Hijackers threaten to kill passengers in Cyprus

Associated Press

LARNACA, Cyprus--The hijackers of a Kuwaiti jumbo jet offered to trade passengers for fuel Sunday and threatened to crash the aircraft into Kuwait's royal palace. They also warned of a "slow and quiet massacre" of their hostages if their demands were not met.

A flight engineer said the hijackers, who are demanding the release of 17 pro-Iranian terrorists imprisoned in Kuwait, had started to hurt one of the passengers.

It is believed there are still 53 people aboard the Kuwait Airways Boeing 747, including three members of Kuwait's ruling Al-Sabah family and at least six hijackers.

In Lebanon, a pro-Iranian group threatened to kill kidnapped American and French hostages if any attempt was made to storm the plane.

A statement from the Islamic Jihad terrorist group was delivered to the Reuters news agency in west Beirut, along with photographs of journalists Terry Anderson, an American, and Jean-Paul Kauffmann of France.

"To the families of the hostages, we declare that we shall execute the Western captives in Lebanon if the plane and holy warriors (hijackers) aboard are subjected to any military foolhardiness," the statement said.

In Cyprus, the Arab hijackers, who have killed one passenger since seizing the plane Tuesday, threatened to kill their captives, but a noon deadline passed without any additional slayings.

One minute before a second deadline expired four hours later, the engineer, relaying the hijackers' messages to Larnaca Airport control tower, said: "they've already started to hurt one of the passengers." He gave no details.

Later, the hijackers offered to free 20 of the passengers in return for fuel, but that was rejected at Kuwait's insistence.

Negotiators talked with the hijackers for 20 minutes late Monday and Cypriot government spokesman Akis Fantis said, "There was an important contact right now, and by tomorrow morning we shall know the result that we would hope to be what we wish to have."

"It's the same offer always, the release of the hostages for fuel," he said.

Input plan ready to go

By MARK MCLAUGHLIN
News Editor

A plan for student government to gather student response to the recently released task force reports was discussed in a special meeting on Friday. Student Body President Tom Doyle asked for support from the newly elected Hall Presidents' Council, district student senators, and class presidents.

He said the role of student government concerning the reports was "to stand up for the rights and the interests of students. Student government is where those types of issues are addressed."

The plan was split into three parts, said Mike Paese, student body vice president. Paese said "The focus of this entire effort is going to be in two areas -- that every student should have the opportunity to express themselves both orally and in written form."

The first part of the plan proposed a series of hall meetings. The hall president, the district student senator, an invited member of each task force, and an invited member of the administration would be at each hall meeting. Minutes from each meeting would be compiled and sent to University President Father Edward Malloy, said Paese.

"If the hall presidents, number one, can't get a turnout in their hall, and number two, can't effectively facilitate the discussion, then we have failed from the outset," said Paese.

The second part of the plan was a student survey on the task force reports. "We're going to have a questionnaire which is sent out to every student at the University . . . These will eventually be compiled, summarized, and put into a report," said Paese. This report would also be sent to Malloy, he added.

The plan also proposed that "the most clear and relevant responses will be put into The Observer in space that student government will buy," said

Lopez named new ND leprechaun

By REGIS COCCIA
News Editor

The Fighting Irish have a new leprechaun.

Ray Lopez, a junior from Alice, Texas, won a close two-day competition Saturday to become Notre Dame's 1988-89 mascot.

Next year's cheerleaders were also announced Saturday.

"We had a really tight race going -- it was so close," Lopez said. "It's a great feeling. I put a lot of time and effort into it. I have a lot of people to thank. My friends really came through for me and my family was backing me the whole way," he said.

"It's going to be a challenge.

There's something special in what (the leprechaun) represents and I hope I can exemplify that."

The competition was rated by 10 judges from the Universal Cheerleading Association, the Notre Dame Athletic Department and past cheerleading squads, said current leprechaun Brian Stark.

Competitors were required to perform the Irish jig, gymnastic stunts, an improvisational entertainment routine, and an original skit. Judges also interviewed each competitor.

Lopez said he acted out a skit with the help of his friends in which he taped a rainbow across the gym in the Joyce

ACC and danced his way to a pot of gold at one end, from which he pulled a national championship banner.

For his 40-second improvisational routine, Lopez said he spun a basketball on a pencil and break-danced to Elvis Presley's tune, "Jailhouse Rock."

Lopez will officially assume the duties of leprechaun at the Blue-Gold football game in about two weeks, said Stark. "I'll meet with (Lopez) and pass some of the traditions, such as the shillelagh and some of the other secret things that go from leprechaun to leprechaun," Stark said.

Margo Ball will captain the women's cheerleading team that will include returnees Sinead Rigney, a junior, sophomore Kristin Komyatte and new members Claudia Limardo, Michelle Paraiso and Keilleen Phelan. Kathleen Kelley will serve as alternate.

The men's squad is captained by junior John Romney and includes returnee Geoff Kohles and new members Fred Achehar, Nick Farmer, Don Gomez and Todd Parker. Brendan Teehan is alternate.

The cheerleaders and leprechaun will hold daily practices to prepare for the upcoming Blue-Gold game, said Gomez. Before the fall semester begins, the squads will have a week of practice and attend a weeklong cheerleading camp.

Little Leaguer's catch makes playing worth it

How many of us can remember back to the days in fifth and sixth grade, when members of the opposite sex had cooties and candy bars were only a quarter?

About this time of year was my least favorite because of one thing: Little League. I hated it and my parents made me go. Mom thought I was cute and Dad wanted me to be good at it. I guess most parents feel that way.

Our league had real live kid pitchers that were expected to come somewhere near the strike zone. They didn't. I got hit once and that was all it took to rid me of any desire to play the game.

Most of the time I stood out in right field in the daisy patches, staring up at the sky or at the bumblebees. I was in the 'B' league for lesser players ('B' is for Bad, the A-leaguers said), and so I didn't see too many balls hit my way. Pretty boring.

The game has changed a lot since I sat through it. My little brother is in Little League now, and enjoys it immensely when he's not out skateboarding or causing trouble.

They don't have 'A' leagues and 'B' leagues anymore. Everyone gets to play, by league rule. Kids still pitch, but they pitch only three innings a game and only six innings a week.

The Pioneer league, for younger kids, is even better. Kids don't pitch at all, coaches toss up slow pitches over the plate. No score is kept in Pioneer games. There's lots more practice and instruction and lots less competition and unreasonable expectation. They don't even call it a league. It's a baseball clinic, where kids learn to play baseball. Competition can wait until Little League, and even then it's low key.

Some people would say that we shouldn't treat these kids with kid gloves, that we should make them compete because 'the real world is like that.' That doesn't teach competition, not at age eleven. That teaches kids to hate the game, or at least playing it. I hated it because it was forced on me without much coaching and even less teaching.

My brother loves the game, even says he wants to be on the Mets when he grows up. That's what Little League is for. He enjoys the game because he was taught it, not thrown into it.

It's too bad that there are probably still coaches and parents and older brothers and sisters out there who push their budding prodigies into hating baseball. People are actually believing the old cliché: "It's not whether you win or lose, it's how you play the game."

That Vince Lombardi stuff about "winning isn't everything. It's the only thing" is fine for men and women. Boys and girls can't handle it, or at least shouldn't have to.

I certainly didn't handle it. I didn't even stay in the batter's box when my peer's pitching was on the inside half of the plate.

There was one day, though, where I actually enjoyed myself. I had gotten a walk and an actual hit, my only one of the season. But my right field play was the highlight of the day. Two men on, tied up in the fourth. Someone actually hit a blooper to right field, and I ran in and picked the ball off the top of the grass, a shoestring catch.

The coach was stunned. So was the other team. I flipped the ball to the mound in my best imitation of a calm, cool big leaguer and went in to the bench with quite a grin on my face. Maybe Little League was worth it for me, too.

Cracks form down middle of Student Center

By JIM WINKLER
Staff Reporter

The cracks in the walls and floor in LaFortune Student Center are the result of complications during renovations last year and present no danger to the people who use the building, said Don Dedrick, director of Notre Dame's Physical Plant.

The problem in LaFortune occurred along the area where the new addition to the building was joined to the existing structure. On the third floor, the damage is most visible, as many floor tiles are cracked and a gap has opened along the base of the wall. The floor in the new section is slightly higher than the floor in the old part.

Dedrick said the cracks came about because water soaked into the cement while the extension was roofless during its construction last year. This made it difficult for the cement from the new building to settle evenly with that of the existing part. As the cement dried out, the cracks developed, Dedrick said.

"It is difficult to build a structure on to an existing piece as old as LaFortune," he said, adding "You usually leave a little space between the old and the new parts so that it can expand."

The repair work for LaFortune will be handled by Notre Dame and will be paid for by the University, Dedrick said. The company that handled the LaFortune renovations, Wright Construction Company, is not liable or responsible for the damage, he added.

Work to repair these cracks will begin after school has finished for the year, Dedrick said. "It's not really a big problem, and so there is no reason to disturb the students by doing work now," Dedrick said. The cost of the repairs has not been finalized, but it will not be that expensive, Dedrick said.

Exactly how the building will be repaired has not yet been determined. According to Dedrick, one option is to fill the cracks and repaint the walls, while putting new tiles down on the floor. Brother Francis Gorch, the building manager in LaFortune, said that another option would be to sand down the floor, eliminating the slight differential between the old and new parts. Carpeting would then be put down on the third floor. The second floor of LaFortune is already fully carpeted.

Several other buildings on campus have already or are currently receiving additions, but Dedrick discounted the likelihood of similar damage occurring. "It is possible in the Law School, but it will be to a lesser extent. It is always a possibility when you add onto an old building," Dedrick said.

Cracks in the walls and floor of LaFortune Student Center have appeared recently along the area where the new addition was added about two years ago.

The growing gorge will be fixed over the summer and poses no risk. Story at left.

Campus construction projects running on schedule

By JIM WINKLER
Staff Reporter

All three of the current construction projects on campus are on or ahead of schedule, according to Don Dedrick, director of Notre Dame's Physical Plant.

Both of the new dorms will open as scheduled this August, Dedrick said. Siegfried Hall, next to Pasquerilla West, is two-thirds complete. According to Dedrick, the exterior is all but finished, and the top two floors are "essentially complete." Knott Hall is not as far along as Siegfried, but will be finished in time to house students next fall.

These new dorms will house women, both freshmen and transfers from other dorms. According to Dedrick, the dorms have been modeled after the neighboring Paasquerillas. Each dorm will be air-conditioned, and will consist of three living floors and a ground floor of social space.

Dedrick said that the dorms will each consist of two wings on each floor. "This will divide each floor into two sections, each with its own lounge, bathroom, and showers," Dedrick said. In addition, there will be lounge space on each floor where the two wings meet.

That is also the location of the elevator.

On the front of North Dining Hall, Dedrick said, two additions to dining areas are under construction. Each of these will be bi-level and will be "full of sunlight" Dedrick said.

"On the east side of these additions, there will be a lot of glass, and the west side will be open also," Dedrick said. Students will have the option of dining on either level, Dedrick said.

In addition to adding dining space, the renovation team is modernizing the serving capacities. In each dining room, a scramble area similar to what exists in South Dining Hall will be constructed.

"We have to strip everything from the serving areas because it was obsolete. We also had to improve the air systems, electrical work, and plumbing," Dedrick said.

As the weather continues to improve, Dedrick said, work will rapidly increase. "As soon as the ground dries out, we can put in the curbs and walkways," Dedrick said. The only problem that was encountered was in the delivery of limestone for the exterior, Dedrick said. "We had some problems with delivery, but the exterior is done now."

The work at North Dining Hall is presently ahead of schedule, said Dedrick. "All of the work will be done by October, but we anticipate that two of the three serving areas and all of the dining areas will be completed by next fall," Dedrick said.

The renovations at North are extensive, according to Dedrick. "Much of the building and its equipment was obsolete, and had to be replaced. In addition, we are adding to the existing structure in four different places," said Dedrick.

On the north and south sides of the building, special dining areas are being added. These will open into the existing rooms on each end and will have wood floors and a fireplace.

"We hope they will be good party spaces for dorms or sections or clubs," Dedrick said.

The newest construction undertaking is an extension project for Nieuwland Science Hall. A three-story and basement addition will be operational by June of 1989, said Dedrick. Bids for the work will open May 10, 1988, and construction should begin by this June.

Dedrick said that the renovation would serve to upgrade the facilities for the physics department and the College of Science. The basement will house the University's administrative computer system. The system is presently split between the library and the Administration Building.

According to Dedrick, the first floor will house rooms for physics classes. On the two floors above, the renovations will include offices and labs. Dedrick said that this will allow the space now occupied by classrooms and offices to be used for research.

The extension will not bear the name of any donor or benefactor, according to Dedrick. "The source for the funds is internal," Dedrick said.

The extension to Nieuwland will run parallel to the existing building, and will not interfere at all with the Clarke War Memorial, according to Dedrick. Also, the cornerstone monument that commemorates the old Notre Dame fieldhouse will not be moved.

The only existing facility affected by the renovation is the road from the library to the back of LaFortune Student Center

Office sponsors workshops, intervention plans

By TAMRYN J. ETTEN

Three alcohol awareness workshops, sponsored by the Office of Alcohol and Drug Education, will address alcohol abuse and intervention, said David Dannison, the office's director.

The workshops, which begin Tuesday, will include a question and answer forum, group discussion, as well as role playing, where audience members will be asked to participate. Current members of Notre Dame's Student Intervention Team will also participate in role playing, said Helen Janss, a member of the team.

The workshops will also serve to recruit and train students who are interested in becoming members of Notre Dame's Student Intervention Team.

The intervention team was formed last spring and currently has six members trained to provide information to students who are concerned about a friend's drinking. "The team is also available as a resource to perform an informal alcohol intervention," said

Janss.

Informal intervention is a technique where the team member does not meet the person whose drinking behavior is in question, said Janss. The team member simply counsels the friend, family member, or spouse on ways of conducting his own intervention.

The intervention process will be done anonymously with the initial contact made through an answering machine, Janss said.

The alcohol awareness workshops will be run by Barbara Noser, executive director of the South Bend Alcoholism Council.

The workshops will be held this Tuesday and April 18 and 19 at the Center for Social Concerns from 7 to 9 pm.

Grad students may get refunds on their taxes

By JIM LANG
News Staff

Graduate students who were assessed back taxes on their teaching or research income for the 1984, 1985 and 1986 school year are eligible for a refund of this money, according to an Internal Revenue Service informational release.

Those who were assessed the tax on income from 1984 must file a form 1040x before April 15 this year. The others have a year to file the amended form.

Prior to the 1986 Tax Reform Act, teaching and research income was not included in taxable income if the following three requirements were met:

- The taxpayer was a candidate for a degree at an educational institution.
- The taxpayer performed research, teaching, or other services for the institution that satisfied the existing degree requirements.
- Equivalent services were required of all candidates for the degree.

When the IRS decided in 1986 to include this income in overall taxable income for 1987 and the years following, it began to assess back taxes on graduate student income from as far back as 1984.

This prompted complaints from graduate students at universities located primarily in Florida, Iowa, and Indiana, said Kathleen Kolberg, a Notre Dame graduate student who refused to pay the retroactive taxes.

Graduate students at several schools, including Indiana University, complained to their senators, who in turn lodged the complaints with the IRS, Kolberg said.

The IRS eventually responded to the pressure from the senators, and in a March 30 informational release said that it had given instructions to its district and service centers concerning the issuance of refunds.

Cavanaugh, Lewis cruise to regatta victory

By SUSAN MARHEFKA
Staff Reporter

As large crowds watched from the banks of Saint Mary's Lake, the crafts piloted by Cavanaugh and Lewis halls cruised to victory in Saturday's second annual Fisher Regatta.

The regatta, which was sponsored by Fisher Hall, included 20 teams from both on and off-campus and was divided into a women's and a men's division.

Each hall was permitted to enter two teams, ranging from four to eight students per boat. Building restrictions included a maximum length of 16 feet and a maximum width of six feet. The length of the oars could be no longer than five feet and no parts from a conventional boat could be used.

An entry fee of $20 was also required.

Entrants in the competition showed off their creative and engineering skills as materials for the crafts included kiddie pools, cardboard, styrofoam, papier mache, garbage bags and milk crates.

Boat designs also exemplified some ingenious insight as teams found numerous ways to make their entries float. Although inner tubes were the most popular, some exotic ideas included balloons wrapped in garbage bags and oil barrels.

"We just did this forty-five minutes ago," said Karla Wursthorn, a freshman member of Badin Hall's team, "The Unsinkables."

"I needed a cheap way to (make a boat) and . . . balloons have a lot of buoyancy," Wursthorn said. "I used physics equations to figure out how many balloons we'd need," she added.

Not all plans were so hastily laid, however, as Fisher Hall's "Green Seamen" had been in the planning stages for months.

"It took one hour of construction, 21 years of creativity," said Greg Tatum, a senior mechanical engineer who designed last year's winning boat and "The Green Seamen."

"I used Archimedes' principle to build the boat. We went with six men this year . . . we needed the extra horsepower," he said.

While some boats were obviously built for practicality, others entered the realm of true ingenuity. One of Holy Cross' creations, "Holy Cross Hall Big Al," was complete with flags, oil barrels and a large cardboard pig. St. Edward's "Fire-Brewed Picnic Warriors" included a grill and a cooler.

The regatta was run in various heats, with three teams competing in each race. Winners of each race then competed against each other until only two teams remained.

In the finals for the women's division, Lewis raced with Pasquerilla West and Cavanaugh and Fisher competed in the men's division.

At the conclusion of the regatta, the Fisher Hall Regatta Cup, Ladies' Division, was presented to the victorious Lewis Hall team. The team also received gift certificates, Notre Dame boxer shorts, Fisher Regatta T-shirts and a cassette tape.

In the men's division, the cup was awarded to Cavanaugh Hall's "A" team, who defeated last year's winners. They also received gift certificates, T-shirts, a cassette tape and an autographed football by Lou Holtz and Tim Brown.

The award for the "most original and ostentatious design" was given to St. Edward's "Fire-Brewed Picnic Warriors."

The judges for the event were Tom Morris, professor of philosophy; Ted Gradel, a former Notre Dame football player, and Jeff Jeffers, a sportscaster for WNDU.

"It was a last-minute decision," said Michelle Fretter, a freshman on Lewis' "It Just Doesn't Matter."

"We went out to have fun; we didn't expect to win," said

Cara Anthony, another freshman Lewis team member.

Proceeds from the regatta go to the Andre House of Hospitality in Phoenix, Arizona, a house for the homeless run by the Holy Cross community. The house is a Fisher Hall project.

The Fisher Regatta culminates "Fred and Sally Week" at Fisher Hall, the annual spirit week named for the hall's benefactors.

200 protest Miss Gay USA pageant

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS--About 200 fundamentalist demonstrators--some wearing surgical masks and others carrying Bibles--showed up at the Indiana Roof Ballroom Sunday night to protest the 12th annual Miss Gay USA pageant.

Twenty-seven preachers from central Indiana led the group that objected to the pageant, in which 12 finalists competed to claim the crown as the nation's foremost female impersonator.

"If they try this another time, I'm telling you there's going to be bloodshed. We mean business," said the Rev. Gene Hood, pastor of the Independent Nazarene Church in Indianapolis. "There are some red-blooded American men in Indianapolis, and we won't stand for this."

While the protesters stood outside the historic building, some 500 people crossed the picket line and watched the pageant without interruption.

Input

Paese.

A timetable for the plan was not presented, but Paese said he would like to see hall meetings start "seven to 10 days after the students receive the reports." Paese also said that An Tostal and the approach of finals made it urgent to gather student input.

Megan Hanley, president of Pasquerilla West, expressed skepticism about student response to the task force reports. "I know the average student in my hall won't be reading these reports," said Hanley. Paese disagreed, saying "at a university, I think we should expect everyone to have read the reports."

Some student government members were unsure that students really were being given input to the administration's decision process. "How much is our input actually affecting the decision making?" asked Hanley.

"I seriously question whether they (the administration) take us seriously because of the timing of the report," said Scott Miller, co-president of Grace Hall. "They didn't give us enough time to respond. I have a feeling that they know that."

Miller also added that he felt the administration was making decisions about the task force recommendations over the summer purposely to exclude students from influencing those decisions.

Others said they had more faith in the administration's desire for student input. Doyle said that in a previous meeting with Malloy, that he "was interested in getting student response." He also said that, if the administration did not want student response, it would have released the reports over the summer.

"I believe that the absolute worst message we could send is a silent message," said Doyle. Paese said that the number of students named to the task force committees showed the administration's commitment to student input.

Melissa Smith, student government coordinator for the task force response, said that questions about student input were "why we're attempting this huge undertaking. . . . With this we can say 'the entire student body feels this way,' and that's why were trying to tap every single student on campus."

Doyle said the task force reports would "affect student life probably as much as anything we'll see while we're here at Notre Dame." Doyle likened the situation to a simple equation. "It's the Notre Dame task force reports plus the student response, and what that will end up equalling is ultimately the administrations' decisions."

Task force issues not crux of problem

The president of our esteemed University has seen fit to distribute thousands of copies of the latest Notre Dame Report. Encouraging our own reactions to the four task force reports inside, Father Malloy tells us to "kindly direct your comments to the person to whom the report was made." I have decided instead to address my comments as an open letter to the Notre Dame community.

Rob Hennig
guest column

No doubt much will be said about these reports, and more feedback than Father Malloy could hope to read will be generated. And that is the great shame of it all. For, in forcing the University to consider the issues of "Marriage, Family and Other Life commitments," "Whole Health and the Use and Abuse of Alcohol," "The Quality of Teaching in a Research University," and "Residentiality," Fathers Malloy and Tyson and Provost O'Meara have drastically altered the quality of debate that is occurring at the highest echelons of our University.

If the Hesburgh legacy is to mean anything, it is that Notre Dame should set its sights on as high a level as possible. These four reports deal with issues, though important, that do not get to the heart of the issue of what it means to be a major Catholic university in an increasingly competitive and secularized world. By discussing whether dormitories can buy alcohol for SYRs or should housing for women faculty and administrators be available on campus we are cheapening our aspirations and denying the Notre Dame family the breath of vision Father Hesburgh fought so desperately to instill.

The recommendations offered are nice and some probably should even be adopted. But to focus the debate on campus on these task force reports is to sap valuable University attention on what Notre Dame really needs. None of the reports displays anything more than a superficial understanding of the University or its problems.

Maybe a year is too short to properly assess the problematic issues inherent in our present structures. More accurately, maybe the topics were poorly chosen. It seems to me that three aspects of Notre Dame should be addressed: the educational, spiritual, and social life of the University. That the four reports inadequately cover these three areas is problematic. What we get is a hodgepodge series of recommendations instead of a comprehensive and integrated plan upon which to build.

Nowhere is this more true than in the report on "Teaching in a Research University." Such a report first assumes Notre Dame is a research university. To say so is, in my opinion, highly dubious. But moreover, all of the recommendations are just piecemeal.

If it is truly the goal of the Notre Dame family to make this University a leading university in the United States, such a report is just inadequate. The real question is not what can be done to improve teaching. The real question is "How can Notre Dame move to the forefront of higher education in America?" We are cheating ourselves and future members of this community by not coming to grips with this vital question.

With the new fundraising campaign, we have the potential to make a major move in the desired direction. By setting our sights so low, we are squandering what may be a unique opportunity that will never happen again.

So, after much careful reflection, I have come up with my own recommendations that come to grips with the real issues:

First, Notre Dame and Saint Mary's College cannot afford our present situation indefinitely. Our present "engagement" status cannot continue to serve the best interests of this community. I believe a merger is not only inevitable but necessary. Such a move would open tremendous opportunities for the University and is also in the long-term interests of Saint Mary's. The number of all-female colleges in the United States is dwindling yearly. It is doubtful whether Saint Mary's could survive without the present arrangement with Notre Dame. It is further doubtful whether Saint Mary's can survive in the future even with present cooperative ties. This remains even more true now than it was in the early 1970s, when merger talks were unsuccessful.

Second, Notre Dame must increase the number of graduate students and faculty. A major university is judged on the quality of its graduate programs and on the quality of its faculty. If we ignore this reality, we do so at our peril. Since 1978, according to the task force report on teaching, the number of graduate students has increased by less than 100. An encouraging sign is that faculty size has increased by almost 100 as well since 1978. If Notre Dame wants to truly play in the big leagues, both the graduate student population and the faculty size must increase dramatically from their present numbers.

Third, Notre Dame must develop a comprehensive building program. This is no time for an architecture lesson, but we need a coherent Master Plan for the campus. If one exists that we are presently using, I apologize. I am just not aware of it. My own solution is to fill in Saint Joseph's Lake. One lake is enough, and besides, this would allow for living up to our legal name of "...Notre Dame du Lac."

These are all tongue-in-cheek recommendations, probably doomed to cries of outrage. So be it. The point is to raise the level of discussion above what the task forces have seen fit to say. We owe at least that much to ourselves, each other, and the future of Notre Dame.

Dear Editor:
I would like to add a point of clarification to the recent letter of Michael E. Lee of April 6.

The United Kingdom is one other NATO Alliance country that still executes people. These executions have been perpetrated by members of the Royal Ulster Constabulary in Northern Ireland (the so-called "shoot-to-kill" policy) and, more recently, by British soldiers in Gibraltar. However repugnant the death penalty might be, at least those executed in the United

Bands battle Cystic Fibrosis with music

accent writer

To raise money to help fight Cystic Fibrosis, a group of students have gathered to bring The Great Escape '88 to Notre Dame. Friday from 6 p.m. to 3 a.m. at Stepan Center, almost a dozen bands representing almost as many different musical styles will participate in a band jam.

Students can purchase tickets for $5 at the door, and dorm representatives will also be selling tickets door-to-door. All proceeds will go to fight the Cystic Fibrosis disease.

Sophomore Dave Temeles heads the project with a dedicated group of students. On the national scale, the project is called Goal Unlimited, a group which works to raise money for CF by running events like 12 hour dance-a-thons. The Great Escape '88 is a "spin-off of a dance-a-thon fundraiser my high school sponsored," said Temeles, whose Bishop O'Connell High School in Virginia was one of the first to hold the 'Super-dance' 11 years ago.

By kicking off the band jam concept, Temeles hopes to "teach universities to do the band thing." There is already a program to teach high schools how to hold the 12 hour dance-a-thons. They are now organizing a similar correspondence with other universities and hope that The Great Escape will become a yearly happening at colleges across the country.

The campus bands appearing at Notre Dame this year are Zito and the Heat-ons, The Groove, Deadhorse, Euthanasia, and Catholics in Bad Standing. These groups alone represent many different styles of music including funk, dance, pop, and progressive. Four other bands appear including Sergeant Friday (from Wisconsin), Material Issue (from Evansville, Indiana), and two bands from Purdue: Toxic Gypsy and Elixir.

In addition to the styles offered by the campus bands, Elixir offers a dimension of harder rock sounds. Material Issue, with a '60s pop sound is presently touring the East Coast and is rapidly becoming known as one of the better bands on the college scene.

In planning the event, the group met every Thursday this semester. They proposed the concept to Student Government, who were helpful and supportive. Since they receive all funding from the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, the group learned how difficult it can be working with a bureaucracy.

Temeles said it has been a learning process. "We made a lot of little mistakes. We wanted to get some CF patients to some Notre Dame masses so the students could see who they were helping," said Temeles. "We also wanted to sign a headline act. But that just didn't work out." The group made adjustments as they progressed to find better ways of organizing.

Overall, Temeles feels that the group has been successful. This year, they wanted to establish the event as an annual fundraiser. Temeles hopes that, because they worked so hard and made mistakes this year, "Next year, the people who are running it will know about what to expect. Also, Notre Dame is a good place to have the first Great Escape because the people here care. Notre Dame is the starting point for this whole thing," Temeles said. Temeles hopes that next year the band jam will be more of a nationwide event, where colleges around the country will sponsor similar functions.

Temeles said the biggest challenge will be getting the students to go to the band jam. "It will be a good time, and the money goes to saving lives. CF affects people our own age. It's not some distant thing," he said. If the spirit is good among the students at Notre Dame, it will transfer to the program on a national scale.

Temeles also thanks the many people who have worked hard organizing and planning the event. If students are interested in learning more about Cystic Fibrosis and how they can help fight it, they can call Dave Temeles at 283-1851, Pete Pucillo at 283-1422, or Quvi Ryan at 271-9142. Others are urged strongly to come and support this great cause.

Since the band jam is nine hours long, students can come and go as they please. There will also be volleyball nets set up and prizes from various local donors.

Mr. Stanford Mike Woll displays his vocal talents as well as his tolerance to heat.

Stud contest entertaining but lacks in taste

MARY BERGER
accent writer

The winner of Saturday evening's Mr. Stanford Contest proved that one need not be crude, offensive or disgusting to be a stud.

Senior Mike "Psycho" Woll entertained a rambunctious Washington Hall crowd with his classic "looking for a job" formal wear, an amusing swimsuit skit to "Gilligan's Isle," a brief description of his first "sexual" experience, and best of all, his rendition of "Beethoven's Fifth" on the candles.

After emcees Rich Holtz and Greg Talbot introduced the panel of judges, 10 Notre Dame and Saint Mary's women, the festivities began with each contestant strutting his stuff in his choice of formal wear. Critic's choice for this section of the competition's winner was Pat "Very Tall" Hall. His black tails, purple, green, and blue plaid cummerbund and tie set may have been worn to Senior Prom at Elkhart Memorial High School, but he still looked sharp.

While the men were preparing themselves for the swimsuit competition, "four egomaniacs who wanted to be in the show but didn't want to take off their clothes" did a skit which probably would have been better had they done so. With an auditorium at a ratio rarely seen on this campus, the four could have swept quite a few women off their feet by singing "You've Lost That Lovin' Feeling" to some of them rather than to one of their fellow studs.

Mike Woll's swimsuit skit highlighted the next segment. Standing in a Notre Dame crew boat, Woll proceeded to flex his way through the "Gilligan's Isle" tune. With stomach muscles beyond compare, nice legs, and basically well-defined everything, Woll stole the swimsuit competition from the others.

The talent section followed, and although Woll faced tough competition in Bill Wolf's silk-like voice singing U2's "With or Without You," he again stole the show with his attempt to play the candles, "an obscure musical art for After tuning his candelabra made from Bud Light bottles, Woll screamed Beethoven's Fifth while running his hand over the flames.

The final segment of the competition was question and answer. Questions ranged from, "How does (Wolf) attract such a variety of girls?" to "What would a fantasy evening with (Dave Sauve) entail?"

After declaring Woll the winner, Wolf the first runner-up, and Sauve the second runner-up, emcee Holtz concluded the show with a poem. He acknowledged that the audience had seen "eight young men strut their stuff with charisma and conceit." That poetic extraction about summed up the evening.

What could have been an amusing, even entertaining evening of brain and brawn turned out to be an evening of locker-room humor that was not appropriate for the stage. Proceeds from the show went to the Hops Mission Shelter for the Homeless, but it is unfortunate that such a noble goal had to be accomplished in such an off-color way.

The Church's album Starfish deserves devotion

accent writer

Well, they've done it again. Steve Kilbey, Marty Willson-Piper, Peter Koppes, and Richard Ploog, just four guys from Australia, have released an album which rises above all others. Starfish is the name of this LP, the sixth from these guys who call themselves The Church.

The neat thing about this group is that it is like no other. The haunting yet hopeful vocals of Steven Kilbey are absolutely unique and the guitars are equally impossible to emulate. You know how you can immediately identify a U2 song because of The Edge's guitar? Well, the same thing happens with The Church, only the guitarists are Willson-Piper and Koppes. This group has had the same lineup since 1982, and their five years of experience together certainly is evident on Starfish.

The first cut, "Destination," is like a roller coaster as it dips and soars and carries the listener right along. The first single is titled "Under the Milky Way," and it is typical of the album as a whole. Nearly five minutes long, the single is carried by a strong bass from Kilbey, as he sings: "I wish I knew what you were looking for/ Might I know what you would find/ Under the Milky Way tonight." Hear it once, and you'll be singing the chorus to yourself two hours later; it's that kind of song.

The Church is truly a group of musical artists, a refreshing change from the synthesized pop stuff the music world is currently saturated with. Their lyrics are sometimes sad and always thought provoking. Kilbey and Willson-Piper are responsible for almost all of the songs, and the latter sings lead vocals on "Spark," an upbeat rocker of a song. By contrast, "Lost" is composed of many intricate guitar riffs which blend together beautifully.

The Church will be on a spring tour of the U.S. shortly, and they are now recording for Arista Records, their fifth label in six albums. Live, the band is louder and faster than on their vinyl releases, but their 1986 summer concert remains right up there on my all-time favorite concert list. Anything by The Church is well worth your money, and now Kilbey and Willson-Piper have solo albums out.

It's weird that this new album probably marks the first time most people have heard of The Church. They are already number one in Australia, along with Midnight Oil, another tremendous Australian group poised for the big crossover into the United States. These groups have already fully established themselves in the college and progressive music worlds, now let them enter yours! Don't skip The Church.

Men's tennis splits weekend action at S. Illinois

By GEORGE TRAVERS
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men's tennis team travelled to Carbondale, Ill. this weekend where it competed in the Southern Illinois Invitational. The teams competing in the quadrangular were Notre Dame, Bradley, Louisville and SIU-Carbondale.

Saturday morning the Irish destroyed Louisville, 6-0. The Cardinals were severely over-matched, managing to win only two sets.

Notre Dame was once again led by the stellar play of captain Mike Wallace and junior Brian Kalbas. Kalbas started out slowly but eventually took control of his singles match. Kalbas defeated Scott Hill of Louisville 1-6, 7-6, 6-4. Wallace trounced David Rueff 6-1, 6-3.

In other singles action against Louisville Ryan Wenger beat John Meade 1-6, 6-4, 7-6. Dan Walsh and Paul Odland won in straight sets, defeating Mike Mehlbauer and Jay Avenido respectively.

Freshman David Kuhlman also has been playing outstanding tennis ever since a big win at Harvard over Spring Break, which earned him the sixth singles spot. Saturday Kuhlman beat the Cardinal's Chris Trinkle handily 7-5, 6-3.

The Irish next took on the Salukis of SIU-Carbondale, in a much more competitive match. Southern Illinois dominated Notre Dame in singles play, and won overall 5-4. The Irish had beaten the Salukis 7-2 at Notre Dame in January.

SIUC won four of the six singles matches, including number one singles. In that match Jairo Albano beat Brian Kalbas 6-2, 6-4. In other singles action Joe Deneterco trounced Mike Wallace 6-2, 6-2. and Mickey Maule beat Ryan Wenger in a close match 7-6, 7-6. The Irish winners were Dave Reiter and Paul Odland. Reiter, who is bothered by a reoccurring foot injury, came off the bench to defeat Fabiano Ramos 6-3, 6-3.

In doubles play the Irish fared better, but didn't play well enough to win the match overall. Wallace and Reiter beat Maule and Ramos in straight sets 6-1, 7-6. The tandem of Mike Walsh and Paul Daggs also won in straight sets. Kalbas and Wenger came up short in doubles, losing to Albano and Deneterco 7-5, 7-5.

The Irish played well in both matches and now have a record of 14-10. Louisville is 8-5 and Southern Illinois is 13-9.

Young Texas squad takes swim titles

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS--Texas Coach Eddie Reese has his second NCAA men's Division I swimming and diving championship with the potential for a dynasty.

A squad dominated by underclassmen wrapped up the team title Saturday, giving the school a rare sweep of both the men's and women's championships in 1988.

"We came to swim and the way we get our excitement is to swim fast," said Reese, whose team's have finished third or higher in the meet eight of the past nine years and fifth in the other year.

"Our goal will be to go back and try to get better" said Reese, who had three seniors, nine sophomores and three freshmen among the 17 swimmers he brought to the meet. "Nobody can start a dynasty in this country. All you have to do is get up there and somebody want you."

Texas recorded 424 points in the three-day meet that ended Saturday--the most by a team since Indiana won the second of a record six consecutive titles with 427 points in 1969.

Southern California, the favorite, was second with 369 1/2 points. Stanford, which was seeking a fourth straight championship, was third with 275 1/2 points.

"This team is younger. They worked harder as a group," said Reese in comparing this year's champions with the squad that won the title in 1981. "The thing that surprised me most about them is that they're tougher than the '81 team."

Sophomores Kirk Stackle and Doug Gjertsen gave the Longhorns two victories in individual events and the Longhorns swept the three relay races. Gjertsen, who won the 200-yard freestyle Friday, also recorded a pair of seconds and was the anchor swimmer in two of the relay events.

Michigan's Brent Lang celebrates after winning the 100-meter freestyle at the NCAA Men's Swimming and Diving Championships this weekend in Indianapolis. Lang's winning time was 42.96.

Lady Boilermakers and evened the series record between the two teams to 6-6. Gelfman attributed the victory to two reasons.

"First, we paced ourselves well," said Gelfman. "Usually we are traveling a lot, but this weekend we had time to regroup and came out fresh. Second, I think Purdue underestimated us. They thought that they were going to do the same thing that they did last year."

In singles play, Ce Ce Cahill shook off a second-set loss and triumphed in three 6-4, 2-6, 6-2. Dasso also dropped the second set but followed suit in winning a three-set battle, 6-4, 0-6, 6-1. Alice Lohrer conquered Kelly Craig, 6-3, 6-2, and Bradshaw blanked Georgina Munsz, 6-0, 6-0.

In doubles play, only two out of the three matches were played. The match between the number-one tandems was forgone because by the time it could be played, the match was already decided. In matches that were played, the duo of Lohrer and Natalie Illig defeated Kristen Dicken and Georgina Munoz 6-3, 6-1. Bradshaw and Pacella were pushed to a tiebreaker in the second set but would go no further and edged Kelley Craig and Michelle Oelze, 6-4, 7-6(7-5).

"The girls played to win," said Gelfman. "I was pleased with the play of Alice Lohrer and Cathy Bradshaw. They both had great weekends."

Gelfman was ecstatic that her team improved its record to 10-13.

"I think we can attain a .500 record and I hope we realize how good we are," said Gelfman.

Comeback victory leaves Yankees 5-0

Associated Press

NEW YORK--Don Slaught went 4-for-4 Sunday, including a tie-breaking two-run single in the eighth inning, leading the New York Yankees to a comeback 7-6 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers and their first 5-0 start since 1933.

Six balks were called, setting an American League record and tying the major-league mark. Five were committed by Milwaukee and two of them led to the run that tied the game 4-4 in the seventh inning plus the run that capped a three-run eighth and proved to be the game-winner.

The Yankees, who trailed 4-0 in the second inning, were tied 4-4 when they loaded the bases with one out in the eighth against reliever Chuck Crim, 0-1, on singles by Gary Ward and Dave Winfield and a walk to Roberto Kelly.

After Dan Plesac struck out Mike Pagliarulo, Slaught singled. Plesac then balked, allowing Kelly to score.

Twins 4, Blue Jays 2

MINNEAPOLIS--Dan Gladden's RBI double and Greg Gagne's two-run single keyed a four-run fifth inning that gave the Minnesota Twins to a 4-2 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays on Sunday.

Frank Viola, 1-1, allowed seven hits in 7 2-3 innings as the defending world champions won for the second time in five games. Jeff Reardon pitched the final 1 1-3 innings for his second save.

Todd Stottlemyre, 0-1, making his first major-league start and second appearance, had the Twins baffled through four innings.

But Randy Bush opened the inning with a double and Tom Brunansky walked. They pulled off a double steal, with Bush scoring and Brunansky taking third when catcher Pat Borders overthrew.

After Steve Lombardozzi walked and Tom Nieto struck out, Gladden doubled, putting the Twins ahead 2-1. Gagne greeted Mark Eichhorn with a single to make it 4-1.

Royals 8, Tigers 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo.--Willie Wilson and Kevin Seitzer each had three hits and Charlie Leibrandt scattered seven hits in eight innings Sunday, leading the Kansas City Royals to an 8-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Seitzer, George Brett and Jim Eisenreich hit RBI doubles in the first inning doubles to give the Royals a 3-0 lead against Doyle Alexander, 0-1.

Wilson opened the Royals' first with a single and scored on Seitzer's double. Brett's double brought Seitzer home and one out later Eisenreich doubled to score Brett.

Chet Lemon and Mike Heath singled in the Detroit second. Jim Walewander's fly ball as dropped by right fielder Danny Tartabull, but he recovered in time for force Heath at second as Lemon scored the only run off Leibrandt, 1-1.

Rangers 4, Red Sox 1

ARLINGTON, Texas--Paul Kilgus pitched a four-hitter over seven innings and the Texas Rangers exploited Boston mistakes in the fourth inning for a 4-1 victory over the Red Sox on Sunday.

Kilgus, 1-0, was relieved by Mitch Williams after walking the leadoff batter in the eighth inning. It was Williams' second save.

Boston starter Jeff Sellers, 0-1, allowed only five hits and struck out seven but committed two balks and issued six walks, including two with the bases loaded in Texas' three-run fourth.

Scott Fletcher and Ruben Sierra opened the inning with singles. Sellers struck out the side and didn't allow another hit in the inning, but a balk, three walks and a fielding error enabled the Rangers to take a 3-1 lead. Two of the runs were unearned.

Mariners 7, White Sox 4

CHICAGO--Rookie Rich Renner had three hits, including a pair of doubles, and scored twice on singles by Al Davis to lead the Seattle Mariners to a 7-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox Sunday.

Mike Moore was the winner, allowing nine hits and three runs in six innings.

Indians 6, Orioles 3

CLEVELAND--Jay Bell hit a two-run triple and continued home on a Baltimore error to cap a four-run fourth, and Carmen Castillo had three hits and two RBIs as the Cleveland Indians beat the Orioles 6-3 Sunday.

Baltimore, 0-5, matching its worst start since the 1955 Orioles went 0-6, has been outscored 36-5. The Indians, 5-1, are off to their best start since the 1966 team opened with 10 straight victories.

Angels 6, Athletics 4

ANAHEIM, Calif.--Jack Howell drove in two runs with two singles and the California Angels scored twice as a result of balks by Oakland's Bob Welch and beat the Athletics 6-4 Sunday.

SMC dumps Ft. Wayne twice

By MOLLY MCNEILL
 Sports Writer

The Saint Mary's softball team combined power at the plate with consistent defense in the field to sweep IUPU-Fort Wayne at home Saturday.

The Belles welcomed the pleasant weather conditions as they had no problem handling their opponents, playing close to perfect games.

Freshman Michelle Pinter lead the attack from the mound going the distance and only allowing five free rides.

In the field, the defense was sparked by junior shortstop Carolyn 'Jumper' Konopa. Konopa, a transfer student from Valparaiso, has contributed greatly in both the field and at the plate.

Catcher Laura Sokolowski had the hot bat at the plate, leading the Belles in RBI's.

The first game provided the warm-up the Belles needed. They came out strong and won by the ten-run rule in the fifth inning 17-5.

Saint Mary's wasn't as perfect in the field in the second game, but the team made up for the errors with a powerful attack at the plate.

Tammy Shelor started on the mound and did a good job of keeping IUPU-Ft. Wayne off the bases. She was relieved by freshman Kim Benjamin, who added the finishing touches in the Belles second victory of the day.

Mets avert Phillies' series sweep 4-3

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA--Mookie Wilson hit two home runs, including a two-run, seventh-inning blast that carried the New York Mets to a 4-3 victory over Philadelphia on Sunday, snapping the Phillies' three-game winning streak.

Dwight Gooden, 2-0, pitched the first six innings, allowing three runs and five hits. Gooden struck out three and walked five. Roger McDowell worked the next 2 1-3 innings before he was bailed out of a ninth-inning jam by Randy Myers, who earned his first save.

The Mets trailed 3-2 going into the seventh. Len Dykstra, batting for Gooden, beat out a bunt. Wilson then hit a 1-0 pitch from Shane Rawley, 0-2, for the game winner.

Dodgers 3, Braves 1

ATLANTA--Orel Hershiser allowed five hits over 8 1-3 innings, taking a shutout into the ninth inning until Atlanta snapped his streak of 17 scoreless innings, but the Dodgers held on to beat the Braves 3-1 on Sunday.

Astros 12, Reds 3

CINCINNATI--Kevin Bass hit a grand slam and Glenn Davis drove in four runs with a sacrifice fly and a three-run homer Sunday to lead the Houston Astros to a 12-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Mike Scott, who pitched a seven-hitter, reached the 1,000-strikeout mark by fanning eight and improved his record to 2-0.

Pirates 5, Cardinals 3 (11)

ST. LOUIS--Sid Bream and Mike LaValliere hit consecutive doubles to break a 3-3 tie, and the Pittsburgh Pirates scored twice in the 11th inning to beat St. Louis 5-3 Sunday.

Cubs 10, Expos 7

MONTREAL--Vance Law singled home Manny Trillo to break a 10th-inning tie, and the Chicago Cubs scored three runs in the 10th inning to beat the Montreal Expos 10-7 Sunday.

Trillo, pinch hitting, drew a lead-off walk from Bob McClure, 0-1, was sacrificed to second by Rafeal Palmeiro and came around when Law bounced a ball up the middle against Randy St. Claire.

Law went to second on the throw home and took third on a single by Shawn Dunston. Pinch-hitter Jerry Mumphrey walked to load the bases, and Carmelo Martinez doubled home two more runs.

Rich Gossage 1-0 picked up the victory and Les Lancaster earned the save.

Montreal scored three runs with two out in the ninth to tie the score 7-7.

Padres 6, Giants 4

SAN FRANCISCO--Randy Ready hit a two-run homer and scored twice, helping the San Diego Padres beat the San Francisco Giants 6-4 Sunday for their first victory of the season.

and leading all scorers with eight. Jim Baugus and point guard Andrew Higney chipped in with four apiece, while Ray Dumas went 4-of-21 for the losers.

Five Blondes Under 5-2 Willing Pay Two-Thirds (and they really are, they said) blew out We Signed Up Twice 21-6 on Saturday behind Petra Worwag's 20 points. The Blondes then lost their bid for the Round of 128 on Sunday by losing to Several Small Species of Small Furry Animals Gathered Together In A Cave 21-11.

"Hey, this is the 80's," said Blondes point guard Erin Bartholemey. "I know people might be surprised we won on Saturday but we're out to begin a bastion of female superiority at Notre Dame."

One team that had little trouble advancing was Yo...What's Up rolled past Five Guys Who Wished They Played For Xavier, 21-5. Bobby Carpenter and Joe Hippler paced the winners with 10 and eight points respectively. In another runaway, Adworks All-Stars, playing without Mr. Bookstore 1987 John Bouscher, froze The Dudes With The Moves 21-8 behind the strong inside play of Cedric Figaro and the eight points of Ricky Watters.

In other action over the weekend, the Linebacker tackled Mercurians 21-12; Top Guns shot down Dunkin' Hines 21-11 and Gamecocks 21-13; Brace Yourselfs stripped Men Without Pants 21-7; SOMFAW's Return slipped past The Oiler Pub Strokers 21-17

Experienced Heater takes over Irish secondary

George Streeter is one of the familiar faces in a secondary which features some new ones. Theresa Kelly details the changes at right.

Terrell moves to free safety

Anyone watching the Notre Dame football team practice this spring will see an unfamiliar face and an old face in an unfamiliar place.

SPRING FOOTBALL

Secondary

The new face is secondary coach Chuck Heater, who takes over the defensive backfield from Terry Forbes, who retired after the 1987 season. Heater is coming off three years working as an assistant coach at Ohio State, where he coached the Buckeye secondary.

The old face in an unfamiliar place is that of Pat Terrell, a receiver last year who is making the move to free safety.

Heater brings a successful philosophy from a successful Ohio State program.

"I want the players to know their responsibilities," Heater says. "I also feel that if a player is disciplined and aggressive, I'll be able to work well with him."

Heater coached the Wisconsin defensive backfield from 1982-84 and spent five years at Toledo, working with the secondary and the offensive backs. He also was an assistant for one year at Northern Arizona.

right way," says Heater. "I'm very impressed with the players here."

With nine years working with defensive secondaries, Heater knows what he likes in a player.

"He has to be an excellent athlete," says Heater of his ideal defensive back. "He's got to be physically tough. With that, I can teach him his responsibilities and the technical aspects. I can't teach him to run fast, and I can't teach instinct and awareness. He has to have that first."

Terrell's new place in the backfield is working well for the Irish so far, according to Heater. Terrell will join George Streeter, Cory Southall, D'Juan Francisco, Todd Lyght and Stan Smagala in a battle for the four starting spots.

"Pat has come over to defense for just four practices," Heater says, "and he's done really well. It's kind of a personal sacrifice for him, but he has a willing attitude. He'll help us if Coach Holtz decides to keep him here."

"As a receiver, you have to know how the defense is working," says Terrell, "so it hasn't been too difficult to catch on. I'll always want to be a receiver. I know, though, that I'll produce on defense, if that's what is best for the team."

The foursome of Lyght, Streeter, Southall and Francisco played made up the first-team defense for most of Saturday's scrimmage, but Heater mentioned that an injury to Smagala and the inexperience of Terrell may make the fall's picture different.

"We've got the players, they're working well, and I can't give anyone an edge right now," says Heater. "It's hard to say how we'll turn out; it's still too early to tell."

Pat Terrell

Heater's playing career included a three-year starting stint at running back for Michigan, finishing as the fifth-leading career rusher in Wolverine history. He was named all-Big Ten as a senior in 1974 and was a 10th round draft pick of the New Orleans Saints.

Despite his background in the tough Big Ten, Heater says he likes what he sees in the Irish program.

"Notre Dame is an entity unto itself," Heater says. "It stands alone in college football."

"It's very similar to the Big Ten, personell-wise, but this is what college football is."

Although there are still some questions concerning the Irish secondary that he inherited, Heater says he likes what he sees of the Notre Dame players as the defense dominated Saturday's scrimmage.

"They players here are intelligent, they want to do the right thing and they want to do it the

to find it. "One thing's for sure: the only thing we won't change is their names."

EXTRA POINTS: More bad news for the offensive line. Jim Dadiotis, who is in the hunt for a job in the trenches, will be out for the rest of the spring with a shoulder separation suffered in the scrimmage. . . Notre Dame basketball player Sean Connor is looking for the open Irish punting job. Connor booted one more than 50 yards before the scrimmage in punt drills. "Sean's a real question mark," Holtz said. "We don't know if it's in his best interests to punt, though it might be in the best interests of the Notre Dame football team."

Defense

tion gets more interesting every day. Tony Rice, Kent Graham, Peter Graham and Steve Belles are all doing some good things."

Kent Graham skippered the No. 2 offense into the end zone against the No. 2 defense from 70 yards out on the next drive. Brooks gained seven yards on a fourth-and-three play to keep the drive alive, and junior Aaron Robb snagged a 10-yard touchdown pass on the sideline to finish it.

Rice engineered his only touchdown march as the No. 1 offense scored against the No. 2 defense to close the scrimmage. The final play was a play-action toss to freshman tight end Frank Jacobs from the 1-yard line.

Holtz noted improvement in the area of penalties, but said there is still progress to be made.

Junior Andy Heck, who has played tackle this spring, ran a few plays back at tight end near the end of the scrimmage. Pat Terrell is still in the defensive backfield, while Braxton Banks looks to be playing more fullback than tailback.

"We're still trying to put the football team together," Holtz explained. "And we've got a long way to go. We're going to find the right combination on the offensive line. I don't know what it is yet, but we're going

Lyle escapes as a Master

Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga.—Sandy Lyle, once teetering on the brink of collapse, extricated himself from a fairway bunker on the 72nd hole and then sank a 12-foot birdie putt for a one-shot victory Sunday in the 52nd Masters.

Lyle, a husky Scot who won the 1985 British Open, was tied for the lead with Mark Calcavecchia until the final stroke of the tournament sent the putt downhill and into the cup. It finished off a 1-under-par 71 and made Lyle the first British subject to win this storied tournament.

Lyle had to come out of a yawning fairway bunker on the 18th hole of the Augusta National Golf Club course. He ran hopefully onto the fairway to follow the flight of the ball, which hit beyond the cup and backed up toward the hole while the gallery howled for still more roll.

Lyle, who had blown a two-shot lead and trailed as late as the 15th hole, rolled the winning putt into the back of the cup.

It gave him a total of 281, seven shots under par.

Lyle also became the only three-time winner on the American PGA tour this season and

SCORECARD

AUGUSTA, Ga.—Final scores and prize money Sunday for top finishers in the 52nd Masters Golf Tournament, played on the 6,905-yard, par-72 Augusta National Golf Club Course:

Sandy Lyle, $183,800	71-67-72-71--281
Mark Calcavecchia, 110,200	71-69-72-70--282
Craig Stadler, 69,400	76-69-70-68--283
Ben Crenshaw, 48,900	72-73-67-72--284
Fred Couples, 36,500	75-68-71-71--285
Greg Norman, 36,500	77-73-71-64--285
Don Pooley, 36,500	71-72-72-70--285
David Frost, 31,000	73-74-71-68--286
Bernhard Langer, 28,000	71-72-71-73--287
Tom Watson, 28,000	72-71-73-71--287

first man to win consecutive tournament titles since West German Bernhard Langer won the Masters and the Heritage Classic in 1985. Lyle came into the Masters off a victory in the Greater Greensboro Open.

Calcavecchia, a man from the wrong side of golf's tracks and a caddy as recently as three years ago, finished second with a 2-under-par 70 in the bright, warm sunshine. He had a 282 total, six under par.

Craig Stadler, the 1982 Masters winner, once had a share of the lead, but dropped back with a 16th-hole bogey and finished third at 283. Stadler, who bolted into contention with a 12-foot eagle putt on the eighth hole, had a closing 68.

Another former champion, 1984 winner Ben Crenshaw, followed at 284 after a hard-won 72. He was Lyle's playing partner in the final twosome that played over the flowered hills and valleys of the course Bobby Jones built.

Greg Norman, the white-haired Australian who was runner-up in the last two Masters, started the day 11 shots back but burst into contention with a record-matching 30 over the front side.

But the putts stopped falling with the same regularity on the back nine and, although finishing with a 64 that was the best round of the tournament, he actually expressed disappointment.

"I thought if I could get it to five under (par) the other guys might start thinking, 'How can he shoot 62 out there?' and worrying about my score instead of theirs," Norman said.

But he couldn't quite make it, finishing in a tie at 285, three under par, with Don Pooley and Fred Couples.

Pooley had a closing 70 and Couples 71.

South African David Frost was at 286 after a 68. Tom Watson and Bernhard Langer were at 287. Watson, a two-time Masters champion, shot 71 and Langer, a West German who won here in 1985, had a 73.

Mom would be proud

Defense looks strong as experiments continue

By MARTY STRASEN
Sports Editor

Notre Dame's defensive coaches are smiling. The offensive coaches are still experimenting.

And Saturday afternoon's spring football scrimmage in Notre Dame Stadium was a great example of both.

First the No. 2 defense would stop the No. 1 offense. Then the No. 1 defense would stymie the No. 2 offense. Then it would happen again. And again. And again.

Billy Hackett's 27-yard field goal after a 43-yard march by the No. 2 offense, led by freshman Kent Graham, snapped the shutout on the 12th drive of the afternoon. The defense stopped six of the first 11 drives without allowing a first down.

"We won't sell many season tickets if the fans come to see offense," Irish head coach Lou Holtz said. "But I thought the hitting was crisp and the intensity was good. Our young offensive line really put the defense ahead. We're still trying to find the right chemistry up front."

Defensive tackle Jeff Alm and outside linebacker Darrell "Flash" Gordon took advantage of the inexperience and raced past the No. 2 offensive line to pressure the Notre Dame quarterbacks on several occasions. Alm sacked Graham two consecutive times on one drive.

Strong safety George Streeter and outside linebacker Frank Stams also turned in strong performances for the top defense.

Defensive end Andre Jones and lineman Bryan Flannery made big plays for the No. 2 unit.

"Our whole football team on defense is pretty active," Holtz noted. "There aren't as many holes in the defensive line. We close the holes a lot quicker than last year."

The offense put it together to close out the scrimmage, however, scoring points on five of the last six drives.

Steve Belles led the No. 3 offense to the first touchdown of the day against the No. 3 defense following Hackett's field goal. Belles completed the only three passes he put up, including one to split end Pat Eilers from 12 yards out for the score.

The No. 1 offense then put its first points on the board on a 35-yard boot by Hackett, who missed a 44-yarder on an earlier drive, but the play was nullified by a defensive penalty. Junior signal caller Pete Graham was sent in to replace Tony Rice after one running play and two straight illegal procedure penalties.

Pete Graham hit freshman receiver Bobby Carpenter for 20 yards on his first play of the 47-yard drive against the No. 1 defense. Tailback Ricky Waters broke through for 17 yards two plays later.

Watters gained 79 yards on 16 rushes, while fellow freshman Tony Brooks carried the ball 18 times for 61 yards.

Carpenter and Pierre Martin looked promising at receiver slots. Martin held onto a 16-yard Kent Graham pass despite a solid hit by D'Juan Francisco that sent him into a somersault.

"I'm impressed with our backs," Holtz said. "They took some great hits today."

358 title hopes are extinguished

Intensity picks up on the courts

The first round of Bookstore Basketball XVII is history, as are the hopes of 358 teams which have been eliminated from competition.

After the 48 games played yesterday, a total of 208 teams remain to vie for the coveted Bookstore title. The second round of action began yesterday and continues today and tomorrow before the round of 128 kicks into gear Wednesday.

Both the level of play and intensity picked up during this weekend's action and will continue to do so for the rest of the tournament as some early favorites find that no win is a given.

One seeded team which found its hands full was Minahoones, who reached the final-16 last year before bowing out to the eventual champions, 'Da Brothers of Manhood. Yesterday they met up with 800 Pounds of Slow, White Cellulite in second round action.

Cellulite and Minahoones pounded the boards and answered point-for-point in the second half until Minahoones, who played without point guard Steve Antonelli, eclipsed a 21-21 tie and put in two hoops to take the overtime win, 23-21.

"It was a pretty physical game," said Pete Graham of Minahoones, who scored eight points in the contest, "but's that's kind of the way we play. We've got some big players. We're not a crowd favorite, that's for sure, but they were just as physical as we were."

"They (Cellulite) could have possibly been a final-32 team if they didn't get matched up with us. Hopefully the rest of our bracket won't be as difficult."

Brideshead Revisited put a scare into I'll Play, No I Won't, I'll Play, No I Won't early in their game yesterday before the Leone's Stallions connection of John Mundo and Al Martin, guards on last year's tournament runner-up team, turned up the tempo and ran away with a 21-13 win.

Mike Sperry paced the early Brideshead success with a hot hand from the outside to knot the score at 5-5 and hold I'll Play to an 11-8 halftime count. But I'll Play, who played without another Leone's vet Bill Sullivan, poured it on as John Kennedy hit 9-of-13 to lead the winners into the third round.

Sibling rivalry took on a new meaning on the Stepan courts yesterday when Red Death and the Jammin' Provost slayed Silly English Pigdogs, 21-11. Howie York scored three points for the winners while brother Mike went scoreless for the losers. Red Death had previously outscored its opponents 42-1 before the battle of the Yorks.

Lou's 2 QB's and Two Blind Guys advanced with a 21-13 win over Air Chek and Ground Support. Former Irish basketball player Jeff Peters led the victors with eight points, most coming off strong drives to the hole, while one of Lou's 2 QBs, Tony Rice, added five. The game was marred by a few hostile and profane reactions by an Air Chek player to abuse from a partisan segment of the crowd.

"It was the first serious incident we've had this year," said Bookstore Commissioner Mike Manning. "We didn't react in time to stop it and we regret that we didn't take immediate action. He should have been out of the game as soon as it happened."

"We realize tempers can flare out there on the court," continued Manning, "but that's not an excuse for unsportsmanlike conduct. We can't tolerate this type of action and similar actions will result in the elimination of any players involved."

The Ministers of Pain iced One Wide Reciever, 21-17, in a physical battle yesterday at Stepan. Tim Ryan paced the winners by clearing the boards

The action becomes more intense and the big guys start to take over as Bookstore makes the transition from fun and games to a serious bas-

Women's tennis dominates foes

Dominant. This word summarizes the play of the Notre Dame women's tennis team this weekend. The Irish netters rolled up 16 victories while dropping only one the entire weekend.

The first victim of this red hot Irish team was the University of Toledo. The Irish dismantled the Rockets by a 8-1 score. Notre Dame wrapped up the match in the singles play, allowing Head Coach Michele Gelfman to play everyone on the team.

In singles play, the entire team dominated its matches. Ce Ce Cahill crushed Lisa Donnelly 6-1, 6-1. In what was the most decisive victory of the day, Michelle Dasso defeated Lisa Ambrosetti, 6-1, 6-0. Not wanting to be left out in festivities was Jackie Uhl, who defeated Claudine Michaud, 6-2, 6-0.

"Our solid six players gave the rest of the team the opportunity to play in the doubles combination," said Gelfman.

Gelfman was impressed with the play of the new doubles combinations. The number-one team of Kim Pacella and Cathy Bradshaw, regularly number-three, took advantage of its promotion and grinded out a 7-5, 2-6, 6-4 against the regular number-one Toledo tandem of Donnelly and Harrah.

In other doubles play, the Notre Dame duo of Jackie Uhl and Julie Sullivan lost a 6-3, 6-2 decision to Lisa Ambrosetti and Chantel Van Dyke. But the tandem of Maura Weidner and Pat O'Byrne rallied from losing the first set 5-7 and emerged victorious in three sets, 5-7, 6-2, 6-0.

"I was exceptionally pleased that everyone got the opportunity to play today," said Gelfman. "I was impressed with the play of Pacella and Bradshaw. In the beginning they played spotty but they adjusted and closed in on the net."

On Sunday the Irish were braced for a clash with Purdue. The Irish expected the match with the Lady Boilermakers to go to the wire. But Notre Dame found that extra something and extinguished the Boilermakers 8-0.

"I was skeptical going into the match," said Gelfman. "Purdue brought basically the same team this year that beat us, 6-3, plus were were even younger this year."

Despite Gelfman's reservations the Irish trounced the
