Iran retaliates in Gulf attacks

Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain- Iranian commandos raked a Kuwaiti freighter with machine-gun fire and rocket-propelled grenades in the Persian Gulf Monday in retaliation for three days of Iraqi air attacks, shipping sources said.

Iraq's attacks, aimed at forcing Iran to accept a U.N. cease-fire resolution in their 7-year-old war, came as a convoy of reflagged Kuwaiti tankers under U.S. escort anchored off Bahrain. U.S. helicopters looked for a reported mine.

In Washington, the White House on Monday termed the timing of Iraq's attacks "deplorable," but called on Iran to comply with the cease-fire resolution.

Iran said its artillery shelled Basra in southern Iraq and other border towns in retaliation for the Iraqi air strikes. Iraq's Baghdad Radio, monitored in Nicosia, said several civilians were killed and wounded.

Iranian commandos in patrol boats attacked the 24,349-ton container ship Jebel Ali off the United Arab Emirates coast near the Strait of Hormuz.

The owners, the Kuwait-based United Arab Shipping Co., said the ship was bound for Dubai when attacked "by a speedboat firing rockets and machine guns."

The 32-man crew and two wives who were aboard were unhurt and the ship reached Dubai for repairs, the company said.

It was the first such incident attributed to Iranian forces since Iraq resumed air attacks on Iranian targets in the gulf Saturday, ending a 45-day lull.

Tehran has said Kuwaiti ships and any U.S. warship escorts would not be exempt from its retaliation against Iraq's weekend resumption of air raids.

Iraqi jets, in their longest ranging missions in months, ranged 600 miles to the Strait of Hormuz to strike near Iran's Larak island oil terminal.

Philippine cadets support mutineers with hunger strike

Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines- Philippine Military Academy cadets went on a hunger strike Monday in support of mutineers who tried unsuccessfully to overthrow President Corazon Aquino in a bloody revolt last week.

The government sent Maj. Gen. Eduardo Ermita, the military's third ranking officer, to try to talk the cadets out of their action.

Rightist sources meanwhile said troops involved in Friday's mutiny had prepared a statement declaring a provisional junta and calling for presidential elections. The sources demanded anonymity.

At least 37 people were killed and about 300 wounded in the coup attempt.

The military said Monday more than 1,100 troops, including the air force deputy commander, were being questioned in connection with the revolt.

Loyal troops were searching Bulacan and Pampanga provinces north of Manila for about 200 rebels still at large, including coup leader Col. Gregorio Honasan.

Ermita, the deputy chief of staff, flew to the military academy in Baguio City, 130 miles north of Manila, after news reports said the approximately 600 cadets were fasting to show support for the rebels.

Army spokesman Col. Honesto Isleta said Monday night on a television talk show that Ermita and other officers met with the cadets most of the day. He said the cadets realized they had received "disinformation" and would return to classes Tuesday.

But the academy, the West Point of the Philippines, imposed a news blackout and cadets could not be reached for confirmation that this was the case.

The statement accused Aquino of treason and vowed the revolt would continue "until political conditions shall have been stabilized and a clean and honest presidential election shall have been held."

Soviets make first offer to accept test proposals

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - A top Soviet arms control official today offered for the first time to accept a U.S. proposal for monitoring nuclear tests, and even offered to let the United States explode its own bomb in the Soviet Union to calibrate monitoring equipment.

The chief U.S. negotiator to arms control talks in Geneva, Max Kampelman, immediately said the offer was worth pursuing.

Colonel-general Nikolai Chervov, of the Soviet defense ministry, said through an interpreter in a luncheon speech that "the Soviet Union is prepared to accept any type of verification" on a test-ban agreement.

"There is no problem on verification," Chervov said at a luncheon for visiting members of the Soviet delegation to last week's conference on U.S.-Soviet relations at Chautauqua, N.Y.

Chervov said his statement could include adoption of the Cortex test monitoring system which earlier had been proposed by the U.S. side. The system involves placing a detection device in a hole bored near the site of an atomic explosion.

Kampelman said it was the first time he had heard a Soviet official make such an offer. "This to me was a new thought, and I have to check that out," Kampelman told reporters after the luncheon. "We'll look at it."

SMC Board plans activities

By MIMI TUOHY

Activities Night, National Banned Books Week and a record album commemorating 100 years of Notre Dame football were just some of the topics discussed at the Saint Mary's Programming Board meeting Monday night in Haggard College Center.

Smith Hashagen, vice president for student affairs, announced that Activities Night is scheduled for tonight in Angela Athletic Facility from 8 to 10 p.m. Various extracurricular clubs and teams will be represented, as well as certain other organizations from the South Bend area. "Project Head Start, Big Brother/Sister of South Bend, and many other local groups will be participating. I'm looking forward to a great student turnout," said Hashagen.

The Programming Board unanimously approved the showing of Francois Truffaut's film "Fahrenheit 451" during National Banned Books Week, September 20-26.

"This is a perfect film because it deals with the burning of books. Combined with National Constitution Week, September 13-19, we will all be reminded of how free we really are," said Georgeanna Rosenbush, assistant director of student activities.

In other business, "100 Years," a record album commemorating the 100th anniversary of Notre Dame football, was played for the board members.

Paula Abowd, a Notre Dame junior whose family wrote and produced the single, explained that the song is being endorsed by the Notre Dame Alumni Association and each copy will cost $4.00.

"Since only two Notre Dame dorms (Walsh and Saint Ed's) are selling them, I am sure that an organization on the Saint Mary's campus will also be interested in participating. Hopefully, this will be a great fundraiser for the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's community," said Hashagen.

A women's prison literacy program is helping inmates help each other. The new program at the Indiana State Women's Prison, called Literacy Volunteers of America, is different from previous learn-to-read projects at the prison, where the number of functionally illiterate inmates is conservatively estimated at 20 percent, because it uses life experiences as writing and reading topics. The ability to read will become even more important Tuesday, when a new state law will require inmates to demonstrate reading and writing proficiency to participate in work release or Regular Community Assignment projects, called RCAs. -Associated Press

Chi-Chi's Mexican Restaurante was the scene of a criminal hideout early Monday in Indianapolis after an attempted holdup. During a seven-hour ordeal, police rescued three restaurant employees who locked themselves in a walk-in cooler to protect themselves from two alleged hold-up men. The police then found the two suspects hiding inside the Chi-Chi's Mexican Restaurante on the city's westside and arrested them without further incident. Detectives said the suspects apparently hid in the ceiling above the men's room from 10:45 p.m. until 11 p.m. when the restaurant closed. -Associated Press

There's no place like Chicago for loony tunes

I had the ideal summer job. An internship with ABC-News in Chicago had the potential to be a glamorous job. It didn't matter that I was getting no pay. I was doing a job that they told me would undoubtedly "look good on my resume."

The first day of work was kind of like my first day at Notre Dame -humbling. Every other intern had dreams of becoming an anchor. We all soon realized that it was a long climb from filing and answering phones to being on the air.

Working at the number one-rated news station in America's number two news market was never a dull experience. I spent my first day following the pizza man rapist trial. I eventually even got to attend the trial. Let's just say that the people waiting to go on trial were far from anything my Catholic school experience ever showed me.

The piles of mail I had to open each day were a college student's dream. It was somewhat difficult to decipher the different shades of crayon, pen and lipstick. One of the more intelligent letters was a sympathy note regarding the death of Cliff on "All My Children." "We're deeply sorry," the note said and it was signed by two Chicago businesswomen. They included their names and their place of employment. I was tempted to xerox the note and mail it to their bosses. But that was just too cruel.

Each hour brought a dozen new phone calls on the "Looney Line." The Iran-Contra Hearings were a favorite target. "Who is this Oliver North guy anyway?" a Chicago housewife asked about half way through the hearings. I soon realized that the majority of the nation's population was much more concerned with the rompings of Erica Kane than the fate of the United States.

The threat of a directors' strike was welcomed by the interns. We were ready to take advantage of any opportunity we could. Since we weren't getting paid, we felt they owed us something. We were filmed as anchors, sports and weather people. I tried to be cool under the pressure but I couldn't keep my cool when I was forced to ad-lib sports. My sports knowledge extends nowhere beyond the Bears and the Irish. Needless to say, I broke the tension of the long day.

We interns found more ways of taking advantage of our press credentials than any seasoned veteran. We got free tickets to "The Taste of Chicago," a free lunch at the opening of a new Picasso exhibit and unlimited tickets to The Oprah Winfrey Show.

Just working in the same building as The Oprah Winfrey Show was worth more than a college student's pay. I never knew who I would encounter in the elevator. It could be anyone from Eddie Murphy to self-proclaimed witches.

I even ran into Oprah a few times. Literally. One day she was hurrying into the elevator five minutes before the show and I was trying to get off the elevator. We bumped right into each other. Let's just say that Oprah never forgot me after that. Neither did the countless number of Notre Dame students, among others who saw my brief stint on the show. I had no idea what question she was going to ask me before I volunteered to answer or I never would have tried.

"On an airplane you are talking pleasantly to a stranger of average appearance. Unexpectedly, the person offers you $10,000 for one night of sex. Knowing that there is no danger and that payment is certain, would you accept the offer?"

Of course, I said no. You can take the girl away from Notre Dame but you can't take Notre Dame away from the girl.

Dole, Ortega debate U.S. involvement

Associated Press

MANAGUA, Nicaragua- A public meeting Monday between Senate Republican leader Bob Dole and President Daniel Ortega turned into a tense debate over U.S. and Soviet involvement in Nicaragua.

The Kansas senator, on a two-day fact-finding trip to Central America, at one point called the nearly hour-long discussion a "propaganda rally."

Afterward, he told reporters, "Let me indicate we were disenchanted. We were quite disappointed that what we hoped might be a serious meeting turned into a circus."

During the public session, which was broadcast live over the government's Voice of Nicaragua radio station, Dole urged Ortega to agree to three-way negotiations among the Sandinista government, the Reagan administration and the Nicaraguan Contra rebels to bring about a cease-fire. The rebels, backed by the United States, are fighting to oust Ortega's revolutionary government.

Student Senate approves name change

By GREG LUCAS
Senior Staff Reporter

In its first meeting of the school year Monday night, the Student Senate voted unanimously to approve the Student Activities Board's decision to change its name to the Student Union Board.

In order to become official, the name change also has to be approved by the Hall Presidents' Council, said Laurie Bink, student body vice president.

According to Janel Blount, board manager, the decision to change the organization's name was made to allay confusion between the student board and the Office of Student Activities, an arm of the administration.

Blount also said that by incorporating the "Union" into its name, the Notre Dame board assures itself easier communications with other outside organizations.

In other business, the senate gave its overwhelming support to an idea presented by junior John Raphael to hold a Rosary Devotion in the Grotto on October 7.

Negotiators agreed to leave the question of the voting age, now 20, until new election laws are written. The opposition wants to lower the age to 18.

Chun, an army general when he gained power in 1980, is to leave office in February after a seven-year term. Roh, also a former general, aided Chun in his rise to power.

The National Assembly and a national referendum must approved the revised constitution before elections can be held.

According to Raphael, the Pope has declared 1987 to be a Marian year, dedicated to our Blessed Mother. "There is a viable reason to make this a campus-wide celebration" said Raphael.

After obtaining the support of the senate, Raphael said he intends to bring his idea to Father Leveille, director of Campus Ministry, for final confirmation.

South Korea negotiates democratic revisions

Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea- Government and opposition negotiators broke a deadlock Monday by agreeing on constitutional revisions that will provide direct presidential elections and other democratic reforms.

Labor turmoil continued, with about 700 strikes for higher pay, better working conditions and free unions still unresolved.

Spokesmen for the governing Democratic Justice Party and main opposition Reunification Democratic Party said rewriting of the charter was expected to begin Tuesday.

"I am delighted," said Roh Tae-woo, head of the government party and its candidate to succeed President Chun Doo-hwan next February.

Optimism about the breakthrough was clouded by opposition leader Kim Young-sam's refusal to meet with Roh on Monday because of the political prisoners issue.

Kim canceled the meeting hours before it was to begin. He accused the government of rounding up more political prisoners and said a new crackdown might be under way.

Kim says about 330 political prisoners still are being held and demands that they be freed. He also wants civil rights restored to those opponents of the government still black-listed for political activities.

"We are concerned that the government has launched a major suppression of moderate elements in the opposition," Kim told reporters.

Police broke up anti-government demonstrations in Seoul and other cities last Friday. It was the worst political violence since weeks of protest that led to Chun's acceptance June 30 of opposition demands for reform.

Military communiques from Baghdad said Iraqi jets hit two Iranian ships Sunday night and Monday morning.

The London-based Lloyds Shipping Intelligence Unit confirmed only that the 113,788-ton tanker Shoush, owned by the state-run Iranian National Tanker Co., was hit Sunday.

The ship's engine room was set ablaze, but there was no further word on damage or injuries, shipping sources said.

The sources spoke on condition of not being identified.

In dispatches monitored in Cyprus, the Baghdad government's official Iraq News Agency quoted a military spokesman as saying Iraq will continue striking Iran's oil terminals and other vital targets.

American life relies upon Constitution

After a summer of anniversaries, the most important one was largely overlooked. One wonders, in a pause that refreshes, how much overkill does it take to convince people that Elvis Presley died ten years ago. Whether his ghost, his grave, or Elvis himself can speak to middle-aged women remains a mystery, but so much print is wasted on seeking the truth in such matters, that naive foreigners would assume Elvis Presley and Marilyn Monroe greeted Columbus in the West Indies.

Ken Kollman

guest column

The truth is that 200 years ago our Constitution was made to stand above the rituals of human law. Its status as the most profound and important document in recent world history is undiminished by time, and the ability to withstand a history of rapid change and discovery testifies to our Constitution's brilliant design. With this in mind, this summer's glaring lack of media attention to its anniversary is disturbing.

What is disappointing is the collective lack of will to devote popular attention to the most important American anniversary of the decade. The 40th anniversary of the end of World War II stirred debate about the ethics of nuclear weapons, the 100th birthday of the Statue of Liberty extended the dialogue over immigration laws, and every year the anniversary of the 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision magnifies the controversy of abortion. Why have the anniversaries of the deaths of Elvis Presley and Marilyn Monroe grabbed more attention this summer than our Constitution?

It's not apparent where the blame rests. Certainly Iranamok grabbed away many headlines. But Elvis and Marilyn? In fairness, both Time and Newsweek had inspiring cover stories, and journals like Smithsonian ran brilliant articles about the history of the Constitutional Convention. The fever for information, though, never caught on, especially in television and the daily print media.

Two opportunities for improvement were lost this summer. First, popular attention on the Constitutional Convention itself could have improved American cultural history. James Madison, rightly called the father of the Constitution, barely holds a place in collective memory. Deserving of glory like the names of Jefferson, Washington, Adams, Franklin, Madison and Hamilton get little space in our history. If one goal of history is accuracy, then the achievements of the men who forged compromises at the Convention deserve attention and fame.

Second, there was an opportunity to improve the Constitution itself. America needs a spirit of rejuvenation that only a new president can bring, but attention on the Constitution could have focused on possible amendments. Not one presidential candidate has seriously proposed a constitutional amendment, or even better, a new constitutional convention that might help solve some deep problems in America.

In light of a status quo where the underclass grows every day, where race and class divisions scar our population; where international commitments extend far beyond our economic power; where our foreign policy process is muddled and uncertain; where crime rates continue to soar far above other Western nations; and where budget deficits threaten our economy with future inflation and depression - can't we use the Constitution to improve life in America?

Proper attention to the anniversary of the Constitution could stir Americans to support a better constitution through a wider knowledge of our country's history and by making the Constitution work for us. A new constitutional convention is in order because the document itself can be improved, as well as life in America, which must be improved.

A good, readable book on the Constitution is welcome on the best seller list. Instead, books on Elvis, Marilyn, Vanna and Ollie...

Music critics must remain amenable

Cruising back to school in the family truckster, I found myself paging through my hometown newspaper, The Plain Dealer. My eye fell upon a review of the latest album by John Cougar Mellencamp. I don't remember exactly what it said, but I do recall the article as being quite negative. Now, I am not a JCM fan by any means, but I had heard his new song, and I thought it was pretty good. I did not really think much of it at the time, since I find it difficult to agree with most music reviewers.

Tony Lang

guest column

However, on my second day back on campus, I had a similar experience. While reading the Scholastic during one of the gourmet meals served in South Dining Hall, my eye fell on another music review. As I skimmed over the article, I noticed this particular critic berating U2, The Cult, and the Suburbs-three groups which I thought were pretty good. Was I really that off in my musical taste? Or could the problem lie in the critics and their reviews?

I do not know any music critics personally, so what I say about them is only what I can surmise from what they write. The usual attitude in these reviews is that if I play in a band or if I listen to groups that no one else does, then I am an authority in critiquing music. The complexity of music and the huge variety of styles makes this logic absurd. It would be the same as saying that since I have painted a picture, I therefore have the ability to critique a painting by Salvador Dali. Even within the scope of rock music today, so many styles exist that it would take years to accumulate enough experience to be able to judge today's music.

Just as in any art form, music draws heavily on subjectivity. No one knows how I will react to a certain song, or how that song will affect me. For example, my father and I will never see eye to eye on a song like Pink Floyd's "Comfortably Numb." However, that does not take away from the song itself. Although we disagree, he will understand my attraction to the song because of my experiences with and my exposure to that type of music; in the same way, I will understand his aversion to it.

Another complaint I have with music critics is their despise for anything popular. The logic seems to follow that the more popular a band, the less talent they have. Admittedly, the shifting pop scene holds few budding Mozarts. Yet, when a Peter Gabriel or Paul Simon skyrockets to the top of the charts, the critics find themselves in a bit of a bind. Should they depart from the usual music critic mentality, and actually praise something which is popular? Or do they give in and denounce old favorites as having given in to the pop music scene? This problem might be eliminated if these critics broke out of their esoteric shells and actually did what they are supposed to do- listen to the music.

Even after listening, these critics have to remember that this is their opinion that they are giving, not the official dogma. I do not wish to offend any music critics; I merely want to remind them that they are not the only ones who listen to music. and that maybe, just maybe, they might find a good song on the radio once in a while.

capacity with an audience representing different countries and customs but the cheers and smiles made it clear that they all shared in the Special Olympics dream.

The week was filled with the usual summer sporting events including aquatics, athletics, basketball, gymnastics, soccer and softball. Demonstration sports included bowling, rollerskating, and equestrian events. But there were more activities to amuse the athletes. Saint Mary's O'Laughlin Auditorium was the home of EXPO center which housed exhibits from participating countries.

O'Laughlin Lawn hosted several sporting events including "Snow Fest" where 240 tons of ice were brought in by Red Lobster to make "Mount Special Olympus" where athletes learned to ski. Olympians from Zimbabwe particularly enjoyed the event because they had never before seen snow.

One of the most popular features of the Games was "Olympic Town." Located behind the Joyce ACC, Olympic Town offered athletes, coaches and their families a chance to get away from competing and enjoy socializing. AT&T sponsored a booth at which the athletes could call anywhere in the world for free.

But the favorite Olympic Town activity was trading. Everything

While most Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students were enjoying their time away from campus, there was something magical happening here.

The VII International Summer Special Olympics Games brought over 4,500 athletes from 72 countries to Notre Dame July 31 - August 8. Along with the athletes came thousands of coaches, volunteers and supporters who helped make 1987's largest athletic event a success.

This year's Games, the largest in Special Olympics history, started a new tradition when ABC nationally televised the Opening Ceremonies from Notre Dame Stadium. The Ceremonies, hosted by Oprah Winfrey and Arnold Schwarzenegger, included performances by Whitney Houston, Barbara Mandrell, John Denver and many others.

Frank Gifford narrated the event introducing each delegation of athletes saying, "Let them know they're welcome. Let them know we love them." The audience applauded and chanted in approval. They held blue and gold banners to make their own "wave."

"Tonight, they cheer for you," Special Olympics founder Eunice Kennedy Shriver told the audience. "You are the stars and the world is watching you."

The stadium was filled to traded from kimono to t-shirts were with people from other delegations. Each delegation sported their own pins with their delegation's logo. By the end of the Games, each athlete wore a dozen pins that he had acquired through trading.

Celebrities attended events throughout the week. Some, like Oprah Winfrey and Arnold Schwarzenegger, left with the cameras, but others, including the Kennedy family, "Bewitched's" Dick Sargent and former Olympians Mary Lou Retton and Bart Connor competed in events like the "Civitan Celebrity Challenge" and supported the athletes by hugging them and handing out their medals.

The dorms were home to athletes, coaches and live-in hosts. All of the halls were occupied.

Pasquerilla East was home to the Yugoslavians, the Nicaraguans stayed in Carroll and the French were in Sorin. Live-in hosts learned about the culture of their guests so that they could help make their stays enjoyable.

The 16,000 volunteers included a number of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students who helped coordinate events, served as live-in hosts and helped to promote the Games. For these student volunteers as well as their local counterparts and the athletes themselves, the VII International Summer Special Olympics remains a happy memory.

Unique opportunity to learn and travel abroad

M. J. GRANT
features writer

For 14 years, Saint Mary's College has sponsored a summer program to London and Rome. Students who participate in both programs travel through Europe for 31 days and can earn up to six credits. The program is open to anyone.

The London program members spend several days in Ireland, Scotland, and Paris. Those in the three week program to Rome stay in Rome for only ten days. The majority of the days are filled touring France, Germany, Switzerland and Italy. Anthony Black, associate professor of history at Saint Mary's and coordinator for the summer program feels the trip is "A great opportunity for people the same age and outlook to do things they have never done before."

Last summer, 64 people participated in the London program and 34 went to Rome. The cost for living accommodations at small hotels or guest houses, including meals is $2,495. Black associates the living conditions to that of a dorm. "The hotels aren't like the Hilton. There's no private bath or bathroom. But it has worked out really well."

The students who participated in the program are very enthusiastic. Lisa Coleman, a student from Saint Mary's said, "The London program was a chance of a lifetime. The things we saw, and the people we met were incredible. Traveling abroad is an unforgettable experience." Julia Merkel, a Notre Dame senior, decided she liked "the city Assisi the best because it was peaceful and the Italians were really friendly."

There are many different course options one can enroll in while on the program. Rome offers Business, Italian, and a history class that involves lectures and tours. In London, studies included the British view of nature, Sociology, or even Travel Photo Workshop.

Kathleen Smith from Saint Mary's said "London was a wonderful trip, getting to know people from here as well as abroad." The experience is definitely beneficial. It allows one to learn about a different culture, and as Black puts it, "enjoy European history and have a good time."

Al Baker and the St. Louis Cardinals dealt the Chicago Bears their first pre-season loss Monday night at Soldier Field. The 20-16 decision left Bears coach Mike Ditka with an 0-8 career record against St. Louis.

CHICAGO—Wide receiver Don Holmes grabbed two touchdown passes, including a "Hail Mary" toss by Neil Lomax on the final play of the first half Monday night, to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 20-16 exhibition NFL victory over the Chicago Bears.

With three seconds left in the half after the Cardinals had blocked a field goal attempt, Lomax lofted a pass into the end zone and Holmes grabbed it for a 38-yard touchdown after it bounced off two Bears for a 13-2 halftime lead.

The first time the Cardinals gained possession in the second half, they drove 70 yards in seven plays for a touchdown capped by Cliff Stoudt's 31-yard pass to Holmes.

The outcome left both the Bears and Cardinals with 2-1 records and with Chicago's Mike Ditka still seeking his first coaching victory over the Cardinals. Ditka is 0-6 in preseason play against the Cardinals and 0-2 in regular-season competition.

Lomax, playing only in the first half, also threw a 13-yard touchdown pass to Troy Johnson in the first quarter. He completed 12 of 21 passes for 128 yards.

Mike Tomczak made his third straight start at quarterback for the Bears in the absence of injured Jim McMahon. He played the first half and completed 15 of 23 passes for 132 yards but failed to get the team on the board.

Late in the third period, the Bears marched 68 yards in 10 plays under quarterback Doug Flutie and scored a touchdown on a 13-yard run by Thomas Sanders.

Flutie also capped a 69-yard drive with a 5-yard touchdown pass to Riley Walton in the fourth quarter.

Redbirds run streak to six

ST. LOUIS- John Tudor pitched eight shutout innings as St. Louis beat the Cincinnati Reds 4-0 Monday night for the Cardinals' sixth straight victory.

The Reds, third in the National League West, have dropped nine of their last 10 games.

Tudor, 5-2, allowed five hits, walked one and struck out four in his seventh start since coming off the disabled list. Todd Worrell got the final three outs for the first-place Cardinals, allowing one hit.

Willie McGee extended his hitting streak to 12 games in leading the Cardinals' offense with a single, double and two runs batted in.

Pirates 7, Braves 3
PITTSBURGH - Mike Dunne pitched a six-hitter and rookie Jose Lind hit a two-run triple as Pittsburgh beat the Atlanta Braves 7-3 Monday night for the Pirates' seventh straight victory.

Dunne, 9-5, allowed an unearned run in the third and gave up Ozzie Virgil's 24th homer, a two-run shot, in the seventh.

Cubs 4, Astros 3
HOUSTON - Ryne Sandberg's first-inning home run established a single-season Chicago record for homers and the Cubs defeated Houston 4-3 Monday night, sending the Astros to their season-high sixth straight loss.

Sandberg's home run, his 15th, gave the Cubs 183 for the season. Chicago's previous record of 182 was set in 1958.

Phillies 4, Dodgers 2
LOS ANGELES - Shane Rawley improved his lifetime record against Los Angeles to 9-0 and Mike Schmidt hit his 523rd home run as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated Los Angeles 4-2 Monday night, the Dodgers' fifth straight loss.

making forward from California. Together last season McCourt and Morris combined for 23 goals and 16 assists.

McCourt's reputation has spread ever since he cracked the top 10 for individual scoring in the nation last season. Heavy marking and cheap fouls may be in the future for McCourt, but he doesn't believe the other teams will change their strategy that much.

"It doesn't mean they weren't looking for me in the past," said McCourt. "I'd get fouled all the time. But having Randy up there makes things a lot easier, because if they key on me, he'll take them to the hole."

Grace is hoping that McCourt will be a goal-a-game player this season. But McCourt isn't pressuring himself to score every game this season - just certain games.

"I'll especially try hard against teams I didn't score against last season, like Michigan State and Bowling Green," said McCourt. "I had lots of opportunities, but I kept hitting the posts and crossbars."

"Last year I wanted to do the goal-a-game thing, but a lot of games when we were winning big I would slack off and not get a goal. I want to try harder and keep pushing in those games."

Junior Pat Murphy (three goals, two assists) provides extra speed and quickness on the front line. And two freshmen, Danny Stebbins of Milwaukee and Rob LaMear of St. Louis, should also see playing time immediately. Grace is especially high on Stebbins, who was recruited by several soccer powers, including Indiana.

"Danny Stebbins is going to be a very, very fine college player," said Grace.

The midfield positions have the most depth on the team. Returning are senior Paul Gluckow, juniors Joe Sternberg and Kurt Roemer and sophomore Rolfe Behrje. Gluckow is currently out of action with a knee injury, but is expected to begin practicing soon. Roemer returns to the Irish after missing last season for academic reasons.

Grace has a number of players that can also fill in at the midfield position. Guignon has also been playing midfield, moving up from the stopper position. "Johnny will be going between double stopper and midfield, depending on the game situation," said Grace. "He reads the game very well."

Freshman Steve LaVigne of St. Louis also is in the same position as Guignon, targeted for either stopper or midfield.

The defense has experience, but positions are not finalized. Senior captain Steve Lowney will start the season at sweeper, even though his natural position is wingback. Whether Lowney will play wingback depends on the progress of freshman sweeper Mike Drury of Westfield, N.J.

Juniors Dan Gordon and Tom Pernsteiner and sophomore Dave Augustyn will all see action at the wingback position, as will freshman Paul LaVigne, the twin brother of Steve.

Likewise things are not set at the keeper position. Sophomore Dan Lyons has emerged as the starter, but senior Tim Hartigan has played well ever since coming back from a knee injury this week and will see action in the Loyola contest.

"The key is the defense," said Guignon. "Everyone is set up front and the halves all have two years experience. But Tim Hartigan and Dan Lyons have both been playing well, Hartigan especially ever since he came back from the injury. I couldn't believe how well he's played. He's so quick, he's an animal out there."

With the large number of players comes the problem of playing time. Some players will be on the bench, but Grace usually begins the season by getting in as many players as possible.

"I always sub a lot anyway," said Grace. "We have to find the best combinations that we have."

Freshmen have made their presence felt on the Irish soccer squad.

'Solid' soccer squad opens season today

By PETE GEGEN
Assistant Sports Editor

More than any other season, excitement is in the air as the Irish soccer team opens its 1987 season.

This afternoon in Chicago Notre Dame faces Loyola (Ill.) at 4. Coached by Notre Dame alumnus Ray O'Connell, the Ramblers will be a good opening test for the Irish.

Notre Dame is stacked with talent at all positions, and Head Coach Dennis Grace is optimistic.

"We have more firepower up top than we've ever had before," he said. "But our strength is our people on our bench."

Depth is the key word as eight starters have returned from last season's 13-7-2 team.

Seven veterans have at least two years experience on the varsity level.

Add to the roster a group of nine talented freshmen who have been pushing the upperclassmen and play an important role in the upcoming season.

"We're really solid," said junior captain John Guignon. "We have a lot of returning starters. But in key positions the frosh really have to come up big."

Solid is the perfect way to describe the front line. Returning is junior forward Bruce "Tiger" McCourt, the team's leading scorer last season and the 12th-leading scorer in Notre Dame soccer history, and junior Randy Morris, the play-

Seniors enjoy party atmosphere in football ticket line

By THERESA KELLY
Sports Writer

John "Quince" Adams took the honors as the first man in line to get student tickets for the 1987 football season. A senior residing off campus, Quince secured his place in line at 1 a.m. Saturday.

"I'm a football nut," said Quince. "I tried out spring of sophomore year, but got cut. I want to do what I can to support the team."

"Everyone told me I was crazy," said the Kennebunk, Maine native, "but the weather's been good. It's just like camping out in the summer. I've had a lot of fun."

Quince, Bill Herzog, Paul Christian, and Eric Baumgartner held the first spaces for over 36 hours.

Other early arrivals had different reasons for showing up early. The Senior Class hired a DJ to entertain the campers, creating an atmosphere better than any dorm on the cement outside Gate 10.

Several tents were erected, and some students brought lawn chairs and armchairs. Others brought mattresses or full beds, and all had plenty of refreshments.

"I'm just here for the free pizza," said "Wild" Bill O'Neill.

"I'm just here to eat pizza with Wild Bill," said Anne Norton.

About 250 people were in line when the gates opened at 1:30 p.m. Monday, according to Mike Bobinski, Notre Dame's ticket manager.

"There were no real problems, everyone was orderly, and we got great cooperation from the students," said Bobinski. "There is always some confusion going from one big line to five small ones, but with five places to distribute, we move the people in and out fast."

Bobinski says the gates generally stay open until 8 p.m., but most of the day's tickets are sold by six.

Ticket officials had to ask the seniors to clean up the area after the line began moving.

"It was really a mess," says Bobinski. "Garbage and blankets all over the place. You'd expect that after a campout, but it looked really terrible. The students were great though. We appreciated their cooperation."

Bobinski says the longest lines at Notre Dame are not for football but for graduation tickets.

"It's big time at graduation when you have to get something for the parents. Football lines are shorter, but they wait longer."

Some juniors began lining up Monday morning, a practice Bobinski would like to discourage.

"It can cause some confusion with all the seniors plus some juniors waiting around," he said. "It can't make that much of a difference - there really isn't a bad seat in the whole stadium."

Because the order of seats sold goes up the rows rather than across, Bobinski says the first junior in line will not necessarily get the closest seats to the field.

The Class of '89 gets their chance to squeeze as close to the fifty-yard as possible Tuesday. Although the lines are already forming, once again Gate 10 will not open until 1:30 p.m.

New faces on defense

Hard work holds down line

By RICK RIETBROCK
Assistant Sports Editor

Take away your right defensive tackle, who started 10 of 11 games last season. Then cancel out your left defensive tackle who started 9 of 11 contests last year.

And then suppose your nose tackle, who started nine games, had back surgery for a disc injury.

This is the scenario in the Notre Dame defensive line, as Wally Kleine and Robert Banks have gone on to the NFL, and Mike Griffin has spent his summer rehabilitating. But despite all those unfavorable circumstances, the Irish certainly do not view the defensive line as a weakness.

"We definitely have high hopes for this group," says Notre Dame defensive line coach Joe Yonto. "Nobody's worked harder than they have and so far we are very pleased with what we've seen this fall."

A big reason nobody seems terribly worried about the situation is that senior Jeff Kunz, who filled in for both Banks and Kleine last season, is back to start at right tackle. Kunz performed solidly throughout last season as a reserve and fill-in starter.

Another reason is that reliable Tom Gorman is anchoring the left tackle position. Gorman was moved from nose tackle (where he started against Michigan last year) following an ankle injury to Ted Fitzgerald. Gorman registered three sacks last season and was especially impressive down the stretch.

Fitzgerald is still unable to put much weight on his ankle, but does not figure to miss too much time. He will definitely see a lot of time when he returns.

But perhaps the biggest reason for optimism is that Griffin is back in the middle of things. The fifth-year senior has had an outstanding fall, showing few effects of his back surgery. Yonto says that Griffin is the rock of the unit.

"He's such a battler, such a tough competitor that will always give it his all," he says. "It's a real lift to have him in there."

Griffin, however, denies he is the key to the group.

"I'm not really the big leader," says the Cleveland

Heights, Ohio, native. "Kunz is a real leader and he and Gorman are really playing well. Fitzgerald can play and the second group is tough, too. We're going to be a strong unit."

The group has lost Matt Dingens, who was slated for substantial playing time. Dingens quit the team last week. But sophomores Jeff Alm and Bryan Flannery provide depth at the tackle slots and junior Rich Morrison backs up Griffin at nose tackle and comes in on goal-line situations.

Freshmen George Williams, George Marshall and Bob Dahl also have impressed in fall drills and are pushing for playing time.

While the line has looked good so far in practice, Yonto says the real verdict cannot be decided until the regular season is underway.

"We'd like to improve in getting consistency in our pass rush," he says. "We've looked strong in practice, but it's hard to tell playing against ourselves. We won't get a real measure on our progress until we start playing against someone else."

Ticket sales continue

Special to The Observer

Students are asked to bring their application, remittance and ID card to Gate 10 of the ACC on the day specified for each class. One student may present a maximum of four (4) applications and ID cards. Married students wishing to purchase a ticket for their spouse must show proof of marriage. The ticket for a spouse is the same price as a student ticket.

Student football ticket applications have been sent to all students with a campus or local address. If you have not yet received your application or if the class status pre-printed on your application is incorrect, you are asked to come to the Ticket Office on the second floor of the ACC prior to your designated class issue day.
