Iraq agrees to allied cease-fire conditions

SAFWAN, Iraq (AP) — Allied and Iraqi military leaders agreed Sunday to a tentative cease-fire and a quick release of war prisoners in a dramatic meeting of commanders at a captured desert airstrip in southern Iraq.

"I am very happy to tell you we agreed on all matters," U.S. Army Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf told a crowd of soldiers and journalists after the two-hour meeting in a tent beside the crushed-stone runway.

He announced that a "symbolic release" of POWs would be made immediately to show good faith, and that "all detainees," including several thousand Kuwaiti civilian hostages held by Iraq, would be treated as war prisoners.

Iraq's U.N. ambassador, Abdul Amir al-Anbari, said in New York that Iraq had released 10 POWs already, among them six Americans, "including one of them the young lady that was captured."

Schwarzkopf, the U.S. commander in the Persian Gulf, and other allied chiefs refused to say whether they had learned how many POWs are held by Iraq. The U.S. command knows of at least nine Americans. The only woman U.S. soldier listed as missing in the war is Army Spc. Melissa Rathbun-Nealy, 20, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

He said U.S. troops would withdraw from occupied southern Iraq as soon as a permanent cease-fire was signed and Iraq has complied with U.N. resolutions. Those resolutions say Iraq must, among other things, rescind its annexation of Kuwait and accept liability for war damages in the emirate.

About 12 hours after the meeting in Safwan, Baghdad Radio announced that Iraq has accepted the tougher U.N. conditions. That acceptance could clear the way for a permanent cease-fire in the Persian Gulf War.

In other developments Sunday:

- Iran's official radio reported violence between Iraqis and government forces during demonstrations against Saddam Hussein in at least four cities. Tehran radio said refugees fleeing Iraq for Iran reported "severe clashes" in the cities of Basra, Al-Amarah, Nassiriya and Kut. Washington repeatedly has urged Iraqis to overthrow Saddam, but U.S. officers say they don't know whether civil unrest in Iraq has become widespread.

- Saddam began the long process of rebuilding his war-torn nation and restoring his image as a regional leader to be reckoned with. Baghdad Radio reported Sunday that he led two meetings dealing with the restoration of Iraqi communications, the first report of his activities since Tuesday.

In Safwan, two Iraqi army lieutenant generals, Sultan Hasheem Ahmad and Salah Abbud Mahmud, led the eight-member Iraqi delegation to the tent rendezvous. U.S. sources identified Ahmad as Saddam's deputy chief of staff, or third-ranking man in the defense establishment. Mahmud was the Iraqi 3rd Corps commander, the sources said.

GULF ROUNDUP Saturday, March 2

Diplomatic Front

The U.N. Security Council discussed adoption of a U.S.-sponsored resolution dictating allied demands that Iraq must meet before a formal cease-fire is adopted in the Gulf War.

Five ND students attacked

By MEGAN JUNIUS

News Writer

Five Notre Dame students were hospitalized, including one who was severely injured, when they were attacked off-campus by a group of South Bend area residents, early Saturday morning, according to Chuck Hurley, assistant director of Security.

A group of five males from Notre Dame and four Saint Mary's students were walking from a party they attended in a nearby neighborhood on the north-west side of South Bend, when they decided to call a taxi, Hurley said.

While one of the members of the group was walking to a telephone booth at a service station near the intersection of Elwood and Portage streets, a group of five males drove by in a red and white Ford Bronco yelling derogatory comments to the students, one of the victims said.

According to this victim, some of the ND students yelled back at the South Bend area residents causing the residents to stop their car and first approach the individual in the phone booth, while the rest of the group remained at a distance of about 30 yards from the phone booth.

According to the victim, one of the suspects approached him and accused him of "talking trash." The student in the phone booth denied doing so and told him to go away, then returning to his conversation with the taxi company.

As a result, he was hit across his head with a baseball bat and knocked out. The suspect then went over to the rest of the group where the victim

Raid on McCormicks' brings 4 arrests

By MONICA YANT

Associate News Editor

A Thursday night raid at McCormicks' Coney Island by the St. Joseph's County S.U.D.S. Task Force netted four arrests for 'minor in tavern,' according to Sgt. James Moon of the South Bend Police Dept. Three of the four cited were students at Notre Dame or Saint Mary's.

The raid on McCormicks', located on 125 N. Michigan, came less than a week after police arrested 92 minors at Club 23 and Bridget McGuire's Filling Station.

Police received complaints that there were underage patrons inside McCormicks', and a raid was conducted at 11:54 p.m. Of the four minors arrested, three were cited for false identification, according to Moon. Police did not test the minors for blood alcohol content.

After Thursday's raid, Moon said the S.U.D.S. Task Force is sending a message to minors, "that we are still alive and well in St. Joseph County, and we're out there."

"Our main purpose is not to go out and take everybody who violates the law to jail," he said. "It's to drastically reduce the amount of (underage) drinking that's going on."

The S.U.D.S. Task Force is comprised of members of the South Bend Police, St. Joseph County Police, Indiana State Police and Indiana State Excise Police.

'Minor in tavern' is a Class C misdemeanor. If found guilty, the minors are punishable under state law by up to 60 days in jail and a maximum fine of $500. False identification is also a Class C misdemeanor, he said. Both misdemeanors are decided by a judge at a determined court date.

McCormicks' was also cited by state excise police and will go before the alcohol and beverage commission, which determines penalties for business' violations.

In related news, officials from Club 23 and Bridget's met with the St. Joseph County Alcoholic Beverage Board Wednesday to discuss last week's arrests. The owners of both bars claimed the high number of underage drinkers in their establishments was due to excessive use of false identification.

Each bar was issued a warning, and license renewal for Club 23 and Bridget's will be decided in late July.

Seniors avoid reality and the 'g-word'

As of this column, there are a mere 85 days left for the seniors. That may seem like a lot, but in comparison to the 1,080 days (approximately) that made up our four years here, it is only a few minutes.

Colleen Cronin
Accent Editor

Within the same week I received in the mail a notice about what will appear on my diploma, the announcement for Senior Formal, and the latest issue of Notre Dame Magazine—the magazine for alums..

They should have spread out all that reality over the course of two or three weeks.

This means I have to start saying that evil 10-letter g-word: graduation.

In the beginning of this school year I absolutely and utterly refused to admit I was even a senior.

"I'm a second-year junior."

My friends soon broke me of that. Plus, claiming seniority gave me a good reason to go out instead of studying (sorry you had to read that, Mom!).

But I still refuse to admit with that one word that I will soon be leaving.

No one in my dorm section is allowed to say anything pertaining to next year, jobs, visiting or even the month of May.

Notre Dame is strong tradition in my family. I remember going to football games when I was little and my Dad would get so excited when the golden dome came into sight from the tollway.

Back then I never really understood what the big deal was. For me, the sight of the dome meant the car ride was almost over, a football game was imminent, and I could finally go to the bathroom.

I went home a few weekends ago, and when I returned it struck me that I would not behold the dome from the tollway many more times—spring break and Easter only.

I don't want to grow up and be in the real world. The security of college life is much more appealing.

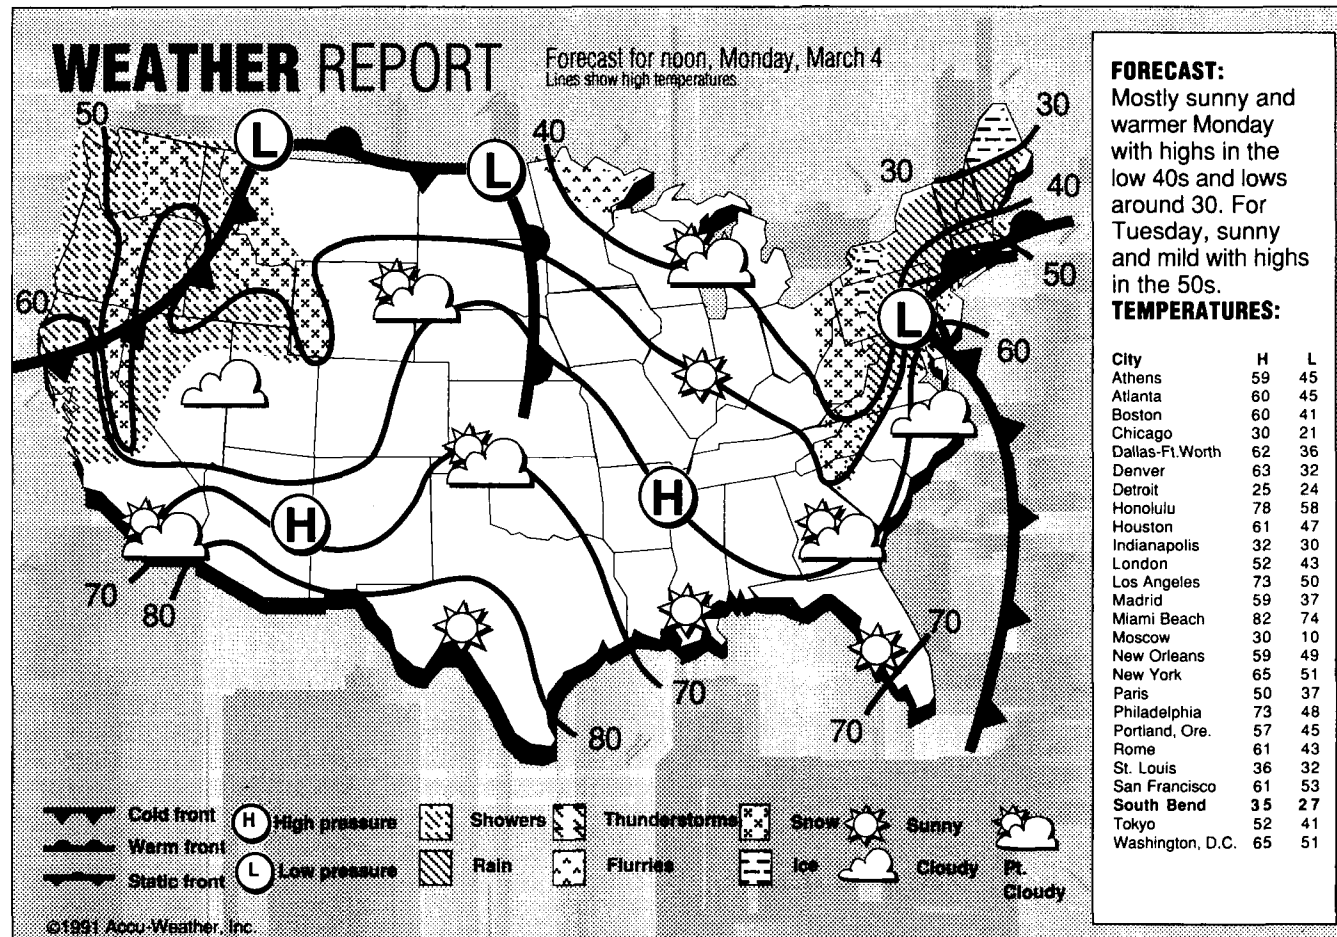

Classes for two or three hours a day instead of an eight-hour-a-day job (at least eight hours). You never have to worry about getting fired. You have not only a spring break but a fall break. You have great tailgating for even greater football games.

Unless I decide to intentionally fail all my classes, though, I have only about nine weeks left.

It's hard to believe I will have to say goodbye to friends I've been with for four years. There are people that I've met just in the last year—just in the last semester—who I will never get a chance to know better.

So I intend to have a raging nine weeks. And, for those of you who have to put up with me, please try to understand why this is killing me, don't mention that g-word, and I'll be okay.

Jet with 25 aboard crashes

■COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — A United jetliner with 25 people on board crashed in flames as it approached the Colorado Springs airport Sunday morning, and there were apparently no survivors, authorities said. "We can't even find a chair," said El Paso County Sheriff Bernie Berry. "There's not a great deal of that airplane left." United Flight 585 en route from Denver crashed at 9:55 a.m. four to five miles south of the airport, the Federal Aviation Administration in Washington said. There were 20 passengers on board and a crew of five. The FAA and the airline both said all aboard apparently were killed. The plane narrowly missed houses and apartment buildings; at least one person on the ground was injured.

Twelve arrested in campus riot over keg

■HARTFORD, Conn. — About 1,000 students at the University of Hartford rioted early Sunday when police tried to break up an unauthorized keg party, authorities said. Students pelted police with rocks and beer bottles after spilling out of an on-campus apartment to a nearby common. Seven police officers and nine students suffered cuts and bruises. Twelve students were arrested on charges of first-degree riot, which is a felony, breach of peace and interfering with police. Witnesses said officers clubbed bystanders who posed no threat. "They were met by a very large, angry crowd out there," said Hartford police Sgt. Cary Gilbert. "It was definitely a riot."

Pope asks for hope in Middle East

■VATICAN CITY — Pope John Paul II on Sunday prayed for strength for Kuwaitis, peace for Iraq and a "better future" for the Middle East. The Pope gave thanks for the cease-fire in the Gulf War and urged solidarity for the people of Kuwait, which "after the very grave trial it endured, has found its independence again." "May the Lord grant (Kuwait) strength and hope in the work of reconstruction," the Pope prayed, appearing from the window of his private study to a crowd of about 10,000 people in St. Peter's Square.

"Let us also feel close to the population of Iraq and to its suffering — we ask God that, along with a final peace, it may be granted the possibility of loyal collaboration with its neighbors and with the other members of the international community," John Paul said. The Pope also recalled other Persian Gulf countries, saying "may God mercifully grant them the grace of hope in a better future."

Law Review symposium studies minority rights

By MEG SHUFF
News Writer

Scholars from around the world gathered this weekend for the 1991 Law Review Symposium, "The Rights of Ethnic Minorities," to present an examination of the rights of ethnic minorities in the international legal system.

The two-day symposium, co-sponsored by the Center for Civil and Human Rights and the Notre Dame Law Review, incorporated self-determination as a common theme in a number of the lectures.

Henry Steiner, Professor of Law at Harvard University Law School, and Sharon O'Brien, an Associate Professor and Director of the Undergraduate Government program at Notre Dame, both emphasized that theme in their respective lectures.

"Self-determination is the right to take part in the government... and the right to practice culture in community with others," said Steiner.

O'Brien, who lectured primarily on the political relationship of the United States with American Indians, also emphasized the importance of self-determination.

"Currently, we are in a period of self-determination... it is the time to improve the status of tribes and protect their rights," she said.

As O'Brien emphasized the rights of American Indians as a group, Steiner discussed the rights of minority groups in general.

Steiner focused on the ambiguity between individual and group rights he discussed various dilemmas of international regulation in regard to the demands of ethnic minorities for autonomy.

"There are remarkably few clear statements about group rights; although the stress is on the individual...there should be a recognition of the vital role played by groups," he said.

Presently, O'Brien said, the United States maintains a political relationship with about 200 federally recognized groups, but the problem is that there are still over 200 Indian tribal groups that are not recognized and therefore have not been granted political rights or treated equally.

Groups are necessities in a society that praises human rights; furthermore, no one chooses to be born how they are, Steiner said.

It is obvious, Steiner said, that individuals frequently form in groups. Therefore, he added, group rights include notions which can be corporately asserted by the group in the group's name.

But, Steiner said, this presents a problem because often people are part of a group and they do not want that to bear on how they are treated as individuals.

O'Brien supported this notion, saying "the importance of groups as the political relationship extends between tribes and the federal government, not between the government and individual Indians."

Hence, O'Brien said, increasing self-determination is the only solution to aid the Indians. However, she said, "The government is providing more self-determination to tribes, but they are doing so with such a heavy hand that it's causing tribes to integrate themselves into dominant society to exercise this right."

Being integrated into the dominant society, Steiner said, is not what the Indians want as they hope to preserve their group identity.

Father Oliver Williams visits South Africa

Special to The Observer

Father Oliver Williams, associate provost and associate professor of management at the University of Notre Dame, is visiting the Republic of South Africa March 1-12 as a member of the National Advisory council to U.S. firms with operations in that country.

While in South Africa the council's members will meet with government and church officials as well as the leadership of the African national Congress, Inkatha, and the black labor movement. The key issue the council is investigating is the role and future of economic sanctions in light of the changing situation in South Africa.

A wholly independent body, the council offers guidance, assistance and, when appropriate, criticism to companies with South African operations as they work toward the removal of the laws sustaining apartheid and toward black social and economic development.

Other members of the council are Melvin Miller, partner in the law firm of Fitch, Miller and Tourse and a trustee of Boston University; Bishop Richard Laymon Fisher, presiding bishop of the Ninth Episcopal District of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church; and Ned Munger, a professor at the California Institute of Technology and president of the Cape of Good Hope Foundation.

Veterans Affairs chief: Persian Gulf war cannot be compared with Vietnam War

By SARAH VOIGT
News Writer

Edward Derwinski, Secretary of Veterans Affairs, said in a lecture Friday that there is no comparison between the impending return of 150,000 service people from the Persian Gulf war and the return of American troops from the Vietnam War.

Derwinski, the first to hold the newly created cabinet position of Veterans Affairs, predicted that the Gulf service people should have no great readjustment problems.

Unlike the drafted status of most soldiers in the Vietnam War, Derwinski said that the American forces in this most recent war are all careerists, guardsmen and reservists.

"There should be no impact on civilian society as a whole because most of the servicemen are careerists who will simply return to their home bases. Also, the jobs of guardsmen and reservists are protected by law," said Derwinski.

Derwinski contrasted the the hostile public response that many Vietnam war veterans faced to the parades and festivities that he predicted the American public will stage to welcome home the reservists and guardsmen who served in the Persian Gulf war.

The Secretary of Veterans Affairs also claimed that the 150,000 returning American service people will be "easily absorbable" back into society. "Most are healthy and safe and will return to their previous jobs," he said.

With an average age of 27, those serving in the Persian Gulf are older than American veterans from any other war.

Since only 200 American soldiers were injured in the conflict with about 43 missing in action, Derwinski said that he was grateful that his department would not have more importance.

However, Derwinski said, for the last seven months the Department of Veterans Affairs has been preparing for the worst. "Seven months of getting ready for what turned out not to be necessary still equipped us to do our job better," he said.

Derwinski said that his department has improved and expanded in intangible ways since last August. "We've perfected procedures for processing claims and have updated doctors and nurses with special training for victims of chemical and biological warfare," he stated.

Before accepting the position of head of this department, Derwinski represented the 4th district of Illinois as a 12-term member of the U.S. House of Representatives. He also served for many years as senior Republican member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Derwinski's lecture was sponsored by the College of Business Administration.

Attack

said, five males of white and Hispanic origin, attacked the remaining four ND students with baseball bats.

The suspects were described to be in their mid to late teens. They had two baseball bats in their possession, which they used to hit the ND students, Hurley said. The Saint Mary's students were not assaulted.

According to Hurley, the incident was broken up when the owner of a tavern across the street, was leaving his business. He saw the commotion, got into his vehicle, turned on his bright lights, and drove toward the incident. It was at this time that the suspects fled, according to Hurley.

One of the girls remained with the victim at the phone booth, while the others left to call the police. The entire incident lasted approximately 10 minutes.

Four of the students were released early Saturday morning from South Bend Memorial Hospital with multiple lacerations and contusions to the head, face and back. One of the victims was released from Memorial Hospital to the ND Infirmary. He suffered from serious contusions of the head and a possible concussion, Hurley said.

The South Bend police will turn over the case to their investigators today, Hurley said.

Baum lectures on problems faced by women, minorities in field of engineering

By MARK CAWLEY
News Writer

Engineers are "problem solvers that work on things that make society better," according to Eleanor Baum, a guest speaker from the Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and the Arts. She went on to say that there are, however, distinct problems for women and minorities who plan to enter the field of engineering.

Baum's lecture, titled "Diversity in the Work Force: The Challenge of Engineering," concerned the difficulties facing women and minority engineers in the classroom and in the work force.

Baum, the only female dean of an engineering program in the country, began on a note of optimism as she described how society has changed since she began her studies of engineering.

"It used to be that a woman went to school to become educated enough for some educated man to marry you," she said. Baum called the situation for women engineers at that time as "very limited."

Although societal perceptions of women and minority engineers have changed, it is still difficult for them to enter and succeed in the field of engineering. Baum believes that the root of this problem lies in the method of recruiting engineering students. Guidance materials developed by engineering schools are usually "boring and badly done," she said.

High schools are also hampering the recruitment of women and minority engineers, Baum said. "Surveys show that some high school guidance counselors actually discourage women from entering the field of engineering."

Urban high schools hinder prospective minority engineers because these schools "teach little math and physics courses," she said.

Baum complained that the media presents a negative image of the engineering profession to women and minorities. "We have a nerd image. Scientists are always little, nerdy people who are usually male," said Baum.

As students progress to undergraduate engineering programs, Baum noted, "the schools that are most successful in recruiting and keeping women are those that do things differently."

"Engineering schools must work at creating a supportive environment. The schools with the best retention rates are those where students have a one to one type relationship with the faculty," said Baum.

Baum also discussed the problems which women and minorities face in the work force. Baum thinks that problems such as isolation and self-consciousness must be corrected by American industry. She encouraged industry to pair its young female and minority employees with more experienced engineers.

"Industry should think more carefully of mentoring new women and minority engineers," she said.

Industry should also make special allowances for female engineers who wish to have children because, "the mommy trap does affect those who take time off to rear children," Baum said.

Baum ended her lecture by saying, "I think things are changing and getting better. Industry really wants us. Some firms are offering $1,000 more to woman [than to men] for an initial job."

Prospects for minority engineers are also improving, according to Baum. Citing the falling number of engineers in the United States, Baum said "the only way around this problem is to increase the number of minority engineers."

Baum's lecture was sponsored by the College of Engineering, the Freshman Year of Studies and the Year of Women.

Mills/Slawner stress active role in decision-making

By KURT MILLS and KAREN SLAWNER

Candidates for GSU Office

As graduate students, we are in a somewhat precarious situation within the University. On the one hand, we are students, with all the attending trials and tribulations. On the other hand, we are in training to be professionals, and, indeed, are thrust into the role of professional in our teaching and other activities.

Because of the tension between these two roles, and because the University makes decisions everyday which will affect the rest of our lives, we feel it is vitally important that graduate students be heard and participate in the decision-making process.

Thus, we are running for the positions of Graduate Student Union (GSU) President and Vice President to ensure that graduate student concerns are addressed by the University.

While we will, of course, be open to the comments and concerns of all graduate students we have several specific items which we would like to address during our tenure in office.

First and foremost, we will work to involve more graduate students in the decision-making process. This includes greater participation by departmental representatives in the graduate student council. Without involvement and support at this level, we will be unable to accomplish much on behalf of graduate students.

The University has made a public commitment to increase the stature of the graduate school and the conditions of graduate students. Thus, the next three items address this issue. The administration has stated that it will institute a minimum level for all stipends. We will work to ensure that this level is adequate to meet the needs of graduate students.

Another issue which many graduate students are concerned about is summer funding. We feel that in order to be a competitive graduate institution as well as to ensure that graduate students can make speed progress toward their degrees, summer funding, either in the form of fellowships or assistantships, is vital.

Any competitive graduate school should also provide extensive support for professional development. This includes, first, training for teaching.

Recently, there have been some recommendations regarding this issue. While there were problems with the recent report on TA (teaching assistant) training, we saw some very positive aspects, including the institutionalization of training for all TAs, either in the form of departmental programs or a university teaching center, as well as a discussion of giving advanced graduate students more responsibility at the appropriate time.

This would benefit not only graduate students, but undergraduates as well who are taught by graduate students.

Support for professional development would also include more university support for conference attendance and publication.

Three other issues specifically involve graduate students. First, the University is currently in the process of revising duLac, and a GSU committee, of which Kurt is a co-chair, has been preparing recommendations for the administration. At

Money.

Nothing is more popular than to advocate raising the stipends for graduate students. After all, who opposes getting more money?

But the issue is much more complicated than that. In the first place, finances are not a major concern of graduate students in several of our departments. Specifically, students in departments that are swimming in government grants are not feeling the pinch that those of us in less fortunate departments are feeling; as a result, these highly-favored graduates are not worried much about finances.

Second, each department is allotted a certain amount of money for students and each, as we understand it, is free to use that money as it thinks fit. Thus, policies vary from department to department; each must decide, based on its goals, whether it will offer fewer but more lucrative stipends. That seems, in the main, a matter for each department's students to fight out with their departmental chairman.

However, we do hope to be able to raise the general allotment to the departments, on the understanding that once the money is received the problem is ours only indirectly.

The social problem.

The position of graduate students is ambiguous. We don't really fit in with the rest of the student body, but often we aren't sure we want to anyway. Under the circumstances, knitting together the graduate students is a desideratum. But how to do this?

"More and better parties," is the general drift of feeling. But before we arrange for more parties, we should ensure how that people are going to the ones we already hold.

Complaints can always be made about the lack of sufficient advertising, but at the base of the problem is that graduate students are simply not going in droves to the parties that GSU throws, for whatever reason. GSU provides opportunities for graduate students to meet; it is up to the students to take advantage of the opportunities.

Similarly, what makes a "good" party? "Good beer and good music" are the most common responses. But varying tastes in beer and music make no consensus. To take just a small sample: Michael abhors all beer, while Chris adores Labatt's (we think that we can work together despite this philosophical difference). For the parties to be good, students have to attend them. If they don't, they have no grounds for complaining.

Teaching.

This year GSU seems to have done a decent job at stressing the importance of teaching for graduate students. But are the various departments providing the opportunity for graduate students to practice—by actually teaching classes?

GSU can make recommendations about policies, and we plan to, but in the end the decisions about how to employ graduate students are left to the departments. Again, the concerned students willing to air their concerns will be able to effect much more than GSU can by its recommendations.

Faculty.

Finally, and most importantly, often we graduate students consider the graduate program in a vacuum, as if our aims are separate from those of The University as a whole. We think this is a mistake.

As we understand the matter, the University of Notre Dame still considers itself a Catholic institution, and presumably that means something. But now Notre Dame is at a crossroads; it wishes to be one of the elite research universities in

Weekend Gulf Roundup

Kurdish leaders see State Department snub

■WASHINGTON — Kurdish leaders complained Friday that State Department officials refused to see them to discuss their role in a postwar Iraq. "The Kurds will play an important role in Iraq," said Hoshyar Zebari, a spokesman for the Iraqi Kurdistan Front, a coalition of Kurdish opposition groups. Zebari and others Kurds said at a news conference that they had sought unsuccessfully to arrange a meeting with State Department officials to discuss postwar Iraq. Peter Galbraith, an employee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said department officials said they were too busy to arrange a meeting. Galbraith said the Kurds had been welcomed on Capitol Hill, where Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., the committee chairman, hosted an all-day conference on Kurdish human rights. A State Department official, speaking on condition he not be identified, confirmed that officials would not see the Kurds to discuss their political aspirations.

Pizza party extraordinaire in Mississippi

■JACKSON, Miss. — The governor ordered 2,000 pizzas and 600 gallons of soda for a victory party Saturday for the families of thousands of Mississippi National Guardsmen and reservists serving in Operation Desert Storm. "When we started planning this, it was going to be a support get-together. But I'm glad it's turned into a victory party," Gov. Ray Mabus told a street full of people who broke out into applause. Arrangements were made for the pizzas and soda to be served during two shifts. A street beside the Governor's Mansion was cordoned off and filled with tables dotted with U.S. flags. About 5,800 families and friends of the more than 3,000 Mississippi servicemen deployed since Oct. 28 were greeted at the mansion's entrance by the governor, his wife Julie and their 7-month-old baby Elisabeth, and then escorted on a tour.

Street named Schwarzkopf runs into hitch

■JERUSALEM — The deputy mayor wants to name a street for U.S. Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, but the U.S. commander fails to qualify in just one way. After Emanuel Zisman made the proposal on Sunday, it was recalled that municipal policy says a person must be dead for three years before such an honor can be awarded. "Of course there could be exceptions," said Mayor Teddy Kollek's spokeswoman, Bonnie Boxer. Zisman raised the idea as a way to thank the United States and President Bush for defeating Iraq — one of Israel's chief Arab foes — in the Gulf War.

Baker sees new chances for peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State James Baker said Sunday that vanquishing Iraq's army has created new opportunities for peace in the Middle East, but the United States "cannot impose a solution" on Israel or the Arab states.

Baker and other top administration officials signalled anew that the coalition will go easier on seeking reparations from Iraq if Saddam Hussein is removed from power.

Baker said Saddam remains in control in Baghdad "as far as we know," despite unrest in Basra and other Iraqi cities.

President Bush, who spent the weekend at the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., has said repeatedly that a war aim, no tears would be shed if he were toppled from power.

Top White House officials, making the rounds of network television talk shows, held out an olive branch to Jordan's King Hussein, who sided with Saddam.

And National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft said the Bush administration may have to rethink plans for a 25 percent cut in the defense budget over five years.

Scowcroft, on ABC-TV, said he did not think the United States could respond to another crisis in two years the way it did in the Gulf crisis if those cutbacks take place.

"We ought to take a new look" at defense spending, he said.

Baker, who leaves Wednesday on a postwar diplomatic mission to the Middle East and the Soviet Union, said, "in the aftermath of this remarkable victory, there may be indeed some opportunities" to help solve the Arab-Israeli conflict.

But "the United States cannot impose a solution," Baker said on NBC-TV.

UNITED NATION
APPROVES
RESOLUTION"

The Security Council overwhelmingly passed a resolution dictating allied demands that Iraq must meet before a formal cease-fire is adopted in the Gulf War.

11 of the 15 council members voted for it. Cuba opposed it; India, China and Yemen abstained.

Main points of the United Nation resolution:

- Return all prisoners of war, abducted Kuwaitis, and plundered property
- Rescind annexation of Kuwait
- Cease "hostile or provocative actions"
- Accept liability for war damages in Kuwait and elsewhere; help in rebuilding of Kuwait
- Disclose the location of mine fields and booby traps
- States the U.S. and its allies intend to leave southern Iraq "as soon as possible" when Kuwait is stable and international peace and security is restored
- Reaffirms all 12 council resolutions passed against Iraq following its invasion of Kuwait
- Gives allies the right to resume military action against Iraq if it fails to comply with the demands

The five permanent members of the council are the United States, Soviet Union, Britain, France, and China. The 10 non-permanent members are Austria, Belgium, Cuba, Ecuador, India, Ivory Coast, Romania, Yemen, Zaire and Zimbabwe.

the base of these recommendations is the fact that graduate students have responsibility for the conduct of their lives and should be so treated by the University.

This revision process, will continue, and we will work to ensure that graduate students are represented in the process.

Another issue which is of great importance especially to married graduate students is the issue of day-care. We realize that this is a complicated issue, but we hope that some sort of day-care system can be creatively worked out, whether university sponsored or by a cooperative of students, and possibly faculty.

Finally, the issue of social space for graduate students is unclear. The GSU has facilitated a very successful series of gatherings at Senior/Alumni Club this past year and has sponsored a number of parties for graduate students, and will continue to do so.

However, the issue of a permanent social space for graduate students, and relatedly, the disposition of Wilson Commons, has not been dealt with in any systematic manner.

We will work to rectify this lack of graduate student social space.

We find two other issues which affect the University as a whole. The first, while it may seem trivial, is nonetheless a serious problem. This is the fact that it is next to impossible for students to gain access to the bookstore during the football season. We would like to see some sort of system where at least one check-out lane is reserved for books and academic supplies during these periods.

Finally, there has been a felt need on the part of many women at the University for a center where women can go for medical and other advice, and find a non-threatening atmosphere for the discussion of their concerns. This was recommended to the Board of Trustees in a report by the Women's Resource Council of the GSU and has not been taken up by the University yet.

Most major colleges and universities have some sort of women's center, and we would like to further explore the possibility of establishing one on campus.

We feel we both have the experience necessary to bring graduate student concerns to the administration and the University as a whole. Kurt has been a departmental representative to the GSC (Graduate Student Council), a representative to the Faculty Senate, a member of the GSU social committee, and, as mentioned above, is co-chairing the Student Code Reform Committee of the GSU.

In addition, he is very active within his department.

Karen is currently the Secretary of the GSU, and is, too, very involved in professional activities within her department.

Thus, we hope that our demonstrated commitment to service on the behalf of graduate students, our experience, and our ideas for developing the graduate school will convince you that we are the best candidates for President and Vice President of the Graduate Student Union.

Brooks

America, and there are many ways to accomplish this.

The most prestigious secular institutions are increasingly emphasizing research at the expense of teaching, because at the end of the research is books, and books create scholars' reputations, and scholars' reputations create prestigious departments, and these enhance a university's reputation, and this attracts the brightest students, etc.

This mentality is known as "publish or perish," and it is a very real force, even here at Notre Dame. Many people love to disparage it as ignoble, but they nonetheless accept it as inevitable.

Well, it is not inevitable. It is a course that is deliberately chosen, by those who think that it is the only, or perhaps the easiest, road to respectability. But is it true that this is the only reasonable path to our goal, and do the changes that have been introduced at Notre Dame really signify progress?

A few results are already obvious: immense pressure is put on our faculty members, especially our junior faculty, to publish. Teaching loads have been reduced to encourage "scholarship." Fewer classes are being offered, and the class size is climbing at all levels, but most appallingly at the undergraduate level. Through these and other influences, the nature of Notre Dame education is subtly changing, we think, for the worse.

It is question time for Notre Dame. Do we simply want to be like the hundreds of secular institutions striving to enter the elite circle of prestigious universities, or are we distinctively Christian, distinctively Catholic university that is striving to enter the circle? Do we see ourselves as representing something different, something more than our competitors?

And if we do in fact see ourselves as a Catholic school, how is that unique character to show through? In no small part, we think by atmosphere established by the faculty.

With the members already here, we admittedly have only the power of exhortation. But positions are continually opening up. When we interview a candidate for a position, we should concern ourselves not only with his or her teaching abilities and scholarship, but also the answer to this question: how can this candidate advance the mission of Notre Dame?

The fact that a candidate has a well-received book or two is neither an indication that he or she can teach, nor that he or she will dovetail with Notre Dame's Christian character.

Now, we are not so simple as to think that a candidate's merely checking off the little box beside "Roman Catholic" ensures his or her compatibility. However, it seems to us that a fundamental question that The University as a whole needs to ask is: what do we see as our Catholic character? In its attempt to break into the inner circle now inhabited by secular universities, is it jeopardizing its distinctive character, perhaps without even realizing the risk its running?

Auto-makers plan for trimmed down labor force

DETROIT (AP) — The Big Three automakers, locked into hourly-employee labor expenses, are turning their cost-cutting plans to salaried employees.

Ford Motor Co. Chairman Harold Poling said Thursday the company wanted to pare $3 billion from its annual costs, about $96.1 billion last year.

He said the company would begin an early retirement program, delay bonuses and merit increases for managers and suspend matching contributions to salaried workers' savings and stock plans.

But he said normal attrition, which runs about 5 percent annually, and the early retirement program probably will not suffice.

"While we're hopeful that employees opting to leave under this program will reduce the need for other reductions," Poling said, "it's becoming increasingly clear that some salaried layoffs are inevitable in the short term."

There are approximately 53,000 white-collar employees on Ford's payroll. Poling didn't set a target, but there was speculation that the cuts could wind up being close to 10,000 jobs.

Ford officials said employees eligible for the early retirement program would be able to sign up through this month. Their retirements must take effect by May 1. Officials will be able to see how many layoffs will be needed after the early-retirement enrollment program ends.

Earlier in February, General Motors Corp. Chairman Robert Stempel announced a program designed to eliminate about 15 percent of the company's 100,000 salaried workers during the next two years.

A GM cost-cutting plan implemented in 1987 has knocked $13 billion from the automaker's annual costs, which amounted to about $114.2 billion last year.

Also last month, Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca boosted to $3 billion the automaker's cost-cutting objective. That program, begun in 1989, has resulted in the reduction of an estimated 3,000 jobs from Chrysler's 24,000 white-collar work force.

Last year, the Big Three signed three-year labor contracts with the United Auto Workers union in effect fixing previously variable costs associated with temporary layoffs. The companies set aside pools of money from which laid off workers would be paid up to 95 percent of their regular pay.

GM's fund is approximately $4.1 billion, Ford's is about $1.6 billion and Chrysler's is about $660 million.

Since the contracts were signed, car and truck sales have taken a dive along with consumer confidence, resulting in a record $2.1 billion in losses during the fourth quarter of last year for the three companies.

Stempel, Poling and Iacocca each have said they don't expect things to improve in the near future.

"It appears we'll have a substantial loss in the first quarter of this year," Poling said.

United Auto Workers union spokesman Karl Mantyla said he had no immediate comment on Ford's announcement.

The $3 billion cost-cutting program began last July and about half of the target has been reached. The rest of the cuts should be done by the end of this year, Poling said.

With the Dow Jones industrial average down slightly, Ford stock closed at $32.50, up $2. GM closed at $39.50, up $1.75, and Chrysler stood at $14.25, also up $1.75.

Oil booms

A Saudi oil worker looks over oil protection booms along the Persian Gulf. Saudi officials are trying to protect their coast from oil that was released from a loading dock in Kuwait during the Persian Gulf War. Oil prices have fallen drastically in recent weeks.

TWA announces air fare cuts to attract flyers

NEW YORK (AP) — Trans World Airlines announced another round of drastic fare cuts Friday, slashing the price of first-class and business-class tickets between six major U.S. cities and London.

TWA said first-class tickets were being cut by 60 percent and business-class fares were being cut by 50 percent. The tickets must be purchased by March 15, for travel between March 3 and May 31, TWA said.

The flights are good out of New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, Chicago and Los Angeles.

As an example of the savings, TWA said a first-class one-way fare from New York to London was being reduced from $3,205 to $1,282.

TWA and numerous other airlines had recently offered cheap tickets in a promotion which was good through Friday.

Airlines generally move quickly to match cheap fares offered by their competitors, but it was not immediately clear Friday night if any rival carriers were following TWA.

After the shooting ceased in the Persian Gulf War this week, there was speculation that depressed trans-Atlantic air traffic would pick up as public fears of terrorism subside. But a TWA spokesperson said the end of the war had nothing to do with the latest ticket sale.

"We're trying to entice people to fly," he said.

TWA, one of the nation's most troubled airlines, recently defaulted on a $75 million bond payment, saying it needed to hang onto the cash to stay alive.

Inland Steel plans for lay offs

CHICAGO (AP) — Lower steel demand is forcing Inland Steel Co. to lay off approximately 630 workers and reduce work weeks for others at its only plant, the steelmaker said.

The company employs 14,700 at the Indiana Harbor Works in East Chicago, Ind. — 13,140 at its Inland Steel Flat Products Co. and 1,560 at Inland Bar and Structural Co.

IBSC is shutting its mills next week and furlowing about 370 people, the company said Thursday. Recalls are expected when the operations resume on March 9.

ISFPC had laid off 160 people and reduced work weeks for others this week after it idled a blast furnace. The unit will lay off an additional 100 employees beginning Sunday, and expects more layoffs in coming weeks as other department adjust to the reduced operating levels.

The cutbacks are expected to last into the second quarter, said ISFPC President Joseph Corso.

Last year, ISFPC reduced its hourly and salaried work force by more than 1,000 fulltime and temporary jobs, he said.

Corso expects another 1,000 to go this year through attrition.

Inland reported losing $57.1 million in the final three months of 1990.

Tampering forces Sudafed recall

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) — The maker of Sudafed decongestant capsules ordered a nationwide recall Sunday after being notified by the federal government that cyanide tampering was linked to two deaths and an illness.

"Consumers should avoid taking Sudafed 12-Hour Capsules, and return all Sudafed 12-Hour Capsules to the store from which they purchased the product," manufacturer Burroughs Wellcome said in a statement.

Washington state and federal officials ordered a recall of the capsules from two counties in Washington late Saturday night.

In February, a 40-year-old Tacoma, Wash., woman died of cyanide poisoning and a woman from Tumwater was treated after becoming seriously ill, reportedly after taking Sudafed capsules laced with cyanide, said Susan Hutchcroft of the federal Food and Drug Administration.

The company said the federal agency had notified them of two deaths within the last 24 hours.

"At 4 a.m. today we were notified of the second death. It apparently occurred on the 18th of February and involved a man from Lacey, Wash.," said company spokesperson Sharon Haggerty.

The other death, as well as the illness, also occurred in Washington state. No deaths or illness related to Sudafed have been reported in other parts of the country.

The company said it is working with the FDA, the Washington state health department, the FBI and others to investigate the incidents.

"We are moving rapidly to alert the public and retrieve all Sudafed 12-Hour Capsules from the retail stores," said Philip Tracy, president and chief executive officer of Burroughs Wellcome Co.

"Our sympathies go to the families of the individuals involved, and they have our assurance that the company will investigate these incidents

The Observer is the independent newspaper published by the students of the University of Notre Dame du Lac and Saint Mary's College. It does not necessarily reflect the policies of the administration of either institution. The news is reported as accurately and objectively as possible. Unsigned editorials represent the opinion of the majority of the Editor-in-Chief, Managing Editor, News Editor, Viewpoint Editor, Accent Editor, Photo Editor, and Saint Mary's Editor. Commentaries, letters and Inside Column present the views of the authors. Column space is available to all members of the community and the free expression of varying opinions on campus through letters, is encouraged.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Victory sends mistaken pro-war message

Dear Editor:

America has virtually won the war (Bravo!). Our armed forces have proven that they can still kick tail in any Third World country as long as it's not a jungle (Way to go!). They carried out their duties with skill and precision, and now the U.S. has made up for its loss in Vietnam (Hip-Hip-Hooray!). Many of the war toys were quite effective (Let's hear it for the Patriot missiles!) against those nasty Iraqis (Boo-hiss!). Definitely a victory to be proud of (Not).

The Iraqis will soon be driven completely from Kuwait (that incredibly important ally of ours). And, hey, while we're there, let's take Baghdad and get a cellmate for Manuel Noriega—I hear he's getting lonely. Off the top bunk, Manny, there's a new tyrant in town! Saddam's got one up on you—he lasted longer than a few hours.

What will George do to top this one? Now that he's proven that war is the best way to resolve conflict, he's got quite a list of acts of aggression to curb. Let's get this new world order thing underway! 'Got to be selective though. Gotta be prudent. Can't go doin' that military thing everywhere now. Not gonna do it.'

Let's start with righting the injustices of the South African government against the black people of its nation—oh no, we can't do that, the South African government is only killing the people in its country; it hasn't officially invaded anybody. How about taking a hard line on the Tianamen Square Massacre with the Chinese? Naah, there's too many of 'em. What about helping out the Soviets before they invade themselves? Nope, we'll let Gorby go under and get some good hard line Communists in power—can't go losing our best enemy now. It's bad for defense contracts.

So what exactly is this new world order our fearless leader envisions? I think it's all about the military and the use of force in resolving conflicts. In fact, I don't think this is a new world order we're headed for. There's nothing "new" about war. War is old, and in war is disorder. Peace is new. Peace brings order.

Don't get me wrong, I'm glad we are the victors in this war—better us than Saddam. But our victory in this war has a terrible consequence: It serves to support the mistaken belief that war is the way to solve international conflicts. We did not work hard to find a peaceful solution here. A five month "trial run" for sanctions, a few hours in Geneva and a wholesale rejection of all peace proposals are not exhaustive attempts at peaceful resolution. If we hadn't responded to Saddam's violence with violence, Israel would not have been attacked, Kuwait would most likely still be standing and the atrocities against the people of Kuwait would not have escalated as they did before the ground war. If President Bush wants a "new world order," I've got a "new" suggestion for him: Give peace a chance.

War is no longer a rational option in this era of weapons that can destroy the world many times over. War no longer affects just the soldiers who fight, but all of humanity. The missiles are poised and ready to be fired. We're just asking for it by waging a war when the whole world is on a hair-trigger, ready to annihilate itself.

George Bush was lucky this time, but the fact that he was lucky doesn't make him right. Sure, war got the job done, but since when does the end justify the means? No matter how you put it, war doesn't bring a lasting peace. Is this "new world order" really about peace?

Band defends its image, apologizes for members' irresponsible actions

Dear Editor:

I am writing in response to Steve Wagner's letter about the conduct of certain band members at Notre Dame basketball games (The Observer, Feb. 26). I would first like to say that this is not to defend the offensive acts, but to defend the image of the Notre Dame Band in general. We recognize the fact that, as members of the band, we represent the University in a greater capacity than the average student, especially while in uniform. Considering our high visibility, we have policies within the band that govern behavior that go even beyond the far-reaching arms of du Lac.

The official band manual, which is given to all members of the band, states: "The band represents the University in approximately 70 public appearances each year, and it is necessary to formulate a general policy on the matter. Therefore: Any band member who brings objectionable attention or criticism to the University or to the Band (i.e. public appearances, tour, football trips, drinking in uniform, etc.) will be dismissed from the band."

It is possible to prevent any and all such instances from occurring. Had this matter been brought to the attention of a band officer or director at the time, that member would have been dealt with accordingly.

As for the Florida State Seminole war chant (not the FSU fight song as suggested), the band played our fight song 419 times this fall (we kept track for a pool). I think it's fair to say that we play it enough that we don't feel an urge to hum it at basketball games. Several members of the band went to the Blockbuster Bowl while we were in Miami for the Orange Bowl and they borrowed or "adopted" FSU's chant. No harm is meant, nor is any lack of ND spirit intended. Besides, it's just a generic Indian type war chant and Mr. Wagner doesn't complain when we play Indian war drum beats.

In closing, the members of the band put in as many as 20 hours a week during marching season, at the expense of many things—a respectable GPA, interhall sports, social lives, etc. The only reward they officially receive is one token useless credit. It is not an academic credit, so it does not apply towards graduation. These same members are the ones that perform at basketball games. They do so in support of the University; they perform as best they can whether the team is 12-4 or 4-12.

I apologize on behalf of the band to the woman who left with her son because of a few irresponsible remarks by some of the less responsible band members. I hope that she doesn't encounter that same problem in the general student section. I mostly hope, however, that the rest of the thousands of people who see the band each year don't judge its entire membership by the actions of a few.

Hypnotist / magician goes 'Beyond Imagination'

By MEREDITH MCCULLOUGH

Accent Writer

Your eyes are growing heavy. Tick. Tock. Tick. Tock. You are feeling very sleepy. Tick. Tock. Tick. Tock. When I snap my fingers, you will be under my power. Snap!

He is a hypnotist. He is a magician. He is a comedian. He is Dr. Jim Wand, "Master of the Mind," and he is performing "Beyond Imagination" at Notre Dame on Thursday, March 7.

With a background in psychology, sociology, and counseling and twenty years of experience, Wand has achieved national recognition in the field of hypnosis. His proficiency of the art of hypnosis has brought about a rain of praise for his excellence as an educator, therapist, self practitioner, and entertainer.

Armed with keen wit, charisma, and expertise, Wand has performed publicly on over 2,500 occasions. His unique ability to captivate his audience through humor and showmanship as well as hypnosis has set him apart from other members of his field.

Public figures such as Jay Leno, the Chicago Bears, Miami Sound Machine, George Strait, and the Judds can attest to Wand's mesmerizing skills. Including these celebrities, Wand has hypnotized over 150,000 people to this date.

Wand's main office is located just outside of Chicago in East Dubuque, Illinois, but he spends most of his time taking his performances on the road.

In addition to his regular presentations, Wand tours college campuses across the country.

According to the Student Activities board at South Dakota State University, "The audience was with Dr. Wand from the beginning; laughing, responding and encouraging him to continue. The subjects were responsive and treated with dignity... Not only did Dr. Wand exceed our expectations as a performer, but also off stage... I have seen a number of hypnotists at work and would have to say that Dr. Wand is on the top of the list."

Audience participation is crucial to Wand's show. Although he invites only about thirty people on the stage to actually be hypnotized, he combines humor and self-help techniques to involve the entire crowd.

Since each audience is different, Wand feels it is important to slightly alter each performance to cater to the individual needs of the group. For example, Notre Dame's exhibition for two hundred people will differ from that of the college of Saint Benedict and Saint John's University which was attended by 2,000 students.

Wand's publicity department explained, "each performance is unpredictable and takes a unique style of its own."

The show on Thursday night will mark the first time that Dr. Jim Wand has visited the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's community. Other universities, however, have witnessed Wand's skill a number of times.

Orville Hiles, Director of Graceland College, remarked in a letter to Wand, "We are happy to report that we are still receiving accolades on your behalf for your fifth visit on campus... In my 15 year tenure we have never invited any entertainer more than three times."

Jim Wand will be appearing in Theodore's of Lafortune at 8:00 p.m. on Thursday, March 7. Tickets can be picked up at the Lafortune Information Desk and will be distributed on a first-come, first-serve basis. This event is sponsored by the Campus Entertainment department of the Student Union Board.

'Expressions' celebrates cultural diversity

By ANNA MARIE TABOR

Assistant Saint Mary's Editor

Talents with a purpose were showcased at a program Saturday night to celebrate and increase awareness of cultural diversity. The Sisters of Nefertiti, adorned in black evening attire, set the stage with a thematic poem of dreams and hope entitled "And Still I Rise." Such hope was extended to those serving in the Persian Gulf, for whom the program was dedicated.

Angela McDonald, one of the eight coordinators of An Expression in Rhythm and Rhyme, described the program as a collection of "musical selections, skits, and black poetry." Originally scheduled as a part of Black History Month but postponed because of snow, the production was designed to "promote cultural awareness in a fun and entertaining way."

Students from Saint Mary's and Notre Dame participated in the two-hour long production which was emceed by Master of Ceremonies, Walter Boyd. Boyd, looking very debonair in a tuxedo compliments of Louie's Tux Shop, expressed his happiness of being able to work with so many lovely ladies and in a program that "all should share, black or white."

To introduce the nature of the expressive talent, Boyd said, "Black language is a direct, creative, intelligent, communication between black people based on a shared reality, an awareness [and] understanding which generates interaction."

Such language was evident in the various readings presented. Fred Tombar played a dual role in his dramatic interpretation of a father-son dialogue entitled "Fences." In this scene, the father explained that tarring the roof is more important than buying a television and that the son's job at the A&P takes precedence over being on the football team.

Tombar did double duty by reading a fellow student's poetry. "That I Fell," a poem by Eric Bailey in praise of women, begged "sing sister sing, that makes me want to dance until I can't dance anymore." Another of Bailey's poems, "Praise Song for the President," expressed his disapproval of the Middle East War, saying that it is "breaking down [the progress] when we were starting to get started."

In a rendition of "If the Drum is a Woman," Tina Buchanan brought the house down with emotion and fervor, having to pause once until the crowd calmed down. Buchanan said that the poem is "significant of our struggle and hope for the future. [It represents] the struggle in any woman."

Other poems were presented by Keith McCoy, James Suttle, and Atim Appio. The messages included that color is nothing to be feared, the irony of liberty, Michele Cage's rendition of the recently released Anita Baker hit, "Good Enough" was one of the various musical selections performed.

Sisters of Nefertiti member, Tina Buchanan expresses the struggles and hopes of women in her dramatic interpretation of the emotional poem, "If the Drum is a Woman."

freedom and democracy in the time of Dixie, and thanks to God for being created black.

"The body can create every nuance of emotion," announced Boyd just before Danielle Duchatellier performed a modern dance to the song "Cry" by Alvin Ailey. The choreography in this dance was symbolic of the struggle of black women throughout history.

Duchatellier chose an Ailey piece because he is a "role model [and has been] an attribute to the success of [the advancement of colored people]."

Musical selections ranged from gospel to rap. Michele Cage's performance of "Good Enough" proclaimed, "For your love, I'd walk through fire." According to Boyd, rap can be educational, as Corey Babington spoke of black pride in "The 'X' Factor."

Joe Watson performed an impromptu stand-up comedy act. There were wild audience plants who laughed and shouted at appropriate times, not that the general audience needed any prompting. Watson illustrated how little crime there is in his small hometown by saying that "our idea of a mugging is going into a 7-11 with a refill cup."

All of the performances in An Expression in Rhythm and Rhyme were the results of the efforts of the Sisters of Nefertiti, a group at Saint Mary's composed of Atim Appio, Tina Buchanan, Tenesia Davis, Suzanne Glass, Michelle Hill, Angela McDonald, and Olivia Porter.

Sullivan

been struggling of late, scoring a total of 22 points while going 5-of-24 from the field in Louisville's previous four games. But Saturday, the 6-5 swingman shot 6-for-11, including four-for-eight from behind the three-point stripe.

"I thought Everick played the best he's played in a long time," said Louisville coach Denny Crum. "He didn't back down. That's what I liked about it (his play)."

Sullivan was satisfied with his play, and his recent scoring woes haven't fazed him in the least.

"I felt comfortable," said

Sullivan. "I want into games focused. In my mind, I never really worry about that (low point totals). A lot of people say, 'He had a bad shooting night,' but I was only taking three or four shots (in those games)."

Crum must have figured that four shots a game weren't enough for a player of Sullivan's abilities, and decided to get him shooting more, especially from long-range, because his three-point bombs hurt the Irish.

"Once or twice, it (a three-pointer) was a specific play. The other time, I was looking for a three on a pull-up. I didn't want to drive and leave the decision up to the referee," Sullivan said.

With the regular season now complete, the Cardinals will look ahead to the Metro Conference tournament, hoping to salvage something out of this disappointing season. At 12-15, Louisville is facing its worst record since 1941-42. The Cardinals are making a final run, though, winning their last three games and four out of their last five.

"Momentum is following us," Sullivan said. "(We're) on a roll. I want to get everybody playing hard."

Crum promised that Southern Mississippi, the Cards' first-round opponent, will "hear some footsteps," and that Louisville will be going in with "some big feet."

Don't be surprised if a pair of those big feet belong to one Mr. Everick Sullivan.

Longhorns upset #3 Razorbacks

(AP)—The fans chanted "SEC, SEC," but they really meant "OUT, OUT."

Texas handed third-ranked Arkansas only its third loss of the season Sunday night at Austin, spoiling the Razorbacks' last Southwest Conference game. Next year they move to the Southeastern Conference.

"It was sad to be playing here for the last time," Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson said. "The higher ups make decisions where we go."

Benford Williams scored 22 points, and Joey Wright and Locksley Collie each added 19. Texas rallied from a 61-47 deficit with 17:39 to go and nearly brought the house down when Guillermo Myers guided a teammate's shot into the basket for an 84-76 lead.

Arkansas (28-3), which had previously lost only to UNLV and Arizona, was shooting for a 16-0 conference finish. Texas (20-7) won 20 games for the third straight year, a school record.

"We'll learn something from it. The loss really doesn't hurt the guys who are not from Texas," said Todd Day, who led Arkansas with 18 points.

In Sunday's other games, it was No. 2 Ohio State 65, Michigan State 64; No. 8 Duke 83, No. 4 North Carolina 77,

No. 6 Syracuse 62, Georgetown 58; No. 15 Nebraska 85, No. 10 Kansas 75, and Washington 86, No. 16 UCLA 68.

In Saturday games, No. 1 UNLV beat Fullerton State 104-83, No. 5 Indiana beat Wisconsin 74-61, No. 7 Arizona lost to Oregon 62-58, No. 9 Utah beat Brigham Young 72-71 in overtime, No. 11 New Mexico State beat Fresno State 105-80, Iowa State beat No. 12 Oklahoma State 68-67, No. 13 Kentucky beat Auburn 114-93, Tulane beat No. 14 Southern Mississippi 82-65 and DePaul beat No. 17 St. John's 79-68.

Also, No. 23 Mississippi State beat No. 18 Louisiana State 76-73, No. 19 East Tennessee State beat Tennessee-Chattanooga 104-71 in the Southern Conference semifinals, No. 20 Seton Hall beat Boston College 81-74, No. 21 Princeton beat Dartmouth 56-49, Connecticut beat No. 22 Pittsburgh 78-68, No. 24 Alabama beat Tennessee 96-88, and Maryland beat No. 25 Virginia in overtime.

Sunday's Games
No. 2 Ohio St. 65, Michigan St. 64

Jamaal Brown hit the second of two free throws with one second left, giving Ohio State a share of its first Big Ten title in 20 years.

Irish wrestling team finishes second

Special to the Observer

The Notre Dame wrestling team placed second at the NCAA Western Regional tournament in Illinois this weekend.

The Irish, with 65 team points, finished behind Northern Iowa (113.5), and ahead of Illinois State (55.5), Eastern Illinois (37.75), Northern Illinois (36), Marquette (18.25), Southwest Missouri (16.5), Chicago State (9.5) and Valparaiso (1.5).

Curt Engler of the Irish defeated Bob Jones of Illinois

State to win the Heavyweight title. With the win, Engler advances to the NCAA championships.

Marcus Gowens (126) lost to Northern Iowa's Mark Pustelnik 14-2 in the championship match, but, as the second-place finisher, will advance to the NCAA championships, repeating the trip he made last season.

Notre Dame's Todd Layton (150) suffered a technical fall with 4:01 gone in his championship match against Gary Steffensmeir of Northern Iowa. At 190 pounds, Steve King of Notre Dame fall to Dave Malacek by referee's decision in a 4-4 draw. King now heads to the NCAA's.

The other NCAA championship qualifier for the Irish was freshman J.J. McGrew (177) of Cleveland, Okla.

Rich Powers of Northern Iowa (177) was named the tournament's Outstanding Wrestler, and his coach, Don Briggs, won Coach of the Year honors.

Irish win 14-8 in season opener

By MARK MCGRATH
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame lacrosse team successfully opened the season with a 14-8 win over Canisius Saturday.

"It was the first game of the season and everyone was really emotional," said Brian Mayglothing. "It caused us not to execute as well as we should have, but we did what we had to do to win."

The Irish finished the first quarter with the score tied at one. The Irish then jumped out to a 5-2 halftime lead when the Irish scored three goals in a span of 34 seconds.

The Irish then erupted in the third quarter to take an 11-4 lead.

This spurt was very impressive considering that the Irish were down one man for the first three minutes due to an illegal stick-penalty against Brian Schirf. During the penalty, Notre Dame scored two short-handed goals.

The Irish were paced by freshman Robbie Snyder who had a team-high four goals. Notre Dame had six other people with goals. Ed Lamb, Mayglothing, Mike Sullivan and Schirf each added two goals and Bill Ahmuty added one.

For Canisius, Randy Mearns, a member of the All-World Canada team, had a game-high six goals.

"He's obviously their best player," said Irish coach Kevin Corrigan. "You don't stop a guy like that with one person, you do it with good team defense."

The Irish felt the team's performance was good considering it was the first game. However, the defense was the biggest problem.

"We made a couple of mental errors," said tri-captain Eamon McAnaney. "We'll have to cut those down to beat other teams on our schedule."

"The coordination and execution as a team defensively was very disappointing," said Corrigan. "During the pre-season we did a much better job than that, and I know and we can do better than that."

Despite the 14 goals, Notre Dame was not pleased with its offensive execution.

"We shot the ball poorly," said Corrigan, "but we really didn't play that poorly."

"We played fairly well today," said Ed Lamb. "We have to get more shots on goal in order to win our future games."

The team will begin a three-game road trip next week when it travels to play nationally-ranked Hofstra.

span to pull ahead 46-32 with 14:55 left.

"It's tough to keep a team like Notre Dame under wraps," Ehlen said. "They play great pressure defense, and we had trouble getting good shots."

Coquese Washington was instrumental to Notre Dame's spurt. She scored seven straight points—capped by a three-point basket from the right wing—at the end of the run and made two steals.

"A big key was Coquese coming in for a three-minute stretch," McGraw said. "She made a couple of steals for breakaways. The press got a couple turnovers, and we scored some easy baskets. I thought that was when we broke the game open."

After the Lady Muskateers scored four points in a row to cut the margin to 10 with 12:44 left, the Irish began pounding the ball inside effectively. Davis and Margaret Nowlin combined for 17 second-half points to enable Notre Dame to stretch its lead to as many as 18 before settling for the 16-point victory.

Men's Tennis defeats Ohio State 8-1 in quickest match

By DAVE McMAHON
Sports Writer

The 13th-ranked Notre Dame men's tennis went into a brutal tennis environment Saturday night at the Columbus, Ohio, Racquet Club. In their shortest match of the season, the Irish came away with an impressive 8-1 win against Ohio State.

Notre Dame coach Bob Bayliss expected a vocal crowd, and the Buckeye fans put up a staunch effort in letting the Irish know how welcome (or unwelcome) they were in Columbus.

"They were the loudest, most embrassive crowd we've ever played in front of," said Bayliss.

Despite the vocal fans, the Irish (9-5) stayed focused and took care of the business at hand.

At number-one singles, Notre Dame junior All-American Dave DiLucia recovered from a 4-2 first set deficit to beat fellow All-American Ty Tucker, 7-5, 6-1.

Buckeye fans have been notorious for their extreme support of Tucker. However they turned their attention to DiLucia instead, harassing him from the opening point. After a shaky start, DiLucia let his play do the talking and kept the crowd's influence to a minimum.

"They were saying things about my mother that I didn't approve of," said DiLucia. "It was good that she didn't make the trip out to Columbus this weekend."

Sophomore Chuck Coleman, suffering from a mid-season slump, suffered a 2-6, 3-6 loss to Gabor Koves at number-two singles.

"Chuck's struggling, there's no question about it," said Bayliss. "But everyone goes through a stage like this and I'm very confident that he'll come through for us."

After the tough singles loss, Coleman paired with DiLucia at number-one doubles to take a 4-6, 6-2, 6-4 match from Koves-Enrico Sartori.

"Chuck was down from the singles match in the first set," said DiLucia. "He got pumped up in the second and played great in the second and third sets."

An Irish sweep of doubles matches was highlighted by a 3-6, 6-3, 7-6 (10-8) win from Ryan Wenger and Paul Anthony at the number-three spot.

"They've been playing a lot of close matches like that," said Bayliss. "They were down 4-2 in the tiebreaker, and then Wenger hit a great return to get back on serve."

At number-three singles, junior Will Forsyth ousted Ohio State's Jason Katzer, 6-2, 6-2.

Sophomore Mark Schmidt easily defeated Sam Sebastian, a former Notre Dame recruit who entered Ohio University before transferring to Ohio State at number-four singles.

"I was worried about that match because I hadn't seen Sebastian play at the collegiate level," said Bayliss. "Mark kept him off-balance and frustrated him."

At number-five singles, Notre Dame's Andy Zurcher beat Vito Mazza, 7-5, 6-3.

In one of his best performances of the season, sophomore Ron Rosas cruised to 6-0, 6-2 win against Saamil Jhaveri.

At number-two doubles, Forsyth and Zurcher stayed undefeated on the evening, beating Katzer-Mazza, 6-4, 6-0.

With the upcoming team tournament at Corpus Christi, Texas, the Irish hope to continue the success they had against the Buckeyes.

American Express Announces A Great New Travel Program.

Now students can get the Card and get 3 roundtrips on Continental Airlines, for only $129 or $189 each.

There's only one way to cover a lot of territory without spending a lot of money. And that's by getting the American Express® Card. It's the only card that offers an exciting new travel program exclusively for students—including three roundtrip certificates on Continental Airlines.

Just look at the map and pick the place you'd like to visit. If it's on your side of the Mississippi River, you can use a certificate to fly for only $129 roundtrip. Or, you can cross the Mississippi for $189 roundtrip.

You have your pick of more than 150 cities in the 48 contiguous states. And you can fly almost anytime—because there are no blackout dates. But you must make your reservations within 14 days of the day you leave. And the maximum stay is 7 days/6 nights and must include a Saturday night.

In addition to this great travel program, you'll also enjoy all the benefits of Cardmembership as well as other exclusive student privileges. They include a quarterly magazine filled with informative articles on summer jobs, careers, campus life. Plus valuable discounts from leading retailers.

Irish capture Midwest Regional Fencing Competition

By ROLANDO DE AGUIAR
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame fencing teams completed a sweep of all events in team competition, and qualified 11 individual fencers for the NCAA tournament in dominating this weekend's Midwest Regional Fencing Championships.

Combined, the four Notre Dame teams lost only one match, while defeating their other 18 opponents. Each Irish team earned an invitation to the NCAA Tournament.

The Irish women's foil team (19-0) was quite impressive in its performance, defeating Cleveland State, Northwestern, Ohio State, and Wisconsin. Notre Dame thoroughly dominated each of these matches. Its biggest test would have come from defending national champion Wayne State, but a committee decision was made to cancel the match, which would have started after all other fencing had ended.

"We fenced them once

(earlier this season), and we beat them," said women's coach Yves Auriol. "We still finished first. There was no forfeit."

The Irish women were as impressive in their individual performances, as Heidi Piper and Ann Barreda qualified for the NCAA tournament. Piper missed the individual championship by the width of a blade, losing a 5-3, 2-5, 5-2 decision to Larissa Lehmkuhl of Wayne State.

In a setback for the Irish, Barreda pulled her quadriceps muscle while warming up Saturday, which kept her out of individual competition. Barreda, however, was able to come back Sunday and help the Irish to the team title. She should be completely recovered by tournament time.

The men's epee team made an impressive showing in team competition as well, with a 5-0 record, including a stunning come-from-behind win over Ohio State.

The epee squad (23-0) found themselves down, four bouts to one, to the Buckeyes when freshman Greg Wozniak faced the Buckeyes' James Wolan. Wozniak quickly put that bout away, with a quick 5-1 decision. David Calderhead then beat William White 5-2, and Jubba Beshin continued the comeback with a 5-1 victory over Wolan. With the bout score tied at four, the deciding clash was fought between Wozniak and Ohio State's Igor Moreno.

The bout went into sudden death. After approximately two minutes, Wozniak scored on a well-executed passing move, giving the Irish the win.

The epee team sends Beshin, Calderhead, and Wozniak to the NCAA tournament. Calderhead, a junior, won the gold medal in individual epee competition, while Beshin and Wozniak finished ninth and third, respectively. Beshin, also a junior, won the NCAA epee title last year, while Calderhead earned the bronze medal.

Notre Dame sends a very strong men's foil team to the NCAA championships, as Noel Young, Jeff Piper and Phil

Leary will be the starters on the squad. All three of these fencers will fence individually, as well.

In Saturday's individual competition, sophomore Young finished a strong second to Wayne State's Stephon Schroeder, while teammates Piper and Leary earned respective third- and fourth-place finishes.

Schroeder almost single-handedly defeated the Irish foilists in team competition. Schroeder defeated Leary and Rian Girard 5-3 and 5-0, respectively, and came up against Young for his final bout, in a rematch of Saturday's individual final. Schroeder gained a quick 3-0 advantage, and led still at 4-2. Young came back to tie him at 4-4 before Schroeder was able to win the bout.

By winning all three of his contests, Schroeder needed only two wins from his Wayne State teammates to earn the triumph over the Irish. But Mike Cho and Eric King could only muster one victory in their first five bouts. With Piper out with a hamstring injury aggravated earlier in the day, freshman Girard was called upon to fence the final bout for Notre Dame. Girard quickly proved his mettle with a 5-1 rout of King.

The foil squad (22-1) includes three very experienced, internationally sophisticated fencers which make it very strong.

The Notre Dame sabre squad enjoyed an undefeated season until a setback at the hands of mediocre Ohio State Sunday morning. The sabre team (22-1), without All-American Leszek Nowosielski, who was competing in Europe, performed disappointingly against the Buckeyes, who cheered every touch as if it were their last.

The sabre team sends Nowosielski, Ed Baguer, and Chris Baguer to the NCAA tournament. James Taliaferro, the Irish alternate, who placed seventh in the 1990 NCAA sabre tournament, did not receive a recommendation from the Midwest committee to compete at Penn State.

Irish men's track finishes eighth at IC4A Finals

Special to The Observer

The Notre Dame men's track team concluded its indoor season with an eighth-place finish at the IC4A championships this weekend.

The Irish were led by Raghib "Rocket" Ismail, who won the 55-meter dash with a time of 6.16 seconds.

Notre Dame captain Ryan Cahill finished second in the 5000-meter run in 14 minutes 32 seconds.

In the 200-meter dash, freshman Willie Clark turned in a time of 21.69 seconds to finish third.

George Mason University captured the team title for the second year in a row.

More detailed coverage will appear in Tuesday's Observer.

game, compared to 46.8 percent for the Cardinals.

Louisville also made good on 43.8 percent of its attempts from three-point territory, including 7-of-14 shooting by guards LaBradford Smith and Everick Sullivan, who finished with 20 and 19 points respectively.

Smith, playing in his final home game at Louisville, scored seven of the Cardinals' final eight points to hold off a late Irish rally.

Notre Dame led for much of the first half, taking a 29-27 halftime lead into the locker room after point guard Tim Singleton stole the ball from Smith in the Irish defensive zone and fed forward Daimon Sweet for a lay-up as time expired.

Louisville stormed back in the second half behind the three-point shooting of Smith and Sullivan and improved play on the boards by 6-7 strongman Cornelius Holden and Tremaine Wingfield.

"In the first half, I was pleased when we did very well at keeping Louisville off the boards," Notre Dame coach Digger Phelps said. "But then in the second half, they hit some three-pointers that put them in control."

The Cardinals took an early second-half lead when Sullivan's two free throws following an intentional foul by Singleton put Louisville ahead 40-39, a lead which eventually grew to six with 8:18 left.

Notre Dame pulled to within two, 54-52, when guard Elmer Bennett hit a three-pointer from the right side at the 3:13 mark.

But Louisville moved out to a six-point lead less than two minutes later when Smith received a pass from Troy Smith for an easy lay-up. Bennett fouled Smith on the play, and his subsequent free throw gave Louisville a 60-54 advantage.

Troy Smith then missed five of his next six free-throw attempts, and Notre Dame forward Kevin Ellery's three-point play brought the Irish back to within one with 48 seconds remaining.

Singleton committed his fifth foul of the game only six seconds later, however, and LaBradford Smith, the Metro's leading free-throw shooter, made four straight free throws down the stretch to prevent a final Irish comeback.

Notre Dame looked in the dark on its final three possessions. After Ellery's three-point play, Bennett missed an eight-footer from the baseline, Sweet was called for travelling and Keith Tower had his shot blocked by Holden.

"I think the game came down to the last two minutes, when we had the opportunities to win the game and didn't," Phelps said. "We really didn't do what we wanted to do in terms of converting."

Sweet led all scorers with 22 points. Ellery chipped in 18 points and 12 rebounds, and Tower pulled down 13 rebounds.

Notre Dame left for Columbia, Missouri, immediately following Saturday's game. The Irish will play Missouri tonight at 9 p.m.

Irish Baseball Defeats #7 Texas

Special to The Observer

The eighteenth-ranked Notre Dame baseball team won a significant road victory as it hogtied the seventh-ranked Texas Longhorns 13-4 at Disch-Falk field Friday in Austin, Texas.

Rightfielder Eric Danapilis led the Irish at the plate as he went 4-5, knocking in three RBI's with two doubles and a single. Danapilis also scored two runs, walked once and stole a base.

First baseman Frank Jacobs provided an offensive spark with his 2-3, four RBI performance. Jacobs blasted his second home run of the season, in addition to doubling and being walked once. Jacobs stole one base and was caught stealing once.

David Sinnes (1-0) was the pitcher of record for the Irish, scattering seven hits and two runs (both earned) over seven innings while walking six and striking out two.

Notre Dame put the Texas starter into trouble early, as Chris Cox (2-1) was rocked for six earned runs on six hits and four walks in 4 1/3 innings. Cox also fanned four. The pounding of Cox is a considerable achievement, considering the fact that Cox pitched the Longhorns to a 6-2 win over the fourth-ranked Miami Hurricanes earlier this season.

Vaught came on to face two batters in the sixth for the Horns, and promptly surrendered four runs (two earned) on two hits and two walks. Toronto closed the game for Texas, allowing five hits, three runs (all earned), one walk while striking out three.

The Irish then went on to sweep doubleheaders from Saint Mary's (Texas; 6-4, 9-3) and Trinity (8-2, 8-3).

For the weekend, Danapilis went 13-22. Alan Walania won both games of Saturday's doubleheader against St. Mary's, while Tom Price and Pat Leahy were the winners in the twinbill with Trinity.

The high-powered Notre Dame offense has hit nine home runs this year, and has also scored at least eight runs in five of its six games.

Happy Birthday Scooter!

Hall-Armetta bout provides fireworks at Bengal Bouts

BY ROLANDO DE AGUIAR
Sports Writer

Like pit bulls, Jody Armetta and Lou Hall would not stop fighting in their 150-pound Bengal Bouts championship fight. Though both boxers were battered by incessant head blows for the full three rounds, neither fell, and neither boxer gave up, despite their weariness as the battle wore on.

"That was a tough fight," said Armetta, who earned the unanimous decision. "There were a lot of short, hard punches. We threw so many for so long."

Armetta won the first two rounds by very slim margins. Hall was able to land numerous punches at short range. But by keeping Hall on his heels, Armetta, the two-time champion, prevented Hall from landing many of his powerful straight punches, while pummeling him with a variety of blows.

Also well-fought was Mike Trainor's unanimous decision over Scott Mulcahy in a non-divisional bout. Organizers arranged this non-divisional bout between Trainor and Mulcahy, the acknowledged 170-pound champion, after Trainor was disqualified during the semi-final round.

Trainor was too strong for Mulcahy, and won the unanimous decision.

"Thanks for letting me fight, Scott," said Trainor to Mulcahy before the decision was announced. "It means a lot to me. You're still the champ."

At 165 pounds, Kerry Wate won his third consecutive title, battering Tim Trainor high and low to earn a unanimous decision. Wate asserted his skills throughout the fight, preventing Trainor from landing all but a few of his deadly jabs. In 1992, Wate will attempt to become the fifth boxer in Bengal Bouts history to win four championships.

In a rematch of last year's 127-pound championship fight, Brian Stokes won the 130-pound title by beating Tim Phelan on a unanimous decision. Last year, Stokes defeated Phelan on a split decision.

Also winning his second title was Eric Milito, who landed numerous head shots in defeating Matt Mullarkey at 145 pounds.

135-pound freshman Jeff

Gerber used superior boxing skills to hold off the dangerous Mike Jennings, and earn a unanimous decision. Joe Carrigan won a controversial split decision over Derek Bartlett to win the 140-pound class.

Colin Mullaney had little trouble in defeating Shane Hitzeman for the 155-pound crown, while champion John Sordi battered Lou Toner for the better part of three rounds in the 160-pound fight.

In the heavyweight division, Mike McCarthy managed to remain standing for three rounds despite a severe beating by Dan Ward. Ward earned the unanimous decision.

At 185 pounds, Kevin Max won his second title after it was discovered that his opponent, Thomas Sullivan, had internal bleeding in his nose, which disabled him from fighting.

Brian Shannon, three-time super-heavyweight champion, was honored Friday. The super-heavyweight class was eliminated this year due to the danger involved.

The Bengal Bouts raise thousands of dollars each year for the Holy Cross missions in Bangladesh.

The Observer/David Lee
Brian "Midnight Stoker" Stokes (Gold) prepares to unleash a punch which earned him a unanimous decision in the 130 pound division.

Everick Sullivan outshines LeBradford Smith in win

By RICH KURZ
Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE—For the Louisville Cardinals, this was supposed to be LaBradford Smith's day. After all, the 6-3 senior point guard was playing his final game in Freedom Hall, on national television against Notre Dame, no less.

Instead, junior swingman Everick Sullivan outshone

Smith, picking up the Cardinals and propelling them to a 65-59 win over the Irish. Sullivan scored 19 points, to Smith's 20, but Sullivan hit the shots that broke Notre Dame's back.

With 11:14 left in the game, the Irish were clinging to a narrow 39-38 lead when Sullivan single-handedly turned a one-point deficit to a three-point advantage for U of L, a lead they would hold for the rest of the game.

Notre Dame's Keith Tower tried to make a cross-court pass to Tim Singleton, but

Everick Sullivan

Sullivan read it all the way. He picked off the pass and was fouled from behind by Singleton—which the official ruled an intentional foul.

After hitting both free throws, Sullivan promptly nailed a 17-footer to put Louisville up by three.

Then, twice in the last five minutes, when the Irish had climbed back to within two, Sullivan nailed trifectas to give the Cards a five-point cushion.

This game had to have been sweet for Sullivan, who had

Irish rally falters as Cards win

By FRANK PASTOR
Associate Sports Editor

LOUISVILLE—Louisville coach Denny Crum celebrated his 54th birthday in grand style Saturday afternoon.

Crum's Cardinals, suffering through their worst season in half a century, defeated Notre Dame 65-59 at sold-out Freedom Hall in their final regular-season game before this week's Metro Conference tournament.

The victory, which improved Louisville's overall record to 12-15, took some of the pain away from a season that, in many ways, has mirrored Notre Dame's own troubled campaign.

Once again, Notre Dame (12-18) had several chances to win Saturday's game, but failed to convert its second- and third-shot opportunities. The Irish outrebounded Louisville 17-4 on the offensive boards, but shot only 34.4 percent for the

Irish women pull away to win over Xavier 69-53

By RENE FERRAN
Sports Writer

CINCINNATI—The 22nd-ranked Notre Dame women's basketball team overcame a sluggish first-half effort to defeat Xavier 69-53 in its 1990-1991 regular season finale Saturday afternoon.

The Irish (21-6, 15-1) finish the season as the top seed in next weekend's Midwestern Collegiate Conference tournament to be held in Dayton. Notre Dame will meet the winner of the Detroit-Dayton matchup Friday at 3 p.m.

But first, the Irish fought off a valiant effort from the Lady Muskateers (14-13, 7-9). Xavier needed a victory to qualify for the MCC tourney, and in the early going, it looked promising.

Notre Dame did not score for almost three minutes to start the game as it fell behind by four, but senior Karen Robinson hit back-to-back baskets around the 10:30 mark to take a 13-10 lead.

The Lady Muskateers hung tough, however, and with 6:40 remaining in the first half, Xavier's Kim Blanton's three-pointer tied the game at 19 apiece. But the Irish outscored the Lady Muskateers 12-5 the rest of the half to take a 31-24 lead into the locker room.

Xavier was successful in keeping the Irish on the perimeter in the half, and they were stone-cold (35.3 percent) as lack of ball movement led to only three assists—Notre Dame averages almost 18 per game for the season—and a stalled Irish attack.

What kept Notre Dame in the game was its defense, holding Xavier to only nine field goals in the first half and forcing 12 turnovers.

"(Xavier's) game plan was to pack it inside and make us shoot jumpers," Irish coach Muffet McGraw said. "After Krissi (Davis) getting her season high last game (30 points against Dayton), it was a smart idea. It turned out to be very effective because we shot poorly from the perimeter."

"But our defense was good too. It was a low-scoring game, and as defensive games tend to be, it was very ugly."

"I thought we played our hearts out in the first half. We really played great defense," Xavier coach Mark Ehlen said. "I didn't want us happy just to be down only seven points. I wanted to encourage them to stay with it."

It wasn't meant to be, however, as Notre Dame built on the momentum it gained just before halftime. The Irish went on a 13-2 run in a three-minute
