Eight Farley residents arrested at Rocco's

By DAN KOPP
Staff Reporter

Eight Farley residents, mostly freshmen, were arrested early Friday evening for underage drinking at Rocco's Restaurant, 537 N. St. Louis Blvd.

According to Sr. Jean Lenz, Farley rector, the women ordered pizza and beer at 6 p.m. Friday at the Italian restaurant. They were not carded but when the food and beer were delivered two plainclothes police officers, one male and one female, arrested them. They were taken downtown and "processed" for 4 to 5 hours. The South Bend Police Department would not release the student's names.

Sr. Lenz said the students will now have to appear in court and will be finned for the misdemeanor. "I feel the publicity about this is being blown all out of proportion. It's not like another large-scale, late-night bar raid. Rocco's is a family restaurant. The girls went there during the dinner hour and ordered some beer with their pizza," Sr. Lenz stated.

Rocco Ameduri, owner of Rocco's, said, "I tell the waitresses to check I.D.s, but this girl sometimes forgets. Employees will get you in trouble."

Ameduri said he does not anticipate any trouble over the incident. "We try to run a nice, clean place here. I have never broken the law before," Ameduri said. "I've been serving the students for 32 years."

British forces seize South Georgia Island

FALKLAND ISLANDS (AP) — British marines seized a second harbor from defiant Argentine holdouts yesterday to complete the recapture of frigid and desolate South Georgia Island, British officials reported.

London's strategists next turned their aim on the Falkland Islands, and one report said a preliminary British landing on the well-defended archipelago might be only a day or two away.

But British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, cheered by her supporters in the House of Commons, declared Britain still hopes to end the South Atlantic crisis by negotiation.

"As the British task force approaches closer to the Falklands, the urgent need is to speed up the negotiations, not slow them down," she said.

In Buenos Aires, the Argentine government maintained mostly official silence on the reported defeat and capture of its small force at South Georgia, 1,100 miles east of Argentina's southern tip. Military sources were quoted as saying some troops retreated into the icy back-country of South Georgia and "resistance continues."

Outwardly at least, negotiations appeared at a standstill.

Argentina's foreign minister, Nicanor Costa Mendez, said Sunday Britain's attack on South Georgia meant peace talks were out of the question "for the time being." He presented his nation's case yesterday before an Organization of American States meeting in Washington, where the members unanimously called on Britain and Argentina to avoid using force in the dispute.

But, President Reagan said the U.S. mediation effort to defuse the explosive confrontation would continue.

U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. has been working to make peace between the two sides since soon after Argentine forces seized the Falklands and its usually uninhabited South Georgia dependency April 2-3. Argentina has long claimed the Falklands, which were held by Britain for the past 149 years.

In the British House of Commons, Michael Foot, leader of the opposition Labor Party, urged that the United Nations be asked to help settle the conflict.

A U.N. spokesman in New York, Francois Giuliani, said Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar's office was drawing up contingency plans in case it is "called upon to play a role" in the crisis.

In London, Lt. Col. Tim Donkin of the Royal Marines gave reporters this account of the capture of South Georgia, which began early Sunday afternoon:

Helicopters from the 61-ship British armada in the South Atlantic flew over the Argentine submarine Santa Fe in South Georgia's Grytviken harbor, and Grytviken's Argentine defenders opened fire. British helicopter gunships then

El Salvador

Rubio explains political situation

The following is an Observer interview with Victor Rubio, political representative of the FDR (Revolutionary Democratic Front) of El Salvador. Rubio spoke to an audience at Notre Dame Saturday evening, April 24.

Q. What is the FDR? What are its political and economic aims?

A. The FDR is a very broad coalition of forces that have come together in El Salvador in an effort to create a new society. Many different organizations, political parties, trade small and medium sized farms. How this is to be done will be determined by the people who have always lived on the land. In other words, we will have a mixed economy. We will have a non-aligned government as a political base.

Q. Could you summarize for me the FDR/FMLN's stand on the recent elections?

A. First of all, we did not get caught by surprise. We knew what would happen. The voting turnout did not surprise us; we expected that many people would vote...out of coercion, out of fear. The fact that everyone has to have an identification which is stamped on voting meant that those who didn't vote would expose their lives, greatly, to the simple risk of being stopped by the government, being asked for identification, and it being discovered that you did not vote. Gen. Garcia warned the people repeatedly that those who did not vote were going to be considered subversives. And of course, the fact that 40,000 people have been killed in the last two years indicates the problem with that. The people knew that elections do not mean anything.

On the turnout itself, it is interesting that the Central Electoral Council announced prior to the elections that they would only be printing 800,000 ballots; after the elections they said 1.4 million had actually voted. The initial estimate, which was released at 6:30 p.m., March 29, was that 376,000 had voted. Overnight they increased that to 747,000. This is known as "night counting". It could be tampering with the computer itself. Another thing to remember, although the media saw long lines, this is because El Salvador has the population of a city like Chicago, but only one-tenth the number of voting places. So the illusion is there.

Q. Why was the extreme right (the PCN) able to gain power and form the coalition?

A. The fact is that the elections had as its purpose to form this coalition, to consolidate the power of the extreme right. The coalition was something that they had planned a long time ago. It did not catch us by

Trudeau, Senior Fellow greet class of 1982

Stressing the fact that the Senior class "did have some input in the nomination of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau to receive an honorary degree at commencement," Senior Class President Tom Lupo said that he was happy with the decision.

Trudeau's name was among three nominations submitted by students of the senior class which also included a nomination for Alan Alda and Fr. Daniel Berrigan.

Trudeau's name was placed in nomination by Senior Joseph Hurd who stated that he was obviously very pleased with the selection of his candidate to speak at commencement. "It makes the students feel like they have some say in who we select for commencement speaker," said Hurd.

Lupo stated that he worried that the nominations submitted "wouldn't be taken seriously by the administration" but that Fr. Hesburgh did bring the nomination up as coming from someone in the Senior class.

Lupo said that he was not disappointed with having only three seniors submit nominations because "we did have some input and with the time we had, placing a notice in the senior newsletter that the administration was accepting nominations for commencement speakers, was the best way we could do it."

Referring to the positive and negative aspects of the speaker chosen, Lupo stated that Trudeau "will bring a certain amount of prestige to the students and to the University by having someone like this speak to us." But we might also have chosen someone to speak who was more "relevant to the students," said Lupo.

Lupo felt that with the selection of Trudeau as commencement speaker, he didn't "think it would be fitting for Trudeau to make a politically oriented speech." "We expect him to probably refer to the relationship between the U.S. and Canada but hopefully he will be speaking on unions are included. It includes over 143 trade unions, for example. It includes the major mass organizations such as the People's Revolutionary Block (BRP). All political parties of the opposition are members of the FDR. Both the National and Catholic Universities are also members. All the guerilla organizations are part of the FDR; they constitute the FMLN. All sectors of society are represented in the FDR. It includes nearly everyone except the oligarchy and the repressive military apparatus, almost 85% of our society.

What we expect to do is first of all the overthrow of the current regime. The reason for that is to improve the society. So that it can benefit the people of the country, something it has not done in a long time. We are going to nationalize the land that now belongs to the oligarchy. But we will also stimulate

Saint Mary's Juniors Nancy Lorenzini and Helen Clarke were elected Le Mans Hall president and vice-president, respectively, in a runoff election yesterday at SMC. The Lorenzini ticket defeated Juniors Liz Ladner and Sally Georgen in a 55 percent voter turnout, termed "pretty good for a runoff" by Monica Gogle, election commissioner. Sandy Eitel defeated Deirdre Grant, both juniors, for Augusta Hall social commissioner, with 47 percent of the hall's perspective residents voting. The women will take office immediately, according to Gogle. — The Observer

Doctors in Texas have reported finding a virus in patients with multiple sclerosis, a discovery that could help explain the origin of the disease and possibly lead to a way to prevent it. The virus has also been found in patients with two other diseases of the nervous system, the researchers said. In an article in the current issue of The Lancet, the British medical journal, the researchers said they have spent two years verifying their results, because many previous similar reports have not held up under scrutiny by other scientists. They said "extensive further work" would be required before the virus could be said to cause multiple sclerosis. A quarter of a million Americans have multiple sclerosis, and it strikes 10,000 new victims every year, according to the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. — AP

Israeli troops withdrew temporarily from a disputed Red Sea beach in the Egyptian Sinai yesterday but a missing rubber stamp prevented the new border checkpoint from opening to tourists. The confusion caused jitters in Eilat, which is counting on an Egyptian pledge to keep the border open and maintain the tourist flow. On the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, Israeli troops shot two Palestinians after one of them brandished a knife, the military command said. A 9-year-old bystander was the other person wounded. Israel's Sinai withdrawal has heightened tensions among Palestinians who fear Egypt and Israel will now grow closer to agreement on autonomy for the 1.3 million Arabs on the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip — a plan they reject. — AP

President Reagan said today he would be "willing to look at additional revenue sources" in the search for a budget compromise, but not if they mean retreating from the income tax cuts already scheduled for this year and next. Speaking to a friendly audience of business people at the U.S. Chamber of Commerce annual meeting in Washington, Reagan's offer appeared to be one step along the "extra mile" he promised last week in encouraging congressional negotiators to continue their marathon efforts to break the impasse over his budget proposal. It was not clear, however, what form of new taxes Reagan would find acceptable. — AP

Pia Zadora thinks it's "fantastic" to be compared to French actress Brigitte Bardot. "She is the sexiest woman the world has ever seen," the 26-year-old Hollywood discovery told reporters yesterday on her arrival in London to promote her debut movie, "Butterfly." Zadora was accompanied by her husband, diamond magnate Meshulam Riklis, 57. "Shooting to stardom after getting nowhere for so long is absolutely fantastic," the 5-foot tall actress bubbled. The tabloid Daily Mail featured a center-page spread on Zadora yesterday in which writer Ann Leslie called the actress "Bardot and Lolita and Baby Doll all rolled up into one tiny blonde package." — AP

When Diana Dawne and Raymond Bronk walked down the aisle for their wedding in Desert Hot Springs, Calif., Hazel Nut and Griff Adore were right out front, as usual. Hazel and Griff were doing their regular jobs — they are guide dogs for their blind masters. But on Saturday, they also served as flower dog and ring bearer for the wedding at St. Elizabeth's church. In fact, Hazel and Griff were given top billing in the wedding invitation, which had them requesting "the honor of your presence at the marriage of their people." Bronk and Dawne met over the telephone, and it wasn't a very auspicious start. Dawne wanted information for the Desert Braille Community Center, where she worked, so she called the Braille Institute Library in North Hollywood. Bronk, who works at the library, told her the computers were on the blink. Dawne said she'd heard that story before and "told him off." But they eventually met and became friends. — AP surprise. The U.S. Government did, in fact, get caught by surprise. They didn't realize the superconfidence that d'Aubuisson & Co. would have in continuing to get U.S. aid, confidence that led them to reject the Christian Democrats.

Q. How does the FDR/FMLN see the future now that the elections are over?

A. What is going to happen, in terms of the tactics of the governments of El Salvador and the U.S., is that they have abandoned the old strategy of reform with repression. They are now going to the direct strategy of elections with war. The technological level of repression is going to be advanced. Terrorization is going to continue, but it will be more sophisticated. The government cannot stay in power with just additional weaponry, they have to also get troops and that is another tragedy for our society.

Q. With the changing form of the government, particularly the announcement of d'Aubuisson as President of the Constituent Assembly, will the FDR's stand on negotiations be altered?

A. Well, it hasn't yet. We still maintain that negotiations are the most viable solution we can find. However, that is not to say we are always going to have that position.

The consolidation of the extreme rights makes negotiations more remote. But, we have maintained our position on negotiations.

Q. Does the FDR see any role for elections in the near future and what would be the conditions for a fair and truly democratic process?

A. We do see the possibility for elections in a relatively short time; after we take power. What are the conditions? They would be to end the current repression by the right. You must allow conditions of liberty, for example the trade union movement and their process and that is something that is not happening right now.

The new Student Government Cabinet was announced and approved in last night's Student Senate meeting.

Student Body President Lloyd Burke's appointees include John Eichenlaub as treasurer, Julie Vormezele as assistant treasurer and Tom Koegel as Ombudsman. In addition Patrick Borchers, Maureen Burns and Annie Chapski were picked to be the new administration's Executive Coordinators.

Twenty-two other subordinate positions were also filled. "We looked at the applications and placed the best people in appropriate positions," Burke said.

In other business Student Body Vice President Bob Yonchak announced that Ticket Manager Steve Orsini agreed to give the students an additional 200 tickets for the Michigan State ticket lottery.

Also during the meeting, Burke urged the members of the Senate to prepare for the Board of Trustee's meeting May 6. Among the items he plans to discuss are former president Don Murday's fact-finding trip, the need for social space and off-campus housing.

"That Board of Trustee's meeting is very important. It's our only real chance to talk to the people who 'run this place,'" Burke said.

Next year's Senior Class President Mark Mai was also elected as the Senator-at-large member of the budget committee. In addition, Student Union Director Steve Strake introduced his new assistant director, Sophomore Dave McMahon.

nominees for the honor. Best known for his course, "The Tradition of Art" ("Art Trads"), Leader was a U.S. Marine during World War II. He has been active in student affairs, especially the campus ROTC program.

Assistant Provost Sr. John Miriam Jones is one of the highest-ranking women at ND. Known for research in micorbiology, she also had strong interests in coeducation at ND as well as personal involvement in women's social and academic concerns.

A Ph.D. in Sociology at Notre Dame, Asst. Dean Kathleen M. Weigert has been active in the College of Arts and Letters pre-professional program and the combined arts and letters and engineering program. Prof. Ronald Weber, from the American Studies department, has authored many articles and books in his discipline and is another nominee for Senior Fellow.

ND Football Coach Gerry Faust is also a Senior Fellow nominee. After 21 years of coaching at Moeller High School, Cincinnati, Ohio, Faust came to ND last fall. He is popular for his enthusiasm with students and emphasis on spirituality in his personal life.

Assistant Dean Robert J. Waddick of the College of Arts and Letters specializes in guidance for pre-law students. He also is known for his guidance of other undergraduates as well.

Director of ND's jazz bands and brass ensembles, Fr. George Wiskirchen is an author of many books and articles on music appreciation.

From the department of government, Prof. Leon John Roos is known for his personal approach to students as well as his interest regarding neighborhood concerns.

Prof. Emil T. Hoffman, dean of the freshman year of studies, is interested in incoming students' acclimatization and study habits. He also conducts a Freshman Chemistry Class each year.

Bro. John Lauelle has been active with the ND-SMC Right-to-Life club and has served as a personal adviser to many students.

Edward Kaznierzak, supervisor at the Rockne Memorial, is a familiar site to ND students who use the athletic center.

Economic Update

The United Steelworkers union and eleven specialty steel companies have charged that steel from West Germany is being dumped in the United States at prices below the cost of production. The coalition, which filed an antidumping petition with the Commerce Department, said Friday that imported stainless steel sheet and strip products are selling for 20 percent less than in West Germany. "Faced with a depressed home economy the West Germans have sought to maintain employment and maximize use of their capacity by dumping in the American market," said Adolph J. Lena, chairman of the specialty steel industry's national advisory committee. The antidumping petition said imports of West German stainless sheet and strip rose to 15,489 tons in 1981, while the previous year those imports totaled only 307 tons. — AP

An estimated 9,500 hourly workers among 149,000 on indefinite layoff at the General Motors Corporation will get their jobs back when G.M. resumes second shift operations at two auto assembly plants and increases production at a truck plant, the company said Friday. The leading domestic auto maker said the production increases reflect a continuing improvement of market conditions spurred in part by lower interest rates that its lending unit, the General Motors Acceptance Corporation, is offering to finance new G.M. vehicles. The affected workers are in Fairfax, Kan., and Lansing and Detroit, Mich. — AP

Microcomputers flow into dorms

By ALEX SZILVAS
B&T Editor

For those who believe that personal computers are the way of the future, the future may not be as far away as most think. The number of college students who are making use of these microcomputers is rising sharply each year, according to a survey conducted by junior Eric Davis.

The survey, administered last September to a sampling of the freshman class at Notre Dame, revealed that more than 400 of these students had access to personal computers at home. Even more interesting is the fact that 67 freshmen brought their microcomputers with them to Notre Dame.

"The number of students purchasing their own microcomputers is growing at an incredible rate," Davis said. "Next year's freshman class will probably include twice as many students with their own computers as this year's."

According to Davis, the average price for one of the more common systems being purchased by students is around $2,500, although prices vary. The survey found that the most popular personal computer on this campus is the Apple II, followed by the TRS 80 (by Radio Shack), the Osborne I, and the Commodore VIC-20 and PET.

Davis is quick to point out, however, that computer equipment, much like stereo equipment, is constantly improving.

"An updated survey," claims Davis, "would show students purchasing newer models with more capability for little if any increase in cost. For example, the Apple II Plus has recently taken over its predecessor's position as the best selling personal computer. It offers greater memory and more options for about the same price."

Davis believes that the new University computer system offers some possible advantages to owners of personal computers.

"Many of the microcomputers have the ability to be hooked up to the 370 system via an RS 232 jack and a telephone coupler," he says. "By hooking up to the central campus system, one's personal computer gains expanded memory and access to data which would allow it to function much like a hardwired terminal."

Davis' survey determined that 36 of the personal computers can be hooked up to the central system. With the rapidly growing number of microcomputers on campus, however, the problem concerning the limitations of the TSO system arises.

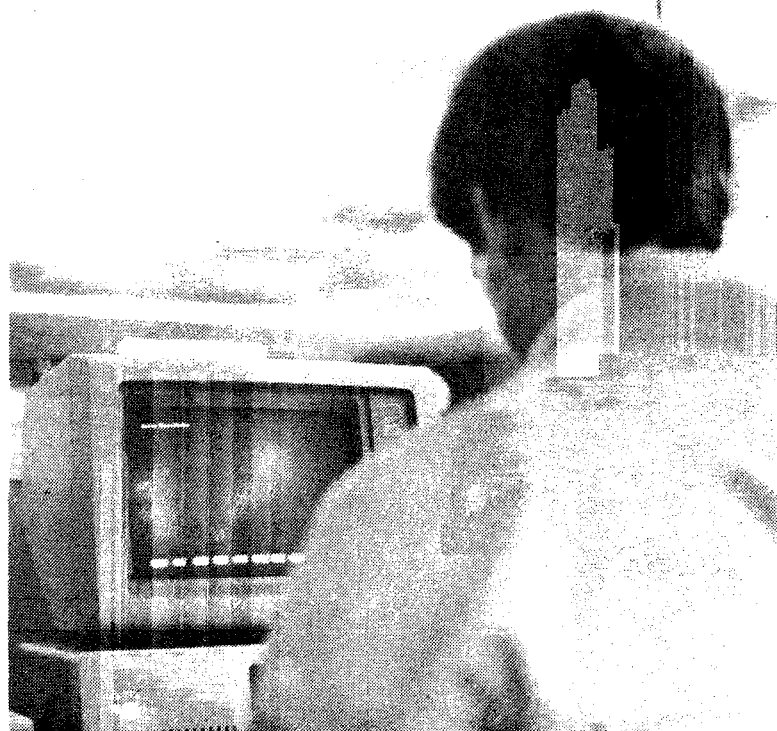

"The IBM 370 system can only handle approximately 80 users at one time. Regardless of the number of terminals which will become available through converted microcomputers, the system will remain unable to accommodate more users at the same time," Davis says. "With the administration having its own system, however, more terminals will be made available for student use."

Davis believes that the continual increase in microcomputer popularity may eventually help cause the TSO system to be replaced.

"The technology which designed the IBM 370 is becoming outdated," he states. "The microcomputer is the thing of the future. Of course, the microcomputer can operate without being connected to the central system, but with all the additional memory and other advantages offered by such a connection, its capabilities are greatly enhanced."

What will happen here at Notre Dame remains to be seen. At Carnegie-Mellon, however, the administration is encouraging the use of personal computers in its own way — by requiring all freshmen enrolled by 1985 to have their own microcomputer.

From Information Services

As with any new "employee," the initial tasks will be fairly simple—handling payroll and some administrative tasks. In time, the responsibilities will mount to establishing a wide-ranging, systematic network of information.

But then, this is no ordinary "employee," but a new computer system being installed June 30 at the University of Notre Dame. Administrative tasks such as compiling employee information, personnel lists and salaries will be among the initial items of information programmed into the Hewlett-Packard 3000 Series 64 system.

According to Richard Spencer, assistant provost for computing, 11 bids were reviewed before the contract with Hewlett-Packard was signed March 10. Spencer said the HP 3000 system was chosen for a combination of cost, superior software for information handling and productivity tools.

What's our market value?

I'm not sure I buy the idea that everyone "owes" service to his or her country. What does "country" mean? Is it the people or the government? Why do we feel obliged to do service?

Because we're always been told that we must exchange service for the good things. This is a position set up and universally endorsed by the governments of the world to get a lot of young men to die and kill for them.

The draft is only a peripheral issue right now in the face of international protest against nuclear weapons and the present administration's tough stance on the issue. People are questioning the morality of nuclear weapons and their use. This will hopefully drift into concepts of war itself.

With war almost invariably comes a draft. Wars last longer than military experts predict and all the men who get killed must be replaced, usually by a lot of men who didn't want to go or were too young for first-round festivities.

A draft notice renders personal wishes meaningless and requests one's immediate presence.

The ideal solution would be for all of us who are the right age at the right time to give a polite refusal to all calls for military service. The politicians could then gum or bore each other to death. This is not going to happen.

Too many people are willing to help governments out when it comes to the military. I think it's just great. Everyone who wants to should go right ahead and play soldier.

This whole Falklands crisis is a good example of politicians getting themselves into a flag-waving frenzy and then sending off a large number (most probably quite willingly) of young men to fight.

The British government is all of the sudden quite concerned about the rights and wishes of locals. The locals happen to agree. The Argentine government suddenly pounces on the tradition.

Both governments are prepared to play tough. Quite easy for them. It will do both countries good.

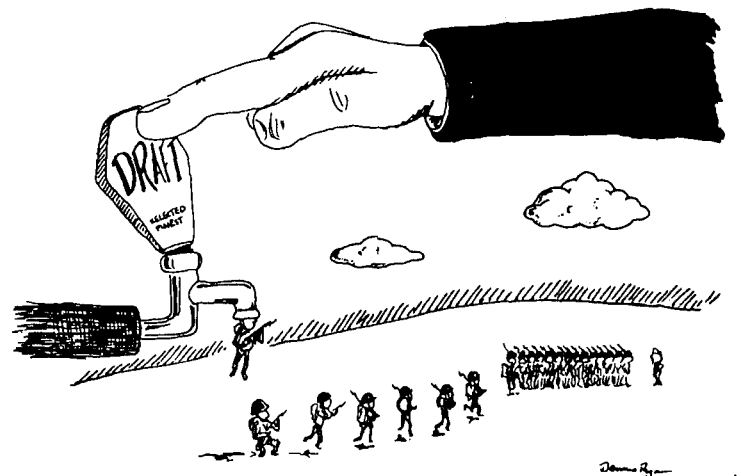

Everyone agrees that at the worst, there will be few casualties.

But if you are one of those casualties, what difference does it make? Where's that pay-off? How come you're the only one who has to pay the price? Because someone in a responsible position said so.

Getting killed or maimed and the feelings that come with killing someone may at times be necessary. I don't know on a theoretical level. I do know that on a practical level, the price is never worth it.

Instead of the patriotic drivel designed to dull the brain, think in very real terms. Concentrate on a few ounces of hot lead dancing through your digestive tract before leaving your back with a foot wide chunk of skin and muscle.

I consider my life the most important gift I currently have. My life is absolutely crucial to my health and happiness. Others may not think so, but all in all, my life is fairly wonderful.

God did a pretty good job. I assume he did at least as good a job as everyone else. We have an obligation to that Giver, if only out of common courtesy.

One doesn't throw gifts away. That obligation is one of care and respect, both for ourselves and for that gift of life in others. There aren't any intermediaries here.

No general or president or pope comes between each one of us and God when it comes to life.

Jesus said that the greatest thing we can do is lay down our life for a friend. That special situation may well come up in the military; I know it has in the past. But presidents and prime ministers have no right to order it.

Governments have no right to require the spending of our most precious gift. Nothing is worth it. That isn't service, it's robbery.

The decision to join the military is highly personal and should be well thought out in terms of personal values. No war or other emergency usurps that right of the individual to decide for himself what is "worth it."

I don't trust that anyone else would show the same concern for my worth that God and I do. There are some terribly callous people in the world.

So I think if a draft notice comes for me I'll respectfully decline and wait for a better offer; the pay-off around here isn't enough.

Editor's Note

Today continues the week-long series of editorials devoted to the historical, personal, and community approaches to service. Whether in the military, U.S. government, religious, or private sector, volunteer and mandatory service becomes a prominent concern of students entering the outside world. Throughout the week, students and faculty members examine various service-related options and discern a meaningful outlook of the world of helping others.

Can civil service save us?

"A mad fellow met me on the way, and told me I had unloaded all the gibbets and pressed the dead bodies."

Henry IV, Part One

Lately, reports would have us believe that the United States armed forces are in the same predicament as Shakespeare's Falstaff. Rumours are rampant of drug abuse, illiteracy, homosexuality, and misuse of command in every branch of the military. An Army officer once told me that a large portion of the military is comprised of those who could not get a "real job." He mentioned that the Army experienced less of his deficiency, due to a higher "standard" of enlistment. Waiting for a bus home in March, I met a Marine recruiter in Michiana Regional who told me "them boys in the Army can't even spell their own names." The few, the proud...

Joe Musumeci

Because of this problem, many people have come out in favor of a renewed selective service program. Most of these people, predictably, are those who would not be affected by such an institution. However, there is a lot to be said for the idea with respect to the favorable effect it might have on the quality of our armed forces, not to mention the extent to which it might alleviate the drought of manpower the volunteer forces occasionally precipitate.

Now don't get the idea that I want to get drafted. In fact, I am just as much against war and nuclear escalation as "the next guy," whoever he may be. I would probably sign up to fight in WW III if it ever does occur, but that would just be to have something to do until the major continents experienced meltdown. No, the fact that I and most of my friends have already registered for a draft that is threatening implementation scares me a great deal, and since there are no wars around that I personally consider worth fighting, I am already scheming ways to get around my as-yet-non-existent draft board.

That is, I was until I read Sean Faircloth's editorial in yesterday's issue. Mr. Faircloth expressed feelings of patriotism which I suppose we all feel but are a little ashamed to admit even to ourselves. Mr. Faircloth also proposed a wonderful modification of previous selective service programs, in which those drafted could request to act not in the armed services per se, but in any one of a number of civil service organizations to benefit our country outside of armed combat. I find this to be a wonderful solution. Everybody can show his love for his country without getting all bloody in a nasty war. Rather than going out and shooting all the nasties who want to turn our country or our allies into political tributaries, we can do more constructive work for the impoverished of our own land and others. "Trade in your M-16's for soup ladles and shovels, and transform our land into what it has the potential to be... a public service message from your local draft board." It seems unlikely, but it is an attractive concept.

I find only one major flaw in Mr. Faircloth's proposal. It will do nothing to protect the country for which Sean professes such patriotic feelings. If the "Big One" ever does come along, it's going to be awfully hard to train all those social workers and irrigation specialists to fight a tactical nuclear war.

Yes, Mr. Faircloth has sparked my patriotism; but the fact remains that if a draft is to be implemented, its sole purpose should be to raise a fighting force capable of defending the land which Sean and, I suspect, most of us care so much about. I don't want a draft, but if it comes, I will go. I can't say I want to fight, even for my country; but that, maybe, is not because I don't — deep down I really do — it is because I am perhaps still a little ashamed. Ashamed and very, very scared.

P.O. Box Q

Are Catholics confused?

Dear Editor:

The Law Library check-out desk has become a forum for informal weekly debates on matters which law students find particularly urgent.

Last Tuesday evening, the informal debates took place as usual. On that occasion we discussed religion. One of the participants suggested that many, if not most, Catholics are the not cognizant of the Church's teachings on rather "common" doctrine, as a test of this assertion, law students entering and leaving the library were asked two questions:

1) Do you know what the doctrine of transubstantiation is?
2) Do you know what the Feast of the Immaculate Conception is about?

There were more people (Catholics) who did not recognize the term "transubstantiation" than those who did recognize the term. Once transubstantiation was explained (not definitely of course), it became clear that art of the problem was simply a failure to associate the term with the eucharist.

We say "part of the problem" because there was some doubt as to what the Church teaches about the Eucharist today.

One "subject" proclaimed "I think there is debate about whether the Church still teaches the "real" presence of Christ in the Eucharist." This proclamation was based on an understanding of courses taken in the undergraduate school at Notre Dame.

Unless the teaching in the encyclical Mysterium Fidei has been superseded, it is clear the Church still teaches the "real" presence. (We are aware of no post Vatican II documents which alter this teaching.)

Though only one person we questioned about the Immaculate Conception professed a belief that the feast celebrated Mary's conception of Christ, still, from past conversations with fellow law students, we know there are many more who hold this erroneous belief.

This ignorance of the Church's teachings is bothersome, especially considering the level of education attained by the undergraduates and law students at Notre Dame.

If educated Catholics do not know enough about their faith to share it with others or to defend it, if so called, please tell us on whom does this burden rest?

Noel O'Sullivan's Notre Dame golf team finished 11th out of 15 teams in the Mid-American Invitational 36-hole tournament that concluded yesterday at Western Michigan University. Ball State won the tourney with a team score of 759, followed by Northern Illinois with 770 and Bowling Green with 773. The Irish finished with a team total of 800. Top placers for the Irish were sophomore Frank Leyes (11th with a 152 total) and senior Bob Horak (14th with a 154). Ball State's Kirk Schooley won the individual competition with a 146. The Irish next will participate in the Northern Intercollegiate, a 54-hole tournament which begins Thursday at the University of Iowa. — The Observer

The SMC softball team, after winning ten in a row, has now lost its last five games. Yesterday, the Belles went into extra innings before losing to St. Xavier College, 13-8, in ten innings. Jackie Wassni and Elaine Sues each had a pair of singles and an RBI. Over the weekend, Saint Mary's dropped a pair of doubleheaders, losing 9-6 and 9-1 to Evansville and 11-8 and 9-4 to Anderson. Despite the recent cold spell, the Belles still boast a respectable 15-11 record. Their next game will be tomorrow afternoon at three when they play host to Grace College. — The Observer

The ND baseball team continues its homestand this afternoon with a doubleheader against Bowling Green. Game time is 1 p.m. at Jake Kline Field. Larry Gallo's Irish are now 19-12 on the season after winning three out of four games this past weekend against Dayton and Detroit. — The Observer

The only home match this spring for the Notre Dame women's tennis team takes place this afternoon at the Courtney Tennis Center as the Irish play host to Northern Illinois. Though they are 2-9 on the season, Sharon Petro's Irish have won two of their last three matches. Today's match begins at 3 p.m. — The Observer

East Lansing is the destination of the Notre Dame men's tennis team this afternoon, as the Irish face host Michigan State. Tom Fallon's squad is coming off a disappointing 6-3 loss on Sunday to tiny Kalamazoo College, and will look to bounce back against the Spartans. Then, the Irish will return home to face DePaul on Thursday in their final match of the spring before the NCAA championships. — The Observer

"Scoring Machines," led by captain Tom Hillstrom, defeated "Intrepid Trippers," 15-13, on Sunday to capture the second annual An Tostal Ultimate Frisbee Tournament. The "Machines" trailed for most of the match, but were able to come back and take the championship. — The Observer

The ND women's softball team, after splitting a pair of weekend games, took their frustrations out on host Grace College yesterday. The Irish swept a doubleheader by scores of 21-16 and 16-0. Over the weekend, the Irish lost to Anderson College, 7-1, but then rebounded to defeat Bethel College, 14-2. — The Observer

The Blue-Gold game, the annual intrasquad football scrimmage that culminates the spring practice season, will take place this Saturday, May 1, at Notre Dame Stadium. Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students will be admitted free of charge by showing their ID. Tickets for the general public are available now and are price at $2.50 for adults and $1.00 for children under 17. Tickets can also be purchased the day of the game for $3.50 (adults) and $1.50 (children). Proceeds will benefit the Notre Dame Club of St. Joseph County and its annual scholarship fund drive. — The Observer

The NFL Draft of college seniors begins today in New York City and concludes tomorrow. Top choices are expected to include quarterback Art Schlichter of Ohio State and Jim McMahon of Brigham Young, and Heisman Trophy winner Marcus Allen of USC. As for Notre Dame players, linebacker Bob Crable, cornerback John Krimm and offensive tackle Phil Pozderac are expected to be chosen in the early rounds. On Thursday, The Observer will publish its annual NFL Draft supplement profiling the Irish players that are chosen. But, if you can't wait that long, the ESPN cable network will carry the draft proceedings live both days. — The Observer

The NHL playoffs continue tonight with the opening games of the conference finals. In the Campbell Conference, Vancouver visits Chicago in Game One, while in the Wales Conference, the New York Islanders play host to Quebec in the first game. Each series will be best-of-seven, with the winners playing for the Stanley Cup. — The Observer

Irish defeat Ashland; play Ohio State next

By MIKE SULLIVAN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame lacrosse team showed no ill effects from its ride to Ashland College in Ohio as it defeated Ashland, 17-9, in an important game last Saturday.

The victory over Ashland, which had been tied with Notre Dame for first place in the University Division, is a great help for the Irish in their drive toward the Midwest Lacrosse Association championship game.

Coupled with Michigan State's upset of Ohio State on Saturday, the victory lowers ND's magic number to just one. If the Irish win their two remaining games this week, they will host the championship game during final exam week. But there is a chance that the game would be played on May 9, which is an off-day for exams.

It did not take the Irish long to hurt Ashland's chances for the division title. Twenty-five seconds into the game, Dan Pace scored an assisted goal. Bill Bonde put the Irish up 2-0 less than two minutes later when he took a pass from Steve Linehan in front of the goal and shot it past the Ashland goalie.

Ashland scored two quick goals to tie the score, but a Pearsall extra-man goal and a Steve Linehan fast-break goal put the Irish ahead for good.

Linehan led the Notre Dame attack with three goals and three assists. Bonde, Pearsall and Mike Quinn each netted three goals while Pace added two. Mike Farino, Jerry Levesque and Kevin Rooney contributed a goal apiece. In the goal, Rob Simpson stopped 12 shots and Pat Poletti stopped four.

"We played a very aggressive game like we normally do," said Irish Coach Rich O'Leary. "Our defense also played very well."

Next up for the Notre Dame is Ohio State. The Buckeyes handed the Irish their only loss in the division this year. Nevertheless, O'Leary is confident that his team will clinch the division title tomorrow when the Buckeyes come to town.

"First, there's a revenge factor," said O'Leary. "Also, our defense is better than it was when we played them before and our two lines of midfielders are more consistent overall."

The contest is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. tomorrow on Cartier Field. It will be the next-to-last regular season home game for ND. Michigan State will end the regular season when it visits on Saturday.

The Irish now stand 7-5 overall for the year. They hold a 5-3 mark in the league and lead their division with a 3-1 record.

Kelly thinks so

Can anyone replace Crable?

After a losing season, the Notre Dame football team has a lot to prove next fall. And after the loss of All-American Bob Crable, the Irish linebacking crew in particular is no exception.

"I think everybody who is involved is anxious for September to roll around," says George Kelly, who has been coaching the Irish linebackers for the last 13 years. "We've got things to prove and we're anxious to get at it."

Kelly says that he has been extremely pleased with the linebackers' progress this spring. "I think that they are well on their way to establishing themselves as a unit," he says.

What about the loss of Crable?

"Crable was an outstanding football player who went through the same learning process that some of these guys are going through now," says Kelly. "I really think that some of these people have the same degree of ability within them, and now it is just a matter of seeing how self-motivated they are to reach the same degree of efficiency."

"Overall, we may be quicker than we have been in some time. It affords us the opportunity to do some things you're hesitant to do if you don't have that quickness. It's a matter of being able to do more things defensively, whether it be a form of coverage or blitzing."

One of the reasons for that additional quickness will be sophomore Mike Larkin, a 6-1, 210-pound Moeller product. "Without doubt, he is the quickest linebacker we have, in terms of foot speed."

Kelly says Larkin also can hit, commenting that "His size belies his physicalness." Larkin will be playing at one of the inside linebacker spots, along side Mark Zavagnin, who has moved to the other inside spot to replace Crable.

Zavagnin, the senior tri-captain who was second only to Crable in tackles the last two years, should be anything but a question mark. Anticipating the move, Kelly gave Zavagnin some playing time at the spot last season, so the transition would be easier for him.

Backing up Zavagnin is senior Jack Shields. "He's an extremely physical player," says Kelly. "He'll see a lot of action in the fall." Backing up Larkin at the moment are junior walk-on

"I think everybody who is involved is anxious for September to roll around."

Tom Murphy and sophomore Chris Smith, the converted tailback.

Junior Rick Naylor, another Moeller product, is holding down the outside linebacking position. "Rick Naylor has had a fine spring in that he's far more consistent," says Kelly. "Over the last two years he's played extremely well at times, but he's lacked that consistency." Kelly adds that sophomore Joe Bars also has made great strides at the outside position.

Senior Joe Rudzinski, who started last season at the outside linebacker spot, is sitting out spring ball because of injuries. "It's conceivable," says Kelly, "that he'll see action at the outside and inside positions."

"Our biggest problem," he adds, "is that we are perhaps (only) two deep." Kelly explains that the linebacking corps ideally should be three deep because, even with injuries, "you usually like two sets of linebackers."

Despite this, Kelly concludes that it is a matter of quality, not just quantity, that he is concerned with. "It's a matter of depth — not just numbers, but (getting) people who we can subject to the type of schedule we will be playing."

Purk leads Alumni crushing of Dillon

BASEBALL — Gary Purk went the distance on the mound and chalked up his second win as Alumni I beat Dillon I, 9-0, last week. Gary also helped his team with his bat, as he tripled and then scored from third on a single by sophomore Dave Bruscino. Team captain John Green also had a spectacular performance, doubling twice.

MEN'S SOFTBALL — "Barney's Bumbling Batman" tallied 13 runs in the first inning and went on to soundly thrash the "Hog Sliders" this past Sunday, 23-4. Rich Troy was the first to knock a home run, followed by four-base blasts by teammates Larry Schenden and Tim Griffin.

To end this season's ad-lib activity, there will be a final, single elimination tournament fielding the top 30 teams as compiled by the NVA. The tourney will begin tomorrow, April 28. All teams are requested to contact the NVA office (C-2 ACC) or 239-6100, for information on qualification.

WOMEN'S SOFTBALL — Tricia Highland and Debbie Hensley led a well-balanced scoring attack as Lyons I downed Breen-Phillips, 12-7.

GRAD SOFTBALL — "Philosophy" leaped out to a 7-0 lead in the first inning and with solid defense went on to defeat "St. Joe-Government," 16-3. Jay Wood had a perfect day at bat with four hits in four trips to the plate, including a home run and two doubles.

MEN'S SOCCER — A match between Alumni and Pangborn had an offbeat start as each team scored on goals to post a tie score at one apiece. Playing with extra determination, as it was two men short, Alumni prevailed on a corner kick by Greg Kiwus to win, 2-1.

Women face N. Illinois in only home match

If you haven't had a chance to see the Notre Dame women's tennis team in action this year, today is your last chance.

The Irish girls take on Northern Illinois on the Courtney Courts at 3 p.m., weather permitting. If it does rain, the matches will be moved to the indoor courts in the North Dome of the ACC.

The Irish faced Northern Illinois earlier this spring, a match Notre Dame won, 6-3. But Coach Sharon Petro is quick to point out that the team can't take its opponent for granted today.

"We played Northern Illinois when we were forced onto only three courts," Petro cautioned, "and therefore only played each match up to 10 games. That isn't a good indication of how the match will be this time. Things could be very different."

Petro does cite one advantage Notre Dame has going in to the match. "It will be really nice to play at home," she says, "especially since we are playing a lot better tennis now." After losing their first eight matches this spring, the Irish have won two of their last three, and carry a 2-9 record into today's match.

The biggest disadvantage for the Irish today will be the loss of senior co-captain Tina Stephan. Stephan began to feel pain in her right wrist before the team's spring trip to Louisiana in March. Doctors told her that she had severe tendonitis in that wrist. Unfortunately for the Irish, the injury has not improved and Stephan will be unable to play the rest of the year.

For Stephan's fellow co-captain Carol Shukis, this will be her last match at Notre Dame. When asked if that will be on her mind during today's match, Shukis replied, "I don't really feel nostalgic about it. I'll miss playing tennis for Notre Dame, but what I'll really miss is my teammates. I've met my best friends on the courts and it's those memories that I'll take with me."

After today's match, the girls must battle with final exams while also working out on the tennis courts in preparation for the AIAW Division II Regional Championships, which will take place over commencement weekend at Southern Illinois-Edwardsville University.
