

CAMPUS BY-PATHS

Today, my dears, you must first listen to a few words on the subject of truthfulness, and on believing at least a part of what you see. For it has come to my ears that some of you doubted the authenticity and integrity of "Sis's" letter. Know you not that only the whole truth, "and nothing but the truth," is printed in this column? Verily, it is the truth that tickles—both you and your friends. So hie you to the DAILY office in Walsh and see there the original blazing letter that "Sis" wrote. Then, go and doubt no more.

I had intended writing "Sis" a letter today, but with all the duties and doubtings that come to mind over this guardianship of student activities I find it necessary to postpone that pleasure.

First, there is the tale of the rise of Petrich, as related by an ambitious Corby scout. In headlines, evidently from a Glencoe, Minn., paper, we read how Petrich buys the grocery store of one Schem-peter, how he is "the son of our venerable townsman, Robert Petrich, and has been associated lately with the Cannon Ball Safe Co." Rather enigmatical are the lines "he will embark in the grocery business here in order that he and his estimable wife may establish a permanent home." Congratulations, Pete!

Mr. Grundy takes this opportunity to officially recognize The Ghost, originator of the "Freshman Tattler," and counsels discretion as the better part of anonymity. The Ghost is well-named if he be the shade of Mr. Grundy.

I am interested in only a few "Honorable Mentioned" today: DON GALLAGHER, because he is the busiest senior, because he is an accomplished mouth-organist, because he stays at Notre Dame though his heart may be in Chicago—at least one of his hearts.

-0- -0-

JOHN WARREN, because he is a freshman from Dunkirk, N. Y., because he does not over-estimate the east, because he is able to find unexplainable addresses in his pocket after a movie.

-0- -0-

FRANK MCCARTHY, because he is business manager of the Jugger, because of his efficiency with the fair, because he has received a grade of 99 in Apologetics.

TOMMY GREEN, because his bid to the Freshman Frolic seems to be in great demand in South Bend, because he is able to show a Greek, Terpsichore, a few things of the moment, because his personality—imported from Houston—is such as to acquaint him with a speaking knowledge of the French term, Palais Royale.

But now I must make final preparations for the Hard Times affair (which will be happy history when you read this) . . . and I assure you that you will have the complete account in my next endeavor. Then you may count on the dark corners being swept out, and a state of perfect disorder presented.

Brother, my date was blind—try and make light of that.

Chemists' Quintet Defeats Engineers

The Chemist club defeated the Civil Engineers 24-5 in a one-sided basketball game last Sunday morning and inaugurated the sport season in the Engineering school.

The Chem club court performers found the going a little rough during the first half, but managed to gain a 6-3 lead at the end of the first period. The last half found the engineers in no condition to stem the drive of the fighting chemists and they were swamped with baskets. The victors registered 18 points during the second session.

CHEMISTS ELECT RAUH PRESIDENT

Charles J. Robrecht Made Vice-President and Paul J. Harrington Secretary-Treasurer.

Cornelius A. "Tim" Rauh was elected president of the Chemists club at a meeting of that organization yesterday afternoon in Chemistry hall. Charles J. Robrecht was given the office of vice-president, and Paul J. Harrington received the position of secretary-treasurer. All are members of the department of Chemical Engineers. Professor Herman Wenzke is honorary president.

Rauh, who was elected to succeed George E. Ludwig, former president of the club, is a senior in his department and a member of the Student Activities Committee. During the past year he was elected president of the Engineering class. The meeting and election of officers, the first assembly of the club for the semester, is a part of the policy adopted by the organization to meet on the first Wednesday of each month and to elect officers at the beginning of each semester.

Sophomores will have charge of the program to be presented at the next meeting of the club.

THE DAILY QUESTIONNAIRE

What asked: "What home club do you think will win the DAILY'S Best-Organization Contest?"

Robert R. Cooney, Journ. I: "I think the Ohio club will win, because Danny McGowan is fast on his feet, and can get around with his 'proxy' list faster than any one else."

Alfred Meyers, Journ. II: "I think the Glee club will win. Being a member of it, what else could I say? At the present time the Pacific Coast club is far down the list, but we're still hoping."

Dannie F. McGowan, Law IV: "It is not a question of the best organization winning, but a question of the club working the hardest to win. And we of the Ohio club have votes to sell."

Paul "Tid" Breen, A. B. IV: "Personally, I should like to see the Metropolitan club win, however, I have cast my votes for the Chicago club under physical pressure of the 'alley rats' of Sorin hall."

Edward T. Huntsinger, Law III:

"I think the Ohio club will win. I'm from Ohio, and I think its club will receive the most votes."

Robert "Slick" O'Neil, E. III: "In my opinion, it is only a matter of time before the Chicago club will come to the fore. Physical forces compel me to make this statement, the 'alley rats' of Sorin hall being too strong for me?"

James Devine, E. E. IV: "The Chicago club will win by a big majority."

N.D. FIVE TO PLAY ADRIAN TONIGHT

Expect Easy Victory; Track Team to Meet Illinois at Urbana Saturday.

The rejuvenated Notre Dame basketball team will go into action tonight for the second last home game of the season when they stack up against the Adrian college quintet on the "Y" court at 8 o'clock.

The little aggregation from Michigan is prepared to hand the Irish five a hard, fast battle. The visitors have enjoyed a very successful season thus far and have a long string of victories to their credit.

The local squad is in good condition and should experience no great difficulty in disposing of the Michigan court performers. The Irish have been hitting a fast pace since they last appeared on the home court and if they continue their good work they should be in fine fettle for the exceptionally tough assignment that awaits them at Omaha next Friday and Saturday. The Creighton outfit will be on a plane with the Franklin five, and has built up a remarkable reputation for itself in western basketball circles.

The Notre Dame track team will also engage in a stiff encounter when they take on the Illinois track team at Urbana next Saturday. The proteges of Coach Harry Gill form an unusually strong and well balanced team this year and are slated to provide the visiting Irish with some exceptionally fast competition. Ayers of Illinois and Barr and Layden of Notre Dame will stage a private duel in the sprint (Continued on Page 4.)

Boxers to Give Exhibition Bouts

Pinkey and Ritchie Mitchell, two of the cleverest men in the boxing game today, will give an exhibition bout in the Notre Dame gym March 12. Johnny Mitchell, another promising pugilist and brother of Pinkey and Ritchie, will also appear against an opponent yet to be named. Encounters among the local talent will complete the card. The proceeds of the bout will go to the Bengal Mission fund.

The Mitchell brothers have been bright lights in fistiana for a number of years, both having had several cracks at the lightweight title. It was Ritchie Mitchell who put Benny Leonard down for the count of nine at Madison Square Garden several years ago. Pinkey, in his last bout with a champion, gave a good account of himself. Pinkey is scheduled to meet Lew Tendler, the Philadelphia southpaw, tomorrow night.

Johnny Mitchell, the youngest of the boxing trio, is new in fistiana. His success in amateur circles brought him recognition and many handsome offers from fight promoters throughout the country.

Tom O'Connor has charge of the program.

SENIORS

The caps and gowns of the Senior class have arrived and will be ready for distribution Friday morning, February 22, before the exercises in Washington hall. A special meeting of the class will be held Thursday noon and information concerning the distribution of caps and gowns will be given.

Henry Trenkle, chairman of the Cap and Gown committee, will hold a meeting of his committee, Wednesday noon at 12:30. The following men will report in room 308 Corby at that time: Paul Craden, J. Farrell Johnson, Charles McGonagle, Roger Ryan, E. L. Chaussee, and Levi Geniessee.

Carroll Relay Team Loses to Freshman

Carroll hall's relay squad lost to the fast Freshman sextet Sunday afternoon. Carroll has been considerably weakened by the loss of "Whitey" Mullins, who pulled a tendon in the Blue and Gold meet Saturday. This was the first defeat of the Carrollites, and Freshman and Sophomore halls are now tied for the league lead.

The following teams meet today:

Badin vs. Freshman.
Walsh vs. Brownson
Day vs. Sorin.
Corby vs. Cadillac.

FRESHMAN-CORBY GAME IS SPEEDY

Carroll Maintains First Place in Interhall Basketball Standing; Sorin and Badin Win.

There were no marked changes made in the interhall basketball standing when four of the scheduled games were played in the gym Sunday. Carroll remained on top, with Day and Sorin in second and third places. Badin pushed Cadillac into fifth place, with Brownson, Freshman, Sophomore, Corby and Walsh trailing behind.

The fastest game on the schedule Sunday was the battle between Freshman and Corby, the Frosh tossers carrying off the big end of a 25 to 19 score. Getting off to a speedy start, Freshman held the lead throughout. With the Frosh leading 15 to 8 at the start of the last period, Corby outplayed its opponents, but the lead was too great to overcome. DeVault and Lukats performed in nice style for the Frosh, while Crowley and Collins were the outstanding players for Corby.

Cadillac failed to play up to its former showings, and was handed a 16-to-11 defeat by Sorin. During the first half the Cadillac crew had the better of the engagement, but a series of baskets by Sorin toward the end of the game decided the contest. Cronin and Conley starred for Cadillac. Swift was high point man for Sorin.

The leading Carroll team, unfolding the same brilliant attack that has factored in its former victories, proved too much for the Walsh team, and the interhall leaders came out on the top of a 25 to 11 score. The Carroll ringers had the game from the start and were never seriously pressed. Cullinan and Navarre played nicely for Walsh. There were no outstanding stars for Carroll, the entire team showing good form. Dahman, Herbert, Kerwin and Mc- (Continued on Page 4.)

OVER 800 ATTEND HARD TIMES DANCE

Weird Costumes and Novel Decorations Feature; Prizes Awarded Those Inelegantly Attired.

"Hark, hark, the dogs do bark, The beggars are coming to town, Some in rags, some in tags, But none in velvet gowns . . ."

And they came—four hundred couples clothed in the raiment of the submerged tenth—and made the Seniors' Annual Hard-Times Dance at the Palais Royale last night one of the outstanding social events of the year.

Gov. Walsh, as King of the "hard-timers," with power to impose fines on those whose costumes indicated prosperity, showed careful discrimination, and few escaped without fines. He was assisted in his judicial capacity by Frank Milbauer and Sam Barry.

An unique decorative effect was secured by the use of straw and the numerous "Why Wives Leave Home" and "What the Well-Dressed Bum Will Wear" placards.

The Big Five orchestra, augmented to ten pieces, furnished the music.

Miss Leila Brechinger Rostiser, society editor of the News-Times, acted as judge in selecting the most appropriate costumes. Miss Mary Jo Miller, who wore a gown chiefly of red and green canvas, and Miss Mary Howard, were awarded N. D. pillow tops. The costume worn by Charles Springer was adjudged the least likely to withstand the ravages of the caracole, and he received the man's prize, an N. D. watch-fob.

The "booby" prize for the men was presented to "Miss" Frances Crowley, of Corby Hall. Miss Helen Vincent received a washboard and two cakes of soap as a similar distinction.

DEAN KONOP HURT

T. F. Konop, dean of the University Law school, is reported to have suffered injuries to his knee in a fall on a slippery pavement in South Bend Sunday. The accident occurred immediately after Dean Konop had addressed the Order of Foresters. He was able to take his place in the refectory last night.

GOLFERS

All men interested in obtaining student membership in the Chain-o'-Lakes Country club for the coming golf season are asked to meet in the north room of the library at 12:30 today. Immediate action is necessary; any golfer unable to be present should notify George Ward, 114 Walsh.

THE CONTEST

There was practically no voting over the week-end in the DAILY'S Best Organization Contest. All the clubs seem to be conserving their strength for the final dash which will decide the winners of the Stoeckley cups. The prizes are now on exhibition at the cafeteria.

BOK'S BUNCOMBE

Politicians we have with us always. And like the ever-vigilant mother who watches over her family of little ones, the politician is constantly on the alert to protect and promote the interests of his party.

Some weeks ago when Mr. Bok announced that his Peace Award jury had selected the winning plan, he was only acting in accordance with a group of politicians who, we are told, had helped him concoct the "peace" scheme as a propaganda forerunner of a political campaign. These politicians are the same ones who four years ago were buried beneath the debris of the republican landslide, and who are now preparing for a jubilant comeback should their idealistic interpretation of internationalism be generally accepted. They have declared this Bok peace plan to be the panacea for the ills of the world, and now they are trying to assure the Americans that if the United States government adopts the plan as outlined, the horrible, bloody, and destructive wars of the past will be unknown to future generations. They are trying to paint a beautiful contrast favoring conditions as they will be in the future, should the plan be adhered to, but they are mixing their paints on an old palette that has been smeared with the colorful designs of pro-leaguers.

On the face of it the plan seems desirable because, first of all, it embodies a formula for bettering some social conditions in Europe, even though they are being tended to without the plan having been put into practice, and secondly, because of its very idealistic nature; yet its framework is nothing more or less than an argument for entering the League of Nations and a proposal by means of which we can become a part of that system without formally aligning ourselves with it as provided in the Treaty of Versailles. It is therefore undesirable because we know from experience that European and American opinions do not coincide. Those European nations always seem to find it difficult to remain at peace with one another even long enough to agree to agree. How much more difficult would it not be for us, then, to hold them in check when we naturally would try to disagree with their disagreements.

In reality these politicians are championing a plan which they know is purely buncombe from a practical point of view, but it is one which sounds rather plausible, and it may win for them the majority of the votes in the coming November elections.

OUR SHOWS

Lecturing is sometimes weakened because the one who is being lectured becomes biased against being scolded. A few statements of pure fact and truth often accomplish more than any amount of scolding. Therefore, a few facts may enlighten those (their number is small) who criticize the Washington Hall movies.

All of South Bend's show houses are protected against any up-to-the-minute picture being obtained by others except when these others pay the regular graduated price for the picture. These pictures come in "blocks" of twelve or more, and one show house will usually speak for three or four of them. It does not take a genius to see that financially it is impossible for Notre Dame to break in on this plan. Furthermore, the show houses are protected both before and after they have shown a picture. Now if the pictures get out to Washington Hall late there is an objection because they have been seen down-town and are "old stuff"; it therefore becomes a problem to select features that have not been seen by the majority of students.

These are the facts. No effort has been spared to please the student body in this matter and as a result the comedies have been very good and the features have been as a whole not at all second-rate. If anyone has a scheme whereby Notre Dame can obtain up-to-the-minute pictures with the facility that South Bend show houses get them they have solved a problem. Think this over before you criticize.

Many a modern girl would be insulted if someone told her he thought she was dressed sensibly.

ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY

As an advocate of clean politics on the campus, a recent editorial published by the official publication of the University of Illinois announced that beginning with that issue, it would print all news of university politics. This marks the first move of the publication to thwart the intentions of the sneaking, crafty politician. "Dope" stories containing the actual political happenings of the campus will be published, in order that students may learn that which they have every right to know. Through publicity, the Daily Illini hopes to rid the general student body of the politician who does his work in secret.

THE TURNOVER

There is no end to bases of division when the subject to be divided is the human race. If it is true that no two faces are quite alike—and what a blessing that it is—it is also the lesson of experience that no two minds or hearts are totally similar. If they were, then surely we should have universal peace, and also, possibly, universal stagnation. We all long for peace, and yet it seems that none of us really wants it. The next most interesting thing in life to a real unfeigned fight is a fictitious one. "Staging" battles, conflicts, combats, is the life-blood of fiction. Still a feud is more thrilling than a farce. It is also more fatal—but that is another question.

There seems to be a blessing hidden behind most of the things we label undesirable or proclaim evil. Besides, we pretend an aversion to many things pretty much as Caesar put aside the proffered crown. Bad manners are dreadful. But they are also amusing when one is in the right humor. Everybody enjoys a bull in a china shop, so long as the shop is not his own. And a "horse" laugh creates real merriment in a hay-mow. We know next to nothing about the Einstein theory of Relativity, but we have notions on relativity, for all that.

It is said that "for those who think, the world is a comedy, for those who feel, it is a tragedy." If that is true, it proves that life must be a serio-tragic affair for all. For, in our judgment, no individual passes through life without at some rare moment becoming guilty of thought, and feeling cannot but accompany thought.

But it is not true. For many take the world seriously precisely because they do think. The more deeply they think the more serious their outlook on life. The greatest thinkers of the centuries have been the saints, and they have been the most serious of men, and also men of the keenest sensibilities. There may be inveterate grouches, but there are no constant comedians. In fact, really comical persons wear an habitual air of seriousness.

Truth is imperilled when the members of one's classification are not mutually exclusive. To divide men into thinkers and feelers is a case in point. Thought unaccompanied by feeling may be graphaphonic; it is not human. Feeling uninitiated by thought may be sensible; it is not rational. All men think and all men feel, though in different degrees of perfection. Disorder creeps in and harm is done, as well when the thinker violently stifles his feelings as when his feelings are allowed to dominate the thoughts. And of the two extremes, the latter is by far the more disastrous.

The world becomes a comedy for those thinkers only who attempt to reduce it to the size of their idea of it. When Schopenhauer said: "The world is my idea," he made it a comedy, because in so doing he first made himself a comedian. Hence though thinkers refuse to take him seriously, they need not, therefore, also regard the universe as a joke. The world becomes a tragedy to those who have such an exaggerated notion of their own importance as to believe that they deserve a better one. They regard themselves as so much better than the universe and all that is in it that, by comparison with the face in the mirror, it presents a sorry sight. The comedians need to look into the mirror; the tragedians need to paint it over with soap.

Inconstancy
A star fell in love with a flower,
And shone with a softening ray,
Telling his love with a depth and power
He'd learned through the whole long day.
But the flower was tiny and white and small
And she wasn't so sure of the star at all.
So nodding her head in her own sweet way
She promised to tell him at break of day.
Morning came, and the flower was sure,
Her love grew strong with the dawn,
She lifted her head all shining and pure,
But the star had faded and gone.

The "Letters of the Tsarina to the Tsar" are being brought out this month by Robert M. McBride and Company. The letters were written in English by the Tsarina during the tragic years between the beginning of the war and the downfall of the Russian empire. The introduction to the collection was written by Sir Bernard Pares, and the letters are remarkable not only as historical documents but also as intimate expressions of a woman's devotion.

G. P. Putnam's Sons will publish sometime in the near future a volume of poems, "The Elf Pedlar." The author of the collection, Helen Douglas Adam, is an English girl only twelve years of age. Some of the poems in the collection are said to have been dictated by their author when she was but four years old.

Owen Davis, whose drama, "Ice-bound," has been published by Little, Brown and Company, has brought suit against Harold Lloyd, the screen star for $100,000. Mr. Davis alleges that Lloyd, after refusing to buy the picture rights of Davis' latest play, "The Nervous Wreck," used some of the ideas in a picture.

Jennifer Lorn. By Elinor Wylie, New York: George H. Doran. 1923.
A puzzling book indeed. In one of our literary journals this book was labeled an "extravaganza," and properly so. Here we have a colorful concoction of absurdity and romance, a brew of fascination, yet scarcely permissible crudity. Whatever the author had in mind as a motive when she took it upon herself to put the ninety thousand words on paper, it is onerous to discover.

If there are high "planes" in the book they are gained in an ascent of stiff sophistry; for there are giggles, secret "laughs up the sleeve" and those laughs are directed quite directly at the whole male population.

Jennifer Lorn is the daughter of a Scotch peer; into which is woven also a narration of some of the episodic existence of Gerald Poyndry, an East India Company employee; all in the days of Warren Hastings. Gerald marries Jennifer and cherishes her as a jewel. But a jewel is invariably coveted. So the dreamful Jennifer is wooed and torn away more than once, to die at last in a harem of the east.

Elinor Wylie draws some false lines in the book. In her attempt to shatter the commonplace she has overcolored trite pictures. On a whole, however, the work is well done and is worth reading, and buying—(?) well, I guess.—F. C. M.

Well, Joe thought the show was good, Bert called it mediocre, and we considered it pretty fair. All were unanimous on one point, however, when we agreed that Owen McGivney shone forth as conspicuously as the proverbial good deed in a naughty world. This one-man dramatic club plays a scene from "Oliver Twist" in a manner that is almost incredible. There is simply nothing to this act but McGivney.

Dotson is a terpsichorean artist of Harry Wills' hue, and to say that he can dance is to put it mildly. This act contains some good comedy, and many examples of what a fellow with ball-bearing ankles can do if he really tries.

Miller and Mack start off by threatening to be very funny, but soon they fall by the wayside, and the result is rather silly and uninspiring. One thing in this act, however, deserves honorable mention, and that is the song wherein the daffy pair declare eternal preference for the number 49,655.

Ray Hughes and Pam have a comedy act wherein all the laughs are derived from two facts, viz: That Ray can fall hard without hurting himself, and that Pam delights in showing her knees. After fifteen minutes of Ray's Humpty-Dumpty act and Pam's knees, the thing ceases to be a joke.

The first act of the program is called a "Pot Pourri" and as such it's hard to classify. A ballet dancer and some trained birds supply most of the amusement.

The much advertised "Wager" is an afterpiece in which all the performers join to burlesque Owen McGivney's act. It's rather cleverly done, and the sight of the ebon Dotson as Fagin, doesn't fail to draw a laugh.

The name of the picture is "The Man That Life Passed By," which includes Eva Novak, Agnes Ayres, and Cullen Landis. It's all about a man who has the heebie-jeebies until he's finally restored by a pretty woman's love. The picture is good.—E. C.

Notre Dame Observatory Telescope Given to Father Sorin by Napoleon III in 1860

Standing apart from the larger and more magnificent buildings on the campus is the little Notre Dame Observatory. It is scarcely noticeable for its size; yet greatly significant in the history and tradition of the University of Notre Dame.

In 1860, Napoleon III presented Father Sorin with a magnificent telescope, ground under the personal supervision of Leon Foucault, the greatest physicist of his time. This instrument was constructed of wood with the lenses balanced on a tripod. The old observatory was located to the left of the present Main building. It was destroyed by fire in 1879 but the telescope was saved. The same year the lenses were removed and placed in a new mounting. The old frame was discarded and placed in the old boat-house on St. Joseph's Lake where it may still be found. The present building was completed in 1890.

The original objective lens was reground in order to give the telescope a longer focal length. This lens is six inches in diameter with a magnificent range of from 40 to 400 diameters. The instrument is equipped with a micrometer for measuring the angles subtended by planetary bodies and double stars. It is also provided with a solar attachment which makes it possible for one to study the sun spots and like phenomena. The machine is exceptionally good, and enables one to get a very definite and precise idea of the various markings of the planets.

The rotating roof of the observatory also has a historic setting. It revolves on ball bearings which are cannon balls picked up on the battle field of Tippacanoe. For his contribution, Napoleon III has been listed among the benefactors of the University and his portrait may now be found among the mural decorations of the Main building.

Due to the various improvements the telescope is modern in all respects and is a miniature model of the great Yerkes Observatory.

Throughout the year, when the weather permits, daily observations are made by Father DeWolf, who is in charge. Students are invited to come in and take a peek at the moon on any night that Father DeWolf is around. Recently Father DeWolf started an astronomy class for those particularly interested in this kind of study.

Don't Wail About It Write About It This is your column

Editor the DAILY:

Dear Sir—I received a letter from Rev. F. Izard, O. S. B., of Abbaye de St. Benoit in Belgium recently. He praised Notre Dame very much and especially admired the American Church is growing up rapidly. He said:

"In the English Jesuit magazine, 'The Month' there is an article in the January number, which says that now in the United States one person in every six is Catholic, also that in 150 years, the Catholic population has increased 23 times faster than the general population of the country. That is fine. Let us hope that the present controversy among American Protestants will make some of them see the absolute necessity for authority in religion.

"I hope you are, in this illustrious and famous college as Notre Dame, continuing to go regularly to Holy Communion, and not forgetting always to ask for a great increase of Faith. Of that the primary of the Theological virtues we can never have enough . . ."

Yours truly,
GEORGE B. CHAO.

Editor, NOTRE DAME DAILY:
Dear Sir—May I ask you to correct a statement made in your last issue?

The requirements for admission to the Law school comprise a full high school course. It includes two units in mathematics; one in algebra and one in geometry. In addition one full year of college work is required for the study of law.

It would be a serious injury to the reputation of the Law school to have your readers believe that high school mathematics are not required for entrance.

Very sincerely yours,
DIRECTOR OF STUDIES.

Scribblers Will

Hear Mr. Gurley

On Wednesday evening The Scribblers will assemble to hear Mr. Boyd Gurley, editor of the South Bend News-Times, give a talk upon "Literature and the Practical Man."

At this meeting the several vacancies created in the membership of the club in the past three weeks will be filled. Papers will be read by Robert O'Riordan and Joseph C. Ryan. It is probable that the rules and prize for the "Most-Rejection-Slip Contest," soon to be sponsored for members of the club, will be announced.

Chicago Club to Meet Wednesday

There will be a special meeting of the Chicago club Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Carroll hall rec room. This will be one of the most important meetings of the year and the presence of every member is requested.

Owing to the departure of Gerald O'Hern, a second vice-president will be elected from the freshmen members. For this election a majority of members must be present.

Plans for the Easter dance will be drawn up and the committees will be appointed. Refreshments will be served.

MISSION CRUSADE

The Catholic Students' Mission Crusade Unit of Notre Dame at a recent meeting discussed the membership drive which it will soon launch. Rev. Hugh O'Donnell, head of the unit, told the members that Father McNamara will assist him in the crusade work. Father McNamara, aside from assisting in the work of the unit, will deliver lectures on missionary work at the meetings.

INTERHALL BASKETBALL

Nally performed stellarly. Lloyd, O'Neill and Favero were successful in sinking some difficult shots.

Badin won a slow contest from Sophomore, 22 to 17. Neither team played up to standard, and the game lagged until the final minutes of play. After trailing the Sophs the first half, Badin showed an improvement in form and outplayed its opponents in the final period and lead by five points at the whistle. Cody starred for the winners, while Sheridan was the bright light on the Sophomore team.

Brownson and Day postponed their game until later in the week.

events. McTiernan and Kennedy will provide the fireworks for the quarter mile and mile events, while Johnny Wendland will take on a formidable adversary in Marzulo, who won the two mile grind in the Notre Dame-Illinois meet, last winter in the local gym, in 9:48 4-5. Wendland turned in the two mile last Saturday in 10:00 4-5 after having covered the first part of the run in easy fashion. Wendland will have more than a fighting chance on the fast Illinois track and should give the Urbana stepper more than a race.

Last year, Ayers won the 40-yard dash in the local gym in :04 3-5, just nosing out Barr from second place. The time in 440 and mile in last Saturday's Blue and Gold meet was faster by a fraction of a second than the time recorded in the same events in the Illinois meet last year.

The Illinois relays at Urbana and a meet with Wisconsin here will complete the indoor track season for the Irish squad.

FROLIC TICKETS

The sale of Freshman Frolic tickets will be opened to upper classmen tomorrow, it was announced by Joseph O'Donnell, chairman of the ticket committee, yesterday. Freshmen will continue to have the privilege of purchasing tickets.

Consent has been granted to permit the St. Mary's students to attend the dance by Sister Claudia, according to Joseph Murray, secretary of the Freshman class.

"Russ" Arndt, who has been confined to bed with a broken ankle suffered in an interhall basketball game, left St. Joseph Hospital recently and is now back on the campus.

You won't fumble this cap!

Professional jugglers could handle the old-style shaving cream caps and never once drop one down the drain or under the bath tub. But for most of us, this new Williams Hinge-Cap puts an end to an ancient nuisance.

Williams Shaving Cream is just as much pleasanter to use as is the Hinge-Cap. It softens the beard with uncanny speed. The thicker lather holds the moisture in against the skin where it is needed. This lather lubricates the skin, too, so that painful razor friction is eliminated. And when your shave is done, that famous ingredient in Williams which helps the skin, leaves your face cool, soothed and refreshed. No coloring matter is used in Williams—it is a pure, natural-white shaving cream.
