171 die as DC-10 is sabotaged

Associated Press

PARIS — A Moslem extremist group claimed responsibility Wednesday for the downing of a French DC-10 jetliner in southern Niger that killed all 171 people on board.

U.S., French and UTA airline authorities said they believe the plane, bound Tuesday from Chad to Paris, was blown out of the sky by a bomb. A U.S. team of investigators was to leave later Wednesday for Niger.

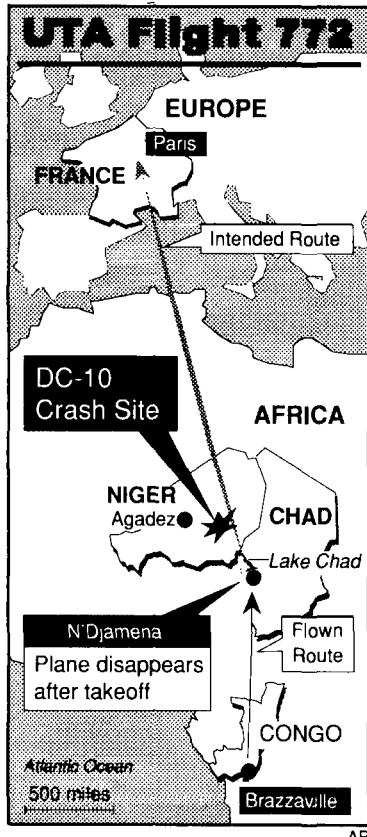

Two callers who claimed to represent Islamic Jihad but did not give their own names made their claims of responsibility in separate telephone calls to the airline and to a Western news agency.

Islamic Jihad is among several radical fundamentalist groups in Lebanon believed to be part of Hezbollah, or Party of God, the umbrella groups thought to hold 16 Westerners hostage in Lebanon, including eight Americans.

Hezbollah was at the center of a hostage crisis earlier this summer, when Israeli forces in southern Lebanon kidnapped a group member, Shiite Moslem religious leader Sheik Abdul-Karim Obeid.

Three days after the July 28 abduction of Obeid, the pro-

Iranian Organization of the Oppressed on Earth claimed it retaliated by hanging U.S. Marine Lt. Col. William Higgins, abducted while on U.N. duty in Lebanon. Doubt has been cast on claims Higgins was hanged or whether he died earlier.

Among the passengers on the French jetliner were seven Americans, including Bonnie Pugh, wife of the U.S. ambassador to Chad, Robert Pugh.

UTA Flight 772 was on a flight from Brazzaville, Congo, to Paris when it crashed Tuesday shortly after making a stop in N'Djamena, Chad. Debris was scattered over a 16-mile expanse of desert about 400 miles northwest of N'Djamena.

The French army, whose troops stationed in neighboring Chad were the first to reach the scene, said the 15 crew and 156 passengers died, including eight children.

Authorities said indications are that the aircraft was felled by a bomb.

"It exploded at high altitude leaving every reason to believe it was a bomb," said UTA spokesman Michel Friesse. He said it was possible, but less likely, the explosion was due to technical failure.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman, speaking on condition of anonymity, echoed that sentiment: "The pieces are widely scattered, so it didn't crash on impact."

Ellsberg reflects on role in Vietnam information release

By JOHN O'BRIEN
Senior Staff Reporter

Daniel Ellsberg, the man who former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger called both "a genius" and "the most dangerous man in the world," delivered a lecture on Wednesday entitled "Appropriate Responses of Government Officials to Wrongful War."

Ellsberg told the audience that difficult choices must be made and that choosing what is right often has serious consequences.

"There are times when you have to say no to a president, no to a state, even when you have to go to jail for it," Ellsberg said. "I expected to go to jail for the rest of my life for what I did."

As an employee of the RAND corporation, Ellsberg had access to the entire 43 volumes of the Pentagon Papers, an analysis of the U.S.'s 23-year military involvement in Vietnam.

In 1971, after becoming disillusioned with the Vietnam War, Ellsberg released the Pentagon Papers to the New York Times.

"I saw the system that I worked for. I saw a system that lies from top to bottom, warrant officer to commander-in-chief, in order to cover up murder," said Ellsberg.

As a result, the Nixon Administration indicted him on 12 counts of espionage, theft and conspiracy. He faced a possible prison sentence of 115 years.

In 1973, the case against him was dismissed because of government misconduct, the first time such a dismissal was issued before a case came to trial, according to Ellsberg.

ND students attacked off-campus

BY KELLEY TUTHILL

Two off-campus students were assaulted by a group of black males Saturday, September 16 on Corby Street.

According to one of the students who was attacked, who will remain anonymous for security reasons, the incident occurred at midnight when the students were walking on Corby Street to Bridget's Filling Station.

"As we approached the last house on the left on Corby near Bridget's and five points area, we noticed a group of guys sitting on the front lawn of this house," said the student.

He said that he and his friend were walking on the same side of the street as the house.

"When we saw them we weren't sure if we should cross the street, turn and run, or keep walking. So we kept walking, trying to act very casual about the situation," the student said.

"As we got closer, someone came towards us asking if we had change for a ten [dollar bill]." He said they replied that they did not have change and soon after there were many people all around them.

The student said he was not sure how many people were around them, but he estimates that there were at least ten. The group consisted of males ages 17 to 20 years.

"One of us was chased back and forth across the street, while the other was encircled by at least five guys," said the student. "I remember looking over while I was being chased and seeing the other guy being hit from all directions."

The student said he tried to break away but a second wave of youths came at him. He said his companion broke out of the circle and ran to Bridget's to summon the police officer who was stationed at the entrance.

"The Bridget's police officer came, and so did the South Bend Police and a car of students," he said. "Everyone from the house ran away and we told the police what happened."

The student said that neither he nor his friend were seriously injured. He said his friend had been struck on the head and had a few bumps.

"It was dumb for us to ever walk that route, but we figured it could never happen to us. But it did, and it will undoubtedly happen to more people," the student said.

The student said that he and his friend did not file a report with the South Bend Police. He said his roommate was worried about aggravating a previous situation with the Office of Student Affairs should he be involved in another incident.

Patrick Doran, assistant director of residence life, said that he has never heard of a case such as this that has been pursued from a disciplinary standpoint. "The most important thing is to do something about the crime."

In a case where alcohol was involved, Doran said Student Affairs would first deal with the assault and then later John Goldrick, associate vice presi-

Support group for working parents begins at ND

BY HANNAH WU
News Staff

The first of a weekly series of five classes for working parents entitled "Group Support for the Working Parents" began at Notre Dame on Wednesday. The program is a feature of Notre Dame's Year of the Family.

A panel of four spoke on "Finding the Best Fit for You and Your Child: A Guide to Choosing and Using Child Care." Nora Hoff and Michael Murphy, consultants for the Michiana Employee Assistant Program, addressed the issue of choosing a good child care establishment.

"It is always a good idea to visit several locations before you make the decision," said Hoff. She also emphasized the importance of parents to respect the care givers and to show them appreciation.

Murphy encouraged parents to "make expectations as clear as possible at the beginning" if they decide to have in-home care. He said that these expectations may have nothing to do with the quality of the care, but were very important issues such as details about pay, and care givers' responsibilities in the household.

Terri Kosik, director of the Early Childhood Development Center, and Ann Rosen, who teaches early parenting education classes at St. Joseph Medical Center also spoke in the class.

All of the classes will take place on Wednesdays from noon to 1:15 p.m. in the Notre Dame Room of LaFortune Student Center. Each of the Wednesday classes will be followed the next day by a discussion from noon to 1:15 p.m. in the Sorin Room of LaFortune Student Center. The classes are free and open to the public.

WORLD BRIEFS

Jose Napoleon Duarte, former president of El Salvador who has liver cancer, has suffered a sharp deterioration in his condition and could be near death, his doctor said Wednesday. Dr. Jose Luis Saca told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that Duarte was in "serious but stable" condition Wednesday afternoon. "I thought he was going to die last night. But we were able to stabilize him, and I don't think he'll die within the next 24 hours," said Saca.

F.W. de Klerk was sworn in as president in Pretoria, South Africa Wednesday and promised a new constitution that would bring blacks into South Africa's government by the end of his five-year term. He appealed to South Africans of all races to help build a nation "free of domination and oppression. "We accept that time is of the essence and we are committed to visible, evolutionary progress," de Klerk said in his inaugural speech. He has vowed to eliminate discrimination and allow blacks, who currently cannot vote, participation in government under a five-year plan.

A demand for health potions has spurred a jump in frog and snake imports to South Korea, a government report said Wednesday. Some Korean men believe snake soup and frog meat build stamina. According to an Agriculture and Fisheries Ministry report to the National Assembly on imports of foreign food items, South Korea's imports of snakes in the first half of this year climbed to $380,000, surpassing the $295,000 in imports during all of 1988. The report also said that South Korea imported $48,000 in frogs in the first six months of this year, compared with $37,000 through all of last year.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

A congressional panel voted unanimously Wednesday to subpoena former HUD Secretary Samuel Pierce Jr., to testify about alleged influence-peddling and mismanagement at the department he once headed. His attorney accused the panel of "vindictive and punitive actions." Pierce was ordered to appear on three separate occasions — the first coming next Tuesday — before the subcommittee that is investigating scandals at the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

INDIANA BRIEFS

A Culver man accused of counterfeiting more than $400,000 and distributing it in five states faces a Nov. 6 trial in U.S. District Court. James Sarna, 51, pleaded innocent to the charges Tuesday during his arraignment before Judge Robert Miller Jr. Sarna was indicted earlier this month on five counts related to the counterfeiting of $20, $50 and $100 bills. He was arrested Aug. 21 after federal agents seized about $400,000 worth of high quality fake bills, printing plates, a press and other related items from a building in Hamlet that Sarna had rented under an assumed name two days earlier.

Experiences of the past lend meaning to future

In just about two weeks, one of the major events of senior year at Saint Mary's will take place: Senior Father/Daughter Weekend. In preparing for this weekend, finding out about the activities planned and deciding where I would take Dad, I had a sudden realization of what is happening to my life: change.

The last time I was a senior, I was 17 and looking forward to four years of relative security at Saint Mary's. Now, at 21, the future is far from certain and, at times, scary. One would think that with age comes more freedoms, but not in all areas. As a senior in high school, I dyed the front of my hair blond and put more time into the "attitude" of my clothing than any homework. If I were to do the same thing now, I hardly think IBM or Price-Waterhouse would be impressed.

After four years of high school and 17 years of my hometown, all I wanted to do was get out. Going away to school was my main goal. Even my own home was a place from which to distance myself. I, being your average teenager, had more than enough sarcasm to start many an argument with my family. Now, though, I don't have a home to go back to. Of course, I could always go back to my parents house, but I want to start a life of my own, which means finding a job, an apartment, a new way of life.

My life at school is not exempt from change either. Did I forget that in the real world, with a real job, there is no mid-semester break? No three weeks vacation at Christmas? I will highly value that time this year. My advice to any senior would be to enjoy being the "friend/son/daughter who goes away to school" and the nice receptions one get on returning home. As it is now, my family and friends treat me rather well when I go home on breaks. Someone always wants to take me out to lunch, to a movie or treat me to the nightly drink specials at the bars (usually friends, not Mom or Dad).

Maybe I've been "blind" in the past to all the "luxuries" I do have. There isn't a time when I go home that I am not complaining about something: the work, the food, the horrible showers. I am getting an education at one of the best colleges in the country and my parents willingly gave up a lot (money, yes, but other intangibles) to send me here, and all they ask for in return is for me to be happy and as Dad says, "Just do your best, that's all we ask." And I find something to complain about?

One thing I know has happened to me at school in the last four years is that I've been trapped in a sort of time warp. You see, when I

"I have always been a firm believer in the necessity of change."

Christine Gill
Saint Mary's Editor

go home, I expect things to be just as they were when I left. As if "my world," as I know it, would stop when I left. This sounds quite egotistical, but I think it is something that happens to many people. My friends are all supposed to be there, my house won't have changed, and my family will be waiting for me, exactly as I left them. However, this past summer put a halt to my distorted perceptions when one friend took the LSAT's and prepared to choose a law school and my Dad asked what color I thought the new den should be painted.

"Den, what den?", I asked.

"Oh, sorry, did I say den. I meant, what color do you want your room painted?", Dad slyly answered. Thanks for waiting until I came back to school before moving your Lay-Z-Boy in, Dad.

This "time-trap" exists here at school also. Did I think my roommates and I would live together forever? I happen to believe that the fiancée of one of my roommates would frown on this. Which, in turn, leads to another event which forced me to face reality. In just three weeks, I am going home with my roommate to try on dresses to be in her wedding, which is in June. Wait a minute, married? Yes, it is true, it's not always going to be "it won't happen to anyone I know." Are we old enough to be married? Why then, at 21, are there times when I feel like I'm still in the seventh grade, and just as unsure of myself.

I have always been a firm believer in the necessity of change. There is a poster above my desk that shows the trees in fall, with all their beautiful colors and the words: It is only through change that we grow. Yet, however much I think I believe in this idea, accepting it into my life and making it work for me is a goal I have to work towards this year.

So when my Dad comes up in a few weeks, I will be excited for the weekend, but I will also be looking beyond it to a clearer vision of senior year at Saint Mary's.

Campus security concerns discussed in open forum

BY KELLEY TUTHILL
Senior Staff Reporter

Students, administration and Notre Dame Security discussed campus security concerns in an open forum Wednesday night.

Rex Rakow, director of Security and Charles Hurley, assistant director of Security along with John Goldrick, associate vice president for residence life and several dorm rectors took suggestions from students and offered advice about the current situation on campus.

Many students voiced the concern that Security's services are not well-known on campus. Several students said they did not know that female students have access to Security's escort service anytime during dark hours.

Rakow wrote down the suggestions from the students including specific places on campus that students said lack sufficient lighting. He said that anytime students have suggestions they may call him or write him a letter.

"Nobody is suggesting that a college student should become a recluse," said Hurley. He said students have to use common sense and not walk alone or even in small groups out in dangerous neighborhoods.

Gina Mahoney, a junior, said that she had met with Student Body President Matt Breslin to discuss a student-run escort service. Many students agreed that they would like to see such a service at Notre Dame.

Students suggested that people on campus could volunteer to be an escort to work-off disciplinary community service hours. Someone suggested that golf carts be used for escorting.

A student asked if there had been a rape on South Quad last year that Security had not reported to the public. Rakow denied that there had been such a rape but did say that date rapes had occurred.

Goldrick said that a Campus Alliance for Rape Elimination (CARE) has been formed at the University.

"Anytime you hear a rumor," Rakow said, "Call us and we'll be glad to talk to you." He said

Ellsberg speaks on foreign policy

BY SARAH VOIGT
Senior Staff Reporter

Daniel Ellsberg, peace activist and former government consultant responsible for releasing the top-secret Pentagon Papers in 1969, drew an "ominous number of parallels" between the U.S. involvement in Vietnam and its current covert relations with Latin American countries.

In a press conference Wednesday, Ellsberg said that the U.S. policies toward the Vietnam War could only have been pursued under a veil of secrecy and lies. "In reality, the American public would never have authorized the money [for the Vietnam War] or the lies had they understood the situation," Ellsberg said.

Since Ellsberg was the only researcher with authorized access to the entire 47 volumes of the top-secret Pentagon Papers, he understood the history of the U.S. decision making in Vietnam from 1945-1968. During the 1960's, he was a consultant to the Defense Department, the State Department and the White House on strategic nuclear war plans and military options in Vietnam.

Ellsberg said that he released the Pentagon Papers for publication in the New York Times because he felt an obligation to share the previously undisclosed information with the public. "I felt that the information should not be mine alone. It was very relevant to the continuation of the war and whether or not we had the right to continue it," said Ellsberg.

Ellsberg perceives similar dangerous trends of secrecy in U.S. foreign policy today. He said, "Only secrecy and lies could have gotten us into the covert war against Nicaragua and let us maintain relations with El Salvador."

According to Ellsberg, the ambiguous wording of President Bush's assurances that no U.S. combat troops will be used in these parts of the world are often false. "My own experience in the Pentagon has taught me that this [denial of troops] cannot be true. The wording in these statements are so similar to deceptive assurances given by Nixon and Kennedy in the past that the denials are ominous," said Ellsberg.

Ellsberg predicts that the U.S. public would not be involved in the decision to send combat troops into a Latin American country until it would be too late.

"We know from the Vietnam War, if experience is any guide, and it is, that when Americans by presidential authorization become directly involved in combat in Latin America, the public will not be told until it is virtually inescapable," said Ellsberg.

Ellsberg believes that the executive branch of the U.S. government has gained "freedom of action that even King George III couldn't have dreamed of. It is extremely dangerous to have a leader who can decide whether or not we go to war in this nuclear age."

Ellsberg said, "The issue of whether to kill people in foreign lands should not be left to the chief executive or his advisors. Instead, it should be a result of national debate where the public has had a chance to reflect and be heard."

SMC freshman elections generate run-off

BY CHRISTINE GILL
Senior Staff Reporter

Saint Mary's freshmen held class elections on Wednesday, with the result of two presidential tickets in a run-off to be held Friday.

Neither ticket was able to achieve the majority required to win in the first election. The ticket of Colleen Rhattigan and Carol Egan, running for president and vice-president, respectively, will face Katie Damm and Linda Shaffer in Friday's vote.

Freshman Council members who were elected by Wednesday's tally were: Gretchen Bath, Jenny Danahy, Amanda Setter, Emilie Luna, Marty Marzolf, Maureen Seeley, Dina Selman, Jill Weber and Renee Young.

There was a 53 percent voter turnout for the elections, which is an excellent response from the class, said Molly Bringardner, Elections Commissioner.

The run-off will be Friday, September 22, with voting taking place in the dining hall.

St. Croix evacuated as Hugo nears

Associated Press

CHRISTIANSTED, U.S. Virgin Islands — The Coast Guard on Wednesday began evacuating people from the resort island of St. Croix because of security fears following widespread looting after Hurricane Hugo.

In Washington, President Bush authorized sending U.S. troops, including military police units, to the U.S. Virgin Islands

"to help restore order," the White House announced Wednesday.

Earlier, Bush ordered federal troops to help Puerto Rico, which was also battered by the hurricane.

The president declared the U.S. Virgin Islands a disaster area, making the island chain south and east of Puerto Rico eligible for emergency relief.

On St. Croix, a popular U.S. vacation site about 70 miles east of Puerto Rico, frantic tourists pleaded for evacuation, and witnesses said police and some National Guardsmen took part in the looting.

"The private citizens around here are beginning to walk around with pistols on their hips, and there's going to be real trouble if somebody doesn't come in and quiet it down," Stu Ragland, a doctor on St. Croix, told an amateur radio operator.

into the offices of two of my former psychoanalysts in an attempt to blackmail me or embarrass me so badly that I commit suicide," he said. "They also brought Cuban-Americans to the U.S. to assault me on the steps of the Capitol in order to stop a protest."

Ellsberg drew attention to the lecture delivered Tuesday by former Reagan Administration National Security Advisor Robert McFarlane. McFarlane said that covert military actions cannot be undertaken unless the American people understand it and support it.

Ellsberg said that the covert activities of the Iran/Contra affair were kept covert because they would never gain acceptance. "Those policies were mistaken because they were immoral, not because they were against policy or public opinion."

"Leaders will lie to you in any war," he said. "Reagan knew what he was doing when he lied to us," adding that the secrets were covering up policies that could never be justified.

Ellsberg added that he was disappointed at the verdict of the trial of Lt. Col. Oliver North.

"The North sentence tells government officials that they are safe to do anything for the President. It's going to cause a lot of innocent people to be killed," he said.

He gave an example of an occasion where public opinion influenced President Nixon to abandon a planned massive attack on North Vietnam in November, 1969.

"The attack was scheduled for November 1, and involved a total B-52 carpet-bombing and a massive land invasion of North Vietnam, as well as preparations for a nuclear war," he said.

However, Ellsberg said, a nationwide demonstration of 1-2 million people on October 15, 1969 prevented the attack.

Security tries to be very open and he does not believe it does any good to hide information.

Rakow said that timely reporting of crimes is very important. He said that last weekend a student was attacked on Saturday night, yet she failed to report the crime until Sunday morning. "It's not that we don't want to hear it later, but it does lessen our ability to make an arrest."

Several students questioned Security about available funds for security items such as lighting. Goldrick said that in a safety situation he believes that the money would not be refused.

Rakow said presently he is working on attaining some security phones for the campus. He said that the phones would be especially useful in the parking lots.

Security does provide a service for students parking at night which involves a student driving to the main gate and notifying the officer that he or she is parking in a particular lot. The student can then proceed to the lot, turn on their lights and wait for a Security escort, said Rakow.

Students expressed concerns over the number of officers on campus at night. Rakow said two or three officers cover the central part of campus, two or three are in vehicles, one at the gate and hall monitors and museum security are on duty on a given night.

He said total staff is 105 people including hall monitors and museum security.

A student suggested that the campus sell airhorns to students. Rakow said he is trying to find vendors who sell an airhorn that is easy to carry and not expensive. He added that he would not mind if Security was the distribution point for the airhorns.

Jim Schilder, student government's commissioner for campus improvement and security, suggested the use of the Valadine system instead of the Detex system in the female dorms. He said then all Notre Dame students could have access to all the dorms and therefore students would be hesitant to let anyone into the dorm without a detex.

"The best security system for students goes largely unused," said Rakow. "And that's door locks." He said many campus thefts are from open rooms.

A few students said that stationary patrolmen might help alleviate problems because student would know where to run if they were in trouble. Rakow and Hurley both agreed that this time of Security is not always beneficial because burglars find out where the posts are and plan thefts of buildings.

Schilder said he was pleased with the number of males who attended the meeting. "I think a student escort service is a terrific idea," he said. He thinks students would be more prone to use a student service.

At least two die as USAir plane skids off runway

Associated Press

NEW YORK — A USAir 737 carrying 62 people skidded off a runway on takeoff from LaGuardia Airport late Wednesday, landing in the East River near the city jail at Rikers Island, authorities said.

At least two people were killed, said Fire Department Dispatcher Adam Krause. The Port Authority also said it had reports of fatalities.

Officials had no figures on possible injuries.

One passenger reported that the aircraft split into two or three pieces.

Some people were trapped in the plane's tail section and were being removed, said Coast Guard Lt. Commander Paul Milligan.

Milligan said the plane skidded off the runway during takeoff and landed in the water, about 2,000 feet from the end of the runway, at 11:35 p.m..

The Coast Guard said the plane remained afloat and was in relatively shallow water, 25 to 40 feet deep.

"They've got people in water in life rafts, some people in tail section," said Petty Officer Gary Rives.

"The plane is sitting at a 60-degree angle in the water with the cockpit down."

A USAir spokeswoman in Pittsburgh, Susan Young, said Flight 5050, a Boeing 737-400, was bound for Charlotte, N.C.

"We do have an airplane that appears to have gone into the water at LaGuardia," said Young. "On takeoff it went off the end of the runway and is now partially submerged in the water."

The pilot tried to abort the takeoff for an unknown reason, said Kathleen Bergen, spokeswoman for the Federal Aviation Administration in New York.

The plane was carrying 55 passengers and seven crew members and was being evacuated, said a Fire Department spokesman, John Mulligan.

Mulligan said survivors were being transported to the Pan Am Shuttle terminal at LaGuardia.

Coast Guard small boats and planes were on the scene, as well as police vehicles.

Rescuers and crew members were trying to keep people calm, he said.

dent for residence life, or Ann Firth, director of residence life, will decide whether the situation arose as a result of the student's drinking.

"The bottom line is the only time we call in students is when they are the parties that are arrested or assaulting someone else versus the parties being assaulted," said Doran.

Phil Johnson, assistant director of Security, "We recommend that the victims of any crime or anyone that sees anything suspicious should call the police, whether it be the South Bend Police Department, Notre Dame or Saint Mary's Security."

He added that off-campus students can use the resources of Notre Dame Security including the free home or apartment security review. "We will help in any possible way," Johnson said.

Johnson said that students should always report crimes so that measures can be taken to prevent such crimes in the future. In this particular case, he said the Police Department could have alerted their officers to watch the particular house or area.

Charles Hurley, assistant director of Security keeps close tabs on the local neighborhoods, said Johnson.

Economy continues to grow 'soft-landing' seems likely

Associated Press

WASHINGTON —The economy continued to grow late this summer at a pace ranging regionally from slow to moderate, while inflation eased over much of the nation, the Federal Reserve reported Wednesday.

Analysts said the report indicates the Fed continues to attain its goal of easing inflationary pressures without slowing the economy so much that it is driven into a recession.

"It says there's some softness, but no declines," said Samuel D. Kahan, chief financial economist for Kleinwort Benson Government Securities Inc. in Chicago. "It suggests yet again the 'soft-landing' scenario seems to be unfolding."

In a survey of economic conditions around the country, the central bank said most of its districts "describe the growth of economic activity as modest or slow, although regional variation in activity is substantial."

The survey also found that pricing pressures have eased in five of the 12 Fed districts, while increasing only in the Kansas City region.

The survey by the 12 district banks is compiled in the Fed's "beige book" every six weeks to prepare for the next meeting of the Federal Open Market Committee, the Fed's monetary policy-setting arm. The next meeting is Oct. 3.

Kahan said the report is likely to lead the Fed "to put monetary policy on hold even though its bias is toward easing" interest rates.

While growth was generally mixed from region to region, the survey results were consistent with the Fed's earlier findings this year.

Fed districts reported Aug. 9 that the "nation's economy continues to grow slowly" and on June 21 said "economic activity for the most of the nation continues to advance" with "ebbing rates of expansion" in some regions. The economy was growing at "a moderate, sustainable pace" in the May 3 survey.

In its latest survey completed Sept. 12, the Fed reported "consumer spending has been mixed, but most districts report strong sales of apparel and cars recently."

In some districts, it found increased sales of women's apparel spurred overall apparel growth.

"A surge in auto sales has helped reduce auto inventories over most of the nation," it said.

However, auto sales were driven by incentives during much of the summer and dealers in several districts expressed fears that those sales would cut into purchases of 1990 models later this year.

Demand for loans also continued to vary considerably by region and type of loan, the survey said. Auto loans appeared to be a major factor in determining consumer loan growth.

The survey found manufacturing performance generally satisfactory or improving in the South and West, but weakening in New England and much of the Midwest. Manufacturing inventories generally were at satisfactory levels.

It also said there was "substantial variation in the strength of construction and real estate activity," with several districts reporting falling mortgage rates had stimulated the construction and sales of existing homes.

Only three districts — Boston, St. Louis and San Francisco — reported labor shortages.

"Agricultural conditions have improved over much of the country," the survey said, while "the mining industry has showed increased activity in the Minneapolis, Dallas, Atlanta and Kansas City districts in recent months."

Professor named to AICPA board, changes ahead for CPA exam

BY KENNETH SHEEHAN
Business Writer

A professor of business and economics at Saint Mary's College, Susan Vance, was recently appointed to the Board of Examiners of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA). The nine member board is comprised of professors, accountants, and other business professionals from all over the United States.

About 140,000 candidates a year take the CPA exam throughout the United States and its territories. The test is required to practice accounting independently.

Effective as of 1989-1990, Vance will serve for four years. Vance said, "The board has the overall responsibility for the CPA exam."

The board of examiners has control over each of the subcommittees that compose the different sections of the exam. It has the responsibility of collating the various selections into one complete examination. The board also has the final verdict on any disputes that might arise concerning the test.

"I feel this is a good as well as an exciting time to be on this board since the CPA exam is going to change in 1994," she said.

One change the board has already made is shortening the exam to two and a half days from three and a half. In addition, the practice and theory section will be given in one day instead of two and calculators will now be allowed. Also, different types of objective questions will be asked and a grade will be assigned to writing skills.

"It will be interesting to see how the board will determine how to grade the writing sample and how it will effect the overall score for passing the exam," Vance said.

Vance, both CPA and lawyer, was asked to be a part of the board of examiners after working two years on the business law subcommittee. She retains this position as she serves as an examiner. This subcommittee is in charge of writing the business law section of the exam. Since most of the members of the subcommittee are practicing lawyers, Vance brings the student perspective to the exam.

Personal savings grow in Japan

Associated Press

TOKYO —The Japanese may appear to be the world's most avid consumers of luxury goods, but they're just as enthusiastic about stashing money in the bank.

Japan's 39 million households held an average of about $130,000 in personal savings last year, according to a recent report by the Bank of Japan.

Total personal savings rose 11.4 percent to $5.15 trillion in 1988, more than double the 4.5 percent growth in consumer spending.

It was the third straight year that personal savings grew at double-digit rates. The figures count savings deposited at banks and postal offices or held in the form of stocks, bonds and insurance.

It was also a clear indication that the Japanese haven't abandoned their habit of saving a substantial part of their incomes in financial assets.

Japanese are more likely to put their money into paper property, while Americans are more likely to invest in housing.

Housing is not counted in personal savings figures, which is one reason the reported savings rate is much lower in the United States (5 percent to 6 percent) than in Japan (16 percent), says Richard C. Koo, senior economist at Nomura Research Institute.

The habit of saving has created a massive pool of capital for Japanese industry, a foundation of Japan's powerhouse economy.

"While the value of land in Japan tends to appreciate, housing actually depreciates. People know that their houses will not be worth much 10 years from now, so they don't invest in housing," Koo said.

"Americans put their savings into keeping their homes up, because they expect them to appreciate in value," he explained.

Traditionally, housing in Japan — vulnerable to earthquakes and fires — has been torn down and rebuilt rather than maintained.

Always report an instance of rape

In light of several recent assaults on the students of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's, it is wise to reflect on the responsibility of students act wisely on issues concerning personal safety.

No cases of rape have been reported to Notre Dame security in the past decade. This is not an indication of the safety of the campus, however. It is an indication of the reluctance of students to report sexual assaults when they occur.

Rape is defined as an act of sexual intercourse without consent of both partners. If the act is committed when the victim is intoxicated by drugs (including alcohol), deceived as to the nature of the act, overcome by duress or threats, or under the age of consent, then the act is rape.

By that definition, rapes occur in the ND/SMC community, but are not reported. Date rape and other assaults will not stop unless more people are aware of the problem and its solutions.

There are measures to be taken to stop instances of assault, sexual or otherwise, and to help those who are victimized. One is to report such instances to a proper authority, someone who can help, someone with the knowledge and capability to deal professionally, supportively and tactfully with the problem. Hall rectors and rectresses, resident assistants, and security, whichever is the easiest to talk to, should be informed, both to stop the assault from happening again and to provide support, physical as well as emotional, to the victim.

As it stands, little can be done about private assaults. A common fear is of public embarrassment, but, after an incident of rape, no one wants to cause the victim any more pain. Situations can be handled carefully and with respect.

Students can also take preventative measures. The securities of both campuses are willing to escort students to the dorms or to their cars. Groups of two or three are far safer than travelling alone. Avoiding isolated or darkened areas is a matter of common sense.

Anyone with the slightest doubt as to personal safety is forewarned: it is better to be safe than sorry.

Administration should help protect women

Dear Editor:

In her recent editorial, "Campus Crime Wave Poses Perplexing Problems," Janice O'Leary thoughtlessly espouses a number of fallacious ideas about a very serious topic. How to hold keys and whether to buy weapons to ward off attackers are unfortunate but necessary considerations for any woman to make in an increasingly violent environment. It is not, however, a fun conversation to be had over chicken patties by "innocent eye-lash-batting girls."

When we talk about accostment, "inappropriate touching," and attack, we're really talking about disguised forms of rape. Despite what Ms. O'Leary might think, rape is not funny. Many studies indicate that a woman has a one in four chance of being raped in her lifetime. Some estimates which include marital and date rape are even higher than that. Even if one believes the most conservative estimates, a one in ten chance is still too high.

The causes of rape are complex. A basic misunderstanding of rape is that it is a sexual act. It is not. Rape is a violent act. A woman's sexual attractiveness has nothing to do with her probability of being a victim. Ms. O'Leary's amiable suggestions on how to avoid attacks on campus evince this pervasive myth. Although intended to be humorous, her advice to "avoid showering and deodorant" and to "gain two hundred pounds" only perpetuates the fiction that women are "asking for it." The idea that a two-hundred pound smelly woman isn't in danger of getting attacked implies that a perfumed, one-hundred pound

Furthermore, the more attractive woman is implicated in bringing on the rape because she is so attractive. She is therefore wholly or partially responsible. This scenario is simply untrue. Just ask anyone who's been attacked. Ms. O'Leary's second suggestion, to "run everywhere," is also uninformed. Rape defense classes teach that running is not advisable as it shows fear and vulnerability. When walking alone at night, walk briskly with purpose and awareness.

It is particularly distressing that the author of the article is a woman. Rape is a crime that can happen to anyone, anywhere, but women are overwhelmingly the victims. Not only are we the victims of the act itself but of the constant pervasive fear that we too will become a victim. For a woman to write about sexual crimes against her own sex in such a thoughtless manner is simply insensitive and self-defeating.

Notre Dame must address this crucial issue with direction and decisiveness. In five years at UCLA, I had a much greater statistical chance of being raped and yet felt safer there than I do here. The administration took positive action to support women on campus and address the problem thoughtfully and rapidly. Among other programs, they established:

- 1) Dusk until dawn escort service to walk students anywhere within a one mile radius of campus.
- 2) Evening vans that run from 5 p.m. to midnight to transport students to all the major study and living areas.
- 3) "Rape Awareness" workshops offered every quarter to all students, faculty, and staff. Administrators were allowed to leave work for 2 hours to attend.
- 4) "Date Rape" counseling centers and other counseling facilities for victims of violent crime.
- 5) "Take Back the Night" walks where students and staff walked around campus at night to demonstrate community awareness and identify poorly lit areas.
- 6) Free self-defense classes which teach the best methods to avoid being victimized.

Unfortunately, many of these measures were undertaken after the proliferation of violent crime on campus. I hope Notre Dame doesn't wait that long. Maybe they already have.

Navy trainees brought to ND

assistant accent editors

Notre Dame students are all familiar with the military R.O.T.C. programs here. They have been established for many years. But six months after the attack on Pearl Harbor, some new military faces appeared on campus. Due to the national emergency, the University of Notre Dame was selected to host a Naval Reserve Midshipman's School.

WORLD W*A*R

THE 50th ANNIVERSARY

In the beginning, only V-7 Midshipman trainees were stationed here. In 1944, V-12 trainees of both the Navy and Marines made their mark on our campus. All of these trainees were college graduates who enlisted in the Navy and were sent here for further classes and training. Each session lasted about six weeks, and each session brought in at least 1000 new men.

Notre Dame had to make some changes to accommodate this sudden, large influx of men. One of the most controversial changes at the time was the use of some of the dorms to house only Navy men. Three of the largest dorms, Morrissey, Lyons, and Howard, were switched over immediately. Badin later joined them.

When the V-12 trainees arrived, Alumni, Dillon, Zahm, and Cavanaugh were also turned over to the Navy. NROTC occupied Walsh hall, while the 'civvies' lived in Sorin, St. Edward's, Carroll, and Breen-Philips. Zahm and Cavanaugh were returned to the civilian students in late 1944 as the V-12 program was cut down.

In order to accommodate the

Due to the presence of the trainees on campus, this Navy Drill Hall was built south of the present location of Fieldhouse Mall.

You can take advantage of this same service in Chicago by visiting Gilbert's at the Drake Hotel.

in, many leading meat companies assert they can promise nothing definite in deliveries. Beef, pork, veal and lamb, upon which the dining hall relies heavily, are at a premium, and can be obtained only after government orders have been filled. Since the University uses the staggering amount of 15 tons of meat per week, it is evident that local patrons will feel the effects of shortage."

Another aspect of campus life that had to be modified in order to accommodate the Navy was St. Michael's Laundry. The laundry service was opened in 1934 to handle laundry for 3,000 people. By September 1943, they had to handle 5,200 bundles of laundry—4,000 of which were for the service men stationed on campus. In addition to this overflow of dirty laundry, there was a wartime shortage of employees at St. Michael's which added to delays.

Although rumors of preferential treatment in the dining hall were unfounded, the Navy did get faster laundry service. According to the Scholastic dated September 24, 1943, "Between the laundry and the dry cleaning plant, everything is washed for the trainee except his shoes. Naturally, inspections mean that the service man must always be spick and span. Hence they are given first preference in point of time."

Because the Navy was new and different at Notre Dame, not part of the University's long-standing tradition, it encountered a lot of heckling and joking from the students. In order to better acquaint the students with the Navy and its ways and to better the relationship between the two, the Navy regularly had two pages in the weekly Scholastic. This newsletter of sorts listed awards won by trainees, gave information about the latest Navy happenings, and even had explanations for some of the Navy lingo. Not many ND students at that time — or now — knew that "jamoke" referred to coffee.

One of the major conflicts the Navy had to face while on campus was inevitable: the annual Navy versus Notre Dame football game. But they made the best of an awkward situation by making an occasion of it, traveling to Annapolis to support their own. After it was all over, one midshipman said, "Our loyalties to Notre Dame are second only to the Navy."

For the V-7 and V-12 trainees, Notre Dame must have been an idyllic setting — a well-known university tucked away in the peaceful midwest, thousands of miles away from the dangers they were about to face in Europe or Japan.

Naval supplies advertisement from a 1942 issue of Scholastic.

large number of Naval trainees living on campus, South Dining Hall (known at the time as West Dining Hall) was converted into a cafeteria. Previously, students and faculty had sit-down meals which were served by waiters. The conversion to cafeteria-style was a fairly big change from what they were used to.

Then, as now, students complained about the quality of the food they were served. Some also complained that the Navy was getting better quality and more food. While the rumors of food priorities were not true, rationing of food — especially meat and milk — had a profound impact on the daily lives of both enlisted and civilian students. The added number of mouths to feed on campus made it even more difficult to get an ample supply of meat.

The Scholastic dated August 14, 1942, explained the situation, "... present prices on various meats are up 50 per cent over last year, the highest in 13 years. In reply to orders sent

One branch of the Navy on campus was the Marines. Since these men all came from different colleges, they received their share of heckling from the ND students. One Marine, taking this to heart, wrote new lyrics to the "Marine Hymn" to defend their loyalty to Notre Dame:

From the halls of Zahm and Cavanaugh
To the shores of Lake
Saint Joe
We will fight for dear old
Notre Dame
Wherever we may go.
First to fight for more and

And to keep our bulkheads clean.
We are proud to bear the title of
The Notre Dame Marines.

Our day begins at early

And ends at taps at ten.
They feed us what? and

And expect us to be men.
From the engineering

Irish women's golf playing at Indy

By JOHANNA KELLY
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame's women's golf team will be looking to gain more experience at this weekend's Lady Greyhound Invitational at the University of Indianapolis.

Coming off an encouraging performance at the Illinois

State Invitational, the Irish are looking to better last year's fourth-place performance at the Sarah Shank Memorial Golf Course in Indianapolis this week.

"We expect to do real well," remarked Irish coach Tom Hanlon.

Notre Dame accomplished its goal last week by finishing 10th in the 20-team Illinois State Invitational last weekend.

A number of the participating teams in this upcoming tournament also competed in the Illinois State Invitational. Hanlon is remaining optimistic about this week's match and asserts that the Irish have a good chance at capturing the title.

ND soccer blanks Loyola

Special to The Observer

The Notre Dame men's soccer team pounded lowly Loyola of Chicago 4-0 yesterday afternoon in an MCC matchup in the Windy City.

Four different players scored for the Irish, who recorded their second shutout in a row and haven't been scored on in over 210 straight minutes.

Tom Connaghan scored his second goal in two games for the Irish, and freshman Kevin Pendergast notched his third goal of the season to tie Steve LaVigne for the team lead. Mitch Kern and Bobby Allong added their first goals of the season for the victors.

season for the Spartans, and gained 130 yards on 18 carries against Miami of Ohio last week.

"He's a good back, a good cutback runner, and he'll present some problems for our defense," says Grimm, "But if we take care of our responsibilities and do our jobs, we should be able to shut him down."

Indeed, if the Irish do their job, the Spartans could be in for a long afternoon on Saturday. And you can expect Donn Grimm to be right in the middle of things, giving Ezor and his teammates fits.

Pearson

Spartan tailback Blake Ezor says Pearson won't be taking it that way. "It means more to him than anyone else on the team, and it means a lot to us," he said. "He's waited a long time for this, and he lets you know it."

Pearson, a graduate of St. Laurence High School in the Chicago Catholic League, was a starting guard for Notre Dame in 1987 on an offensive line dominated by fifth-year seniors.

that his replacement could also be named to the All-America squad.

Senior Bob Kula, who played the three games at left tackle during Mandarich's suspension last year, will give the Irish defense trouble. Kula played left guard last season and received second-team All-Big Ten honors.

"Kula's a very fine offensive tackle," Holtz said. "Mandarich was one of the finest run blockers I've ever seen on the college level. He was so much stronger than the college players. He'd just push them off."

Orioles, Cardinals inching closer as pennant races tighten

Associated Press

TORONTO — Dwight Evans homered and drove in three runs and Wade Boggs ended a 2-for-29 slump with a pair of run-scoring singles, leading Roger Clemens and the Boston Red Sox past Toronto 10-3 Wednesday night and cutting the Blue Jays' lead in the American League East to one game.

Clemens, 16-10, gave up three runs on nine hits in eight innings. Jimmy Key, 12-14, was tagged for six runs in 10 hits in three-plus innings.

Boggs went 2-for-5 and raised his average to .323, third in the league. His average dropped from .336 to .322 during his slump.

Orioles 9, Tigers 2

Jeff Ballard got his 18th victory and the Baltimore Orioles moved within one game of the American League East lead, routing the Detroit Tigers.

For the first time since Aug. 20, the Orioles won on the same day when first-place Toronto lost. Baltimore won for the fourth time in five games while the Blue Jays were beaten by Boston 10-3.

Mickey Tettleton hit his 25th homer and matched a career-high with four RBIs as Baltimore tied a season-high with 17 hits. Tim Lulett had four hits and Tettleton and Craig Worthington each got three.

Phillies 9, Cubs 8

Von Hayes drove in four runs and Ricky Jordan's run-scoring single broke a sixth-inning tie as last-place Philadelphia held on to beat first-place Chicago.

Philadelphia's Darren Daulton went 5-for-5, but didn't score or drive in any runs.

The Phillies and Cubs combined for 36 hits, including 16 singles, a double and a triple by the Cubs. After four innings, the score was tied 7-7 with a combined 23 hits.

Cards 5, Mets 3

John Morris and Milt Thompson drove in two runs apiece as the St. Louis Cardinals made an early five-run lead stand up and closed within three games of first place in the National League East.

The Cardinals scored three runs in the first and two in the second off David Cone, 13-8, to stretch their winning streak to four games and move closer to the first-place Chicago Cubs.

Both the Cardinals and Cubs have 10 games remaining.

A's 8, Indians 6

Tony Phillips hit a bases-loaded triple to cap a five-run rally in the sixth inning and Storm Davis won for the ninth time in 11 starts as the Oakland Athletics held their American League West lead at 2 1/2 games.

Angels 9, Twins 1

Jim Abbott scattered nine hits and Tony Armas singled home the tiebreaking run in the seventh inning as the California Angels kept pace in the American League West, routing the Minnesota Twins for their fourth straight victory.

The Angels won for the 10th time in 13 games and stayed 2 1/2 games behind first-place

Oakland, which beat Cleveland 8-6. California is 11-2 against the Twins this season and sent them to their fourth consecutive loss.

Astros 7, Braves 6

Alex Trevino led off the 14th inning with a home run, giving the Houston Astros a 7-6 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

The Astros kept their faint hopes alive in the National League West race. They entered the game in third place, six games behind front-running San Francisco.

Chisox 7, Royals 2

Ivan Calderon and Ozzie Guillen drove in two runs each as the Chicago White Sox chased All-Star Mark Gubicza with a six-run second inning and handed the Kansas City Royals a damaging defeat.

The loss, combined with first-place Oakland's victory at Cleveland, dropped the Royals 4 1/2 games behind in the American League West with 10 to play. The Royals have lost five of seven.

Padres 3, Reds 1

Jack Clark scored the winning run on third baseman Luis Quinones' throwing error in the 10th inning Wednesday night to lead the San Diego Padres to a victory over Cincinnati, the Reds' ninth straight loss.

The Padres' 23rd victory in their last 29 games secured their hold on second place in the National League West. They began the night five games behind San Francisco.

Bucs 9, Expos 1

Bobby Bonilla's three-run homer highlighted a five-run first inning that carried the surging Pittsburgh Pirates to a 9-1 win over Montreal, further diminishing the Expos' hopes for a division title.

Rangers 3, M's 2

Ruben Sierra hit a tiebreaking sacrifice fly in the seventh inning, increasing his American League-leading RBI total to 113, and the Texas Rangers beat the Seattle Mariners.

The Rangers won their fourth straight game, their best streak since July 20-23.

Johnson reconciling with Manley

Coach, player calm after stormy relationship at Okla. St.

Associated Press

HERNDON, Va. — Dexter Manley and Jimmy Johnson, who butted personalities while they were at Oklahoma State a decade ago, have put those days behind them as they head toward a reunion in Dallas.

Johnson, coach of the winless Dallas Cowboys, will be on the sidelines Sunday as Manley tries to help the Washington Redskins win their first game.

The game marks the first time Johnson and Manley will meet on a football field since they were coach and player at Oklahoma State in 1979 and 1980.

"We didn't hit it off right," Manley said Wednesday. "After I ran the 40 in 4.5, I was on his side. But after he found out, 'Hey, wait a minute, this guy has some problems here,' we just didn't get along."

When Johnson first addressed his OSU team in 1979, he told them that one of his main objectives was to clean up a program that had been tainted by a variety of violations.

"Dexter had this long, long frown on his face. So Dexter and I didn't hit it off," Johnson said. "I made him give back his Thunderbird that he didn't pay for."

But, said Manley, "Jimmy Johnson never took a Thunderbird away from me. I had a Cougar and I never sold it."

Both men say they have put those days behind them, and they now hold a mutual respect.

"I've always felt that Dexter and I were on good terms," Johnson said. "I thought we had a good relationship ... I expect to say hello and ask how he's doing."

"Dexter is a very talented individual who had the misfortune of being out of position," said Johnson, who moved Manley from linebacker to defensive end. "I always get a good feeling watching him play for the Redskins."

Manley was equally charitable.

"He's an exciting coach who can definitely motivate his players," Manley said. "He can fire a guy up, I guarantee that. It's because of him that I got a chance to play for the Redskins."

So what was the problem? "I like Jimmy Johnson as a coach, but his personality is real strong," Manley said. "I'm stuck in my ways, too."

Manley hopes to stick Johnson with his third straight loss in the NFL Sunday when the Redskins try to ruin the Cowboys' home opener.

Winless NFL coach Jimmy Johnson of the Dallas Cowboys is looking forward to his team's Sunday matchup with Dexter Manley and the 0-2 Washington Redskins. Johnson coached Manley at Oklahoma State, but their relationship in college was something less than harmonious.

JUST WHEN YOU NEED IT

The Navy has $30,000 or more to help you finish your last two years of college.

The Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps (NROTC) Two-Year Scholarship Program can pay your tuition, textbooks and instructional fees, plus give you a monthly $100 tax-free allowance during your last 20 months of college.

Upon graduation you'll be commissioned a Navy officer and enjoy the benefits and opportunities offered, such as advanced education in any of the Navy's high-tech fields.

NROTC two-year scholarships are highly competitive. Applications must be turned in early in your sophomore year. For more information, see or call:

Grimm lessens the loss of All-American Stonebreaker

By KEN TYSIAC
Sports Writer

When All-American Mike Stonebreaker was declared ineligible for the 1989 football season, many people thought the situation at inside linebacker looked grim.

They were right.

Donn Grimm, a junior from Scottdale, Pennsylvania, has stepped into the linebacker spot opposite Ned Bolcar and drawn rave reviews. Grimm especially impressed Notre Dame fans at the Michigan game last Sunday, when he contributed 8 tackles to a defense which made the running backs for the Wolverines look like Nectarines.

"Donn stepped right in this fall like it was his position from the beginning," says tri-captain Bolcar. "He works hard, concentrates well, and doesn't make mistakes that will hurt us."

Grimm didn't feel any pressure to live up to Stonebreaker's press clippings.

"I was nervous in the Virginia game because it was my first start," admits Grimm. "But I calmed down by the end of the first quarter. I'm not going to try to be Stone out there, I'm just going to play my kind of game."

Grimm gives his coaches most of the credit for stopping the much ballyhooed Michigan running game.

"The coaches put together a great game plan to stop the run," said Grimm. We had an extra week to prepare for Michigan, and the defensive line, the linebackers, and the secondary all got after them and shut them down."

The emergence of Donn Grimm had a lot to do with shutting the Wolverines down. According to Bolcar, Donn's aggressiveness and ability to get to the ball are big pluses for the Irish defense, and the physical aspect of Grimm's play is improving every week.

Improving on the physical aspect of his game is one of Donn's goals.

"I have to be more aggressive as the season goes on," says Grimm. "Most of all, I need to get better at attacking opposing offensive linemen."

Lining up next to experienced players makes Grimm's job a lot easier. "Playing behind guys like Jeff Alm, Chris Zorich, and Ned Bolcar really helps me out," professed Grimm. "They take care of their responsibilities and their jobs, and that helps me perform and do my job."

Grimm's job as an inside linebacker includes extra duties which thrust him into a leadership role. He has to make sure his teammates are aware of the down and the distance from the first-down marker. He feels it's his job to keep everyone's head in the game.

Looking ahead to Michigan State this weekend, Grimm appears confident that he and his teammates can get the job done.

"We have to get the game plan down, go out on Saturday, and react without having to think," said Grimm. "If we all take care of our responsibilities, we'll have a great game."

Bolcar agrees. "Michigan State has an outstanding tailback in Blake Ezor. We expect that they'll try to establish the run and throw a good passing attack at us. They'll try to run the ball and be physical up front, but it will be just like the Michigan game—whoever is more physical with their front seven will dominate."

Indeed, Ezor is a player who will merit close attention from the Irish. He rushed for a total of 1496 yards last Donn Grimm makes a jarring hit on Michigan running back Leroy Hoard in Notre Dame's 24-19 win over the Wolverines. Grimm, a cousin of the National Football League's Russ Grimm, has stepped in admirably at the "eagle" linebacker spot since the departure of Michael Stonebreaker.

Pearson is outspoken heading into 'reunion'

Associated Press

SOUTH BEND— Even the former Notre Dame teammates of Michigan State center Jeff Pearson have been trying to douse his fiery remarks against the Fighting Irish.

Pearson transferred to Michigan State after the 1987 season, sat out 1988, and figures to start Saturday against No. 1 Notre Dame.

Just what he's figuring to start might be the question.

Coach Lou Holtz says Pearson left for personal reasons and refuses to discuss the matter further. Pearson himself hasn't been nearly so reticent.

He has said flatly that he didn't like Notre Dame and that, without naming names, he's out to get some former teammates.

"I think it's only natural," said Notre Dame defensive tackle Jeff Alm. "I think if I went to some school, then left and had a chance to play them, I'd feel a greater urge to attack and play them hard."

Michigan State coach George Perles tried his best, too, to cool things down.

"He has nothing but kind words to say about his teammates and the university in itself, but he wanted to go someplace else where he was more comfortable," said Perles.

Interviewed earlier this month, though, Pearson was anything but kind. "I've got a personal vendetta for a couple of guys on their team as a whole, and they know it," he said.

"I didn't like it (at Notre Dame)," he continued. "My parents were pro-Notre Dame. Notre Dame's rules were so strict I didn't feel comfortable there. I didn't like the school from the day I got there."

The 265-pound Pearson, who bench presses 450 pounds, will probably line up across from Notre Dame defensive lineman Chris Zorich, reportedly one of Pearson's unidentified targets. Zorich weighs 268 pounds and also bench presses 450.

"I haven't the slightest idea," Zorich said when asked about Pearson's remarks. "It doesn't fire me up anymore. I take it like any other game."

Irish passing may be the difference against Michigan St.

Last week in the rain at Michigan Stadium, Notre Dame quarterback Tony Rice threw just two passes. This week, a tough Michigan State defense may force Rice to put the ball in the air on more occasions.

Rice completed one of those two passes against Michigan for six yards and a touchdown to fullback Anthony Johnson coming out of the backfield. His other pass, over the middle to a sprinting Raghib Ismail, was incomplete.

"This is a typical Michigan State team that's going to be as tough on defense and as physical as anyone we play all year," Irish coach Lou Holtz said. "You're just not going to run the ball consistently against them. They've established a tradition with their defense, especially against the run, and it's effective partly because it's different than anything we see all year."

Rice showed he could throw the ball against Virginia in the Kickoff Classic, completing 7-of-11 passes for 147 yards while earning game MVP honors. But that was three weeks ago.

"We're not throwing the ball well in practice," Holtz said. "Tony Rice gets to practice at 4:45 on Tuesdays and Thursdays because he has a class and we're just not a good passing team."

Keep in mind that those are the same woes that Holtz complained of last season, along with everything else on the Notre Dame team. Last year against Michigan State, Rice completed 2-of-9 passes for 50 yards and ran nine times for 53 yards and a touchdown.

Even with the so-called passing woes, Rice has rarely had to rely on the passing game, no matter what the caliber of the opposing defense.

"Rice is the nucleus of the offense," Spartan coach George Perles said. "He's the one that makes them go. He's tough on the option and is really dangerous when he keeps the ball and runs down the sidelines. Every time he's got the ball in his hands, he's a potential score."

Something will have to bend Saturday—either the Irish running attack or the Michigan defense. If the running attack fails, Rice must again prove that he can throw the ball with success.

The Irish football team may play in Ireland next season.

Negotiations are currently under way to move the site of the Nov. 3, 1990 Notre Dame-Navy game from Baltimore. The four potential game sites are Dublin, Wembley Stadium in London, Municipal Stadium in Cleveland and Giants Stadium in the Meadowlands.

Last season, Boston College and Army played in Dublin in the Emerald Isle Classic. Pittsburgh and Rutgers will play there on Dec. 1. A decision is expected in the next few days from the athletic departments of both Navy and Notre Dame.

Notre Dame won the game, but the play of Michigan left Holtz, who coached against Bo Schembechler while at Minnesota, impressed.

"I don't know if Michigan will lose another football game this year," Holtz said. "That's the best Michigan team I've seen in the six years we've been competing against them. They're on a par with the '85 team."

That 1985 Michigan team won 10-1-1 and won the Fiesta Bowl by a 27-23 count over Nebraska.

Notre Dame did not face Michigan State All-American offensive lineman Tony Mandarich last season. Mandarich, after debating the opportunity to box heavyweight champ Mike Tyson, signed with the Green Bay Packers. The bad news for the Irish is
