Soviet leader's new plan is peace

Associated Press

NEW YORK- Mikhail Gorbachev gave new momentum to arms control talks Wednesday with his announcement that the Red Army would reduce its forces by 10 percent and pull 50,000 of its troops, along with tanks and cannons, from Eastern Europe.

U.S. analysts have been predicting such a move for months, believing it could further boost Gorbachev's popularity in the West and allow him to divert needed funds from the military to the domestic sector.

Gorbachev praised U.S. willingness to discuss arms reductions and said that "the Soviet see SOVIET, page 7

United Way surpasses $3.4M goal

By KELLEY TUTHILL
Staff Reporter

The United Way of St. Joseph County has raised a record amount of money on its way to surpassing its 1988 campaign goal of $3,405,000, said campaign Chairman Father William Beauchamp, University executive vice president.

Beauchamp said he could not give an exact figure for the 1988 campaign because all pledges are not in yet. The final tally will be announced at the local United Way chapter's meeting in January, he said.

"I anticipate that this will be the most successful campaign," Beauchamp said.

All of the money raised during the campaign will be allocated to 36 United Way agencies which service the

ND administration responds to report on residentiality

By CHRISTINE WALSH
Staff Reporter

After reviewing the report by the Task Force on Residentiality, the officers of the University of Notre Dame have issued their response to the task force's recommendations.

Among the issues addressed by the task force chaired by Director of Residence Life Dr. Ann Firth were the prospects for coeducational housing, graduate and transfer student residences, and the overall philosophy and spirit of residentiality at Notre Dame.

Father David Tyson, vice president of Student Affairs, said that overall, the University was very pleased with the task force's recommendations, and would work toward implementing them as soon as possible.

Said Tyson, "We are following through (with the recommendations) as time and financial constraints allow. . . Right now it's mostly financial."

With regards to the task force's recommendations concerning the implementation of coresidential housing, the officers said that such an option would not be approved at this time, though the option would be periodically reviewed.

Although Siegfried and Knott halls opened after the task force made its recommendation for coresidential housing, the University did not consider the option for the new dorms.

Said Firth, "The plans for Siegfried and Knott had not been finalized," though the opening of the new dorms "accompanied an increase in the number of women enrolled at the university."

According to Tyson, Siegfried and Knott were not considered for coeducational housing because "the officers felt at this time it was not a direction to go in."

Notre Dame wants to have coeducational housing, said Tyson, but it's a matter of working out the actual details. Said Tyson, "We need to know

Security asks students to leave cars in D-2 lot

Observer Staff Report

Notre Dame Security has requested that students who will be leaving their cars on campus over Christmas break move them to the D-2 lot before they leave, said Phil Johnson, assistant director of security.

Keeping student vehicles in one lot will facilitate Security's patrolling and may reduce vandalism over the break, Johnson said.

"If you have a car we strongly recommend you park it in D-2," he said. "We can't guarantee cars will not be broken into. We are going to close the gate and lock D-2 on December 18. It's easier to concentrate patrolling one lot rather than police all the other lots," Johnson said.

"We're anxious to try this. We think it will be a positive step," he said. "We make no guarantees but we want to try something to reduce break-ins."

The idea for putting student cars into one lot during an academic break was first suggested by a Security officer and has been under discussion for some time, Johnson said.

Although the D-2 lot will be locked during the break, students may retrieve their cars at any time by contacting security. The gates will be reopened on Jan. 15 or Jan. 16, Johnson said.

"A significant number (of students) will leave their cars on campus for the break. We are confident the D-2 lot will hold all the cars," Johnson said. Security will arrange other parking locations for student vehicles if necessary, he added.

'88 ND alumnus dies in Chicago

By REGIS COCCIA
Senior Staff Reporter

Patrick McManus, the Notre Dame alumnus who was in a coma in a Chicago hospital since Friday night, died Wednesday between 3 and 4 p.m., hospital officials said.

McManus, 23, a 1988 graduate of the University, was hit by a car after exiting a cab in downtown Chicago early Friday morning. He remained in a coma after surgery in Illinois Masonic Medical Center until he was pronounced dead Wednesday afternoon.

Even at his death, Pat McManus was surrounded by members of the Notre Dame family. His mother, Terry McManus, said she was at his bedside when he expired. McManus' family and a group of his friends from Notre Dame were at the hospital Wednesday night. Three doctors in the hospital who visited him were Notre Dame graduates, she said. Pat's brother David is a Notre Dame freshman.

Patrick McManus

McManus was given the last rites by Chicago priest Father Raymond Klees, a former assistant rector in Cavanaugh Hall who received an MBA from Notre Dame several years ago.

Originally from Jenkintown, Pa., McManus was employed by Northwestern Mutual, a life insurance company in Northfield, Ill. He lived in Chicago with two Notre Dame graduates.

McManus was a member of the men's varsity swim team for four years and served as co-captain last year. Senior swimmer Brian Vogel, a friend of McManus, said 10 swimmers visited McManus in the hospital Sunday night.

"He was a wonderful, loyal, loving person," said swimming coach coach Tim Welsh, who knew McManus for four years. "He loved Notre Dame and he loved swimming. He was the best captain I had in 15 years of coaching."

"What made him a great captain was his constant desire to serve the team. He was extremely supportive of every person on the team,"

IN BRIEF

Rock 'n' roll pioneer Roy Orbison suffered a heart attack and died. He was 52, and was enjoying a comeback with a new generation of fans. The Grammy Award-winning Orbison, famed for hits like "Oh, Pretty Woman," "Only the Lonely" and "Cryin'," died shortly before midnight Tuesday at Hendersonville Hospital, where he had been taken by ambulance, said Melanie Lamb, a spokeswoman for the suburban Nashville hospital. A singer, guitarist and songwriter who was instantly recognizable by his ever-present sunglasses and dark attire set off by an ebony pompadour, Orbison had 27 straight records on the charts during his heyday in the early 1960s. But his biggest success came with "Oh, Pretty Woman," which sold more than 7 million copies in 1964. A cover version later was a hit for Van Halen. -Associated Press

INSIDE COLUMN

Just say no to mocking personal problems

Are a person's personal problems something to mock?

Apparently so, if you judge from the behavior of a large part of the Notre Dame student section at the ND-Indiana game Tuesday night.

The student section greeted I.U. guard Jay Edwards with a resounding chorus of "Just Say No" in light of Edwards' "substance abuse" this summer. Our fans found it amusing to remind Edwards of this incident each time he touched the ball.

It was a few students who started this humiliating chant and all except for an noticeable few had joined in by the end.

This behavior is rude, insensitive and makes light of a serious problem that many people battle. It shows our fans' ignorance of Jay Edwards' personal problems and reflects poorly on Notre Dame as a Catholic university.

At a university so often referred to as the "Notre Dame community," our fans mocked a college basketball player's personal problem. The act is nothing less than hypocritical.

Though the crisis of a drug or alcohol problem isn't something to underemphasize, Edwards' return to Indiana University and the basketball team is something to applaud. It certainly is not to be ridiculed by Notre Dame students, most of whom have never faced the severity of drug or alcohol abuse.

Edwards' personal problem is unique. Edwards approached Bobby Knight and told his coach that he might have a problem with "substance abuse." Edwards, with Knight's approval, then entered a ten day rehabilitation program in Indianapolis. He returned to school upon completion of the program and caught up in his classes in order to rejoin the Hoosier squad.

Unlike others who have lost the battle with drugs or alcohol, Edwards did not take someone's life in a car accident, test positive on a team drug test or wind up taking his own life. He alone took the responsibility to face his problem.

But, how many students knew anything beside the mere association between Edwards and a rehabilitation clinic? A handful of fans would be a pretty fair guess.

Those fans who joined the chant should examine what damage they have done. Would any of you want your personal problems chanted repeatedly so you, your family and friends could never put them aside? What does Jay Edwards owe to you that allows you to humiliate him? Jay Edwards is a tremendous young player who uses the game to express his talents, not expose his personal weaknesses.

Chris Murphy
Editor-in-Chief

Notre Dame's athletic program is a special one. We have combined winning on the court, or on the fields, with a concern for the players' futures. It took a long time to build this tradition. Actions like those of Tuesday night, however, destroy our unique stand in college athletics.

The fans at Duke or Syracuse may have treated Edwards with the same insensitivity that we did. But, Notre Dame's tradition as a Catholic university with an athletic program stressing excellence on and off the field brings us praise and a unique place in college athletics. It is a tradition upheld by each of our coaches and players.

Unfortunately, it's not being upheld by our fans.

And it's even more unfortunate that the Notre Dame fans did not demonstrate the same maturity Jay Edwards showed in handling his problem.

Earthquake shakes Soviets, leaves thousands homeless

Associated Press

MOSCOW- The strongest earthquake to hit the Soviet Caucasus region in 80 years flattened buildings Wednesday and left thousands homeless. One Soviet official said he received unconfirmed reports of more than 200 people killed.

A scientist at the seismic station in Yerevan, capital of the republic of Armenia, said he visited the disaster area and estimated the death toll probably would run into the thousands. But he stressed the estimate was unofficial and declined to give his name.

Official Soviet news media did not give any casualty figures. Armenia was the hardest-hit area in the Caucasus.

Deputy duty officer Lyova Oganisyan at the Interior Ministry in Armenia said unconfirmed witness reports to police indicated more than 200 people had been killed.

An official of the Armenian government's office in Moscow, who would not give his name, said the number of casualties was "a very big figure."

The quake, centered near the Soviet-Turkish border, killed at least four people and caused extensive damage in eastern Turkey, authorities said.

The U.S. geological Survey in Golden, Colo., said the quake, centered south of the Georgian capital of Tblisi, occurred at 11:41 a.m. (2:41 a.m. EST) and registered 6.9 on the Richter scale. A quake of that magnitude is capable of causing widespread, heavy damage.

The tremor, followed by a moderate aftershock, struck a region in the Soviet Union already wracked by months of ethnic violence between Armenians and Azerbaijanis.

President Mikhail Gorbachev, who was visiting the United States, called the earthquake "a grave tragedy."

State-run television, in an unusually prompt and detailed report from the scene, showed film of crumbled buildings in Kirovakan, Armenia's third largest city, and in Spitak, a regional center of Armenia.

Workers were shown picking up huge slabs of concrete amid the rubble. Gold-colored curtains and beds protruded from the side of a building where a wall once stood. In one dramatic shot, a man put his hands over his head in grief as he stood amid a collapsed building.

"The spontaneous elements didn't spare one-story or multistory buildings," a TV correspondent said on the evening broadcast.

The Observer/Chris Donnelly

Cars on the streets were crushed by falling concrete.

The correspondent said thousands were homeless and that "there are casualties, injured," but neither he nor Soviet news reports gave figures.

"In several regions of Armenia there is significant damage, deaths and injuries,"

Tass said. "The cities of Leninakan, Kirovakan and also several others especially suffered."

Officials said communications had been cut off with Leninakan, near where the quake was centered. The city of 200,000 people is located 100 miles northwest of Yerevan and close to the Soviet-Turkish border.

SMC Board of Governance reviews leadership chance

By MARY BETH BLAJDA News Staff

Information about leadership opportunities was announced at Saint Mary's Board of Governance meeting last night.

Julie Parrish, student body president, informed the board about Leadership America, a national leadership development opportunity to be held this summer.

Eligible applicants must have completed their junior year of studies by June 9, 1989 according to Parrish.

"This is an excellent opportunity for those considering leadership positions next year. The objective of this ten week program is to prepare students to accept major leadership responsibilities earlier in their careers and to handle them more effectively," said Parrish.

In other business, the board evaluated its accomplishments of the semester. "I'm proud of BOG and the excellent job they have done. We've made ourselves visible to the students, sought after student input and have become sensitive to student needs," said Parrish.

Hesburgh explains changes in USSR as 'all Gorbachev'

Associated Press

SOUTH BEND- The Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, retired president of the University of Notre Dame, says his Soviet hosts invited him to celebrate Mass during a recent trip to Moscow-- an event unthinkable a few years ago.

"It's very open, compared to what it was," said Hesburgh. "It's all (Soviet leader Mikhail) Gorbachev."

Hesburgh, who retired last year after 35 years as Notre Dame's president, visited the Soviet Union in September and plans another trip early next year.

Since Gorbachev assumed power, promoting policies of openness and a restructuring of Soviet society, Soviet hosts have freely discussed once-forbidden topics with foreign visitors, Hesburgh said.

"I have had conversations in Moscow that, if I had had them three years ago, I would have been thrown in jail," he told the South Bend Tribune.

Over dinner with highly placed Soviet politicians, Hesburgh listened as the officials freely admitted that 45,000 troops were in Cuba during the 1962 missile crisis, not 10,000 officially acknowledged at the time.

Hesburgh, a priest in the Holy Cross order, vividly remembers being asked during his most recent visit to celebrate Mass in the private chapel of the Moscow archbishop of the Russian Orthodox Church.

Soviet members of the Foundation for the Survival and Development of Humanity, an international peace group, joined in the Mass and appeared to approve of his mention of the Russian church's 1,000-year history.

The church has publicly celebrated the anniversary, encouraged by Gorbachev's greater tolerance of religion and recognition of the significant role of human rights, Hesburgh said.

Appointment of Quayle's successor near for Orr

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS- Gov. Robert Orr plans to choose a Senate elector to Vice President-elect Dan Quayle by Christmas, an Orr aide said Wednesday.

Orr press secretary Dollyne Pettingill described the retiring two-term governor as "getting closer and closer" to making a decision.

"He did say this morning he hopes to make the decision by Christmas," Pettingill said Wednesday.

She also denied a published report that there is a short list of likely choices for the Senate post.

The Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette, quoting unidentified Republican sources, reported the top candidates for Quayle's job are 4th District U.S. Rep. Dan Coats; Mitchell E. Daniels, a former aide to President Reagan who currently is helping with Quayle's transition; Indianapolis Mayor William Hudnut; and former Secretary of State Edwin Simcox.

R. Mark Lubbers, former Orr aide who remains close to the governor, told the Journal-Gazette that the decision is expected within a week to 10 days. However, Pettingill said, "I still look for it to be longer than that."

Rumors that Coats would succeed Quayle swept through Indianapolis and Fort Wayne on Tuesday, but Coats aide Curt Smith said the governor had not contacted the Fort Wayne congressman.

Other Republicans said Orr wants Daniels for the post and has been waiting for a response from him, the Fort Wayne newspaper said.

Lubbers, who works with Daniels at the Hudson Institute in Indianapolis, said Daniels told him late Tuesday that no such offer had been made.

Daniels, citing family reasons, asked Orr earlier to remove his name from the list of those being considered. However, Quayle aide Jeff Nesbit and several others said Daniels, who leads the Indianapolis think-tank, received pressure over the weekend to reconsider.

Two Republicans said some of that pressure came from Lubbers.

Daniels, who was ill Wednesday, could not be reached for comment.

Tyson added that the university has some idea about students' reactions to coeducational housing, but officials want to investigate the matter

Tyson said, "A few years ago there was even a Student Senate resolution to decide which dorms would go co-ed first. . . They chose Keenan and Stanford to go co-ed, and proposed that Breen-Phillips become a male dorm. . . Needless to say, three dorms were very unhappy (with the resolution)." The task force also adressed the matter of housing for graduate and transfer students.

Said Tyson, "Graduate student housing is taking top priority."

An all-night prayer vigil for McManus began Wednesday night at 10 in Alumni Hall and will culminate in a memorial Mass in the hall's chapel at 5 p.m. today, said Father Andre Leveille, director of campus ministry.

Leveille said he was a personal friend of McManus, who lived in Alumni for three years and made many friends there. "What the kids in the hall are saying is true. (Pat) was full of life. He loved life, especially swimming. He was soft-spoken and real sincere. He was really a fine guy," Leveille said.

"Pat's life was short but, boy, he put a lot in it," Leveille said. "He touched a lot of people."

Monsignor Peter Cruise, pastor of McManus' home parish, Saint James Roman Catholic Church, where McManus was an altar boy and active in the parish, remembered Pat as "a good boy. When he was home on vacation he was in church every Sunday and he always stopped in to say hello."

McManus is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McManus and two brothers, Arthur, 24, and David, 18.

McManus' wake will be this weekend at Joseph McGoldrick Funeral Home in Jenkintown, Pa., and a funeral Mass will be celebrated Monday or Tuesday morning at Saint James Church in Elkins Park, Pa.

leadership has decided to demonstrate once again its readiness to reinforce this healthy process not only in words but in deeds."

"Within the next two years, their numerical strength will be reduced by 500,000 men," he said near the end of a lengthy address to the U.N. general Assembly. The Soviet Armed Forces total about 5.6 million men and women.

"The numbers of conventional armaments will also be substantially reduced," he said. "This will be done unilaterally."

Gorbachev said the Soviets would pull 50,000 troops out of East Germany, Czechoslovakia and Hungary, reducing by about 10 percent the number of forward-deployed Red Army forces arrayed against the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

President Reagan, after he and President-elect Bush met over lunch with the Soviet leader, said "I heartily approve" of the Kremlin troop decision.

Conventional arms negotiations will continue, said Reagan, and "we should certainly adjust (U.S. force levels in Europe) if it would turn out that this left us with a superiority."

Gorbachev and his aides had long been hinting at such a withdrawal, but had been opposed by top Soviet generals notably Marshal Sergei Akhromeyev, chief of staff of the Soviet Armed Forces.

Besides the troop reductions, Gorbachev said the Red Army would be shedding 10,000 tanks, 8,500 artillery systems and 800 combat aircraft from forward deployment in Eastern Europe.

Exact details of the withdrawals were not made public, but they appeared to fall short of redressing the 2.5-1 edge the Warsaw Pact holds over NATO in conventional armies.

"There still will be a very significant asymmetry so there is still a lot of negotiating to do," Secretary of State George Shultz told reporters at a news conference following the luncheon.

Nevertheless, Gorbachev's proposals appeared to go a long way toward addressing U.S. concerns over the heavy concentration of Soviet forces near the borders of Western Europe.

A reduction in Soviet forces could increase pressure in Congress to withdraw some of the more than 300,000 U.S. forces stationed in West Germany.

The action also should impart new momentum to long-stalled talks to cut NATO and Warsaw Pact forces in Europe, negotiations that have made virtually no progress in more than 14 years.

community, Beauchamp said. Each county has a separate and independent United Way, so the money stays in the immediate community.

"The Notre Dame community did very well, raising $200,000, the second highest amount in the county," said Beauchamp.

Sophomore Melissa Smith served as student body executive chairperson for the United Way campaign. She said that $4,400 was raised through dorm collections and special events.

The campus goal of $8,000 was not reached, Smith said, but added, "I'm pretty happy, everything went very well and a lot more money was raised than in past years."

Smith was responsible for coordinating all of the fundraising drives in the dorms and special events such as the Quarter Mile and the Civil War.

As chairman, Beauchamp spent an estimated 400 hours on the United Way campaign drive in the county. Beginning in February, he said, "My job was to organize and coordinate the campaign."

In addition to chairing an executive committee called the "Campaign Cabinet," Beauchamp guided more than 2,000 volunteers through fundraising.

Beauchamp said his duties included attending weekly meetings, goal setting and planning, training sessions with volunteers, visiting large companies, and phoning individuals, said Beauchamp. He also appeared in television commercials and advertised on the radio.

"I'm responsible for the campaign, my job is the campaign," said Beauchamp, "I'm very pleased with the campaign and fully expect that we raised more than ever."

Beauchamp said a reason for his selection as chairman could be that "(University President) Father Malloy and I have made overtures about becoming more involved with the community."

Despite setbacks such as cuts in employees of major companies and hospitals and plant closing that accounted for a lot of funds raised last year, the campaign still was a success, said Beauchamp.

"I think the volunteers should be commended for running a sound campaign despite quantitative problems," said Beauchamp.

Beauchamp said his job is not done until outstanding funds are in, the final report is completed, and the "big check" is presented at the United Way annual meeting.

He anticipates being a part of the campaign next year as a member of the board, but not chairman. The position of chairman was like having a part-time job.

"It was very rewarding to help raise money for service agencies that improve the quality of life for so many," said Beauchamp.

Student behavior lacks sensitivity

Dear Editor:

I guess I'm a little confused. I thought I was attending a fine Catholic institution in Notre Dame. Last night, I attended a basketball game, Notre Dame vs. Indiana. I expected to leave the game with a victory, feeling the same way I felt during the football season after a win, proud to be a part of the spirit of Notre Dame.

This expectation floundered when the cheering of the student body reached an all-time low. I have listened to Notre Dame students yell obscenities at opponents and felt disgusted at this behavior, but last night the Notre Dame student body went far beyond shouting general obscenities. They shouted, "Just say no." It was rumored, maybe it was fact, that an IU player had recently left drug rehabilitation.

I cannot imagine what it must be like to experience the personal agony and humiliation which one must experience when attempting to withdraw from drugs. This pain is so personal and "our" student body took advantage of what must be one of the most sensitive, painful memories of that young player's life.

I left the arena wondering what being a student at Notre Dame was all about. We shout about being number one, the best school in the nation. Last night, I think we showed another dimension of student life at Notre Dame. Who are we to judge the mistakes of another? I expected a little bit more from Notre Dame.

Handicapped access needs improvement

Dear Editor:

A few weeks ago the River City Rollers, a local wheelchair athletic group, decided to play football in the gym instead of our weekly basketball game. The only problem was, no one knew the rules for wheelchair football—but we managed. Afterwards I volunteered to try to find a rulebook.

I thought if any place in the country knows about football, it is Notre Dame, so I went to the Hesburgh Library. Luckily, the car with no permit which was occupying two handicapped reserve parking spaces did not stay there too long. Unluckily, the automatic door at the main entrance was not working, but I am strong enough to open it alone, I suppose a person with arthritis, or an elderly person on crutches or using a walker could just stand out in the cold until a polite student happened along.

For a University that is supposed to have a good collection of sports books, I was quite surprised—and disappointed. There is only one book on wheelchair sports, basketball, and I have already read it, obtained from another library. According to the library computer, there is not one other book about wheelchair sports; nothing on racing, swimming, tennis, track and field, sit down volleyball, or football.

I did find a computer reference to another pertinent book though, about wheelchairs and architectural barriers. Ironically, or perhaps accordingly, that book is not in the main library, but in the architecture library, which is not accessible by wheelchair.

Students object to larger classes

Dear Editor:

If you came to Notre Dame expecting close interaction with faculty in a classroom environment stimulated by interactive discussions rather than passive lectures, you should be aware that the quality of our education is in jeopardy. The '87/88 Bulletin of Information boasts at 12:1 student/faculty ratio. However, we all know from experience that only a handful of upper level courses offer this luxury. In many departments, and especially in the College of Arts and Letters, student enrollment is increasing without a proportional increase in faculty. Clearly, Notre Dame cannot provide the best possible education without close student/faculty interaction on all levels.

There are many possible explanations for administrative decisions concerning these matters; yet, they all ignore obvious solutions and, more importantly, the priorities of the Notre Dame students. Simple budget constraints are the most possible explanation. However, tuition will increase by 9 percent next year, and there seems to be a new building everywhere you look. Notre Dame has enjoyed great success in recent fund-raising efforts. Our budget decisions simply need to place more emphasis on hiring additional faculty.

A major role of a university is certainly the publishing of scholarly research. Nationwide ratings emphasize this role. In theory, the University could allow professors to teach fewer but larger classes so they can devote more time to research and publish. We believe that this tradeoff will have a negative effect on the quality of classroom education.

Interaction between students and professors, both in and out of the classroom, is vital to academic life. This is especially true in Notre Dame's strong tradition of liberal arts. Increasing the enrollment of classes which are already over-sized precludes student/faculty interaction and forces the professor to a lecture format, an expedient solution at best.

We do not intend to condemn the administration. We simply want to bring this important issue to the attention of the student body. Although individual faculty members may be powerless to correct this problem, we as students must be aware of this trend at Notre Dame and publicly demand that more attention be paid to our classroom environment.

Hunger Coalition raises awareness

Dear Editor:

The Notre Dame Hunger Coalition was founded in 1974 by a group of students who were concerned about the tragedy of world hunger and refused to accept it as an inevitable or unavoidable problem. These concerns are still with the student members of the Notre Dame World Hunger Coalition as they work to educate the Notre Dame community on the issues relating to world hunger and to raise awareness of our responsibilities as Christians to work to eliminate hunger.

This past semester has brought several successes to the Notre Dame World Hunger Coalition. First, student participation in the Wednesday Lunch Fast increased over the last three semesters. Another change associated with the Wednesday Lunch Fast was the Coalition's decision to review the projects which it had funded in the past. This review led to the decision to replace two projects. Dr. Denis Goulet spoke regarding his personal experience with Martillo Chico, one of the new projects. Martillo Chico is a slum of nearly 5,000 inhabitants on the outskirts of a resort city in Argentina. Leaving the countryside for the promise of jobs, these people have found instead a swampy area with open sewers, a public school system which denies their children access because they cannot afford the required school supplies, an economy with 5,000 percent inflation and massive unemployment.

The money from the Wednesday Lunch Fast will support a lunch program for the starving children, increasing the number of meals being served from 60 a day to nearly 200. Projects through IDEX, the International Development Exchange, will also receive Lunch Fast funds for the first time. IDEX directs the money to Budokomi, Kenya, to purchase oxen to provide for land cultivation feeding nearly 15 families. The Chol-Chol Foundation, providing loans and technical assistance to those in the rural areas of Chile, and the Holy Cross Associates family garden project in Santiago, Chile, are two self-help projects the Coalition will continue to fund.

The World Hunger Coalition continues to fulfill their purpose of raising awareness through other programs as well. Sponsoring outside speakers provides the opportunity to hear those with personal experience in working overseas. In the past year the members of the World Hunger Coalition have heard people who have lived in Chile, Argentina, India, and South Africa. Preparing meals at the St. Augustine soup kitchen and the new Homeless Shelter downtown allows the members to see the hunger which is present within our community. In an attempt to further address the hunger here in South Bend, the Coalition organized the funding and distribution of 43 Thanksgiving Food Baskets to local families. Anyone interested in the World Hunger Coalition should come to the Center for Social Concerns' Activities Night in January to receive more information.

P.E. promotes student-faculty relations

accent writer

Many students believe professors are intimidating...but not Notre Dame professors. This was the verdict from Pasquerilla Hall East following its third annual Professors' Night last Thursday. Students came away from the event with some great resources and an even better understanding of what Notre Dame is all about—faculty commitment and student openness.

P.E.'s Professors' Night has evolved into a new dorm tradition unlike that of any other residence hall on campus. It grew out of a student desire to interact with professors in a different setting and to allow those same professors to experience student life outside the classroom.

Residents of P.E. had the opportunity to invite any professor, and as many professors, as they liked. This year, 42 professors were invited, and according to the event's chairperson Nancy Snyder, "All the professors' responses to the invitations were very enthusiastic."

The event began with a Glee Club performance of a Christmas carol medley, and was followed by music played by a string quartet. The P.E. residents and Notre Dame professors easily managed to get acquainted and discussed life at Notre Dame for the duration of the event.

Over the years many students have complained about inadequate faculty-student relations on campus, and P.E. certainly is helping to bridge that gap. "In many classes, professors aren't able to get to know their students due to large class sizes, so by inviting a professor, students could introduce themselves outside of the classroom and hopefully make a lasting impression for future reference," said Snyder.

The number of professors in attendance and the scope of disciplinary representation made the event worthwhile for all involved. Students had a chance to meet their friends' professors and others they had heard about but had never met. Professors had the opportunity to meet other professors in different departments.

After meeting a professor she was not acquainted with, one student commented, "I am definitely going to have to take one of his classes before

I graduate." That just about sums up the success of P.E.'s Professors' Night. Given the enthusiastic responses from both students and professors about the event, it is inevitable that other residence halls will soon be following P.E.'s lead in establishing meaningful student-faculty relations.

Perceptions of a B&B

accent writer

The brown flowered curtains don't match the maroon shag carpet, and both clash with the bedspread's pink and violet rosettes; lace crocheted doilies hang over the arms of a well-worn armchair; and only an automatic hot pot (for tea, of course) suggests the existence of the modern world in a room full of outdated furniture.

Interior decorators of the world might disagree, but nothing can beat the Grandma's house atmosphere of a good Bed and Breakfast Inn. The proprietors take guests under their wing, the blankets are thick, and the breakfasts are huge.

Unfortunately, my first night in Dublin shattered this comfortable image that my previous experiences had established. I was alone. It was dark. It was cold. I had ridden the bus from the airport, asked directions three times, walked seven blocks with bags which were getting heavier and heavier, and found the door that belonged to the scribbled address crinkled in my pocket.

"This can't be it," I thought to myself as I rang the bell. After all, someone had recommended the place to me. It was even in the "Let's Go Ireland" book—"Lectrim House B&B, 34 Blessington Street, one block past the false teeth repair shop."

The neighborhood was quiet (for a Friday night) but sort of shady. I was wondering if this was like one of those areas near home that you know better than to venture into by yourself. Also, Blessington Street is so short that the city planners figured it didn't need lights.

I had some hope after seeing a few nicely painted doors but, facing number 34, I could see that it wasn't nicely painted, had no sign, and the light was off.

An older woman answered the door, went back to her television program, and ordered a young man (who I assumed to be her son) to give me a key and show me my room.

"Don't worry if you hear some moaning and slamming of doors next door," he told me. "It's just a kind of crazy deaf and dumb man who doesn't know what he's doing. Breakfast is between eight and ten."

"OK. Thanks," I said with a weak smile. Then I bolted the door. Several weekends ago my roommates told me they had found the B&B version of the Bates Motel in a small town north of Oxford. I now know they were mistaken—I found it.

As I wrote in my journal, I discovered a lack of heat within my room. My hands became numb. I then decided the sooner I went to sleep, the sooner it would all be over. I flung back the sheets. No bugs. (I thought.) Finding only one blanket on my "cot," I piled on the layers. I wasn't sure if I'd escape frostbite, so I even put on the gloves.

As I lay there, several questions ran through my head: Were my next-door neighbor and I the only "guests"? Would breakfast save this setup from my total condemnation? Were "Norman" and "Mother" still downstairs watching TV? Would everything look different in the morning? Would I be alive to see it? Did the reviewers for "Let's Go" have warped senses of humor?

Well, in the morning Mother didn't look so intimidating. The shrine in the living room to the Blessed Living really eased my nerves, as did the several holy pictures on the wall. The scrambled eggs were soggy, but the toast wasn't bad. Nevertheless, I checked out, took my bags, and walked.

Blessington Street eventually turns into O'Connell Street. Just down the road, I found the Sinclair House B&B where, once again, the bedspreads had pink flowers.

American basketball now catching on in Canada

Associated Press

ONTARIO- Basketball is hot in Canada and promising to get hotter.

A growing number of Canadian youths are caught in the excitement and glamour of NCAA and NBA telecasts from the United States, and the lucrative college scholarships and pot of gold offered by the NBA.

These youngsters have spurned the national sport - hockey.

With hockey played more on a club level, basketball has become a popular sport in the high schools. The general level of play, although still below schools in the United States, is improving, said Terry Thompson, the coach at Oak-Thompson Collegiate Institute in Toronto.

And Canadians are increasingly attracting the interest of collegiate recruiters from the United States.

One of Thompson's kids, 6-foot-3 guard Paris Dryden, is a freshman at the University of New Hampshire this year, while other Canadians have been recruited in recent years by schools such as UCLA, Michigan State, Syracuse, Duke, Villanova, Maine, Boston U., Providence, St. Joseph of Pennsylvania, Stetson, Fairleigh Dickinson and Hardin Simmons.

Michigan State, probably like most major basketball powers, only recruits in Canada when it hears of a particular player, Coach Jud

Heathcote said. "We've got a coach or two who lets us know."

But schools such as Niagara, St. Bonaventure and Canisius consider Toronto part of their recruiting area and usually have at least one Canadian on their rosters.

Now more scouts from similar second-tier Division I schools in the United States travel north of the border.

"When I first started here 20 years ago, I directed summer camps at Arcadia, Nova Scotia, for two or three summers," said Skip Chappelle, who retired from coaching at the University of Maine this year. "There were very few, if any, Division I prospects. Now, we have two on our team. For schools like us, that (Canada) would be a prime area."

In the last five or 10 years, there has been a "tremendous jump" in recruiting from U.S. colleges, said Jack Donohue, a long-time coach in the United States.

North Carolina beats Vanderbilt behind Lebo's 25

Associated Press

CHAPEL HILL, N.C.- North Carolina scored the first 15 points Wednesday night and the eighth-ranked Tar Heels beat Vanderbilt 89-77 behind 25 points from Jeff Lebo and 20 from Kevin Madden.

Lebo scored 19 of his points in the first half, making four 3-pointers in the first nine minutes. The Tar Heels, 7-1, led by as many as 23 points in the first half before Vanderbilt, 2-4, closed to 46-39 at halftime.

Vanderbilt pulled to 55-50 on a Barry Booker steal and dunk early in the second half but a King Rice bank shot and a three-point play by Steve Bucknall gave North Carolina a 10-point lead.

The Tar Heels stretched the lead to 14 several times before Vanderbilt pulled to 72-64 at the 7:55 mark on a pair of Booker free throws.

Madden, who scored 15 second-half points, scored four to key a 9-0 North Carolina run that put the Tar Heels ahead 81-64 with 4:25 left.

Scott Williams scored 13 points with 10 rebounds for North Carolina. Eric Reid scored 17 points for Vanderbilt and Frank Kornet scored 16.

Wake Forest 79, Evansville 73

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C.- Sam Ivy scored 16 points and Wake Forest erased an 11-point halftime deficit with 59 percent shooting in the second half to edge Evansville 79-73 on Wednesday night.

Wake Forest raised its record to 3-1, while Evansville dropped to 2-2.

Ivy's layup with 3:17 left gave the Demon Deacons the lead for good at 69-68. The basket came during the middle of a 14-0 Wake Forest run.

Free throws also played a key part of Wake Forest's comeback. After Ivy's layup, he hit two free throws, followed by four straight from Robert Siler as Wake Forest sank 26 of 30.

Evansville, which hit only 10 of 19 free throws, led 41-30 at halftime.

Freshman Chris King added 13 points for Wake Forest, while fellow freshman Derrick McQueen had 11.

Scott Haffner led Evansville with 28 points, hitting five of 15 3-pointers. Reed Crafton added 16 points, while Dan Godfread had 12.

Michigan 108, CMU 62

ANN ARBOR, Mich.- Glen Rice scored 21 points to lead second-ranked Michigan to a 108-62 victory over Central Michigan Wednesday night.

The Wolverines had six players in double figures as they posted their largest-ever margin of victory against the Chippewas. The previous high of 41 points was set in 1976.

Terry Mills added 19 points for Michigan, now 7-0

The Chippewas, 3-2, were led by Jeff Majerle's 17 points.

a great deal of hard training," said Irish coach Tim Welsh. "We want to take advantage of the extra time over the break to train two times a day. It is very clear what kind of training we need from our previous meets."

Last week, Notre Dame produced some mediocre results, placing fourth in a field of 10 at the National Catholic Championships, then outscoring Fordham while falling to Villanova during a tri-meet. Over the long holiday vacation, the Irish hope to bounce back with a positive attitude.

"The swimmers are very optimistic and eager to get back in the pool and compete," commented Welsh. "We know that Irvine will be a very fast meet, because we expect that a lot of the faster teams from the west coast will be there."

The swimmers will take off for California Dec. 28 in order to prepare for the speedy competition. At a training camp in Long Beach, the team will hold intense practices every day for two hours in the morning and another two in the evening.

"We aim at improving the quality of training that is sometimes difficult to achieve day in and day out with all the pressures of school," commented senior co-captain John Froman. "For two weeks, we have the one focus of training hard."

Last year, Notre Dame faced two of the top programs in the country, Arizona State and Southern Methodist, in the Irvine Invitational. This year, it will probably face the same quality of competition, although the opponents are still unknown.

"We want to swim well, but the teams we will face are going to be very tough," said sophomore Paul Godfrey. "Last year, we swam against two really tough teams and we didn't win a single event. This year, hopefully we can improve our performance and win some events. But the main reason for the meet is to train hard and get ready for the second semester."

Rather than counting on key individual performances at Irvine, Coach Welsh hopes that each team member will contribute to the cause in a big way. "I am expecting a full team effort," said Welsh. "The advantage to that meet is that everyone can swim their primary events, since there are no limits on race entries."

training program," said Head Coach Tim Welsh. "It will be good for us to get into the water with these fast teams."

Welsh is referring to USC and UCLA, which are both ranked in the national top 10.

The training program for the Irish swimmers will include a camp at Long Beach, Cal., immediately after the holidays. The emphasis will be on distance, stroke events and skill improvement, specifically on starts and turns.

"This is our only chance to train without classes," said Welsh. "We'll take advantage of this by training hard twice a day."

On Jan. 14, the Irish will go international when they travel to Canada to take on Western Ontario. This has always been an enjoyable meet for both teams because of the foreign exchange, according to Welsh. But last year Notre Dame didn't enjoy it as much as they would have liked as they lost a close meet, 109-102. The Irish hope to avenge that loss by defeating Western Ontario next month.

Notre Dame will host Northern Illinois in their fourth home meet on Jan. 18, the day that classes resume. It will be a big meet for both teams. The Irish have yet to beat the Huskies losing last year by a score of 139-127. Each year the winner has been decided by the last event of the meet.

Shula implicated in SI article

Magazine says Miami coach covered up Duper dealings

Associated Press

MIAMI- Miami Dolphins coach Don Shula said Wednesday he did all he could in 1986 to end Mark Duper's associations with convicted drug dealers.

Sports Illustrated magazine reported in its Dec. 12 issue that Shula and team owner Joe Robbie were told more than two years ago about photographs of Duper with Miami cocaine dealer Nelson Aguilar and other dealers.

"The league and team officials apparently did little to stop Duper's association with the dealers," the magazine said.

The NFL last week suspended Duper for 30 days for violating the league's substance abuse policy.

"I was very disturbed," Shula said, "by the implication that I was aware of alleged drug use or consorting with drug dealers and didn't do anything about it."

"As soon as I was aware of the photographs that were taken of two of our ballplayers with two convicted drug dealers, I immediately made the league security department aware of this and called the ballplayers in. (I) talked to them about having their pictures taken with these convicted drug dealers."

"And that was the extent of what I could do."

Duper was warned to stay away from Aguilar after a photo surfaced showing the two men and former Dolphin Nat Moore, team security consultant Stuart Weinstein said. Contrary to the SI article, Weinstein said, he did not tell Robbie about the pictures.

Sports Illustrated said Duper has been a cocaine user since at least 1986. The NFL said it has been watching his activities for some time.

"Both the NFL and club security representatives have spoken to Mark Duper on more than one occasion on an individual basis over nearly a two-year period regarding his possible association with reputed drug dealers," league spokesman Joe Browne said.

"All NFL players often are cautioned by security officials about such relationships."

Browne said it was "ludicrous" to question Shula's credibility.

ND in good hands with Graham

Senior holder, QB gives up his dream to help the team

By MOLLY MAHONEY
Sports Writer

When you need insurance, do you look for the "good-hands people?"

Well, the Notre Dame football team does. And to get it, it turns to the "good hands" of senior Pete Graham.

For four years, Graham's good hands have been guiding the prep unit that prepares the defense for game situations and holding for Irish kickers--both tasks which often go unnoticed but frequently insure Irish victories.

"I came to Notre Dame with the dream of becoming the starting quarterback," said Graham. "But after four years I'm not, so my main role is to give the defense the best possible look at what they'll see in the upcoming game and do a good job holding for extra points and field goals."

I'll never complain, because I'm at the best possible school and I'm proud to be a Notre Dame football player."

When the Rumson, N.J. native came out of Rumson-Fairhaven High School though, he had every reason to believe that one day he would be at the helm of the Irish offense.

In fact, as an Adidas/Scholastic Coach prep All-American and all-state, all-county and all-Jersey Shore choice as a senior, he could have been the starting quarterback at many schools.

He completed 63 percent of his passes, 96 of 152, for 1,700 yards and passed for 12 touchdowns during his senior season and Illinois and Florida State both recruited Graham heavily. UCLA even sent a coach coast-to-coast to witness him in action during practice.

But Graham does not regret his decision to attend Notre Dame.

"I'll never be sorry I came here," said Graham. The best experience is just being around guys like Tom Gorman and Tony Rice and Cory Southall.

"Everyday I'm around 100 of the best guys I know. There is no other place where you could find any more dedicated, hardworking and caring people."

And when it comes to taking snaps from center Tim Grunhard for kickers Reggie Ho and Billy Hackett, who have kicked 12 of 16 field goals and 37 of 43 extra points this season,

Pete Graham

Graham plays down his importance as the holder.

"My job is easy," said Graham. "I just try to get the guys relaxed and ready to go, especially Reggie because I don't want him to get down on himself."

"I try to be his best friend out there and remind him that he's one of the best kickers in the country. I just want what's best for the team, and that means you've got to give guys like Reggie a little encouragement sometimes."

Graham does not limit these votes of confidence to Ho alone.

After giving the Irish defense a look at the opposition's offense for four years and having what coaches feel is "an exceptional knowledge of the Notre Dame system," Graham has also extended his leadership role to many of the younger players.

"I don't play the option as well as Tony Rice," said Graham, "and I may not be as fast as him or have as strong an arm. But, as a senior on the prep team I'd like to think the younger guys will look at me and say, 'He's been doing this for four years and if he can do it, so can I.'"

Even after seeing only limited action as quarterback for the Irish, Graham has not complained. But how could he, when the Bergen Report, which scouts top NFL prospects, lists him as one of a dozen quarterbacks showing pro potential even without impressive statistics and a great deal of playing time.

"I love this place," said Graham. "Whatever happens in the future with my football career, all my goals have been accomplished. I've met wonderful people at Notre Dame, I'll graduate in May with a degree in business management, and we're one game away from a national championship."

"Every Saturday I got a chance to come through that tunnel and hear 60,000 people going crazy. I love just going into the lockerroom to sing the fight song and watching Coach Holtz pass out the game balls. That's why I play, and that's what Notre Dame is all about."

Walsh visits ND, predicts Irish win

By MARTY STRASEN
Sports Editor

Miami quarterback Steve Walsh visited Notre Dame early this week for the first time since the Irish upset the Hurricanes 31-30 in October, but this time there was no hostility.

Walsh, who is good friends with Notre Dame hockey captain Matt Hanzel, stayed with Hanzel at Turtle Creek Apartments Monday night after a speaking engagement in Chicago. Both Walsh and Hanzel are from St. Paul, Minn.

"Not many people recognized him in the huddle," Hanzel said. "A few people did, but no one was popping off to him or anything. That was good."

While watching Los Angeles defeat Chicago on Monday Night Football and before a short night out at Bridget's, Walsh praised Notre Dame and its chances of winning the national championship with a Fiesta Bowl victory over West Virginia.

"They (the Irish) shouldn't have a problem at all," Walsh continued. "They're in the drivers' seat. They've done everything they've had to do to win the national championship."

Walsh said the only way he can see the Irish having a problem would be if the Mountaineers open an early lead and Notre Dame has to change its game plan of running, but he added that he does not envision such a scenario.

"Notre Dame--man for man--is probably a much better football team than West Virginia," said Walsh, who finished fourth in the Heisman Trophy balloting behind Oklahoma State running back Barry Sanders, USC quarterback Rodney Peete and UCLA quarterback Troy Aikman. The junior will be one of the pre-season Heisman favorites next year.

The Observer / Rob Regovich

Quarterback and Heisman Trophy candidate Steve Walsh (4) of the Miami Hurricanes was in South Bend early this week, and had some pretty good things to say about the Fighting Irish and their chances in the Fiesta Bowl. Marty Strasen has details at left.

Rangers continue to change faces, acquire Nolan Ryan

Associated Press

ATLANTA- Nolan Ryan stayed true to Texas, Mike Schmidt said loyalty is keeping him in Philadelphia, and free agent Bruce Hurst prepared to make a decision about leaving Boston Wednesday as baseball's winter meeting officially ended.

The final day brought more action, and the Texas Rangers continued their pace as the busiest team. They lassoed Ryan, a 41-year-old free agent, for a one-year contract plus an option year that could be worth $3 million.

"I am a die-hard Texan," said Ryan, who left the lukewarm Houston Astros and turned down bigger offers from California and San Francisco.

"It didn't come down to a monetary decision. The over-riding fact was what I felt was best for me and my family."

Schmidt, 39, also did not want to move and he agreed to a one-year contract with the Phillies.

"The loyalty issue is the most important," said Schmidt, who was actively pursued by Cincinnati.

Schmidt, who underwent surgery in September for a torn right rotator cuff, will be guaranteed $500,000. He gets another $500,000 if he is on the roster May 15, another $500,000 if he playing on Aug. 15 and can earn $550,000 more in incentives.

"I feel physically better than at any time in my life at this time of the year," said baseball's seventh all-time leading home run hitter.

Nolan Ryan

Hurst was expected to decide soon between re-signing with the Red Sox or accepting offers from either San Diego or California. Each team has proposed three-year deals approaching $5.5 million.

"We're getting close," said Hurst's agent, Nick Lampros, without indicating the favorite.

In other business, the 26 owners met for five hours. Commissioner Peter Ueberroth said he hoped a new television contract could be worked out next week, while commissioner-elect Bart Giamatti, speaking about expansion, said, "we're very, very far away from (picking) cities."

Giamatti's spot as National League president will not be filled until January, it was announced. Simon Gourdine, a former executive in the NBA, is the leading choice and would be the first black ever to head a pro sports league.

The Rangers, who had not made a trade at the winter meetings since 1983, made three deals for 15 players and seemed ready to make more. The Rangers finished next-to-last in the AL west this past season, 33-and-a-half games behind.

The New York Mets kept up their interest in Atlanta's Dale Murphy and Cleveland's Joe Carter, and Philadelphia continued to shop Phil Bradley. The New York Yankees, who had talked about trading Dave Winfield, went home in the afternoon.

Texas traded for .300 hitters Julio Franco and Rafael Palmeiro earlier and bolstered its pitching staff with Ryan.

Hoops

Irish defense and scoring to narrow the lead to 68-66.

One thing that Notre Dame's credit is that it maintained its composure in the final minutes, as sophomore forward Krissi Davis moved to the basket, was fouled with :13 left, and converted both free throws to finish the scoring.

"I just tried to relax and shoot like I do in practice," said Davis, who had 13 points and eight rebounds. "I knew they would be double-teaming Heidi (Bunek) so I was looking for an opportunity to contribute."

In the game, senior co-captain Heidi Bunek was next on the scoring roster with 15 points, and led the team in rebounds with 12. Sophomore point guard Karen Robinson and senior forward Lisa Kuhns each added nine.

The main concern for the team was its defense and its rebounds. Coming into the game, Notre Dame had been outrebounded by its opponents, 118-111, and had been giving up 71.3 points per game.

Last night the Irish had 36 rebounds to the Warriors' 28, but the defense story did not improve much.

"It seemed like we were playing well, but then one or two of our mistakes would give them a chance to score key baskets," said Davis. "We've just got to hold them on defense."

Senior co-captain Heidi Bunek agreed.

"I think we stayed very composed for the most part," said the senior center, "but there were times when we made mental mistakes. When we work as a team and as a cohesive unit, we won't have to worry about these lapses."

The Irish will have plenty of time to work on their defense as their next game is not until Dec. 19 against Toledo at home.

IRISH NOTES--Notre Dame continues to make the clutch free throws this season. Including last night's game, the Irish are 25 of 28 in the final five minutes of regulation for a .890 percentage. Karen Robinson was also perfect at the line last night, making her 21 of 26 (.810) for the season and 78 of 97 (.800) for her career, which is tops in Notre Dame history.

ND women struggle, still edge Marquette

By SCOTT BRUTOCAO
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's basketball team edged out Marquette last night at the Joyce ACC Arena, 70-66, in the Irish home season-opener.

Three Irish women scored in double digits, and two more added nine points, but to Head Coach Muffet McGraw, the game showed the need for the Irish to improve their defense.

Notre Dame (3-1) could not run away with this one, as every time it established a significant lead, the Warriors would come back and erase it.

"They (Marquette) have been playing with each other for a long time," said Graduate Assistant Sandy Botham. "They came out strong and aggressive. I think you could tell how strong they were by the fact that our girls were tired after the first five minutes."

Notre Dame had to rely on a strong offensive effort to counterbalance the defense.

"This game shows we've still got to improve on our defense," said McGraw. "I was hoping that the defense would show itself tonight, but we still have a lot to work on."

Irish forward Sara Liebscher led all scorers on the night with 18, including two clutch plays late in the game.

With 4:53 left and Notre Dame ahead 60-56, Liebscher was fouled, went to the line and converted both free throws, extending the lead to 62-56. Immediately after, on Marquette's next possession, Liebscher picked off a pass and went coast-to-coast for a layup, making the score 64-56.

"Sara had a great second half," said McGraw. "She came through with the big plays when we needed them, making her scoring count."

Marquette was not finished, as two Irish turnovers and 1:11 later the score was 64-60.

Four possessions later the Irish found themselves ahead 68-62, when Marquette staged its final rally.

With 1:48 left Marquette senior Heidi Ach sunk a 16-footer to narrow the gap to 68-64. Ach lead all Marquette scorers with 17 points.

After failed scoring opportunities on both sides, Marquette once again worked the ball inside, exploiting the sagging

Hockey team hangs in, falls to talented Illinois / Chicago

Despite suffering a 3-1 loss on Tuesday at Illinois-Chicago, the Irish hockey team gained a moral victory against the seventh-ranked Flames.

"It was like win for us," commented Head Coach Ric Schafer. "There's no shame losing to a team of their caliber."

Notre Dame, suffering its ninth straight loss, took the lead midway through the first period on a goal by junior Andy Slaggart. UIC, 11-4-2, tied the game at 1-1 with approximately three minutes remaining in the period. The Irish, now 3-13-2 on the season, were outshot 17-6 by the Flames in the opening period but equaled the UIC shot output for the remainder of the game.

Three Irish penalties opened the door for its opponent, but the Notre Dame defense stifled the UIC attack. A power-play goal by UIC was the lone score in the second period, due to an outstanding performance by junior goalie Lance Madson.

"I had something to prove, so I went out and played one of my better games of the season," said Madson, who has played every minute of every game for the Irish.

The Flames, in the midst of a six game winning streak, added its final goal with little time left in the third. The Irish came up just short twice during the game, bouncing two shots off the posts in the first and second periods.

Notre Dame lost the first meeting between the two teams 8-3, but Tuesday's 3-1 score indicated much improvement the second time around. "We had played three games in four days before our last game against them," said co-captain Matt Hanzel. "Fatigue became a factor and they hurt us more by scoring two goals at the outset."

Despite an upcoming schedule that includes three teams currently in the NCAA Top 15, Schafer likes the chances of the team picking up a few victories against some quality teams.

"If we continue to play like we did against UIC, brighter days will be in the future," said Schafer.

Over Christmas break, Notre Dame plays a home-and-home series with Ferris State December 20-21 before attending the RPI Tournament, which also includes Air Force and Providence, in Troy, New York. The Irish return to the road with games Jan. 2-3 at Army, Jan. 5 at Boston College (ranked eighth) and Jan. 7 at 15th-ranked Merrimack. Notre Dame will then travel westward, facing the Arizona Wildcats.

"I think we'll surprise some people even though we are facing some tough opponents," said Hanzel. "We'll play some really good teams in Boston College and Merrimack, but we should do all right," said Hanzel.

Swim teams' trips west will be mostly business

Men head west to train, compete vs. coast powers

When the Notre Dame men's swim team visits California and Canada over the upcoming break, the trip will be far from a vacation in paradise.

Even after a respectable 3-2 start this season, the Irish have plenty of work cut out for them. The swimmers will train hard to prepare for tough competition at UC-Irvine and Long Beach State on Jan. 6-7. Then, the squad travels north for a dual meet against Western Ontario on Jan. 14.

While many of us are relaxing over Christmas break, the women's swim team will be practicing and preparing for competitions.

Between Christmas and Jan. 18, the squad will be participating in three meets, including the University of California-Irvine Invitational. This is the first time that Notre Dame has participated in the Invitational, which will be held on Jan. 6-7, and will include some powerful West Coast teams.

"The purpose of going to this meet will be to evaluate our
