, of Memphis, Tenn.

CASTNER TURNS DOWN OFFERS

Tigers, Browns, White Sox Senators after Him; Castner, To Enter Business

Paul Castner, captain of the Notre Dame baseball team, has received many offers from big league teams. Big league scouts have been watching him since he pitched his first varsity game here three years ago.

The Detroit Tigers offered a contract last year, but he wished to continue his studies and refused. The Chicago White Sox, and Champ Clark of the Washington Senators offered him a place on the pitching staff. The St. Louis Browns tried many times to have him sign on the dotted line.

Castner has turned down the offers because of business. He has been offered a good business opportunity and it is likely he will accept. Castner's time will be taken up entirely with business after June and it is doubtful whether he will have any time to give to athletics at all.

Castner has starred in athletics at Notre Dame for three years. He played varsity football and was the mainstay of this year's team.

He organized hockey here, was captain of the first team and is considered the most brilliant player in the west.

Castner has plenty of steam, a good and varied delivery and keeps the base runners close to the bags, is a heavy hitter, a fast fielder and takes his place in the gardens when not hurling.

If by some chance Castner does enter the big leagues, the team that secures his services will have a splendid all-around player.

IRISH FIFTH AT ANN ARBOR
and Moes of Notre Dame took second and third in this event.

Montague's Great Race
John Montague of Notre Dame, running anchor man of the Irish relay team, gave one of the greatest speed performances of the day in the mile relay. Montague took the baton twenty feet behind the field flashed around the course in a wonderful sprint, passing three men and flashing across the finish in fifth place.

Johnson of Illinois, won the high hurdles in 15:2. Some delay was caused here when the official attempted to run the hurdles over again, but Johnson refused to repeat the event and Illinois withdrew from the meet. The difficulty was finally settled and Illinois returned to the field.

The intercollegiate track classic was run off on a lightning fast track and despite the intense heat of the day a crowd of 10,000 people turned out to witness the record-breaking contest.

McTiernan and Montague failed to qualify in the 440 and Lieb and Flynn were unable to make the mark in the shot put trials. A. Walsh and Luke Walsh also failed to qualify in their events. Sweet of Illinois, took the quarter in :48:1. Valley of Wisconsin stepped the half mile in 1:55. Isabell of Michigan won the two mile run in the fast time of 9:41.

The Notre Dame tracksters will be pitted against several former champions, who are with the Chicago I. A. C. Among them are Pope in the discus, Ray Watson famous miler who has beaten Joie Ray on two occasions, Anderson and Rosen in the hurdles and Coffee in the sprints. Later in the day, the Irish diamond squad will meet the University of Illinois.

"KUEHN'S SHOES," are graduates in the course of high grade footwear. They have received the degree of "PATRON'S ENDORSEMENT."
