Renovation on its way

LaFortune plans OK'd

by Anthony Abowd
News Editor

Renovation of LaFortune Student Center, according to student plans, is nearing reality. Over the summer a committee of the Board of Trustees approved the plans of the LaFortune Renovation Committee, providing funding is found.

"Our presentation before the Trustees was probably one of the best student efforts they had ever seen," says Ken Knevel, fifth year architecture student and chairman of the renovation committee. "They told us that the renovation through them would meet no obstacles if the funding could be found."

Knevel, Dan Schipp, another student on the renovation committee, several administrators and representatives from Ellerbe Architects met in July to discuss practical aspects of the renovation.

"It looks like the total project will cost around $700,000," says Knevel. "We are meeting later this month with the interior designers from Ellerbe and then we'll tell them exactly what we want."

Knevel points out that the construction will be in phases once the go-ahead is given.

"Phase one of the plans calls for renovation of the Rathskellar, the basement of LaFortune. This can be done during the school year because it won't effect many activities. Construction of the entire building would have to be done during the summer, much like the south dining hall was renovated this summer."

Funding is the major stumbling block remaining. The committee hopes to find the money necessary to begin the project.

"Funding is handled through Dr. Frick's Development office," said Dr. Robert Ackerman, director of staff development in the office of Student Affairs and a member of the renovation committee. "They are trying to interest a donor. As a matter of policy nothing about their efforts is released prematurely."

Knevel emphasizes that renovation plans will follow the original suggestions provided by ND students, mainly architect majors. But the work of the committee is far from completed. They must now deal with the specific designs of the renovation.

"The committee now is going to be involved with specifics for the rest of the building. We need to take inventory to see what the offices in the building want. Ultimately the committee will become the Student Center Board to supervise use of the renovated building."

Student input is still needed, according to Knevel. He is currently handling requests from students to do the remaining work.

"We need students with ideas in interior design for the student center and we need student artwork. The Student Activities office, in the first floor of LaFortune, is handling all information requests currently," says Knevel.

Activities Night slated

by Denise Crowley
Staff Reporter

Student Government is sponsoring an Activities Night Monday, September 10, from 7 p.m. to 12 p.m. at LaFortune Student Center. "Carny '73," another Student Government-sponsored orientation and welcoming event, will be held on Wednesday, September 12, from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. on the South Quad.

Over 100 clubs will be out to get acquainted with students on and off campus and at St. Mary's during Activities Night. Club representatives will be at the Center to distribute literature, answer questions, and sign up new members.

Groups already signed up for Activities Night include club sports, community service projects, academic clubs, geographic area clubs, game clubs, the media services, and student government.

Carny '73 is a first-ever orientation carnival at Notre Dame. It will consist of a picnic dinner, games, free prizes, and entertainment.

The picnic dinner will be served from 4:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. The menu, for both quads, includes cold chicken, foot-long hot dogs, corn-on-the-cob, and other side dishes. Students must eat on their respective quads.

After dinner, Fr. Theodore Hesburgh, President of the University, and Dennis (H-Man) Etienne, Student Body President, will officially welcome the students.

Groups still interested in participating in Activities Night should contact the Student Activities Office at 3664 before Saturday.

Clubs and organizations must register at the main desk in LaFortune on Monday. The booths will be set up on Monday from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

WSND, the student radio station, will broadcast from the Student Center Monday night.

The Notre Dame Glee Club will sing selections during the evening.

Carny '73 games will include a dunking booth, basketball shooting games, bean bag toss, football throw, and surprise kissing booth.

Winners of these games will receive tickets, redeemable for free prizes.

Folk groups and bands will be playing as students enjoy free cotton candy, slushes, balloons, and clowns.

Dan Schipp, one of the program's organizers, stressed that student government hopes to have the whole community, students, faculty, administration, and their families, join together and share in the picnic and carnival.

'Party House' sites proposed

by Bill Sabin
Staff Reporter

A proposal for a "Party House," a place where students could legally party and drink has been made by a Student Life Council summer committee, according to Robert Ackerman, Director of Staff Development.

The proposal is only in the planning stage, but it is expected that the SLC will take action on the issue at its first meeting, the date of the meeting has not been determined.

The purpose of the idea is to make the dormitories more compatible to studying and sleeping without denying those who would want to party the opportunity to do so. The well-known hall and dorm parties are presently against University regulations anywhere on campus.

The new proposal would not only provide a place in which such partying would be legal, but it also would provide an environment much more conducive to a party than a particular hallway in a dormitory.

Possible "Party House" sites included Stepan Center, the Bulla Shed, the America lounge in the basement of Flanner, and the red barn at the north east corner of the campus. The committee, working with the Student Affairs office, now considers the Red Barn to be the most suitable.

The barn's location away from the dorms, its medium size (Stepan was considered too big and cumbersome), and its potential after a renovation as, say, a Swiss-chalet-type of place makes the red barn all the more desirable.

However, the whole plan is yet to be considered by the entire SLC. There are still unanswered questions surrounding the proposal.

Besides the location there is the omnipresent question of financing. The committee hopes the University will provide some of the funds and perhaps Student Government will help out, they hope.

ND-SMC shuttle bus changes night route

by Paul Szewczyk

The Notre Dame-St. Mary's shuttle bus service has changed its 11:00 pm route. The new route omits the roads about the perimeter of the campus and utilizes the roads that travel through the inside University grounds.

The new night route comes into effect after 11:00 pm on all nights ending at 12:30 am Sunday through Thursday and at 2:00 am Friday and Saturday. The new system began yesterday.

The route starts from the Memorial Library and proceeds to the Stadium, heading toward the West gate. The buses then drive past the ROTC building and Grotto, to the rear of the Administration building and past the infirmary. Leaving the infirmary, the buses move past the Security office to Flanner Hall and the North Dining Hall. The buses then travel to O'Shaughnessy Hall, turn back to the Grotto and move out the same way they entered St. Mary's.

The new path will make traveling safer than previous nights and will also be more convenient for all who use the shuttle bus system, say officials.

OC bus service seen for students in near future

by Paul Szewczyk
Staff Reporter

Plans for a limited shuttle bus system for off-campus Notre Dame students are nearing completion and hopefully will go into effect in the near future.

Only the planning of the routes is needed before the bussing arrangements are finalized, according to Dennis Etienne, Student Body President.

"Setting up the routes is the problem," stated Etienne, "we need a concentration map before we can begin. After we have this, we'll start a shuttlebus on a limited basis."

Etienne also stated that if the off-campus bussing is successful, a expanded program will be developed. "We can't risk starting out with a huge service, but we'll enlarge the system if it works," remarked Etienne.

Schedules for the off-campus shuttle will not be released until all details have been worked out. Although Etienne couldn't give a date for the bussing to start, he promised it wouldn't be too distant in the future.

The off-campus bussing will join the already operating between St. Mary's and Notre Dame.

Core requirements changed by SMC board of regents

by Maria Gallagher
St. Mary's Editor

A change in core requirements, retroactive to all students, was approved over the summer by Saint Mary's Board of Regents. The announcement came in a letter to upperclassmen from Mrs. Gail Mandell of the academic affairs office.

Under the new curriculum guidelines, candidates for all baccalaureate degrees must demonstrate proficiency in composition and in foreign language. The English requirement may be satisfied through examination or by completing ENLT 100, proficiency in writing, or another course approved by the English department.

The writing proficiency requirement is satisfied by the required English Literature courses upperclassmen took at Saint Mary's or Notre Dame.

PROFICIENCY IN FOREIGN language may be demonstrated through examination or by completing six semester hours of foreign language. Candidates for the B.S. degree in medical technology, medical records administration, cytotechnology or nuclear medicine technology are exempt from this requirement.

Revisions in core requirements for B.A. and B.B.A. candidates have also been implemented. Requirements are divided into three areas. Area I, in which a minimum of eight semester courses must be taken, consists of history, literature (American or English), mathematics, philosophy, religious studies, art, humanistic studies, music, and speech and drama. One course must be taken in each of the first five, and the additional courses may be taken in any department in Area I.

NOT MORE THAN two courses may be taken in any one department to fulfill these requirements.

A minimum of two semester course must be taken from the following science offerings. (Area II): astronomy (not presently offered), biology, chemistry, and physics. Finally, a minimum of two semester courses must be taken in area III, with not more than one course in any department: business administration-economics, political science, psychology and sociology.

CANDIDATES FOR the B.S., B.F.A., and B.M. degrees should consult their major departments for new requirements as they may vary in individual cases.

The revised curriculum outline was first formulated by the committee on academic matters of the Planning Committee, referred to President Edward Henry and approved, and finally ratified by the department chairmen, who made it retroactive for all students. It became official by a Board of Regents vote at their June meeting.

Mandell felt that the change "brought Saint Mary's requirements more realistically in line with what similar colleges are demanding of their students." She clarified, however, that the issue of comprehensive examinations is still under study, as is a revision in the requirement of 128 credit hours for graduation.

"PHILOSOPHICALLY, the new guidelines have the same intent as the old ones—to offer an introduction to all disciplines, but students shouldn't be forced to take subjects which they find irrelevant. On the positive side, it permits them to choose more freely courses they will enjoy."

Core requirement revisions will not affect the coexchange agreement. The same restrictions still apply—core requirements may not be taken at Notre Dame. Freshmen must still pay fees for any Notre Dame courses, sophomores and juniors are limited to one free coexchange course per semester, and seniors may select two free courses.

from the editor's desk:

One Paper Town

The responsibility of operating a campus newspaper is a staggering proposition, particularly the prospect of managing a paper that is growing as swiftly and strongly as The Observer. It operates "in a one-newspaper town" with its only news competition coming from WSND--a representative of another media. The "one newspaper town" concept is always a sore spot of critics of this paper, but it is likewise the situation as it is.

Within that context then, we can talk about the newspaper's responsibilities and obligations. We perform a service bringing news and information to the students, but we are not a bulletin board on which everyone can indiscriminately tack up their messages. We are a newspaper. We take the responsibility and liability of reporting the news. No reporting of the news is completely objective, but the news in The Observer is generally as objective as we can make it.

Along with that responsibility of reporting the news comes the privilege and obligation of commenting on it and that comment will continue to appear on the editorial pages. It would be unfair if we had a "vice grip" on the comment that we run, so the editorial column slot--the column on the right hand side of the editorial page--is open to all students on campus. Copy can be submitted to us, but it must be typed and double spaced. It must not exceed four pages. But all copy is, nonetheless, subject to our editorial decisions whether to run it or not. Those decisions are based on our liability as a newspaper--if copy is slanderous or places us in a liable position, it cannot be run.

Services to the Students

As stated before, service to the students is an important responsibility and with that in mind, The Observer has planned some additions.

Beginning Wednesday, a TV guide magazine will appear with The Observer. It will contain all the weekly listings for the Michiana area.

Also appearing in the paper during the week prior to the home football games a football special will be published, containing rosters and pre-game information.

In addition, The Observer, will continue publication of our Saturday magazine Monitor.

We intend to expand our use of the supplement and Friday we will commence their publication with a special on South Bend. It will feature material on the redevelopment project in town, the new Scottsdale Mall, maps of the city and area, bus schedules, and will include stories by four South Bend Tribune staffers on their specialty areas.

Two new features of the paper are Oliphant, which has already been introduced, and Action Express. Action Express will begin appearing on our pages Monday and will appear three times a week. It will operate on an "Action Line" format and concentrate on answering student problems.

Special Problems

One large problem facing The Observer and all other area newspapers is the availability of newsprint. The shortage of it has placed a burden on these papers and has even resulted in the near shut down of many. Resultingly, The Observer will not be able to publish 12 page issues because of the lack of a special roll of paper that is needed in the production of a 12-page paper. Instead we will be coming to you in 8 or 16 pages.

As it stands now, we have enough paper to continue publication, but the future is extremely uncertain.

If this sounds like a state of The Observer message, perhaps it is. But while we continue publication, and presently there is no reason why we should have to discontinue, we will bring you the news of the campus and will continue to comment on it.

We will strive throughout the year to maintain our credibility and our objectivity and to remain as observers and commentators on the activities at Notre Dame. This is both our purpose and our goal, even in this "one newspaper town."

Miles To Go...

Thank You,
Pearl
butch ward

Though the new semester has seen the arrival of an unprecedented number of women to the halls of Notre Dame, another group of women with a great tradition at the dome has greatly decreased its ranks.

And we're going to miss many of them.

I met Pearl early in my sophomore year when she was the other third floor maid in Alumni Hall. When overcrowding caused the maids to juggle their room assignments at the start of last year, I became one of Pearl's "boys."

To have Pearl for my maid was to have much more than a bed-maker, or a sink-cleaner, or a floor-vacuum, all of which she did with tremendous care.

To be one of Pearl's "boys" was to have a friend.

Being a maid in Alumni Hall was more than a job for Pearl, just as it was more than a job for many of Notre Dame's maids. Naturally she did her share of griping when "the sheets were late" or no one was getting up early enough for her to get started at her work.

But for Pearl the third floor of Alumni was the home of close to 50 young men whom she considered her own. It was never too much trouble for her to struggle with a plunger when our sinks were clogged or to search for a bulb when our lights burnt out.

And most of all, she was never too busy to talk to us.

For Pearl was proud of her long association with Notre Dame and the thousands of students she had cared for long before we arrived here. They were for Pearl a reason to work hard every day, and she possessed a tremendous understanding of the student's situation at this university.

But not only did she understand us, she respected us.

Pearl was never afraid to share with us problems she was having with illnesses in her family or the growing fear that someday soon the work in the Hall would be too much for her.

We all knew she dreaded the day that her affiliation with Notre Dame would end.

And now it has.

It really is different this year not to have her around to ride because her clattering awakened us early, or because she missed a piece of lint on our badly worn rugs.

We'll all miss her flirting and her quick retorts about our ugly faces and her stories of how Domers of long ago beat the hall rules by hiding alcohol in fake dresser drawers.

And we'll miss the constant reminders that Pearl has a mind all her own.

She was a fighter from the day I met her, and I suppose it wasn't easy convincing her it was time to step down. But God knows, she deserves the rest.

And Pearl isn't the only maid whose departure from Notre Dame is going to be sorely felt. Certainly I've heard guys complain that their maid reads their mail or has forgotten how to use the switch on the vacuum cleaner.

But I've rarely heard those same guys say that that maid wasn't someone special. Because admit it or not, we male residents of Notre Dame were spoiled at home by someone who nagged, complained, and pouted and then still came behind us and cleaned up our mess.

And just like that special woman at home, it was all too easy to take those special women who cleaned our rooms here for granted.

Until they're gone.

I hope Pearl gets a chance to read this tribute to her because there's always the possibility that she never knew how much she meant to us.

And I also hope that all the other women who are now gone or who remain here to daily lend a hand find a reason to believe that they too are appreciated.

For losing Pearl means losing more than a bed-maker. She will truly be missed.

God bless you, Pearl. Good luck, and thanks.

Letters To A Lonely God

a beast in a concrete jungle

reverend robert griffin

Of all the men and beasts who stalked the concrete jungles around Times Square this summer, I suppose that my dog, Darby O'Gill, and I were the least terrifying to the tourists. In the neighborhoods where mugger and shiv-artists are rumored to roam the streets like the night armies of an enemy occupation, fat parsons seem so very defenseless that even shaky old ladies have been known to trip them up, just for the sport of the thing. When that fat man is leashed to a limping cocker spaniel whose long, sloppy ears still bear traces of being dangled in the morning's egg, tourists know there is more violence in the wingbeat of a noondrunk butterfly than there is in all the chaste energies of a gentle preacher and his kindly pet.

That is why, I think, that when Darby and I went walking in Times Square hands were stretched out at him from all over the sidewalk, and he was scratched, tickled, and petted from every direction. As his patron and friend, I never got scratched or petted, though I wouldn't have minded, but I did get tickled once, which shows how much English Leather helps if you don't have the cuteness of a cocker spaniel.

"He's a dog"

Tourists from everywhere would say, "Is he a boy or a girl?" "Actually," I would answer, "he's a dog."

Tourists from everywhere really know how to spoil a dog by their questions, especially if that dog already considers himself to be very important people. It was this form of pride, I think, functioning as a kind of tragic flaw, that tempted O'Gill one night to rid Times Square of a policeman's horse.

Here was this lovely, brown steed, mounted by a policeman who looked ten feet tall in the saddle; and here was Darby O'Gill being fierce, forgetful of his image as a parson's pup, and the whole height of him didn't stand a fetlock high. But he made growling sounds deep in his throat, ground his teeth together, stamped his foot, and finally barked his outrage into gentle Dobbins' face, never once taking his eyes off the sudden movements of the horse by which he could have been kicked as a field goal over the Chrysler Building.

The crowd cheered and applauded, some in support of Darby, and the rest on the side of the horse. I shushed at the dog and tugged at his leash, fearful of being arrested, until finally, the policeman road off on his beast, leaving the streets safe for the posturings and struttings of cocker spaniels.

Mary McAdoo

My best memory of the summer of '73 is not of Darby, scourge of horses; but of Darby O'Gill, comforter of the aging.

Mary McAdoo is a little old lady with shopping bags who walks every morning down 42nd Street, sorting out the trash and searching for treasures, in all the waste contrainers she sees. I don't know what doorways she sleeps in at night, or where she goes in winter to escape the cold; but I am sure she is homeless, and I am certain she can find of nothing of value in her search of the trash cans of 42nd Street. There are many old ladies who live out of shopping bags and sort out the trash in Manhattan, but all of them are strangers to me.

Mary McAdoo would also be a stranger, if she and Darby O'Gill had not taken notice of each other.

She and Darby met while they were both doing business at the same trash container, she as a scavenger, he as a maker of puddles. When Mary McAdoo looked down and saw Darby O'Gill beside her, she dropped everything she was carrying and swooped up the dog like a mother just united to a child held in ransom. She spoke to him in words I could only half understand, and he wagged his stumpy tail as happily as though the two of them had once lived as litter-mates on the same puppy farm.

Summer-long friendship

This was the beginning of a friendship that lasted all summer. Each morning, when I took Darby out for his walk, Mary would be waiting somewhere in the neighborhood, staring in a shop window, or sitting with her shopping bags on the steps of the church. Then the three of us would convene in a meeting. Mary would make love to the dog, and he would submit with ecstasy to all her attentions. Sometimes she would give him little lunches from her shopping bag, and I wondered if she herself had eaten anything that day. Sometimes I offered her money, but she would always push my hand away and shake her head.

Mary McAdoo never told me anything of herself. Her answers to all my questions were vague and indefinite, or she would pretend she was too deaf to understand me.

But I got the impression that somewhere in her early life, there had been another cocker spaniel, and he must have looked a lot like Darby.

Once she asked me if she could take O'Gill away with her, and bring him back on the following morning. She had some children in a park that she wanted him to meet, she said. I did not dare to say yes. Among its other crimes, Manhattan has a long list of dognappings, and I couldn't trust the dog I love to the doorways where Mary McAdoo sleeps. Her frailty was hardly enough to protect her own life, much less that of my cocker spaniel. I told her Darby and I would be happy to go visiting parks with her, but that I needed that dog at home when the darkness came. She was very disappointed, but the next day, I gave her a stuffed dog of her own, which she hugged and stuck in her shopping bag. Every day or two, she would take it out again, and rub its nose against Darby's.

Rain or shine, Mary McAdoo came daily to 42nd Street; and even if the dog-airing was several hours late, she would be waiting in a spot where she could watch the rectory door. From June until August, she hardly missed a morning; and now that I have left the city, I hear she still comes regularly to wait on the church steps, hoping to see again the little beast who offers her love.

Darby O'Gill and his priest were one of the tourists attractions of Manhattan this summer. But in her first summer in New York Darby was more than a tourist, for he also found a place among the street people of Times Square.

Most of those street people don't care too much for policemen or their horses, either.

How are you? I'm sending you a penny for your thoughts because thats all I have left after paying the rent on my refrigerator.

"Students also claim the vegetable supply is contaminated and point out the rising mortality rate here."

"Yes, we have taken steps to investigate this. We have tried to contact the man that sold us our canned vegetable supply to see if he has received any other reports of mass poisoning resulting from his product. You see, we want to make sure what we have here is just not an attack of mass psychosomatic tendencies. However, the salesman is currently on an extended vacation in the central rainforests of Brazil..."

thats all well and good but what do we do when the snow comes and all the leaves are gone.

So I told them Teresa, that I would pay half the rent then and half after I checked the refrigerator out to see if it worked. Seeing that my roommate was electrocuted when he plugged it in, I'm not too eager to pay them.

LOOK, IF WE PUT OUT PHONEBOOKS OK, MAYBE THEY'LL FORGET ABOUT THE REFRIGERATORS, OK.

They came and told me that I didn't pay them soon, they would start taking things away from me, like the use of my right arm.

hold the light higher i cant see i knowi buried that salami somewhere around here

The refrigerator doesn't work very well, but it makes a great conversation piece.

hey hey you lousy mutt come back with my salami

"One final point, sir. Many freshmen have reported that since their parents left after the picnic held during orientation, that they have received no communication whatsoever from them for two months."

wake up i heard someone outside say something about salami.

P.S. Please forgive me if I never tickle your navel again. get that dog he's got the salami.

go to hell with the salami get the dog

(AN: At this point I woke up and felt an acute need to use the bathroom. After that I spent a restless night, partly because I had to sleep on the floor because when I came back from the bathroom Dream was asleep in my bed.)

HPC & student govt

Activities in the works

by Bill Sabin
Staff Reporter

Student government and the Hall Presidents Council are presently working together on a schedule of activities they will sponsor this year.

Activities night next Monday at Lafortune Student Center is the first of these, to be followed by a "welcome back" picnic and carnival next Wednesday at dinner time. The picnic will be on the north quad and the carnival on the south.

HPC chairman Fred Baranowski hopes to keep the two groups working in close cooperation throughout the school year.

"Our most important concern right now is a realignment with student government. Last year the effectiveness of both bodies was hurt by the split," he said.

The HPC, whose funds come from student government has requested an activities allocation of $15,000. If approved, $10,000 would be given to the Hall Life Fund which would in turn distribute it among the halls, and $5,000 would be reserved for An Tostal.

Facing the HPC are conflicts among hall-sponsored movies, conflicts among group-sponsored hot stands during football season, and how to "foster the new spirit that student affairs has implemented in the halls," according to Baranowski. The HPC will meet at 6:00 p.m. every Tuesday in St. Ed's chapel.

Participation in the Gallo wine boycott in support of the United Farm Workers and formation of a committee to do research on the Age of Majority bill are on the student government agenda.

Three promotions have been announced by Student Body President Dennis (H-man) Etienne: Jim Roe to administrative assistant; Mary Clare Molitor to minister of propaganda; and Chris Netto to academic commissioner, pending approval of the board of commissioners.

Other student government plans presently underway were not released for publication.

St. Mary's summer program a 'success' despite class cuts

by Leanne Jacques
Staff Reporter

St. Mary's first summer program was termed a "financial success" by William William Hickey, vice president for academic affairs, although two-thirds of the course offerings were cancelled.

The summer session, lasting 10 weeks, included regular academic courses, mini-courses, and workshops. The pilot program "gave the faculty something different to try and offered an opportunity for South Bend residents to take advantage of St. Mary's facilities," said Hickey.

One of the more successful workshops was the Glasser Workshop for professional education majors, which presented an "open classroom" concept of learning. Coordinated by Sr. Maria Concepta McDermott, education department chairman, the program showed future teachers how to create a classroom environment in which students could pursue a wide variety of learning alternatives consistent with their own interests, needs, and aptitudes.

The summer theatre workshop, directed by Dr. Reginald Bain, speech and drama department chairman, stressed the application of course work to a working theatre. Twenty students comprised the summer company. The additional high school workshop covered acting, stagecraft, and mime. High school students observed and served as apprentices to the regular summer troupe. Three adult productions were staged: "The Fantasticks,"

Jazz band tryouts to be held Sunday

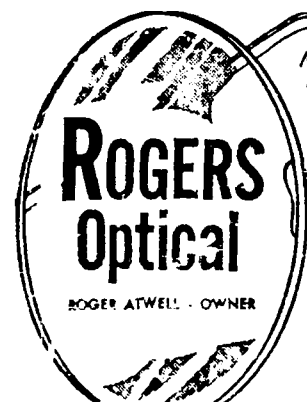

Auditions for the Notre Dame Jazz Band will be held on Sunday, September 9th at 2:00 p.m. in the Washington Hall band room.

Membership in NDJB is open to any student of the university.

Students who play brasses, sax, piano, bass (both string and electric), guitar and drums should bring their instruments to the bandroom on Sunday. Previous jazz experience is not necessary; just ability on an instrument.

Musicians who have a conflict for the Sunday auditions or who desire further information can call Father Wiskirchen at 6303.

SMC social commission kicks off year

by Pattie Cooney

St. Mary's social commission as its first activity of the year is presenting Me Natalie, starring Patty Duke in the Little Theatre of Moreau on September 29.

The SMC social commission was formed last spring to initiate and plan movies, lectures, and individual-group performances. It also serves as a central communications office where all activities are coordinated and as a liaison between Notre Dame and SMC.

The commission as a part of student government operates under Student Affairs Commissioner Joanne Garrett. Student government provides funds for the commission to work with.

Social Commissioner Denise Peterson emphasized, "This commission is not an organization made up of elected officials.

Rather, it is a group of volunteers ready to make St. Mary's campus a more active and organized community."

Any planned activity that does not go through the programming office should go through the social commissioner's office to be publicized and to prevent conflict in space.

A public relations manager, combination lecture-movie manager and a special events manager are still needed. Anyone interested in applying for these positions should contact Denise Peterson in office 132 Regina North, phone 4017.

Volunteers are needed, but are not expected to work full time.

"We're very happy with the way things are going. Administrators, faculty, and students seem to be interested," commented Peterson.

Contrary to previous reports published by the Social Commission, there will not be an Observer office on the SMC campus.

A young man with his eye to the future can look to Army ROTC.

Choose Army ROTC. The total time requirements of ROTC account for little in a student's workload and no commitment is made by you until the Junior Year. While you're looking at our program and deciding if we can offer you something, we will be looking at you. If we're both satisfied we can offer each other something, upon graduation you will receive a commission as a Second Lieutenant in the United States Army Reserve. Right now chances are good you'll only be required to serve on active duty for 3 to 6 months.

When you go back to a civilian career, you'll have an edge. The management and leadership experience offered through ROTC are not duplicated by any other college courses. And, proven in the crucible of officer experience, these are important assets for any young man looking forward to a successful future. Assets which are readily marketable when seeking any position.

Success in a life choice today demands more than ever the right preparation. Education, of course, is essential. But the growing proportion of Americans going to college has lessened the diploma's role as an automatic entree to the best jobs. Employers are demanding something more.

Army ROTC offers "something more" to the college man looking to expand his future. Call 283-6264 or 283-6265 or visit the Army ROTC office Bldg. 5

Irish defensive outlook: 'We show promise there'

by Vic Dorr
Sports Editor

Against Michigan State, they allowed no points and won. Against Miami, they allowed 17 points and won. Against Southern Cal, they allowed 25 points in three quarters, then surrendered 20 more in the final period, and lost. Against Nebraska in the Orange Bowl, they were dissected by Johnny Rodgers, David Humm, and Co., and lost, 40-6.

"They" were Notre Dame's most recent defensive team, a largely rebuilt unit which suffered the brunt of last year's topsy-turvy campaign. They began as a young bunch—as a team with only four starters returning from 1971. They began with an untested secondary and with a freshman in the front four.

But they began in spectacular fashion.

They shut out two of their first three opponents, and allowed, overall, only four touchdowns in the first four games of the '72 season. Then, in the fifth game, injuries caught up with the Irish "D", and their fortunes began to decline. The slide hit its nadir in the last two outings of the year, when Notre Dame surrendered 85 points, while scoring only 29.

In '73, though, Irish coach Ara Parseghian will not need to perform another rebuilding job. Seven of last year's starters return, and the ND coach is hoping that nucleus will carry his team back to its usual level of efficiency: back to being one of the nation's leaders in team defense.

"Notre Dame," said Parseghian, "has been a leader in team defense seven of the nine years I've been here, and we hope to return to our usual quality of defense." Ara's '73 Irish, with seven veterans returning and with a number of promising newcomers, may have the tools to do just that.

Notre Dame's defensive alignment has been re-arranged during pre-fall practice—the Irish are now using a 4-3-4 spread, instead of the 4-4 of recent years—but the first line of the defensive team remains unchanged: the front four.

There, line coach Joe Yonto has three starters returning. Tackle Kevin Nosbusch (6-4, 265) and ends George Hayduk (6-3, 255) and Jim Stock (6-3, 225) are back with a year's experience and seasoning. But sophomore Steve Niehaus has also returned, and the 6-5, 270-pounder has a firm grip on the other tackle slot.

Niehaus, as a freshman, was a defensive standout in last year's first three games, games, but injured his knee in a midweek practice prior to the Missouri game, and did not play again. He made rapid progress during the off-season, though, and saw regular action during the last weeks of spring drills. Now, he is in top form.

"Niehaus causes things to happen," said Parseghian. "His quickness forces the quarterback to make quicker decision and to rush his timing. Steve is a natural football player."

Yonto has also found back-up strength to go with last year's experience, and he's found much of it in the freshman class. A pair of defensive ends, Ross Browner (6-3, 223) and Willie Fry (6-4, 225) have earned spots on the number-two defense, and they, along with junior tackle Mike Fanning (6-6, 270), may erase 1972's depth difficulties.

'73's biggest rebuilding job must come at linebacker, where two of last year's starters and one top reserve graduated. But a pair of last year's monogram winners—Drew Mahalic (6-4, 220) and Greg Collins (6-3, 228)—have given coach George Kelly a nucleus around which to build, and junior Sherm Smith (6-2, 210) and senior Gary Potempa (6-0, 234) have joined in the competition for the three linebacking positions.

Behind those four, Kelly also has depth, though not as much as in past seasons.

But if the linebacking unit has to be rebuilt, the deep defense does not. Three of the four positions in the deep secondary have been filled by returning starters since the beginning of spring drills.

Defensive captain Mike Townsend, who led the nation in interceptions last year, senior Tim Rudnick, and junior Reggie Barnett have held their positions since well into the '72 campaign and the biggest question facing coach Paul Shoultz is filling the vacant fourth spot.

Junior Mike Parker, a compact

but hard-hitting performer, has been running with the first unit since the conclusion of spring practice, but he's been pressed this fall by freshman Luther Bradley, a 6-3, 190-pounder from Muncie.

A pair of sophomores, Bob Zanot—who saw time with last year's varsity, and Randolph Payne, have been impressive with the second defense, and they, also, could see action in the deep secondary.

The defensive team, like its offensive counterpart also has a kicking specialist. Punter Brian Doherty has recovered from post-Orange Bowl knee surgery and returned for his final season with ND, but the two-year veteran has had his share of competition from soph Tony Brantley, who punted for both teams in the Blue-Gold game and averaged 43.2 yards in 13 kicks.

Competition for the vacant spots on the defensive platoon has been rugged, and has continued through late spring and early fall. And now, two weeks before the season opener, the competition is still heated. And because of that competition, the Irish "D" has made some big advances. Bigger, even than those made during '72's rebuilding year.

"We're still matching personnel, and looking at different people with different units," said Parseghian after yesterday's scrimmage. "But I'd have to say that, right now, we're ahead of where we were defensively a year ago."

"We are showing some promise there."

ND continues fall tune-ups

by Greg Corgan

Like a high-powered Indy 500 race car getting in shape for its big Memorial Day showing, the Irish football team continued its tuning process for the home opener against Northwestern with a full scale scrimmage Wednesday afternoon.

The final score was a lopsided 30-7 in favor of the first unit, but most significant were some encouraging indications concerning the defensive unit which last year showed signs of inconsistency. This encouragement came with the addition of three talented freshmen—defensive ends Ross Browner and Willie Fry and strong safety Luther Bradley who all played a good deal of the afternoon with the first team. Although still green after only ten days on the Irish squad, Browner, Fry and Bradley proved that what they lacked in experience, they made up for in speed, quickness and determination.

Parseghian emphasized the fact that there were no significant personnel changes of any kind and that he just wanted to see how the three freshmen would fit in with the first unit.

"It was simply a matter of scrimmaging people against stronger people, merely a matter of matching personnel," noted head coach Parseghian.

He went on to explain, "We were just looking at Browner, Fry and Bradley. We wanted to see what the freshmen could do with the first unit. We already know what (George) Hayduk and (Jim) Stock can do."

Nonetheless, Browner, Fry and Bradley are running strong with the second unit so the depth problem that had presented itself last spring has definitely been improved.

While the freshmen situation gives Irish fans a reason to be happy, the overall defensive position of the team at this point in fall preparation is also generally encouraging.

"There's no doubt that we're ahead of where we were last year at this time defensively," Parseghian offered. "We show some promise there."

The number one defensive squad started out Wednesday with Hayduk and Stock at end, Steve Niehaus and Kevin Nosbusch at tackle with Drew Mahalic, Sherm Smith, Gary Potempa and Greg Collins all seeing action at linebacker, co-captain Mike Townsend, Reggie Barnett, Mike Parker and Tim Rudnick made up the secondary.

There's a lot more than just promise when it comes to the kicking game, namely Bob Thomas and Brian Doherty. Thomas hit two field goals from 47 and 44 yards out, and before the scrimmage was hitting consistently from 50 yards out. He also handled kickoff duties in place of Cliff Brown, and although his kicks weren't as long as Brown's, Thomas was nonetheless effective.

Punter Brian Doherty fully recovered from last spring's knee operation, boomed several 45+ yarders including one coffin corner kick that went out on the one.

Parseghian was obviously well pleased with that facet of the workout. "Thomas and Doherty substantiated our opinion that our kicking game is good."

However, one thing that Parseghian hasn't been pleased with so far this fall is the performance of the offensive unit.

"We improved over Saturday's scrimmage but we're not nearly where we should be. We're still a little leg weary but once we get into shape I expect things to come around. Right now, the passing game is definitely the weakest part of our game."

Parseghian made the observation after quarterbacks Tom Clements and Cliff Brown could manage only 72 yards in eight completions between them during Wednesday's workout.

But while the passing game may not have been up to par, Clements and Brown were still able to move the number one offense into the end zone. Clements engineered drives of 55 and 65 yards against the number three defense and scored himself from the two against the number two defense after Bob Zanot blocked a punt.

Brown directed the number one "O" to a 55 yard touchdown with fullback Wayne Bullock going in from the five. Bullock and halfbacks Eric Penick and Art Best each picked up 50 yards on the afternoon and along with senior Gary Diminick, sophomore Russ Kornman, junior Al Samuels, and freshman Al Hunter give the Irish an abundance of swift running backs for the upcoming season.

The team will work out this afternoon in preparation for their third scheduled scrimmage in less than a week this Saturday.

Interhall announcements

The Office of Interhall Athletics has announced registration deadlines and participation guidelines for its intramural sports program during the current fall semester.

A fully organized and fully equipped tackle football program heads the list, but also included are team soccer and 16-inch softball events, and a pair of doubles tennis tournaments.

It's the interhall football program, though, which keeps Mr. Dominic Napolitan's office busiest during the fall months.

And this year should be no exception. Each hall is asked to hold a team organizational meeting as soon as possible, and to submit a roster—including team coach and manager—to the interhall office immediately after that meeting. As soon as the roster has been submitted, the interhall office will issue uniforms and equipment. But no student will be allowed to play, and no uniforms will be given out after the deadline date of September 12.

Practices and games will be held on the fields south and east of the ACC, and each team will be expected to practice at least three times per week and to have practiced for at least two weeks prior to its opening game.

A physician will be in attendance at all games, but the physical welfare of the interhall football player is the prime responsibility of the athlete himself. The player is responsible for his own injuries and medical bills.

A fall soccer tournament is also being arranged by the I-H office, and it has been given an entry deadline of September 24. Teams will be formed by halls, and all students—excepting members of the soccer club—are eligible.

Team captains will be notified, once all rosters have been submitted, about the scheduling, dates, and times of the tournament games.

The 16-inch softball tournament will be a slow pitch, single elimination affair. It is open to all undergraduates, and players need not live in the same hall to be on the same roster.

Each roster—of at least 16 players—must contain a team name and a team captain, and the tourney will be limited to the first 32 teams to apply. The entry deadline is September 19.

Two days earlier, September 17, has been set as the entry deadline for the two interhall tennis tournaments. One is a women's doubles event, which will be played in best of three sets, with USLTA rules. Games in the distaff event must be played on a weekly basis.

The other is a novice-open doubles tournament which is open to all male undergrad students. Again, the tourney must be played in best of three sets by USLTA rules, and the games in this event will be played at a time mutually acceptable to both players.

In both tournaments, partners must come from the same hall, and the winning team will be expected to submit the match scores.

For further information on any event sponsored by the interhall department contact the I-H staff in office C-4 at the ACC or call 6100.
