Russians assail new Reagan proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, in his major foreign policy speech, challenged the Soviet Union yesterday to take "a giant step for mankind" by joining the United States in a sweeping reduction of nuclear and conventional arms in Europe and around the world. But the Soviets immediately denounced the proposal.

In a speech televised live to Europe and the United States, Reagan said he is prepared to cancel deployment of Pershing II and ground-launched cruise missiles to NATO forces if the Soviets dismantle their SS-20, SS-4 and SS-5 missiles.

"This would be an historic step," Reagan said. "With Soviet agreement, we could substantially reduce the dread threat of nuclear war which hangs over the people of Europe."

"This, like the first footstep on the moon, would be a giant step for mankind."

Reagan asked the Soviets to pull back some of their conventional forces, saying there could be "no more convincing contribution to peace in Europe and in the world."

And, finally, he renewed a proposal for a conference — and an invitation for the Soviets to join it — to reduce the risks of "chance of war arising out of uncertainty or miscalculation."

The president promised that "no NATO weapons, conventional or nuclear, will ever be used in Europe except in response to attack." But he said "the momentum of the continuing Soviet military build-up threatens both the conventional and the nuclear balance."

Cancelling deployment of 572 new cruise and Pershing II missiles in Europe and a dismantling of the Soviet SS-20, SS-4 and SS-5 missiles would eliminate intermediate range nuclear forces in Europe.

It would leave the United States with its current 6,000 short-range nuclear warheads in Europe, which can barely reach the western edge of the Soviet Union.

The Reagan proposal will be presented formally in Geneva on Nov. 30, the start of talks on limiting theater nuclear weapons.

Reagan said the United States has prepared carefully for resumption of strategic arms negotiations "because we do not want a repetition of past disappointments ... that sends hopes soaring only to end in dashed expectations."

He said he has told Brezhnev that the cuts he seeks should result in levels "that are equal and verifiable" and that "our approach to verification will be to emphasize openness and creativity, rather than the secrecy and suspicion which have undermined confidence in arms control in the past."

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig, Jr. is to meet in Geneva on Jan. 26 and 27 with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to discuss the beginning of the talks.

The president made no mention of any pre-conditions for the negotiations, although he previously has said he would not meet with Brezhnev or conduct arms talks unless the Soviets stop arming insurgents in El Salvador.

In Europe

U.S. asks for nuclear reduction

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union accused President Reagan of trying to achieve U.S. military superiority "through the back door" with his proposal yesterday to reduce U.S. and Soviet nuclear missiles in Europe.

Denouncing Reagan's speech in Washington as "propagandistic," the official Tass news agency claimed the U.S. president was only "pretending" to renounce deployment of new U.S. nuclear missiles, in order to influence European public opinion.

"He cited completely fantastic data about the balance of forces on an order of six-to-one, in spite of irrefutable facts which confirm the existence in Europe of approximate balance on these arms between NATO and the U.S.S.R.," asserted the Tass report, read on Soviet television's main evening news program.

Reagan offered to retreat from a NATO decision to station 592 Pershing II and cruise missiles in Western Europe if Moscow agrees to pull back its own SS-20s and other medium-range missiles, already stationed in Western Russia and aimed at Western Europe.

Soviet and American negotiators to sit down in Geneva, Switzerland, Nov. 30 to discuss limiting theater nuclear forces.

Earlier yesterday, before Reagan's address, the Kremlin rejected this idea in advance.

Such a move would tilt the European balance in the West's favor and would amount to "the Soviet Union's unilateral disarmament," the official Novosti news agency said.

The Novosti commentary was a reiteration of Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev's previous rejection of such a U.S. negotiating position.

The North Atlantic alliance decided in December 1979 to begin deploying the so-called "theater nuclear forces" in 1983 to counter the Soviet weapons.

The prospect of additional nuclear weapons on the continent stirred growing protest demonstrations by disarmament advocates in West Germany and elsewhere in Europe in recent weeks. Comments by Reagan about the possibility of confining a nuclear conflict to Europe heightened the opposition.

Reagan's proposal, coming less than a week before Brezhnev visits West Germany, may put the United States in a less defensive position politically as the negotiations begin.

Allen/magazine deal

Yarn of yen: Japanese tell story

By RICHARD BILL
Associated Press

TOKYO — Japanese editors and publishers are surprised at the uproar created by reports that President Reagan's national security adviser accepted a $1,000 honorarium from a Japanese women's magazine for helping to arrange an interview with Nancy Reagan.

It's a "customary practice" in Japan, said one editor, although most journalists are wary of offering money to public officials.

"The practice of paying for interviews to celebrities is prevalent in Japan — it's just like paying someone who has contributed articles for publication," said Kinji Kawamura, managing director of the Foreign Press Center, an organization funded by the government to help foreign journalists.

But Kawamura, who formerly headed the Washington bureau of the mass-circulation newspaper Asahi, said such payments are made to the person interviewed, not to intermediaries or people in office.

"That is totally unacceptable," he declared.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said last week the money was discovered in mid-September, eight months after the interview, in a safe belonging to Reagan adviser Richard V. Allen.

While denying any impropriety, Allen acknowledged receiving the money from the magazine Shufu-no-Tomo (Housewives' Friend), which interviewed Mrs. Reagan in Washington on Jan. 21, the day after her husband was inaugurated. Allen said he forgot about the money after it was placed in the safe.

The Justice Department is investigating the incident. Asahi reported yesterday that the women's magazine which gave Allen the $1,000 also sent Mrs. Reagan a handmade letter box. The newspaper said the first lady sent two thank-you letters, written on White House stationery, to the gift to the reporters who conducted the interview.

The value of the box was not disclosed in the Asahi article. U.S. officials are prohibited from keeping gifts valued at more than $100. The penalty for violating that law, enacted in 1977, is a fine of up to $10,000.

Speakes identified the gift as a black lacquered stationary box with a hand-painted design. He said that a Washington gallery that specializes in Asian art has valued it at $75.

Kawamura said popular magazines like Shufu-no-Tomo, which claims a circulation of 500,000, rarely have extensive business contacts or large editorial staffs. "So the only way they can get scoop interviews is to offer large sums of money," he said.

Mitsuru Ando, editor of Bungei Shunju, a monthly literary magazine with 700,000 readers, said, "We always pay money or give gifts to interviewees. Payment range from 10,000 yen ($45) to millions of yen, depending on news value and the time it takes to set it up."

Ando said $1,000 for Mrs. Reagan's interview was "probably the proper amount." But he added: "I wonder why the party in Washington didn't straighten it out (the matter of who received the money) beforehand, since they knew they couldn't accept it."

Tsuneo Takahashi, former editor of Josei Jishin, a women's weekly, said that publication "usually gives gifts to public figures instead of money when we interview them. In the case of private citizens, we usually give money."

Takahashi, who now edits another publication for the same company, said his magazine would not have done what Shufu-no-Tomo did.

"We wouldn't give her (Mrs. Reagan) money. We probably would have given a gift to her, not to a mid-

Jonathan Lindley, the executive vice president of the National Savings and Loan League, spoke at the Center for Continuing Education last night in the second of three lectures sponsored by the Finance Club.

Lindley addressed pertinent issues in the field of finance, among them housing mortgages and the current trend toward diversity among regulated depository institutions. He stated that "in this period of deregulation, savings and loan institutions should be more free to choose" their financial endeavors and the variety of profit-yielding ventures in which they deal. For the future, Lindley projected that savings and loans will have to become multi-service firms.

The Savings and Loan League is a national trade organization which represents nearly 300 savings and loan associations, concentrated primarily in the Sun Belt.

Lindley is a graduate of George Washington University, and he completed graduate work in economic policy there while working as a teaching fellow. In 1964 he was awarded a Congressional Staff Fellowship by the American Political Science Association.

The head of the Veterans Administration said yesterday that if the government decides to compensate Vietnam veterans for any harm caused by Agent Orange the cost will run into the billions of dollars for years to come. "We would be looking at hundreds of millions of dollars per year, going into the middle of the next century," VA administrator Robert Nimmo said in the first public estimate by a high official of the cost of paying veterans if studies conclude that the herbicide permanently damaged their health. Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., questioning Nimmo at a hearing, suggested that the high cost of compensation is "a major inhibiting factor" in reaching a conclusion whether the herbicide has harmed veterans, as many say. Nimmo told the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee of another delay. He disclosed that the Veterans Administration has rejected a proposed design for the study. The design was prepared by the University of California at Los Angeles under a $114,288 VA contract awarded May 1. UCLA has been given 35 days to revise it, Nimmo said. The designers of the study said that the investigation will not produce definite findings for four years. — AP

"Whether the issue is one of increasing employment stability to enhance group learning, cooperation, and productivity, or of increasing employment stability to avert bloody class warfare, the times are ripe for a new 'New Deal' for labor." So says Michael J. Carter, an instructor in economics at the University of Utah, in the introduction to a book recently published at the University on labor economics. New Directions in Labor Economics and Industrial Relations, published last month by the University of Notre Dame Press, includes essays by Carter, William H. Leahy, a professor of economics at Notre Dame and Charles Craypo, an associate professor of economics at Notre Dame, as well as three others by economists David M. Gordon, Lester C. Thurow, and Charles C. Killingsworth. "The unifying theme running through the essays," according to Carter, "is that recovery from the present period of economic stagnation requires new approaches to labor relations both at the level of the firm and in terms of government legal and regulatory policy." — The Observer

Soprano Leontyne Price agreed to make an unscheduled appearance yesterday in San Francisco opposite Luciano Pavarotti in the lead role of Verdi's "Aida." The soloist with the New York Metropolitan Opera Company was to perform the role of Margaret Metro, no relation, who has a cold, San Francisco Opera spokesman Jeffrey Rubin said. Carey Peck, son of actor Gregory Peck, has withdrawn from a state Assembly race in Santa Monica, Calif., against activist Tom Hayden, saying the campaign would cost more than the seat is worth. Peck, 32, said yesterday he will not seek the Democratic nomination in the 44th Assembly District, in part because of the cost. He called the anticipated campaign spending "totally out of proportion to the importance of the office." Peck has lost two congressional bids. Hayden, 41, is married to actress Jane Fonda and heads the Campaign for Economic Democracy. The 44th Assembly District seat is being vacated by Democrat Mel Levine, who is running for Congress. — AP

Campbell discusses O-C plans

Vice President for Student Affairs Fr. John Van Wolvlear recently announced the appointment of Brother John Campbell as assistant director of student housing at Notre Dame, succeeding Brother Edward Luther, who resigned to resume full-time activities as rector of Morrissey Hall.

Brother Campbell begins serving in this position Dec. 1 and will be in charge of off-campus housing.

This announcement comes in the wake of Fr. Van Wolvlear's rejection of the Campus Life Council's proposal for a full-time off-campus housing director.

The CLC Task Force on the Northeast Neighborhood recommended that the University devote more professional attention to off-campus concerns in order to improve neighborhood relations.

The Task Force decided that a full-time off-campus housing director would help resolve such problems as the shortage of on-campus housing; stressful relations between students and permanent residents in more densely student-populated areas such as the Northeast Neighborhood; the off-campus housing list, which is reportedly somewhat inaccurate; off-campus crime; and the amount of time the director is available for students.

The Task Force proposed several duties for the position, including: inspecting new housing listings and re-inspecting old listings; encouraging realtors and developers interested in providing new and remodeled housing for off-campus students; working with the off-campus commissioner; improving relations with landlords; becoming a member of the Northeast Neighborhood Council; maintaining contact with South Bend Police and Notre Dame Security; increasing availability to students; and maintaining and improving current off-campus to campus transportation.

This program, according to the Task force, would benefit both the University and students by providing a comprehensive approach for off-campus housing direction.

Brother Campbell, assistant rector for Fisher Hall, said he plans to perform many of the duties proposed by the Task Force, adding that he has met with student representatives and plans to schedule meetings with Off-Campus Commissioner Kathy Jurado and the Off-Campus Commission, Saint Mary's Off-Campus Commissioner Kathleen Engler and the South Bend Police Department. "I want to act as a liaison between students and the South Bend Police," he said.

The first major project Brother Campbell plans to undertake is revision of the off-campus housing list. "I plan on updating the list by checking back with landlords every 2-3 weeks," Campbell said. "I also plan to have photos of the listings available for students."

Campbell added that he sees no need for additional staff at this point. "I have a full-time secretary," he said. "I don't know whether I will need assistants at this point."

A former Marine Sergeant, Campbell has been a Holy Cross Brother since 1973, serving as a medical assistant since 1976 at the Holy Cross Brothers Infirmary and the Student Health Center. Brother Campbell also does volunteer work at St. Joseph's Medical Center and is a Spanish tutor for Notre Dame athletes.

Campbell noted that he wants the off-campus housing office to be recognized by students.

"I want to let students know I'm there," he said. "I want students to use the office and take advantage of what we have to offer."

Campbell emphasized the fact that he has a great deal of time available to devote to the office, since he is leaving his job at the Student Health Center and, unlike Brother Luther, is an assistant rector at Fisher, which consumes less time. "I feel that I can perform adequately both as assistant rector and off-campus housing director," he said.

Campbell's immediate plans and enthusiasm for the role of assistant housing director indicate a positive future for the off-campus housing office.

dleman. I don't understand why the money was held by a middleman," he said.

"I think $1,000 was too much, but I think the price was high because there was a middleman," said Takahashi.

He said that if his former magazine interviewed the wife of Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki, for example, no gift or money would be given. "We pay only 20,000-30,000 yen ($90-$135) — such a paltry sum would be taken as an insult."

There appears to be no generally fixed scale of payments within the publishing industry. Amounts vary widely and are determined by what a particular publication considers appropriate or manageable.

It is generally acknowledged by editors, however, that magazines engage in the practice of paying for interviews more than do newspapers. And Japanese television networks appear more inclined than other media to offer cash gifts to public officials for newsmaking purposes.

Liturgy discussed

Catholic inquiry series continues

By MARK WORSCHER
Staff Reporter

Fr. John Melloh presented the fourth lecture in the Catholic Inquiry Series last night before a group of about 60 in the Hayes-Healy Auditorium.

Melloh discussed "Catholicism, the earthy religion," and said that Catholicism requires a new modality of conscience receptivity in order to perceive the meaning of the liturgical event.

Melloh distinguished between the active mode and the receptive mode. The active mode "is characterized by logic control, analysis, and prediction," while the receptive mode "is one of association, surrender, intuition, and surprise," according to Melloh.

"What liturgy and worship and the Church's worship life is all about is really this second modality of conscience, the receptive mode," said Melloh.

He continued into a discussion of traditions in the Church, saying that a "recapturing of lost attitudes and a forgotten way of doing things is the necessary agenda to recover the worship life of the Church."

During the lecture, Melloh made several references to "Molarity," by Michael Molinelli. A recent series of cartoons dealt with the topic of liturgical modernization and a campus priest who was reluctant to change.

"We need to rediscover the earthy spirit in worship," said Melloh. "In worship, earthy people and things are used in an unearthy way."

He explained that such earthy gifts as speech, reading, bread, and wine are the work of human beings, and that these are a vital part of the Eucharist.

"Without these gifts which come forth from the earth, having been processed by a community, there is no Eucharist."

Melloh also called liturgy an "invitation," and that what the liturgy does is "it leaves us with the gnawing question, just like the parables do, 'What if it's true? How do I have to change my life?' It is a story which when proclaimed takes possession of us. It grabs us and involves us and then, this story having taken possession and root in your soul, will change the way that you live."

Concluded Melloh, "What liturgy is is an event. It is a symbolic action, and it invites us into a meaning. But we can catch the meaning only if we have this second modality of consciousness, namely receptivity."

B-P captures I-hall flag

By JANE HEALEY
Sports Writer

The women's interhall flag football season ended last night as defending champion Breen-Philips beat the rookies of Pasquerilla East 13-6. It's the third year in a row that B.P. has captured the crown and it is the eighteenth straight win for the champions.

It looked like P.E. would be on the scoreboard first as Carla Cortes exploded on the kick off return 70 yards for a touchdown. But the clever reverse play was called back because of clipping on the receiving team.

The first points of the game were scored minutes later by B.P. running Kathy Adams on a four-yard run. She was then denied on the point-after attempt to make the score 6-0.

Pasquerilla came on with a strong offensive surge in the last two minutes of the first half on runs by Carla Cortes and deep passes thrown by quarterback Theresa Riley. But the goal line stance by B.P. held P.E. off on the two-yard line.

With 14 minutes left in the game, Adams scored her second touchdown on a hand-off from quarterback Patty Talamo. The left sweep was from 36 yards out. The point-after was good to make the score 13-0. It appeared as if B.P. might record a shut-out.

Yet, P.E. would not give up. A 17-yard run set up a touchdown reception by Les Heiman from the four-yard line. The touchdown capped a 52-yard drive off the kick return.

B.P. coach Marty Pallante stated that they figured it would be a tough game. Pallante held the opinion that P.E. was the best offensive team that they faced all season. "But our defense was really the hero here tonight," Pallante commented. "Our backfield of Kathy Adams and Martha Kultashy has done a great job, too." The pair had to fill in for the injured Lee Richies, who led B.P. in the early season with 10 touchdowns in five games.

For P.E. the highlight of the season was this championship game.

skills," says Lichtenberg. "He works very hard to improve, and with his talent, Ken could become an outstanding quarterback for Notre Dame. Each day he gets a little better, but like most young quarterbacks, it takes awhile.

"Right now, it is tough for Ken to get a lot of work with two good players ahead of him. Basically, Ken needs the work, the repetition, so he can develop more consistency."

Karcher was offered scholarships by almost every major university, so a logical question would be why Notre Dame?

"I felt that Notre Dame is the place to be a quarterback," replied Karcher. "It is the best university for combining academics and football, and I like Gerry. Everybody wants to be an ND quarterback. Since I thought I could play here, I decided to come."

As a freshman football player, Karcher has had a major adjustment in both school and football. However, the business major says he had very few problems.

"When I first got here, I decided that I was going to do it. I think a lot of freshmen psych themselves out before they even set a foot on campus. I just decided I was going to catch on to the scheme of things as fast as I could.

"Notre Dame is an easy place to adjust to. The whole campus has a friendly atmosphere to it. Whether it's football or walking around on campus or South Bend in general, this place seems like a big family."

Karcher's confidence and talent are not limited to the gridiron. He won three letters playing first base and pitching for Shaler Area High School. As a junior, Karcher pitched two no-hitters while helping his team to 36 straight wins and the Pennsylvania state crown.

During his senior year, the all-around athlete captained his football, baseball, and basketball teams. In basketball, Karcher started at guard for three years.

In the spring, he will be playing both spring football and spring baseball.

"While I am playing football in the spring, I'm going to play infield, so I don't use two different arm motions. When football is over, I'll probably start pitching."

This weekend Karcher will be able to visit the sights of his former conquests as the Glenshaw, Penn., native will be accompanying the team to Penn State.

"It should be a lot of fun. I only live two and a half hours away and a lot of my friends will be there, so I hope to play."

In a few years, Karcher believes he will not only be hoping to play, but starting.

"I really believe that I have a good shot at being the Notre Dame quarterback. Right now I'm learning a lot behind Blair (Kiel) and Timmy (Koegel). I feel, in my mind, that I will be the starting quarterback for Notre Dame in a few years."

Ken Karcher waits for chance at QB spot

By ED KONRADY
Sports Writer

What qualities does one look for in a quarterback?

The young man must possess a rifle arm, sure hands, quickness in both feet and mind, and a body strong enough to accept the physical punishment inherent in his position.

But these are qualities that hundreds of would-be quarterbacks have. What separates the phenom from the failure?

When Gerry Faust and Assistant Coach Tom Lichtenberg decided to recruit one quarterback, they may have answered the question.

Out of all the possible young men Faust could have decided on, he chose Ken Karcher. The quality that Faust wanted was leadership. There is no doubt that he got it.

"When I first saw him, I was very impressed with Ken's ability to pass and run," recalls Lichtenberg. "However, what Coach Faust and I liked the most about him was his attitude, the confidence he had on the field, and how he presented himself as a leader. It was obvious that Ken had the leadership qualities that we were looking for."

Karcher came to Notre Dame with blue-chip credentials. He was named to the Parade All-America squad in 1980. His high school statistics include 2,479 yards passing and 34 touchdown passes.

Karcher is now the third-string quarterback for the Irish, and so far the coaches are pleased with his development.

"Ken is an excellent technician and he has the necessary running

Reynolds finds smooth sailing

While the names Bob Crable and John Paxson carry proud tags for the University as competitors who are among the best in their athletic field in America, another name is quite often overlooked since the sport of sailing is not exactly one that grabs headlines.

A relaxed, laid back and winning attitude is what characterizes Notre Dame's sailing club.

And no one better epitomizes that characterization better than fifth year engineering major, Phil Reynolds.

On October 17 of this year, Reynolds competed in the "Midwest Single-Handed Championships" at Northwestern University. The top three finishers would go on to represent the Midwest in the 15 field nationals to be held on Nov. 9 at Vancouver, Canada. Reynolds finished in 4th place out of the 18 participants at Northwestern leading him to embark on another form of "sailing."

"After that meet I decided to put the boat away awhile and head on down to Corby's. There was a slight disappointment in having just barely missed the nationals," recalls Reynolds.

Three days before the nationals, however, Reynolds received a call informing him that the top finisher at the Midwest meet would be unable to compete in the nationals because of a sustained injury.

For Reynolds, though, it was just another honor that has become quite typical of his career as he has proudly followed successfully the footsteps of his brother "Buzzy," an all-American sailor at Notre Dame in 1976 and near-miss qualifier for the 1980 Olympic squad.

Among the awards that the younger Reynolds has received includes a third place finish in the 1976 "National Junior Championships" in the 12-foot penguin boats. In the same year he also placed third in the "Mid-Atlantic Youth Championships" in the one-man laser boats.

Since his entrance into Notre Dame in 1977, one impressive feat after another has piled up. In the 1979 "Timmee Angsten Memorial Regatta," (one of the largest regattas in America) Reynolds finished fourth in the A-division of the race and first among teams from the Midwest. Come 1980 he would place third in the "Midwest Dingy Championships" which qualified Notre Dame as a representative in the team nationals. He would also finish first out of 21 participants in the "Midwest Collegiate Single-Handed Championships" the same year.

Finally, besides his qualifying for the nationals in 1981, Reynolds placed first in both the spring and fall regattas at Indianapolis this year, while also placing tenth out of 105 sailors at the "Canadian Nationals" over the summer.

Thus, his eighth place finish out of 15 competitors at Vancouver may not sound as glamorous as his performances of the past, but, in essence, it may have been his greatest performance.

Louie Somogyi
Sports Writer

Club Corner

Explains Reynolds, "Overall, I was pretty happy with my performance considering that I had hardly any time at all to prepare for it. There were also six all-Americans, a couple of North American champions and past Olympic representatives competing in the meet, so I can't be too disappointed."

In addition, Reynolds cites how sailors at top schools of the program from whence they came practice up to five or six hours a day with the best of facilities. In reference to the suitability for racing at St. Joseph's Lake at Notre Dame, members of the club have come to call it "the puddle."

Nevertheless, Reynolds, who completes his studies in mechanical engineering this December, has been more than happy with his nine semesters at Notre Dame.

"I like the idea of sailing being offered as a club sport where we can run our own operations on when and how long you want to practice, whereas at schools where it's offered as a varsity sport you don't have that freedom," he says. "Yet we have had more than our share of top performances throughout the country where we have been ranked in the top twenty."

"I was seriously considering going to the Naval Academy," he continues, "but I didn't want to put up with all that garbage of rules and regulations. Here I'm able to take the spirit of Notre Dame with me whenever we travel as a team, and also have a social life" — which he reminds us is what you make it.

While the Barnegat, N.J., native sees sailing as his hobby rather than a profession, Reynolds does leave room for more goals — including the 1984 Olympics.

And although that goal will be a little harder to attain, one should not underestimate Reynolds. He has made quite a few difficult things at Notre Dame seem like smooth sailing.

SAILING — While Reynolds is the star, the team itself has done its fair share in helping the team to the "Timmee Angsten Memorial Regatta" which will be run over Thanksgiving break. The team qualified by finishing second out of 6 teams at Ann Arbor. Both the A-division and B-division finished second in their races. The A-division was led by skipper Reynolds and "my very hard working and dedicated crew" Carol Silva. The B-division alternated J.B. Kuppe and Bob Hannau as skipper while Dawn Barkkari served as the crew.

Upsurging Irish take on Paterno, Lions

The sign of a good football team is one that gets stronger as the game goes on. We think we showed the marks of a good football team last week against Air Force. When Air Force made it close early in the fourth quarter, our players and coaches responded to the challenge. They did not panic.

The most impressive thing was the way we exploded in the fourth quarter. Our offensive line really got down to business after Air Force cut the score to 14-7. After that touchdown, the offense went 71 yards on four plays and 62 yards on nine plays on its next two possessions to score.

Air Force Coach Ken Hatfield did an excellent job getting his team ready for the game. The Falcons had two weeks off to prepare, and their game plan was excellent. And their safety, Johnny Jackson, who had nineteen tackles, proved to me that he is one of the great ones in the nation at the position.

Offensively, the Falcons took split end Joe Howard away from us with double coverage and they took away our outside sweep. They forced us to make adjustments in both areas. Without Howard, we had to go to the wingback more, and our wingbacks, especially Greg Bell, came up with some big plays.

With the outside sweep shut off, we went to our inside game and it was effective. On the touchdown drive that made it 21-7, Phil Carter had a great run inside of 43 yards and finished with 156 yards on 27 carries.

Even though he only made one reception, Howard still helped us with his downfield blocking, and our fullbacks — John Sweeney, Larry Moriarty and Mark Brooks — all played well. We also thought Tim Koegel came through when starting quarterback Blair Kiel had to leave the game.

Blair, who was in the hospital early last week with the flu, was still weak during the game, and the high altitude compounded his problems. His 31-yard scramble in the first quarter that set up our first score took a lot out of him, but he hung in there.

When you play in that altitude, there is a noticeable difference in your recovery time and stamina. When you are not used to it, it can be troublesome. That is why we called a timeout at the start of the fourth quarter during Air Force's long touchdown drive.

Otherwise, our defense played well. We got some solid performances from linebacker Mark Zavagnin, who made seven tackles and had an interception, and defensive end Tony Belden, who had six stops, two for losses. Tony, our special teams' captain, was playing because of an injury to Jon Autry.

We were also pleased with the performances of linebacker Joe Bars, defensive end Mike Gann and cornerback Chris Brown. Bars had six tackles after replacing Rick Naylor, who left in the first quarter with a thigh bruise. Naylor had started in place of Joe Rudzinski, who was left home to recover from some minor injuries.

Gann, who hails from the Denver suburb of Lakewood, replaced Kevin Griffith in the second quarter when Griffith suffered a knee bruise. Mike finished with four tackles, the same as Brown, who took over for John Krimm when Krimm became ill with the flu Friday.

Fortunately, none of the injuries or illnesses are serious. A big moment for all of us was when middle linebacker Bob Crable made the tackle in the first quarter that broke Bob Golic's career record for tackles. I had asked Coach Hatfield if we could have the ball that was being used when Bob made the tackle, and after the game, we gave it to him. That really meant a great deal to Bob and his teammates.

We think we have made great strides the last four weeks, and we now have an excellent opportunity to find out how good a team we really are. Despite its loss to Alabama last Saturday, Penn State still is one of the great teams in the country.

When the topic of Penn State comes up, you naturally think about all the great linebackers and running backs the school has produced over the years. But mostly, you think about the man who has headed the program. Coach Joe Paterno is one of the great coaches and gentlemen in the profession. We are excited that Saturday's game at University Park will be the first of a long series between our two universities.

This season, Coach Paterno once again has an outstanding running back in junior Curt Warner, who ranked fourth among college rushers last week despite some injury problems. His backup, sophomore Jon Williams, is a good one too.

The Nittany Lions also have a fine passing attack headed by sophomore Tod Blackledge, who was 10th in the NCAA statistics prior to last Saturday. He has an excellent group of receivers in split end Gregg Garrity, tight end Mile McCloskey and flanker Kenny Jackson.

But what makes Penn State go is its offensive line. Coach Paterno has a great two-guard tandem in Sean Farrell and Mike Munchak. Center Jim Romano is also excellent.

Defensively, Penn State plays with tenacity, and once again, the linebacking corps is solid and experienced. All three linebackers — Chet Parlavacchio, Ed Pryts and Matt Bradley — are seniors. And we'll be facing another outstanding safety in sophomore Mark Robinson.

Penn State also has a solid kicking game with punter Ralph Giacomarro, who is averaging 44.7 yards a kick, and placekicker Brian Franco, who has kicked 12 field goals this season.

The Nittany Lions will certainly present several challenges to our football team. We hope the reverse is true.
