Police investigating death of baby left in box in school's janitor closet

Associated Press

FERDINAND, Ind. - The mourners included the police chief, county coroner, a funeral home employee, but no known members of the family - when the remains of Baby John Doe was buried last week.

The circumstances of the baby's death and the sequence of events that followed the discovery of the infant are the focus of an Indiana State Police investigation.

A brief graveside service was held Tuesday in the St. Ferdinand Church cemetery - a short distance from where the body was discovered last week inside a plastic shopping bag in a janitorial closet at Madonna Hall, a dormitory at Marian Heights Academy.

The baby weighed 5 pounds, 2 ounces and was 18 inches long.

Lt. George Lewallen, commander of the state police post at Jasper, said police are interviewing each of the 180 students at the Roman Catholic boarding school for girls.

At this point in the investigation, it is unknown whether the baby was born alive and would have lived given proper care.

An autopsy report is expected to be filed with the coroner in the next two weeks. The autopsy was ordered by Dr. George Nichols, Kentucky's chief medical examiner.

ND secretary struck by car near Stepan, condition still critical

By CHRIS JULKA
Assistant News Editor

A Notre Dame secretary was listed in critical condition Sunday night after being struck by a car near Stepan Center and carried approximately 150 feet on the car's hood the night before, according to Rex Rakow, director of Notre Dame security.

Karen Monroe, 36, a secretary at the Notre Dame infirmary for approximately ten years and a native of Mishawaka, was walking southward on Juniper Road east of Stepan Center when the incident occurred at 9:57 p.m., Rakow said. The car which struck her was also heading south, sweeping her off the road from behind, according to Rakow. The driver estimated he was driving at a rate of 30-35 mph when his car struck her, Rakow said.

The driver of the car was a 73-year-old retired priest who lives at Corby Hall. The driver was not under the influence of

Saint Mary's names Milligan as Class of '87 valedictorian

By DEIRDRE FINN

Senior Laura Milligan of Arlington Heights, Ill., was named valedictorian of Saint Mary's class of 1987. As recipient of this honor, Milligan will speak at the commencement ceremonies on May 17.

Milligan, an education major, earned the highest cumulative grade point average, 3.97, of the graduating class at Saint Mary's. The only criteria for this honor is to possess the highest cumulative grade point average.

Milligan was notified of the selection in a letter from Assistant to the Vice President, Teresa Marcy, of the Academic Affairs Office.

She attributed her success to hard work, organization, and the help of her friends.

"I worked hard for this. My education classes helped me to be more organized," said Milligan. "My friends helped a lot too. They pushed me when I needed it, but they were there to help me have a good time also."

Milligan said that she didn't deliberately plan to achieve this honor.

"I just wanted to get the most out of the school that I attended," she said.

Milligan was a student teacher at Harris School in Granger, Ind. The experience prepared her to take the National Teachers Exam, which certifies her as a teacher.

She is presently interviewing in her hometown and expects to be notified at the end of May. She hopes to teach one of the primary grades.

Milligan said she was surprised when she received news of the selection.

"I knew my grades were high enough, but I didn't seriously consider myself a candidate," she said. Milligan, who attended Rolling Meadows High School, was not valedictorian of her graduating class in high school.

In addition to her academic career, Milligan was a resident assistant in Regina Hall last year and an active participant in several intramural sports.

Shultz meets advisers, hopes for arms treaty with USSR

Associated Press

HELSINKI, Finland - Secretary of State George Shultz met with a dozen U.S. arms control advisers Sunday to ready his response to new Soviet overtures that might bring the Reagan administration closer to its first arms control agreement.

Limited by President Reagan in other nuclear areas, Shultz hopes to clear a major obstacle to a treaty to rid Europe of medium-range missiles in talks opening today in Moscow.

The barrier is the presence in East Germany, Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union of 130 shorter-range rockets that the United States and its North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies want the right to match.

In two speeches, Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev offered to negotiate a solution while the two sides complete an agreement to eliminate their other medium-range missiles from Europe.

"I think it's some degree of movement, it's somewhat different," said a senior U.S. official, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "But we certainly haven't achieved closure. There is a lot of work to be done."

Shultz is unlikely to give the Soviets a final answer when he sees Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, beginning today and General Secretary

Gorbachev, probably on Tuesday.

"We propose to seriously discuss this, try to work out an agreement," the official said.

But he stressed the Soviet edge in the 350 to 600-mile range missiles was a serious issue to the West European allies and they must be consulted on the kind of cuts the United States would demand.

"After all, this a matter of great importance to our allies," the official said.

Of all the nuclear arms control issues under negotiations, an agreement to rid Europe of hundreds of missiles in the 600 to 3,000-mile range is the closest to completion.

It would be the first treaty to put a dent in the superpowers' nuclear weapons buildups in the more than six years Reagan has been president.

In lengthy negotiations, the two sides decided basically to dismantle all but 100 warheads each. But the Reagan administration first wants the right to match the 130 shorter-range Soviet rockets.

The West Germans have 71 comparable missiles. The United States has none in Europe, but would like to convert some of the 108 Pershing 2 missiles now in West Germany to a shorter range weapon.

The senior official said if the Soviets recognize a U.S. right to match their total equal ceilings could be set below 130. But, he said, "it was not certain, by any means" that the allies would accept a total ban.

Shultz' talks in Moscow are bound to be clouded by U.S. allegations that the Soviets, with the collusion of some American Marine guards, infiltrated the U.S. Embassy with eavesdropping devices.

Shultz said Saturday he would confront the Soviets about "the severe hostile environment they set up." He said he and Reagan were "very upset about what has happened."

But Shultz has also vowed to pursue agreements with the Soviets on Euromissiles and on a troop withdrawal in Afghanistan.

What are we supposed to do? Administration should tell us

It was another lost weekend.

Yes, I, like many Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students, managed to do nothing socially constructive this weekend. Did some An Tostal work, wrote a paper, went to the movies to see Top Gun. That's about it.

This seems to be quite common here. Ask ten people what they did over the weekend, and three will say "nothing much." Six will mention academics. One, maybe two, will mention dates. "Was it a good weekend?"

"It was fun."

"The usual."

"It was all right."

"Pretty blah."

A few columns back I waved flags and ranted and raved about guys on this campus not asking girls out, why they didn't, and why they should. But I have come to the stark realization that there is not all that much for a couple on a date to do on this campus.

Yes, there are SYRs and formals. The latest rumor on campus is that the administration has taken a dislike to these forms of social activity. Something about an "unhealthy atmosphere." (As if ethanol weren't enough.) Whether the rumors are true or not, and I must say I find them hard to believe, hall dances are only twice a semester. That's if you can get a date.

What else is there? Parties have been pretty much outlawed. The South Bend bar scene is not much to see, and if you're not twenty-one it's not worth the risk anyway.

The library is becoming an increasingly popular spot on weekends. This is social life? Staring at some member of the opposite sex over a biology book?

Many students sit around their dorm rooms on weekends. Wow. Miami Vice again. Maybe if you're lucky, there'll be a good movie on network television. Yeah, right.

Speaking of movies, there's the infamous Engineering Auditorium movie scene. But that gets old fast.

I have been accused of picking on our school a bit much in these columns. But there is a point to all this. Really.

The powers-that-be seem to think that the consumption of alcohol is not meaningful social interaction. They seem to think that the gathering of many students in a dorm room is not meaningful social interaction. They seem to think that dating is not meaningful social interaction, if the rumors are true. They definitely think that sex or anything close to it is not meaningful social interaction. So what is socially acceptable and meaningful? Books? Movies?

Well, we're college students. At most other schools around the country, and certainly in the media, drinking and parties and dates and yes, even sex are portrayed as the things college students do.

Don't get me wrong. I am not saying that we should do all these things. But that is what our culture tells us is normal. The administrations at Notre Dame and Saint Mary's have chosen to outlaw these activities. If they want to do that, that's their prerogative.

Mark McLaughlin

Projects Manager

But what are we supposed to do?

I have no clue.

So Father Ted, Father Malloy, Father Tyson, listen up. Goldrick, Cassidy, Lanan, please listen. We don't know what you expect. We know what you don't want us to do, but that doesn't tell us what you do want done. Do you really expect us to sit in the library on Friday nights? Is that normal? Is that healthy?

What is acceptable social activity around here?

It seems that many of the ways that normal college students get together have been taken away here. We realize that we're not supposed to be normal college students. We're supposed to be mature, Catholic, brilliant workaholics. But we're not. We're not 45, we're 20.

And we're confused.

So administrators, please let us know what you expect. Spell it out. Put it in print. Write a column in The Observer or Scholastic. Write a letter to us. Treat us like the socially stunted college students we are.

Please.

Tanker spills deadly cargo of chemicals after derailling

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH - Throughout the city's East End, churches stood silent on Palm Sunday and thick stacks of newspapers sat unsold in the rain while about 16,000 evacuees waited for workers to remove a derailed tanker's deadly chemical cargo.

The tanker was among 34 railroad cars that toppled off the tracks when a Conrail freight train en route to Chicago derailed and plowed into another freight train headed in the opposite direction Saturday afternoon.

No serious injuries had been reported by Sunday, although 14 people were treated at hospitals for breathing problems immediately after the derailment.

People living within 2.6 miles of the accident were advised to leave their homes immediately, but were allowed back six hours later after the leak was plugged. They were told to be out of the area again by noon Sunday, when emergency crews would attempt to remove the derailed tanker.

Shortly after midnight, however, the chemical began seeping again from the tanker and East End residents were awakened by wailing sirens and police bullhorns.

By daybreak, about 16,000 people had been evacuated, many by city buses to a downtown convention center where Red Cross and Salvation Army volunteers handed out free coffee and donuts and arranged a Palm Sunday Mass.

"I want to go back home. But I'm scared to go back," said Antoinette Ricci, 43, who spent the night in a chair with her husband and two children.

"I'll never forget this. It was so frightening," said Nancy Weag, 33, as she sipped a cup of coffee.

Phosphorus oxychloride, a liquid used as an additive in gasoline and hydraulic fluid, turns to vapor in the air and can be lethal in heavy concentrations, said Glenn Cannon, the city's public safety director. It also reacts violently with water.

The other railroad tankers were hauling a variety of chemicals, including toxic toluene diisocyanate, a flammable substance that can irritate the lungs, skin and eyes when touched or inhaled.

Gorbachev talks of change in visit

Associated Press

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia - Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's visit to Czechoslovakia produced disarmament proposals that could please West Europeans, but the trip may have disappointed Czechoslovakians hoping it would spur change here.

Gorbachev used a speech in Prague on Friday to propose new talks on limiting short-range nuclear missiles and a 35-nation meeting to discuss reduction of levels of conventional troops, arms and chemical weapons.

The proposals were pitched at West Europeans fearful that superpower negotiations to rid their continent of medium-range nuclear weapons would leave NATO vulnerable to Soviet superiority in conventional arms and tactical, or short-range, nuclear missiles.

Gorbachev's three-day visit to Czechoslovakia ended Saturday. He is due to meet with Secretary of State George Schultz in Moscow early this week to discuss progress toward an accord on medium-range missiles.

The Soviet leader spoke in Prague of "a real hope" that Moscow and Washington can reach disarmament accords. He did not mention allegations of spying and counterspying on each other's diplomats that have cast something of a cloud over Shultz's trip to Moscow.

Surrogate poll shows favor for Baby M judge's decision

Associated Press

NEW YORK - Almost three out of four Americans support a judge's decision in the Baby M case to turn the child of a surrogate mother over to her father, according to a poll published Sunday.

The New York Times-CBS News Poll reported that 74 percent of the 1,045 adults interviewed by telephone from April 5 through April 8 said the baby should go to the biological father, William Stern, whose sperm was used.

Fifteen percent said the child known in court as Baby M should go to her surrogate mother, Mary Beth Whitehead, according to the poll.

Whitehead signed a surrogate contract with Stern and his wife Elizabeth, but changed her mind after giving birth.

A new Jersey judge stripped Whitehead of parental rights and ruled that Stern should have custody, and Mrs. Stern was allowed to adopt the baby, who the Sterns named Melissa.

Sixty-nine percent of those polled said surrogate mothers should have to abide by agreements they had signed.

Dorm fire started in prank; 1 student killed, 2 arrested

Associated Press

DOVER, Del. - A fire in a Wesley College dormitory was started early Sunday by a smoke bomb, which apparently was set off as a prank, and an 18-year-old student died when he was trapped in his room by smoke, police said.

Four others were injured, one critically, police said. Two students were arrested in connection with the fire, which started between 2 and 2:30 a.m.

in Williams Hall at the downtown Dover campus, according to police.

The smoke bomb was set off on the second floor of the dorm, according to the police report. The device started a small fire, and firefighters evacuated the smoke-filled building.

One room had heavy damage, and the rest of the building was heavily damaged by smoke, police said. It was not known how many people were inside the building.

Graduate School was judged inadequately

Dear Editor:

The March 31 guest column by Christopher Ryan raised some interesting points, but at the same time made some fallacious inferential leaps which warrant comment. Mr. Ryan, citing 1984 ratings of Economics faculties, stated that in terms of the number of publications, Notre Dame's Economics Department ranked 121st. Based on these rankings, he then went on to discuss the poor performance of the graduate faculty as a whole.

But does the ranking of one department reflect on graduate studies as a whole? The answer should be a definitive "no." Moreover, publications are not the only mark of quality faculty. If this were the only criterion of quality, graduate students would indeed suffer.

Finally, while I do not profess to be an expert in economics and, in fact know little about the Department of Economics at Notre Dame, I am cognizant of the fact that in most disciplines it is extremely difficult to be published in the top journals.

As a final note, Father Malloy has expressed an interest in improving graduate studies at the University of Notre Dame. Perhaps Mr. Ryan should withdraw his indictment of the graduate faculty until Father Malloy has an opportunity to actualize his plans.

Men make up for less aid in earning power

Dear Editor:

In response to Chris Julka's March 25 editorial concerning discrimination against women and the loss of his financial aid, I would like to inform him that women earn less than 50 cents for every dollar that men make. Whether Mr. Julka likes it or not, his vastly higher earning power does not entitle him to be as financially needy, because higher-paying jobs are available to him even now for the reason that he is male. It's terrible being so advantaged, isn't it?

Mr. Julka has not been "robbed" of anything. Rather, his sisters have not been forced to make a contribution to their education that would have been much more difficult for them to earn because of wage discrimination. I would also like to suggest to Mr. Julka that in the future, he try to demonstrate the abilities of a Notre Dame scholar by researching his material before writing another such poorly-informed, reactionary, and self-pitying article.

Evaluation of faculty should be qualitative

Dear Editor:

I was appalled to read Christopher Ryan's March 31 column concerning the quality of Notre Dame's graduate program and the quality of the Notre Dame faculty in relation to its pay scale. Although I agree with the contention that the graduate program requires a great deal of improvement if it wishes to compete with the more renowned universities, I found his article outrageous and insulting. Furthermore, Ryan's proposed solution of compensating production rather than seniority would not only be of very limited effect in improving the graduate program, but would also destroy the excellence of the undergraduate program which he so clearly illustrated with a barrage of statistics. His demand for printed matter as the primary criterion for professional competence is indicative of an increasing prevalent bias both inside and outside of academia which avidly ascribes to this quantitative method of evaluation rather than a qualitative one because of its reassuringly tangible nature.

I profoundly resent his use of my status as a Rhodes Scholar to prove the excellence of Notre Dame as an institution while discrediting the very people who are responsible for my achievement. His implication is that Notre Dame undergraduates succeed despite a faculty which is not "worthy of its alumni, worthy of its undergraduates, worthy of its pay." How exactly does Ryan imagine that the two of us managed to become Rhodes Scholars? Certainly not because we were able to pick up various journals and publications and discover the "new ideas" written by the prolific faculty of the more illustrious institutions. Had my professors been even more pressured to publish than they presently are, they could never have offered me the generous amounts of time, attention and support which I received from them. During my four years at Notre Dame, I incurred profound intellectual and emotional debts to the faculty which Ryan finds overpaid and mediocre.

Why, in his statistics and publishing output, does Ryan focus only on the rating of the economics faculty rather than that of a more recognized department? The philosophy faculty, for example, has achieved a world wide reputation. The attitude of certain administrators, represented by Gordon's remark, "We are not in the top ten and we never will be but that's not our goal," is unfortunate and a major hindrance to the development of competitive graduate research programs. This statement was made, however, in 1983 and Ryan's use of it contradicts the opening of his article in which he states that the administration's key objective, as mandated by the alumni and trustees is to "administer a graduate program of scholarship and research the equal of (an) already excellent undergraduate program."

The solution is not simply to channel the faculty's energy away from teaching and from the students and to redirect it into research. Notre Dame must convert scholars of wide repute if it wishes to be taken seriously as a graduate institution. A pay scale based on productions rather than seniority may initially attract them, but would not necessarily induce them to stay, nor would it encourage them to devote their energy to their students. A factor which deters both professors and students from coming to Notre Dame is a widespread suspicion that the Catholic environment inhibits freedom of intellectual and artistic impression. The recent controversy of Curran at Catholic University and the Student Activities Board's heavy-handed censoring of the Juggler and Scholastic do little to discredit this belief.

The administration must reexamine its priorities not only in terms of the graduate program's faculty, but also in terms of its students. Intellectually aggressive and dedicated students are essential in order to challenge and stimulate the faculty. The professors must consider their students worthy investments of time and energy for both parties to benefit.

If, however, Ryan's shortsighted solution does win favor among the powers that be and production is instituted as the deciding factor of intellectual ability and vigor in the Malloy era, let us hope that the administration will not lose sight of the goal of educating and will make the appropriate gestures. These will include increasing the budget of Notre Dame University Press in order to boost its own productivity and not discriminating against the publications of its faculty members which are issued by the less renowned, but equally respectable presses in an age of surfeit in the publishing world.

strengthens family ties

Christine Gregory
Assistant Accent Editor

The idea was born last Thanksgiving. After numerous written proposals, revisions and votes, there was approval in early March. The sophomore class had only a few weeks to make their idea a reality. They needed to send out letters, reserve rooms, order food, and obtain speakers because they were sponsoring "Little Sibs Weekend."

On Friday afternoon, about 45 little brothers and sisters, ranging in age from 12-15, arrived on campus to spend a weekend with their sophomore siblings. This was the first time since 1983 that such an event had occurred at Notre Dame. That year, there were no set registration policies, the scheduled events were few in number, and the amount of people who showed up doubled the expected amount—that is, almost 1500 instead of 700. The most significant aspect of Notre Dame life seen by the young visitors was the social life—and this was before the alcohol policy went into effect. Needless to say, the administration was not eager to see the event repeated.

Until this year, The Sophomore Advisory Council worked hard to develop a proposal that would change the minds of those in the Student Affairs office. Dan Ripper was named chairman of the weekend. He, along with sophomore class officials and council members, took their first attempt at a proposal to the rectors to get some initial feedback.

The apprehensions revolved around the fact that the little sibs might be too young to be on a college campus. Rectors were also anxious about the fact that the fiasco of '83 could be repeated if certain precautions were not taken. In fact, they even questioned the need to have a Little Sibs Weekend at all.

But the SAC persevered. Ripper pointed out that the family spirit, indigeneous to Notre Dame, could be manifested perfectly in such a weekend. Members of the SAC rewrote the proposal, using rectors' comments, input from the sophomore class, and research on past Little Sibs Weekends. Both the Student Senate and the Campus Life Council passed it unanimously. It was ready for the Office of Student Affairs. After 45 minutes of review, the proposal was passed. Sophomore Little Sibs Weekend was ready to go.

Although adequate publicity was difficult because of the late approval date, 45 or 50 sophomores signed up the week after spring break. This was fine with the SAC, who considered it "a comfortable number given the short lead time there was to organize the weekend." Other complications included the fact that the Jazz Festival was this weekend and several dorms held SYR's—something no little sib was permitted to attend.

There were enough activities planned, however, that no one thought twice about missing a dance. Friday night, "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" was shown at the Library Auditorium. Saturday's events lasted from morning until night.

"It's really special to do something with your little sibling without your parents around."

Little sibs had the opportunity to meet some Notre Dame athletes and cheerleaders. Then it was on to Theodore's for a box lunch and performance by the Notre Dame chorale. The afternoon featured Fun and Games at the ACC including dodgeball, water balloon toss, and volleyball.

After a couple free hours, during which sophomores took their sibs to Bookstore Basketball games, the Jazz Festival, the bookstore, or just back to the dorm for a relaxing visit, the group met at the South Dining Hall for a semi-formal dinner. In the evening, the featured event was Casino Night (also in the Dining Hall). Participants were supplied with play money and given the opportunity to try their luck at blackjack, craps, and poker. The winning team of sophomore and sib each received a $20 gift certificate for the bookstore. Four runner-up teams received $10 certificates. Throughout the night, the crowd was entertained by the music of Vatican III.

Sunday morning dawned (rainy of course), so the mass that had been scheduled at the Grotto was instead held in Lewis Hall's chapel. Father Lardner of Grace was the celebrant. The last event of the weekend was a brunch in North Dining Hall.

Only one of the events was mandatory. That was Friday night's movie, because the gathering functioned as a welcoming and orientation. The only other rule that had to be followed was that under no circumstances could the little sibs be at events which included alcohol. Besides this, there was a check-in time at midnight Friday and 12:30 Saturday. "This is not meant to be a 'bed-check,'" clarified Ripper. "We just want to insure that everyone is safe at the end of the evening."

All in all, the weekend can be considered a success, at least in the eyes of the participants. "It's really special to do something with your little sibling without your parents around," said one sophomore. "It teaches you responsibility because you have to look out for them but it also makes you closer." Added a member of the SAC, "It's a good excuse to invite your sib up for the weekend. There are things to do with them and you know other people are going to have their little sibs around, too."

A sibling relationship is not the only thing enhanced during the weekend. "This is good for the class," asserted Ripper. "Juniors have JPW, seniors have Commencement, and freshmen are still getting settled. There are no big events for the sophomore class to really get involved in. This strikes me as a perfect one for increasing class unity."

Does this mean that Sophomore Little Sibs Weekend will again become an annual event, as it is on many other college campuses? No one can say for sure yet. Ripper will seek comments and suggestions from all those who were involved, so as to compile a report for next year's sophomore class president. That way, if the Class of 1990 is interested, they will have something to start with, which may make it easier to get the weekend approved. The late date this year made participation, organization, and funding challenging. If the event is made definite early in the year, much of the planning and preliminary efforts will be easier.

For Ripper, the chaotic pace of the last three weeks paid off. He gives a lot of credit to the SAC, saying that there is no way one person could have handled the whole event. He felt the weekend was well received by rectors, little sibs, sophomores, and parents. "It's really great to see people enjoying themselves as a result of your efforts," he said. And it seems that everyone did.

Gina told Keith she was going to see Dr. Nikolas. Keith told her he wants to benefit from Nikolas' wonder drug. Cruz had a nightmare that Eden was lying buried in a snow drift. Coming: C.C.'s jealousy over Lionel upsets Sophia.

The Young & The Restless: Traci's insecurities about Jill and Brad grew. Kay kept pushing for Cricket to get more involved with Philip. Shorter leads East to win

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA - University of Pittsburgh-bound Brian Shorter scored 24 points, including 10 in the opening four minutes of the second half, to lead the East to a 118-110 win over the West in the McDonald's All American High School Basketball Game.

Mark Macon, a Temple-bound senior from Saginaw, Mich., scored 14 points for the East and was named the John Wooden Most Valuable Player as the East won its third straight game to even the series at 5-5.

Chicago's Marcus Liberty scored 20 points to lead the West.

The tournament, televised nationally, celebrated its 10th anniversary by returning to the city where it began. During the decade, 73 players appearing in the game have gone on to play in the NBA.

Irish fall to UWGB; take 2nd in tourney

By PETE GEGEN
Assistant Sports Editor

Two against one is almost never fair. This weekend, the Irish were faced with a similar disadvantage through much of the championship game, and it meant an early departure from the championship round of the Northern Illinois indoor soccer tournament.

Notre Dame faced Wisconsin-Green Bay in the first game of the championship round, but the Phoenix had little to do with the Irish's early departure. It was the referee who unfortunately played a part in deciding the outcome of the game.

"You can never say a referee won or lost a game," said Irish head coach Dennis Grace. "But we had to play shorthanded one-third of a time."

The Irish were whistled for eight two-minute penalties in the 48 minute contest while the Phoenix were called for two, one of which was called with only 20 seconds remaining the game. Twice the Irish were left two men short. Notre Dame also was whistled for four times as many fouls as the defending champions.

The penalties helped Wisconsin-Green Bay come back from a 4-1 deficit to send the game into overtime. The Phoenix won in a shootout.

"I'm just upset," said Grace. "No one likes to have the game decided by officials."

Notre Dame advanced to the championship round after winning two of three games in its preliminary bracket.

Saturday morning Illinois State jumped on a sleepy Irish squad to hand Notre Dame a 5-2 loss.

"We really weren't ready to play," said Grace. "We weren't in sync. I was upset that we gave up some cheap goals, but we really haven't been training as hard on defense in practice, so I'll take the blame for that."

After a team meeting, the Irish turned the tables by defeating Wheaton, 5-2. The former Division III champions couldn't stop Notre Dame's passing game, and the Irish defense played much better. Wheaton later defeated Illinois State in that bracket.

That night Notre Dame faced former Irish keeper Dan Coughlin and the DePaul Blue Demons. Coughlin just took over as manager of the Demons this winter, but the Irish put the personal connections aside for 48 minutes and drubbed DePaul, 9-1.

Grace subbed freely in that game, as keeper Kevin Mayo ended up tallying with a rocket into the corner.

Grace was pleased with his teams performance in this off-season tourney, and was even happier to see the continued improvement of three freshmen-keeper Dan Lyons, wingback Sean Fieber and forward Vovo Deweydenthall.

With former starting keeper Hugh Breslin graduating, Grace has been concerned about finding a top starting keeper for next season. Mayo played well in the tournament, but according to Grace, Lyons had an excellent series of games.

Notre Dame now moves outside for the rest of the spring. Lewis College of Chicago will pay the Irish a visit next Tuesday to open the spring outdoor off-season schedule.

Andrysiak off the option and waltzed nine yards for the score.

Green led all rushers with 65 yards on 12 carries, and also led in the reception department with four catches for 31 yards.

After the second drive, however, the defense took over, stopping the next seven possessions in a row. Three of those drives ended with big defensive plays - a Pritchett hit on fullback Braxton Banks for a two-yard loss, a Jeff Kunz sack of Pete Graham and a fumble recovery by tackle Steve Roddy.

"There were a lot of good plays by a lot of individuals," Holtz said. "The most important thing though is that we're getting much better fundamentally."

"Offensively, we don't seem to be a big-play team (star flanker Tim Brown was in California running track in the Stanford Invitational). Overall, I was very pleased. We only had the ball on the ground one time, we only had one thing that could have been an interception and we didn't give up the big play. We had too many penalties, but I am pleased with the way we are progressing."

The defense concluded its mastery when the No. 1 units clashed on three possessions late in the day. The first ended on strong safety George Streeter's break-up of an Andrysiak pass to Aaron Robb. Streeter was then in on a sack to finish the next drive and a Stonebreaker sack halted the third.

"I thought George Streeter and (sophomore free safety) Corny Southall had some great hits out there," Holtz said.

Southall and Streeter played on the first team behind Marv Spence and Stan Smagala at the corner positions in the backfield.

"Terry's really doing a nice job with the ballclub," Holtz said.

Andrysiak was 8-of-13 passing for 50 yards, and carried the ball 13 times for 21 yards on the ground.

Graham and Steve Belles split time leading the No. 2 offense.

The only other touchdown came when tailback Alonzo Jefferson finished off a 75-yard drive on the next-to-last possession of the day with a one-yard dive over the top. Belles kept the drive alive when he sprinted outside on a fourth-and-two keeper from the three-yard line, picking up the needed yardage for a first down and setting the stage for Jefferson's score.

Placekicker Ted Gradel was good on both extra points.

With the number of allowed spring practices dwindling, Holtz plans to work out today and tomorrow, hold a scrimmage Thursday and practice one more time after Easter before the annual Blue-Gold Game on April 25.

Masters

Mize needed to get up and down from a difficult spot to have any chance of extending the playoff.

Instead, he pitched the ball in the hole. Norman, now needing a birdie to tie, missed his long putt and became a Masters runner-up for the second year in a row. It marked the third time in the last five major championships - which also include the U.S. and British Opens and the PGA that he has been second.

For Mize, it was only the second victory of a six-year PGA tour career. The other came in the 1983 Memphis Classic. He had a chance to win last year's Kemper, but he lost to Norman on the sixth hole of a playoff.

Mize has had a half-dozen runner-up finishes since the 1983 victory, and questions were being asked about his mental toughness.

He answered them in a strong, firm voice, saving a bogey from the water behind the 15th green, gaining a playoff spot with a last-hole birdie, then beating the best the game can offer.

The victory was worth $162,000 to Mize, who was born and "spent most of my growing-up years" in Augusta. He now resides in Columbus, Ga.

"It's the dream of a lifetime," Mize said.

Ben Crenshaw and Roger Maltbie, who shared the lead going into the final round, and Jodie Mudd each missed the playoff by a single shot.

He and Maltbie, an easy-going 35-year-old who hung around the top most of the final round, each shot 74 over the last 18 holes and finished at 286.

Irish blow away EMU in impressive outing

By GEORGE TRAVERS
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men's tennis team took to the Courtney Courts yesterday and came away with an impressive win over Eastern Michigan.

The Irish soundly defeated their opponents in singles, 5-1, and doubles, 2-1, on their way to the win. The win raised the Irish record to 16-10.

Both teams had to deal with a fiercely overpowering wind, something not uncommon at Notre Dame. In general this hindered the Eastern Michigan team, which relies on a precise serve-and-volley game.

The featured match, pitting the top players of both schools, turned out to be the only singles loss for the Irish. Matt Khuman of EMU beat lefty Tim Carr in straight sets 6-2, 7-5.

In the strangest match of the day, Notre Dame captain Dan Walsh defeated Aziz Hoosenaly 6-0, 0-6, 7-5. Walsh relied on a strong backhand to rally from being down 4-1 in the third set.

In other matches, freshman Mike Wallace trounced Eastern Michigan's Jim Arvidson 6-2, 6-0, Dave Reiter beat Dean Dancer 6-5, 3-6, 6-1, and both Brian Kalbas and Paul Daggs won in straight sets 6-2, 6-2.

In doubles action, Wallace and Sean O'Brien defeated Jim Arvidson and Frank Polito 6-3, 6-0. The team of Kolbass and Dagg topped Hoosenaly and Dancer 6-3, 6-0. In EMU's only doubles victory, Matt Khuman and Greg Kennett squeaked by the Irish tandem of Reiter and Carr 6-4, 7-5.

The wind was aggravating players from both teams. Greg Kennett of EMU explained how it affected his game.

"The wind took my toss and hurt my game," he said. "I'm a serve and volley player and the wind forced me to play a baseline game, which is one of Brian's (Kalbas) strengths."

Notre Dame's Paul Daggs, who defeated Joe Wolf, agreed that the wind played a part in the match.

"The wind was a major factor," he said. "In weather like this, patience is important. I think we adjusted very well to the conditions."

Irish head coach Tom Fallon said he feels the solid victory is a good sign for the tough upcoming matches.

"The wind bothered Eastern Michigan but it blew on both sides of the net," Fallon said. "I think we're used to it."

Philadelphia's Murray Craven checks George McPhee of the Rangers in NHL playoff action. New York defeated the Flyers, 6-3, yesterday to even the teams' series at two games apiece.

Belles fall to W. Kent., Evansville

By ELLEN WILLSON
Sports Writer

The Saint Mary's tennis team played well, but still fell to Western Kentucky and the University of Evansville in a three-team tournament this weekend.

"We played them very close, better than the scores indicated, but the other teams played the big points better than we did," said Head Coach Deb Laverie.

In the Belles' only singles' victory, number-six singles player, Kate McDevitt, downed Mary Burch of Western Kentucky, 6-1, 7-5.

The team of Buffy Hines and freshman Jennifer Block upset

Gail Sutton and Julie Ross, 7-5, 6-4.

Other winners were the team of Sandy Hickey and Charlene Szajko over Kim Hewlett and Mary Burch, 6-4, 7-6.

The Belles had a hard time in the match against Evansville, but Laverie said they gained a great deal of experience by playing such an accomplished team.

"Once again, the matches were a lot closer than the scores reveal," said Laverie. "I am very happy with the performance of our doubles teams. They have really improved over the season."

The Belles' next face Kalamazoo College Tuesday at home. Kalamazoo is ranked 10th in the nation in Division III, but Laverie said she is confident the Belles can come away with a win.

"We should beat them because I think we might have the competitive edge," she said.

ND lacrosse beats Kenyon

Special to The Observer

The Notre Dame lacrosse team came from behind to take a 15-11 win over Kenyon Saturday.

The Irish held Kenyon scoreless in the last 20 minutes of the contest, and scored seven goals in a row to raise their record to 3-2.

Kenyon had held a 10-8 lead in the third quarter, before the Irish rallied to take the victory. Jim Shields and John Olmstead each tallied five goals to lead the Irish attack.

Hoops

Verkler's Construction pounded Leslie Cheswiok, 21-8, behind Irish tight ends coach George Stewart's 9-of-13 shooting and Jim Dolan's 14 rebounds. Head Coach Lou Holtz struggled to an 0-of-5 shooting day, and pulled no punches in analyzing his performance.

"I played terrible," said Holtz. "I set the game of basketball back twenty years with my performance today. In fact, they tried to bring out a peach basket for me at halftime."

While Holtz played a relatively insignificant role in his squad's victory, another campus celebrity was actually leading his team to a win. Monk Malloy shot 4-of-8, all from well beyond would-be three-point land, as All the President's Men withstood a second half rally to put away Watches, Rings... by the score of 21-13.

Malloy performed much better on Saturday than he did in his first outing, and attributed much of his improvement to his teammates, especially Rob Wiese, who was unable to play with the President's Men in the first round.

"It helps to have Rob with us," said Malloy of the 6-2 senior. "It also helps when you don't have a blizzard or pouring rain or freezing winds bothering your outside shot. We beat a pretty good team, and they were a good bunch of guys. I feel pretty good about the way we played."

Malloy feels that if his squad can continue to play the way they have, they can win at least one or two more rounds. Watches team member and quickness personified Matt "the Cat" Uhoda agrees with the President-elect.

"I feel that, in general, we were outmanned," said Uhoda, a sophomore who led the Watches... with six points. "And don't let anyone tell you that Monk can't play. He's got quick hands, a solid jumper, rebounds well and plays good defense. I think his team can make some waves."

Deathtongue picked up its third victory despite only actually playing one game. The team won its second game by forfeit Saturday and should be well-rested heading into a difficult third round confrontation with Ball-Headed Freak-daddies, which licked SSE and the Lollypop Kids, 21-13.

Grand Illusion dethroned Four Little Kings, 21-8, behind Marty "We play hoops in Canada too" Strasen's 8-of-14 shooting. Also on Saturday, Carte Blanche whitewashed Team No. 531, 21-3, led by George Baldus' 10-of-12 shooting, and Cubs Lose Again won and We May Not... didn't (figure that one out). At any rate, the score was 21-12.

In two physical, yet well-played, games at Stepan Courts on Friday, G-Men tossed Spigot O'Vomit, 21-16, and Ed Smerciak's Last Hurrah dashed the upset hopes of Willie and the Wanna Bees, winning by the score of 21-17.

Also Friday, Four Fags and a Zahmbie grounded Papa Sumby and the Flying Eggmen, 21-6. The Fags did more than hold their own against Papa Sumby, and with a balanced attack continue to skip merrily down the path leading to the tourney finals. In other action, Dead Chicks Don't Say No denied I Need a Lover That Won't Drive Me Crazy, 21-10, and Scott DuPree's 9-of-21 shooting led Uncoachables III past Antonetti's Revenge, 21-16.

Favorites hang tough in 2nd-round contests

The third round of Bookstore Basketball XVI gets underway today as this weekend's survivors look to find a spot in the coveted round of 64.

The cream of the crop survived a few weekend scares to put themselves among the 128 teams now remaining in the tournament, while several upstarts find themselves still in the thick of things.

Defending champions Party At Chips When We Repeat, known last year as Lee's BBQ Roundhouse, continued its quest towards that victory party by defeating Too True To Be Good, 21-8.

Leone's Stallions galloped to a decisive 21-7 win over Team No. 622, showing the same intensity that took it to a second place showing in last year's tournament. The Stallions' Gary Sass and Bill Sullivan paced their team with nine and eight points respectively.

Da' Brothers of Manhood, again without the services of track and football star Tim Brown, stormed past Team No. 150, 21-9, with a balanced scoring effort and an intimidating defense that forced its opponent to shoot 9-of-40, mostly from the outside. Steve Lawrence led all scorers with nine points, while Joel Williams pulled down eleven rebounds and had a monstrous blocked shot that nearly put out a window at Flanner Hall.

Mize claims Masters title with spectacular playoff shot

Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga. - Larry Mize, a native son of this old southern city, turned back two stars of international golf with a spectacular pitch-in birdie that won a sudden death playoff yesterday in the 51st Masters golf tournament.

Mize won the coveted green jacket that goes to the Masters champion with a pitch from about 30-40 yards to the right of the 11th hole, the second of the sudden death playoff.

Mize played the shot to the fringe, then stood frozen in fascination as the ball took off, running straight into the cup. That eliminated Greg Norman of Australia, while Seve Ballesteros of Spain bogeyed the first sudden death hole to drop out.

"It's a dream come true," Mize said. "I've dreamed of winning the Masters, but I never dreamed of winning it like this - beating two of the greatest golfers in the world."

The ball disappeared into the hole like the flash of a cotton-tail rabbit ducking into its burrow.

The quiet, soft-spoken Mize leaped high into the air, then went hopping around the green, raising both hands in elation and clasping them to his head.

"Reporters have asked me all week if I ever dreamed of winning the Masters. I did," Mize said.

It was the climax of a struggle in which six men either led or shared the lead at one time or another.

And it beat the two dominant figures in golf today, Norman, the flamboyant "Great White Shark," and Ballesteros, the Spanish master who has won this championship twice and owns a couple of British Open titles.

They were Mize's playoff partners after all three finished the regulation 72 holes in a tie for the top at 285, only three shots under par on the Augusta National Golf Club course.

Mize birdied the 72nd hole from about three feet to finish a 71 and was the first in the clubhouse.

Ballesteros was next, and he saved par from a bunker to set up the playoff. He, too had a 71.

Then came Norman, the outstanding player in world golf last year, who moved into a tie with a 20-foot birdie putt on the 17th, then parred the 18th to complete an erratic 72 that included six birdies and as many bogeys.

The ninth playoff in Masters history began on the 10th hole.

Ballesteros was eliminated there. He 3-putted for bogey, missing a 5-6 foot second putt. Mize had chance to win it all, but he left a 10-12 foot birdie attempt hanging on the lip of the cup. He tapped in. Norman, who had missed a birdie from about 20 feet, also made par and they went to the 11th.

Mize and Norman both drove the fairway.

Mize pushed his approach far, far to the right and turned his back on the shot while it was in the air.

Norman, the current British Open title-holder and perhaps the most feared competitor in the game today, also put his approach to the right, on the fringe.

Defense sparkles again in 2nd Irish scrimmage

Fourteen to nothing, offense. That was the final score. But just ask anyone who took in the Notre Dame football team's second scrimmage of the spring season and they'll tell you who won. The defense, hands down.

And if you want numbers, the score would have to include five quarterback sacks, two passes broken up and a fumble recovery. Linebackers held down the top four slots in the tackle department - Ned Bolcar and Mike Stonebreaker with 10 apiece, and Wes Pritchett and Greg Hudson adding eight each.

"I thought the hitting was excellent as always," said Head Coach Lou Holtz, after watching his defensive corps dominate for the second consecutive time this spring. "Our defense is getting much better at rushing the passer, and I think they're really progressing well."

Junior quarterback Terry Andrysiak led the No. 1 offense past the goal line on the second possession of the day, with sophomore tailback Mark Green capping a 75-yard drive against the No. 2 defense. Green took a pitch from

The defense stifled the offensive attack for much of Notre Dame's football scrimmage.
