Reagan administration orders expulsion of 25 UN Soviet diplomats

Associated Press

Washington - The Reagan administration yesterday ordered the expulsion of 25 U.N. - based Soviet diplomats, but said the action was unrelated to the spy charges Moscow has filed against American journalist Nicholas Daniloff.

State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said the expulsion was a follow-up to a U.S. decision announced six months ago, to force cutbacks in the Soviets' U.N. presence. The administration has maintained that the Soviet staff at the U.N. is disproportionately large and engages in spy activities. For its part, the Soviets have insisted that the required reductions violate the obligations the United States has undertaken as host country for the U.N.

The names of the personnel affected by the order were turned over to Soviet officials by the U.S. ambassador to the U.N., Vernon Walters. The 25 were given until Oct. 1 to leave the country.

The Soviet U.N. mission immediately signaled that it will resist the order.

"I think there will be a protest," Valentin G. Karymov, a senior counselor at the Soviet mission, told a reporter by telephone. The diplomat, however, said the U.S. note would first be studied by Moscow before a formal response is made.

While the administration has promised retaliation in the Daniloff case, Kalb was categorical in stating that the expulsion order "is not related" to that issue.

Secretary of State George Shultz had said Tuesday night that the United States has a "plan of action" for dealing with the Daniloff case but declined to give details. He said the issue has "put a cloud" over Soviet-American relations.

Last March, the Reagan administration announced that the Soviets would be required to reduce their U.N. staff by from 275 to 170 over a two-year period in increments of roughly 25 every six months.

Of the 105 to be sent home, a small number would be attached to the staffs of two Soviet republics, Ukraine and Byelorussia, both of which have U.N. seats. All 25 affected by yesterday's announcement, however, represent Moscow's delegation.

But Kalb refused to say whether any had engaged in spying.

The Soviets have 243 diplomats attached to the U.N. while the two Soviet republics have a combined total of 32.

A U.S. official who asked not to be identified said the Soviet total has dropped below 243, but added that the Soviets have never indicated that any of those who departed did so as a result of the expulsion order of last March.

In any case, he said, the Soviets will be operating under a ceiling of 218 until the United States orders the withdrawal of an additional group of diplomats, presumably next March.

Students learn of party raid rights

By BUD LUEPKE
Senior Staff Reporter

Police will continue to violate student rights until citations are contested and precedents set. This was the message Legal Aid brought to a group of frustrated students last night in the Library auditorium.

Mario Zeponi and Glen Guanousky, co-directors of Legal Aid and third year Notre Dame law students, discussed the rights and options students have when caught in a party raid and facing a citation.

Zeponi and Guanousky said they wanted to emphasize that this is a "very serious matter." Guanousky said students who thought their rights had been violated should see a lawyer. But "even if you are right, it's going to take time, it's going to take money and even then you may not win," Guanousky said.

Zeponi said if an individual student approaches an attorney with his case, he will probably be advised that it isn't worth the time or the money. "But if a group of students get together chances are it will be more appealing to an attorney. The attorney might handle it for free or at a discount," he said.

Maria Cintron, Judicial Coordinator for the University, also spoke. She said that in order for a clear policy to be set "it's probably going to take someone to go through the process of opposing and litigating." Zeponi and Guanousky agreed that precedents on this issue were needed.

The audience, many of whom had been issued citations from area police, questioned the use of breathalyzers and undercover officers by the police. However, no specific answers could be given. "It's a fact-specific situation," said Guanousky.

Guanousky said that statutes require a police officer to have a warrant before entering a home, "but there's a lot of other questions under that." Guanousky said if an officer has probable cause that a crime is being committed, he can enter without a warrant. What constitutes probable cause? "That's the question," said Guanousky.

Lieutenant Aaron Keene of the Indiana Excise Police said undercover units have been used for years. "They walk in like anyone else," said Keene. If they are asked for an invitation or told to go, Keene said they must leave. Otherwise they will look for minors drinking and alcohol being sold without a permit, Keene said.

Zapponi said Indiana statutes

Judge accepts woman's plea in the case of Kevin Hurley

By MARK DICKINSON
Senior Staff Reporter

Mary Beth Gallivan, the alleged driver of the car that struck Kevin Hurley, appeared before the St. Joseph County Superior Court yesterday and pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident involving a serious bodily injury.

Judge Jerome Frese accepted the plea and now must determine Gallivan's sentence for the Class D felony which carries a maximum prison term of up to 4 years and a $10,000 fine. He said he will announce his decision of October 27 at 9 a.m. in St. Joseph County Superior Court.

Gallivan testified that she was driving north on U.S. 31 at approximately 2:30 A.M. on September 7th and hit something that caused her windshield to break. She said she kept on going and later reported the incident to the police.

That same evening, Kevin Hurley, a Howard Hall freshman, was critically injured after being struck by a car which failed to stop.

When asked by Judge Frese if she had been drinking before her accident, Gallivan replied she had a beer and a half but that she was sober.

By pleading guilty, Gallivan relinquished her right to a trial by jury and left the sentencing to Judge Frese. For sentencing purposes, Judge Frese said he can reduce the felony charge to a Class A Misdemeanor (which is for leaving the scene of an accident) that carries a lesser fine of up to 1 year in prison and a $5000 fine.

Construction will force detour of traffic near ND

Special to The Observer

Construction of indoor tennis courts north of Cartier Field will begin immediately, obstruction traffic on the road along the present courts, according to Don Dedrick, physical plant director of the University.

Workers will begin digging up the road between Ivy Road and Gate 4 of the ACC, forcing students who use that road to make a detour on their way to campus. The obstruction is expected to last six weeks, Dedrick said.

Dedrick said safety lights will be set up around the construction site to warn students who walk to school. Dedrick said those students should use the road south of Cartier Field that runs by gates 7 and 8 of the ACC.

Students driving or riding bikes should detour to Bulla Rd., Dedrick said. Bikes can also go on the road south of Cartier Field, he added.

Dedrick said he apologizes for any inconvenience the construction causes.

South African tragedy kills at least 177 miners

Associated Press

Evander, South Africa - Weary rescue crews collected the bodies of miners sprawled along a mile-deep shaft that collected the bodies of miners sprawled along a mile-deep shaft that a raging fire turned into a death trap for at least 177 men yesterday. It was South Africa's worst gold mine disaster.

Five miners still were missing and believed dead after the Tuesday fire at Kinross Gold Mine released lethal clouds of chemical fumes in the No. 2 shaft where about 2,400 men were working.

Survivors told of being trapped, unable to breathe, of clouds of smoke and of their desperation as they watched their friends fall dead. "Only about seven of us made it to the surface," said Komiti Mereko, a black driller with one mining crew.

Officials said 235 of the miners were hospitalized with burns, injuries and chest pains from inhaling the fumes that filled the mine after a fire was accidentally started by a welding machine.

The miners "didn't stand a chance," according to Dick Grenfell, a 38-year-old Briton who survived the fire. "They just ran into a wall of smoke and must have dropped like flies."

Most of South Africa's miners are black and union representing black miners called the accident "a clear indictment of the industry." A statement said, "It has required tragedy after tragedy and the loss of many lives before the industry and government pay attention to safety standards."

Most of the bodies were found along a mile-long horizontal tunnel, some in groups and some alone - men who perished as the frantically sought a way out.

"The smoke started coming in. Then the oxygen was gone. I couldn't breathe," said Bedron Siphoso from his bed at the Winkelhaak Mine Hospital.

He said he fainted and when he came to, "I saw many of the others were dead." Rescue crews saved him.

Trucks drove in and out of the mine compound, and men with hoses washed just from the hoist cage that brought bodies to the surface.

The accident occurred just days after the Chamber of Mines, the association of mining companies, reported its best safety figures ever for gold mines.

The recent rash of bombings in Paris hasn't caused too much concern among the students in Notre Dame's Angers program, according to Provost Isabel Charles, director of the University foreign study programs. Angers is more than two hours from Paris, she said, and the students are not traveling at this time. Charles said Professor Michael Palo, the on-site director of the Angers group, will probably suggest the students don't go into the French capital until things calm down. "It wouldn't be sensible to go into central Paris right now," she added. — The Observer

Headquartered at Notre Dame, the National Consortium for Graduate Degrees in Engineering, Inc. this past academic year sponsored 100 minority students, fulfilling a goal set for the Consortium's 10th anniversary. Since 1976, 410 American Indian, black American, Mexican American and Puerto Rican American students — a full 12 percent of all minorities holding graduate engineering degrees — have been sponsored by GEM. Eighty-six percent of the students who have participated in the GEM program have completed their graduate degrees. — The Observer

Terrorists strike fifth bombing site in Paris clothing store demolition

Associated Press

Paris — Terrorists struck the French capital yesterday for the fifth time in 10 days, demolishing a clothing store with a bomb thrown from a car. Five people were killed and 58 injured, authorities said.

Three people were killed and more than 100 injured in the previous bombings, which prompted the government to adopt tough anti-terrorist measures. Two groups seeking to free three imprisoned Middle Easterners have issued conflicting claims of responsibility for those attacks.

One woman passer-by was blown apart by yesterday's blast in central Paris, and a witness said another victim was lifted several yards into the air. "It is an incredible sight, many women, children, blood everywhere," said a witness who refused to give his name.

The bomb was tossed from a black BMW carrying two mustached men, one of whom rolled down the window and tossed the bomb at the Tati clothing and textile store in the Montparnasse district, said Laurent Davenas, an assistant state prosecutor.

Windows were blown out at several businesses. The sidewalk in front of the Tati store was covered with glass, debris and bleeding victims, many crying out for help. Police cleared a plaza, the Place du 18 Juin, and used it as a helicopter landing pad to evacuate those with the gravest injuries.

A spokesman for the public hospital authority said 19 of those injured in the 5:25 p.m. bombing were in serious condition.

"The most seriously wounded were treated on the sidewalk in front of Tati," said one witness. "I saw people dying."

"It was horrible," said another witness. "A young woman, her legs cut, had half of her face torn off. All you could see was bleeding bodies."

Premier Jacques Chirac called an emergency meeting of his top security ministers immediately after the attack.

In Beirut, an Arabic statement signed by the Committee for Solidarity threatened to launch attacks in the United States.

do not address the use of a breathalyzer outside of driving violations. "Our impression is that it (the use of the breathalyzer at party raids) has never been done before," said Zepponi. Can students refuse it? "If you don't take it, it seems like they're going to take you down to the police station anyway," Guanousky said.

Guanousky said a citation is an arrest and from what he understood from the prosecutor, it will go on a student's record.

The meeting was organized by Student Senator John Gardiner. Gardiner said he thought students needed information regarding their rights and options. "A lot of students have received citations and unknowingly maybe their rights have been violated. I've heard from a number of friends that authorities have handled the situation in a manner that might incite a crowd and lead to harassment. That's what I'm concerned about," Gardiner said.

Off-Campus CRIME: was that in the lease too?

CAROLINE GILLESPIE
features copy editor

It's a weekend. Any weekend. You're out at a party. So are your roommates. Your house is empty. You didn't leave on many lights. You stumble in at 3 a.m. Your back door is missing. So is your stereo, your television, your bike...

Crime is a problem of every off-campus student. Life on campus seems stifling, so the independent types move off campus in search of an extended freedom. But off-campus life can be such a responsibility that perhaps it's no longer worth the effort.

For residents of the Northeast Neighborhood, life off campus has proved to be one big challenge. Over the summer, the residents of one house in the area stored some of their belongings in the house's basement. When they arrived back on campus, their basement was ransacked and a stereo, among other things, was stolen.

"We're upset," said one resident. "We're trying to keep the doors locked."

But keeping the doors locked doesn't seem to be enough.

Usually a burglar knows what he is after. He has either seen it in a window or has watched a resident bring it into the house. In some cases, an empty box left out on the curb for the garbage men is incentive enough for a burglar to explore the premises. If the burglar wants to get into a house, he'll find a way.

The residents who had their basement looted over the summer had their door locked. The burglars broke it down.

On Sept. 19 a rock was thrown through a window of that same house. The students living there still do not know whether it was an attempted break-in or not.

"I think they tried to break in and then, after they had broken the glass they saw the bars on the windows and realized that they couldn't get in so they ran," said one resident.

According to Sgt. John McCullum of the South Bend Police, most burglars won't enter a house when there are people at home. Also, burglars are reluctant to break into a house if the house is well lit and if there is any sound coming from the house.

In late August another student residence in the neighborhood was burglarized. Approximately $7,000 of jewelry and stereo equipment was stolen.

"It was really disgusting to walk in and see it," said one resident speaking of the break-in.

"A lot of things were thrown around. I guess they (the burglars) were pretty mad because they didn't get any cash," she said.

According to the residents, the burglars took three tape decks, three Walkman personal stereos and several pieces of jewelry. They broke into a door that was secured with only a chain lock.

"We kind of know who it was and we're getting no cooperation from the South Bend police," she said. "There are a lot of black kids on the street who kind of ingratiate themselves to you. Then they hang around and talk to you. We didn't even know this one kid (someone they believed was involved in the burglary) until well after the robbery was over. He had just hung around a few times and then after the robbery, he was there a lot."

At the time, the residents thought the boy was not involved in the burglary and was truly trying to help them. Now they are not so sure. They said they believe that the boy knows who the actual burglars were and perhaps was working with them.

The Saturday after the burglary, a neighborhood boy who was an acquaintance of the residents approached them and asked if one of the residents had lost a charm in the burglary. One resident said she had and the boy then told her that he knew who had robbed them and that he could get back the charm for $5.

The boy did bring back the piece of jewelry that Saturday night. Before he arrived, a South Bend police officer arrived at the house. He questioned the boy and told him to come down to the police station for more questioning. He went in for questioning but was released because he was under 18 years of age and had to have one of his parents accompany him. He was asked to return with one of his parents. According to the residents, he never reported back to the station.

Last week the residents checked back at the station to see if a bag of jewelry that had been recovered was theirs. As it turned out, it wasn't. They asked the police why there had been no search warrant put out on the boy and the alleged burglar. The officer they talked to did not even know about the incidents of that house) was inadequate and negligent of the landlord."

The residents lost their security deposit when they broke their lease. They are presently seeking legal counselling in the situation.

Unlike stereo equipment, jewelry does not have a serial number that makes it easily ident-

Perhaps the University should interact. But in the meantime, it's up to the off-campus students to protect themselves. Simple things like locking the doors and leaving lights on could deter burglars from trying to enter. Many landlords are installing bars on the bottom-floor windows of their houses. They may not look too pretty but if they prevent a burglar from smuggling a stereo out of the house, they're worth their jail-like appearance.

New York downs Cubs to clinch NL East title

Associated Press

New York - The New York Mets, led by Dwight Gooden and rookie Dave Magadan, brought the National League East title home last night with a 4-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Coming off a disappointing 1-4 road trip during which they had been expected to clinch their third division title and first since 1973, Gooden pitched a six-hitter for his third shutout of the season. Magadan, who replace the ailing Keith Hernandez in the lineup, had three hits and two RBI, both times driving in Lenny Dykstra.

Gooden, 15-6, struck out eight and walked five. He lost his shutout bid when Rafael Palmeiro hit a two-run homer in the eighth.

On the road, the Mets went 25 consecutive scoreless innings until getting three runs in the third inning of a 4-2 victory in St. Louis on Tuesday night as they reduced their magic number to one. That victory broke a four-game losing streak and was only their second in eight games.

Against Cubs right-hander Dennis Eckersley, 6-10, the Mets broke through in the third inning with four singles. With one out, Dykstra singled to right field, and Wally Backman followed with a single to center that sent Dykstra to second.

Magadan drove in Dykstra as Backman went to third, and, after Gary Carter struck out, Darryl Strawberry hit a single to left, scoring Backman.

The Mets got their third run in the fifth. Dykstra led off with a double and went to third on a sacrifice bunt by Backman.

McCourt drives home three goals as Irish soccer team earns 4-1 win

By PETE SKIKO
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame football team isn't the only fall squad exhibiting an aggressive new look. Yesterday, the men's soccer team, led by junior Bruce McCourt's three goals, exploded past Northwestern 4-1, at Alumni Field.

McCourt, who leads all Irish scorers with 14 points in only five games, spearheaded a devastating offensive attack. Throughout the game, play remained in outmanned Northwestern's end, pleasing Head Coach Dennie Grace.

"We just put on a clinic today," beamed Grace, in his third year with the Irish. "Everyone played well, and obviously Bruce is contributing like I know he can. Not to put them (Northwestern) down, but the score could've been worse."

With 19 minutes left in the first half, McCourt broke the ice by taking a feed from sophomore Randy Morris and firing low to beat goalie Jeff Carlisle. The first half ended 0-0, with other scoring opportunities eluding the Irish.

Scott friedman brought the Wildcats even on a header, Northwestern's only shot on goal of the game, from Dirk Klemm at the 10-minute mark of the second half. But the Irish answered just 30 seconds later with freshman Rolfe Behrje tallying after Morris chased down a pass from midfield, juked a defender, and centered perfectly to put the Irish up 2-1.

The Irish avenged a 1-0 loss to the Wildcats last year in Evanston, Ill., and raised their season's record to 5-1. Grace is cautious, however.

"We're playing pretty well right now," he said, "but we've got a long road ahead of us, starting with Michigan State in East Lansing on Friday. I just hope we can keep playing with intensity."

The Observer/Joe Vitacco

Irish soccer keeper Hugh Breslin did not get to handle the ball much in his team's 4-1 triumph over Northwestern yesterday. The Wildcats had only one shot on goal, and Pete Skiko has the details at left.

The Observer/Jim Carroll

Notre Dame senior Tom Rehder lined up in the unfamiliar offensive-guard position last Saturday against Michigan, after playing most of his college football at tight end. Terry Lynch features the versatile athlete in his story at right.

Rehder adjusts to new guard role

By TERRY LYNCH
Sports Writer

When Tom Rehder stepped onto the field last Saturday, he found himself in a much different position than the tight end spot he had been used to in the last two seasons.

Instead of lining up to catch passes, the 6-7, 250-pound senior from Santa Maria, Cal., was deep in the trenches at left offensive guard. And while the change wasn't exactly the most radical switch on the Irish football team, the fact that Rehder was lining up against one of the top defenses in the country didn't make anything easier.

"I think I did all right," said Rehder. "It was a confidence-builder for me. I didn't have to worry about starting, but it was a lot more physical at the new position."

"I was happy with the way I played, but at the same time I know

I still have a lot of work to do."

Dedication to hard work is nothing new for Rehder, and the adjectives that frequently are used to describe him include "consistent" and "unselfish." His smooth transition and inspired play in spring practices earned him the Hering Award, given to players who best exhibit unselfish team attitudes.

However, notoriety might be a little harder to find at left tackle as opposed to tight end, where Rehder recorded 13 receptions for 182 yards and a touchdown in the '85 season. He also played more minutes than any other Irish receiver, starting in nine of the 11 games.

So when Rehder opened spring practice last year with Lou Holtz, putting big numbers on the board for the Irish at tight end in his senior campaign and perhaps following in the footsteps of Mark Bavaro had to lurk somewhere in the back of his mind.

"Well, I did watch Bavaro a lot," he said.

"He was a hard-nosed tight end. But my selling point as a tight end had a lot more to do with the fact that I'm big and easy to throw the ball to, and also that I can block."

"Coach Holtz talked to me a few times during the spring, and decided I'd help the team more at left tackle. There were three things I had to work on. One, I had to put on 30 pounds. Two, I had to bench as close to 400 pounds as I could (Rehder says he's up to 370 now). And the third thing was that I had to keep my feet moving."

"He said that if I could achieve a good combination of weight and speed, I'd be a fine left tackle," Rehder continued. "At tight end I was known for size, not quickness. If there's a chance for me to move on, it'll be at this position. It's working out, but I've got a lot of work ahead."

ND must face Lorenzo and possible letdown

The Big 1's are coming, and the Notre Dame football team is more than a bit concerned.

"There's really no way to stop him," said Irish head coach Lou Holtz of L, number one.

"I'm anxious to see how we'll respond to it," said Holtz of L, number two.

Who are the L's, and why have they been the elusive problems of the week's practice sessions?

Super-smooth tailback Lorenzo White is, of course, the first problem the Irish must face Saturday in Spartan Stadium when they take on Michigan State. Less tangible, but equally dangerous, is the danger that Notre Dame will suffer a drastic emotional letdown - another 1 that can wreck a team's game plan.

"Lorenzo White is one of the greatest backs in the entire country, a great Heisman Trophy candidate," said Holtz of the 5-11, 204-pounder who led the NCAA in rushing in 1985. "He has great movement laterally, accelerates well, and he's very durable. He carries it 40-45 times a game and it does not faze him. He's simply the same in the fourth quarter as he is in the first."

White will certainly be the key to the Spartans' offensive attack. The junior runner from Florida racked up 1,908 yards last year, fumbling only four times in 419 carries. Michigan State head coach George Perles liked White's running so much last year, he sent his prize pupil out on a successful pass route only a dozen times or so.

"It's going to take a total defensive effort to contain him," said Irish linebacker Mike Kovalski, who led last Saturday's fine defensive performance which held Michigan tailback Jamie Morris in check. "He's just a tremendous athlete."

Perhaps the most difficult aspect of preparing for White, though, is that there is nobody on the Notre Dame team or on any team that can reproduce his style of running. Practices, therefore, are of little real benefit.

Marty Burns
Football Notebook

"It's difficult finding a guy on (the prep teams) to give you the type of look White gives you," noted Holtz.

Perhaps the only thing tougher than White to practice against has been the natural letdown in intensity that occurs after a team plays a highly emotional game. That the Irish were fired up for their contest with Michigan was evident to everyone in attendance, and after a tough loss it would be natural to drop a few notches on the intensity meter.

"After a tough loss it's more difficult to get up for another tough game," said Holtz. "We know we have to play that schedule and get up for every game. And on the first time, you don't know how a team is going to react on the road."

"But I think this team is going to react very positively and play very well."

"After the Michigan game," noted Kovalski, "some of the fans and students told us that we had played a great game. But it doesn't satisfy us. We want to win. The Arizona State defense really did a good job against Michigan State and Lorenzo White (the Sun Devils held White to 61 yards in last Saturday's 20-17 victory), and for us to do the same it will take that same team effort."

The Irish have practiced on the astroturf field behind the ACC all week in an effort to prepare for the conditions they will face Saturday on the artificial turf of Spartan Stadium.

Of particular concern to Holtz is that his defenders learn to read the cuts of ballcarriers and receivers. Holtz feels this is especially crucial in containing White, who uses the harder surface to make sharper cuts.

"An average back will make a sharper cut on astroturf," said Holtz. "People make cuts on it that you just don't see on grass fields. You can have Lorenzo in your grasp and then (lose him). You must pursue well and then tackle him when you get there."

EXTRA POINTS

Kovalski's great performance against Michigan, in which he made 17 tackles despite suffering a swollen ankle in the first quarter, earned him AP Midwest Defensive Player of the Week. Kovalski is listed as probable for Saturday's game. Less fortunate is senior free safety Mike Haywood, whose calf muscle strain will probably force him to miss the game with the Spartans. The Francisco brother, tailbacks Hiawatha and D'Juan, should be able to suit up on Saturday as well. ABC-Television was so pleased with the ratings of last weekend's ND-Michigan game that it decided to exercise its option to televise the Sept. 27 ND-Purdue game at Notre Dame Stadium. Starting time for the game, which will be shown throughout most of the country, is tentatively scheduled at 2:30 P.M.
