Mob storms U.S. embassy in Honduras

Associated Press

TEGICUGALPA, Honduras--More than 1,000 students marched on the U.S. Embassy Thursday and burned 20 automobiles before being turned back by gunfire and tear gas. Police said at least one demonstrator was killed.

The crowd, which tried to set fire to the embassy, was protesting the forced extradition of an alleged drug trafficker and the presence last month of American troops in Honduras.

Guards stationed at the embassy lobbed tear-gas grenades and fired at demonstrators who set fire to about 20 automobiles belonging to embassy personnel.

Police sources contacted by the Associated Press identified the woman who was killed as Betty Molina, but gave no further details. Others were injured in the protest, although police had no immediate figures.

Embassy spokesman Michael O'Brien declined to comment on the incident, saying only that "I know nothing about the situation."

On Tuesday, Honduran officials took Juan Ramon Matta Ballasteros from his Tegucigalpa home in a pre-dawn raid and hustled him onto a plane to the Dominican Republic without a passport.

Dominican Republic officials put Matta on a New York-bound flight and he was arrested aboard the jetliner by U.S. marshals, according to U.S. law enforcement officials.

Matta, lodged at the maximum-security federal prison in Marion, Ill., was wanted by U.S. officials for questioning in the 1985 slaying of a U.S. drug agent in Mexico.

The protesters also were demonstrating against the presence of U.S. troops in Honduras last month. President Reagan dispatched the troops at the request of President Jose Azcona Hoyo after a reported incursion into Honduras by Nicaraguan troops pursuing Contra rebels.

Afghanistan withdrawal promised by Gorbachev

Associated Press

MOSCOW-- The Soviet Union and Afghanistan said Thursday agreement is at hand on ending the Afghan civil war and urged that a formal accord be signed in Geneva so the Kremlin can begin withdrawing its troops May 15.

The target date is two weeks before Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev and President Reagan begin their summit in the Soviet capital. Agreement on Afghanistan would resolve an issue that has troubled relations for nearly a decade, prompting a U.S. grain embargo and keeping Americans home from the 1980 Olympics in Moscow.

Gorbachev and Afghan leader Najib issued a joint statement after meeting in the Soviet Central Asian city of Tashkent.

"There is certain to be a signed agreement on political normalization," Tass quoted Gorbachev as saying while he toured a collective farm near

Co-valedictorians chosen for Saint Mary's College

By KATIE KEARNEY
Assistant Saint Mary's Editor

Joan Boutton and Gretchen Gilcrest have been named co-valedictorians for the class of 1988 at Saint Mary's College.

"The co-valedictorians were tied for the highest cumulative grade point average in the senior class," said Teresa Marcy, Assistant to the Vice President at Saint Mary's. The only other time there has been a tie was two years ago, according to Marcy. Boutton and Gilcrest currently have GPAs of 3.86.

Boutton, a business major with a concentration in accounting from Westlake, Ohio, said "I was very surprised when I learned I was co-valedictorian. It's something you really don't think about. I was always seeing people in my classes and thinking they were all so smart, but then you hear news like this, and you realize, 'Wow. I must be pretty smart too.'"

Gilcrest, from Mishawaka, IN, a business major with a concentration in finance, said she was "very pleased and surprised to receive this honor. Both Joan and I believe that the fact that neither one of us has a 4.0 speaks for the competitiveness of Saint Mary's curriculum."

Boutton attributes her academic success to enjoying her major. "Liking my major helped me do well. I enjoyed all my accounting classes, so it wasn't that much of a major effort to do well."

Gilcrest is a member of the Finance Club and administrative vice president of the Saint Mary's

Sale date has been picked for 1988 commencement tickets

By MICHELLE DALL
Copy Editor

Tickets for the 1988 commencement ceremony will go on sale May 9 at the Registrar's Office. Assistant Registrar David Kil said the ceremony, which will begin at 2 p.m. in the Joyce ACC, "will definitely be held indoors," regardless of the weather.

"There will probably be extra tickets for the ceremony, but we still don't know exactly how many will be left over," said Kil.

Last year, a lottery was used to allot extra tickets to interested students. Kil said, "Right now, we're in the process of deciding whether or not we will have a raffle or lottery again."

According to Diane Fitzgibbon, senior class president, "Students indicated on a request form if they wanted two, three or four tickets."

Fitzgibbon said the number of tickets students indicated on the request form will be used to determine the number of seats already allocated at the ceremony. If a lottery is used this year, Kil says the name of each person who turned in a form will be placed in the lottery, and the winners' names will be drawn randomly. Each winner will receive one extra ticket.

Once again, extra seating for guests will be available in the Center for Continuing Education. Fitzgibbon said, "It (the CCE) has approximately 500 seats available. The CCE will basically be used for small children and the elderly, like little brothers and sisters and grandparents. The ceremony can get pretty long for them."

Guests seated in the CCE will "watch a televised version of what's going on at the commencement at the exact same time the actual ceremony is taking place," according to Fitzgibbon.

Fitzgibbon said extra tickets will be available "through the lottery and only through the lottery," but the possibility of students scalping tickets still remains an issue.

Kil said, "The University obviously doesn't condone this practice (scalping). As far as policing goes, however, we do not send personnel out to enforce the policy. It is our intention that students use their tickets for themselves. If they have extra tickets, we hope they use them for relatives or guests."

Although extra tickets are often difficult to obtain, Fitzgibbon said, "It's important for people to realize that, even if their relatives can't get tickets to the commencement, they'll still be able to participate in all of the other activities offered that weekend. They can still stay in the dorms and participate in the dinners."

New task forces are needed for problems

The release of the four task forces' reports this week has generated great interest in the University community.

Rumors of a dry campus, coeducational housing, and the end of drunken tailgaters have filled the dining halls and dorms over the past couple of days.

Student interest seems to be at a premium; University President Father Edward Malloy has requested that students direct comments concerning the recommendations to the proper administrators.

It is impossible to underestimate the importance of these recommendations and the subsequent policies that affect the entire University.

Maybe though, it's time to step back and take a different approach to the task forces in general.

It seems that there are a fair number of students who claim that additional task forces should have been established to face the more important issues in the community.

An informal poll taken Thursday in the dining hall led to findings that more task forces are necessary. Note that these findings are not recommendations, but merely creative and somewhat strange ideas that have been bounced off me.

The first, and most creative, of the task forces that seem necessary is a Task Force on Drainage. This group could concentrate on why puddles all over campus never seem to dry up. Wednesday's rain was enough to call for this force's creation. The sidewalks and roads around campus were a total mess, giving everyone something else to worry about.

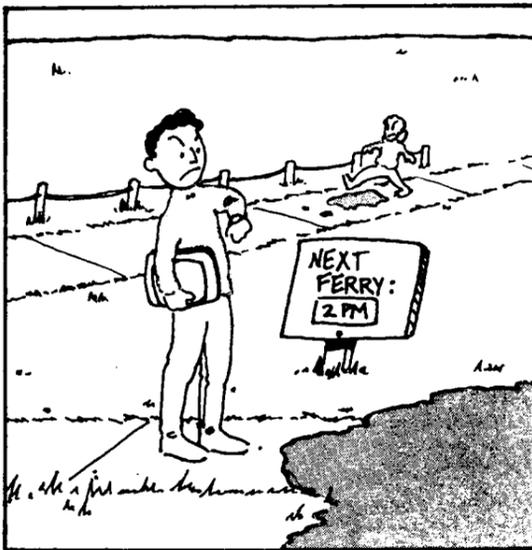

This task force should begin by examining why large lakes form on the beautiful and supposedly flat lawns of North and South Quads. Specific areas of concern should be the pond that Keenan Hall residents have been forced to deal with every spring. The Roto-Rooter man just can't fix the problem properly.

Next on this task force's priorities should be the lake that forms on the sidewalk between the back entrance of LaFortune and Nieuwland Science Hall. Since most everyone on the campus walks through this area sometime during the day, this would seem to be an immediate priority.

The Task Force on Drainage would have to work in conjunction with a Task Force on Delayed Construction. Maybe it's just me, but doesn't it seem that the campus is always under construction? And what exactly is the road running next to Nieuwland that turns into a Moto-cross track every time it rains? The task force could look into the specifics of the road's purpose; then the Task Force on Drainage could work with them on building an efficient draining system until the construction is done. The Task Force on Delayed Construction will have already researched that.

Chris Murphy

Editor-in-Chief

Another task force that has received some mention as a priority among students is the Task Force on the Search for the Indiana Excise Police. This task force would look into where the Excise Police have been this year. Usually, we hear of a major raid at one of the bars (take Lee's Ribs, for instance). It might be a good thing to have this task force find out when the next raid is coming and where it will be.

Along these lines, another possibility would be the creation of a Task Force on Social Life: Is There One? It has been offered that this task force would look into the formidable question of whether or not the term "social life" is even applicable at Notre Dame.

The creation of these four task forces would certainly benefit the students. It also might help to give a different perspective to some of the concerns that have been expressed. If nothing else, it gave me an opportunity to get some pressing concerns off my conscience.

Simon campaign on hold; Gore given warning

Associated Press

Albert Gore Jr. got a message from two Democratic Party heavyweights on Thursday to tone down his criticism of presidential front-runners Michael Dukakis and Jesse Jackson, while Sen. Paul Simon put his campaign on hold but kept his delegates in pocket.

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, one of the Gore critics, implied he might withhold his sought-after endorsement and said, "Who cares what ... Mario Cuomo says?"

Cuomo said he told Gore that his negative campaigning "wasn't helping him" in New York ahead of that state's April 19 primary.

Democratic National Chairman Paul Kirk endorsed Cuomo's appeal to the Tennessee senator. "The admonitions that have been addressed to Sen. Gore by Gov. Cuomo just help to make sure we can continue to talk about the issues in a positive way," Kirk said in Washington, D.C.

But Gore consultant David Garth, a sometime adviser to Cuomo, took exception to the governor's comments. "Big chief, big blanket, sends up big signal - like make nice and roll over," Garth said, adding that he assumed Cuomo was trying to help Dukakis win New York.

Simon, who managed only a primary victory in his home state of Illinois, said he would suspend campaigning, but refused to release his 170 delegates in hopes of influencing the national convention.

"I want to have an impact on who the party nominates," Simon told a Capitol Hill news conference. "I want to have an impact on the whole process there (at the Atlanta convention), and on where we go."

Simon added that he had "no illusions that the nomination will come my way."

But Jackson didn't appreciate Simon's near-withdrawal. As the runnerup to Simon in Illinois, he stood to gain the lion's share of 47 at-large delegates if Simon quit cleanly.

"If one is not in the race one ought to indicate a form of honorable withdrawal at which time whoever got second place in that state will get those delegates," Jackson said, adding that the Illinois at-large delegates "in fact belong to me."

Gore, under attack for criticizing his rivals, charged the Dukakis campaign with fueling a "stop Jackson" movement.

"In South Carolina, Gore said a vote for anybody but him was a vote for Jackson," said Austin. "So if the shoe fits, wear it. He's worn the shoe before."

Professor talks on minority enrollment

By MAURA KRAUSE
News Staff

Professor Gary Orfield of the University of Chicago spoke last night on the "erosion of one of the basic dreams of American life -- the dream of going to college."

Orfield cited statistics concerning minority access to higher education, noting the fluctuating enrollment of blacks and Hispanics.

Orfield mentioned three government policies enacted in the 1960s to help minority students. The "three basic policy thrusts were: a special recruitment and retention act, the civil rights act, and an extension of federal aid." These three policies had minority enrollment during that time period on the rise.

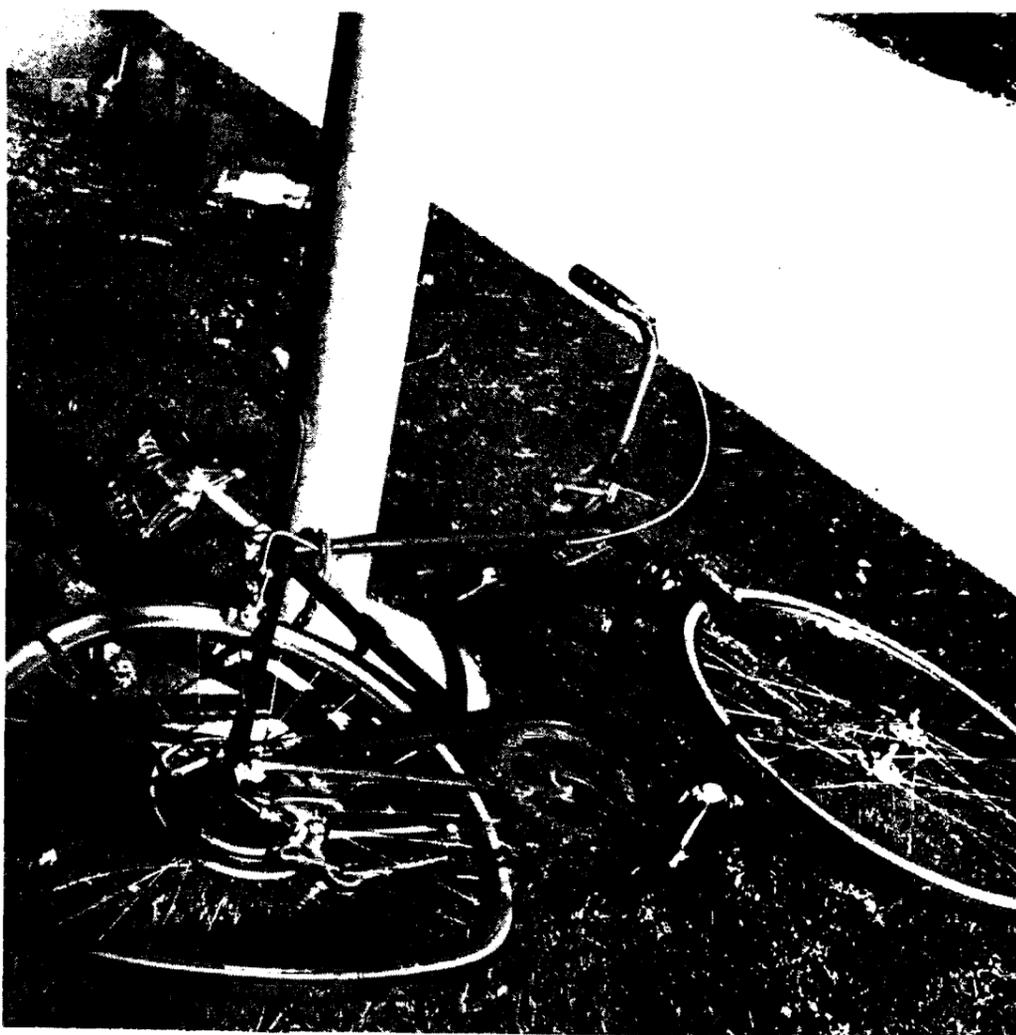

However, under the current administration the three policies have been "put into reverse," and different, less beneficial policies have been put into effect. Today, "financial aid is the number one reason black students leave college, tuition rates are rising faster than the cost of living, and fewer and fewer jobs are available that do not require a college education."

Orfield said "the extremely negative policies seen in the past years will be modified under a new administration." Orfield said that we are "going to have a great national debate over these policies soon."

Orfield's concluded his speech by saying that something must be done to create a "good healthy multiracial society," because, "there is hardly anyone in our society who thinks it is a good thing that a college education is not available to everyone."

Orfield, a professor of political science, was one speaker in a series sponsored by the Hesburgh Program in Public Service. The Hesburgh Program is inviting several speakers to campus, the speakers being either prominent public officials or scholars in public policy, said Professor David Leege, director of the Hesburgh Program.

Orfield was asked to speak on campus because his work has great impact on public policy and the research he does on minority rights is taken seriously, much of it having bearing on court decisions, said Leege.

Justice minister's car stolen at crime talk

Associated Press

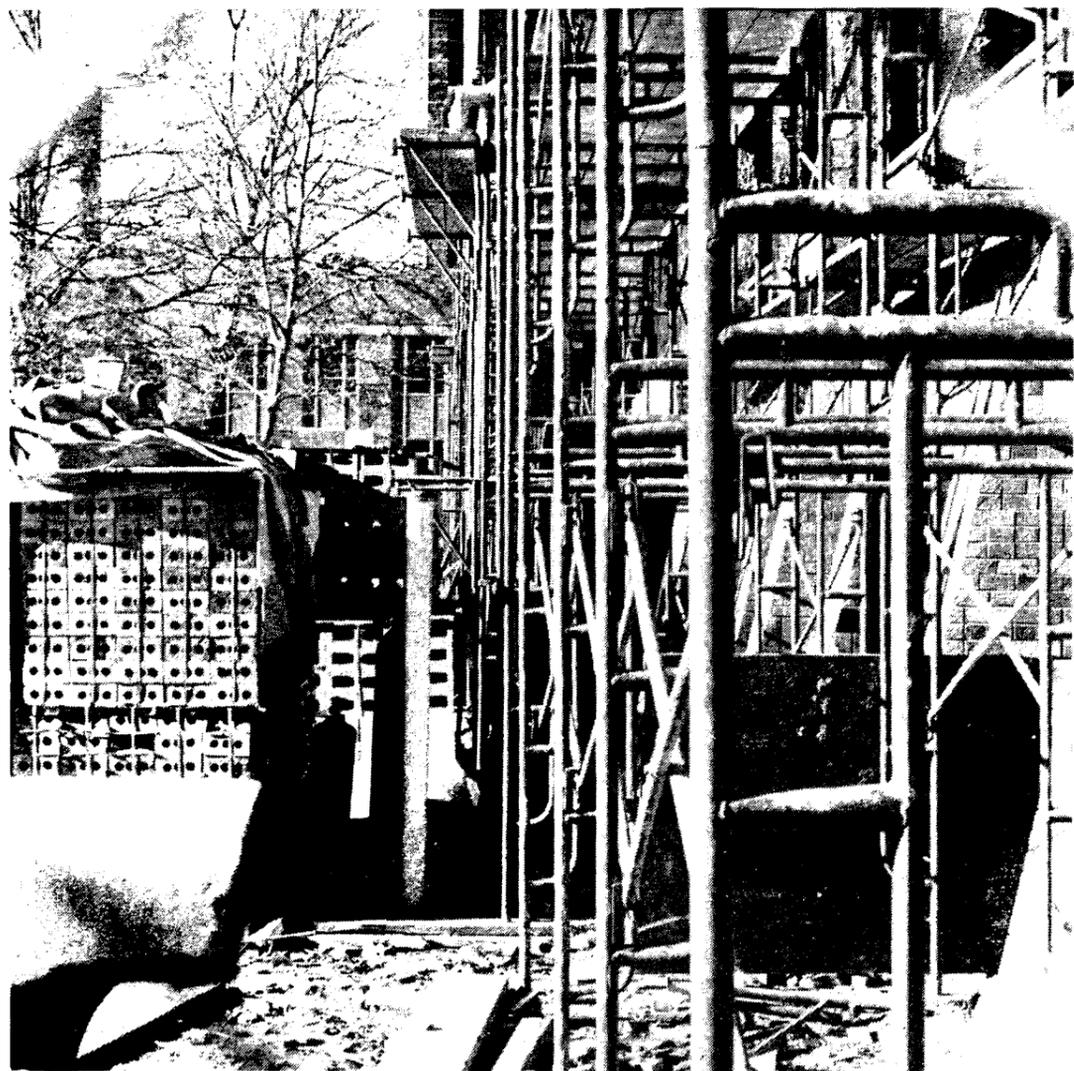

HARARE, Zimbabwe-- Zimbabwe's justice minister said Thursday his car was stolen while he was attending a conference on crime.

Emmerson Munangagwa, minister for justice, legal and parliamentary affairs, disclosed the theft in a speech at the closing session of a two-day conference on bribery, corruption, fraud and theft.

He told the 200 delegates, including jurists and police officers, that the automobile was stolen on Tuesday, the first day of the meeting.

The minister gave no further details, but he urged police to work harder to bring car thieves to justice.

Scholarship named after Hofman

By KATHY ANN JENSEN
News Staff

The officers of the Freshman Advisory Council are sponsoring a $1000 scholarship in honor of Dean of the Freshman Year of Studies Emil Hofman.

This award will be offered to the member of the class of 1992 who demonstrates the greatest amount of financial need and who makes the dean's list at the completion of the upcoming semester. The determination of the recipient's need will be decided solely by the Office of Financial Aid.

Freshman Advisory Council President Mike Locascio said, "Since Dean Hofman has given so much to the freshmen class for the last thirty-five years, we thought his contribution should be recognized and honored in a manner which simultaneously benefits him and a needy freshman student."

In a letter announcing the scholarship, the Council said a problem exists when students of high academic ability want to attend the University, but cannot afford the high tuition and housing costs. Therefore, continued the letter, the members of the Council agreed to use their excess revenue acquired from class fundraisers to help an incoming freshman who might experience such problems.

The plans for the scholarship were revealed to Dean Hofman last week at the "changing of the guard," attended by this year's Freshman Advisory Council's officers and next year's Sophomore Class officers.

"I was overwhelmed and had no idea about the honorary scholarship," said Hofman. "The award was more a tribute to the freshman class that to me, for offering that kind of assistance to next year's class."

Hofman said that this is the first time a freshman class has performed this particular type of action. Hofman said, "I talked to the members of the F.A.C. in the beginning of the year concerning the establishment of a class character."

Although the scholarship is only for the class of 1992, Locascio said he hopes that the other freshman classes will also have excess funds and continue to use their money in such a beneficial manner.

Hijackers refuel, will depart soon

Associated Press

NICOSIA, Cyprus-- Airport workers in northeast Iran refueled a Kuwaiti jetliner and its Arab hijackers said they would take off Friday morning with about 50 hostages held for three days, Iran's news agency reported.

The plane was refueled after the hijackers fired at security guards at the Mashhad airport and threatened to force the pilot to fly with the little fuel left in the jet's tanks, said the official Islamic Republic News Agency.

It first quoted the hijackers as saying the plane would leave at midnight (4:30 p.m. EDT), in a dispatch filed only two minutes before that time, and said later the departure had been delayed until 6 a.m. (10:30 p.m. EDT). No destination was given.

According to IRNA, Iranian officials asked the hijackers for the extension to provide time for the Turkish and Pakistani Prime Ministers, Turgut Ozal and Mohammed Khan Junejo, to talk to Kuwaiti officials in an effort to persuade them to accept the hijackers' demand.

The hijackers, said to number five to seven, want Kuwait to free 17 pro-Iran extremists convicted and imprisoned in the Persian Gulf sheikdom for bombings at the U.S. and French embassies there in 1983.

IRNA, monitored in Nicosia, said Ozal spoke by telephone with Prime Minister Hussein Musavi of Iran on Thursday.

It said Musavi told Ozal his government wanted to end the incident without "any unhappy event," but added: "Of course you should know that our possibilities are limited and therefore we hope the Kuwaiti government will understand the restrictions in the holy city of Mashhad and fulfil its humanitarian duty, in trying to bring the problem to a peaceful end."

Thirty-two people were released from the plane early Thursday and, along with 25 freed earlier, left Mashhad for Kuwait at 1:40 a.m. Friday (6:10 p.m. EDT Thursday), the agency reported.

When IRNA reported the original departure time, it said "there are still obstacles on the runway," placed there earlier by airport officials to keep the jet from taking off.

Israelis bury girl killed in unrest, vow revenge

Associated Press

KARNEI SHOMRON, occupied West Bank-- Armed Jewish settlers vowed revenge Thursday and shouted "Expel the Arabs!" as they buried an Israeli girl killed in a clash with Palestinians in the West Bank. Troops killed an Arab in Beita, the town where 15-year-old Tirza Porat was slain the day before. The army said he disobeyed an order to halt.

Autopsy results released by the army showed that the girl, Tirza Porat, was shot in the head and also struck in the head by a stone or large object. An army official said the cause of death could not immediately be determined.

Shortly after Tirza died Wednesday, the army said she was killed by a bullet, but then said she was stoned to death by Arab villagers. An Israel television report raised the possibility that Tirza was inadvertently shot by Jewish settlers during the clash.

Soldiers arrested hundreds of Arabs and blew up five homes Thursday in Beita, while armed Israeli civilians rampaged through two nearby villages, beating Arabs, breaking windows and firing shots in the air.

The girl, killed during the week-long Passover celebration, was the first Israeli civilian victim of the 4-month-old violence in the territories Israel captured in the 1967 war. At least 141 Arabs have died, according to U.N. figures, and an Israeli soldier was stabbed to death.

Amnesty International holds Apartheid protest

By REGIS COCCIA

A demonstration on the Fieldhouse Mall Thursday highlighted a Human Rights Week sponsored by the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's chapter of Amnesty International.

About 15 students staged the demonstration to raise awareness of Mutile Henri Fazzie, a South African union organizer imprisoned for his political beliefs, said David Baltierra, student coordinator of the campus Amnesty chapter.

A petition to obtain Fazzie's release garnered more than 100 names at the demonstration, Baltierra said, adding that a letter writing campaign Thursday was also held on Fazzie's behalf.

"We started the write-a-thon last year. We'd like to keep it a yearly event," said Baltierra, adding last year's event was held as a fund-raiser and tallied more than 400 letters to international prisoners of conscience.

Baltierra said the chapter's Human Rights Week was held to prepare for the Amnesty International's upcoming Human Rights Campaign. "It's the first time we've done it. On Tuesday, we held a vigil at the Grotto and lit the Amnesty candle, (the organization's) symbol of hope," he said. Other events included a film on capital punishment and an informal discussion with four international missionaries, he said.

The Notre Dame/Saint Mary's chapter was one of the first groups in the United States to join Amnesty International, a non-profit organization with more than 500,000 members worldwide, Baltierra said.

Tashkent after the meeting. "I think both Pakistan and Afghanistan will come to agreement, and that we and the Americans will agree to be guarantors."

The joint communique, distributed by the Tass news agency, published on the front page of the government newspaper Izvestia and read during the nightly news program "Vremya." It omitted the usual criticism of positions taken by Pakistan and the United States at the Geneva peace talks. This omission could mean some behind-the-scenes compromise has been forged.

President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq said the Geneva accords were ready for signing, but U.N. mediator Diego Cordovez indicated problems remained.

"There are very difficult decisions and the only good thing - I think that is important - is that the political will is obviously there to take them," he told reporters in Geneva after the Soviet-Afghan statement was issued. Gulbaddin Hekmatyar, head of the seven-party Afghan guerrilla alliance, said in Islamabad, Pakistan, said it was the "first step toward victory" and a "defeat for the Russians." He said the guerrillas "will try to intensify" the war.

Draft documents in Geneva call for an end to outside aid for the rebels and U.S. officials have pressed for "symmetry," a simultaneous end of Soviet military aid to Najib's government.

Moslem insurgents began fighting in Afghanistan after a Communist coup in April 1978. Soviet military forces entered the country in December 1979 and an estimated 115,000 soldiers now are there to help fight the guerrillas.

Space shuttle will have escape pole

Associated Press

WASHINGTON-- A crew escape system using a 10-foot telescoping pole will be installed in the space shuttle Discovery in time for its scheduled Aug. 4 launching, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Thursday. The pole was selected over another escape system that would use rockets to pull astronauts from the shuttle in case the ship was about to ditch in the ocean.

"The telescoping pole was selected as it has shown to be safer, simpler to operate, lighter weight and easier to support than the tractor rocket system," said Arnold Aldrich, a top shuttle program official.

In case of an emergency while the shuttle is in level, controlled flight, the astronauts would slide down the pole, which would carry them clear of the orbiter tail.

NASA said the pole, 126 inches long and made of lightweight aluminum and steel, is 70 pounds lighter at 241 pounds than the rocket system. Top NASA officials have said all along they were uncomfortable with storing the explosive rockets in the crew cabin.

An escape system using either the pole or the rockets is of limited use and would not have been effective in the explosion of the orbiter Challenger in 1986. It would be of help in the event the shuttle must be ditched in the ocean because it could not reach orbit or a landing field.

The Challenger astronauts died during ascent while the solid rocket boosters were still firing and attached to the shuttle.

New species of dinosaur discovered

Associated Press

CLEVELAND-- The skull of a prehistoric animal has been identified as part of a previously unknown species of compact, meat-eating dinosaur, scientists announced Thursday.

The skull was misidentified after its discovery in 1942 in eastern Montana by an expedition from the Cleveland Museum of Natural History, officials said. It was in storage in the museum's basement when it was noticed by a visiting paleontologist last year.

The museum said the skull is from a previously unknown member of the Tyrannosaurus Rex family of dinosaurs, a ferocious meat-eating animal that roamed the earth some 60 million years ago.

Because of its relatively small size, the new dinosaur has been named Nanotyrannus or "pygmy tyrant" by the scientists who identified it. The Cleveland skull is believed to be the only such specimen of the Nanotyrannus, although teeth have been found in Montana and South Dakota.

"This animal is so different from any other meat-eater that it merits its own branch of the tyrannosaur family tree," said Robert Bakker, adjunct curator of paleontology at the University of Colorado in Boulder.

Bakker grew suspicious of the skull's initial identification as a Gorgosaurus, a primitive and very common meat-eater, during a visit to the Cleveland museum last spring. He worked with two other scientists in determining its identity and their discovery was disclosed in a paleontology publication this month.

The Nanotyrannus resembled the giant Tyrannosaurus Rex but was only about one-third as large and one-tenth as heavy, the scientists said. Bakker said the Nanotyrannus probably weighed less than 1,000 pounds, stood about 10 feet tall, walked on its hind legs and measured about 17 feet from nose to tail.

Amnesty meeting tonight at CSC

Dear Editor:

Every year thousands of people are imprisoned, tortured and put to death unjustly. Every day human rights are trampled in dozens of countries, in-human suffering inflicted on living and breathing human beings all over the world. It is for these people that Amnesty International works. One of these people is Leyla Pacheco, a 20 year old prisoner of conscience from a shanty town in Santiago, Chile. Her account, from a letter smuggled out of a Chilean prison, follows:

"My name is Leyla Pacheco. I was taken prisoner one year ago. I was a senior in high school. On October 23, 1986, some men came to our house, jumping the gate and beating on the door. Once inside, they identified themselves as police and told me to get dressed because I would have to go to the Ministry of Justice. They handcuffed me, and with a gun in my back, forced me into a car. Inside the car they interrogated me using their fists to beat me up, warning me that I would be raped and killed, applied electricity to me and abuse me sexually without raping me. All this by a very grotesque man. We went back to my house and they warned me that if anything happened they would be back to get me, leaving me feeling terrible and with a lot of fear.

"Not one month passed, when they came back again. I was sleeping but they took me anyway, telling my mother they would be back within an hour, which did not happen. They took me to a secret building where they beat me for half of a day. Then they took me to the central headquarters, and treated me as if I were a terrorist, and then to the third military regiment court, leaving me in isolation for five days. After this they declared me guilty under the law of Arms and Explosives Control as a 'helper' to a terrorist combat group (which I am not). At the moment I am still in the San Miguel prison. They (the Human Rights Lawyers from the Vicaria) have asked for me to be set free, but the response has always been that there are things still pending to be investigated. This has been going on one year."

Through the work of Amnesty International, the United Nations and the concerned religious community, Leyla was finally freed on Dec. 18, 1987. Others have not been so lucky, but Amnesty continues to work for the release of prisoners of conscience, such as Leyla, who have been imprisoned without a fair trial and to eliminate torture and the death penalty throughout the world. Tonight at 7 p.m. at the CSC, missionaries from Ireland, Chile, Africa, British Columbia and Nicaragua will share their experiences of injustice to people like Leyla. Please join us in the struggle for human rights throughout the world as we celebrate Amnesty's Human Rights Week at Notre Dame.

Student thanks helpful librarians

Dear Editor:

Like most students here at Notre Dame, I recently had to do some research over in our immense library. I would like to extend a thank you to all those who helped me and others like me, who don't know what they are doing while looking up a particular subject. I asked questions in the periodical section, the information desk, the main desk and the reserve book room. In all these areas I received help quickly and courteously. I was very impressed, especially considering I often went back to the same individual more than once. Notre Dame prides itself on being a warm and friendly place. I am pleased to say that the reputation is well deserved. Thank you again, library personnel.

Mr. Stanford contest slated

Dear Editor:

We would like to take this opportunity to inform you about the Mr. Stanford Contest to be held on Saturday, April 9, at 7:30 p.m. in Washington Hall. Proceeds from this event will be contributed to the Hops Mission Shelter for the Homeless. In an effort to attract as much interest as possible to this event, we have taken the time to mail flyers and invitations to every female undergraduate currently attending Notre Dame and Saint Mary's College. Information concerning how to obtain tickets for the contest are written on the invitations. If for any reason a female student did not receive an invitation, we at Stanford apologize for the oversight, and ticket information is available by calling one of the co-chairmen. It is our hope that we may attract a large turnout at this event, both for the sake of the Hope Mission Shelter and to enliven the event itself. This will be the sixth performance of the Mr. Stanford Contest, and we hope that you will help to make it the most successful one to date. We at Stanford thank you for your support.

Observer neglects Rivers' display

Dear Editor:

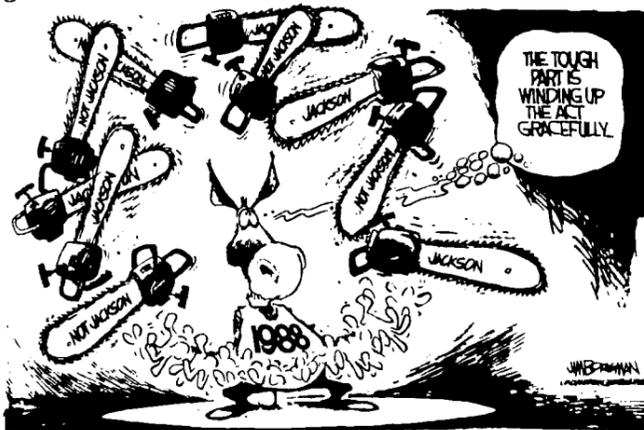

I am very disappointed that you failed to mention in your first issue after Easter vacation anything about last Thursday's Nike NABC Basketball All-Star game featuring none other than Notre Dame's David Rivers. Sure, most everyone knows the news that Kansas won the NCAA tourney in Kansas City last Monday because of your complete coverage, but do many people know that Rivers played in this All-Star game last week? He was not only chosen to play in this post-season contest in K.C., but was also selected as the game's MVP. There's no excuse for neglecting to print this in The Observer. Did you think the news was outdated? Did you think the award was meaningless? Have you also joined the band wagon believing that Rivers is not a first round draft choice, so news pertaining to his "stock" in the NBA draft does not matter?

All of us who were able to see this game (live or on videotape) were treated to an awesome display by Rivers. On paper he did not have exceptional statistics (eight points, nine assists, and three steals), but what Rivers did with the ball on the court defied description. The announcers who called the game, one of them Mr. Dick Vitale, harshly criticized Rivers' play as being too flashy trying to impress the NBA scouts present. As the game progressed they proceeded to eat their own words. One GM and another Director of Player Personnel from two NBA teams both praised Rivers' talent and guaranteed he would be an attractive NBA pick. Throughout the contest Rivers showed his speed, agility, on-court awareness and unselfishness. He was truly deserving of the MVP award.

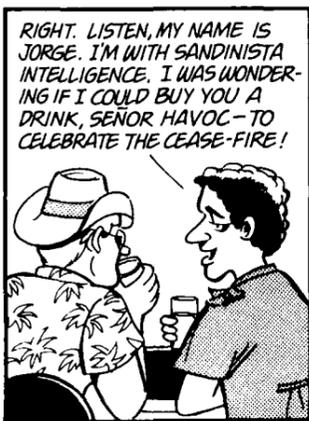

I realize that the timing of our last day of school coincided with such a minor event, so there was some difficulty in following the news. Granted the game was not a championship or not even worthy of more respectable commentators, but I saw it as a fine chance for Rivers to shut up many of his critics and prepare not only for the NBA draft, but more importantly for the Olympics in Seoul, Korea.

Broadway Revived

accent writer

Yes, it is true - Broadway musicals are finally making their appearance here at Notre Dame for the first time in almost five years. The Cultural Arts Commission of the Student Union Board is presenting "Broadway In Concert," a musical performance to be put on today at 8:00 p.m. in Washington Hall.

MUSIC

After years without musicals at Notre Dame, SUB is sponsoring a Broadway revue consisting of 21 musical numbers from a wide range of Broadway productions. Show tunes such as "Don't Cry For Me, Argentina" (from "Evita"), "Summer Nights" (from "Grease"), and "Suddenly, Seymour" (from "Little Shop of Horrors") will be sung by a cast of more than 15 students.

The director, Tom Howley, claims that no central theme unifies the musical numbers. Instead, it was simply a matter of preference on the part of the producer, director and cast members. Under the direction of Howley and producer, Nick Rossi, this production is an attempt to bring back the musical to Washington Hall.

The idea for a revue was thought up by Rossi, who is trying to reorganize a former drama group here at Notre Dame known as the Student Players. Howley describes the production as "simple" in the sense that there are few costumes and little acting done outside of the musical numbers. Hopefully if "Broadway In Concert" is a success, it will lead to the emergence of larger musical productions in the future.

There are no tickets or admission required and seating is on a first come, first served basis.

Festival features top jazz musicians

The judges this year include renowned jazz critic and author, Dan Morgenstern, from the Institute of Jazz Studies at Rutgers University, as well as professional jazz artists Jimmy Owens, Eddie Harris, Mulgrew Miller, John Clayton and Danny Gottlieb. The highly anticipated Judges' Jam will close Friday night's session around 11:30 p.m.

In commemoration of the Festival's 30th anniversary, former Festival chairperson Joe Carey has dedicated a plaque to the cornerblock of the Fieldhouse Mall. Carey has published a book, "Big Noise from Notre Dame," which traces the history of the Festival and notes it as "a potent force in the jazz education world... providing a spawning ground for countless musicians who have gone on to successful professional careers."

The Student Union Board's Cultural Arts Commission is sponsoring the Festival as in past years, when judges included future greats such as David Sanborn, Wynton Marsalis and Roberta Flack. Student discount tickets are available for each of the three sessions or for an All Session Pass ($10).

Tonight's schedule of bands, starting at 7:30, includes the Notre Dame Jazz Band, MIT Jazz Octet, Michigan State Jazz Band I and University of Michigan Jazz Combo Inside Out (plus the Judges' Jam). Saturday afternoon's concert starts at 12:30 and includes the University of Michigan Big Band, Notre Dame Combo, Purdue Jazz Ensemble, Central Michigan Percussion Ensemble, Aquinas College Afternoon Jazz Ensemble and Western Michigan University Jazz Orchestra. Saturday night begins the wrap up the festival at 7:30 with the Eastern Illinois University Jazz Ensemble, California Arts Institute Combo, Ohio State Jazz Ensemble, William Patterson College New Jazz Ensemble and Northern Illinois Jazz Ensemble, plus guest band, Airmen of Note.

Tivoli's offers new nightlife option

accent writer

It's that time of year. Spring is in the air and a young senior's fancy turns to bars. Unfortunately, many veterans of four years of "American Pie," social Gumbo's, cigarette smoke and popcorn are finding themselves tired of the same old night scene.

BAR BEAT

But now there is a new social alternative in South Bend: Tivoli's Videothek. Located about one mile north of campus on U.S. 31 in the North Village Mall, Tivoli's is becoming the local hotspot for Notre Dame seniors who don't like to stay in on weeknights.

Actually the club is not really new, but most students have avoided it in the past because they thought of it as a local bar characterized by "Hot Bod" contests and expensive mixed drinks. But this semester more and more seniors are finding it to be a refreshing change from the usual night out.

The club's growing popularity is due mostly to its dime beer specials on Tuesday and Sunday (yes, Sunday) nights. There is a cover charge (one dollar), but at ten pennies a beer, it's still a bargain for the student on a tight budget.

But Tivoli's popularity isn't due just to its cheap beer. The club itself has a lot going for it. It is huge; even on busy nights there is enough room to move around and getting tables is relatively easy (a welcome surprise for anyone who has fought the crowds at other popular student hangouts.)

The club also boasts a good light show, video monitors and special effects. A live DJ takes requests and provides an interesting mix by playing dance tunes that include technopop, urban contemporary, and top 40.

Another good feature of the club is that it's easy to get drinks; the main bar is large and accessible from three sides, and there is a smaller "shot" bar in one corner. Lines are short and waitresses actually bring drinks to the tables (imagine that.) Another plus is the bathrooms; they are large and relatively clean; they also have real paper towels (a real luxury for people raised on air dryers.) All in all, the club is a real step up from the local bars.

A word to the wise: Tivoli's is tough about checking ID's. Students with out-of-state driver's licenses should bring a second photo ID or be prepared to recite their address and/or social security number. Students with fake ID's should go somewhere else—like Theodore's.

If student interest in Tivoli's continues to grow, the club may bring a whole new meaning to the question, "hey pal, can you spare a dime?"

'Bright Lights' betrays book

KEVIN WALSH
accent writer

When "Bright Lights, Big City" was published in 1984, it was seen as carrying on a long line of American literary tradition and the praise it received was well earned.

MOVIE REVIEW

Using a unique second-person present narration ("You are at a nightclub..."), the novel watches its main character's life hurtle out of control. It struggles successfully with the problems of living sensitively in a desensitizing world.

Author Jay McInerney's smooth internal monologues effectively maintained the novel's delicate balance between the main character's outer facade of control and his inner feelings of futility.

However, the movie version mainly stumbles in using the internal monologues and clever anecdotes of the book sparingly, instead employing dialogue.

Without the reassuring asides of the novel's narrator, the movie leaves too much to the audience and looks shallow.

The film also fails in its attempts to recreate some of the literary subtleties, like the series of resonating images, which in the screenplay, also written by McInerney, tend to bludgeon the viewer.

Despite these problems the movie does a spectacular job of depicting the devastation that drugs can wreak on a life, as well as showing the "glamour" of them. If anything, the movie strikes this balance best of all.

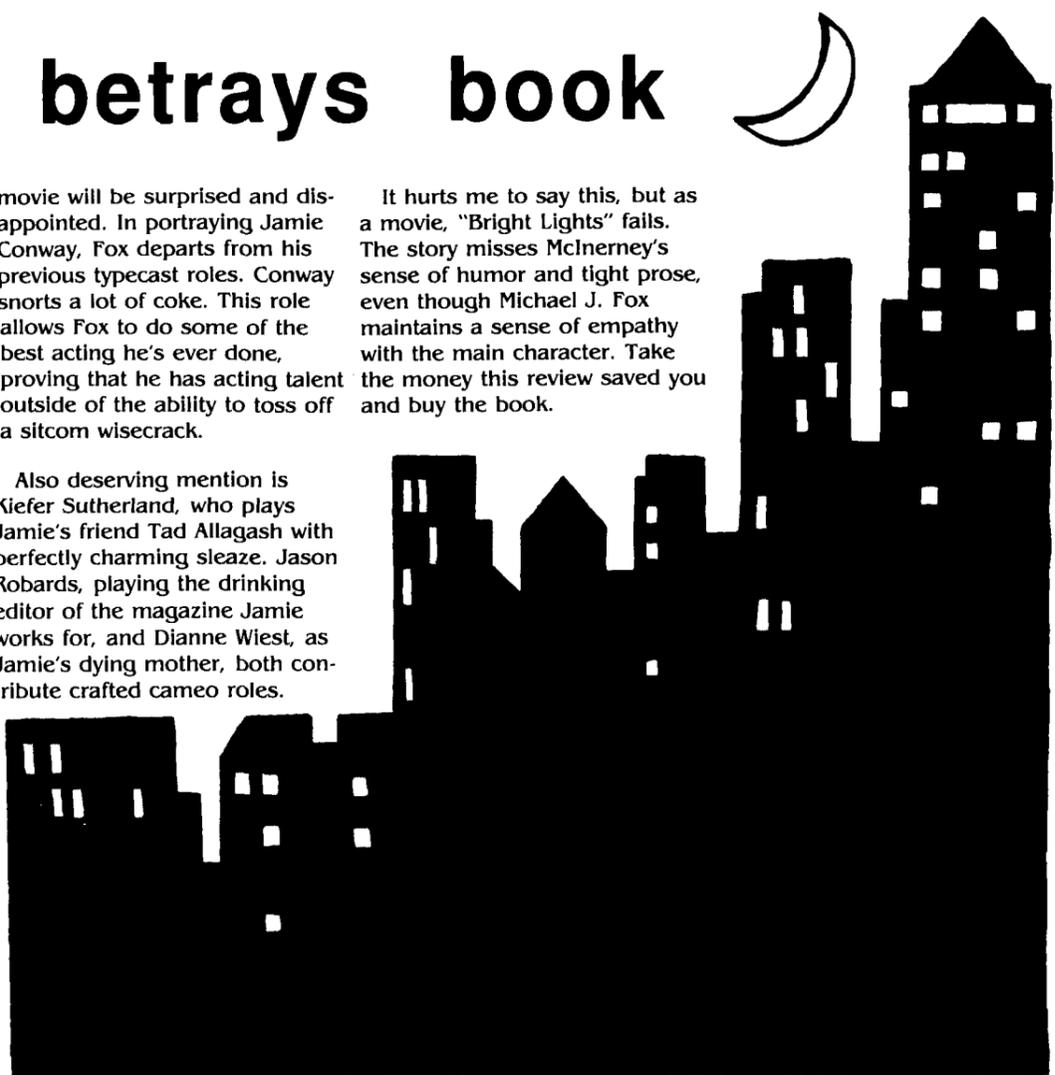

The location shots of New York City and its glamorous nightclubs with their disorienting atmosphere transform the city into an exotic foreign land.

The film also employs well-crafted flashback sequences that develop the characters and enhance the plot. Those who expect Michael J. Fox, who plays the film's lead role Jamie Conway, to be Alex Keaton in this movie will be surprised and disappointed. In portraying Jamie Conway, Fox departs from his previous typecast roles. Conway snorts a lot of coke. This role allows Fox to do some of the best acting he's ever done, proving that he has acting talent outside of the ability to toss off a sitcom wisecrack.

Also deserving mention is Kiefer Sutherland, who plays Jamie's friend Tad Allagash with perfectly charming sleaze. Jason Robards, playing the drinking editor of the magazine Jamie works for, and Dianne Wiest, as Jamie's dying mother, both contribute crafted cameo roles.

It hurts me to say this, but as a movie, "Bright Lights" fails. The story misses McInerney's sense of humor and tight prose, even though Michael J. Fox maintains a sense of empathy with the main character. Take the money this review saved you and buy the book.

A sincere apology for Emily

The following excerpts are from a delightful letter I received this morning. "...in regard to your column in The Observer of March 10...you will be distressed to hear that you have allowed an unfortunate affirmation of sexism in your prose. I refer to the second reference to the poet Emily Dickinson as 'Emily.'

On Easter, my niece, Ann Marie, an '85 graduate of ND now working for a glamorous cosmetics firm on 5th Avenue in Manhattan, mentioned how much harder it is for a young woman to make her way up the corporate ladder -- getting the deservedly appropriate pay, promotions, and salary increases -- than it is for a young professor's wife expects of me, though it will not be easy. Frost, Elliot, and Shakespeare have always been referred to by their surnames, like the boys of a lower form in "Tom Brown's Schooldays."

How appropriate a description for life in Greenwich Village, where she lived in the Twenties, and where I lived for so many summers, in a neighborhood near St. Vincent's hospital. Dylan Thomas died at St. Vincent's, and I went there half-expecting to die myself. Edna Millay was named by her mother after St. Vincent's.

After Miss Millay's death in 1950, should she have become plain "Millay," without a title, as though she had joined the ranks of Tom Brown's school chums, like Frost, Elliot, and Shakespeare? Who now bothers to call them mister?

oh, my friends --/ It gives a lovely light."

"What's in a name? That which we call a rose/ by any other name would smell as sweet." Titles, however, are expendible. I was embarrassed, after ordination, to be called "Father." Now, however, I've grown so old, I'm jolted when a seminarian; fresh from the novitiate, hails me as "Bob."

I've never been "Bob" to my family; those who call me Bob are either priests or strangers who think without reason that they are endearing themselves. They're so far off-base that I fear we will never become close; but if they call me "Griff," we'll be friends forever. Would Father Malloy be happy if those encouraged to call him "Monk" should start addressing him as "Ed?"

My point here is a cautionary tale, heard long ago. A neophyte priest, entering the Corby rec room, greeted one of the mandarin padres of the Holy Cross Community, using his Christian name. The venerable cleric sprang to his feet to rebuff the cub he had known for years: "I'm sorry, Father. I didn't get your name." In the good -- or bad -- old days, the newly-ordained were not expected to be democratic in addressing their seniors.

Now, however, all the rules have changed. I make mistakes, because I don't know what the rules are, except that it's Dickinson, not Emily. Could it be Miss Dickinson, or Ms., or does she forfeit that courtesy by being deceased?

Other kinds of language have changed, too. I used to say Mass. Nowadays, I celebrate the Eucharist or preside at the Liturgy; and it's the sacrament of reconciliation, instead of hearing confessions. I'm afraid of short-changing my vocation, not by losing the Faith, but by no longer understanding what Catholics are talking about.

"Titles, however, are expendable."

Even sin isn't what it used to be, now that the lingo has changed. A relative of mine looked up the historical records, in order to establish her right to join the Daughters of the American Revolution. She found an ancestor of ours who fought in the War for Independence; unfortunately, for the family image, the record showed he was hanged for sodomy.

What's in a name? Ask Doctor Ruth. She could defend the softer names, by which we call the terrible old sins, as a form of liberation permissible between consenting adults.

I enjoyed the "Emily" letter far too much to discuss it under the rubric: "O Tempora! O Mores!" I hope the good professors and their indignant wives will keep the cards and letters coming. As a former male chauvinist of the old school, I promise to "Be not the first by whom the new are tried, Nor yet the last to lay the old aside."

Father Robert Griffin

Letters to a Lonely God

If you will glance at the other second references in the column, you will see 'Frost,' 'Eliot,' and 'Shakespeare.' Why is Dickinson alone referred to by her Christian name? Proper usage requires consistency, and conventional usage calls for the surname alone in a second and subsequent references.... I don't think that I need to spell out the importance of avoiding the condescending (or inappropriately affectionate) use of Christian names for second references to women when one uses surnames for men....

I recall that this is not the first time that I have seen Dickinson referred to as 'Emily' in one of your columns.... While I was offended by your usage, my wife positively saw red. I urge...that...you print a brief apology for what I must call the offensive usage.... My wife would be particularly grateful."

The letter was signed by a member of the faculty.

I do, indeed, apologize for the sexist offense in the column, "Is April the Cruellest Month?", which appeared on the Wednesday before Easter Break. Would the good professor's wife understand that aging curmedgeons like me are confused -- as Queequeg, Melville's primitive in a state of transition, insisting on wearing his fancy-dress hat to bed, was confused -- as well as a little insensitive, over the ground rules of equal rights.

A generation ago, in graduate school, the members of the class I was taking in American poetry were unanimous in referring to E.D. as "Emily," and the teacher, as I remember encouraged the familiarity.

All of us have grown in insightfulness since the days when chauvinism was an error that a boy was taught at his mother's knee. However, the secret I shared with my mother, but kept from my father, was that she was the really clever parent, always two steps ahead of my old man in her discernment of the truths that make men free. (oh dear, that word "men"! Have I set the teeth of the professor's wife on edge again?)

For quite a while now, charismatic or pentecostal Christians have made the rest of us aware of the Holy Spirit, breathing on the Church to keep it alive. In a similar way the women, aggressively resentful of the chauvinism that treats them like second-class citizens, have the men-folk mindful of the injustices resulting from a sexist attitude.

man with matching qualifications.

As a backward male who drags his feet, for the sake of the love I have for my niece, I'm grateful for the gentle rebuke chiding me for the familiarity that addresses the Belle of Amherst as "Emily" instead of Dickinson.

I did think that clarity, which properly identified a person referred to, was the name of the game in writing. "Emily," among American poets, it seemed to me, could stand by itself in a way that the names "Robert," "Tom," and "Bill," referring to Frost, Eliot, and Shakespeare, couldn't do, since those are such unimaginative names.

After mentioning Ralph Waldo Emerson and Henry David Thoreau in a piece of prose, I have called them, in a second reference, simply Waldo or Henry David, but that was probably an offense against rights of a different genre.

I agree in the future to abide by the usage that the good

"...if they call me 'Griff' we'll be friends forever."

Edna St. Vincent Millay, on the other hand, was a poet from Maine, still alive while I was a kid going to school in Maine. We referred to her then as Miss Millay; what else were we to say, since we'd never met her?

I loved her for the lines from "Figs from Thistles," as soon as I was old enough to understand them: "My candle burns at both ends/ It will not last the night/ But, ah, my foes, and

Irish hit home stand, host Purdue, Toledo

By BOB MITCHELL
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's tennis team is heading into the homestretch of its season. The Irish netters will take the court against the University of Toledo and University of Purdue. With five matches remaining, three at home, this weekend will expose them to two types of opponents.

First, on Saturday at 1 p.m., Notre Dame will take on the Lady Rockets of Toledo. The Irish boast a perfect 5-0 record against the Lady Rockets and are looking to extend the streak.

"I hope we can beat Toledo 9-0," said Head Coach Michele Gelfman.

Gelfman hopes that the match against Toledo will allow her team to build confidence and establish its own identity.

"We want to play our own game and make Toledo play us rather than us playing down to their level," said Gelfman.

On Sunday at noon, the Irish will face Purdue, the more formidable opponent of the two. Notre Dame is eager to even up its overall record of 4-5 against the Lady Boilemakers. "This match could go either way," said Gelfman. "I hope we play to our full potential and if we do, we will have a good chance of winning the match."

Gelfman believes that Wednesday's loss to Northwestern will have no effect on the team's performance.

"The match against Northwestern showed that Notre Dame can go head to head with the Big 10," said Gelfman.

Gelfman believes that the success of the team hinges on the quality of play displayed by the doubles combinations.

"All the doubles combinations will set the tone for the entire match" said Gelfman.

Purdue's top players are Erica Adams and Julia Chambers according to Gelfman. However, she insists that Purdue's entire lineup is strong but beatable.

"Anybody can beat anybody on a given day," said Gelfman.

Gelfman noting that the season is winding down hopes that some of her players can accumulate some personal accolades.

"I hope that our players can get a bid to the NCAA Individual Championship in mid-May," said Gelfman.

in 3:50.48, just behind the winning time (3:50.16), and Mike Rogan ran third with a time of 3:51.18.

Other runner-up finishes were turned in by Tony Ragunas in the 100-meters (11:18) and Rick Mulvey in the steeplechase (9:02.04).

This weekend the team travels to West Lafayette to compete in the Purdue Invitational, and several underclassmen should make headlines. Some of the top team members are not making the trip, giving the freshmen and sophomores an opportunity to improve their scores against varsity competition.

Freshmen Barnard, Campano make mark on lacrosse

By PETE LaFLEUR
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame lacrosse team embarks on the second half of its season Saturday night at Kenyon as they try to improve on its school record 7-1 start.

But to get past the Lords the team will need to rely on contributions from many players, including the surprisingly effective freshmen players who Irish coach Rich O'Leary says give Notre Dame a leg up on other teams.

"We've shown other teams that we have young people that are ready to play," O'Leary said. "That helps because it pushes the upperclassmen who maybe felt too secure and it also makes practices more challenging every day so that the team plays at a higher level."

Middie John Campano and defenseman Dave Barnard have particularly stood out among the freshmen players. They have both played in every game and Barnard is one of only six players to have seen time in every quarter this season.

Barnard, who scored a goal against Michigan, has played primarily on the defensive middle line, which consists of a defenseman and two middies who shuttle in as the opposition comes down on attack. Although Barnard has had little previous experience at d-middie, O'Leary said his consistently solid play is a reflection of the freshman's maturity.

John Campano

"In high school Dave had more experience at 'close defense' than at d-middie and, although he's made some mistakes, that only makes him work harder," O'Leary said. "Dave has a lot of maturity, which is important on defense, and I think he could fill-in for anyone without there being a letup in play."

O'Leary said that Campano, who plays on the second middle line, has likewise made key contributions to the team. Most recently, Campano and junior Mark Rizzieri had to take over on face-offs against Lake Forest because of an injury to starter Art Brady. Campano was successful on all seven face-offs in the Irish victory over the Foresters and he has converted 60 percent of his attempts this season.

"When we've needed John to face-off he has come in and done a very good job. He has shown from the beginning that he is very good on ground balls and that he won't let the other guy get the ball—he has a drive to do that," O'Leary said.

Capano gave the credit for his face-off success to Brady, who has won 65 percent of his attempts. He also said that assistant coach Dave Cerny has helped him with his shooting, which has netted Capano four goals on six shots.

Barnard, meanwhile, sees the interaction of the entire defense as that which makes his adjustment easier. The Irish defense has given up an average of seven goals per game (relatively low for lacrosse) and has held on man-down situations 75 percent of the time.

The challenge of tougher competition begins Saturday at Kenyon. The Irish have never lost to the Lords in seven games. But Kenyon only lost three players off of last year's squad that lost to the Irish in the fourth quarter of last year's 15-11 final.

Additionally, Kenyon employs a zone defense that recently held Ohio Wesleyan (one of the top 10 teams in the country) to eight goals. Thus, O'Leary said the Irish will have to bring the ball upfield quickly on clears and in the transition game.

Sophomore attack Dave Carey should also be a key as he starts his first game for injured senior Jeff Shay, who is third on the team in scoring.

Bill Groble had 10 points for The Ten of Us.

What a difference a year makes for Madsen

By GREG GUFFEY
Sports Writer

Erik Madsen pitched only eight innings in three games last season, working solely out of the bullpen. He posted a 0-1 record with a 10.53 earned-run average while fighting a back injury.

But, oh how times have changed for the Irish hurler.

Madsen joined the starting rotation this spring and has been the most impressive pitcher on the Irish staff. He currently sports a 5-2 record with a 2.84 ERA. Madsen admits he didn't know what to expect when making the move from the bullpen, but things are turning out to his liking.

"I started two games as a freshman and didn't fare too well," Madsen said. "I just wanted to pitch. It's just getting mentally prepared from the start of the game. It makes me feel like I have more control of the game. It's pretty much my game to win or lose."

Madsen's early-season statistics have left a good impression on first-year Irish coach Pat Murphy.

"I'm more than pleased with Erik Madsen," Murphy says. "He hasn't been a surprise, but we didn't expect that at the halfway point he would have thrown 57 innings. He's a competitor."

Murphy hopes Madsen and the other Irish hurlers are in top form this weekend when the team travels to Cincinnati for four games with MCC foe Xavier. The Irish stand 16-13 and are three games over .500 for the first time since the 1982 campaign.

Notre Dame split a doubleheader with the Musketeers last season and is 6-10 against them as a member of the MCC. The Irish need a good showing this weekend to increase their chances for a spot in the MCC playoffs at the end of the year.

"Every game is important to us right now," Murphy said. "We've got to play the same type of team baseball we've been playing. We're not concerned about what the other team is doing, but about what we do. We're a long way from being a good team."

Madsen credits his emergence as the dominant Irish pitcher to his hard work in the off-season and the arrival of Murphy. Madsen likes the energetic and helpful style Murphy employs as coach.

"Coach Murphy came in with a totally different style of pitching," Madsen said. "Coach (Larry) Gallo didn't help the pitchers that much. Coach

Murphy tries to help us out with something every day. He has a good philosophy on pitching. Coach Murphy knows what he wants to do and he gets it done."

With the addition of pitching coach Mike Gibbons earlier this week, Madsen can expect more advice than ever before. Gibbons pitched for Miami (Fla.) and was part of the Hurricanes' 1986 national championship team. Gibbons compiled a 2.15 ERA and recorded 10 saves last season for Miami.

"He's been a real help already," Madsen said. "I've learned to throw inside to right-handed batters and keep the ball down. We didn't have that last year. Coach Murphy and Mike are giving us helpful hints every day."

Madsen came to Notre Dame from a high school that did not even field a baseball team. He gained experience by playing for American Legion teams in the summer and compiled a 15-7 record during two seasons. He came to Notre Dame not expecting to play baseball.

Fellow pitcher Mike Harmon convinced Madsen to try out for the squad, and he decided to give it a shot.

This year's Irish team can be glad that Madsen was one of those five that remained on the roster.

EXTRA BASES - Murphy has declined an offer to coach the Dutch National baseball team in the 1988 Summer Olympics in Seoul, South Korea. Originally, Murphy intended to coach just the Olympics, which would involve missing only two weeks of Irish fall drills. The Dutch insisted that he coach the team during its pre-Olympic schedule which meant Murphy would miss the entire fall season.

"This was one of the toughest decisions I have ever had to make," Murphy said. "Being part of the Olympics would have been a tremendous experience, but I have a commitment to the Notre Dame baseball program and I intend to follow through on that commitment."

Irish take two in Annapolis

By ROB PIERCE
Sports Writer

Two out of three ain't bad. The cliché is apropos for the Notre Dame men's track team after its performance this past Saturday in a meet at Annapolis against Syracuse, LaSalle, and the Naval Academy.

The Irish easily outran the Orangemen, 105-23, and the Explorers, 116-6, but could not catch the Midshipmen, falling 94.5-54.5.

The Irish were paced by the performances of junior Ron Markezich and senior Dan Garrett, who tied for first place in the 5000-meter run with a time of 14:12.66

The two teamed to outdistance a field which included Merrick Jones of Syracuse, a rival from their high school days and one of the top runners in the East, who finished third.

"We worried about Jones," said Garrett, "because we knew he'd be tough. But we were all alone at the end so we just finished together. There was no need to race ourselves."

The high jump was also a strong event for the Irish, as two freshmen made impressive showings. John Cole won the event with a leap of 6'10", and Rob Graham tied for third with a 6'4" mark.

"We push each other in practice and during meets," remarked Cole. "With both of us in the competition, we seem to jump better."

The Irish were victorious in two other events on the afternoon. Jeff Smith soared 23'2" to win the long jump, and Glenn Watson captured the 110-meter high hurdles race in 14.44.

A photo finish highlighted the 800-meter run, where 0.2 seconds separated the top two finishers. David Warth of Notre Dame crossed the line second in 1:52.92, while teammate Paul Dovair finished third in 1:53.81.

The Irish came up just short again in the 1500-meter run. Mike O'Connor finished second

Bookstore bounces through first round

By PETE SKIKO
Assistant Sports Editor

Bookstore Basketball XVII continued to ramble through the massive round of 512 yesterday as comparatively calm conditions made for quicker, more skillful games.

That's not only good for the players, but for the commissioners as well.

"When the weather's bad, we lose an assistant commissioner (Todd Wagenblast) because he can't get the cast on his broken arm wet," said Tournament Commissioner Mike Manning. "We need all the help we can get out there, especially during the early rounds."

Yesterday's play marked the return of All the President's Men, temporarily without the services of University President Monk Malloy. If his team continues on, Malloy will miss the first few games because of prior commitments. But All the President's Men carried on quite well in their leader's absence yesterday, crippling Why You Walking Funny?, 21-9. Mike Bregenzer scored eight points for the winners.

In other action from Stepan courts yesterday, The Mules kicked The Nobodys, 21-8; Steve Nicgorski's Who's Next... squad demolished M. Jordan, Ed Edwards, 21-3; Cool Guys on Asphalt steamrolled over The Bamms and 2 Other Guys, 21-13; and The 5 Amigos dissected Sphinky and the Gerbils, 21-18.

Also, Four Brothers and a Sweet J sat on 4 Stools and a Smoot, 21-19; Party at Chips When We Lose drained The Plumbers, 21-10; Students of the Game clubbed Save Baby Seals, Earn Valuable Prizes, 21-12; and, in one of the day's best games, it was Irish VM III over Lisa P. and 5 Guys Who Need to Be Spanked, 24-22, behind Bill Delaney's 11-point performance.

Elsewhere, in a bit of a surprise, The Witty Linguists (previously The Cunning Linguists), a final 64 entrant last year, dropped a 21-12 decision to The 10 of Us. Kolin McCarter of The Linguists, who led his team with four points, tried to sum up the problem.

"I suppose you could say we had somewhat of a kind draw last year," said McCarter, whose team has stuck together

Men's tennis team faces highs and lows

By GEORGE TRAVERS
Sports Writer

It has been an up and down week for the Notre Dame men's tennis team. After upsetting Hawaii last week, the Irish have lost two straight. The team is now 13-9.

Hawaii came into Notre Dame last Thursday as heavy favorites over Notre Dame. The highlight of the match came in the number one singles match, in which Notre Dame sparkplug Brian Kalbas came back after being down 4-1 in the third set to defeat Steve Casey 5-7, 7-6, 6-4.

The Irish clinched the victory in doubles action with a win again by Kalbas and his freshman partner Ryan Wenger. The final score was 5-4 in favor of the underdog Irish. Hawaii fell to 18-11.

On Saturday Notre Dame faced its toughest match of the year against Ball State. The match was scheduled to be played outdoors on the Courtney Courts but was moved into the Eck Pavillion due to rain. The Irish came up short, losing 7-2. Irish coach Bob Bayliss feels there were some highlights despite the loss.

"Ball State is the best team on paper that we face all year. I was hoping we could pick up some momentum after the Hawaii victory, but Ball State is one of the best teams in the country and we played respectably. Mike Wallace played his best match of the year in beating Todd Hershey 3-6, 6-1, 6-2. Paul Odland also played well."

Indeed, Odland has been on a tear ever since the Spring Break trip. The freshman has a personal record of 7-2 and has moved up to the sixth spot on the team. Against Ball State, Odland crushed Mike Raymond in straight sets 6-3, 6-1.

On Wednesday the Irish took to the road, travelling to Michigan State where they dropped an extremely close match to the Spartans, 5-4. For Notre Dame, the highlight of the singles play came when Wenger edged the Spartan's Rich Nescoe 6-2, 6-7, 6-4. In the final doubles game, the Irish lost in a tiebreaker 7-5, despite another fine performance by Brian Kalbas. This tiebreaker loss cost the Irish the match, and Michigan State improved its record to 8-2.

Notre Dame next takes to the courts in an away match against Southern Illinois. The match is scheduled for Saturday at Carbondale. Southern Illinois will be looking for revenge, after losing to the Irish earlier this year.

Football changes keep the fans guessing

Some strange things have been happening on the football field this spring.

Position changes and re-changes are confusing onlookers on a regular basis, and most of the coaches are not about to declare any of the moves permanent ones.

Of course, experimenting always has been one of the most popular spring drills for college coaches. It just seems that this spring has been an excessively strange one at Notre Dame.

Whether firm answers or just more questions surface in the final eight sessions of spring drills remains to be seen. The only thing we at The Observer can count on is that we'll be asked to answer some of those unanswerable questions as fans and alumni continue to call in search of all the details.

They call from all over the country. Come fall the phones really start ringing, but by then the responses are easier.

As for the spring, well:

Hello, I was hoping you could tell me what's been going on in spring football.

I've been hoping I could do that myself all spring. Why don't you just throw some questions at me and I'll see what I can do.

Sounds good. Is Tony Rice going to start?

Hard to say. He's been spending the most time with the first team, but Kent Graham and Steve Belles have had their chances, too.

How have Rice and Graham looked?

Hard to tell. At first glance you might not think they've looked very sharp at all. A lot of passes are hitting the ground or the defense before they touch any receivers' hands. But they haven't had any protection from the offensive line and the receivers still need some work, too.

Who's filling all those empty spots on the offensive line?

Hard to say. Just about everyone, to tell you the truth. Jeff Pearson will be the only returning starter this year. Andy Heck has moved to tackle from tight end, and after that you need great eyes to keep track.

Coach Holtz says the possibility exists that each of the five starters on the offensive line against Michigan will be new to their position.

Well can you at least tell me who will replace Chuck Lanza at center?

Oh, that's easy. Mike Heldt. Or Tim Grunhard. Or Dave Prinzivalli. Probably one of those three.

Well I can see where the line would have trouble replacing last year's crop. Will it be Mark Green and Pat Terrell at receiver?

Hard to tell. Green has looked exceptional at times, but he's also been running a few plays back at tailback. Terrell has been playing safety instead of split end lately, and tailback Ricky Watters has run a couple plays at receiver in the past week. Got it?

Yes, I see. Are things just as easy to figure out on defense?

Actually, things look much more stable on defense. The defense has been dominating the scrimmages, but I'm sure they have their share of confusion with new coaches in the secondary and on the line.
