Arrest made in Wrappe murder

Associated Press

NEW YORK -A crack-addicted paroled killer has been arrested in the slaying of Judith Wrappe, a 1988 Notre Dame graduate.

Wrappe was shot during a $27 holdup one week after she arrived from Arkansas, police said.

"He is a local crack addict who spends a lot of time on the street," police deputy Inspector Charles Prestia said of 37-year-old Frank DeChirico. "We believe the robbery was for the purpose of getting money for drugs."

DeChirico was arrested Saturday and charged with murdering Judith Ann Wrappe, 24, a native of Little Rock, Ark., and a first-year graduate student at Pratt Institute.

She had been in the city seven days when she was mugged about 1 a.m. Wednesday. Police said she refused to give up her purse and was shot in the chest.

Police said DeChirico was out on parole since 1986 after serving 13 1/2 years for manslaughter. Since 1966, police said, he was arrested nine other times on charges that included robbery, drug possession, grand larceny and burglary.

Prestia said investigators identified DeChirico through witnesses and street sources.

The unemployed oil burner maintenance worker also was charged with robbery, Prestia said.

DeChirico stole $27 in the mugging, police said. Miss Wrappe's purse contained $1 and other personal effects when found by police.

"It makes me feel better that he's off the street," said the victim's mother, Sue Wrappe, in a telephone interview from Little Rock. Her daughter spelled her surname differently.

"I'm sure the police and the judicial system will take care of it from here and we can count on justice being done," she said.

Burtchaell debates aborted fetus use

Burtchaell anticipates more debate

By ASHOK RODRIGUES
News Staff

Notre Dame theology professor Father James Burtchaell completed a three day conference in Washington D.C. on the use of fetuses from induced abortions for medical research this weekend.

Burtchaell was appointed by the director of the National Institutes of Health to be a part of the 21-member panel that researched the scientific, ethical, and legal issues involving the use of aborted fetuses.

According to Burtchaell, the panel was given 10 questions to discuss regarding the practice. However, as Burtchaell observed, "Not only did we not get through them, we didn't even reach a rough working draft on some of them. We just are far away from converging on a document... Quite literally, we have not even discussed a majority of those questions."

"We're far from finished and I'm told that we will be asked to come back sometime between the 10th and 20th of October," continued Burtchaell.

"I think the question is whe-

Father James Burtchaell

ther you can (use aborted fetuses) without becoming enmeshed in moral complicity with the abortion itself. I don't think you can," Burtchaell said.

Burtchaell has published several books on abortion, including "Rachel Weeping, and Other Essays on Abortion," winner of a Christopher Award as one of the best books of 1982.

Burtchaell has been a member of several federal advisory panels in the past, reviewing proposals for the National Endowment for the Humanities. "The task on the others was much more modest, (the fetus issue) is a major policy," noted Burtchaell.

In addition, Burtchaell is member of the Notre Dame faculty committee which conducts reviews of research involving human subjects.

Confusion surrounds vote

Associated Press

SOUTH BEND -Reports appeared Monday that a National Institutes of Health advisory committee supported federal backing for medical research using intentionally aborted human fetuses.

"The panel recommended nothing," said the Rev. James Burtchaell, a professor of theology at the University of Notre Dame and a council member.

At a news conference Friday, panel chairman Arlin Adams of Philadelphia said the panel voted 19-0, with two abstentions, to recommend federal backing for the research.

But Burtchaell said there was "great confusion" among the panel members over the vote, with some believing the vote was to close debate while others thought an amendment was being considered. "When it emerged that everybody was voting on a different thing, the chairman said, 'Well, we'll annul that vote,'" he said.

Burtchaell called the reported agreement on the issue a "serious misrepresentation," but declined to identify or speculate on the source of the misrepresentation. Burtchaell said he believed the panel was voting to set aside the matter, without a recommendation, and return to it later. He declined to say how he voted, or whether he would support or oppose using fetal tissue for research.

Some medical researchers believe the transplantation of fetal tissue might prove effective in the treatment of several diseases, including Parkinson's syndrome and diabetes. Anti-abortion groups oppose the practice, and a temporary ban on federal funding of fetal research was imposed last April by Dr. Robert Windom, assistant secretary for health.

Health and Human Services Secretary Otis Bowen says he will not take a position before NIH officials have reviewed the issue. Bowen said the research procedure is legal, although he personally opposes abortion.

The panel recommendation reported Friday set up a possible conflict with the White House. Presidential adviser Gary Bauer says he would push for an executive order banning federal involvement in such research, but it was unclear whether Reagan or other top administration officials would support a ban.

The reported recommendation called for the development

Brian McCarthy victorious

The Student Senate run-off elections held Monday night saw Brian McCarthy defeat Jim McCarthy by a narrow margin of forty votes to become the new representative for District Two.

The votes tallied by John Wilson, President of the Ombudsman Society, gave Brian McCarthy a close victory with 297 votes to Jim McCarthy's 257.

The election was called after Mary Feliz, a junior from Breen-Phillips Hall, resigned from the Student Senate.

"My immediate plans as Student Representative focus on the two new dorms, Knott and Siegfried," said McCarthy, "There are many new freshmen and transfer students who need to be made to feel welcome."

McCarthy's plans include a big brother program for the new dorms and an outdoor fitness course. McCarthy will represent St. Edwards, Zahm, Knott, Cavanaugh, Breen-Phillips, Siegfried, and Farley.

INSIDE COLUMN

Student opinion has little effect on administration

Hello, I'm Michael Moran and I'd like to speak to the administration about ... (click)... Hello? Hello? Is anyone there?

The previous clip is fictional, but it describes the seemingly one-sided dialogue the students share with the administration. Sure, the Task-Forces last year sought out student opinion, and it was repeatedly reported that student opinion was a major factor in the final decisions handed down this August.

The fact is many students do not believe that student opinion had much to do with the decisions at all. The fact remains that the new policies implemented are not popular with the students.

In the student media, there has been considerable student response to the new Alcohol Policy, but the students have not heard anything in response. In an editorial several weeks ago, The Observer directly expressed its disapproval of the administration's lack of explanation of the rationale behind the new rules. As of this date, the administration has ignored that, and other, calls for a dialogue regarding the policy.

In many of the students' eyes, the administration sought student opinion, then ignored it so they could hand down the stone tablet mandates that they wanted from the beginning. Now the students are responding to the new policy, but are not getting any response.

Students see inconsistencies in the administration's policies. A dialogue needs to be taken up between the administration and the students to define more directly these inconsistencies, and search for ways of resolving them. One inconsistency is the censorship of liquor advertising in The Observer. A university is a place for the free expression of ideas, yet the administration finds it acceptable to prohibit these ads. Do they really think that this will change attitudes about alcohol? Or is there a different motive behind this new policy? Nobody seems to know, and no one is telling the students.

An inconsistency within this policy itself is that The Observer is allowed to advertise the Alumni-Senior Club (commonly known as Senior Bar), yet cannot do the same for its South Bend competitors. Why is this? We don't know, nobody is telling us.

Another inconsistency is that students may not sponsor tailgaters, yet alumni can. There must be some fine print in the diploma I hope to receive in May that states that I will then be mature enough to sponsor a tailgater. We don't know. Nobody is telling us.

Mike Moran

If they were really concerned with stepping in line with the Indiana State law like they say, wouldn't the criteria be whether you are twenty-one.

The University tries to create an atmosphere that stimulates the social growth of the student. Despite the administration's implementing of programs that promote responsible drinking, their new policies are conducive to the opposite. They lead to fewer social events, i.e. SYRs, and will lead to larger off-campus parties, which leads to more drinking and driving.

The worst part of the lack of dialogue from the administration is it makes students feel like they are beating on a brick wall. This will tend to discourage students from taking leadership roles on campus. If they feel that the administration will give them little freedom to act, why should students spend the many hours they do now, just to have the university interfere.

Please, if anyone is home in the Administration Building, respond to the student editorials and open a dialogue to continually review the policy.

Cars towed from Goodwill

By COLLEEN CRONIN
Senior Staff Reporter

Many people who drove to Bridget McGuire's Filling Station last Thursday night had their cars towed away, due to illegal parking.

These cars had been parked on or near the parking lot of Goodwill, just north of Bridget's. The sign in the Goodwill parking lot explicitly states that any car other than those for Goodwill will be towed.

The owner of City Towing said that this is not a new policy, and applies to cars parked in any privately owned parking lot around Bridget's. "It (the policy) is like it has been for every year. People park where they are not supposed to be parked." When asked if people had been warned about this before, he replied, "It's been like this for three years now."

Rozel Gatmaitan, a Saint Mary's student, was among those to have her car towed Thursday night. "No one warned me at all. I came out and thought my car was stolen." She saw a flatbed truck with her car, among others, on it. She was told that the only way she could recover her car was if she could pay the $50 fine immediately. Because she was unable to pay at the time, she was told to come get her car Friday morning.

Friday morning, when Gatmaitan called about her car, her bill had risen to $65. When she actually came in to recover her car, the bill was at $75, and had been visibly changed, according to Gatmaitan.

Power outage due to fallen tree

By MARK MCLAUGHLIN
Senior Staff Reporter

Electric power was lost throughout large sections of the Notre Dame campus yesterday after a fallen tree knocked out a feeder line from Indiana and Michigan Power, said Don Dedrick, director of the Physical Plant.

"A tree fell across a 4000 volt feeder line from I&M," said Director of Utilities John DeLee. "The spike from the power loss drained the generators, and four feeder breakers."

The breakers that tripped were:

- Breaker 10, serving the west side of campus;
- Breakers 21 and 22, serving the Hesburgh Library, the Joyce ACC, and other buildings on the east side of campus; and •Breaker 11, serving the Center for Continuing Education, part of Fitzpatrick Hall, and other buildings on the south side of campus.

The areas hit by a power outage "depend on what breakers are set at the powerhouse," said DeLee. He added that the powerhouse staff tries to maximize the percentage of the Notre Dame generated power used, and buys the rest from I&M Power.

The large voltage spike also shut down the number one boiler, said DeLee. "We have to wait until the boiler starts putting out steam again. Then we have to synchronize the generators with I&M again."

"After we check everything out. Then we can start reclosing the breakers," DeLee added.

"The whole procedure was routine," Dedrick said. "Anytime we lose the I&M feed this scenario will follow."

DeLee said the last time power was lost on campus was the first day of final exams last May. That time the I&M feed was also the problem. "Over the last five years we've lost the I&M feed about two times a year," said DeLee.

These losses were normal, said DeLee, due to unforeseen accidents, and lightning.

According to DeLee, Notre Dame generates about half its power requirements and buys the rest from I&M.

41 tornadoes sweep across Texas

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO, Texas - Tornadoes spawned by Hurricane Gilbert caused more than $35 million damage in this inland southern Texas city, apparently worse than coastal cities that faced the main storm, officials said Monday.

Two people were killed in the 41 tornadoes that leap-frogged across the state. Heavy rain swelled rivers in some areas, but no injuries were reported.

Gov. Bill Clements was to tour the tornado-ravaged areas of San Antonio on Monday after viewing damage in Brownsville on the southern tip of Texas, which felt part of the hurricane's wind and waves.

"I think all of us feel a sense of relief that we are blessed that there is no more damage in Texas and more particularly here in Cameron County than you have experienced," Clements said after flying over waterfront areas at Brownsville.

What little was left of the hurricane was moving across the Midwest toward Illinois, leaving heavy rain in its wake.

"I don't think we are expecting much more in the way of trouble from Hurricane Gilbert," said Laureen Chernow, spokeswoman for the state's Emergency Management Council in Austin.

San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros toured tornado-ravaged areas Sunday, and said he wanted to extend his state of emergency declaration through Friday.

The declaration will enable the city to try to seek assistance from the Small Business Administration and other federal agencies.

Poll finds Bush competent

Associated Press

NEW YORK -Americans see Michael Dukakis as more compassionate, George Bush as more competent, but aren't convinced that either candidate can accomplish most of his goals as president, a Media General-Associated Press poll has found.

About half the 1,125 adults in the national survey saw both men as strong leaders. But considerably more said Bush, the vice president and Republican nominee, understands the problems a president faces and is competent to manage the government.

Only 36 percent of those surveyed said Bush could accomplish most of his goals as president, and just 31 percent said Dukakis, the Democratic candidate, could achieve most of his goals. Nearly half said either would be stymied. The rest were not sure.

Seven in 10 respondents to the poll, conducted the week after the Labor Day campaign kickoff, said the outcome of the election would have a major impact on the nation's future. But they split, 45-45, on whether it would affect them personally.

Bush led solidly among respondents who said they planned to vote and had made a definite choice, partly because a greater share of Republicans said they had decided.

The poll's findings underscored Bush's success since the Republican National Convention in mid-August at portraying himself as more competent, an issue Dukakis had sought to claim.

The two were close on other scores, and more Americans saw Dukakis as someone who cares about them.

Bush's control of the agenda also was apparent. Fifty-two percent said he had clear positions on the issues, while 37 percent said that of Dukakis.

Bush had somewhat less success in his effort to paint Dukakis as more likely to raise taxes. A plurality, 45 percent, said there wasn't likely to be any difference between the two when it comes to raising taxes.

But in a measure that bodes well for an incumbent party, six in 10 said they were better off now than they were either four or eight years ago, and 55 percent expected their family finances to improve in the next few years.

In some other ratings the two were about equal. Six in 10 said both offer a vision of where they want to lead the country and five in 10 said both were strong leaders.

Representative discusses family

By DAVID JACOBSON
News Staff

America is turning away from materialistic needs, and is returning to the traditional ideal of rearing children, claims Indiana representative Dan Coats. He feels that the government has a definite role to play in aiding this change.

Republican Coats says that society has stopped stressing materialistic needs. "Families inherently know that there are timeless values even though the country seems to have gone through a two decade binge tolerating everything from casual sex to cocaine."

Coats will be introducing legislature this week entitled "The American Family Act I". The act focuses on family support and stability, better education, and aid for "at risk children". It also suggests the adoption of better child care, especially for lower class families.

Coats stresses that the government cannot provide all the solutions to family problems. "Rather, our proposals attempt to utilize the government in helping empower individuals and families to seek out and utilize time-tested methods of addressing the problems they face."

With families on the horizon for many college students, these changes in the public policies toward children become extremely important issues.

Dan Coats' lecture at the Hayes-Healy auditorium last night was the second in a series entitled "The Year of the Child in Family Policy". The program will emphasize the turn toward children in public policies, and is sponsored by the Hesburgh Program in Public Service, and the AT&T Distinguished Visiting Scholars Series. The director of the Hesburgh program is David Leege.

Attendance debated

By COLLEEN CONLEY
News Staff

An amendment to the Constitution of the Undergraduate Student Body was introduced last night at the Student Senate weekly meeting.

The amendment proposed that attendance by all members of the Student Senate be required at all meetings. If passed, three unwarranted or two consecutive absences may become grounds for a mandatory review by the Senate, which could result in impeachment and removal from office.

The amendment will be argued at next week's meeting. Senate officers suggested proposing an additional amendment detailing who shall decide what constitutes an unwarranted absence.

The Saint Mary's representative discussed the Sept. 20 freshman elections and announced the upcoming voter registration drive to be held Thursday, Sept. 22.

More children are homeless

Associated Press

WASHINGTON -At least 100,000 of America's children are homeless on any given night, the National Academy of Sciences estimated Monday.

This statistic doesn't include those children who have run away from home or been kicked out by their parents.

While male alcoholics and former mental patients still make up a large portion of the homeless, the fastest growing group of people with no place to live are children under 18, said the academy's Institute of Medicine.

"The committee feels strongly that the growing phenomenon of homeless children is nothing short of a national disgrace that must be treated with the urgency that such a situation demands," said the report.

One recommendation aimed directly at helping children is the expansion of federal support for enriched day care and Head Start programs, coupled with outreach efforts to make homeless parents aware of help available for their children.

A recommendation for the homeless in general would be to permit the use of food stamps at restaurants so prepared meals will be available to people who don't have kitchens.

The committee formed by the institute to do the study, which was ordered by search, the committee and its staff visited agencies serving the homeless in 11 cities--Boston, Chicago, Kansas City, Lexington, Ky., Los Angeles, Milwaukee, Nashville, San Diego, San Francisco, St. Louis and Washington--and rural areas in Alabama, Minnesota, Mississippi and North Dakota.

"Those who stay in rural areas remain hidden until some event causes them to lose their housing, at which point they can be found living in, for example, cars, abandoned buildings, and woods," the report said.

The study says the major causes of homelessness are:

- A decrease in the number of housing units for low-income people --2.5 million fewer than in 1980--while the number of people who can only afford such units has increased because of skyrocketing housing costs.

- A tightening of eligibility for public assistance programs as well as a decline in the value of such assistance.

- Policies of state mental hospitals, general hospitals, rehabilitation facilities and some jails and prisons that have fewer people admitted and free some who were previously held.

Drop in SAT mean first in eight years

Associated Press

NEW YORK -Average SAT scores lost ground in 1988 for the first time in eight years, but minority students continued a decade-long pattern of impressive gains, the College Board reported Monday.

Scores on the verbal section of the Scholastic Aptitude Test fell two points to an average 428, while the average on the math section was unchanged at 476, according to the board's annual report.

Both portions of the multiple-choice exam taken each year by 1.1 million college-bound students are scored on a scale of 200-800, with a combined 1600 being perfect.

The combined math-verbal average of 904 marked the first decline in eight years. The national average hit a low of 890 in 1980, recovered a bit to 906 by 1985 and was unchanged until this year's slight decline.

Minority students in the class of '88, especially blacks, posted the strongest gains. Verbal scores among blacks last year rose an average of two points to 353, and math scores rose seven points to 384-- doubly impressive since the number of black test-takers rose 39 percent in three years from 70,156 in 1985 to 97,483 last year, said the College Board's Research Director, Robert Cameron.

P.O. Box Q

Student justifies denial of movie

Dear Editor:

I remain unabashed by the Sept. 13 column by Mr. Victor J. Krebs. I readily admit that I have not seen "The Last Temptation of Christ" and yet I confidently assert that it is blasphemous and therefore ought not to be patronized. Not having seen the film, I make no claim about its craft except that, coming from Martin Scorsese, I feel sure that it contains some very fine work. Neither do I challenge his First Amendment right to make such a film. These things are not at issue. In this film the integrity of the Godman Jesus Christ is demeaned and denied. Out of respect for the one who offered his life that we might be free, we should avoid this picture.

If I closed here I should fall justly prey to Mr. Krebs's charge of "prejudice." He writes, "Back at Notre Dame I have met with a strange mixture of attitudes: indifference to the whole thing on the part of some (always a source of concern to me), but also fear-based primarily on prejudice—on the part of others. The answer is usually: I have been told it's blasphemous, so I don't want to see it."

Here I must confess that I have accepted the word of some strangers. Perhaps the reader will not judge me too harshly, though. These strangers are journalists for Newsweek, Time, The Village Voice, as well as Victor J. Krebs writing for The Observer. What I have accepted from them is not their editorial bent but some facts about the movie and its contents. I am trusting that what these authors say is in the movie is actually in it. Thus I believe Victor J. Krebs that in the film Jesus tells Judas "that God told him 'the plan only little by little.'" Allow me to concentrate on one such fact.

Mr. Krebs says that "Christ is pictured as having carnal desires." Andrew Greeley would agree with this description. In response to the question "Could Jesus desire a woman?" he says, "The Christian must say that of course He might..." In the movie Christ is portrayed as visually fantasizing about sex relations with Mary Magdalene.

The idea seems to be that since Christ was a man, he must have been subject to concupiscence.

Perhaps the meaning of concupiscence is best explained by St. Paul's description of it in Romans as "a law of my members fighting against the law of my mind." This struggle is familiar to us. We have all experienced the desire to do what we know we should not. We are truly imperfect vessels, subject to this unruliness of the passions as a punishment for original sin. When our first parents fell, they lost for us the preternatural gift of integrity by means of which man's reason and will were in perfect harmony.

What Scorsese and Greeley either forget or deny is that even though Christ was fully human, he was not just any man but was perfect man. Since he was free from any stain of sin he did not suffer the effects of original sin in his nature. He was fully and perfectly human without the lack of integrity, for, as the Scriptures say, he was "like us in all things but sin." If Christ had the "warring of the flesh," then he can no longer be seen as spotless but as stained by original sin. If Christ "was made lower than angels" in order to redeem us, it seems the height of ingratitude and a weighty insult to portray him in our movie theatres as stained by original sin and thus lower even than unfallen man.

Based on what we know without experiencing the movie first-hand, it seems best to avoid such an experience.

St. Mary's deserves credit for concert

Dear Editor:

Saint Mary's students grabbed their Observers on Sept. 14 around noon, as they do every day, but conversations didn't center around the Michigan game or new SYR regulations this time. Instead students were furious. They were enraged by the George Winston story headline on the Accent page.

The first line of the story reads: "Internationally renowned pianist George Winston will perform tonight at 8:00 p.m. in O'Laughlin Auditorium," with a headline that proclaims the event as "An ND First." This is all fine, but Saint Mary's deserves all the credit. I realize that many events sponsored by Notre Dame are indeed held at O'Laughlin Auditorium on many occasions, but this is one that is not.

Randy Brown and the staff of O'Laughlin Auditorium should receive total credit for Mr. Winston's appearance on Saint Mary's campus. He is one of the biggest names we, as students, have had the opportunity to see in quite a while on either of the campuses. I feel The Observer has deprived Saint Mary's of this excitement by crediting Notre Dame for this sold out performance.

"Winston Cometh" has yet to be dubbed "An ND first!" As a member of the smaller and often silenced of the two schools making up this most prestigious community, I feel Saint Mary's has often been the victim of such abuse. I trust that this will not be taken offensively by the students of Notre Dame. We are proud to share our facilities with you as you have been generous in doing with us. All we ask is that credit be given where credit is due.

Economic facts may be slanted

Dear Editor:

I am writing in response to a Sept. 13 article by Business columnist Rich Coglianese entitled, "Let's talk economic facts concerning the 1988 election."

Mr. Coglianese asks, and quickly answers, the frequently posed question, "Are you better off now than you were eight years ago?" His article is patently misleading and contributes to the myopic and illusory facade of economic success much touted in this, an election year. With partisanship aside, "Let's talk economic facts" as this writer challenges us to do.

On Aug. 31, 1988, the United States Census Bureau reported that the proportion of white Americans living in poverty declined significantly during 1987. At first glance, therefore, it appears Coglianese's conclusion is correct. In that same report, however, the Census Bureau also noted that the proportion of black and Hispanic poor people increased. In short, the median incomes of white Americans increased in 1987 in terms of real dollars while those of black and Hispanic citizens declined. More precisely, the proportion of white Americans who were poor in 1987 was 10.5 percent, or 21.4 million, as against 11 percent, or 22.2 million in 1986, while the proportion of black Americans living in poverty in 1987 was 33.1 percent or 9.68 million as against 31.1 percent or 8.98 million in 1986. Mr. Coglianese's answer is simply wrong.

We must conclude that the writer either failed to do his homework before summarily concluding that "we are better off" or his definition of who we are fails to include many less fortunate Americans. I sincerely hope Mr. Coglianese's error proceeds from his failure to adequately research the facts rather than from his belief that prosperity is measured only by a limited universe of privileged white Americans.

GSU urges student input about film

Dear Editor:

The Graduate Student Union has recently cosponsored with the Student Union Board a trip to see "The Last Temptation of Christ" and an open discussion with participants from various disciplines. There has been much enthusiasm and support for this activity from many quarters. We have been made aware, however, that there are graduate students who do not think the GSU should cosponsor such an activity. In the past, disagreement with the activities of the GSU has been answered with a withdrawal of the $10 voluntary fee from the GSU funds.

The GSU is a representative organization, and as such it should act in accordance with the majority of its constituency. If the GSU does not fulfill that role, it is our responsibility to make sure that it does. Withdrawing your voluntary fee from the GSU funds hurts the GSU's projects, most of which are directed to the benefit of the graduate student population and the Notre Dame community as a whole.

Help us ensure that your voice will be heard by making sure your department sends a representative to the Graduate Student Council, where firsthand information is provided to all represented departments and where decisions of importance for graduate students are made on a monthly basis.

Alumni Hall: Center of the Universe?

MATTHEW SPATZ
accent writer

Alumni Hall has been called "The Center of the Universe," an appropriate title as its location allows easy walking access to many class buildings, South Dining Hall, and the student parking lot. It also stands as a welcoming dorm to visitors approaching the campus via Notre Dame Avenue.

In the days of the 12 p.m. curfew, the location allowed residents to take their time getting home, while students in other halls required an extra five or ten minutes of travel. When the hall was built, its central location was said to allow residents to admire female strollers-by. Said the Dome in 1949, "Among other things, Alumni is an ideal reviewing stand; Alumni men are competent reviewers." The same situation exists to this day.

One of Alumni's most outstanding exterior features is the four-story tower facing the main circle. High upon this tower, three of Notre Dame's only genuine gargoyles are poised as watch dogs over the main circle entrance. Housed in the fourth floor of the tower is "The Loft," which, along with the newly carpeted party room, was the only part of the dorm renovated over the summer (thanks, Stanford). Here, residents pour over books in a relaxed and quiet atmosphere.

Other externals include a statue of "Joe College" dressed in cap and gown, the Madonna and Child, Sts. Thomas and Bonaventure, and a relief of Knute Rockne flanked by two of the old Irish Terrier mascots, each named Clashmore Mike.

Built in 1931 under University President Father Charles O'Donnell at a cost of $450,000, Alumni was primarily an all-senior dorm until World War II. It was called Alumni to honor the alumni who were so loyal and supportive of the University. It was originally nicknamed "The Gold Coast," because it was beautiful, spacious, and more costly than living in Lyons or Morrissey. Today, the quarters can hardly be called spacious, as most of the old singles have been converted to doubles, but the residents have learned to make the most of the cramped conditions.

On the southwest side of the dorm is the famous "S-t Alley," where tight quarters and overcrowding almost force residents to become close friends quickly. But throughout the dorm, there is a feeling of fraternity. Most of the "Dogs" come to know each other well, and the spirit is one of acceptance of anyone, despite differences. Before this year's policy of not taking resident hall requests from incoming freshmen, Alumni was the most requested dorm on campus.

Though not quite the center of the universe, Alumni Hall is central at least in the hearts of its residents.

Another interior feature of interest is Alumni's illustrious personnel. Vice-president Father William Beauchamp and Director of Campus Ministry Father Andre Leville enjoy sharing their residence with the other Dogs of Alumni. Says Beauchamp, "Every hall on campus is good, but I like Alumni. I like the people here." And the Dogs like him, as is the case with Fr. Andre. Anyone can knock on either door and find a willing ear for help with a personal problem or just simple conversation.

And let's not forget the 1987-88 winner of the Rector of the Year Award, Father George Rozum. The South Dakotan priest with odd sleeping hours and a mean bridge game is one of the campus' only full-time rectors. He takes great pride in Alumni and knows everyone in the hall. He has been with Alumni for over ten years and "wouldn't have it any other way."

Aside from coaching bridge weekly and mixing the most amazing (and powerful) Christmas egg-nogs this side of the North Pole, Fr. George cares for one of the most beautiful chapels on campus. Alumni's 11 p.m. Sunday Mass, with its organ and guitar choir, is always crowded and prides itself on good celebration and participation. Fr. George says "We have the classiest (residents) on campus."

Being the dorm closest to the Main Circle, Alumni is usually the first stop for visiting Saint Mary's freshman. This phenomenon gives prime socializing opportunity for the freshmen of the first floor. Says one freshman, "It's like a supermarket some nights."

At An Tostal each spring, Alumni holds its Irish Wake, the formal of the year for the Dogs. Its theme in the past has been to wake a person or other entity which has passed on. Subjects have included the Seventies, Elvis, and the near-fated Oral Roberts. At any rate, the social activity in Alumni is rated high by its residents, because they know how to have fun together.

The infamous Dillon-Alumni rivalry is another tradition of the dorm. Although Dillon usually takes the friendly competition too seriously, and residents frequently voice their jealousy loudly from the courtyard, Dogs have been known to bark a rebuttal toward the Big Red Ones on occasion. Recently, this instinctual and spirited barking has prompted litigations from Fr. George in the form of a $25 fine per voiced sentiment.

Being the center of the universe is a hard job to fill, but as far as the residents of Alumni are concerned, we wouldn't have it any other way.

New clubs on campus

KERRY COSTELLO
accent writer

Two new clubs surfacing on campus in the past year are the Synchronized Swim Team and the Bagpipe Band.

Senior Tara Creedon started the synchronized swim team, which finally materialized last year after three years of effort. Last year, the team consisted of 12 members, but this year 35 students signed up at activities night. Creedon has competed regionally and nationally in the sport, and hopes that eventually the team will enter competitions. Junior Katie Boehling is vice-president of the team.

Synchronized swimming consists of two basic actions: the first, called "sculling," involves supporting the body with the arms while headfirst underwater; and the second, called "eggbeater," involves supporting the body with the feet.

One must be able to swim to join the synchronized swim team, and practices will be held twice a week, beginning as soon as Rolf's Aquatic Center reopens.

The bagpipe band, originated by sophomore Paul Harren, also began last year and has renewed interest. Consisting of 15 members, the band hopes to get underway with the acquisition of eight sets of pipes. Harren, pipe-major of the band, has played bagpipes for nine years, including five years of competition. Robert Howland, faculty advisor, started a bagpipe band at North Carolina State before coming to Notre Dame.

Practices are held once every week. According to Harren, the band will hopefully play as a group next semester. No experience is necessary, and bandmembers must purchase a practice chanter to play until the bagpipes are acquired. The band hopes to be ready to play on St. Patrick's Day.

The Observer / Trey Raymond

Hurricanes still No. 1 in latest college poll

Associated Press

Miami's dramatic 31-30 come-from-behind victory over Michigan kept the Hurricanes atop the Associated Press college football poll Monday while Michigan became one of the few teams ever to be ranked with an 0-2 record.

However, two other Big Ten teams, Ohio State and Iowa, fell out of the Top Twenty while Pitt and Florida made it for the first time this season.

Miami, which rallied from a 30-14 deficit by scoring 17 points in the final 5½ minutes, received 52 of 59 first-place votes and 1,171 of a possible 1,180 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Michigan, which lost its opener 19-17 to Notre Dame, slipped from 15th to 19th. The last 0-2 team to make the Top Twenty was Southern Methodist in 1958.

UCLA, a 56-3 winner over Long Beach State, received three first-place votes and remained No. 2 with 1,104 points.

Last week, with 55 voters participating, Miami led UCLA

46-3 in first-place votes and 1,082-1,019 in points.

Oklahoma moved up from fourth to third with two first-place votes and 1,016 points. The Sooners, who defeated Arizona 28-10, replaced Clemson, which dropped from third to 12th after losing to Florida State 24-21.

Notre Dame finished eighth this week.

Correction

A caption in Monday's issue of The Observer incorrectly stated that Angel Myers won a gold medal for the United States in the women's 400-meter individual medley. Janet Evans was the winner and the woman actually pictured. Myers was disqualified from the Olympics after a drug test taken before the Games.

Races reveal depth of ND Sailing Club

The Notre Dame Sailing Club displayed its considerable depth last weekend, performing well in a pair of races. The Irish sent squads to Iowa and Kent State to compete in separate regattas.

In Iowa, Notre Dame placed third overall in a field of 10 teams, behind only Michigan and Wisconsin. In individual results, the "A" team of Pete Wall and Paige Cooper took third, while the "B" tandem of Patti Losinske and Liz Beckley finished fourth.

The Irish placed second in the seven-team event at Kent State. Michigan's Wolverines also won that race. Individually, Tom Sessions and Betsy Lewis took second in the "A" race, and Chris Bloom headed a tandem that finished third in the "B" division.

"I'm very happy with the sailing," club president Pete Wall said. "I was pretty pleased because Michigan and Wisconsin are two powerhouses in the Midwest. We hope to fare better against them in the future."

The Irish will send a team to the women's regatta at Michigan this weekend and also will compete in the MCSA Sloop Championships in Detroit.

The "C" squad of the Irish Rugby Club bounced back from a season-opening defeat to down Western Illinois Saturday, but the "B" team did not enjoy quite as much success. The "A" group did not play.

The "B" team lost to Western Illinois 13-12 on a last-minute score to fall to 0-2. Notre Dame's "C" squad won by an easy 16-8 count.

"The 'B' and 'C' sides looked really good," said club president Jim Lammers. "They showed a lot of intensity and made up for last week's performance."

The Irish will host Kalamazoo Saturday behind Stepan Center, two hours before the Notre Dame-Purdue football contest.

The Rowing Club will open its season Saturday in the Head of the Ohio, one of four races for the Irish during the fall season.

Belles share title with Butler

By HEATHER ATKINSON
Sports Writer

For the first time in seven years, the Saint Mary's tennis team shared top honors in its own invitational.

With an ending total of 36 points, Saint Mary's tied with Butler University for the number-one position. Of the seven participating teams, Saint Mary's was the only non-scholarship entry.

"I'm really excited about the outcome of the tournament," said Belles coach Deb Laverie. "We've never finished any better than fifth place. Most of the players from the other teams are playing with full scholarships, so this was a great indication of our playing ability and how the rest of the year should look."

Sophomore Sarah Mayer remains the only Saint Mary's player who has yet to be defeated in a match. Mayer lost only nine games in the tournament and defeated her opponent 6-4, 6-1 in the final match of the number-three singles competition.

Many singles' players lost in the final matches of the tournament, but turned in outstanding performances to contribute to the championship.

Jen Block lost a close match in the number two singles final, 7-5, 7-5.

"Jenny played excellent tennis all week," said Laverie. "Her final match came down to just a point here and there."

In number five singles, Angie Mueller was defeated 6-3, 6-3.

"She (Mueller) really lost a close one," said Laverie. "I'm proud of her effort. It's outstanding for a freshman to be in the final match."

Marie Koscielski, also a freshman, fell in the finals of the number six competition, 6-3, 6-3.

Coach Laverie was especially pleased with the doubles' matches. Mayer teamed up with Charlene Szjako for a good performance, but the duo lost, 6-4, 6-3, in the conclusive match.

Block and Mueller joined forces to win the consolation bracket, 6-4, 6-4, in number-one doubles.

If Saint Mary's won the number-three doubles' match, the Belles would tie for first. If they lost, the team would place second. Freshmen Koscielski and Ellen Mayer battled the pressure for a 7-5, 6-4 victory.

"I'm extremely proud of the entire team," said Laverie. "This was the best tennis I've seen played by a Saint Mary's team collectively. Our goal at the beginning of this year was to be ranked in the top ten nationally. I think it looks very obtainable at this point."

The Belles next match will be tonight at Anderson College.

SMC volleyball has rough tourney

By KRISTINE GREGORY
Sports Writer

The Saint Mary's volleyball team encountered a tough weekend as it lost in league play to St. Xavier on Friday and placed third in the IIT tournament Saturday in Chicago.

The Belles started strong against St. Xavier and won the first game, 15-6. They folded under pressure as they were edged 14-16 in game two. St.

Xavier took advantage of this and easily took game three 15-6.

The Belles were not out of it, though, as they came back with a fine performance and a 15-10 win in the fourth game. This was to no avail, as St. Xavier got themselves together to take the last game and the match 15-7.

"I was very disappointed with our performance," commented head coach Sue Medley, "We played below our potential and below what we have worked all year to achieve."

Things didn't improve much on Saturday as Saint Mary's fought its way to a third-place finish competing against eight teams. The Belles overall record for the day dropped to 2-2 as Aquinas of Michigan beat them in the semi-finals.

Saint Mary's, now 9-4, over-all travels to Goshen tonight for a league match.

Colts defeat Browns, win first game

Associated Press

CLEVELAND- Mike Pagel, Cleveland's third starting quarterback in three weeks, threw for 255 yards and two touchdowns Monday night, and the Browns' defense virtually shut down Eric Dickerson in the second half Monday to beat the Indianapolis Colts 23-17.

Pagel, pressed into duty because of injuries to Bernie Kosar and Gary Danielson, showed no signs of rust despite starting for the first time since he was with the Colts in 1985.

He completed 23 of 38 passes, including first-half touchdowns of 14 yards to Ozzie Newsome and 17 yards to Webster Slaughter. They were the first two touchdowns of the year for Cleveland, 2-1, and Newsome got his first since 1986.

Matt Bahr added field goals of 21, 29 and 40 yards for the Browns, sending Indianapolis to its third straight defeat.

Dickerson broke free for a 41-yard touchdown run in the second quarter that tied the game 10-10. He ran for 104 yards on 14 carries in the first half, but added only 13 yards on eight tries in the second half.

Louganis wins another gold

Associated Press

SEOUL- American Greg Louganis, performing with four stitches in his head, won the gold medal in the three-meter springboard diving competition Tuesday in the Summer Olympics.

Louganis hit his head on the board during the ninth dive of the preliminaries Monday and required four stitches. This time, he nailed his ninth dive en route to the gold.

With the victory, Louganis became the only athlete to win two gold medals in springboard diving.

Matt Biondi, lowering his sights from seven gold to seven medals, won his qualifying heat Tuesday in the 100-meter butterfly one day after Janet Evans gave America its first victory at the Seoul Olympics.

While Evans won the 400-meter individual medley gold on Monday, Biondi had to settle for bronze in the 200-meter freestyle as his quest to equal Mark Spitz's seven gold medals in 1972 ended in his first race.

"The Mark Spitz days are over," Biondi said.

Boxer Anthony Hembrick's quest for gold ended without a punch as he lost in a walkover. He rushed into the arena, late for his fight, just as his South Korean opponent was being declared the winner. Hembrick left hurriedly, near tears.

Another Olympic assault also was in jeopardy as Carl Lewis was close to losing his spot on U.S. relay team. That would cost him a chance to win four gold medals, as he did four years ago in Los Angeles. Sprint-relay coach Russ Rogers said Monday that Lewis would be dropped from the team if he continued his disruptive behavior.

Lewis has argued loudly with his coaches over the role of his personal adviser, who has been banned from practices, and Rogers said:

"He's at the end of his rope. The only thing he can do now is hang himself."

A little Romanian gymnast, meanwhile, was evoking memories of a time 12 years ago, when a countrywoman no bigger than her captivated the world by becoming the original perfect 10. That was Nadia Comaneci; this was 4-foot-6 Daniela Silivas, who had 10s in the uneven bars and floor exercise during women's team competition.

The American gymnasts, in fourth place after compulsorys, were done in by their own mistakes and an East German protest. They still had a shot at bronze.

In diving, U.S. gold medal favorite Greg Louganis had a close brush with a board, but escaped serious injury. Leading the qualifying for the springboard and going for a second consecutive Olympic sweep, Louganis hit his head while attempting a reverse 2½-somersault in his ninth of 11 dives.

He got out of the water without help, rubbed the top of his head and smiled. He scored a 6.3.

He came back about a half-hour later, five stitches in his head, and mugged for the crowd before launching himself into a near-perfect reverse 1½-somersault with 3½ twists. It earned 87.12 points, the highest score of the preliminary round, and he made Tuesday's final easily, where the scores start fresh.

After two days of medal events, the Soviet Union led with six, two of them gold. The United States and China, with one gold apiece, were tied for second with four medals.

Evans captured the women's 400-meter individual medley swimming event by nearly two seconds over world champion Noemi Lung of Romania.

PE upsets defending champ in women's opener

By CHRIS COONEY
Sports Writer

Pasquerilla East upset defending champion Breen-Philips, 6-0, in women's Interhall football action Sunday night. It was one of three overtime games on Cartier Field.

In other match-ups, Lewis tied up Knott, 24-18, in 4 overtimes, while Farley beat Siegfried, 14-0 and Lyons stopped Walsh, 8-0. PW also needed overtime to defeat Badin, 12-6.

PE won on its first overtime possession when quarterback and team captain Colleen O'Conner took a quarterback sneak in from the two-yard line. After that, the steadfast Packer defense stopped the BP goal-line attempt.

This year when games go into overtime, each team will get two chances to score from the five-yard line.

"We were really happy to beat the champs," said PE coach Rob Price, "especially since we've only had three practices and they had twice as many players."

Defensive coach Jim Toohey felt the key factor in the game occurred when PE stopped the Blitz's opening series on the five-yard line.

O'Conner said she thought the spirited team effort greatly influenced the outcome.

"We played as a team, everyone played, everyone contributed," she said.

Blitz coach Jeff Elia was disappointed with the loss, which he attributed to youth and inexperience. Captain Karen Marsh added that with only three returning seniors, they still have some kinks to work out. However, she is still optimistic that BP will have a chance to make the playoffs.

In another game Sunday night, Lyons combined a tenacious defense with Debbie Niichel's 77-yard touchdown to beat Walsh.

"Scoring on the third play definitely set the tone for the game," said Lyons captain Cathy Condit. "I was really impressed with Walsh but I think we all played well tonight. I can't single anyone out."

"We lost a lot of experienced players from last year's offense," said Lyons coach Steve Sewell. "We have a whole new line and quarterback and our star running back graduated. I was pleased that they played so well."

He also noted that the defense's adjustment, led by senior Julie Bernhardt, to a strong Walsh passing attack, clinched the game in the second half.

The action continues Wednesday night when Howard begins its season against Badin and Farley opposes Lewis.

Intelligence, discipline vital to Eilers' success

By TIM SULLIVAN
Sports Writer

Pat Eilers has earned his playing time the hard way.

The senior flanker from St. Paul, Minnesota, wasn't even offered a scholarship to Notre Dame after high school and, instead, attended Yale—not your national football powerhouse.

Soon, though, he made a big decision, and he's been wearing the Irish blue and gold ever since. Neither he nor the Irish coaching staff could be happier.

"I wasn't satisfied with the football program at Yale," said Eilers. "I decided that if I was going to do something (with football), I wanted to play for a national championship."

Eilers contacted Irish Head Coach Lou Holtz after his freshman year with the Elis, and then made the transfer. Ineligible for his sophomore year, he played impressively in his first spring practices and earned a scholarship.

"He always gives it the best he has," said Irish receivers coach Pete Cordelli. "He works as hard as anyone and is always trying to learn."

Special teams became Eilers' home last season, as he led the entire squad in special teams appearances with 224, 64 more than any other Irish player. Eilers plays on all four Notre Dame special teams and has made his mark with numerous first hits, key blocks, and now even impressive returns.

"Special teams are great," said Eilers, noticeably relishing his role. "It's a one-shot deal, full speed with reckless abandon. I think it's what football is all about."

And the Notre Dame special teams have been outstanding so far—in no small part due to four units with attitudes like Eilers'.

"Our goals are zero return yards," said Eilers, "and no blocks allowed. (Special teams) are a lot like offensive football where 11 guys have to do their job."

While Eilers has grown accustomed to his role on the special teams, he's just a newcomer to the offense. Playing flanker and even occasionally in the wishbone backfield, he has seen consistent playing time.

Holtz asked Eilers to make the move last December in Dallas and the stocky, 5-11, 197-pounder hasn't looked back.

Pat Eilers

"I wanted to do whatever was best for the team," noted Eilers. "Of course, you're always looking for more playing time."

Another new role for Eilers is as punt returner. He doesn't have the speed of a Ricky Waters or a Rocket Ismail, but Coach Cordelli cites other, equally important skills.

"His intelligence makes him effective," said Cordelli. "You've got to make intelligent decisions quickly. Intelligence plus great effort makes one heck of a football player."

That intelligence could be fruitful for the Irish in another way as well. Because of his transfer, Eilers still has a year of eligibility remaining, and his academic pursuits should allow him to play next season.

Eilers will graduate in May with a mechanical engineering degree and hopes to return next year to complete a biology degree. The decision on his football career is in the hands of the Notre Dame administration.

One issue that Eilers, as a receiver, has heard plenty of in the last two weeks is the passing game. Both he and Cordelli are committed to improvement.

"We've got to make the opposition defend both (the run and the pass). We've got our mind set to get the passing game going. We'll do it."

Eilers sounds sure, and nothing has been able to stop him so far.

Grace under pressure

Although offense was hard to come by for some teams, Dillon survived its first test of the 1988 Interhall football season with a 7-0 victory over Off-Campus.

In other Parseghian division games Sunday, Morrissey and Flanner fought to a scoreless tie and Keenan defeated Grace 14-8.

"We played pretty well for our first game," said Dillon captain Paul Drey. "Our defense played a great game and the offense had a good first half."

Gary O'Brien had the lone score for Dillon as he plunged in from the three yard line.

Stanford defeated Holy Cross 23-0 and Cavanaugh and Zahm held each other scoreless in other Leahy division action.

Quarterback Raoul Gonzales threw touchdown passes to Rob Merkle and Chris Moscardelli and Merkle ran for another as St. Edward's blanked Pangborn 18-0 in the Rockne division.

"We have a lot more talent than we did last year," said

Steve Schmidt, St. Ed's captain. "We weren't to sure what Dillon won the Interhall championship in 1987 with a victory over Stanford, the 1986 title holder.

All Interhall teams will return to action next Sunday, to expect, but we keyed on the pass and it worked."

Tim Kaiser scored on a bootleg option for Fisher to tie Sorin 6-6.

"Our defense played great and our offense got rolling in the second half," commented Fisher captain Jim Twecek.
