Task forces release recommendations

By CHRIS MURPHY
Editor-in-Chief

The reports of four Notre Dame task forces have been completed and are expected to be distributed to the campus community today, according to Richard Conklin, director of public relations and information.

TASK FORCE REPORTS see pages 4-5

The task forces have studied four aspects of University life:

- Whole Health and the Use and Abuse of Alcohol
- Residentiality
- Marriage, Family and Other Life Commitments
- The Quality of Teaching in a Research University

The reports concerning marriage and teaching were not available at press time.

The reports of the task forces are only recommendations and not binding. The reports have been presented to University President Father Edward Malloy, Provost Timothy O'Meara and Vice President for Student Affairs Father David Tyson.

Malloy requested in the opening letter accompanying the reports that students direct comments to the administrator to whom the report was directed.

Malloy, O'Meara and Tyson appointed students, faculty and staff to the task forces last May.

The health task force concerned itself with five major areas in its report. Its goals were to face "significant areas of concern," including a high proportion of Notre Dame students who drink excessively, the consumption of alcohol on football weekends, the level of drinking at alumni reunions, the University's responsibility to uphold state laws and "the axiom that without alcohol there is no social life."

Whole Health and the Use and Abuse of Alcohol Task Force head and Director of the University Counseling Center Patrick Utz was satisfied with the efforts of the task force.

"Overall, I am pleased with the work. In some areas, there were some strong disagreements obviously. But that is part and parcel of university life," Utz said.

Utz emphasized two things students should remember when reading the reports. First, the recommendations were for the whole Notre Dame community, and not just directed at the student body. Second, the task force's directive was not to write a set of rules. Instead, the directive was to set up positive educational programs and social alternatives.

The residentiality task force focused on the "quality, sufficiency and variety" of living facilities. Other areas of concern in the report were student conduct in the dorms, the selection process for rectors and resident assistants and the "relationship between

Cable Address "Bulgar"

Dear Members of the Notre Dame Community,

A year ago four Task Forces were appointed by me, by Provost Timothy O'Meara and by Father David T. Tyson, C.S.C., Vice President for Student Affairs. They were to examine four important areas of University life:

Marriage, Family and Other Life Commitments
Whole Health and the Use and Abuse of Alcohol
The Quality of Teaching in a Research University
Residentiality

I share these studies with you in this special edition of the Notre Dame Report. They are important reading for anyone concerned about our living-and-learning community. It is now the task of myself, Provost O'Meara and Father Tyson to consider carefully the recommendations made in light of resources available to implement them. In determining priorities, we should be grateful for your reactions. Kindly direct your comments to the person to whom the report was made.

In closing I should like to commend the Committees for their excellent work. Many hours--hours that could be spent much more pleasantly--go into this sort of Committee work, resulting in a kind of camaraderie of discursiveness. The larger community is in your debt for the thoughtfulness with which you performed your service.

Again, I encourage your own reactions to the reports.

Cordially,

Shriver awarded Laetare medal for work on Special Olympics

By KATIE KEARNEY
Assistant Saint Mary's Editor

Eunice Kennedy Shriver, founder and chairman of Special Olympics International, will be awarded the 1988 Laetare Medal during the University's commencement ceremonies May 15, according to Rev. Edward A. Malloy, C.S.C., president of the University of Notre Dame.

The Laetare Medal, Notre Dame's highest honor, is widely considered the most prestigious award given to American Catholics.

In announcing the award, Father Malloy said, "Inscribed on each Laetare Medal is the slogan, 'Truth is mighty and will prevail.' Last summer, while hosting the International Special Olympics, the Notre Dame community saw anew an ancient Christian truth: Christ comes most often in the stranger's guise. By commending Mrs. Shriver, the chief architect of that celebration, we emphasize our gratitude to all the Special Olympians for bearing that truth and our faith that their special witness to it will indeed prevail."

Father Malloy explained that "each year we look for an outstanding Catholic leader to honor. There are a lot of good Catholics out there," he said, "but we narrow it down to one who has dedicated their life in a specific area of service or activity."

"We recognize Mrs. Shriver for her lifetime commitment to service and particularly her

HPC directs student reponse

By DAN MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Task force reports on alcohol and residentiality, which were confidentially distributed to the HPC last week, will appear in student mailboxes today, according to Student Body President Tom Doyle.

The HPC received the reports early "to prevent a rumor mill," Doyle said at Tuesday's HPC meeting. "I'm sure some of the students are going to be surprised (by the reports), and there will be some strong response to it," he said.

"We feel it's our job as student government to head up the response," said Doyle. "It's important that we respond in a legitimate manner. If Mike (Paese, student body vice president) and I felt that the best way to show the administration how we feel was to storm the administration building, then that's what we would've done. Something like that, I think, would just be considered adolescent."

Doyle said task forces will go to each dorm to hear student response one week to 10 days after the report's release. A transcription from each meeting will be sent to University President Father Edward Malloy, who will be invited to attend all meetings, according to Doyle.

The reports also address marriage and family and

Without the Easter Bunny, we're all basket cases

Easter may be over, but the Easter Bunny remains a mystery. A popular icon of our egg-coloring culture. A creature that is at once cute and cuddly and somehow able to provide millions with baskets aplenty on Easter morning. But why do we attribute Easter benevolence to a bunny?

The answer is, why not? A rabbit is as good a symbol as any other for a holiday commemorating the resurrection of Christ. A bird or a fish might suffice, but they lack the natural charm of a soft, swift and taciturn bunny.

For one thing, rabbits are remarkably able to multiply. It seems appropriate they should stand for a "new life." It's no coincidence that most Easter candy comes in the shape of an egg. An egg is the symbol of life. Easter, in case we forget, celebrates new life, too. All right, you're probably wondering what mammals have to do with eggs. Biologically speaking, well, nothing really.

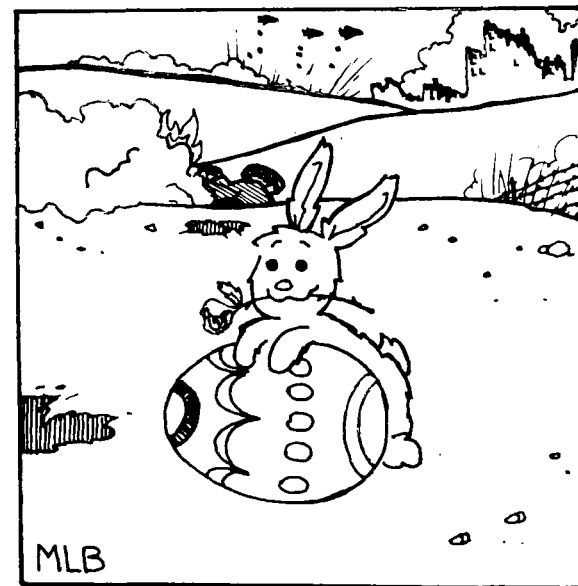

Easter baskets (and their bearer) symbolize a gathering or harvest of souls. Eggs represent life, precious and fragile, needful of care and nurture. We are all eggs in the Easter basket of life. We would do well to take a tip from the ubiquitous Bunny: be careful, life lasts only as long as it is cared for. Know what happens to leftover Easter candy? It gets stale, of course. But most importantly, it loses its taste, and what good is it then? It's a lot like the parable of the salt going flat. Good for nothing but to throw it out and trample on it.

There's enough trampling going on in the world today - people's rights, human dignity and morality are all getting trampled to death. The Easter Bunny, however, remains a figure worthy of emulation: pure, gentle, soft-spoken and soft-footed, a bearer of life and love.

The Easter Bunny has brought Easter eggs, jelly beans and other confections to children (and adults) as far back as I can trace my family lineage. This annual act of kindness after 40 long Lenten days is appreciated by everybody I've ever known who experienced it. And well it should be - benevolence is becoming increasingly rare today.

Everyday we hear reports of violence in Northern Ireland, South Africa, Central America and, as always, Palestine, the very land which gave us Easter. What we all need a bit more of is peace. Corny as it may sound, the Easter

Regis Coccia
News Editor

Bunny gives a reason to believe we can have peace. Now, jelly beans and chocolate-covered marshmallow eggs don't do a whole lot to stop bullets and artillery shells, but they do show us that somebody still cares about us.

Who hasn't experienced a deep feeling of happiness on Easter morning? The same goes for Christmas and the gifts Santa brings. Like Christmas, Easter is celebrated throughout the world, in different ways by very different peoples, but celebrated nonetheless. It's up to us to recreate this happiness in the world. We don't really need an Easter Bunny or a Santa Claus, but until we can replace them with ourselves, there will never be true peace in the world.

Easter is a time of resurrection and joy. Until we resurrect ourselves from the evils in the world today, we will never experience the joy that comes with the Goodness of the Easter Bunny.

Police allotments to catch drunk drivers cut locally

By CHRIS JULKA
Senior Staff Reporter

Budget cuts may take a bite out of law enforcement against drunk drivers in St. Joseph and Elkhart counties.

Reduced funding for anti-drunk driving programs was announced Tuesday in a press conference by Michael Smith, director of Indiana's Division of Traffic Safety at the Morris Inn.

St. Joseph and Elkhart counties will receive a total grant of $137,250 for their combined DUI program this year, Smith said. This amount is down from last year's grant of $170,000, and $80,000 less than originally anticipated.

On the other hand, despite these cuts, funds for Notre Dame Security's anti-drunk driving programs will actually increase.

The reduction occurred because the federal government has delayed funding to the states in its attempts to control the national deficit, according to Smith.

The lack of new funds means Indiana had to make tough choices. "We realized that major cutbacks had to be made," Smith said.

After prioritizing St. Joseph and Elkhart counties' various programs, state and local government decided to give top funding priority to prosecutorial and judicial programs, according to Smith. This means that the level of funding earmarked for enforcement in these counties will decrease.

Prosecutorial agencies need the top funding priority in order to deal with the backlog of cases, said Michael Barnes, St. Joseph County prosecutor.

Barnes conceded that, because of the funding cuts for local police departments, "the number of apprehensions may go down."

Still, he insisted this does not mean the commitment to enforcement is being abandoned. "I don't see arrest figures falling over the edge," he said.

Barnes pointed out that St. Joseph and Elkhart counties will still devote over $35,000 to enforcement against DUI, adding that many neighborhood anti-drunk driving programs will also continue.

Much of previous funding was also devoted toward training officers, who should now be more adept at combatting drunk driving, said Patti Cook, director of the Governor's Task Force to Reduce Drunk Driving.

Still, Barnes and Cook acknowledged that the cutbacks will make future enforcement against DUI more difficult.

"Studies have shown that as funding for enforcement goes down, traffic fatalities and accidents will go up," said Barbara Noser, regional coordinator of the Governor's Task Force.

Despite the cuts overall, however, Notre Dame Security will actually experience an increase in funding. For the first time, Notre Dame Security will receive state allocated federal money to fund its own educational and enforcement programs against drunk driving.

The amount of the grant is $2,097.

The figure is much lower than the $8,000 Notre Dame had originally expected, according to Rakow.

Yet, because this is the first time the University will receive any such grant, the amount is still "$2,100 more than we had last year," Rakow said.

Rakow said the increase in funds to combat drunk driving does not imply Notre Dame Security has decided to step up enforcement against students. "Typically, the offenders we apprehend in the area we patrol are not Notre Dame students," he said.

Despite the new influx of funds for Notre Dame Security, in general anti-drunk driving programs throughout the state are undergoing reductions in their budgets, said Smith.

Alumni-Senior Club chosen as site for Governor's alcohol education program

By NATASHA WILSON
Senior Staff Reporter

The Alumni-Senior Club will host six training sessions in late April for servers and sellers of alcoholic beverages in St. Joseph County as part of a statewide plan.

The sessions are part of a server training and designated driver program co-sponsored by the Governor's Task Force to Reduce Drunk Driving and the Indiana State Excise Police.

Patti Cook, director of the Governor's Task Force and Philip Sanders, superintendent of the Excise Police, announced the plans for the program during a press conference last Wednesday at the Alumni-Senior Club.

Servers and student managers of the Alumni-Senior Club will also participate in the the training sessions, said Larry Briggs, the club's general manager.

"By making free training available throughout Indiana for those who serve and sell alcoholic beverages, the Governor's Task Force and the Excise Police offer a unique approach to reducing drunk driving in our state," Cook said.

Two training sessions will be held each day at the Alumni-Senior Club from April 26-28.

During each two hour session, an Excise policeman and a Governor's Task Force member will address several topics, including recognizing Indiana's state-issued identifications, identifying signs of intoxication, dealing with the intoxicated customer, liability issues and managers' and servers' legal responsibilities, said Sanders.

Rex Rakow, director of Notre Dame Security, said he recommended the Alumni-Senior Club as a site for the training sessions because it has adequate space for the 100 people expected to attend each session.

Rakow is also the Governor's Task Force chairman for St. Joseph and Elkhart Counties.

St. Joseph County is one of the eight target areas selected for the kick-off of the project.

When choosing an area, the task force reviews violations and alcohol related car accidents and fatalities in the county, said Cook.

She added that many of the selected locations are "college towns (where) you have an overabundance of underage drinking and, more than likely, a number of minors' violations."

The Task Force mailed in-itations for the sessions to 3,000 alcoholic beverage permit holders in the eight target areas.

The other locations include Marion County, Monroe County, Vanderburgh County, Vigo County, Delaware County, Allen County and Tippecanoe County.

The invitations ask the permit holders to invite their employees to the training programs, Cook said.

Both Cook and Sanders agree that this new training program is quite unique.

"Training has been provided throughout the state in the past; however, we have begun to reach into the local communities," Cook said.

Sanders added, "I know of no other state that has offered such a program. Our intention is to offer this seminar free to every server or seller before the end of 1988, whether they be affiliated with a package store, tavern, restaurant, grocery, supermarket, hotel or drug store."

In addition to the training, the seminar participants will receive posters, decals and pamphlets promoting responsible drinking and designated drivers.

Cook said she hopes the participants will distribute those materials to their customers.

Sylvester Stallone expects to be a knock-out in his role of spokesman for the Teamster Crusade for a Drug-Free America. The Stallone-Teamster coalition against drugs is encouraging news for parents, educators and other citizens concerned about drug abuse in America. Here's why.

According to Teamster President Jackie Presser, "Drug abuse will only be defeated when every home, school and workplace is enlisted in the struggle." The Teamsters have union locals in every county and state and are in a good position to lead an awareness campaign against the dangers of drugs. With Stallone as spokesperson, the multi-media campaign can be expected to be especially effective in reaching out to America's youth. In his pledge to support the union crusade, Stallone said he would work to build a broad anti-drug coalition between the Teamsters Union and the Hollywood community.

Other aspects of the Crusade include a Teamster Medical Advisory Committee panel to come up with recommendations on drug rehabilitation and drug testing policies and plans for a national Teamster fund raising campaign for drug research and rehabilitation programs. In summing up the program's goals, Presser states, "Nothing is more important than to help young Americans, in particular, avoid the pitfall of drug abuse."

The proposition recommends that each dorm hold elections for president, vice president, treasurer and secretary sometime during March. Newly elected presidents would officially assume office April 1.

Alcohol task force offers changes in current policy

By JIM RILEY
Senior Staff Reporter

The Task Force on Whole Health and the Use and Abuse of Alcohol has returned a report which includes many recommendations, including a limitation on the alcohol provided by the University at SYRs, a change in the University's policy toward tailgaters and proposals for enhancing social alternatives for students.

University President Father Edward Malloy will be reviewing the recommendations, none of which are currently binding.

"We were not defining alcohol abuse as a student problem, but rather as a Notre Dame problem," said Patrick Utz, chair of the task force and director of the University Counseling Center. The 16-member task force of Notre Dame community members included five students.

The committee's report focuses on the need to de-emphasize the role played by alcohol in the University community and the need to develop positive alternatives to current social life so that alcohol no longer plays a primary role, said Steve Newton, special projects coordinator for the Center for Social Concerns and a member of the task force.

The task force studied the history of Notre Dame's alcohol policies, the legal issues involved with being a provider of alcohol, the policies of other universities and a survey of student attitudes at Notre Dame.

The task force then made program and policy recommendations.

The task force urged the University not to provide alcohol at any events, whether the events are centered on students, alumni or even trustees, said Newton.

"This is different than saying that alcohol is not to be allowed at those events," Newton said. He said the committee's proposal did not limit alcohol at SYRs, "but what halls and student affairs might do, we don't know."

Reggie Ward, a student on the task force, said the task force members envisioned that students could still get together and donate money to purchase alcohol for consumption at hall events. "Then the University isn't considered 'liable'," said Ward.

"It's not that you can't have alcohol," Ward said, "just that the University can't provide it."

"If individuals invite people into their rooms for drinks, that's up to them," said Utz.

Six members of the task force signed a minority recommendation, which encouraged that "the general policy governing alcohol use in the residence hall should be consistently enforced at all times, including such social events as all-hall parties." The report said this would include enforcement of the ban on open containers being carried in hallways.

A second minority report addresses tailgaters. The University currently allows public consumption of alcohol at tailgaters, which is an exception to its policy banning public consumption of alcohol on campus. The report suggests doing away with the exception.

Newton said this would allow the University to enforce the policy when the behavior of those at the tailgaters got out of hand.

He did not, however, favor aggressive enforcement. "We are looking at attitudinal issues, not enforcement issues," said Newton.

He said he hoped that, with a change in attitudes and the implementation of social alternatives, alcohol use, in the long term, would cease to be a volatile issue.

Ward said the task force tried "to take the focus away from alcohol and put it on something else." The report listed possibilities for both short and long-term social alternatives. For example, in the short-term, hours and availability of recreational facilities, LaFortune Student Center and the Alumni-Senior Club would be extended.

In the long-term, the University would build a major performing arts center and investigate the possibility of developing a commercial center in the area surrounding campus. The report suggested the inclusion of shops, restaurants, movie theaters, night clubs and pubs.

Newton said commercial establishments currently cannot locate very near to students because the University owns so much of the land surrounding campus. The ideal model would be Harvard Square. "There's things going on all the time there," said Newton.

He said such a mini-mall is needed because Notre Dame is so self-contained and "in its own world."

Vince Willis, student task force member and member of BACCHUS, a national student alcohol awareness group, said that while the report was the product of a very diverse group, everyone's views were expressed. "We came to a very strong majority agreement on the critical points," he said.

He said the other committee members were "very fair as far as taking student input as equal input."

It is very unrealistic to ever say drinking is going to stop at

TASK FORCE ON WHOLE HEALTH

PROGRAM RECOMMENDATIONS:

- Require a credit course for freshmen in alcohol education.
- Begin a wellness program to address the spiritual, vocational, physical, intellectual, social and emotional needs of all community members.

POLICY RECOMMENDATIONS:

- Stop residence halls providing alcoholic beverages for all-hall semi-formal parties.
- Develop "dry" sections or floors in some residence halls.
- Enforce existing regulations more strongly during football weekends.
- Prohibit scheduling evening home football games.

SOCIAL ALTERNATIVES:

- Increase availability of campus sports facilities.
- Extend hours of LaFortune Student Center and Alumni Senior Club.
- Construct a major performing arts center for concerts, plays, and first-run movies.
- Examine the possibility of developing a commercial complex adjacent to campus including shops, restaurants, night clubs, and pubs.

Notre Dame, Willis said. But society now considers drunkenness wrong in and of itself, not just because of its consequences, he said.

"We should make people feel that if they choose to drink, it's okay, and if they choose not to drink, it's okay," he said. "But if they choose to drink, it must be done responsibly."

"It's an individual choice," said Utz. "But the environment should not be a coercion to drink."

Malloy has actively sought student input in this area, and "it would be wise for people to take advantage of these input channels," Willis said, adding that committee members would be willing to talk about the task force findings.

Residentiality Chair and Director of Residence Life Anne Firth was "generally pleased" with the task force's findings in such a wide-ranging field. # Residentiality study finished

By REGIS COCCIA
News Editor

After 11 months of study and discussion, the Task Force on Residentiality released its final report on residential life at Notre Dame and made a sweeping series of recommendations.

The report made 41 recommendations on improving hall staffs, residential environment and residence facilities. The most visible issue addressed in the report, however, was coresidential housing.

The majority of the task force felt coresidential housing should be optional, said Ann Firth, director of residence life and chairman of the task force on residentiality.

"I think it should be an option. It's an alternative that should be considered," said Firth. "I don't think (co-ed housing) is for everyone," she said. "I think the base model should be and should continue to be the single-sex dorm."

The issue of coresidential housing has come up several times, Firth said, but has not been examined in depth. "I don't know of there being an ongoing dialogue. Alumni, students and others all have something to say on it and they need to be heard," said Firth.

The task force considered three possible models for coresidential housing, Firth said, to "fit in with the overall residential system." The models the task force recommended include:

- Senior townhouses, limited to 200 students
  - A dorm for upperclassmen only, with separate living areas for men and women, similar to Keenan and Stanford Halls
  - An "Honors Hall" housing 75-100 juniors and seniors chosen for academic achievement, demonstrated leadership and commitment to community life
- "We decided to suggest a look at these models and come up with a way that works for Notre Dame," said Firth, adding the models were first proposed by previous committees appointed to evaluate coeducation.

Junior Bob Challenger, a student appointed to the task force, said the issue of coeducation came up at all the task force meetings. "The majority of the student input was for coresidential housing," he said. "We also looked at models other schools employed. We saw it's not necessarily negative; in some cases it's very beneficial," Challenger said.

"My personal feeling is that coresidential housing is beneficial for all involved. People have to learn to interact with other people and what better place to learn than at Notre Dame in the Notre Dame family?" said Challenger.

Brendan Judge, student judicial coordinator and task force member, said he feels coresidential housing is important, but only in the context of the task force's mandate to study residentiality.

"What the task force wants is a sound residential system that fosters growth in a lot of areas," Judge said. "Everything we addressed was in the context of a residence hall system which fosters relationships, human dignity and a pursuit of academic excellence," he said.

Senior Michelle Parent, a resident assistant, said she thinks coresidential housing is a very important issue. "It's hard to say how it will affect the community. It's just like any other issue - you start talking about it and some are for it and some are against it," she said.

No official reaction has been made to the task force's recommendations, Firth said.

"We presented the report to (University President) Father (Edward) Malloy. The ball is pretty much in his hands," said Challenger.

"I hope people will read the entire document," Firth said. "It's important to get a sense of what the task force was trying to do."

The 16-member task force was appointed in April, 1987, by Father David Tyson, vice president for student affairs, at Malloy's request. Six subcommittees were formed to research specific issues on residentiality, Firth said. Each subcommittee met with hall staff members, students, faculty and administrators and submitted reports of their findings to the task force.

A survey was distributed to about 600 students in introductory theology courses, said Judge, to provide a representative sampling of the student body.

"(The University administration) will definitely look at what we've said," Parent said. "What we've recommended are all important, otherwise we wouldn't have put them in the report," she said. "I think the task force has hit on the key issues," Parent said. "If they start working on them, it will definitely be a good thing for Notre Dame."

TASK FORCE ON RESIDENTIALITY RECOMMENDATIONS

PERSONNEL:

- Enhance support for hall staffs and their roles in residential life at Notre Dame.
- Hire a professional resource person to aid rectors, assistant rectors, and resident assistants.
- Establish a program for evaluating resident assistants.
- Hire an intervention specialist in the Office of Drug and Alcohol Education to conduct assessments of substance abuse.
- Hire a professional resource person to assist off-campus students.

RESIDENTIAL ENVIRONMENT:

- Increase interaction of students and faculty in residence halls through academic and informal activities.
- Establish parity in the number of men and women on campus.
- Increase minority enrollment.
- Revise and clarify the rules and regulations in du Lac

FACILITIES:

- Build additional residence halls to accommodate freshmen, graduate and fifth-year students.
- Make an optional arrangement for coresidential housing
- Appoint a committee to study coresidential housing.

Three Possible Models for Coresidential Housing

SENIOR TOWNHOUSES

A small complex housing no more than 200 students. Design would include common social and study space and a chapel. Senior men and women could reside in the townhouses, provided there be adequate privacy in each unit.

SEPARATE LIVING FACILITIES

Open to juniors and seniors, this arrangement would provide men and women with areas common to both, such as social rooms, chapel space, lobby and laundry rooms, similar to the present configuration of Keenan and Stanford Halls. Parietal regulations would apply.

"HONORS HALL"

Housing no more than 75-100 upperclassmen, this hall would select residents based on academic achievement, demonstrated leadership, and commitment to community life. The code of student conduct found in du Lac, with some self-governance of residents.

Task Force on Residentiality

"I hope people will read the entire document. I think it's important to get a sense of what the task force was trying to do: represent the needs and interests of Notre Dame."

Hijackers demand prisoners' release

Associated Press

NICOSIA, Cyprus - Arab hijackers Tuesday forced a Kuwait Airways jumbo jet to land in northeastern Iran, threatened to blow it up and demanded that Kuwait release 17 pro-Iranian prisoners. They later released 24 of the 112 passengers.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said without elaboration that the 24 women were released early Wednesday after negotiations with Iran's deputy prime minister, Ali Reza Moayyeri.

Among the other passengers were three members of Kuwait's royal family and a passenger with a U.S. passport, on a flight from Bangkok, Thailand, to Kuwait. The gunmen warned the Kuwaiti royals would be "in imminent danger" if Kuwait refused to free the prisoners, IRNA reported.

The hijackers, brandishing pistols and hand grenades, identified themselves only as Arabs. But their demands echoed those of Iranian-backed Shiite Moslems holding American hostages in Lebanon.

The Kuwaiti government rejected the hijackers' demand to release 17 prisoners, calling it "blackmail," but said it would listen to other demands, the Kuwait News Agency reported.

After an emergency session, Kuwait's government said it will send a three-man delegation on Wednesday morning "to help Iranian authorities" secure the passengers' release.

Iran asked Kuwait to send a high-ranking delegation to Mashhad in northeastern Iran for direct talks with the hijackers.

The hijackers earlier demanded fuel for the aircraft and threatened to blow it up if the Iranians approached. IRNA initially said the Iranians refueled the plane, but then said the gunmen were still requesting fuel.

Four Israelis wounded as guerrillas try to cross border

Associated Press

JERUSALEM - Soldiers fired at "suspicious shadows" Tuesday in southern Lebanon and fought Palestinian guerrillas trying to cross the border, killing two, the Army said. Four Israelis were reported wounded.

In the Gaza Strip, soldiers fired rubber bullets at protesters, putting out the left eye of a 16-year-old Palestinian, the Army said. It was among the few violent incidents in a relatively quiet day in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, where an Arab rebellion began Dec. 8.

Forty-one high school students about to be drafted wrote

Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin, saying they would "not take part in acts of oppression and occupation in the West Bank and Gaza Strip." The number writing such letters now stands at 107.

Secretary of State George Shultz went to Jordan and Syria promoting the U.S. peace plan. He got an inconclusive response from King Hussein of Jordan, whose approval is considered essential.

The attempted penetration Tuesday was the ninth infiltration effort since Nov. 25, when a guerrilla in a hang glider flew into Israel from Lebanon and killed six soldiers before being shot to death.

That attack was thought to have made the Israeli army seem vulnerable, and violence in the occupied territories began two weeks later. At least 138 Arabs and an Israeli soldier have been killed during the 4-month-old rebellion in the lands Israel captured from Jordan and Egypt in the 1967 Middle East war.

Pentagon orders buildup to counter Noriega's tactics

Associated Press

PANAMA CITY, Panama - The first of an extra 1,300 U.S. troops arrived in Panama on Tuesday to increase security for American soldiers and citizens in the face of a political and economic crisis.

A C-141 Starlifter carrying the first contingent of soldiers from Fort Bragg, N.C., touched down at Howard Air Base, just outside Panama City. Nearly 50 flights were expected.

The reinforcements and a squadron of 26 helicopters were intended by the Reagan administration as a signal to Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, the de facto ruler whom Washington has been urging to step down.

The buildup, ordered last week to counter what the Pentagon called Noriega's "heavy-handed tactics," will push American troop strength along the 50-mile-long Panama Canal to 11,800 officers and men.

Noriega is head of the 15,000-man defense forces.

The action followed reports of harassment of U.S. citizens by Panamanian soldiers and the temporary arrest of several American reporters during a police raid on opposition headquarters in a Panama City hotel.

The Panamanian government has repeatedly accused the Reagan administration of preparing for an invasion and said Panama's army had begun training several hundred civilian volunteers in guerrilla warfare.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., where President Reagan is vacationing, his chief spokesman denied Monday that the president is considering military action or that he would urge further economic sanctions on Panama.

U.S. sanctions imposed in February have produced the gravest economic crisis in Panama's history. The country's banks have been closed for more than a month, and the government has been unable to pay either its debts or its employees.

Tuesday's editions of state-run newspapers carried a communique from Panama's Health Ministry that ridiculed the new American troops, calling them potential AIDS carriers and a threat to public health.

Government, rebels prepare for Managua

Associated Press

SAPOA, Nicaragua - Government and rebel delegates met Tuesday to discuss details of their truce agreement as new obstacles threatened plans for a high-level meeting next week in Managua.

The start of the technical talks in this outpost on the Costa Rican border was delayed almost five hours by the rebels' late arrival.

Bosco Matamorros, a spokesman for the rebels known as Contras, said the delegation was tardy because of "transportation and mobilization difficulties."

The meeting in Sapoa is to define the zones in Nicaragua, where rebel combatants are to gather under international supervision during the 60-day cease-fire that began Friday.

Many technical details remain to be worked out.

Matamorros reiterated the Contras would cancel the peace talks scheduled for April 12 in Managua unless the Sandinistas allow the rebel leaders free movement in the capital. He called it "an essential condition."

In Miami, the Contras said the leftist Sandinistas had told them the rebels would have to stay at a hotel near the Managua airport.

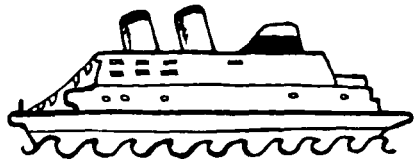

"We will not go to Nicaragua to be confined," Contra Director Pedro Joaquin Chamorro told a news conference in the Miami headquarters of the Nicaraguan Resistance, the rebels' alliance.

Median age over 32 for first time in U.S.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - America's population is older than ever, with maturing Baby Boomers and the growing number of elderly pulling the median age past 32 years for the first time, new Census Bureau figures showed Tuesday.

"The 'Graying of America' is ... documented by its increasing age. The median age was 32.1 years on July 1, 1987," Bureau statistician Louisa Miller reported.

Rising from 31.8 in 1986, it was the highest median age in U.S. history. Median is the point at which half of all Americans are older than that age and half younger.

Racially, the median age for whites hit 33 for the first time, up from 32.7 in 1986. Black median age was 27.2 in 1987, up from 26.9 and the first time that group had surpassed 27.

The national median rose with the help of several factors, including the growing number of elderly Americans, the maturing of the post-World War II Baby Boom and the small Baby Bust generation that followed.

The median age reached 30 for the first time in 1950, but the rapid growth of the Baby Boom that was then occurring pulled it down in the following years.

Parachutist forgets chute, videotapes own death

Associated Press

LOUISBURG, N.C. - An experienced parachutist filmed his own two-mile death plunge after he fell from an airplane. He carried a video camera but apparently failed to realize he had no parachute, investigators said Tuesday.

Officials declared the death Saturday of Ivan Lester McGuire, 35, of Durham, an accident.

Franklin County Sheriff's Capt. Ralph Brown said there was no foul play and no indication of suicide, although "a man who has jumped 800 times ought to remember his parachute."

The videotape shows McGuire leaving the plane, apparently without problems, Brown said. Other parachutists then jump and free fall, but disappear when they pop their parachutes, and McGuire plunges on toward the ground at 150 mph.

McGuire, who was carrying a video camera mounted on his helmet, was filming a student and an instructor at Franklin County Sports Parachute Center about 20 miles from Raleigh.

work with the Special Olympics," Malloy said. "Hosting the Olympics here on our campus this past summer made everything fit together very nicely."

The Laetare Medal is so named because it is announced each year on Laetare Sunday, the fourth Sunday of Lent. Established at Notre Dame in 1883, the medal was conceived as an American counterpart to the "Golden Rose," a papal honor which antedates the 11th century.

Through the years, the recipients of the medal have been selected by a committee headed by the president of Notre Dame.

"We have a committee which recommends candidates and a committee to review those who have been recommended," Malloy said. "All members of the committee are Notre Dame people."

The Medal was restricted to lay persons until 1968, when it was announced that priests and religious would also be eligible, Malloy said. Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, C.S.C., received the 1987 Laetare Medal for his 35 years of service to Notre Dame and the country.

Over the years, the medal has been presented to 85 men and 24 women; soldiers and statesmen, artists and industrialists, diplomats and philanthropists, educators and scientists.

Among the 109 previous recipients of the medal are Mrs. Shriver's brother, President John F. Kennedy, who received it in 1961, and her husband, Sargent, the former Peace Corps director and ambassador to France, who received it in 1968.

Although the medal has been awarded to married couples in the past, this is the first time spouses have ever received medals separately, Malloy said.

A native of Brookline, Massachusetts, Mrs. Shriver is the fifth child of Joseph B. Kennedy and Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy's nine children. Following her graduation from Stanford University in 1943, Eunice Mary Kennedy worked in the State Department's Special War Problems Division. In 1947, she was coordinator of the Justice Department's National Conference on Prevention and Control of Juvenile Delinquency. In 1950, she did social work at the Federal Penitentiary for Women in Alderson, West Virginia. In 1951, she moved to Chicago, where she was a social worker at the House of the Good Shepherd and in the Chicago Juvenile Court. She married Robert Shriver, Jr. in 1953.

Since 1957, Mrs. Shriver has directed the Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr. Foundation. The foundation, established in 1946 to memorialize her brother, who had been killed during World War II, supports research into the causes and possible prevention of mental retardation, as well as efforts to improve the manner in which mentally retarded citizens are treated in their societies.

Last summer, Mrs. Shriver chaired the International Special Olympics at Notre Dame, in which more than 4,000 mentally handicapped athletes from 60 countries participated.

P.O. Box Q

View of N.J. not wholly accurate

Dear Editor:

I live in New Jersey, and, in reading Mr. McLaughlin's Inside article of March 24, I sat down to think about my own experiences there. Somehow I think I'm probably not as experienced in observing the characteristics of a particular place as the author. I was embarrassed by my innocence, for I don't see New Jersey as "Hell" as his brilliant description had clarified for the reader; I see New Jersey somewhat more glorified. I remember fishing and crabbing with my father, water skiing with my friends, surfing in solitude, and walking on the beach with my girlfriend. Then I realized that it wasn't me that was the idiot. I realized that perhaps there was more than one area of New Jersey.

I am fairly familiar with Keansburg. I used to live in Hazlet and Keyport, which are not too far from there. Now I live in a town called Oceanport, which is about 25 miles south of Keansburg. Through my experience of that town, I've come to realize it is probably not the best. My high school, Shore Regional, played in a basketball game against Keansburg. The vision is scarred in my memory. The bus pulled up to the gymnasium. There were four police cars at the door. I was a little wary, but that all changed. As I walked in the door, I thought I was in a juvenile hall. I was terrified. Midway through the game a guy on my team fouled a Keansburg player. There was a little pushing until someone from the stands pulled out a switch blade. There was not a "bench-clearing brawl"; there was a riot! Our team had a police escort back to the bus. Shore Regional will never play Keansburg again.

So it's not hard for me to imagine 54 junior high students being arrested for drugs. It's not hard for me to imagine Mr. McLaughlin's little brother slowly turning into a delinquent. Where I think he errs is in saying that all of New Jersey is like Keansburg. I never saw what a "joint" looked like until my senior year at high school. I learned how to curse from my parents, I was never in a bar until I got to college, and I was more interested in playing basketball than drinking alcohol in junior high. Furthermore, I hope it's not only Jersey kids that think about sex often! You might think all this is coming from a clean-cut all-American boy, but it's actually quite the opposite.

Finally, I don't know if it's that the people are happy without trying to get a degree or become successful. Perhaps they lack the money or maybe the area where they live suppresses their ambition. And that's the point I'm trying to make. I live in a great area, with smart kids, and ambitious people. I could easily write a story about how New Jersey is exactly like the place where I live, but I'm not that ignorant.

Amnesty debates death penalty

Dear Editor:

On Feb. 8, 1987, Amnesty International released a statement that described the use of the death penalty in the United States as "arbitrary, racially biased, and clearly in violation of international treaties signed by the U.S. Government." It is not the only body asking the United States to reconsider its stand on the death penalty.

In the world community, the United States stands with Turkey as the only NATO Alliance countries that still execute people. In fact, when it comes to the death penalty, the United States keeps questionable company with the Soviet Union, South Africa, Chile, and Iran. As citizens of this country, we must realize that the executions are being carried out in our names. We need to examine this issue seriously.

The campus chapter of Amnesty International invites the Notre Dame St. Mary's community to attend the British film "Fourteen Days in May" at 7 p.m. tonight in Room 121 of the Law School. Through the film and a brief discussion following it, we hope to raise some serious considerations about the death penalty.

Portrayal of ANC lacks accuracy

Dear Editor:

This is a response to the inaccuracies of a letter printed in the Friday, Mar.

25 edition of The Observer written by Ron Kunkel. Yes, necklacing is performed by some black South Africans against other blacks who are informers paid by the apartheid regime, but the African National Congress and other anti-apartheid organizations do not condone these activities, nor have Nelson Mandela and other black leaders participated in such brutal activities. Unfortunately, whenever there is such violent oppression as is practiced by the South African government, which the Reagan administration appears to support, then there will be those dissidents aroused by extreme anger who will violently attack their brethren. But it must be made clear that the ANC is not supportive of violent measures against those who are not members of the police force or military.

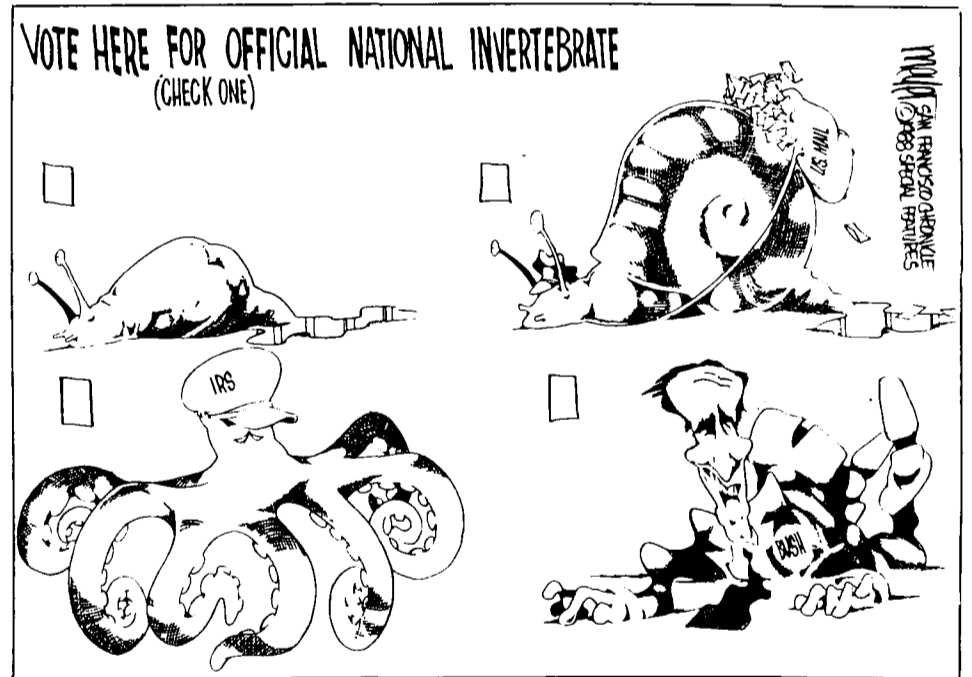

In earlier years, the ANC practiced sabotage against unpopulated areas and buildings like communication towers and abandoned warehouses. However, more recently, the ANC has been promoting violent tactics against those militiamen (none of which are women or children) who are armed with machine guns and other weapons.

Naturally, as peace-loving people, we of the Anti-Apartheid Network would prefer there to be no bloodshed at all, but which of two evils would you support—an oppressed people who have only resorted to violence after years and years of attempted peaceful negotiation, or a powerful military which randomly murders and im-prisons men, women and children whose major goal is justice? The Network supports complete divestment, which would force the government to the negotiation table, and hopefully, put an end to the violence much faster than would a long and bloody civil war.

Another fact I should reiterate is that the black South Africans are to some extent supported by communist countries, but they did not seek the support of these nations until after the support of democracies like the United States and Great Britain had been denied them. Many patriotic persons wrongly and automatically condemn any group associated with the "Commies," but you should be informed that communism to these people is much different from the communism we as Americans tend to visualize. To black South Africans, communism is not the extreme measure we witness in Cuba or Afghanistan, but rather a more equal sharing of power, which is not apparent in the supposed democracy of South Africa, where only whites and some coloreds are allowed to vote while blacks who make up 80 percent of the population are denied that basic human right. Mr. Kunkel would do well to get his "well documented facts" correct before publicizing his opinion.

Hockney transcends limits

accent writer

Rarely does an artist work in a medium that he distrusts and dislikes. David Hockney is an exception. Hockney's collages of photographs in the "Photographs by David Hockney" collection at the Snite Museum attempt to overcome the restraints of time, perspective and motion in photography. Hockney has developed innovative techniques to create vivid, living photographic images that try to draw the viewer into the scene.

Hockney originally distrusted photographs because he believed that they distorted reality. For example, Richard L. Gray, assistant professor in the Department of Art, reveals that Hockney disliked the single point perspective that photographs convey. Hockney claims that this limited vision distorts the true sense of depth and volume and disregards the various angles of a subject. For example, in an ordinary photograph of the front of a chair, the viewer can never see the back, side or top view.

Another major flaw that Hockney finds with photography is its failure to express the passage of time. Hockney feels that it is unnatural to freeze a single image. Gray clarifies Hockney's opinion when he asks, "We don't think in instances so why should we photograph them?" In a video tape presentation in the exhibit, he claims, "The idea of a frozen image could not have existed before the chemical invention of photography."

Yet another concept that Hockney believes could never have existed before photography is the blur. He asserts that the camera creates an illusion of blurred motion. In 1982, when Hockney was commissioned to design promotional posters for the 1984 Olympics Games, he portrayed a skater's spin using multiple pictures taken in rapid succession. The result is a remarkably accurate image of a skater's spin with no visible blur.

Hockney first created his photo collages to try to transcend these limits of photography. He developed the concept of "visual mechanization." Gray elaborates, "Hockney studied the way in which we mechanically view an image. Previously, people would use a wide angle lens to photograph a room, but this would distort the scene." In order to eliminate this perspective distortion, Hockney began taking shots of individual aspects of a scene. He would then piece the photos together into a unified whole.

Gray explains that Hockney likened the crafting of these photo collages to the sketching of a drawing. Starting with a box full of pictures, Hockney would assemble the images based on the principles of line, multiple perspective, contour and continuity.

In addition to the basic guidelines of drawing, Hockney uses the technique of cubism to provide multiple ways of looking at the subject. Hockney was especially influenced by Pablo Picasso's style. He admires cubists because he feels that they try to see more accurately than the traditional one point perspective painting.

Hockney's earliest photo collages were created with the Polaroid. In the cubistic style Hockney reduces, enlarges and fragments individual polaroid photos in order to create collages of casual scenes, such as friends chatting or a man smoking.

In 1982 Hockney left polaroid film and began to create collages with 3 by 5 photos from a 35mm camera. He found that this borderless film allowed him much more freedom because he could change the edges of the collages. For example, when Hockney assembled the photographs of the Grand Canyon and Yosemite Park, he could curve the horizon or lead the eye off the landscape at a certain point so that the viewer feels that he is actually in the picture.

Another way that Hockney draws the audience into his work is through the placement of his own feet or discarded rolls of film in one end of the collage. Hockney's trademark shoes, often complete with bright laces and unmatched socks, allow the viewer to stand in Hockney's place and see exactly what he sees.

The "Photographs by David Hockney" exhibit will be at the Snite Museum until April 17.

Easter inspires a love for hats

Easter is a great holiday for more than Cadbury cream eggs, goody baskets and decorating eggs with Paas designer kits. Easter Mass sets the scene for some of the year's best fashion shows.

Every spring brings the advent of baseball, tulips and new Easter outfits. People of all ages participate in this last rite of spring, and what makes it fun is when some people really enjoy themselves, from toe to head.

For all of us, Easter Sunday is indeed a new beginning—we rejoice as we commence our renewed lives. This one day brings a whole new dimension to a woman's closet, however. She can dress up in her best for the day; she can finally begin wearing white; and she can indulge in a fashion statement long ignored by many women and fashion analysts alike. I am writing here of Easter bonnets, and hats in general.

My mother introduced me to the tradition and fun of having a new hat for Easter when I was just a little tyke. I can picture myself in a pink dress that hit about mid-thigh, wearing those white stockings, white ballet slippers and the ruffled bottoms little girls wear with short dresses. I carried my tissues in a white pillbox purse and atop my head sat a white Easter bonnet.

I guess that is when and where it all started. An Easter bonnet at five has led to green bowlers, red fedoras, gray berets and Australian bush hats at age 20.

As a young girl, there was usually an annual occasion which would warrant a new hat. In high school, though, is when the real obsession began. That's when I began wearing old family treasures found in the basement and began making a beeline for the hat department of any store, or hat stores themselves, where the few and the proud could be found.

Historically, women wore hats because it was believed a head of hair was too much a temptation for men. Women particularly had to wear hats in church to keep men's attention on the sermon and not on their luscious locks.

As time moved along, society did not expect women to cover their heads as much, so the practice slowly disappeared. An early sign of women's liberation perhaps?

"Let your hair down! No more hatpin acupuncture! Put your hats back in the hatboxes and be free of hat hassles!"

But like all the other things popular with one generation and gauche with the next, hats are back.

My hats now number about 25. This includes all the very casual, the sporty-to-nice, and the special occasion hats which stay in boxes on the shelf until they are the perfect topper. I have about 15 here at school strung across and down the wall on elastic clotheslines. You now have to climb on the couch to get some hats, and you have to balance yourself on the radiator and window ledge for the out-of-season ones, but the configuration is both efficient and aesthetic.

Why do I wear hats? It started as fun and has remained so. Sometimes they are functional—the bush hat pulled way down in a rainstorm is the perfect substitute for an umbrella. Sometimes they are convenient, as many males out there can attest to—when you wake up too late to take a shower, a baseball cap fits the bill perfectly.

More often than not, however, hats simply are fun. Like shoulder pads and any other accessory, they can make an old sweater look like it's just off the runway, or they can tie an entire outfit together.

Hats are like LIFE cereal. Once you try them, you'll like them. Unfortunately, the world is no longer filled with milliners, but fortunately, both affordable and haute couture designers are tipping their hats our way once again. Beach hats fill the stores now as do the classic fedoras and even a few party hats here and there. If you like to shop and ever want to buy yourself a little something new and fun, try a hat on for size. It's the perfect way to keep your chin up.

Eating survey leads to treatment

Special to The Observer.

This week, all undergraduate Notre Dame women 18 years and older will receive an Eating Survey from the University Counseling Center. The purpose of this survey is to assess the need on this campus for programs and services that address eating problems. While we recognize that men may also have eating problems, the incidence of them is more prevalent among women. Therefore, due to the expense and time required to conduct this survey, women only were included.

The Counseling Center, in an effort to provide education and treatment, has found that individuals tend to distort this issue. Some people believe no problem exists while others fear as many as 65 percent of college-aged women may be affected. No research has been conducted at Notre Dame to provide an accurate picture of this problem. It is our hope that our survey will provide this information.

Participation in the survey is completely voluntary. Responses are confidential and cannot be used to identify individuals in any way. The more surveys that are returned, the more accurate the results will be. Surveys should be returned to the University Counseling Center through campus mail as soon as possible.

It is important to recognize that this problem is not unique to Notre Dame. The week of April 24 through April 30, 1988, has been designated "National Eating Disorders Awareness Week" by the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives.

NHL playoffs face off tonight for 16 teams

Associated Press

Winnipeg vs. Edmonton

After finishing a disappointing second and failing to win the division title for the first time in seven years, the Edmonton Oilers hope to redeem themselves against Winnipeg. The Oilers, led on offense by Wayne Gretzky, Mark Messier and Glenn Anderson, have beaten Winnipeg in 14 straight playoff games.

New Jersey vs. New York Islanders

The Islanders hold a 35-1-3 record over the Devils at Nassau Coliseum and will have four potential home games.

The Devils nailed down the last playoff spot on the final day of the season for their first postseason berth since moving to New Jersey in 1982.

Philadelphia vs. Washington

The Flyers, Stanley Cup

finalists last year against Edmonton, had a weak finish due to an unusual amount of injuries. Both teams were inconsistent in the late stages of the Patrick race, when the Islanders took charge.

Chicago vs. St. Louis

The Blackhawks finished third in the Norris, a spot they had sewn up for nearly a month. But they slid toward the playoffs with an 0-7-1 record and carry a two-year postseason drought into their first-round series with the Blues. The Blackhawks were swept 3-0 by Toronto in the 1986 playoffs and 4-0 by Detroit last year.

Sabres vs. Bruins

The Bruins had a midseason streak that put them in first until the Canadiens ripped off a 15-game unbeaten streak. The Bruins slumped at the end but still finished with the fourth-best record in the NHL.

Toronto vs. Detroit

Detroit lost superstar Steve Yzerman to injury late in the season, still finished strong, becoming the first divisional title-winner this season. The Red Wings won their division by the biggest spread, 17 points over St. Louis.

ND lacrosse wins, but loses Shay

By PETE LaFLEUR
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame lacrosse team stretched its winning streak to five games last week but the two victories proved costly as the squad lost two key starters to injury.

Irish victories against Michigan last Wednesday and Lake Forest on Saturday have given the team its best mid-season record ever, at 7-1. But those accomplishments are overshadowed by injuries to senior attackman Jeff Shay and senior middle Art Brady.

Junior attackman John Olmstead led the Irish with eight goals and six assists in the two games, including a school record nine points in the team's 17-7 rout of the Wolverines. Against Lake Forest, sophomore attackman Dave Carey came off the bench for the injured Shay to score a goal and two assists as the Irish held off the Foresters 11-6.

Despite the fast start, the team still has four of its toughest games ahead at the end of April. And the injuries, particularly Shay's, pose as a major setback to the Irish's chances against powers such as Ohio Wesleyan and Michigan State.

Shay, the team's creaseman and third leading scorer, was injured midway through the second period against Lake Forest. After swatting at a loose ball, Shay was hit from behind by two Forester defensemen.

"It seemed like kind of a late hit," said Olmstead, "and then Jeff's knees buckled and he was in a lot of pain. It's pretty serious and it's frustrating for him because he's been playing so well."

Brady, one of the team's senior tri-captains, suffered a separated shoulder in the second period against Michigan and is questionable for this Saturday's game at Kenyon.

Irish coach Rich O'Leary said that Brady, whose face-off proficiency has keyed the Irish attack, should be back for next Wednesday's rematch with Lake Forest.

However, team members say it appears doubtful Shay will return this season even though his condition has not been fully evaluated. Shay is the fourth starter to be seriously injured this year. Unfortunately for the Irish, they are not nearly as deep at attack as they are at middle and defense, where they have adequately coped with several injuries to key players.

"Lacrosse is a rough game and you have to expect injuries," said O'Leary. "You need to have some depth on your team and unfortunately we do not have much depth on attack, so the loss of Jeff concerns me."

"Jeff has provided a lot of leadership by coming up with key ground balls and by keeping pressure on the opponent's defense. He worked harder than anyone on the team and it will be difficult for anyone stepping in to equal his significance to the team."

None of the attackmen have sufficient experience on the crease, but Carey is practicing the position this week and is slated to start. Junior Mark Healy and sophomore Ron Lynn will be the team's only attackmen off the bench while freshman Mike Sennett will apparently continue to sit out the season with back problems.

Nonetheless, O'Leary appears confident that the team will continue to adjust to adversity just as they did in the first seven victories.

"We've played most of our games on the road and have been using a lot of underclassmen. The fact that we've come out of the first half of the season with only one loss is great considering all that," O'Leary said.

ND baseball team rallies to go 4-2 during break

By THERESA KELLY
and STEVE MEGARGEE
Assistant Sports Editors

Last year's Notre Dame baseball team was plagued with the inability to win close games, going 6-17 in games that went into extra innings or were decided by two runs or less.

But under first-year Pat Murphy's aggressive style of play, the Irish are turning that statistic around this season. Playing a textbook version of "Murphball," the Irish have used last-inning rallies to win their last two games.

But as far as late-inning rallies go, Murphy may be ready to put Notre Dame's ninth-inning heroics at Bowling Green on Monday into a time capsule. Trailing 7-2 after eight innings, and facing Bowling Green's ace pitcher, the Irish shot down the Falcons with nine runs in the ninth to pull out an 11-7 victory. Senior designated hitter Chris Flynn led the heroics with a single that brought in the winning run.

"It had to be the greatest baseball comeback I've ever seen," said Murphy. "It showed what we've known all year, which is that our team can win the tough games."

Just in case anybody needed more evidence of this, the Irish did it again on Tuesday at Jake Kline Field. After spotting Northeastern Illinois three runs in the first inning, Notre Dame scored single runs in the first, second and fourth to make it a 3-3 tie.

But the Irish, who had lost 15 of their last 20 games at Jake Kline Field before Tuesday, proceeded to waste opportunities in all the remaining innings. When the Golden Eagles broke the tie with a run in the 10th inning, it looked like another Jake Kline horror story was reaching its climax. But not this time. After Mike Moshier reached on an error to lead off the 10th, Greg Vogeles tried to move him along with a bunt. Relief pitcher George James tried throwing out Moshier at second, but his throw was high, and then Vogeles beat the relay to first. James proceeded to walk Mike Coss on four pitches, loading the bases with nobody out.

Pinchhitter Craig Pavlina then delivered the key hit, singling up the middle to score Moshier and Vogeles and give the Irish the win. "We really had to work for this win," said Murphy. "We were a little tired, and we weren't mentally ready to play this game at 3:30 (the game's starting time). I think that's why we gave up three in the first."

earned the victory in relief of starter Erik Madsen. The Irish duo held the Eagles scoreless for eight innings after giving up three in the first.

"Madsen pitched well," Murphy said. "He's been getting the job done for us all season. Harmon came in and did a good job to get the win."

With a 16-13 record, Notre Dame already has won more games than it did in all of last season's 15-29 campaign.

Before the matchups with Bowling Green and Northeastern Illinois, the Irish split a four-game series with Midwestern Collegiate Conference rival Dayton.

"We were not happy with a two and two split," Murphy said. "Dayton was happy, we were not. We are a better team. But that's why you play so many games. A team can't always beat the teams it should."

The Irish pitching staff has put the heat on after a shaky start. In the four game series with the Flyers, Notre Dame pitchers allowed only 11 runs. Brian Piotrowicz and Mike Passilla each earned victories. Piotrowicz allowed one run in seven innings of work en route to a 12-2 victory, while Passilla hurled a four-hitter to earn the complete-game win in a 3-2 Irish triumph.

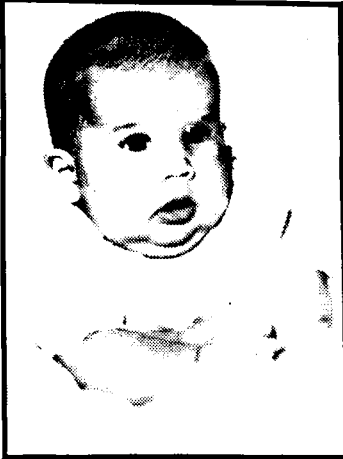

Notre Dame had problems scoring runs in the Dayton series, as Flyer pitchers Joe Molony and Mike Devlin recorded complete-game victories in the two Dayton wins. Molony pitched a five-hit shutout in the opening game of the series, which Dayton won 3-0. In the final game of the series, Devlin scattered six hits in a 4-2 Dayton victory.

An exhibition game with the Chicago White Sox scheduled for Easter Sunday at Comiskey Park was cancelled. A meeting with Ball State scheduled for last Saturday at home was postponed and will be played at Ball State along with an already scheduled game on May 11.

Notre Dame hits the road for a six-game road trip beginning today at Northwestern.

"They're really a tough team," Murphy said. "They played two close games with Michigan, which is one of the top teams in the country."

The last time Notre Dame faced Northwestern, the Irish lost a 7-6 extra-inning marathon to the Wildcats in the last game of Notre Dame's 1987 season. Notre Dame has lost 16 consecutive games against Big Ten opposition.

Pacella, ND women in action today against Northwestern

By FRANK PASTOR
Sports Writer

Following an 11-day layoff, the Notre Dame women's tennis team resumes play this afternoon at 2 p.m. against Northwestern outside at the Courtney Courts.

The Irish have not beaten the Wildcats in seven attempts, dating back to 1976. However, this might just be their year, as Northwestern (2-12) is currently in the midst of a rebuilding process. Six of its nine players are in their first year of collegiate competition.

"They've lost a lot of players," says Michelle Gelfman, head coach of the Irish. "This year, they're unranked, even in our region. We can go head to head with them, and I think we'll beat them this year."

The Northwestern match is the first of three the Irish (8-12) will play this week. Saturday, the team goes up against Toledo, and the next day, Purdue comes to town. Clearly, the Irish netters are nearing the home stretch. Easter break afforded the team the opportunity to catch its second wind.

"We took advantage of the time off and regrouped ourselves," says Gelfman. "The team is fresh and ready to finish out the season."

Fourth-seeded Kim Pacella will play a key role for the Irish throughout the remainder of the season. In Notre Dame's last match, a 6-3 victory over Eastern Michigan, the freshman effectively combined her consistent baseline game with a willingness to approach the net in defeating Gina Radecki 6-0, 6-0. "Kim is in a very pivotal position on the team," says the Irish coach. "She has a good attitude, she's an extremely hard worker, and she's very athletic."

These attributes undoubtedly helped the 5-3 freshman overcome the adversity associated with collegiate athletics. In addition to the increased level of competition, college sports impose a number of time restraints on athletes.

"I worry a lot about not getting my work done, and I worry about sleep," admits Pacella. "I know that I won't play well the next day or I won't have time to study if I don't get enough sleep.

"It's hard, but I've always had to be very disciplined about getting my practice and school in. I think my high school background and playing tennis all the time has helped to ease the transition."

Earlier in the year, the freshman had worries of a different sort.

"At first, I thought, 'Oh my God, what if I lose this match at 4-4 and then the team loses the match 4-5?'," reveals Pacella. "I'm a freshman, I'm playing number four singles, and I don't know if I have to impress the coach, impress the team, or what."

Fortunately for the Notre Dame women's tennis team, the bubbly native of Toledo, Ohio has been able to suppress her initial fears and settle into her role as a vital cog in the Irish game plan.

Fencing

at Notre Dame, finished in 37th place. With the outstanding season that she had, she was a little disappointed with her performance.

"I realized that they're just fencers, and not phenomenal like I thought they would be," said Barreda. "I think it would have helped me if I knew that going into the tournament."

The epee finals saw the tournament come to a close, but not before Russian epeeist Pavel Kolobkov defeated Mario Bovis of Italy for the title. Kolobkov's Russian comrade, Oleg Skorobogatov, came in third.

All added up, the tournament contained some of the finest fencing to be seen anywhere.

In team competition, the Soviet Union was victorious, collecting 59 team points. Italy was second with 55 and Germany came in third with 49.

The tournament did not lack its share of problems, however. During the opening ceremonies, the national anthem of Cuba was inadvertently misplaced, so when the team stood on the stage to be acknowledged there was no national anthem.

This caused an "absolute embarrassment," according to Mike DeCicco. The Cubans mistook this blunder to be a politically oriented action and threatened to leave.

DeCicco, however, took things into his own hands by first apologizing and then recovering the lost anthem. He then led the Cuban team to the center stage himself, displaying the sign of Cuba high in the air when the Cuban national anthem was being played.

Admired by all who saw it, DeCicco downplayed his actions.

"It wasn't a designed thing. They were threatening to leave and I didn't want this event to cause embarrassment to the University of Notre Dame," he said.

A tremendous success that it was, it was the third time Notre Dame has hosted the tournament. Next year the tournament will be hosted by Greece.

Golf team third at Purdue Invite

By BILL STEGMEIER
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame golf team came up big Easter Weekend, finishing third in a field of ten teams at the Purdue Invitational. Their success at Purdue followed a clutch win against Lewis College here last week.

The Irish defeated Lewis College, 309-315. The big man for the Irish was junior Pat Mohan. The two teams were deadlocked at 236 as Mohan prepared to shoot his round. Mohan shot a 40 on the front side, but came up with a 33 on the back nine. His 73 put the Irish on top, as Lewis' top man, Andy Krajewski, could only shoot a 79.

The Irish then competed in the 54-hole Purdue Invitational. They registered scores of 292, 304, and 313, good enough for third place with a 909 total. Ball State finished first with a score of 895 and Wright State took second, shooting a 905.

Coach Noel O'Sullivan was delighted with his team's performance.

"I'm very proud of my team and how the guys played," O'Sullivan said. "Our round of 292, an average of 73 per golfer, was sparkling. Overall, we beat some of the best teams in our district."

Among the teams the Irish beat were host Purdue and Iowa, two teams which had won every tournament they had participated in since the fall.

Notre Dame placed four golfers in the top 14 individuals at the Invitational. Junior Pat Mohan tied for top medalist honors, shooting a 224. Senior Dick Connelly took 11th with a 227 score and freshman Paul Nolte came in 12th with a 228. Junior Doug Giordio, with a 230, placed 14th. Pat Kusek, a freshman participating in his first varsity tournament, scored a 248.

The Irish next participate in the Kepler Invitational the weekend after next. The 54-hole tournament will be played at Ohio State, the home course of Jack Nicklaus Jr. The host, Ohio State, is the number-one college in District IV. A total of 24 teams will participate in the three day affair.

O'Sullivan is quietly optimistic, as his team readies for the Kepler Invitational.

"We're going down to the Kepler, the most prestigious golf tourney in the Midwest, realizing that we can play and perform at a high level and that we can come out of the tournament with a high placement," O'Sullivan stated.

Cubs beat Braves

Associated Press

ATLANTA-Manny Trillo's 13th-inning sacrifice fly gave the Chicago Cubs a 10-9 victory over Atlanta Tuesday night in a National League opener that included a controversial interference call on the Braves and a record-tying seven home runs by both clubs.

Trillo's fly to center field off losing reliever Jim Aker, 0-1, scored Vance Law, who had doubled and was sacrificed to third.

Mike Bielecki gained the victory with two scoreless innings of relief.

The game included seven home runs-four by the Braves and three by Chicago-to tie the major league mark in an opener. The New York Mets and Montreal also combined for seven homers on Monday.

The Braves appeared to have won the game in the bottom of the ninth when Albert Hall bounced a two-out infield single behind second base with Gerald Perry at second.

Perry, who was caught in a rundown between third and home, scored when catcher Jody Davis' throw hit him on the helmet and bounced toward shortstop. Home plate umpire Bruce Froemming, however, ruled that Perry interfered with third baseman Law and called him out.

Irish defensive line receives some rare praise

By STEVE MEGARGEE
Assistant Sports Editor

The Notre Dame defensive line, which perhaps was more criticized than any other area of the football team last season, is receiving much praise for its performance in the beginning of the spring drills.

Spring Football
1988

In last Wednesday's scrimmage, highlights included two strong stands by the first-team defensive line against the first-team offensive line. The defensive front's performance had Head Coach Lou Holtz singing its praises after the scrimmage.

"(George) Williams and (Jeff) Alm had excellent days," said Holtz. "Our ends played well, they really showed up for this scrimmage. We're a lot quicker on defense than we are on offense in coming off the ball."

First-year defensive line coach John Palermo is not about to get too excited, but he has shown much pleasure with the attitude his players have shown this spring.

"We have a long way to go. We need to keep working on the little things. The players are working really hard, and I'm impressed with their attitude."

The defensive line has had to contend with injuries and inexperience during spring practices. John Foley will miss all the spring after undergoing shoulder surgery, Chris Zorich has a knee injury that could keep him out for the rest of the spring and Bob Dahl has been out a week with an ankle injury. Palermo hopes to have Dahl back in action by Saturday's scrimmage, and Bryan Flannery has returned to practice after missing five practices with back spasms.

Tom Gorman enters the spring as the only defensive lineman who will be a senior during the 1988 season, and is the senior member of a line that has many starting positions open.

"The older players we have are giving good leadership to the younger players," said Palermo. "Other than Gorman, we'll be really young up front."

"At this point, I'd have to say we're unsure of who our starters will be. Alm's a strong candidate, and Tom Gorman's a strong candidate. They're the two strongest candidates right now."

A host of other players also are vying for playing time, including both those on the injured list and those currently making names for themselves in spring practices.

"George Marshall had a really good practice yesterday (Monday)," said Palermo. "He's a young player improving, and I hope by the fall he'll be able to compete."

"Before Bob Dahl got hurt, he was making improvements," continued Palermo. "George Williams at times has shown signs of being a good player for us. From an effort standpoint, Steve Roddy has made a lot of plays this spring. I've been pleased with his effort and overall attitude."

Palermo replaces veteran Irish coach Joe Yonto, who resigned at the end of the spring to take an administrative job with the athletic department, as the defensive lines coach. Palermo most recently served as defensive lines coach at the University of Minnesota for four years, working for two years under Holtz and two years under current Golden Gophers coach John Gutekunst.

The 35-year old Palermo is one of five Irish assistants to move from the Minnesota staff to Notre Dame. Palermo also plans to help out in recruiting, focusing primarily on New Jersey and parts of Florida.

"It was a positive experience (at Minnesota)," said Palermo. "When Coach Holtz came, the program wasn't in good shape, and two years after he came in, we went to a bowl game and beat Clemson in the Independence Bowl."

EXTRA POINTS: Several players made position switches during Monday's practice. Split end Pat Terrell was tested at free safety, and Bobby Carpenter was practicing with the first team at split end. Tim Grunhard, who has seen most of his action as an offensive guard, practiced at center.

Braxton Banks, who played fullback last season but had been practicing at tailback this spring, again was practicing at fullback.

Kansas, Manning excel to win 'special' championship

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, MO.-Kansas' second NCAA basketball championship was something special.

The Jayhawks won it Monday night on a near-homecourt that had never been friendly in title games. They did it over an old foe and one considered the better team.

There were players making contributions, some on the court and some off. There were more losses than any other champion.

There was a coach who is talked about in terms of moving, making moves that will be talked about.

Finally, there was Danny Manning.

And he is the reason that Kansas was so special Monday night.

The two-time All-American ended his collegiate career with a game that summed up the Jayhawks' season.

Manning finished with 31 points and 18 rebounds in the 83-79 victory over Oklahoma. But it was the way he scored the big points and the way he avoided his fourth foul to remain on the court that showed how valuable he was all season.

"I don't think he ever played a better game," said his father and Kansas assistant coach Ed Manning.

Manning picked up his third foul 25 seconds into the second half. Coach Larry Brown didn't remove him from the game and it proved to be a great move eight minutes later.

Oklahoma took its largest lead of the game, 65-60, with 12:13 to play.

Manning's fellow senior Chris Piper hit a jumper to pull the Jayhawks within three. Manning then scored the next seven Kansas points-the last two on a nice hook shot-around a 3-pointer by Mookie Blaylock, and the Jayhawks had the lead they never gave up.

"I never knew it bad, and he came out here and proved that tonight," Oklahoma's Stacey King said after the game. "He had 18 rebounds and did a good job defensively."

Manning had five steals, and his play-with three fouls-was a major reason King and Harvey Grant, Oklahoma's leading scorers, were held to a combined eight points in the second half.

But it wasn't Manning alone.

Piper had eight points and seven rebounds and he teamed with Manning on the inside defense. Milt Newton had 15 points and Kevin Pritchard added 13. Clint Normore had seven points and four assists in 16 minutes. Scooter Barry hit a big free throw with 16 seconds left.

Brown figured out how to stop the Sooners, the second-highest scoring team in the country. He slowed it down after playing a first half that was to Oklahoma's liking and ended at 50-50.

"I wanted the kids to understand that we had to work the clock, run some plays and get a little organized," Brown said.

The final minutes found Oklahoma making a charge that was snuffed by four free throws by Manning in the final 14 seconds.

So Kansas had the title only 35 miles from campus. But Kansas City had never been kind to Kansas before.

The Jayhawks, who were 8-point underdogs, had played three championship games there before Monday night and lost each of them.

The Jayhawks lost both regular-season meetings with Oklahoma, the champions of the Big Eight. They had nine other losses and that total is one more than any champion had before.

Nice weather aids Bookstore seeds

By PETE SKIKO
Sports Writer

Bookstore Basketball's 17th edition chugged along last Wednesday and again yesterday, as first-round survivors of the monstrous tournament set their sights on the round of 256.

Unseasonably warm, humid weather and long, 21-point games gave many Bookstore participants a somewhat uncomplimentary look at their physical condition.

"I thought I was in the best shape of my athletic career before break," mused an exhausted Brian O'Gara after his 4 RA's and a Guy Working Off Service Hours broke up An Ox, a Dog, Buzz, and 2 Moms, 21-15. "Maybe it was all the chocolate in my Easter basket, but I felt about ready to hang it up when we were tied at 3-3."

Seeded teams fared well yesterday, as seeded teams usually do in the early rounds, but they felt the heat as well. Matt "Bingo" Hanley of Tofu's

Last Gig explained that despite the relative ease of his squad's 21-6 drubbing of John McGrath and Four Other Guys..., stamina was still a problem.

"It was hot, but that was probably good for us," said Hanley, whose Tofu squads have been a major contender for the Bookstore title the last three years. "Conditioning is our biggest weakness right now, and we've got to get into a little better shape. But otherwise, things went pretty well. The things we experimented with worked OK, even though we let up some after we got ahead by a lot."

Tournament Commissioner Mike Manning reports that the proceedings have come this far with very few hitches.

"It makes it easy when I've got a lot of assistant commissioners with a lot of experience," said Manning, a sophomore. "I wish I had something dramatic to say, but things have gone really smoothly. We had a couple of forfeits today, but that's it."

ND, DeCicco host Fencing Championships successfully

By SCOTT BRUTOCAO
Sports Writer

With 28 foreign countries' flags hanging from the JACC rafters, the Junior World Fencing Championships were begun with opening ceremonies fit for the Olympics.

The Championships, which began early in the morning on Thursday, March 31, would last all the way to Monday, April 4, occurring during the Notre Dame's entire Easter break.

The tournament was attended by the top junior fencers of each country, comprising some 200 athletes. Accompanying these athletes were numerous coaches, trainers, and families.

To qualify for the Junior Worlds, besides having to be the best of their country, the fencers had to be under the age of 20.

"It was a tremendous success," said tournament director and 27th-year men's coach Mike DeCicco. "I am always amazed by the cooperation that we get from our student body and community. The support was the greatest thing that could have happened."

The opening ceremonies started off the Junior Worlds in style. On Thursday night, each country's team took its turn marching up to center stage and being acknowledged by the playing of their national anthem.

Following the processions, two fencing demonstrations were provided for the audience. At the conclusion of the ceremonies, people present knew that they were going to see many world-class bouts in the nights ahead.

"I really appreciated all the support that we got from the student body and community," said DeCicco. "There were several times when people from the community would come through when we needed them."

"I just wanted to express my gratitude to the student body and the heartwarming response they showed to the fencers. There's nothing I wouldn't do for them."

Finals for fencers in the foil weapon were held Friday night, which was the best attended competition of the tournament. People packed the fieldhouse stands to see the best junior foilists in the world.

The audience witnessed Alexander Koch of The Federal Republic of Germany defeat Thomas Endres of the same country. Alessandro Puccini of Italy took third.

Sabre finals were held on Saturday night, in which Vladimir Prokin of the USSR defeated Claudio Rubino of Italy. German sabreman Jochen Knies placed third, and Notre Dame's own Leszek Nowosielski finished 21st.

Had Nowosielski, a freshman in his fourth Junior Worlds, finished in the top 20, it would have given him a chance to qualify for the Canadian Olympic Fencing team.

The women fencers, who only compete with the foil weapon, had their finals on Sunday night. Anja Fichtel of Germany retired Elena Glikina of the Soviet Union for the championship. Third place went to Diana Bianchedi of Italy.

A guide to baseball in the Great Midwest

Play ball!

On Monday, umpires across the country barked out that oh-so-familiar commencement to the national pastime.

There are few things better in the world of sports than a day at the ballpark. You've heard the apple pie phrases before, but its no exaggeration. The wonderful fragrance of peanuts, hot dogs and spilled beer fill the air and combine with home team rooters to create an atmosphere conducive to the die-hards, the bleacher bums or the family.

Some of my greatest memories growing up come from those twice-a-summer trips to Fenway Park in Boston with my family to take in a Red Sox game. There I could see grown men acting out my childhood dreams—making a game-saving catch, drilling a fast ball over the Green Monster in left field, leading the Red Sox to a World Championship (OK, OK, they were dreams).

While some may look at the calendar and fret that only a month remains to get rid of those D's, the more optimistic should see a month of opportunity to take in a day at the ballpark at one of the not-so-far-away big league ballparks. To give credit where it is due, the idea to print this guide to road-trip baseball came from Notre Dame grad Chuck Freeby ('86), who wrote a similar column for Irish Items in April, 1986. Freeby now is a sports broadcaster for WNDU-TV and will undoubtedly make his mark in the world of sports journalism.

Wrigley Field is the home of the Chicago Cubs and the mecca of major league baseball parks. A natural grass, ivy-covered walls and bleacher bums make Wrigley a baseball heaven. Brouhahas over installing lights for night games resulted in eight night games for the Cubs this season, which will be announced shortly before the day of the game.

Brian O'Gara
Irish Items

Cubs' home dates: April 15-17 vs. Pittsburgh; April 19-21 vs. Montreal; May 6-8 vs. San Francisco; May 9-10 vs. Los Angeles; May 11-12 vs. San Diego. Box seats are $10.50, Terrace reserved are $6, Upper deck reserved are $5 and the chance to catch a tan or an Andre Dawson tater in the bleachers is $4. You can find the promised land by cutting off the Dan Ryan early to avoid the construction and heading up Lake Shore Drive to Irving Park and Wrigley signs. Call 312-281-5050 for ticket information.

Comiskey Park serves as home to the Chicago White Sox and is another top quality park in the Windy City looking for a better-than-mediocre team to play in it. It doesn't have ivy, but Comiskey is another fun, family ballpark which is also the oldest in the big leagues (78 years). That age and the Ryan mess are creating a stir with Sox owners, who are licking their chops over a dome being built in St. Petersburg.

Sox' home dates: April 6-7 vs. California; April 8-10 vs. Seattle; April 21-24 vs. Oakland; April 26-28 vs. Boston; April 29-May 1 vs. Baltimore; May 2-3 vs. New York; May 13-16 vs. Toronto. Box seats are $8.50, Mezzanine seats are $6.50, Reserved grand stand is $5.50, and general admission seats are $4. The best way to get there is probably by parachute, but it'll be worth it.
