SLC calls for ruling on student sex code

by Lonnie Luna
Staff Reporter

The SLC yesterday asked its Rules Committee for a decision on the human sexuality code. The Rules Committee will meet this week and present its recommendations to the SLC next Monday.

The current University sexuality code prohibits pre-marital sex. It states that the genuine expression of love through sex requires the total commitment of two persons in marriage.

Student Body President Pat McLaughlin argued that the current rule simply states Church doctrine on human sexuality and cannot be construed as a rule for behavior.

"We must decide if it is going to be a rule where students get penalized or a statement of a philosophy where they do not get penalized," McLaughlin said.

Art Derse, Student District 6 representative, mentioned that whatever new rule is adopted, it must not invade the privacy of the students. The Committee agreed that the rule must apply to all cases and not just a majority of cases.

"We should educate the students rather than punish them," said District 3 representative Brian Heherty. Heherty pointed out that the sexuality code, passed by the SLC last semester and vetoed by Fr. Hesburgh over the summer, contained an unfair enforcement provision. The proposal, which would have kicked student violators off campus, gave off campus living a stigma, Heherty said. He argued that the problem demands not punishment, but counseling.

Fr. Terrence Lally, assistant vice-president for student affairs, urged the SLC to take more time in adopting a sexuality code because of the importance of the issue.

McLaughlin urged the Committee to act quickly because the issue has remained unresolved for too long.

The sexuality code passed the SLC last year by an eleven to nine vote and was vetoed by Fr. Hesburgh. The SLC is looking for a proposal that can pass the committee unanimously.

Dean of Students John Macheca proposed a meeting with Fr. Hesburgh to determine his objections to the sexuality code passed last year.

"A meeting with Fr. Hesburgh would help the Rules Committee because we could take Fr. Hesburgh's feelings on this in our compromises," Macheca said.

McLaughlin stated that the SLC must decide the sexuality code on its own because of the reason the SLC exists.

"The SLC was not set up for what Fr. Hesburgh has to say, but for what the SLC has to say also," McLaughlin said. "If we let Fr. Hesburgh have his say all the time, there is no need for the SLC."

In other action, the SLC elected its representative to the Judicial Board. The decision was made in secret and the name of the representative will be announced at a later date.

ND Junior killed yesterday in bicycle-truck collision

by Jim Donathen

A 20-year old Notre Dame student was killed yesterday afternoon when his bicycle swerved into a tanker truck at the corner of Michigan St. and North Shore Blvd.

Robert Rieman of 401 Stanford Hall was pronounced dead on arrival at Memorial Hospital at 4:45 p.m. yesterday. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rieman, 1132 Grover Rd., East Aurora, New York.

St. Joseph County coroner's report said Rieman died of a severely crushed chest and internal injuries.

Rieman, a junior government major, was traveling south on Michigan St. enroute to Nicola's where he worked, when he was struck by the southbound tanker.

Rieman was active in campus activities serving in the Logan Center and tutoring programs his freshman year. He spent his sophomore year abroad in the Innsbruck program. Rieman was working this year with the Ombudsman service.

Friends are invited to attend a special service tonight at 10:30 p.m. in the Keenan-Stanford Chapel. His funeral will be held Friday morning at the St. Catherine of Siena Parish in West Seneca, New York.

ND faculty salaries below nat'l average

by Gregg Bangs
Staff Reporter

Percentage increases for Notre Dame faculty salaries lag behind similar increases at universities across the country, according to a report issued by the American Association of University Professors. The report said the average pay increase of current Notre Dame faculty members was in the bottom ten percent of schools reporting increases in faculty salaries.

The AAUP report was published in a newsletter prepared by Tom Swartz and Ed Trubac, President of the Notre Dame AAUP chapter. Trubac, an associate professor of Finance and Business Economics, said the major reason for printing the report was to "publicize the financial situation of the Notre Dame faculty and staff."

In their newsletter, Swartz and Trubac stated that its purpose is "to evaluate recent salary increases at the University of Notre Dame by comparing them with the salary gains of 1,244 institutions of higher learning for the academic year 1973-74." The co-authors also felt that "while 1973-74 was a bad year for faculty members generally, it was much worse for faculty members at the University of Notre Dame."

The major part of the newsletter was a chart comparing the percentage increase in salary for varying academic ranks of the University with similar ranks of other institutions.

The institutions that took part in this survey were broken into two categories. The first category encompassed all the institutions that reported data for continuing staff members.

The second category consisted of private independent colleges and Universities in Category I "which offer the doctorate degree and which conferred in the most recent three years an annual average of fifteen or more earned doctorates covering a minimum of three non-related disciplines. Notre Dame is included in this category," the newsletter related.

The chart shows Notre Dame salary gains are far smaller than the increases in both categories. An example of this lag is seen in the "all ranks" category, which is an average of the percentage increases in the ranks of professor, associate professor, assistant professor and instructor.

The average percentage increase for schools reporting increases at the all ranks level was 5.9 per cent. The increase in Category I was 6.0 per cent, while the Notre Dame percentage increase was 3.8 per cent.

Trubac stressed that this year's results were not a new development. "Three years ago, in a similar study, the average pay increases in the all reporting institutions category was 5.5 per cent, while Notre Dame's increase was only 3.2 per cent. Obviously, we have been behind on the pay increase scale for at least the last three years," he pointed out.

Additional information pertaining to the 1973-74 academic year showed 90 per cent of all reporting institutions had salary percentage increases of over 4 per cent. This puts the 3.8 per cent salary increase at Notre Dame in the bottom 10 per cent of salary increases.

The newsletter also stated that 45 per cent of all reporting institutions made pay increases of at least 6 per cent. Similar data for private, independent schools in Category I were not different.

Only 8 per cent of the schools in Category I "granted salary raises to continuing faculty members that were less than 4 per cent, while 40 per cent (of the schools) gave increases that were at least 6 per cent. In this category as well, Notre Dame ranks near the bottom," the newsletter emphasized.

Trubac and Swartz explained this newsletter followed "a number of AAUP and Faculty Senate reports commenting on the economic status of the faculty at the University of Notre Dame." One of the reports, written by Tom Swartz, noted that if an inflationary rate of only 8 per cent prevailed during this current academic year, a 17-18 percent pay hike would be required to equal the purchasing power the faculty had three years ago.

The AAUP is an organization that is trying to further the interests of faculty members. The local chapter at Notre Dame is engaged in a membership drive, hoping to add to its current membership of 275 local faculty members.

Airport receives aid for runway changes

John Brademas, Third District Congressman from Indiana, announced last Thursday that the Federal Aviation Administration will provide a $919,000 grant to improve a runway and flight facilities at the Michiana Regional Airport.

According to airport authorities, the grant will be used for an 1100 foot extension for runway 921 (the main runway of the the airport), an adjoining taxiway, new high-intensity runway lights and a relocation of the instrument landing system.

"These improvements will translate into improved service such as direct flights to Denver, larger loads for incoming and outgoing planes and a general improvement of safety," Brademas explained. None of the funds will be used for improvement of terminal facilities. "Two things enter into this," airport authorities remarked. "First we are under an $80,000 contract with engineers to determine the need for remodeled or new terminal facilities. This should be complete in December or January.

"Secondly, federal aid is not presently available for terminal building improvements." Brademas is working with the St. Joseph County Airport Authority and Sen. Vance Hartke, along with airport president John Frick, to obtain the grant. Frick said he expects the work to begin "as soon as the ink dries on the final papers this week."

Circle K club conference held at ND

by Fred Herbst
Staff Reporter

The Circle K District Fall Issues Conference was held at Notre Dame this past weekend.

The conference opened Friday evening with representatives of various Circle K Clubs visiting the Family and Children's Home in Michigan.

Saturday's activities consisted of a board meeting at which district news was discussed and the Issues Conference in the Library Lounge.

Tours of the campus were given at the close of the conference on Sunday.

Highlighting the Issues Conference were presentations on urban and housing development by Kent Wilcox of South Bend; muscular dystrophy by Gene Chisolm prison concerns by Larry Bardmeuller, president of the Indiana-Purdue Circle K at Fort Wayne; and a general address by Richard Lindsay, Indiana State Representative.

Seven area colleges besides Notre Dame were represented at the conference which was chaired by District Governor Dave Landon of Manchester College, North Manchester, Indiana.

The international vice president of the organization, Judy O'Mary of Samford College, Birmingham, Alabama, also attended the conference.

The next Indiana District Issues Conference will be held in March at Indianapolis. The Notre Dame chapter of the Circle K will be represented there, as well as at the International Convention to be held at Toronto this spring.

In the near future the Notre Dame Circle K will visit the Family and Children's Home in Michigan, sponsor a paper recycling drive and work with local prison officials to help area probation officers.

Anyone interested in joining the Notre Dame Circle K should call Tom Schnellenberger at 1841.

Ford is considering tax surcharge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With President Ford reported ready to propose a 5 per cent surcharge on income taxes in the higher brackets, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he favored the idea if it is limited to those making $20,000 or more a year.

Mansfield's Republican counterpart, Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, gave his unconditional support to the surtax should Ford include it — as has been widely reported — in the economic package he will present to Congress and the nation Tuesday.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., demurred, calling the 5 per cent levy "an unfortunate suggestion."

At the White House, Press Secretary Ron Nessen refused to confirm or deny the reports that Ford will suggest a 5 per cent surcharge on the income taxes of couples earning more than $15,000 and single persons with incomes in excess of $7,500.

Nessen sidestepped other specific questions about what Ford will call for in his nationally broadcast address to a joint session of Congress starting at 4 p.m. EDT Tuesday. But he did say it will deal with food, energy, housing, interest rates and other problem areas of the economy.

He reiterated that the speech will call for "restraint, self-discipline and sacrifice" on the part of consumers, business and government, and that the President's proposals should be adopted in their entirety if a brake is to be put on inflation.

"It is not a shopping list for Congress and the American people to pick and choose what is most convenient to carry out," Nessen said.

Mansfield, asked if he would support a surtax proposal, said: "It depends on what goes with it. If it's $20,000 and above, I would look on it with favor."

Scott said he believed Ford "would ask the nation to make sacrifices" and that he would support him in that effort, including a surtax.

Both leaders emphasized they were commenting on the published reports, and were not privy to the details of Ford's economic package.

Kennedy's comment: "An income tax surcharge is no more satisfactory than an increase in the gasoline tax as a way of raising new federal revenues, and the surcharge ought to be relegated to the discard heap with the same haste that the President has rejected a gasoline tax increase."

Mansfield, in a floor speech later, also rejected the idea of a gasoline tax, suggesting instead that the government "inaugurate gas rationing immediately." He also urged the President to consider "mandatory wage, price, rent and profit controls."

Two injured in Boston

Busing sparks violence

BOSTON (UPI) — Police Monday battled some 600 whites who formed a human chain across a South Boston road to block busloads of black children on their way home from school. At least two warning shots were fired in the worst outbreak of violence to date connected with court-ordered school busing here.

Police said about 300 police officers — some on horses or motorcycles — were called to put down the disturbance.

Officials said there were at least 10 arrests. Two persons were hospitalized, including a 31-year-old black man hit by a thrown bottle and a 17-year-old white youth. Several police apparently suffered minor injuries.

Altogether, 28 persons were arrested in the Boston area Monday in connection with the plan to integrate city schools.

Police Commissioner Robert diGrazia ordered all bars and clubs in South Boston closed for the night. Officials said police fired at least two warning shots to help disperse the crowd, estimated at 600 by Police Capt. Arthur Cadigan.

The whites began gathering at 2 p.m., just as school was being let out. They stood en masse across the street from the Old Colony housing project to block busloads of black children being returned home.

But the buses took alternate routes, skirting the crowds.

At the same time, a black man, en route to a South Boston school to pick up his daughter, was stopped by the whites, some of whom shouted, "There's a nigger!" He got out of his car and fled, with some whites in pursuit.

They cornered him on a flight of stairs and continued to beat him. When police went to his aid, they turned on the officers.

Police charged into the crowd of whites, and chased some of them into the courtyards and buildings of the housing project.

Officials said Jean Louis Andre, 31, a black resident of Dorchester, was hit on the head by a bottle thrown by whites near a subway station in South Boston. Dennis Mahoney, a white 17-year-old from South Boston, suffered minor injuries during the confrontation with police, officials said. Both were treated at City Hospital.

O-C residence robbed, 450 dollars in goods lost

by Bill Sohn
Staff Reporter

Two more off-campus Notre Dame students had their home burglarized last Friday. Two stereos and a calculator worth approximately $450 were stole from the house of Dennis McNellis and Bob Tracey located on Cedar Street.

The burglars entered the locked house between 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. by breaking through a basement window, according to McNellis. As far as McNellis and Tracey were able to ascertain no neighbors witnessed the burglary.

McNellis said the burglars apparently went to Tracey's room and took a cassette-recorder stereo and a turn-table eight track radio stereo system. They proceeded to McNellis' room, where they found another "more expensive" stereo. They apparently put down one of Tracey's stereos and took McNellis'.

The students reported the burglary to the South Bend Police Department. The police checked the discarded stereo for fingerprints but could not find any.

McNellis gave the serial number from his stereo to the detective. The police said that such information is important in following leads.

McNellis said that he was told by the detective who investigated the burglary that the South Bend police have been getting from one to two calls per day about burglaries from Notre Dame students in that area.

McNellis also said that he and Tracey had seen a man sitting in a car parked in the alley behind their house two days before the burglary. They took down the license number and gave it to the police after the burglary. The police told them that if they had called immediately they might have been able to prevent the burglary.

Butz urges grain exporters to use voluntary controls

By CHERYL ARVIDSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) —

Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz announced a new system Monday requiring prior government approval for major sales of U.S. grain to foreign countries and hinted that export controls might be imposed if the voluntary system failed to work.

The voluntary reporting system — designed to make sure the domestic grain supply is not depleted by any unexpected surge of sales abroad — was detailed during a meeting between Agriculture Department officials, major grain exporters and other government agencies.

Grains covered initially under the new requirements included wheat, corn, sorghum, soy beans and soy bean meal. But officials hinted the program might be expanded later to barley, oats and soy bean oil.

Butz said he hoped the new reporting system — formulated in haste after two major grain companies postponed under White House pressure the sale of 3.4 million tons of corn and wheat to the Soviet Union — will make the imposition of across-the-board export controls unnecessary.

He also said he hoped the new reporting system would guarantee exports of as much grain as the previous system, which forced companies to report export sales of much larger volumes of grain to the department after the sales were made.

Off-Campus: Time for a Change

In a period of three years, the number of off-campus students has increased steadily. As such, their needs have also increased.

The University must begin to shoulder some responsibility for its off-campus students. Their attitude now is, at best, vague. At worst, it seems that they don't care at all.

Over those years, the off-campus students has acquired a very demeaning status in comparison with his on-campus counterpart. Though off-campus students attend the same classes, suffer the same frustrations (and then some), and receive the same diploma, no compensation is made for the additional discomforts and inconveniences of off-campus life.

Now, for the first time in its history, Notre Dame has a solid percentage of students living off-campus. Recognition of this fact must be forthcoming from the University. They must begin to put some strong support behind these students.

The first step is expansion of the present off-campus office. Presently, Fr. Thomas Tallarida and his student assistant are doing the best possible job, considering the conditions they work under. But the office is understaffed, and an expansion of facilities is sadly needed. Unless this is done, the leverage that is needed to work effectively in other areas will be missing.

One of the primary areas to be investigated is off-campus housing. As it is now, the housing is, for the most part, sub-standard. Many homes are left unrepaired because the landlord knows he can get away with it when renting to students. It is a situation of classic exploitation, and the University needs to do something about it.

Through an expanded off-campus office, these landlords could be confronted, and given a choice between either improving the quality of their property or losing student tenants.

As an option to the landlord, a low interest loan program could be offered by the University, for improvements on the houses. Through this program, students in the market for housing would have an opportunity to know which landlords are interested in keeping up the quality of their property and which are not.

An expanded off-campus office would aid tremendously in the establishment of the proposed food co-op as well. Unless the University begins to take an interest in, and throw support behind, the co-op, its chances for survival are minimal.

Another area which needs investigation is the high crime rate in South Bend. This situation is a compound of all the problems plaguing off-campus students. Since they are in low-rent neighborhoods, the students are sitting ducks for robberies, vandalism, and other crimes, which are common to the area. Their high-priced possessions, such as TV's and stereos, are prime targets for easy thievery.

The South Bend police claim that they are doing everything possible in this area. The responsibility for action once again shifts back to the hands of the University.

One proposal that could be worked on is the development of an insurance plan, sponsored by the University in conjunction with an insurance company which would be designed to handle the type of problems which are common to the off-campus student.

Another proposal to be pursued is the establishment of a program such as the Hall-marc project which was instituted in many halls last year.

In addition to immediate projects, it is time for the University to begin developing long-range plans for off-campus life. It is time to begin considering the prospect of the University acting as landlord. The large amount of land surrounding the University may provide an exceptional area for off-campus development.

The main problem with the University acting as a landlord is that of pricing. As with the plans for property improvement, co-operation between the University and the landlords must be stressed.

These ideas are meant only to emphasize a fact: the time has come for the University to consider fully the off-campus situation and begin to take strong, positive action towards showing support for its off-campus students.

Fruitless Venture

The Academic Council proposal for a mandatory values seminar for seniors opposes the idea that a student, during their years in college, learns the values they will need to cope with their decisions after graduation. A college education should instill the values and morals necessary to answer questions concerning everyday problems.

The proposed seminar is a repetition of other courses. The themes that will be discussed in the senior seminar have already been highlighted in such programs as Freshman Colloquium, Collegiate Seminar, and in Theology and Philosophy electives.

The aim of the seminar, according to the report by The Committee on the Course of Study, will be to "reflect on the values which motivate us and subject them to discursive examination."

As defined, the course objective is idealistic and general, encompassing a wide range of values that can only be subject to real-life experience, not discussed in the classroom situation.

How to cope with decisions comes from within when one is faced with concrete problems, and not hypothetical situations as the seniors would present.

If the student has not acquired a sense of values within the time he begins and finishes school, a one credit seminar cannot possibly instill in him moral standards which should be a life-long learning experience.

The proposed seminar would be graded on a satisfactory-unsatisfactory basis, but this does not compensate for the fact that it will be a mandatory course for all seniors.

Another required seminar on values would be a waste of time; time which many seniors deem valuable in their last year; time to get away from theoretics and to pursue fields of interests not in their major.

Another mandatory course will breed apathy towards the topic of values. A forced subject lacks personal interest and initiative and blurs the focus of the topic.

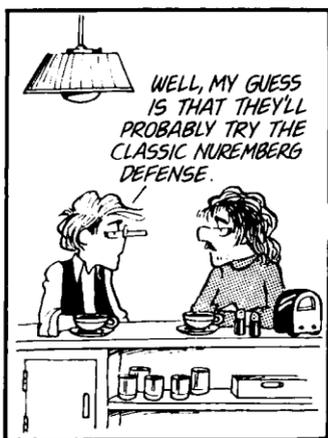

Thus, if student disinterest in and opposition to the senior seminar is not considered by the Academic Council, the goals of the seminar will not be reached nor will its purposes be achieved. The seminar will prove a fruitless venture.

Hinderance to Russian trade status

Breakdown seen in emigration compromise

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Congressional sources said Sunday they are mystified why the administration apparently changed its mind last week and rejected a key part of compromise designed to ease emigration of Soviet Jews in return for better U.S.-Russian trade terms.

Sources said the breakdown in the compromise, if unresolved, would almost certainly block administration hopes of getting better trade status for the Soviet Union included in a trade reform bill the Senate is expected to pass after the congressional election recess.

The complex compromise had been worked out between Soviet officials, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and three senators who were determined not to give normal tariff concessions and low-interest Export-Import Bank loans to communist nations with restrictive emigration policies.

The specific goal of the three senators--Henry Jackson, D-Wash.; Abrahm A. Ribicoff, D-Conn.; and Jacob J. Javits, R-N.Y.-- was to obtain freer emigration for Soviet Jews.

Sources said details of the compromise had been agreed to by all sides. But, they said, Kissinger's office telephoned Jackson unexpectedly Tuesday night to say Kissinger would not send the senator one of three letters that formed the heart of the agreement.

"The three letters were a package, inseparable from one another," one source said. "Now, obviously there's no deal."

"At this moment the responsibility for this breakdown lies with the administration."

The three-letter deal was worked out, sources said, to get around Soviet objections to being too specific in a formal agreement.

The first letter would have been from Kissinger to Jackson, spelling out Soviet concessions in general terms. Then, sources said, Jackson was to write back to Kissinger giving his "interpretation" of those terms. Finally, they said, Kissinger was to answer Jackson saying his interpretations were correct.

All three letters were to be carefully worked out before any were sent. It was the third of those letters, in which Kissinger would certify the Russians had agreed to such specifics as allowing 60,000 Jews to emigrate in the first year, which the Secretary of State "out of the blue" refused to write, sources said.

Sources said Kissinger had not explained whether the breakdown occurred because of a change of heart by administration officials or because the Russians had changed their terms.

But one source said it did not appear the Russians were to blame because a high-level Soviet official had complained at the White House that "we've made our concessions; now where are our improved trade terms."

Ballroom or touch dancing has gained a strong foothold at Notre Dame if the enthusiasm of Monday night's crowd is an accurate indication. The LaFortune Student Center was the place to be as over eighty students learned the fundamentals of dancing in a festive atmosphere.

Dance instructor Fran DeMarco is pleased with the great response her dancing lessons have gotten, because they fill, as she sees it, the cultural and social needs of the Notre Dame community. Touch dancing brings male and female students together, and according to Fran, that's the way it was meant to be.

Judging from the response at Monday's session everyone involved seemed to agree. The atmosphere is relaxed and every week a new dance step is taught.

Fran hopes to have television coverage in the near future, eyeing a half hour television show. Since other universities have taken up ballroom dancing, the possibility of intercollegiate dance competition may become a reality.

So whether you want to become the scourge of Kubiak's or enjoy a relaxing evening, the LaFortune ballroom is the place to be on Monday night.

Madison's mayor Soglin to speak at ND library

Paul Soglin, self-proclaimed mayor of Madison, Wis., will speak at 8 p.m. Wednesday, October 9 in the Memorial Library Auditorium.

A product of the "rebellious 60's" on the University of Wisconsin campus, Soglin was elected to an aldermanic position on the City Council by fellow students who had a numerical advantage in the community's eighth district. He announced his candidacy for the mayoral chair and won the election with 52 per cent of the vote last year when he was 27 years old.

Of the 370 people Soglin has named to city committees, 48 per cent have been women, and in a city where only two per cent of the population is black, 12 per cent have been members of minority groups.

Soglin's talk Wednesday night is sponsored by the Student Union Academic Commission and is open to the public without charge.

Set free by judge

Beef chairman convicted

NEW YORK (UPI) The chairman of the nation's largest beef company was found guilty of bribery conspiracy Monday but was set free without a fine or penalty by a judge who said he realized that to do business in New York, the company had to join "the corrupt system."

Currier J. Holman, co-founder and co-chairman of Iowa Beef Processors Inc., was given an unconditional discharge by Manhattan Supreme Court Justice Burton B. Roberts.

"I like you," Roberts told the 62-year-old defendant. "I like you as a man. You have been a victim of circumstances."

Holman's company was fined $7,000 on the charges of conspiring to bribe labor leaders and supermarket officials in order to introduce Iowa Beef's boxed-beef products into the lucrative New York market.

However, Roberts said, Holman and supermarket labor relations executive Moe Steinman had indeed formulated "a plan to bribe labor leaders and supermarket officials."

Prior to Robert's sentencing, Holman, in a quiet statement said "Judge, if I'm guilty - and you seem to think I am - I should pay whatever price guilt should carry."

He added, "I disagree that I'm guilty. I disagree with your assessment of the facts, but whatever price I have to pay for what I've done I'll be glad to do it."

The judge depicted Holman as an honest businessman whose zeal for introducing a revolutionary packaging concept which would save consumers 9 cents a pound on beef products led him to believe that dealing with extortionists and racketeers was the only way to do business in New York.

"Sadly, like a modern Dr. Faustus Currier J. Holman sold his soul to Moe Steinman," Roberts said. Steinman, a vice president for labor relations with the Daitch-Showell chain, with reputed organized crime connections, sold Holman on the idea that he could overcome the refusal by butchers' unions to handle IBP's boxed-beef.

"Moe Steinman was a shady character, if there ever was one," Roberts said. "He looked like a

Ford ignores protest over Nixon pardon

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — President Ford encountered hundreds of jeering student demonstrators protesting his pardon of Richard Nixon Monday night when he flew to Vermont to launch a personal campaign blitz on behalf of Republican candidates in next month's elections.

The demonstrators were massed outside the University of Vermont in Burlington when Ford arrived. They shouted and waved signs as he entered the university gymnasium to speak at a $50-a-plate dinner.

The President did not appear to react to the protestors, and once inside the gymnasium, the mood changed dramatically. Ford received a two-minute standing ovation from the estimated 2,000 Republican faithful.

Ford joined the guests for gngster in a grade 'B' movie."

But after IBP agreed to pay Steinman substantial commissions for using his influence, "almost miraculously union opposition ceased," Roberts said.

Close to $1 million in payoffs and kickbacks was authorized by IBP, the judge said, because of IBP's dire financial condition and Holman's conviction that only an opening in New York could save the company from disaster.

"If IBP was to survive, it had to sell in New York, it had to join the corrupt system there," Roberts said.

dinner prior to his speech, which White House officials said might provide some clues to the anti-inflation program he will outline Tuesday in a nationally televised address to a joint session of Congress.

"Nixon, Ford, what's the difference?" read one large sign carried by youths. "Jerry, you old rattler," read another.

"Pardon the innocent, not the powerful," said one placard, indicating the demonstrators' opposition to Ford's pardon for Nixon and his conditional amnesty program for Vietnam draft evaders and military deserters.

Local police estimated the crowd at about 1,000 in the area where the President's motorcade arrived on campus; it was not known how many actively participated in the demonstration.

the Cavanaugh effort and the other for 25 after Grace drove 70 yards in 3 minutes, the big play, of course, a 30 yard pass to Pereira on third and ten. Grace held Cavanaugh to negative yardage behind the stalwart play of Tom Wilhelm, but pre-season favorite Keenan's powerful offense spent most of the day in Grace territory only to be denied the end zone, and surprisingly is now 0-2.

The only other action in the North Quad saw Zahm rebound after losing its first two games to defeat Cavanaugh 14-6. Missing nine starters, either to injury or the away game at Michigan State, Zahm took the early lead on a Paul Holm keeper set up by a 95-yard run from scrimmage by Dave Mayer. Zahm got the ball right back, but fumbled to return the favor and Cavanaugh tied it up at 6-6 on a ten-yard run. After the half, Holm scored from the five on the tail-end of a 65-yard drive and Casey Nolan added the two-point conversion. Jim Hora, Mike Mountford and company held

St. Mary's tennis team downs ND women 9-0

by Kathi Paterno

It was cloudy, it was windy and it was a shutout. The St. Mary's tennis team posted a 9-0 victory against the Notre Dame women Sunday afternoon, taking all six singles matches as well as the three doubles events.

One of the most closely contested games was the number one singles which pitted St. Mary's Barbara Timm against Notre Dame's Betsy Fallon. Timm took the first set with an easy 6-1, dropped the second set 4-6, and pulled out the third 7-5. Next in line was Louise Purcell, who defeated her opponent 6-3, 6-2. She was followed by number three Sue Starck 6-1, 6-1; Lynn Griffin, also 6-1, 6-1; co-captain Sheila Finneran 6-4, 6-1; and Monica Cordes 6-1, 6-3.

Victories in the doubles events went to the SMC teams of Ann Houser and Marybeth Vieha 6-3, 6-3; Pat Dunn and Karen Sheedy 7-6, 6-1; and Elly Heil and Sally Obringer 6-2, 6-1.

St. Mary's came onto the courts fresh from winning Saturday's three team invitational at Hanover College. They easily defeated both the host college and Anderson College, racking up a score of 6-0 in each instance.

Hoping to extend their winning streak, the SMC squad will travel to Ball State next weekend to participate in the Indiana State Women's Invitational.

Tight I-H contest develops among undefeated teams

by John Higgins

Dillon coach Mike Bierley, who steered his squad to an unbeaten season and its third campus championship in four years last fall, realizes the pressure "colleague" Ara Parseghian shoulders in defending a title.

Sounding like the Irish head man himself, the second-year Big Red Boss said yesterday, "It's going to be a tremendously difficult schedule from here on, especially since everyone seems to get extra-psyched to play us. Morrissey looks as tough as ever and Sorin has been quite impressive, and we have to play them both within a 4-day period at the end of the season. Getting to the championship game won't be easy."

Unlike the Irish and the Miami Dolphins, the defending pro football titleists, Dillon has not been knocked off its number one pedestal and has appeared anything but sluggish in its two tests thus far. Capitalizing on two costly turnovers and utilizing a punishing ground game, the Big Red opened with a 20-0 blanking of Pangborn-Fisher. Running behind an aggressive line anchored by Frank Tombari and Tim Cunningham, shifty quarterback Mike O'Neil scampered for 62 yards and 2 touchdowns, one a 42-yarder, and bullish fullback Craig Tigh added 78 yards and one score. The defense, led by Mike Kemp, Carl Weyand, and Kevin Donohoe, held P-F completely at bay and set up two scores with fumble recoveries.

The following week, Howard was the victim 22-0 with Tigh exploding for 84 yards and O'Neil chipped in with 50 and another two scores. Defensive end Bob Dardak was all over the field to frustrate the Howard offense, which wasn't given many opportunities anyway as the Dillon ground forces kept the ball the entire third period and allowed Howard only 6 plays in the second half, two of which resulted in turnovers.

"Tough as ever" Morrissey was just that in its two opening contests as it kept pace with rival Dillon in the South standing as well as in fewest points allowed, as the Marauders drubbed Alumni 16-0 and edged fired-up Pangborn 6-0.

Kevin Horton and Paul Furey tallied on short bursts in the Alumni contest, with Brooks Humphries adding the conversions. But the defense led by tackle Mike White was the highlight of the game as it held Alumni to negative total yards and scored two points of its own when middle linebacker Jim Dwyer tackled the Alumni QB in the end zone. The lone score against P-F came on the first series, with Stellar's quarterback Tim Puntarelli hitting Bob Zwik on a 23-yard scoring toss. The victory proved a costly one, however, as Puntarelli suffered possible torn ligaments in his ankle in the second quarter and may be lost for the season. Four other Morrissey starters were banged up in the action and could be out for the next two games.

The surprisingly-strong Sorin team began its season last Sunday with a 18-0 pasting of St. Joe's as another standout defensive effort allowed only 24 total yards and scored a TD on a 50-yard pass interception return by Tom Kwiecien. Rich Chamberlain and Norb Shickles added short touchdown runs while quarterback John Lonsberg scrambled repeatedly for long gains. Tom Gillespie was the defensive leader for the Sorin squad, which attributed much of its improvement and early success to its chemical-engineering professor, Dr. James Carberry.

In the final South Quad contest played to date, Howard (1-1) stopped winless St. Joe 14-6.

North Division

The situation on the North Quad shapes up to be just as much a dogfight as is the Southern Division, with three teams still unbeaten. Darkhorse contender Holy Cross gave notice of its might as it came out on top in three games played within one week, and is now perched atop the North standings with half its regular season complete. Holy Cross began its muddled week by blanking Flanner 6-0 on a Larry McCrief 3-yard run as the defense prevented Flanner from crossing into Holy Cross territory the entire Zahm's Dave Mayer breaking away on a 95-yard run against Cavanaugh last Sunday under the lights at Cartier. Heading into the third week of play are five unbeaten teams--Dillon, Morrissey, Holy Cross, Grace, and Stanford.

game. HC downed Cavanaugh by the identical 6-0 score under the lights at Cartier Field on Wednesday evening as quarterback Mark Anzelon hit Bedford Bruno with a 5-yard TD aerial, and on the following Sunday, the Anzelon-Bruno combination again accounted for the winning points, a 2-point conversion following a George Duke touchdown in a come-from-behind, 8-7 thriller over Keenan, last year's runner-up to Dillon.

Holy Cross' main challengers, Stanford and Grace, each won their opening pair of games to stay close to the top in the title race. Stanford allowed Zahm only 7 total yards and no first downs en route to a 14-0 victory as Mike Strickroth and Bob Cook tallied from close to the goal line. Strickroth added his second touchdown of the year in a 14-8 win over Flanner on a 25-yard blast up the middle on the game's first series, and Bob Kelly garnered the winner on a 10-yard sweep in the second period. The defense, headed by noseguard Bill Irvine, held Flanner in check until the final period when the Tower team got on the board after a 70-yard TD run.

Grace scored in the last two minutes in both of its contests to break open scoreless battles to down Cavanaugh 6-0 and Keenan 8-0. Passes from Mike McGarry to tight end Luigi Pereira accounted for both scores, one for 20 yards in

Weekend results

The oddsmakers should have been a might happier last weekend.

Instead of another outbreak of upsets in college football, Saturday's action stuck pretty close to the script. With the exception of Kansas' 28-10 win over fifth-ranked Texas A&M and North Carolina's shocking 45-29 drubbing of Pittsburgh, the only major casualties were a few grey hairs suffered by Michigan's Bo Schembechler and Alabama's Bear Bryant.

The Wolverines were behind Stanford 9-6 at halftime, but a 14 point rally in the third period and a last second touchdown were too much for the Cardinals and UM won 27-16. Alabama trailed Mississippi in the third quarter 21-14 until the Tide's premier halfback Willie Shelby went into action. 'Bama exploded for 21 points and a 35-21 win.

Notre Dame opponents took a beating Saturday although. Georgia Tech beat Virginia, who has yet to win a game, 28-24, and Northwestern got their first victory of the season dumping the Oregon Ducks 14-10.

Air Force dropped a heartbreaker to Colorado 28-27, Pittsburgh lost to North Carolina and Navy was swamped by Boston College, a 1975 Notre Dame opponent, 37-0. On the plus side, Southern California upped its record to 2-1 with a 41-3 victory over the Iowa Hawkeyes. Miami of Florida dropped their first game of the season to unbeaten Auburn 3-0 Friday night.

Golfers second in Irish tourney

by Bill Delaney

The Irish Linkers concluded their fall season Friday on a sour note, finishing second to Indiana State in the Notre Dame Invitational. The Invitational, held at the Burke Course under fair weather conditions, featured some fine individual performances by the Irish, but in the words of Coach Noel O'Sullivan, "We felt shocked and disappointed in our play, and I feel that overconfidence from last week with Purdue did us in."

Medalist for the Irish was junior Paul Koprowski, who had rounds of 38 and 37 for a four-over 75. "We were very pleased of Paul's round Friday--he hit the ball well, and looked very sparkling in his performance," said O'Sullivan. The two-year starter from Sobridge, Mass. thought the consistency of his play was the key to his success this fall. "My consistency has definitely been my strong point--I've had a number of mediocre rounds this year, and Friday was no exception," noted Koprowski. "I hit nothing exceptionally well today, but at the same time, I didn't hit anything exceptionally bad, so I should be grateful."

Also among the leaders for Notre Dame were Eddie Whelan, Rich Knee and co-captain Mike Kistner; with Whelan firing a 76 and Knee and Kistner having identical 79's. "I don't know why, but I had a terrible time putting," said Knee, who had six three-putt greens. "The course was in great shape, but practically all of us found some troubles with the greens."

Practice preparation for the tournament was one of the possible explanations for the team's performance said a dejected O'Sullivan afterwards. "I really think that we didn't have the proper attitude going into the tournament," said O'Sullivan. "Many members of the team couldn't play during the week due to their studies and tests, so the lack of practice definitely hurt them." Co-captain Jeff Burda echoed O'Sullivan sentiments. "I had two tests this week, and that really threw me off for Friday," commented Burda. "I'm not trying to make any excuses for my round, but it was just one of those days when everything doesn't click."

With the conclusion of the fall season, the linkers will now be able to take a breather from golf. "Now the team can settle down to being full-time students again," noted O'Sullivan. "We'll be playing twice a week as a group until the snow falls, and then we'll start our fall conditioning at the ACC. The team will be issued sweats and their equipment and will be hitting inside at the nets in the ACC. During midsemester, we'll go down south on our spring tour, and then come back to school to begin our spring schedule."

The Notre Dame golf team finished their fall schedule with a win and a loss against perennially tough Purdue, and a second-place showing in the Notre Dame Invitational. Not bad for a team that offers no scholarships, but has some of the finest players in the Midwest. Things are looking fine for the linkers, and should be even better in the spring.
