The familiar campus rites of spring are evident when winter weather disappears. On South Quad several students prepare for the spring sporting season, highlighted by annual events such as Bookstore Basketball and the Beaux Arts Ball.

RA hospitalized in South Padre

By MARK MCLAUGHLIN
News Editor

A hit-and-run accident at South Padre Island left a Notre Dame student seriously injured last Thursday.

Tom McNeil, a resident assistant in Flanner Hall, was reported in good condition Monday at Valley Regional Medical Center, near Brownsville, Texas. McNeil had recently been moved out of an intensive care unit.

"Luckily for him, the injuries were much less severe than they could have been," said McNeil's mother, who had been staying with McNeil at the hospital, Monday. "He's doing pretty good."

McNeil sustained a severe concussion, whiplash and contusions over much of his body. According to Mrs. McNeil, his eyes were swollen shut, and his forehead "was scraped up pretty bad."

There appears to be little hope of apprehending the driver of the vehicle that struck McNeil. "We have very little to go on," said Sergeant John Stetar of the South Padre Island police department. "He was struck by a small white pickup truck," Stetar added.

Police in the South Texas region and the local area have been sent a description of the vehicle, according to Stetar. "There's a lot of cars that answer that description, though," he said. "The way the car hit, there's probably not much damage to the car."

Several Notre Dame students saw the pickup hit McNeil, according to Stetar, but none were able to describe the driver.

McNeil was struck unconscious in the accident, but came to in the ambulance that took him to Valley Regional, Stetar said.

Brother Michael Smith, rector of Flanner Hall, said he found out about the incident

Student visit to South Africa delayed over visa denial

By ROBYN SIMMONS
News Staff

Current tensions in South Africa have delayed the visa approval of one Notre Dame student attempting to visit that nation on a trip sponsored in part by the University administration.

Mike Schadek, a sophomore government major, planned a two week trip to South Africa in March. Schadek applied for his visa in early February at the South African consulate in Chicago. Schadek was told his visa would be ready before his scheduled departure date on March 12.

"It's been about one year that my preparations and plans have been going on, and I've got sponsors here at Notre Dame," said Schadek, whose trip sponsors include the Notre Dame administration, Grace Hall, Campus Ministry, student government and the Mansfield Soroptimist Club in Schadek's hometown in Ohio.

Schadek was planning on meeting Nobel Peace Prize winner Archbishop Desmond Tutu, an anti-apartheid activist. "I would have actually spent time with Archbishop Tutu," said Schadek. "(Tutu's assistants) were making arrangements for me to stay, most likely in the bishop's court," he said.

"This is my own initiative. I want to see the apartheid system in action," said Schadek. "I think Archbishop Tutu is one of the ideal individuals to speak with," he said.

"I want to go and find out more about apartheid in the hopes that I will be a more effective spokesman here," he said. "I want to draw my own conclusions about the current situation."

Schadek feels that his political interest may be the source of his difficulties. "Everyone that I have spoken with who has gone as a traveler had no problem whatsoever."

Shortly before Schadek's scheduled trip, Tutu was arrested for staging an anti-apartheid rally, which was banned by the government. Tutu was detained for several hours and released.

After Tutu's arrest, obtaining a visa became increasingly difficult for Schadek. "(The consulate) said I would have no problem, and I would receive approval before my departure, and then Archbishop Tutu was arrested, and suddenly the government became unresponsive," Schadek said.

"On my visa application, I had to specify what I would be doing and who I would be in contact with," Schadek said. "In the past week, every time I would speak with them, (a representative of the consulate) was almost curt with me."

Sandinista government proposes extended cease-fire with Contras

Associated Press

SAPOA, Nicaragua - The Sandinista government and Contra rebels announced proposals Tuesday for an extended cease-fire that would include amnesty and steps toward a lasting peace.

The leftist government's proposal, outlined in a statement to journalists at the second day of peace talks at this post on the Costa Rican border, calls for a 30-day truce with the rebels intended for them to lay down their arms and "rejoin Nicaraguan society."

It also provides for the release of a political prisoner for each rebel accepting amnesty. Deputy Foreign Minister Victory Hugo Tinoco told reporters there are 3,300 prisoners the government considers eligible for release under the program.

Daniel Ortega

The Contra proposal calls for a 45-day truce starting on April 1, in which rebel fighters would move into cease-fire zones still to be determined.

It said the government should grant "total and unconditional amnesty" as soon as the truce takes effect, allowing anyone who left Nicaragua for political reasons to "rejoin the political, economic and social process without any conditions."

The rebels also want to join a national dialogue between the Sandinistas and their internal political opponents while the cease-fire lasts. The government also would allow rebel leaders to participate in national reconciliation talks.

Both proposals call for international monitoring of the cease-fire.

Co-valedictorians chosen for '88 graduating class

By PATRICK O'CONNOR
Staff Reporter

One thousandth of a grade point separates co-valedictorians Gilberto Marxuach and Michael Chapski, but both will be honored as valedictorians of the Notre Dame Class of 1988.

For the first time in more than 10 years, Notre Dame will have co-valedictorians, said Sister John Miriam Jones, associate provost.

Marxuach, a senior Program of Liberal Studies major from Puerto Rico, maintained a 3.986 grade point average through seven semesters of study at Notre Dame. Chapski, a senior English major from Elgin, Ill., held a 3.985 at the end of seven semesters.

Each student earned A's in all courses but one, said Jones. Both Chapski and Marxuach received an A- in the same course, she said. However, Marxuach took seven more credit hours than Chapski and thus has the higher GPA, said Jones.

"In order that equity would be served," said Jones, they were both named valedictorian.

The Observer: It's everyone's newspaper

A lot of my friends and classmates ask me questions like these about The Observer:

"So, you work for The Observer. What do you do?"

"I've always wanted to get involved. What could I do?"

The latter is not an easy question to answer. As a business that is open 20 hours a day and employs more than 200 students, The Observer is more than just a bunch of people who like to write. The Observer offers something for everyone.

The following is a day in the life of The Observer. It will help some decide where they would fit in best, and it will give others a general idea of exactly what goes on behind the scenes.

8 a.m.: The Observer offices open for the day. During the morning and afternoon, the business portion of the paper is handled. Bills are sent to advertisers, checks are processed, phone calls are made to advertisers, etc.

10 a.m.: The Observer that was produced the day before arrives. 10,000 copies are distributed to various places around campus.

1 p.m.: The day editor arrives. The day editor assigns stories to reporters and helps people who have questions about the paper.

3 p.m.: The ad design crew begins work. Most of the ads in the newspaper require design and make-up by The Observer staff.

3:30 p.m.: The office begins to get really busy around this time. Reporters come in to write stories, and editors arrive to answer messages, make calls, check on the progress of their sections and help out reporters. Typists also arrive to type campus events, letters to the editor, etc. (Reporters are required to type their own stories).

4 p.m.: The Viewpoint copy editor arrives to copy-edit the Viewpoint columns and letters. The Accent copy editor begins the Accent page.

5 p.m.: The assistant Viewpoint editor begins the production of the Viewpoint section. Headlines are written, copy is chosen and the pages are designed.

6 p.m.: The Viewpoint layout person arrives to lay out the Viewpoint section. The afternoon typesetter arrives to typeset the copy that has been copy-edited thus far. The assistant news editor, sports copy editor and news copy editor arrive and begin to copy-edit and design their sections for the next day.

7:30 p.m.: The Accent section has been completed. The Accent layout person arrives to lay out the section. The afternoon typesetter leaves.

9 p.m.: By this time, the editors that arrived at six have enough of their sections completed to begin layout. The layout of the paper is undertaken by a design editor and an assistant design editor; however, they are sometimes assisted by a layout staff. The evening typesetter, the photographer and the artists begin work.

Chris Donnelly

From here until the finish, there are no set times. Many factors will influence the time the paper is completed. Late-breaking stories, equipment problems, a lot of copy to edit, etc. can all contribute to a later completion time. A 16 page paper will be finished around two in the morning.

5 a.m.: This is when the paper is picked up to be printed. In other words, this is our absolute deadline. The actual printing is the only part of the process students do not take part in.

All the editors stay until their sections are completed. Because this can make for some pretty late nights, there is a different staff every night. There are some, however, who spend every day working on the paper. These people sometimes spend more than 40 hours per week working at the newspaper.

Hopefully, this has helped answer some of your questions (if you had any) about The Observer. If something interests you, or if you have any questions, feel free to come by the offices and ask.

Crisis ends, U.S. holds maneuvers

Associated Press

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras - U.S. troops sent here for emergency training exercises will stay on to complete the maneuvers, a U.S. military spokesman said Tuesday, although Honduras says its border crisis with Nicaragua is over.

"Right now the plans are to make it a 10-to-14-day exercise. We have not received any directive as to when to begin redeployment," said U.S. spokesman Maj. Gary Hovatter in a telephone interview.

He said exercises were taking place Tuesday at four sites.

President Reagan ordered 3,200 American troops to Honduras last week at the request of President Jose Azcona Hoyo, who had accused Sandinista soldiers from neighboring Nicaragua of penetrating Honduran territory in pursuit of U.S.-supported Contra rebels. President Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua denied his troops were in Honduras. Last week Honduran jets twice bombed Nicaraguan positions to force them to leave. No casualties were reported.

Honduran Foreign Minister Carlos Lopez Contreras said in an interview Tuesday that the border tension "has virtually disappeared" after both the Sandinistas and the Contras suspended hostilities and began truce talks.

The three days of negotiations began Monday in the small southern Nicaraguan town of Sapoa, near the Costa Rican border. The talks aim mainly at reaching a cease-fire so that both sides can strike a permanent peace accord in their 7-year-old war.

The dispatch of the U.S. troops bolstered the American military presence in Honduras to about 6,000 servicemen. The Reagan administration billed it as both a show of support for Azcona and a warning to the Sandinistas against further actions in the border region.

HPC reviews first constitutional outline of its powers and duties

By JIM LANG
News Staff

Copies of the new constitution of the undergraduate student body proposed by the Student Senate were distributed for review at Tuesday night's Hall Presidents' Council meeting.

HPC Co-Chairman Tim Salmon said there were no substantial revisions from last year's constitution, except the powers and duties of the HPC are included for the first time this year.

Overall, though, Salmon said the constitution basically consisted of "cosmetic changes approved by the senate, and no revisions affect the Hall Presidents' Council. I see no problems with it passing."

In other business, Brian McCarthy, press secretary for the Mock Convention, told the council that the convention will be held from April 11 to 14 in the Stepan Center.

McCarthy said invitations had been extended to all presidential candidates, and that the possibility of personal appearances from democratic candidates Mike Dukakis and Jesse Jackson was "very good."

Pangborn President Liam Canny announced that the Pangborn Cup scramble golf tournament will be held Saturday, March 26, starting at 8 a.m.

All dorms will be permitted to enter one four-person team to compete for the Pangborn Cup. The first-place trophy will be housed in the winning dorm each year.

Other prizes include cardigan sweaters bearing the tournament logo and gift certificates to local restaurants.

HPC Co-Chairman Bob Daley announced that nominations were being accepted for the council's Rector of the Year Award. Rectors are nominated by their hall president, and a six-person committee from the council then chooses from the nominees.

Daley said the committee will be looking for "activities in the hall, University and community, plus whatever exceptional traits the rector might have."

Alumni Hall President Mike Napier spoke to the council concerning Domestock '88, an event sponsored by Alumni Hall, in conjunction with An Tostal. Five bands will be selected by a panel of judges to play at the event, held from 5 to 9 p.m. on Friday, April 22.

Bands interested in participating are encouraged to contact Steve Burke or Paul Czarnecki as soon as possible.

"The Best Man," a play sponsored by Cavanaugh Hall to benefit the Andy Sowder Scholarship Fund, will run Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the Hesburgh Library auditorium, according to Cavanaugh President Chris Lee.

Admission to the play is free, but donations to the fund will be accepted after the performance, Lee said.

when he arrived on campus Sunday night. He also said that a mass would be held in the hall for McNeil.

Mrs. McNeil said her family was hoping to bring Tom home today. "A few weeks' rest, and he should be OK," she said.

McNeil was the first college student of the year involved in a major accident on South Padre Island, Stetar said. He also said that, while several students have usually been seriously injured in break-related accidents by late March, "this year has been a pretty low year for accidents" of that nature.

Girl taken for a wild flight after plane snags her kite

Associated Press

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. - Little DeAndrea Anrig was flying her kite when it suddenly started to fly her, her parents say. It was just a short hop, but one the 8-year-old isn't likely to forget.

A twin-engine plane caught the 200-pound nylon test line of DeAndrea's kite and carried her about 100 feet - over her daddy's head and almost into a tree, she said Tuesday.

She let go, but said she was still sore after two days' rest. The plane, meanwhile, is grounded because of damage apparently caused by getting tangled in the kite string.

DeAndrea and her parents, who live in the East Bay community of Dublin, were picnicking with friends at the Shoreline Park about 30 miles south of San Francisco and about two miles from the Palo Alto Airport Sunday and taking turns flying a glider-type kite with a 12-foot wingspan.

While it was DeAndrea's turn, a plane snagging for the airport snags the line, her parents said.

"She said it was just a big jerk that lifted her into the air," said DeAndrea's mother, Debby. "It carried her right over my husband's head. All he saw was a shadow going over his head. I'm just thankful she let go."

"We always said, 'Hold on tight. Don't let go, honey,'" the mother said, recalling their advice on proper kite-flying technique.

DeAndrea said she was doing just that, until she saw what was looming in front of her. "I thought that I was gonna hit a tree," she said.

Asked what she thought about during her brief flight, DeAndrea said, "I wasn't thinking anything but how scared I was."

Mountain View Fire Marshal Frank Moe said the child was dragged for about 100 feet before letting go. Moe did not see the incident, but quoted from a report filed by investigating officers.

The girl spent a couple of days at home following Sunday afternoon's mishap, resting on an air mattress and surrounded by soothing ice packs and two of her favorite stuffed animals. Neighbors delivered cupcakes to cheer her up.

Lenore Deaville, a pilot, was at the airport watching a friend make her first solo flight. She said the pilot of the twin-engine Rockwell Turbo Commander, Jake Uranga of Reno, told her that "he was at 800 feet doing about 140 knots (160 mph) when this thing came at him."

Noriega offers to talk, people continue strike

Associated Press

PANAMA CITY, Panama - Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega's opponents scorned what they called a cynical offer to negotiate his resignation and kept Panama shut down Tuesday with a general strike intended to force him out.

An estimated 90 percent of offices and industries were shut by the strike, which appeared to be gaining support on its second day. Most shops and stores were closed, public transportation was halted and many government employees did not go to work.

Panama is out of cash because of pressure from the United States to force the ouster of Noriega, who is the real power in Panama as commander of its 15,000 soldiers and police. The U.S. dollar is the national currency, and the supply has been cut off.

Most government workers were paid only $75 of their mid-month wages last week, and the $33 million end of the month payroll for the 130,000 public employees probably won't be met. Pension checks due Wednesday have been delayed, at least until March 28.

Hunger is spreading among workers as well as the poor, unemployed and elderly. Many washerwomen, cleaning women, maids and cooks have lost their jobs because there is no money with which to pay them.

Manuel Solis Palma, the civilian Noriega chose to run the government, said on television Monday night the general would resign in exchange for "a national dialogue" to reconcile differences with opponents of the regime. He prefaced the offer with a diatribe against the United States.

The implication was that Noriega, under federal court indictment in Florida on narcotics and money laundering charges, would stay in Panama and might retain power behind the scenes.

Shamir opposes U.S. plan of peace

Associated Press

JERUSALEM - Thousands of Israelis mobbed Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir Tuesday as he returned from a U.S. visit and cheered him for his firm opposition to an American peace plan.

The army said troops shot and killed a Palestinian man in a clash Monday night, bringing the Arab death toll to 107 in 15 weeks of protests in the occupied territories, according to U.N. figures. The Israeli army has suffered one fatality.

At least three more protesters were wounded in clashes, and a Palestinian who allegedly collaborated with Israeli authorities was shot and killed by fellow Arabs, Palestinian reports said.

Returning from a week-long visit that included talks with President Reagan and Secretary of State George P. Shultz, Shamir said U.S. officials had set no deadlines for Israel to accept the plan.

"No one demanded anything from us," he told reporters at Tel Aviv's Ben Gurion airport. "It all depends on us."

Shamir also hinted Shultz was considering a return to the Middle East in another attempt to defuse Israeli-Palestinian tensions.

Asher Naim, the information minister at the Israeli Embassy in Washington, said Shultz will travel to the Middle East in two weeks to continue negotiating for acceptance of his regional peace plan. State Department spokesman Charles Redman said Tuesday that Shultz had not yet decided to return.

South Africa's capital, Pretoria, for approval. "Every time I talk to (the consulate), they haven't heard from Pretoria."

Schadek's mother called the South African embassy in Washington, D.C., and the offices of Ohio Sen. Howard Metzenbaum and Rep. Mike Oxley in an attempt to assist her son in his efforts. She was told obtaining a visa would be difficult because of the current tensions and relationship between the American and South African governments.

An assistant of Tutu was Schadek's contact in South Africa. "This doesn't surprise me in this current totalitarian state," he told Schadek.

One Notre Dame student who traveled to South Africa as a high school student agreed the purpose of the visit is important to the government.

"When I went over the first time, my visa was a study visa," the student said. "I studied the whole year. That's how come I could have the visa," she said.

"The second time I went on a visitor visa, and I gave the name of my friend and the address, they gave me the visa right away," she said. "I assumed that they checked out my friend and saw that she was not politically active or they just assumed so."

Despite the setback, Schadek still wants to go to South Africa "now more than ever." Because of the delay, he may have to change the dates on his visa. "Now I'm making contingent plans to go in May," he said.

"I don't think there's too much anyone can do... basically it's waiting for Pretoria," said Schadek.

The last time Notre Dame graduated co-valedictorians, both were permitted to deliver abbreviated speeches, said Jones. The situation turned out to be a "disaster," she said.

This year, due to his higher GPA, Marxuach will deliver the valedictory speech at the commencement ceremony, said Jones.

Marxuach was satisfied with the decision and said, "It would have been unfair" to name only one valedictorian in this situation.

Chapski said "It is a great honor," to be named valedictorian and was "not at all upset," about not delivering the valedictory.

Both Marxuach and Chapski felt the sacrifices over four years were worth the honor of being named valedictorian.

Marxuach said, "It required some hard work," but was "mostly a matter of keeping things in perspective." "I had to give up lot," said Chapski, but "I worked hard, and I played hard and I have no regrets."

Catholic Alumni Club reception

Dear Editor:

Have you noticed the yellow bunnies popping up on bulletin boards on campus?

The bunnies are an invitation to single faculty, staff, graduate students and seniors to become acquainted with the Catholic Alumni Club. CAC is, I believe, the largest national organization for single Catholics. CAC is a membership club without a political agenda. It provides social, athletic, cultural, religious, travel and community service opportunities for members.

A reception at the University Club is planned for Thursday, March 24. If you are interested in CAC but cannot attend the reception, please drop a note to CAC, P.O. Box 38, Notre Dame, Indiana 46556.

Group demands troop recall

Dear Editor:

Pax Christi-Notre Dame deplores the Reagan administration's unilateral decision to deploy United States military personnel into Honduras. We sincerely doubt that peaceful solutions to the Nicaraguan civil war are being adequately pursued by the United States.

We are not so naive as to believe that the issues involved are simple. Though Pax Christi strongly objects to Nicaraguan troops crossing the Honduran border in pursuit of Contra forces, we do not consider this temporary intrusion into Honduras a justification for escalating United States involvement in the Nicaraguan civil war. The deployment of U.S. troops is an act which will inevitably cause the Nicaraguan people increased suffering. The Reagan administration refers to its action as one that sends a message to the Sandinista government. We agree, there is a message being sent. The message is that the United States is willing to support (as it has) as well as directly engage in war before peaceful solutions have been exhausted. To this, we strongly object.

What we do believe is that a perspective needs to be taken which leads in a new direction. This new perspective is one that attempts to see the circumstances from the point of view of the Nicaraguan people. This new direction calls for empathy and increased understanding. It sees that communism is not our natural enemy, but that the enemy is totalitarian regimes of the left and right who trample human dignity and cause great suffering.

Pax Christi believes in human progress that is linked to global cooperation and the faithful pursuit of peaceful solutions to conflicts. "The whole human race faces a moment of supreme crisis in its advance towards maturity," says the Second Vatican Council on its treatment of warfare. We believe maturity calls for the president to reverse his order by recalling military personnel and aid to the Contras. Pax Christi also believes that it is this maturity which urges its members, as well as all the members of the Notre Dame community, to write their representatives in Congress to protest this rash policy.

ND community includes SMC

Dear Editor:

I am writing in response to John Coughlin's letter in the March 10 issue. I would like to address his statement, "groups not associated with the University, namely Saint Mary's College students..." He is sadly mistaken if he thinks Saint Mary's College is not associated with the University of Notre Dame.

Students are eligible to enroll in classes on both campuses. A large number of joint (Saint Mary's and Notre Dame) academic, social, spiritual and athletic clubs share funds and facilities. Where would the Keenan Revue, Graham Chapman, and several An Tostal events be without the support of the Saint Mary's community (not to mention our facilities)?

We as Saint Mary's students do not consider ourselves to be Notre Dame students. We look upon it as a privilege to be able to purchase student football and basketball tickets as well as to receive student tickets to the president's address at the Knute Rockne Stamp Dedication. While Saint Mary's College or the University of Notre Dame is each strong enough to stand on its own, for several decades students from both campuses have chosen to participate in and support the Saint Mary's/Notre Dame community as a whole. This joint community has a great deal to offer to all.

I have been involved in student government for four years, giving me the opportunity to extend as well as receive support from the University of Notre Dame. The efforts of working together have resulted in many educating and enjoyable experiences. I hope within the next three years Mr. Coughlin will have the same opportunity to reap the benefits of both campuses.

My advice to Mr. Coughlin is to open his eyes and take a look at the statement that appears underneath The Observer title on the front page of the paper every day. It states, "The independent newspaper serving Notre Dame and Saint Mary's." Can he now tell me Saint Mary's students are not associated with the University of Notre Dame?

Rockne more than an ND hero

Dear Editor:

In response to the past letters of Kathryn Pirrotta and John Coughlin, I feel that these letters were very selfish. Both letters were in response to being turned away from the Knute Rockne ceremony. I am sorry that both of them were unable to attend, but Miss Pirrotta and Mr. Coughlin seem to have missed the whole point of why Knute Rockne was chosen to be on a commemorative stamp.

Knute Rockne was chosen to be on a United States commemorative stamp because he was an American hero, not just a hero of Notre Dame. The name of Knute Rockne is known beyond the limits of the University of Notre Dame. In order to have the honor of being placed on such a stamp, one must affect the entire country. The University of Notre Dame is just a small part of this country. Miss Pirrotta and Mr. Coughlin seem to have thought that Knute Rockne was being honored simply because he was from the University of Notre Dame.

Since Knute Rockne was admired and loved by many Americans, his stamp dedication ceremony was opened to his closest fans, the people of Notre Dame, Saint Mary's and South Bend. Knute Rockne's daughter graduated from Saint Mary's College in 1941. While coaching at Notre Dame, Rockne's family lived in the South Bend community. It was unfortunate that more Americans could not attend. Knute Rockne is part of America's history, not just Notre Dame's, and he should be accordingly shared.

The University of Notre Dame should be honored to be associated with such a hero but should also remember that he belongs to all America. Knute Rockne is not just the legend of Notre Dame, but he is also the legend of the American Dream. Thus, limiting the crowd to only those people at Notre Dame would have been limiting the American Dream.

Donators thanked for generosity

Dear Editor:

One month ago you were kind enough to publish my request for assistance to the parents of Richie Teders, the 13-year-old boy who died of AIDS on Jan. 8. The response from the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's community has been overwhelming.

I had originally hoped to raise a few hundred dollars for the Teders family, and the fund to date has $1,800 in it. The Saint Mary's students have been particularly generous in their response to this cause. Student government, individual classes and dorms all donated generously after actively soliciting contributions, and The Special Collection Fund of Campus Ministry also responded to my request with a sizeable check.

For my caring, for your giving, for your incredible generosity, let me simply say "thank you."

Museum brings Studebakers to life

SARAH VOIGT
accent writer

What images does the Studebaker name evoke? Most people associate the Studebaker name with antiquated, grand cars seen in old movies. Some may know that the Studebaker Automobile Company was headquartered here in South Bend from the early 1920s until 1963.

What most people do not know is that the Studebaker Company became involved with such varied ventures as the popular television show "Mr. Ed", a car named after Knute Rockne, and United States army trucks manufactured for both World Wars. The Studebaker National Museum, located in two sites in downtown South Bend, attempts to highlight the diversified interests of the Studebaker family as well as to trace the evolution of the automobile industry.

The portion of the Studebaker National Museum located in the Century Center on St. Joseph Street displays the company's products in a historical frame of reference. This "interpretive museum" uses life-size murals, original advertisements for some of the first cars ever built, an 1874 map of downtown South Bend and assorted nostalgia in order to place the cars in the proper historical perspective.

The Studebaker Company can trace the origins of its thriving automobile industry to 1830 when John Studebaker designed the first Studebaker model—a handmade wagon. Later, at the turn of the century, the Studebakers experimented with electric cars. Imagine having to stop every 50 miles to recharge your car's batteries and to only be able to travel at a mere 15 miles per hour!

The display at Century Center includes the original Flanders model, the first car manufactured in South Bend in 1920, and continues through the Daytona, the last car produced before the company declared bankruptcy in 1963.

This learning resource, however, does not focus solely on the products of its namesake company. Since a main goal of the museum is to portray the industrial heritage of northern Indiana, the collection represents all of the major industries and companies that operated in South Bend in the early 1900s. Consequently, Singer sewing machines, Bendro washers, and Oliver plows are exhibited among the car models.

The other half of the Studebaker National Museum is the Archives Center on South Lafayette Boulevard. This facility displays 60 to 80 Studebaker vehicles, including old wagons, buggies, the carriages of four United States presidents and many army trucks.

This building also houses the company archives which include many personal family documents, advertising literature, posters and films. These films include the Hollywood movie "The Studebaker Story" as well as episodes of the Studebaker sponsored television show "Mr. Ed."

Thomas E. Brubaker, the director of the museum, explains how even Knute Rockne helped endorse a model bearing his name in the 1930s. "In the archives we recently found a 12-inch record of Rockne's sales pitch for the model. We also uncovered some photos of Rockne's players pushing the car for an advertisement."

The impact of the museum's historical treasures extend beyond Rockne's humorous endeavors outside of the football stadium. Brubaker explains, "These documents form a microcosm of the industrial age. They provide detailed corporate records and legal papers that trace the progression of a famous American

Interesting questions arise after visiting the Studebaker National Museum. For example, why did the Studebakers choose South Bend as the site of a large automobile plant? Brubaker believes that the area's abundant water and lumber supplies, as well as its geographic position as a gateway to the west, made South Bend an attractive place for headquarters.

Why did the company declare bankruptcy in 1963? "Ironically, the company had just introduced the Avanti and two other of its most successful models when it was shut down," Brubaker says. Unlike today, it was not the foreign competition in the 1950s that ruined the company but the larger American car manufacturers. Brubaker states, "The Studebaker Company could just not compete with the 'big three' of the American auto industry: Chrysler, Ford and General Motors."

The Studebaker National Museum's interpretive approach and historical perspective aim to bring the automobile industry to life. This museum is open from 10-4:30 on Tuesdays through Fridays, from 10-4 on Saturdays and from 12-4 on Sundays.

Shoulder pads: is 'hip' fashion really worth it?

"Are those yours?"

That's a comment often heard from men as they glance at a woman's shoulders, squeeze them, and ask again. Rarely are they really hers. More often than not, shoulder pads are her secret.

fashion statements just like any other accessory. However, shoulder pads can also be fashion dilemmas.

How do they work? Most use the velcro method. This enables the pads to be removed for cleaning purposes, and also enables the Cleaning shirts with thread-enforced pads is another problem. A shoulder pad doesn't usually take very kindly to a washing machine, to any water for that matter. Soaked through, the pads refuse to maintain their shape. They get all twisted around themselves and turn into little balls. (Then they are only good for throwing at your roommate.) Likewise, it seems that thread is not sufficient when you finish a load of wash and find three swingin' single shoulder adornments in the bottom of the washer.

These miniscule maintenance problems could be lived with if one truly enjoys wearing shoulder pads and being "in." But, most of the hassles of shoulder pads pop up while wearing them. I have three strange but true stories to share with you, all of which I personally witnessed.

The first happened to me last fall. I have this black, long-sleeved T-shirt style shirt that has shoulder pads. I always detached the pads when washing the shirt and put them in my drawer until I wore the shirt again. One day, I could not find both pads. Two days later, I found the other while standing at the salad bar.

You see, I also keep my scarves in that drawer and the pad had velcroed itself to one of my wool scarves. So, there I stood over the peanut butter, having felt something hit m the back when I was walking, and I had this black shoulder pad hanging from my navy blue scarf. Faux Pas Number One.

The second encounter also occurred at the dining hall. Sitting at lunch with a group of people, we were all casually reading the paper and listening to the jackhammers when one girl started feeling her lower arm and had a funny look on her face. Abracadabra and voila! Out of her sleeve she pulled a shoulder pad which had magically disengaged itself! Faux Pas Number Two.

Faux Pas Number Three happened at a dance earlier this semester. There was a girl dressed in a dark skirt and a big white blouse. Thoroughly enjoying herself, it seemed, she was ubiquitous on the dance floor. She danced to every song in a long set and left no holds barred. While I was dancing, I happened to glance down at the floor and saw a lone white shoulder pad left there, like a living memorial to the girl's free spirit.

I don't think the shoulder pad was ever claimed. I think it was just danced upon and tossed aside. The girl may not have realized until the end of the evening that she was missing something. But, like I mentioned above, if her other blouses or sweaters had had some encounters with washing machines or defective velcro, she probably wasn't too worried.

It's kind of like all those mismatched socks that get paired up when the machines or St. Michael's need a fix. You can usually find a pretty close match, and if it's not that close, like different colored stripes on tube socks, who ever really notices?

Mary Berger

Back in the Highlife

Shoulder pads are found in all types of women's clothes: blouses and blazers, sweaters and sweatshirts. They are one of those hip-fashion-hot-in-the-80s kinds of things. Sitting in a fern bar, sipping a Corona and sporting broad shoulders, you are definitely in.

Why the fascination with exaggerated shoulder lines? Some may say it's male envy. By adding some padding, we can cheaply and easily alter part of our appearances to look like men, to get a little closer to understanding that masculine mystique.

Fashion gurus, however, note the attractive lines which shoulder pads create. Slaves to fashion that we all are, we blindly follow their advice and agree that the inverted triangle-bold shoulders and trim waist-is the only answer.

OK, so shoulder pads are hip pads to be mixed and matched. (More details and why there might be a need for mismatched pads later.)

First let me air a grievance I have with all of those designers who refuse to go with the velcro and instead choose to tack in the pads with a few stitches on each end. This just does not work very well.

Sometimes one half of the pad will come loose so that it is literally hanging by a thread. So then you've got this shoulder pad that never really stays on your shoulder. If it is still tacked near your neck, then the pad flops down either on your chest or on your back. Lumps aren't attractive. If the pad is still tacked near your arm, then it flops down into your sleeve and you look pretty lopsided. This is fashion?

Kite hopeful after defeat, looks to Championships

Associated Press

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. - It could have been a downer for Tom Kite.

"I had my chances. I just wasn't able to do it," he said of the last-round bid that was blunted by Paul Azinger last Sunday in the Bay Hill Classic.

On the back nine, Kite twice closed to within one shot of the lead before Azinger pulled away to a five-stroke victory.

"It would be easy to walk away with your head down, feeling despondent," Kite said.

"But that serves no useful purpose.

"I'm looking at it as a positive," he said before a practice round for the $1.25 million Players Championship that begins Thursday on the tour's home course, the TPC at Sawgrass.

"Obviously, I'm doing something right. I had an excellent chance to win. It was just not to be," Kite said. "When you go against a man with a one-shot lead and he shoots 66, he probably was supposed to win."

"I'm looking forward to the next couple of weeks, or the next two tournaments I'm playing, the Players Championship and the Masters," Kite said.

In the re-named Players Championship (formerly the Tournament Players Championship), he faces the strongest field of the year in an event that grows annually in prestige.

The tournament, developed by PGA tour Commissioner Deane Beman, is designed as the annual championship of golf's touring pros. It is no secret Beman aims for so-called "major" status; that is, placing the Players Championship on a level with the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the PGA.

Keith Hernandez and Darryl Strawberry are looking to lead the heavily-favored New York Mets back atop the National League East this season. A preview of that division is on page 13.

Boilermakers need more than scoring

Associated Press

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. - Purdue's season-record .534 shooting percentage might not mean much in the huge and unfamiliar Silverdome, so rebounding is even more important in Friday night's NCAA game with Kansas State, Coach Gene Keady said Tuesday.

The third-ranked Boilermakers, who manhandled the Wildcats 101-72 in December, are expecting a tougher time in their rematch at Pontiac, Mich., in the Midwest Regional semifinals.

Vanderbilt plays Kansas in the other semifinal.

"In the dome, the shooting may not be as effective, so you'd better get some second and third shots," said Keady. "We think that will be very important in this game."

Purdue's top rebounders are senior forward Todd Mitchell and junior center Melvin McCants, both under six rebounds a game. Right behind them is senior guard Troy Lewis, the team's leading scorer at 17.8 points and 4.6 rebounds and the top gunner with at least one 3-point goal in each of the past 65 games.

McCants, who averaged 13.7 points during the regular season, has shown steady improvement in the middle, scoring a career-high 26 points against Fairleigh Dickinson and 20 against Memphis State in the Boilermakers' two tourney victories so far.

"He's just a young man, but now his years of playing and his maturity are paying off," Keady said of the 6-foot-9 McCants. "He's got the experience like the seniors, and he has the confidence and the other players are confident in him."

"It's one of those things that happen," Keady said of McCants' sudden emergence. "He has arrived at that level. Hopefully he can keep it going. He's a deserving young man because he's worked very hard."

Kansas State Coach Lon Kruger, who joined Keady on a teleconference call, said the biggest difference in the Wildcats since their earlier game at Purdue was in an altered lineup.

Purdue's leading scorer, Troy Lewis, tries to move around a Michigan State defender earlier this season. Lewis and the Boilermakers are devising strategy for their Sweet 16 matchup with Kansas State this week. A related story is at left.

mark for the Irish by defeating Shelin Ohlsson 7-6 (7-2), 6-4 at number two singles. No doubles matches were played.

Next on the schedule for the Irish was their host, UNLV. Unfortunately, the Rebels were in no mood to entertain their guests, cruising to a 6-1 win.

Kim Pacella ruined UNLV's shot at a shutout, posting a 6-4, 3-6, 6-4 victory over Anna Castanecki at number four singles.

The Irish faced Alabama on Wednesday, losing 2-7 in their first match ever against the Crimson Tide.

Although the Notre Dame women dropped all six singles events, they managed to capture two of the three doubles matches played.

Lohrer and Illig beat Beth Marrow and Thayer 6-3, 6-4 at number two, while Uhl and Bradshaw stormed past Molly Fiuk and Susan Sherman 6-1, 6-2.

The magic returned for the Irish in Friday's match against Princeton. Notre Dame's 6-3 victory over the Tigers reflected the manner in which the team has come together throughout the season.

Cahill defeated Hilary Shane 6-3, 6-3 at number one singles. Dasso beat Lisa Nyman 6-2, 6-3 at the number two position, Pacella edged Susie Wertheimer 7-6 (7-3), 3-6, 6-0 at number four, and Illig emerged victorious over Aditi Viswarathan 0-6, 6-2, 7-5 at number five.

In doubles competition, Cahill and Dasso combined to defeat Lauren Fortgang and Viswarathan 7-6 (7-5), 6-4 in the number one position. Lohrer and Illig beat Shane and Wertheimer 7-6 (7-5), 3-6, 6-3 at number two doubles.

The trip came to a close on Saturday, when Notre Dame dropped its match to Utah 7-2.

Cahill powered by Michelle Myas 6-1, 7-5 at number one singles, and the tandem of Illig and Lohrer put away Natalie Newell and Kristin Siegmund 6-4, 6-3 to post the only marks for the Irish against the Utes. All in all, coach Michelle Gelfman was pleased with the team's spring performance.

showing the poise Bayliss had been looking for. Notre Dame was sparked by the grueling doubles win of the tandem of Dave Reiter and Mike Wallace. Reiter and Wallace showed stamina and concentration, winning 6-7, 6-3, 6-3.

Harvard University was the next stop on the team trip. Bayliss knew Notre Dame would be heavy underdogs and was looking for an upset. It was St. Patrick's Day. The Irish were in Boston. Unfortunately all the luck in the world couldn't have helped the Irish, who were trounced 7-2. The surprise of the day came from freshmen Paul Odland. Odland stunned Harvard's Ken Hao in straight sets 6-3 7-6.

In the final match of the trip Notre Dame went to West Point and crushed Army, 8-1. The Irish are definitely an indoor team and played a powerful match, led again by Kalbas as well as captain Dan Walsh.

ND wrestlers 37th in NCAA tourney

By STEVE MEGARGEE
Assistant Sports Editor

Things did not work out quite the way the way the Notre Dame wrestling team was hoping at last week's NCAA Championships.

Hoping to place in the top 20, the Irish finished 37th in the national championships, held at Ames, Ia. Of the six Notre Dame wrestlers who qualified for the NCAA's, only Jerry Durso and Chris Geneser won a match.

"I was disappointed," said Irish coach Fran McCann. "I felt we had the team to get in the top 20. We had enough people there qualifying. In order to place in the top 20, we'd have had to have a couple of people to place and have some other people help by winning some matches."

Durso and Geneser were the only wrestlers who came relatively close to placing in the tournament. Durso, the junior co-captain seeded third in the nation among 134-pounders, won his first two matches.

But after defeating Anibal Nieves of East Stroudsburg (default) and John Viola of Virginia 9-3, Durso fell to Northwestern's Joe Bales in a controversial 2-0 match. Bales eventually placed fifth in the tournament.

"Jerry ran into a little bad luck," said McCann. "He lost a really tough one. There were a couple of questionable officiating calls."

Any further hopes Durso had of placing were squelched when he lost to Oklahoma's T.J. Sewell by a 9-4 count in the consolation round.

"He beat him (Sewell) earlier in the year, and he was up 5-2 with 20 seconds left," said McCann. "He got taken down to his back, and it cost him the match. He was in control up to that point."

Geneser, a junior seeded seventh in the 177-pound division, began with an impressive 18-6 victory over Rick Evans of Brigham Young. In the next round, however, Purdue's Joe Urso toppled Geneser 5-2 in overtime after the two had wrestled to a 7-7 tie at the end of regulation. Virginia's Derek Capanna defeated Geneser 13-9 in the consolation round.

"Geneser didn't perform to his potential," said McCann. "He had beaten him (Urso) by 10 points earlier in the year. He made too many mental mistakes. If he'd won that match, he would have been in the driver's seat to place."

Notre Dame's other four qualifiers, including 119-pound sophomore Andy Radenbaugh, 142-pound senior co-captain Ron Wisniewski, 150-pound freshman Todd Layton and 158-pound freshman Mark Gerardi, were not able to win a match.

"Ron Wisniewski had the experience, but he didn't look really good," said McCann. "Our younger kids wrestled like freshmen. They didn't

Despite the less than spectacular finish, McCann expressed satisfaction with the season, which saw the Irish post a 6-6 record that included a win over a nationally-ranked Nebraska squad.

"We wanted to get a lot of kids into nationals and be competitive with some of the top teams in the country, and we did that with a young team," said McCann. "We've got a lot to look forward to next season."

N.Y. Mets are cream of the crop in NL East

Associated Press

PORT ST. LUCIE, Fla. — Jack Clark is in Yankee pinstripes, the Mets are favored to win the East, and the Expos and Pirates are moving up on the outside.

It's just another pennant race for Whitey Herzog.

The Cardinals and Manager Herzog took advantage of the Mets decimated pitching staff and mangled morale in 1987 to win the National League East for the third time this decade. And, St. Louis won despite several key injuries of their own.

Now, they must overcome the loss of Clark, who signed as a free agent with the New York Yankees.

The Cardinals scored 5.2 runs per game with Clark in the lineup, 3.6 runs without him.

But Herzog will adjust — he usually does.

"I think we might surprise some people. I hate to lose Jack (Clark), just like everybody else does, but I think we can be better pitching-wise to make up for a lot of it. I don't think that we would hit like we did last year even if Jack was here," Herzog said.

For a power source, the Cardinals signed free agent Bob Horner.

Horner, who played in Japan last season, will play first and the Cards need him to stay healthy.

"Potentially, we've got a chance to be a very good ball club," Herzog said. "But we may have to approach it a little different than we did last year. We may have to win more low-run ball games."

To stay on top, Herzog made improving the starting rotation his primary goal and he says the Cards accomplished that with the acquisition of Jose DeLeon from the Chicago White Sox for reliever Rick Horton and outfielder Lance Johnson.

The Mets have the best talent in the division and will be hard to beat. But they also have shown cracks in the bullpen and defense at second and third. They also have a potentially explosive atmosphere in the clubhouse.

Montreal, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia all can score runs, and the Expos have put together one of the better pitching staffs in baseball. The Chicago Cubs have woeful pitching but can score runs.

New York Mets

The rotation of Dwight Gooden, Ron Darling, Bob Ojeda, Sid Fernandez and Rick Aguilera is healthy and will make the Mets hard to beat if it stays that way.

The Mets finished three games behind the Cardinals last season and the difference was the New York bullpen.

The Mets lost six times in 1987 after taking the lead into the ninth inning. New York needs Roger McDowell to return to his 1986 form. Randy Myers takes over for Jesse Orosco as the No. 1 left-handed reliever. Myers throws very hard but has bouts of wildness.

The Mets led the league in hitting (.268) and runs scored (823) and that could improve if Keith Hernandez and Gary Carter rebound from subpar seasons.

Montreal Expos

The Expos were 28-14 in one-run games last season and 12-1 in extra inning games thanks to the best bullpen in baseball.

That wasn't suppose to happen.

Prior to last season, Montreal traded relief ace Jeff Reardon to Minnesota for starter Neal Heaton. Reardon had combined for 76 saves in 1985 and '86.

Manager Buck Rodgers took a page from Herzog's book, and put together a bullpen by committee: Tim Burke, Bob McClure, Andy McGaffigan, Jeff Parrett and Randy St. Claire.

The starters were shaky at the beginning of last season, but Dennis Martinez and Pascual Perez were signed and combined for an 18-4 record.

The Expos are strong at the corners with Andres Galarraga at first and Tim Wallach (26 homers, 123 RBI) at third.

St. Louis Cardinals

The Cardinals need big seasons from their starting rotation of John Tudor, Danny Cox, Joe Magrane, Jose DeLeon and Greg Mathews.

Tudor suffered a broken leg last April, but came back and finished 10-2 in 16 games.

Like the Expos, the Cards have lots of talent in the bullpen with Todd Worrell (33 saves) and Ken Dayley. Herzog may also add rookie Cris Carpenter to the pen.

The Cardinals have lost Clark, but still have the speed and defense of Ozzie Smith (ss), Terry Pendleton (3b) and Willie McGee and Vince Coleman in the outfield.

The key on offense will be improved production from catcher Tony Pena (.214) and outfielder Jim Lindeman.

Pittsburgh Pirates

The Pirates have pitching, defense, hitting and speed. Power? No, but four out of five makes this team dangerous. Just ask the Mets.

The Pirates won 27 of their last 38 games including three of six from New York down the stretch.

Rookie Mike Dunne, who didn't pitch in the majors until June, finished 13-6 with a 3.03 ERA. he heads a staff of Doug Drabek, Brian Fisher and Bob Walk. General Manager Syd Thrift strenghtened the bullpen with the additions of Jim Gott (13 saves) and Jeff Robins.

Philadelphia Phillies

It's hard to hide poor starting pitching and the Phillies couldn't in 1987.

Although the rotation of Shane Rawley, Kevin Gross, Don Carman, and Bruce Ruffin were the only starting four in the NL who each threw for 200 innings in 1987, they were only a combined 50-52.

Steve Bedrosian, who played a part in 45 of the Phils' 80 victories, has struggled in spring training because of injuries.

The Phillies are strong at the top of the batting order with Milt Thompson, Juan Samuel, Von Hayes and Mike Schmidt. They have added outfielder Phil Bradley (14, homers, 67 RBI) in a trade that sent Glenn Wilson to Seattle and outfielder Mike Young (16 homers) from Baltimore.

Chicago Cubs

The Cubs made a major off-season move when they sent ace reliever Lee Smith (who last year notched 36 saves and four victories) to Boston for pitchers Al Nipper and Calvin Schiraldi.

New Manager Don Zimmer will probably have lots of different pitching rotations as the year progresses.

Rick Sutcliffe is No. 1. After that there's Nipper, Scott Sanderson, Les Lancaster, Greg Maddux, Jamie Moyer, and maybe Schiraldi.

Zimmer would like to see them just get out of the first inning. Overall, the Cubs trailed 44 times after one inning last year.

The Cubs were actually playing well last season until both second baseman Ryne Sandberg and shortstop Shawon Dunston went on the disabled list in June.

Jim Frey is the new general manager and he says the Cubs have loads of talent in the minors. First baseman Mark Grace is pushing Leon Durham at first and the catcher of the future is Damon Berryhill.

Jackson might not make Royals

Associated Press

HAINES CITY, Fla. -Bo and baseball. Will he make the choice, or will the Kansas City Royals?

"It's going to be a very tough decision," Manager John Wathan said. "We might risk losing him if Bo is sent to the minors. But we have to do what is best for the team."

More likely, Bo will do what Bo wants to do -just like he does on the football field.

There are some, and Wathan is among them, who believe Bo Jackson could become the greatest baseball player ever.

Others, including many who have seen Jackson flail at curves and misplay fly balls, aren't so sure.

Then there's Bo. He's not saying. Bo -he refers to himself in the third person, as in "Bo can be a funny guy" -is not talking this spring.

He says he is dedicating himself to baseball and wants to avoid any distractions.

Sound familiar? "He said he wasn't going to play football and then he did," Wathan said. "They offered him a ton of money and he doesn't come from a wealthy family."

"Hey, he changed his mind," Wathan said. "We all do that."

Except that when Jackson turned his attention to a new "hobby," he seemed to turn off baseball.

Jackson was batting .253 with 18 home runs and 45 RBI in 79 games when Los Angeles Raiders owner Al Davis signed him to a $7.6 million, five-year contract shortly before the All-Star break last year. After that, Jackson hit just .193 with four homers and eight RBI in 37 games.

"All of a sudden, he seemed to drift," teammate George Brett said. "He had good numbers in July and he didn't add much to it."

ND men go 3-2, get win over BC

By GEORGETRAVERS
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men's tennis team travelled east over break where they won three matches and lost two. The team is now 12-7.

It was an up-and-down week for Coach Bayliss and his squad. The biggest shock of the trip came Sunday when the Irish lost to Penn State 5-4. Bayliss was very disappointed in his team's play.

"It was our first road match of the season," said Bayliss, in his first year at Notre Dame, "and we did not adjust well. It was a real close match, one I thought we should have won."

Brian Kalbas was a bright spot against the Nittany Lions. He defeated Oliver Sebastian in straight sets 6-4, 6-4. Dave Reiter also came through with a three-set win.

Notre Dame next went to M.I.T. where they won 8-1. The Irish manhandled M.I.T. (Bayliss' old team) by winning every singles match in straight sets. Kalbas again sparkled in beating third team all-American Ron Spellman in three sets.

On Wednesday the Irish took on Boston College and came away with an impressive 5-4 win.

The Irish nipped the Eagles by winning several close matches and Women go west, come back 7-12

By FRANK PASTOR
Sports Writer

While many college students were riding the waves and absorbing the sun last week at Daytona Beach or South Padre Island, the Notre Dame women's tennis team was busy working the courts at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas.

The Irish netters won two of their six matches over spring break, running their record to 7-12 for the year.

The trip to Vegas got off to a fantastic start when the Irish stormed past Cal St.-Northridge 8-1, garnering their second win in two tries against its west coast opponent.

Notre Dame swept all six singles matches against Cal St.-Northridge. The Irish also dominated the doubles competition, grabbing two of three matches. Ce Ce Cahill and Michelle Dasso soundly defeated Conn and Kincaid 6-0, 6-4 at number one, and the team of Natalie Illig and Alice Lohrer beat Izmirian and Yandail 6-2, 7-6 in the number two doubles position. At number three, Jacqueline Uhl and Kim Pacella were outscored by Anderson and Gillis 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

Notre Dame had its hands full the following day, dropping its second match to Colorado this season, 1-5.

The team that has given Yves Auriol's Notre Dame women's fencing squad fits all year did more of the same Tuesday in Princeton, N.J.

Wayne State beat the Irish for the third time this season to capture the National Championship in team competition by a 9-6 score.

"Losing twice to Wayne State during the regular season, I'm happy we finished second in the country," Auriol said. "I thought we had a chance to win, but we didn't get very many breaks."

Irish men's coach Mike DeCicco said he also thought defending national champion Notre Dame could return with another team title.

"To think we were just a couple of touches away," DeCicco said. "It's a let-down to come so close and then fall short, but the girls did a great job just to be where they are. Their time will come."

The Irish won a pair of earlier matches Tuesday to advance to the final. They dumped Harvard 9-3 in the morning and then edged Temple on touches 8-8 (65-57).

"Without Janice Hynes (who was declared academically ineligible and missed much of the season), we put up a great fight," DeCicco said. "The four girls we went with really fencd well, and I can't possibly find fault with them."

Three-time All-American Molly Sullivan, juniors Brenda Leiser and Kristin Kralicek and sophomore Anne Barreda represented the Irish in the two-day team competition.

Sullivan and Barreda compete for individual honors today, and the men's team begins its quest for a national title Thursday.

"There's no question about it, Wayne State had to be a huge favorite," DeCicco said. "They've got a very strong team. I thought we were good enough to catch them, but we needed a couple more breaks."

"Overall, they (Wayne State) were the best team," Auriol added. "They deserved to win. In a team competition, you expect the best from all four of your athletes. I thought we could have fencd better, but we're pleased."

"We've got some high hopes in the individual competition and in the men's."

It's Bookstore Basketball time again

Almost just as quickly as the dorms filled up on Sunday afternoon with students and suitcases, the basketball courts at Stepan and the Bookstore began to fill up.

It's back and bigger than ever...Bookstore Basketball XVII.

Though the thermometer disagrees, the calendar says it's spring and that means that the population of Stepan Courts will most likely exceed that of the library, at least during the month-long, all-campus, all-weather tournament.

Each night as I glance toward Stepan on my return to Grace Hall it is evident that no hour is too late to be playing basketball on this campus as hoopsters sharpen, or simply pretend to sharpen, their skills as the days wind down to Bookstore's Opening Day.

The tournament will begin this Friday with the traditional Hall Of Fame game. The contest will feature Irish athletes Tim Brown, David Rivers and Tony Rice on one team, facing a squad called The Digger Phelps Fan Club and Five Other Guys. The game will be played at 4 p.m. on the courts behind the Bookstore.

Several other games will be played on that day as the preliminary rounds, which last until next Tuesday, narrow the field before the first official rounds begin and all teams see action.

The 1988 field is again the largest, with 666 teams, four more than last year. And no "Team No." whatever. Every team name was reviewed on the spot by the Bookstore staff of commissioners, headed by sophomore Mike Manning. Any team whose name passed by this board and was still found offensive by the S.U.B. Steering Committee were then called and asked to submit another name. Only a couple teams could not be reached for this change.

The NCAA runs its own tournament but we here at Notre Dame evidently don't like to play in that one, or at least for too long, so toss aside those 'Sweet 16' lists and head out to the courts to either play or watch.

Some of the top teams in this year's tourney feature Notre Dame varsity athletes of the present and the past. Suiing up for the Adworks All-Stars team will be Irish center Gary Voce and football linebacker Cedric Figaro, along with John 'Booger' Buscher, recipient of last year's Mr. Bookstore award for the outstanding player of the tournament.

Lou's 2 QB's and 2 Blind Guys will be led by, obviously, Lou Holtz' quarterback duo, Tony Rice and Kent Graham.

Half the fun of Bookstore is creating a team name and hearing all the others. And again this year, despite the quasi-censoring, Bookstore features some dandy names. Here are a few of the early favorites:

Career and Placement Rejects From Hell; No Guts, No Glory, No Defense; A Moccasin, Dan Jansen and Three Other Slippers; Five Guys Who Go To The Hole With Authority; 4 Reasons Why Playboy Voted Us No. 2 and The Reason We're Not No. 1; 5 Guys With A Suburban White Pump Fake; and Floor Laimbeer.
