Senate to consider co-ed housing issue

By CARRIE KINSELLA
News Writer

The Student Senate resolved Monday to form a task force to examine the co-residential housing issue, responding to a recent survey in which 2,000 students indicated support for such an option.

The goal of co-ed housing, Senate members said, is to improve male-female relations on campus. A 1988 Student Government Report also showed overwhelming student support for co-residential housing.

Tyler Farmer presented the initial resolution, which recommended that the Notre Dame administration introduce co-ed housing. After extensive discussion by the Senate and students, the proposal was amended to provide a task force to research the project. Research has seemed a key to gaining the administration's approval in the past, according to Student Body President Greg Butrus, who mentioned that the resolution for pre-final study days passed quickly because it was "well-organized" and "well-researched."

Since co-ed housing is an issue over which the student body and the administration are likely to be divided, the Senate resolved to "appoint an independent task force to study the means of implementing optional co-residentiality."

The task force will also "assist the University administration and other relevant parties in the possible implementation of optional co-residentiality at Notre Dame," according to the

Prof: War, arts often combined

By ANNIE VENESKY

War has been a common theme in literature, music and art throughout history, according to University of Wisconsin Professor Dick Ringler.

Ringler gave a multi-media presentation entitled "War, Peace, and the Arts" at Notre Dame, Monday.

■ Dresden remembrance/ page 3

Humans have been and continue to be enculturated with war, he said. Artistic representation of war extends as far back as Neolithic times, and early artists often depicted biblical events such as Caan's killing of Abel and in the crucifixion of Christ.

"The Trojan Women," a play by Euripedes, "the poet of the world's grief," indicts war in general, Ringler said. Through the play, Euripedes questions why a God would permit the extensive suffering of children during war.

War has also been a favorite theme of painters throughout history, Ringler said. Generals and military leaders have often been portrayed and glorified in an effort to commemorate war.

Ringler explained that little denunciation of war probably occurred since upper class members were themselves patrons of the arts, and because war seemed to be a necessary institution at that time.

But anti-war paintings soon became abundant, Ringler said. Many artists, such as Broidie and Picasso, painted depictions of the "malevolence and cruelty of which human beings are capable."

The definition of peace as "the absence of something bad rather than the presence of something good" is problematic.

Two Yugoslavian republics form new state

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Two republics of Yugoslavia on Monday recreated the remains of their dismembered country into a new, Serbian-dominated state.

The "Federal Republic of Yugoslavia," less than half the size of the defunct six-member federation, was proclaimed in the Belgrade parliament by the republic of Serbia and its lone ally, tiny Montenegro. The new state hopes to inherit the international recognition and privileges of the former Yugoslavia.

Leaders of the new country pledged its formation would halt the ethnic war that destroyed the federation founded at the end of World War II. The war has claimed more than 10,000 lives since June, when Slovenia and Croatia seceded, followed by Bosnia-Herzegovina this year.

The United States and the 12 European Community nations boycotted a proclamation ceremony staged by Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic, which included hoisting a new Yugoslav national flag.

It was the last flag in Europe to drop the Communist red star but otherwise retained the blue, white and red stripes of Yugoslavia, a federation founded in the ruins of World War I and reformed after World War II.

The European Community is likely to grant limited recognition while opposing the new Yugoslavia's immediate entry into international bodies, Dutch spokesman Dig Itha said. EC foreign ministers meet Friday in Lisbon, Portugal, to discuss the status of the new state.

Macedonia also has broken from the federation but has not gained the same recognition as the other new states because of opposition by EC member Greece, which fears its own northern Macedonia region would be coveted by an independent Macedonia.

The West, weary of Balkan strife and wary of Milosevic's pledges of peace, is demanding concrete action from Serbia to curb violence in Bosnia-Herzegovina and relinquish territory captured by Serbs there and in Croatia.

Hours after the proclamation, Bosnian authorities in Sarajevo ordered the federal army to remove its 100,000 troops in Bosnia. But Gen. Milutin Kukanjac, commander of most troops there, earlier had told reporters the army will not withdraw.

The 51-member Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe has threatened to expel Yugoslavia if violence in Bosnia is not halted by Wednesday.

"I hope that the proclamation of the new state will mark the end of the agony and chaos," Milosevic said after the ceremony in Belgrade, the federal and Serbian capital.

22 underage students cited at lounge Saturday

By JULIE BARRETT
Assistant News Editor

The Stop Underage Drinking and Sales (S.U.D.S.) police force together with the South Bend and Indiana State police cited 22 Notre Dame, Saint Mary's and Holy Cross students for being minors in a tavern during a raid of Cap n' Cork Lounge at 11:56 p.m. last Saturday night, according to Sgt. James Moon of S.U.D.S.

Moon said that S.U.D.S. had been watching the bar after an underage drinker was arrested there on April 12. An undercover cop who was at Cap n' Cork, 441 E. La Salle St., Saturday night informed S.U.D.S. of the presence of underage drinkers there, Moon added.

Two other citations, Moon said, were issued to the bar owner for having minors in a tavern and permitting minors to loiter.

The students charged were Michael Semo, Michael Schreck and Michael Fox of Dillon; Eileen Sullivan, Julie Gaddis and Molly Flood of Le Mans Hall; James Downey of Keenan Hall; Rebecca Zurcher and Katherine LeBeau of McCandless Hall; Laura Lavigne and Kathleen Crossen of Walsh Hall; Richard Carrigan and Sean Hurley of Morrissey.

Also cited were Aimee Terry of Siegfried; Joseph Mattio of Fisher; Erich Miller of Alumni Hall; Mary Phelan of Lewis Hall; Eve Beale of Howard Hall; Shannon Ryan of Pasquerilla East; Luis Torres of Stanford; Jennifer Walsh of Holy Cross Hall; and Jonathon Shean, of Campus View.

Forget the aerial circus; run the ball

Knute Rockne may have implemented the forward pass, but were he to return to Notre Dame today, he would be shocked at the mockery that has resulted.

DAVID KINNEY
News Editor

In the two years since the Notre Dame football team went 23-1 and won a national championship, the Fighting Irish have discovered Rick Mirer and a passing game. With it, we have witnessed the beginning of the demise of Notre Dame football.

This weekend's Blue and Gold Classic, though only an intra-squad spring game, showed no signs of anything different.

Rick Mirer was decidedly spectacular, completing 13 of 23 passes for 190 yards and two touchdowns. Although Mirer has sometimes demonstrated an ability to pull the team out of a tight, late-game crunch, he has failed to prove that he is a leader that can win the big game — like the Orange Bowl, or Michigan, Tennessee or Penn State games last year.

One might argue that the Irish offensive production was astounding last year, averaging nearly 40 points a game. A closer look, however, reveals that in top-10 match-ups, including Michigan and Penn State, the offense sputtered. Notre Dame's new-found passing-attack was ineffective against even the semblance of good defense.

All of this proves that Notre Dame Stadium was never intended to be an aerial circus. Until the alumni association and our commercial sponsors decide to construct scaffolding around the perimeter of the stadium in order to add 20,000 more seats, and until diamond-vision shines over end zones emblazoned with the words "national Catholic research university," Notre Dame cannot rely on a dominant passing game.

As was proven against the University of Florida in this year's Sugar Bowl, dive behind a good offensive line is the only play needed in Notre Dame's playbook.

Clearly, it is difficult to compare our 1990 and '91 line-ups to a team touting the likes of Tony Rice, Ned Bolcar, Anthony Johnson, Chris Zorich, Tim Grunhard, Frank Stams, Stan Smagala and Wes Pritchett. The heart and determination those players demonstrated seem to be lacking in recent years.

Saturday's game served as a reminder the running game is what works in Notre Dame's system under Head Coach Lou Holtz. Back-up Quarterback Kevin McDougal's well-executed options, the footwork of freshman standout Lee Becton (in particular, his refusal to throw the ball in flashy trick plays) and the powerful running of fullback Jerome Bettis revived memories of better days.

Days when Notre Dame coaches realized that running the ball and stopping the run are fundamentals that cannot be far from mind.

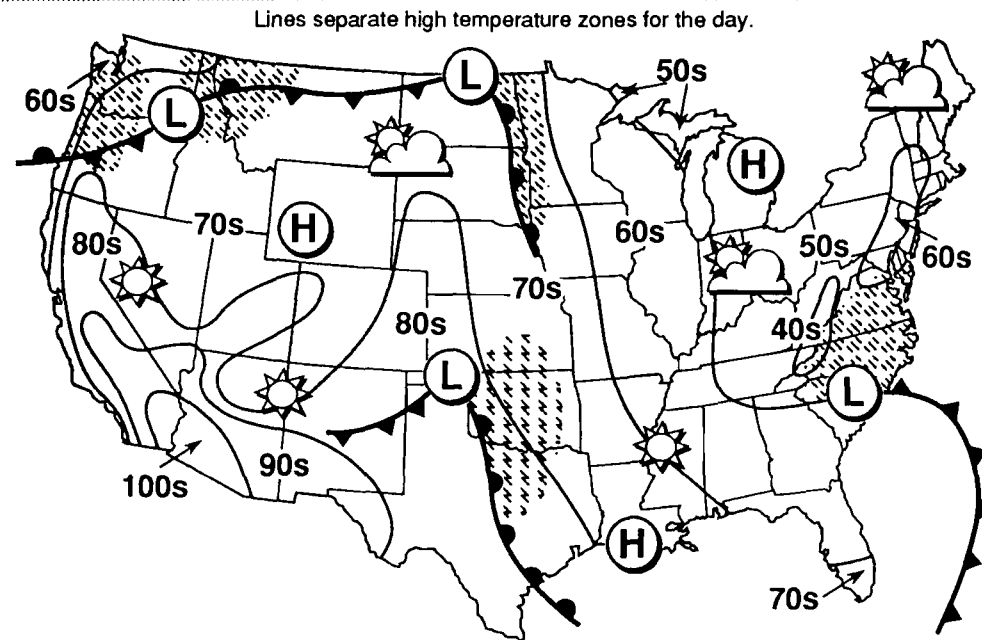

If Rockne were to return, he would have a few words to say:

"Run the ball, Lou. Run the ball."

Court says teen must receive transfusion

■CHARLESTON, W.Va. — The state won clearance Monday to force blood transfusions on a teenager with sickle cell anemia who has suffered strokes because of her condition but refuses transfusions on religious grounds. The state Supreme Court unanimously refused to block a lower court order that would require Latoya Heath to undergo the transfusions. Heath, 15, of Shepherdstown, is a Jehovah's Witness whose religion prohibits blood transfusions. A judge ruled that she faces up to a 70 percent chance of suffering a serious, possibly fatal, stroke in the next three years if she does not undergo the transfusions. Charles B. Howard, the youth's court-appointed attorney, said he may appeal the case to federal court.

Quayle owes back taxes in Indiana

■CLEVELAND — Vice President Dan Quayle apparently owes his home state of Indiana about $1,100 in income taxes because of an error on his tax returns, the Cleveland Plain-Dealer had reported. Quayle under-reported more than $34,000 in speaking fees for 1986 and 1987, when he was a U.S. senator, the newspaper reported Saturday. Quayle spokesman David Beckwith said he did not believe there was an error. Quayle reported $104,931 in speaking fees those two years. He paid state taxes on $62,051 after deducting charitable contributions, travel and other expenses. Although they would not discuss Quayle's taxes on the record, Indiana officials said the type of charitable deductions claimed by Quayle were not permitted under state or federal tax rules.

Former police chief stole $2.6 million

■DETROIT — The city's former police chief was so corrupted by power he stole $2.6 million from a secret police fund as easily "as ordering a sandwich," a prosecutor said Monday in closing arguments. William Hart served for 13 years as chief of the nation's fifth largest city police force. He is charged with embezzling $1.3 million from a secret police fund and authorizing payments totaling another $1.3 million to phony corporations controlled by the former civilian deputy chief, Kenneth Weiner. The prosecutor said Hart, 68, had complete control over the department's secret service fund, which was intended to pay informants and finance undercover drug purchases. Hart also is charged with witness tampering for allegedly persuading one of the women to lie to a grand jury. Hart's wife, Laura, testified she and her husband were able to live above their means because she saved hundreds of thousands of dollars over the years.

INDIANA

200 arrested at IU's Little 500

■BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — About 200 people arrested during Little 500 weekend picked up trash Sunday as part of their punishment. They were among 274 people arrested on alcohol- and drug-related charges during the festivities at Indiana University, which this year included the annual bicycle race and a John Mellencamp concert. Two Monroe Circuit courts were opened Sunday to handle the arrests. The 200 who picked up trash found the easiest way to resolve their misdemeanor charges was to accept guilt and enter a pretrial diversion program, officials said. The criminal records of those who successfully complete the program show an arrest but not a conviction. Monroe County Prosecutor Robert T. Miller said publicity about the road crew work, along with the rainy weather, helped to reduce arrests from last year's 400.

Visiting prof commemorates WWII bombing of Dresden

By ALLISON McCARTHY
News Writer

An audiovisual presentation at Notre Dame on the bombing of Dresden incorporated testimony of several witnesses to the World War II bombing of the German city, and of several American and British military personnel involved.

"Hatred cannot put an end to hatred. In this world, that never happens. Only nonhatred can end hatred. This is an eternal law," said Dick Ringler, professor of English and Scandinavian studies at the University of Wisconsin, quoting a Buddhist work. He said the quote expressed the moral behind his presentation Monday, "Requiem for a City: The Bombing of Dresden, February, 1945."

The lecture included the eyewitness accounts of American writer Kurt Vonnegut, at the time a young infantryman, who details the Dresden bombing in his book, Slaughterhouse Five.

Dresden, the old Saxon capital, was located on the Elba River, and was well known as a magnificent city of culture, the Florence of Germany, Ringler said. It had been compared with Paris, Vienna and Rome and had produced such musical genius as Wagner and Strauss.

The date of the allied bombing was Feb. 13, 1945, Shrove Tuesday, better known in the United States as Mardi Gras. At the time, the city was at twice its normal capacity of nearly 630,000, Ringler said. Over 1,000,000 people were in the city, due to the enormous influx of German refugees retreating westward, away from the Russian border.

The attack on the city was completely unexpected, Ringler said, leaving Dresden and its people totally vulnerable to the allies. It included three air raids, two British and one American, which smothered the city with thousands of tons of explosives, enough to make its glow visible from over 250 kilometers away, according to

Ringler said one witness described the bombing as creating the "ignition of one of the worst firestorms ever witnessed by human beings."

The extent of damage to the city left the death count at an indefinite number, but estimates show that between 30,000 and 130,000 were killed by burning and asphyxiation, he said.

According to a German woman who at the time was a girl in Dresden, the Americans purposely targeted the people of the city who were trying to escape and not the communications networks or the railroads of Dresden.

Ringler ended his program with a memorial to Dresden and its citizens: a slide show accompanied by Shostakovich's String Quartet number eight, "Elegy for the City of Dresden," which the composer dedicated "to the memory of the victims of fascism and war."

Alumni are honored with University awards

Special to The Observer

The University of Notre Dame Alumni Association honored two Notre Dame graduates last weekend.

Lawrence Hickey, a 1942 alumnus from New York City, received the William Reynolds Award, which is given annually to a Notre Dame graduate who works with young people to improve their quality of life. The award was presented Friday.

Hickey, who retired from his family's construction business in 1977, is the president of the board of trustees of the Kennedy Child Center, which provides educational programs for 247 children with physical, emotional and mental handicaps.

Hickey also serves on the board of the Astor Home for Children in Rhinebeck, N.Y., and is president of the Neighborhood Coalition for Shelter, a group of synagogues, churches, and community organizations which operates two shelters and a referral center for homeless people in New York.

Father Daniel Jenky, a 1970 graduate, received the James Armstrong Award. The award is given annually to a Notre Dame graduate and University employee who has performed outstanding service for Notre Dame. Jenky was presented the award Saturday.

Jenky, rector of the Basilica of the Sacred Heart and Fischer Graduate Residences, joined the Congregation of Holy Cross in 1973 and was ordained the following year. Aside from a year teaching social studies at Bourgade High School in Phoenix, Ariz., he has been at Notre Dame since his ordination.

In addition to his responsibilities with Sacred Heart, Jenky has served as Dillon Hall rector, and Campus Ministry director.

Campus Ministry...

...Considerations

Transitions

When I first came to Notre Dame as a freshman in 1968, I moved into Stanford Hall. There, rather quickly, my section mates and I settled into the typical routines of studying, playing sports, and complaining about the campus social life. (Joe Namath had been heavily recruited to play quarterback at Notre Dame just a few years before all this, and had been widely quoted as saying that he didn't want to live at any school where you had to swim across a lake to get a date.) We found out that the Shuttle Bus to St. Mary's worked just fine, and so we were happy.

Dorm parties typically went very late on Saturday nights, and everyone slept in on Sunday mornings. In the 'last few minutes before 1:00 pm, the whole campus would jump out of bed and rush to the dining hall where the big treat for Sunday lunch would be huge, broiled steaks. (This was before the time when people were afraid of red meat.)

Sunday afternoon was a lazy time for conversations, reconstructing and exaggerating the events of the weekend, while we read the newspapers and watched TV. By 4:00 pm, it was time to really wake up, hit the showers, and go to Mass in Keenan-Stanford chapel.

The rector of our neighboring dorm in those days was Fr. Bob Griffin, C.S.C., the same guy who still writes every week in The Observer with Letters to a Lonely God. We loved this priest.

In those days the Roman Catholic church was in a bit of an uproar. The liturgy had changed its shape dramatically. Priests and nuns and religious brothers were leaving their ministries in droves. The American political scene was in turmoil, particularly as young people were leading opposition to racial discrimination and the Vietnam War, and finding their elders harder and harder to trust. My father and I hardly ever spoke — we only hollered. "Me and my generation" he said, were attacking everything he ever believed in - his understanding of his country, his understanding of the Church, his place of authority in his own family. Most of my friends and I found very little to trust in our heritage of patriotism and religion, except Griff.

Week after week, we would join hundreds of others who crammed into Keenan-Stanford chapel for 5:00 pm Sunday Mass. The musicians reminded everyone of Peter, Paul, and Mary, probably because most Masses ended with If I had a Hammer. The sermons were always directly aimed at us and our concerns. The room was dark, everyone sat on the floor, and the altar was filled with dozens and dozens of candles. We felt close, as friends, protected, and holy.

At the end of freshman year, my Dad came to pick me up from school and happened to go to our favorite Mass. Fr. Griffin tried to say something to us about how it might be difficult that summer trying to pray in our own parishes, where things were straighter and likely much duller. My father always swears that Griff told everybody not to feel too badly if they didn't go to Mass much, but just to wait until we got back together the next Fall and things would be fine again. Actually, that's not what Griff said. He was trying to help us prepare for leaving campus and moving out into a different milieu.

The end of the school year, and a little touch of nostalgia as I prepare for my 20th college reunion this summer, call all this to mind for me.

Several students in recent days have asked me how they can survive spiritually during the summer or after graduation, when they anticipate going to places where liturgy will be less satisfying than they are used to here in the residence halls.

One thing is sure, we must keep praying. I believe it is important to find a place where prayer is meaningful to us, where liturgy is well celebrated, even if it means going to several parishes in search of style and content that satisfies. Surely the Lord is present in every moment of prayer and available to the people in every Eucharist, but it is also true that bad, boring liturgy is an attack upon faith, and only makes belief more difficult. So I would say that there is nothing wrong in searching a bit for a place to pray that makes you happy.

But the other thing is that all our training and experience in liturgy here on campus is not meant to be for us here alone. Students who know a bit about good prayer ought take that knowledge to their parishes and help make things better there. Young graduates moving to new cities need to call others of similar concerns and start prayer groups for support. The world is a banquet, and we shouldn't live on crumbs. We are the church, we need to build the church.

These transitions must be made, nothing stays the same. Let us take what we know and use it where we go. Have a good summer, and/or a great life.

Tom McDermott, C.S.C.

Real estate group: March home sales at highest level in over three years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of existing homes were unchanged in March, but remained at their highest level in more than three years, a real estate trade group said today.

Sales rose in both the Northeast and South, but fell in the Midwest and West.

The National Association of Realtors said sales of previously owned homes totaled a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.49 million, unchanged from the February rate.

It was the highest level of sales of previously owned homes since resales hit a 3.50 million rate in February 1989, the Realtors said.

Dorcas T. Helfant, the Realtors' president, said the sales activity signifies that both the housing market and the economy are getting back in shape.

"The economy is finally moving clearly toward recovery and we're feeling it not just in housing but other areas as well," she said. "Consumer confidence appears to be on the rebound, new construction is blossoming — in economic terms, we're finally seeing signs of spring."

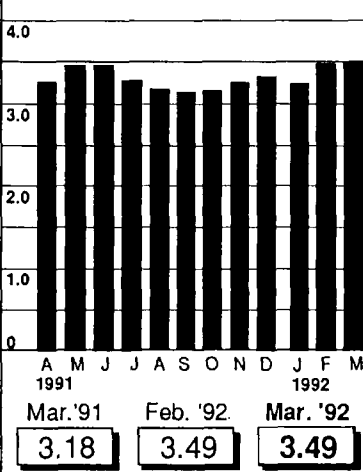

Helfant said housing prices remain affordable despite the recent uptick in mortgage rates, which rose from 8.76 percent in February to 8.91 percent in March, according to surveys by the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp.

The Realtors said the median price of an existing home in March was $104,000, up 5.4 percent from a year earlier. The median means half of the homes cost more and half less.

The Northeast posted the biggest increase in sales, up 12.2 percent from February to an annual rate of 550,000.

Mideast peace talks resume in Capitol

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mideast peace talks resumed Monday with Israel offering to hold elections among Palestinians in the territories and Syria making the conciliatory gesture of lifting restrictions on its Jewish community.

Israeli spokesman Benjamin Netanyahu called the offer of "pilot municipal elections" on the West Bank and Gaza "the largest experiment in democracy in the Arab world." Palestinian spokeswoman Hanan Ashrawi, who in past rounds accused Israel of stalling, said this time there was a "distinct possibility" of progress.

The talks will be held through Thursday and should be resumed in Rome within a few weeks, Netanyahu, a close aide to Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, told reporters. "Today we began a real discussion," he said.

Even so, the State Department, hosting the negotiations again, said it expected no quick breakthroughs on Palestinian self-rule or other issues in the fifth round of talks since October.

"This is going to be a hard, step-by-step process," spokeswoman Margaret D. Tutwiler said as Israeli negotiators met with a joint Jordanian-Palestinian delegation and, separately, with Syrian and Lebanese groups.

Palestinian spokeswoman Ashrawi said her delegation had received, and would study Israel's proposal to begin municipal elections among the 1.7 million Palestinian Arabs. The idea is to choose leaders to work out arrangements for Palestinians to take control of their own day-to-day economic, judicial, educational and other affairs.

Shuttle launch rescheduled for daytime

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA on Monday delayed next week's scheduled launch of the new shuttle Endeavour by three days so the spaceship can take off in daylight.

Endeavour was to have embarked on the satellite-rescue mission at 8:34 p.m. EDT Monday. Liftoff is now set for 7:06 p.m. EDT on May 7; Endeavour has until 7:55 that evening to get off the ground.

NASA's acting associate administrator for space flight, Tom Utsman, said officials reviewed the criteria and decided it would be "prudent" to delay the flight so detailed photographs and documentation could be made for analysis.

NASA spokesman Mark Hess could not explain why officials didn't opt for a daylight launch in the first place. Mission managers settled on a Monday launch just last week.

Rival Muslims battle to standoff in Afghanistan

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Rival Muslim guerrillas battled to a standoff Monday over the southern approach to Kabul and ignored a reported ceasefire agreement as they fought for control of the Afghan capital.

A convoy carrying members of a guerrilla-led interim government that supported more moderate factions left Pakistan for the 120-mile journey over rugged roads to Kabul. The rebel leaders planned to formally replace the fallen regime of President Najibullah.

A truce that Pakistan's government said was agreed to between the leaders of radical fundamentalists and more moderate guerrillas went unheeded — perhaps in part because word had not reached the fighters. Red, green and yellow tracer bullets and flares illuminated the sky above Kabul into the night.

Roughly 90 percent of the city was under the control of a coalition commanded by Ahmed Shah Masood. But it failed to dislodge the radical fighters of his bitter rival, Gulbuddin Hekmatyar, from their strongholds.

Both sides fought with tanks, rockets and machine guns. Masood's fighters were supported by soldiers and even a warplane from Najibullah's military.

Masood and Hekmatyar both want to establish an Islamic state, but they differ on how strict the theocracy should be.

In Islamabad, Pakistan's capital, a spokesman for the Foreign Ministry, Javed Hussein, said the leaders agreed to a truce. He did not release any details, but Pakistan's state news agency said the agreement was mediated by Pakistani Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif and senior Saudi Arabian officials.

Along with the United States, Saudi Arabia provided much of the financial support for the 14-year Muslim rebellion against the Soviet-backed government. Pakistan provided a haven for many Afghan rebel groups.

The 50-member interim governing council, which was formed last week by most of the rebel factions, originally had planned to fly to Kabul on a Pakistani military plane. But the leaders decided to go overland because Hekmatyar's troops threatened to shoot at any plane approaching the capital.

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said Masood's forces seemed to have fared best in fighting that began Saturday after rebels advanced into the capital.

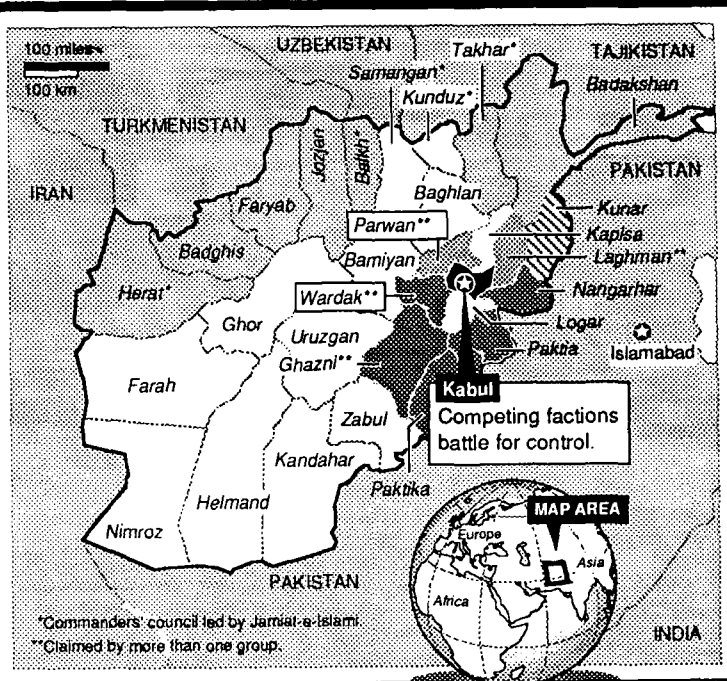

"Hekmatyar seems outclassed militarily and isolated politically," she said.

She said the Afghans should seek a political solution involving a broad-based transition

U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali, whose plan to restore peace collapsed with the fall of Najibullah on April 16, met in Tehran with Iranian leaders to seek help in stopping the fighting. Iran supported some of the smaller Muslim rebel factions, primarily from Afghanistan's Shiite minority.

U.N. special envoy Benon Sevan, who accompanied Boutros-Ghali, planned to return to Kabul on Wednesday, U.N. officials said.

The civil war has claimed an estimated 2 million lives and driven 5 million people from their homes.

The capital's 1.5 million people were caught in the middle as battle lines shifted throughout the city.

"This was my whole life!" cried Artiqzadeh Afghan, a shopkeeper trying to remove Russian lampshades and Polish paint from his store before it burned down the road, flames leaped from a store hit by rocket-propelled grenades and two other shops smoldered.

Fighting was concentrated on two hilltops facing across the highway leading south from Kabul. But scattered skirmishes also flared in the city center and in other pockets held by Hekmatyar's troops.

In the heaviest fighting, Hekmatyar's fighters withstood bombing by a Soviet-built fighter-bomber piloted by a Masood loyalist as well as tank barrages and an infantry assault against their position on Martyrs' Hill.

German foreign minister plans to resign in May

BONN, Germany (AP) — Hans-Dietrich Genscher, the world's longest-serving current foreign minister and one of the architects of German reunification, announced Monday he was resigning as Germany's top diplomat.

Irmgard Schwaetzer, the federal construction minister, was named to succeed the 65-year-old Genscher, considered the country's most popular politician.

Schwaetzer, 50, is the first woman to hold the powerful foreign ministry job. She comes from the same party as Genscher, the liberal Free Democrats.

Genscher, foreign minister for 18 years, said in a television interview he wanted to make way for the next generation of political leaders. Heart problems had made him conscious of his age, he said.

"If I were five years younger and only 18 years in office, I would continue," he said.

"I have no intention of sitting back in my easy chair," he added, promising to continue working as a member of Parliament.

"The standing of Germany in Europe is clearly defined," he said, summing up his work the past few years to unify Germany and set western Europe on the path to political and economic union.

Opposition politicians contend Genscher's resignation effective May 17, marks a crisis for Chancellor Helmut Kohl's embattled government.

Kohl's popularity has been sliding because of the high costs of the 1990 unification between east and west Germany.

7 jailed for explosions in Mexico

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — Authorities on Monday jailed seven officials accused of negligent homicide for sewer explosions that claimed at least 191 lives. Officials warned that the area around a government oil storage facility was still dangerous.

The defendants appeared at a preliminary hearing Monday afternoon at the state prison outside the city. They stood in their green prison jumpsuits as the judge read charges that included negligent homicide, causing damage and injury to others, damage to public communications and violation of federal environmental laws.

The homicide charge makes the officials — four from the local Pemex oil company and three from city water and sewer departments — ineligible for bail under Mexican law. Arrested defendants are assumed guilty and must prove their innocence.

An eighth official, Jalisco urban development secretary Aristeo Mejia, was hospitalized with an apparent heart attack. A ninth, Mayor Enrique Dau Flores, obtained a temporary restraining order against his arrest.

Californians beginning to clean up after earthquake

SCOTIA, Calif. (AP) — Millworkers restacked lumber Monday and firefighters hosed the remains of the town's center, which caught fire during a series of violent earthquakes that caused about $51 million in damage.

"I guess it's unemployment," said John Mock, pointing to the black hole that once was the lumber store where his wife, Arlene, worked. "That was our only income."

Cleanup efforts also were under way in Fortuna, Rio Dell, Petrolia and Ferndale, small towns in Northern California "Lost Coast" region damaged by Saturday's magnitude-6.9 temblor and two sharp aftershocks early Sunday.

Ninety-five people were injured, none seriously, according to an informal survey of hospitals.

The Red Cross, which had completed 65 percent of its survey by Monday, said 308 homes were damaged by the quake, and 247 were uninhabitable.

About 1,000 people registered at shelters in Rio Dell and Scotia, but only about 100 actually slept at the two centers.

"Because of the magnitude of the two aftershocks, we're finding many people are reluctant to stay inside buildings. They are using tents (and) sleeping bags," said Elizabeth Quirk, a Red Cross spokeswoman.

The state Office of Emergency Services estimated damage at $51 million. Gov. Pete Wilson declared Humboldt County a disaster area and county officials said Monday they'll ask the Bush administration for a federal disaster declaration, making damage victims eligible for more aid.

The quakes spared the large Scotia complex belonging to Pacific Lumber Co., which operates the company-built town of neat frame houses, but knocked over stacks of lumber in the yard.

About 700 mill workers were asked to report to work Monday to begin cleaning up, said Pacific Lumber President John Campbell.

The first serious aftershock hit at 12:42 a.m. Sunday and measured 6.0 on the Richter scale. The second, magnitude 6.5, hit at 4:18 a.m.

Both were centered near the spot where the first quake struck, south of Eureka, about 270 miles north of San Francisco. People as far away as Fresno, 460 miles to the south, felt the second aftershock.

Scotia resident Hazel Sarlund said the first aftershock was bad enough. Then she saw the red glow in the sky.

"It was terribly upsetting," Sarlund said. "It felt like the end to everything was coming."

Perot supporters begin petition drive in Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — About 200 Ross Perot supporters have kicked off a petition drive to get the Texas billionaire on the Indiana ballot for the November presidential election.

"I felt strongly — very, very strongly — about him as a president, so I turned down a job to do this full-time. There's probably no other person I would do this for," said Kristina Seay, 23, a recent college graduate who heads the Perot Petition Committee in Marion County.

Perot needs 29,919 signatures of registered voters to be on the ballot in Indiana this fall.

About 200 people from around the state were in Indianapolis over the weekend to train for the petition drive, which began Sunday afternoon.

Perot supporter Houston Macy, 61, said he doesn't understand the criticism Perot has gotten for wanting to run the country as a business.

Jackson says he would run with Clinton

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jesse Jackson, after twice suggesting that he should be Bill Clinton's presidential running mate, today said he would be honored to serve if selected but that he wasn't trying to exert pressure.

"I have consistently said that the eventual nominee of the party has the option of whom he will recommend to be on the ticket," Jackson said in a statement. "I have also consistently said that such discussion is premature and diversionary."

The New York Daily News today quoted Jackson as saying that "I've got the experience and I've got the votes. I see myself as a running mate for the Democratic Party." The newspaper further quoted Jackson as saying he was "prepared to react" if his offer to serve on the ticket was ignored or rejected.

And in an interview this morning with AP Network News, Jackson hinted that he might withhold backing from a ticket that did not include him. "I have supported it all these years, not being on the ticket, but things do change," he said.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

ND/SMC community is not immune to AIDS threat

Dear Editor:

As we are avoiding our homework, we have decided to come forth and address an issue with which we are concerned. As we become older, wiser, soon to be alumni, we are realizing that we are soon to enter a much more "unsheltered" world. Yet, even with this thought, we feel that we should point out that this life "under the Dome" is not as sheltered as we have been led to believe.

We feel one major issue has been ignored here at good ol' ND. This issue is AIDS. Many of us have been blind to the possibility of Domers and SMC's having this disease, but look at the figures.

Do we really think that we are so special that we are immune? Pariahs do not protect you against AIDS, nor does the Catholic faith—only abstinence. Our concern has been increased with what we believe to be truths and not rumors of students presently involved on both campuses that are infected with HIV.

We feel that this issue needs to be more openly addressed by the student body leaders and the administration. There should be anonymous testing done by the health services in order to get Notre Dame statistics. The disease is exponentially increasing in younger people—high school and college age.

One scary figure we have seen is that one out of every 200 college students is infected with HIV. This may not be the case at Notre Dame, but we should not be so naive to think that this is not the case. Sex is a part of life, even at Notre Dame and Saint Mary's. Unfortunately, our beliefs in our Catholic University as a type of haven from the evil world may keep the reality of this disease hidden.

The purpose of this university is to educate the students and better prepare them for life. There are student groups presently on campus who have been involved in educating students on HIV/AIDS.

However, without the acknowledgment of this disease as a true threat to this community, students will still maintain a false sense of security. Hopefully, it will not take public disclosure of a student testing positive with HIV to awaken our concern.

Not until November, when Magic Johnson announced that he is HIV positive, was the heterosexual community truly scared.

We urge the administration and student body leaders to pursue this issue, now, before it escalates and explodes on this campus, as it is everywhere in this country. HIV/AIDS is infecting the lives of uneducated and ignorant young people.

Let's just hope that the members of the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's communities can become immune to this disease instead of becoming part of those statistics.

The ND women's basketball will return next winter to take the campus by storm dropped in order to make our schedule more competitive. The articles have also neglected to mention that we played the defending National Champions, Tennessee, to a 3-point loss in front of a crowd of over 8,000 fans. Where is the support? How can students attack the women's basketball program when so few students even attend the games?

When the men's or women's basketball teams do not perform up to the fans expectations, sports writers seem to find plenty of extra time to point out the weaknesses of the coaching staff and the program as a whole.

Furthermore, sports writers should concentrate on reporting the facts and leave the judgement calls for those of us inside the program who at least know the complete story. Leave the program alone and let those of us who want to play, play!

The women's basketball team is made up of a group of individuals striving to attain a common goal, and those who are not willing to give of themselves for the better of the team only hamper the success of the program. The Notre Dame women's basketball team will be successful, but only with the players who want to participate in reaching that common goal.

If someone is unhappy here, then it is in their best interest to go where they think they will find happiness. Losing one good freshman does not mean that the basketball team is headed for a downfall. As Chris Kennedy mentioned in his letter to the editor, there are ten other exceptionally talented ball players who deserve some credit for their efforts and two incoming freshmen who deserve a chance.

The media has also neglected to mention one freshman who will be with the team next year, Letitia Bowen. Letitia has been a wonderful addition to the program, not only for her exceptional gifts as an athlete, but for her dedication in the classroom and her constant support as a friend. This team wants to be successful. Those of us who are staying have the dedication and the determination it takes to be successful.

The Notre Dame women's basketball team will be back. We had a disappointing season, but we will be back to take this campus by storm!

To the students who have never seen a women's basketball game, I think you should come watch us . . . you just might be surprised!

'Pageant of the Virtues'

The Notre Dame Schola Gregoriana choir will present St. Hildegard of Bingen's Ordo Virtutum

By JACK WALTON
Accent Writer

On Thursday April 30, at 8 p.m. in Sacred Heart Basilica, and again on Sunday May 3 at St. Matthew's Cathedral, the Schola Gregoriana of the University of Notre Dame will perform a spiritual music drama, the Ordo Virtutum ("Pageant of the Virtues"), written and composed by St. Hildegard of Bingen.

Fabian Lochner, a PhD student at the Notre Dame Medieval Institute, and musical director of the Schola Gregoriana, explained that this informal choir was founded four years ago, performing Gregorian Chant at local liturgies. Last year, the group became more ambitious and planned this event. The group consists of graduate students, faculty, and staff, and they are always on the lookout for new undergraduates. Many have some musical experience; others have none, stated Lochner.

Lochner calls St. Hildegard "one of the greatest woman saints of the Catholic Church." A Benedictine abbess in 12th Century Germany, her "gift of vision and prophecy" survives in her three books, which are "very important spiritual sources," and the Ordo Virtutum is from the first of these, Scivias ("Know the Ways," ca. 1151), said Lochner. Her goal was to aid Christians in understanding notions, such as the place of mankind in the cosmos, the Fall, and redemption, stated Lochner.

The Ordo Virtutum, explained by Lochner, presents the inner struggle of a human soul, torn between the call of the Virtues and the temptations of the Devil. The Devil is not given music, only speaking and screaming, and challenges the Virtues, claiming that they do not even know themselves. The Virtues proceed to introduce themselves (charity, chastity, temperance, et. al.) and the revelation is so glorious that the soul is won over. The Devil is bound; the soul joins the Virtues.

The setting for this musical drama is the spirit world. The voices are unsexed, and express their spiritual paradigms in music that, like Gregorian Chant, is not polyphonic, but linear, said Lochner. St. Hildegard is revolutionary in her unique, personal, and unprecedented handling of melodies and tonal qualities; "She adds an emotional depth to the music that is unknown to Gregorian Chant," observes Lochner.

The crucial part in the drama, that of the soul, will be sung by soloist Noírin Ní Riain, an Irish recording artist, stated Lochner. Lochner is a long-time fan of her work, which has involved everything from scholarship in the Gaelic tradition of spiritual songs, to her work as an ethnomusicologist in the Irish countryside, documenting women's songs.

She travels the world on tour, and Lochner saw her in his native Belgium, performing a set that included Gaelic music, Gregorian Chant, and selections from St. Hildegard, he remembered. Lochner had her in mind especially for this project. As well as performing on April 30 and May 3, Noírin Ní Riain will give a solo recital at Sacred Heart on April 28 at 8:00 p.m. All the shows will be free, but donations are encouraged and appreciated.

Lochner, along with graduate student, Jennifer Blatchford, extends sincere thanks to the many Arts and Letters departments who have contributed to the program, and particularly to the Medieval Institute and its director, John Van Engen. They also thank John Houghton, a grad student who has translated Hildegard's Latin and will narrate the shows in English.

If all continues to go well, said Lochner, for the Schola Gregoriana, courses will be available to both graduate students and undergraduate students in order to allow people the chance to take part in this work while receiving credit. The group encourages anyone interested to join them in their projects.

Swayze plays in movie wasteland

By PETER BEVACQUA
Film Critic

Roland Joffe's ("The Killing Fields") latest film stars Patrick Swayze ("Ghost," "Dirty Dancing") as a young American doctor who leaves the western world in order to search for a new identity, and a reason to continue living. He, compelled by some form of self-induced paranoia, forsakes the medical profession, and finds himself adrift in India.

Max Lowe, played by Swayze, becomes involved with an Indian peasant, Hassari Pal (Om Puri). Hassari and his family were forced from their village by drought and famine, and migrate to Calcutta, the "City of Joy" seeking new urban wealth.

The premise seems quite interesting, but what follows is a futile attempt to incorporate postmodernism into a desolate land. Lowe initially refuses to put his invaluable medical practices into use at the local clinic, but he undergoes a moral conversion on his road to

City of Joy

(out of five)

Damascus—more a trail of boredom and tears than a road toward new understanding.

Swayze's character is a mixture of two immortal Hollywood personas: Shane and Elliot Ness (with a medical degree). He is the quintessential G-man/gunslinger with a stethoscope for a six-shooter, and he is forced to do battle with a character so reminiscent of Marlon Brando's portrayal of Don Corleone that I found myself laughing aloud at such a self-conscious overkill act.

This is the 1990's, and it is true that postmodernism is very chic. However, what Roland Joffe fails to realize is that peasant characters overcome by a constant state of poverty and hunger are not going to hail a dirty dancing doctor as their savior. The film is not convincing—it tries to be spiritually uplifting, and fails.

The stunning cinematography and Ennio Morricone's

(responsible for the sounds of Sergio Leone's Spaghetti Westerns) soundtrack make the film somewhat bearable. But, sorry to say, there is dialogue, and plenty of it. The local clinic is run by Joan Bethel (Pauline Collins) who utters statements which are so didactic that even Socrates himself would be repulsed.

If you have an urgent desire to see the Indian landscape via film, rent "Gandhi." If you feel compelled to see Patrick Swayze, rent "The Outsiders." Stay away from "City of Joy," it is a cinematic wasteland.

Architecture exhibit honoring Jaime Bellalta is on display in Architecture Building

By LAURIE SESSA
Assistant Accent Editor

In honor of the retirement of one of Notre Dame's most respected professors, the American Institute of Architecture Students (AIAS) is sponsoring an exhibit of the work of Jaime Bellalta, associate professor of architecture.

Having taught in the Notre Dame School of Architecture since 1976, Professor Bellalta has profoundly influenced many students of architecture according to David Kuhlman, a fifth year architecture student who has worked closely with Bellalta.

Bellalta was born and raised in Santiago, Chile and received his degree in architecture at Catholic University of Chile. He was then awarded a full scholarship to the Graduate School of Design at Harvard University, where he received his Masters of Architecture in 1952.

After post-graduate studies at the University of London, Bellalta returned to teach at Catholic University in Santiago, and then came to Notre Dame in 1976.

Bellalta is a "philosophical designer," said Amy Shiber, a fourth year architecture student and member of AIAS. In his designs, he is concerned with sight and life, paying attention to the site on which the building will rest, Shiber stated.

"His approach is much more prophetic or spiritual...that we are doing the work of God," said Kuhlman.

Bellalta believes that architecture can be seen as "the search for rebuilding paradise." Much of his professional work includes residential, urban and religious projects in Chile, England and the United States.

One of his most famous projects is the Benedictine Monastery in Santiago, Chile which is now being nominated as a national landmark according to Kuhlman. "His is the only modern work that has been nationally recognized in Chile," Kuhlman stated.

Bellalta has also done much local work, including a proposal for the interior renovation of St. Bavo's Parish Church in Mishawaka, and a proposal for the Chapel/Conference addition to the Fatima Retreat House which is intended to be built. Bellalta has also designed two houses in the area, and is presently working on the design of a mid-size house in Mishawaka.

According to Kuhlman, Bellalta is unique as a teacher. "Professor Bellalta has been a teacher in many ways: through his personal involvement in the Sacred Heart Parish, his vocational outlook and teaching of architecture, and his value for love and family," said Kuhlman.

In the classroom, "there isn't really a teacher-student atmosphere. He's more of a friend and does not treat us like we're on a lower level," said Kuhlman. "He has integrity for what he believes and is very personal to us," he added.

Bellalta taught his studio class from his house and student houses through dinner and discussion every Wednesday night. "We talked about things in general, and it usually ended up with him talking about his experiences," said Kuhlman.

"His students will always value the insight and advice he has provided for both architecture and life in general," Kuhlman stated.

Bellalta's work is on display on the second floor of the Architecture Building until May 17.

'Faces of Women'

African awareness is emphasized in a new film

By FRED KROL
Accent Writer

In an attempt to increase the Notre Dame community's awareness of African culture and traditions, the African Student Association will be showing Désiré Écare's award-winning film, "Faces of Women."

The film presents "the most insightful look at women in African society," says Guillaume Zounlome, acting president of the African Student Association. "It points out the day-to-day struggle of women to get their own rights and have men respect them," he said.

"The struggle of women is not particular to Africa," notes Zounlome. He adds that the universal nature of this struggle is the main reason the Association chose the two-part film from the Ivory Coast.

The first story tells of an unhappy wife who has a steamy affair with her husband's brother. The "Blue Lagoon"-type love scene may explain why the film has no rating. After the affair, the suspicious husband attempts to reassert his power by stating, "You're my possession, my slave." The wife retorts by calling her husband "stupid." During the tension a chorus of women sing,

"Men deserve one thing only - to be deceived."

The second part of the film depicts the struggles of Bernadette, a woman trying to succeed in the male-dominated business world. Her efforts are complicated because she is not trusted and is unable to do anything without her husband's permission. She also risks alienating herself from her village by competing with men.

In addition, Bernadette must adapt to an economic system based on money rather than bartering. The film deals "with the problems involved with learning to cope with money," said Désiré Écare, the film's director.

Singing and dancing, along with festivals and ceremonies are woven together in the film to provide insight into village life. "The dances and the songs... symbolize the whole spirit of the film, its celebration of joy," said Écare.

English subtitles accompany the film which was featured at the Cannes Film Festival and the London Film Festival in 1985.

The film has won awards such as the Award of International Council of Television and Movie at the Cannes, London, and San Francisco Festivals and is the first movie from Ivory Coast to ever reach New York.

"Faces of Women" will be shown Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Annenberg Auditorium of the Snite Museum. Admission is $1.

seven points and seven boards to lead Bridget's.

Now for the tourney MVP. I thought Vazquez was the logical choice for MVP. In the last three games, he had a better shooting percentage than Bose (19-30 to Bose's 15-31), pulled down 27 rebounds and added so much in terms of intensity (look at his four steals in the final).

My dissatisfaction with the tournament teams leads me to the Bookstore commissioners. When I needed information, they were more than willing to help me. However, one error (telling me that Ebony Side Of The Dome was sponsored by Adworks when Ebony was really sponsored by Black Alumni Of Notre Dame) caused the members of Ebony and others to be upset, rightly so, at the fact that I misstated their sponsor.

My final grief is with the referees. I think that being a ref would be one of the toughest things to do. However, the refs did not call things consistently. Also, bigger players had to get hit a lot harder in order to draw fouls.

I suggest that the Bookstore commissioners either eliminate referees altogether or the commissioners bring in some outside referees, such as high school refs to be impartial for the round of 16 onward.

Competition causes men trouble at Drake Relays

By RIAN AKEY
Sports Writer

The Irish men's track squad returned with a mixed bag of results after this weekend's meets at Drake and Ball State.

Many of the team's usual top finishers struggled somewhat with inclement weather and the intense competition of powerful Midwest teams at the 83rd Drake Relays. Among those was co-captain Ryan Mihalko, whose 201 foot javelin throw earned him 9th place.

Mihalko seemed neither pleased nor discouraged with his effort at Drake, but was optimistic about the improvement he has shown recently.

"The last two weeks," he commented, "I have established an upward trend which I hope to continue and finish the season strong."

The top finish at Drake belonged to the 4 mile relay team, who finished 4th. The squad consisted of Shawn Schneider, Mike McWilliams, J.T. Burke, and Pat Kearns.

At Ball State, several young Notre Dame athletes shined, with one freshman qualifying for the IC4As.

John Cowan, running the 3000 meter steeplechase, became the second Irish runner to qualify for the IC4As in that event. His time of 9:14.57 earned him first in the event as well.

Of this performance, head coach Joe Piane noted, "John really impressed me by winning the first steeplechase he's ever run in his life. It is a really good start for him and an indication of some good things to come from him."

Another 1st place finisher at Ball State was Sophomore Chris Ross, who ran the 400 meter hurdles in 54.47 seconds. This win was the first of his collegiate career.

"The race was run under windy, rainy conditions," Ross remarked, "and it was not my best time this year. But the conditions slowed everyone down, and fortunately I ended up on top. I'm still .1 of a second from qualifying for the IC4As and hopefully I can do that next week."

Other top Irish finishers included another 400 meter hurdler, Dan Amitie, who wound up 4th. In the 800 meters, Mike Dierks ran to a 2nd place finish, shading fellow Irish runner Chet Taff, who came in 4th. Jim Trautman completed the 5,000 meter course in just over 15 minutes, landing in 2nd place.

having personal bests. Sophomore Darcee Bishop ran 28.6 seconds, Christy LaBarbera ran 29.3 seconds and Candi Gossman ran 31 seconds.

"You always look for improvement as a sign of a good season and it was always there", said Szczechowski.

The Belles will only lose three runners while bringing in a more experienced team next fall. According to Szczechowski, recruiting is underway and there have been verbal commitments.

"It makes me feel so good about this season but I am looking forward to track already", said Szczechowski. "But I will miss the seniors. They have been inspirations to the whole team."

"I am going to miss Lynn, Sharon and Trudi(Sullivan) and I will miss working with the freshman", stated Macklin.

At the end of the meet, the Belles carried Szczechowski off the field. "We yelled 'Ski' and he was laughing...it was a great end", said Pfeffer.

"I was videotaping and they carried Ski off.", said Macklin. "He's like your dad. I always looked forward to seeing him at practice."

Rangers win 8-5; lead series 3-2

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Rangers rediscovered their power play and put themselves one game away from the second round of the Stanley Cup playoffs.

"I guess both teams were ready to explode offensively," New York's Mike Gartner said after scoring three goals, two on the power play, to lead the Rangers to a wild 8-5 victory over the New Jersey Devils on Monday night.

"Both teams have been playing such close, tight-checking games. It was just a matter of time before they blew things wide open."

The Rangers built a 5-0 lead with the help of three power-play goals, then withstood a furious rally by the Devils, who twice came within one goal in the final period.

A victory in Game 6 at New Jersey on Wednesday night would put the regular-season NHL champions into the Patrick Division finals against either Pittsburgh or Washington.

"It certainly wasn't a defensive battle," said Rangers defenseman James Patrick, "but it's two more points in this series and that's the important thing."

The Rangers had struggled offensively in the first four games, mainly because they were only 1 for 22 on the power play. In Game 5, though, they scored on all three opportunities with the extra man.

After Gartner staked them to a 2-0 lead after one period, the Rangers scored three straight goals in the first 7:56 of the second, two of them on consecutive power plays.

New Jersey goaltender Chris Terreri, who had been spectacular in the four previous games, didn't make it through the second period this time, giving up five goals on just 15 shots. The last two goals came on consecutive power plays in the second period as the Rangers scored twice in 42 seconds on goals by Gartner and Doug Weight.

That gave the Rangers what seemed to be an insurmountable 5-0 lead. But the Devils came back to make it a game by scoring five of the next six goals before Adam Graves scored twice in the last seven minutes to clinch it for New York, which won despite being outshot 48-30.

"They didn't give up and they made it tough on us late in the game," Graves said. "They can create a lot of offense. I don't think we panicked. We just tried to get back to our game and we did."

Gartner made it 1-0 when he scored from the lower right circle at 10:41, capping a 2-on-1 rush with Kris King, then scored his first power-play goal from the right circle at 18:14 after taking a pass off the right boards from Sergei Nemchinov.

Joe Kocur made it 3-0 with an off-balance shot from the slot after a sensational solo effort at 2:57 of the second period.

The Rangers then scored 14 seconds into a two-man advantage when Gartner connected from the side of the net for his third goal of the night and fifth of the playoffs. It was Gartner's second career playoff hat trick.

Kevin Todd scored from in front at 12:03, the first shot in 66 the Devils had gotten past Mike Richter. Alexei Kasatonov made it 5-2 with a shot from the right point at 14:59.

In the third period, the Devils got a power-play goal at 2:46 from Scott Stevens and another goal from Valeri Zelepukin at 3:38 to cut the Rangers' lead to 5-4.

The Rangers countered with a goal by King at 7:30, but the Devils came back to make it a one-goal game again 27 seconds later when rookie Bill Guerin, left alone in front, beat Richter from 10 feet.

However, Graves put the game away by converting 2-on-1 feeds from Mark Messier.

Pfeffer. "I throw better when I am not concentrating; it's natural."

For Pfeffer, having the whole track team watch her place for the last time, was an emotional experience.

"Usually the team is scattered at track meets but not this last time", said Pfeffer.

Overall, according to Pfeffer, the Belles held together as a team considering the harsh weather and injuries. "It was hard with the weather and we did the best we could", stated Pfeffer.

The rest of the Belles were finishing off the season with style. Sophomore Katie Linehan had a season best in the 100 meter—dashing off 13.6 seconds. She ran 28.1 seconds in the 200m having another season best.

"She had her best time in the 100m which she worked hard for", said Szczechowski.

Linehan, along with sophomore Cheryl Fortunak, were named next year's track co-captains.

The 200m seemed to be the magic race with three Belles all

Fred Marion and Tim Gordon will challenge Smith at the safety position. While incumbent Maurice Hurst appears set at one corner slot, the other is unstable with Ronnie Lippett and David Pool struggling last year. DB Dion Lambert from UCLA was a fourth round selection and should also challenge Smith for playing time.

After Rod Smith and Brown, the chances getting thinner for the Irish players to make a significant impact. The Indianapolis Colts thought highly enough of Culver to select him with the first pick in the fourth round. Culver is not thought of as a back who could anchor a running attack, but his versatility enhanced his draft status. He played both halfback and fullback while with the Irish.

"We feel Rodney can be an all-purpose type of back," said Colts coach Ted Marchibroda. "He's got good quickness and can catch passes."

Although the Colt backfield appears empty after the trade of Eric Dickerson, halfback Albert Bentley remains as a solid performer when healthy, and either 1990 Notre Dame graduate Anthony Johnson and Tim Manoa appears ready to take hold of the fullback position.

Brooks saw himself fall all the way into the fourth round, where Philadelphia finally took him. The Eagles have only one truly productive back in Earnest Byner, and it is clear they are surging for a more dynamic back. Alabama star Siran Stacy went ahead of Brooks, in the third round, and should be his chief competition for carries this season. Current halfback James Joseph showed signs of brilliance, but averaged only 3.3 yards a carry in 1991.

Despite the opportunity to play Brooks was clearly disappointed in being chose so late in the draft.

"I did everything right. There were so many guys drafted ahead of me who I was better than," commented a dejected Brooks. "This was the most frustrating day of my life."

McGuire will undoubtedly be placed in a backup role in New Orleans. Veteran Joel Hilgenberg remains a solid performer, and the Saints will likely groom McGuire into his successor.

Tony Smith is joining a Chief team which is attempting to bring youth to an aging receiving corp. Last year's third round pick Tim Barnett showed he is Kansas City's big play receiver of the future, but a spot remains for a possession type receiver who could work opposite Barnett.

Williams and Jurkovic, despite their solid collegiate careers, weren't thought of as blue-chippers by NFL teams.

Jurkovic had the size but failed to show impressive numbers at the scouting combines, running only a 5.44 forty-yard dash and doing only 19 repetitions at 225 lbs. Despite his poor numbers, the Bears felt it was worth spending a tenth round choice on him. If he makes the squad he will probably spend some time in the weight room, and could see some action behind Mark Bortz and Tom Thayer later in the season.

Williams played a significant role in the 1988 championship team, and in 1990 he had ten tackles for a loss, second to only Chris Zorich. He was expected to anchor the line in 1990, but missed the season for personal reasons. Despite the year off from football, William's physical attributes tempted the Browns enough to use a sixth round pick on the six-foot one, 303 lb lineman.

Draft analyst Mel Kiper considers William's a solid selection, and believes his future in the pros is up to him.

"If he wants an NFL career bad enough, the performance level I saw with the Irish indicates he has a good shot at earning a job," stated Kiper. "He's an effective, pure NT."

Some of the Notre Dame seniors fell into the later portion of the draft due to the abundance of quality talent in this year's selection process.

since it is our last. We would also like to land the team some strong recognition in the form of a NCAA tournament bid," said Chris Dayton.

Also recognized by the Notre Dame club of Saint Joe Valley for their achievements as Student-Athletes were seniors Mike Crisanti, for the men's team, and Allison Wojnas of the women's team.

The Most Valuable Player for the women's team was Allison Wojnas.

Junior Kathy Phares will lead the women's team upon being named captain for the upcoming season.

"I'm very excited about the opportunities that await our team. We have great potential and, with only one outgoing senior, I hope I can help maintain the cohesion of the team and lead them through another strong season," said Kathy Phares.

Both coaches Thomas and Hanlon expressed strong approval for the past and upcoming seasons.

"We are playing the best teams in the country. As a result, we are becoming stronger competitively and in our tournaments. It is only a matter of time before we will evenly compete, until then, I have great expectations for the upcoming season," said Thomas.

"I have to agree. We are increasingly playing stronger teams and becoming a better team as a result. I'm really proud of the team and their accomplishments and I look forward to the upcoming season," said Hanlon.

Softball to face Indiana State

Observer Staff Report

This week marks the end of the regular season for the Notre Dame softball team.

After winning three of four games over the weekend, the Irish (27-23) close the 1992 campaign with doubleheaders against Indiana State, DePaul and Dayton on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, respectively.

Today at 3 p.m. the Irish face Indiana State for the third and fourth time this season.

Both previous meetings came in March at the Sycamore Invitational, with Indiana State winning the first game 5-0 and the Irish taking the second game 2-1.

In the first game, the Irish could manage only one hit, while Missy Linn's five-hit pitching led Notre Dame to the win in game two.

Amy Vaira, boasting a .410 batting average, is the Sycamores' offensive leader. Debbie Styx is close behind at .391 and she is third in the nation in triples. Styx is also a force on the mound, carrying an 8-2 record with a 1.00 ERA into today's matchup.

On Thursday, Notre Dame will be in Chicago to face DePaul and the regular season will come to a close on Friday when Dayton visits at 3 p.m. The MCC tournament begins on May 12 in Indianapolis.

The Notre Dame softball team has earned academic honors for the second consecutive season.

Six Irish players earned a spot on the MCC Academic Honor Roll. Ronny Alvarez, Amy Folsom, Casey McMurray, Lisa Miller, Sheri Quinn and Amy Reuter earned the honor with a GPA of at least 3.25. For the second straight year, Folsom was nominated for a spot on the GTE academic all-America team.

Women's track battles elements at Ball St.

By JOSEF EVANS
Sports Writer

It was another wet weekend for the Notre Dame women's track team, as this time they battled rain and cold in Muncie, Indiana at the Ball State Invitational. However, the Irish women must be gaining a tolerance for inclement weather, for they turned in some of their strongest performances of the year.

"The weather didn't help us very much, but we really showed our toughness and hung in for some good finishes," admitted assistant coach Tim Connelly.

Youth was served for the women in the 3000 meters, where the team gave its most impressive performance. Four of the top five places were held by freshmen, with Stefanie Jensen capturing the top spot. Classmates Eva Flood, Kristi Kramer, and Sarah Riley raced to the third, fourth and fifth spots respectively.

The 1500 meter race was also a showcase for the freshmen, with Emily Husted coming in second at a time of 4: 44. 31, and Kala Boulware placing fourth (4: 47. 63). Senior captain Diana Bradley also ran well in the race, coming in fifth at 4: 48. 04.

This meet was notable for the team in that they fielded their first heptathlete, freshman Susan Maher. The heptathlon consists of seven events, in which the athletes earn points for their finishes in each event that are totalled to determine the winner. Maher rose to the occasion with a fourth place finish, as she compiled 3, 712 points, and captured the shot put portion of the competition with a throw of 37-1 1/4.

Also throwing the shot for the Irish, but not in the heptathlon, was junior Karen Harris. She came in seventh in that event, but did not fare as well in the discus, where her best throw (109-4) was only good enough to take 14th.

Sprinter Kristin Stovall, meanwhile, fell short of setting the personal record she had hoped for in the 400 meters, coming in sixth with a time of 1: 02. 79. She also placed seventh in the 200 meters.

The women will return to Muncie this coming weekend for a five-team meet, and if Saturday's strong showing in bad weather is any indication, maybe a little rain isn't so bad after all.

Correction:

Due to an editor's error, the Bookstore article on The Gauchos mistakenly stated that Rob Vazquez ended the final with a lay-up when he really hit a free throw. Also, it was David Bose, not Pete DiGiovanni that missed the dunk against Just Chillin'. The Observer regrets the error.

Reflections on ...

Bookstore Basketball

It's one of the biggest events on this campus and possibly the most exciting. Ask Dave Bose, the MVP of the tourney as chosen by the commissioners about Bookstore and he will tell you it is one of the things that kept him at Notre Dame.

However, after watching this year's tourney and writing articles for The Observer, I have found that Bookstore has many problems.

First, I think the All-Bookstore teams and the players receiving accolades should have been different. I found the All-Bookstore teams did not include many people whom deserved the recognition. I made my selections based on overall play and the intangibles each player added to their team. I chose people who may have not had a great game every day, but they are enough of a presence on the court to be All-Bookstore. Therefore, I would like to select my three All-Bookstore teams featuring players from the Sweet 16 onward.

The third team would consist of: P.J. Stettin (Salubrious & Callipigious), Bob Cataldo (McCormick's), Marlin Crook (Ebony Side Of The Dome), LaRon Moore (Ebony Side Of The Dome) and Mike Toner (The Gauchos).

All five of these players had excellent tournaments. Stettin played on the surprise team of the tourney and turned in many fine games. Cataldo played a consistent tournament. Toner was a crowd favorite and the Mr. Bookstore award showed he best exemplified the tournament. Crook was the leader on the boards for Ebony while Moore shot the lights out.

My second team is made up of: Ray Griggs (Just Chillin'), Kevin Rule (Just Chillin'), Demetrius DuBose (Frank Drebbin and the 'Cocks), Andy Curoe (Malicious Prosecution) and Ed Larkin (Bridget's).

Griggs played well throughout the tourney even with spring football taking place. He provided many intangibles for his team while Rule distinguished himself as both an inside and outside player. DuBose almost carried his team through the tourney including the 21-17 loss to Tequila. He shot 8-11 from the floor, added a free throw and grabbed nine boards. Larkin helped lead Bridget's with his shooting but I think another Bridget's player deserves first team.

That team would be comprised of: Rob Vazquez (The Gauchos), Dave Bose (The Gauchos), Eric Jones (Tequila White Lightning XI), Dave Clar (Just Chillin') and John Carretta (Bridget's).

Vazquez and Bose both had excellent tournaments as evidenced by their team being crowned champions. Jones is one of the best big men on campus. Despite having a tough final game, he was the leader for Tequila. Look no further than his 10-15 performance from the floor against Bridget's plus his rebounding. Clar was the big shooter for Just Chillin' including nine points against McCormick's. Carretta was who I thought led Bridget's. In their game against Malicious, he shot 6-8 from the floor and 2-4 from the charity stripe not to mention his rebounds. In the Final Four, he had

Irish have eight players selected

By GEORGE DOHRMANN
Sports Writer

The Observer/ Andrew McCloskey
Rod Smith, shown intercepting Andy Kelly of Tennessee in 1990, was drafted by the Patriots and is expected to challenge for the starting job.

Three more Irish players were taken in the second day of the NFL draft, raising the total of Notre Dame players to eight.

WR Tony Smith, DL George Williams, and OL Mirko Jurkovic joined first day selections TE Derek Brown, DB Rod Smith, C Gene McGuire and running backs Tony Brooks and Rodney Culver as Irish seniors selected.

Smith went to the Kansas City Chiefs and Williams to the Cleveland Browns in the sixth round, while Jurkovic went to the Chicago Bears in the tenth round.

The odds on all eight players making an opening day roster appear high considering the teams they are joining. The number of those players who will make an impact in their inaugural season is much slimmer.

Brown and Rod Smith appear to be virtual locks when it comes to playing time next season. Brown was selected by the New York Giants with the 14th selection in the first round, and was penciled in as the starter the minute NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue read the choice.

Howard Cross, primarily a blocking tight end, is the only tight end on the roster, and managed to catch only 20 passes last year, a considerable drop off from the 33 caught by former Irish star and Giant tight end Mark Bavaro in 1990.

Coach Ray Hanley's

offensive system centers around a short passing attack, with the tight end playing an integral role. Bavaro flourished in the system and Brown appears likely to also. Washington TE Aaron Pierce, an imposing physical specimen and gifted athlete, was the Giant's third round. The drafting of two receiving ends, shows Handley's commitment to return to the short passing offense, an ideal offense for a player with Brown's capabilities.

"I believe I can do a little of everything," said Brown. "I can block and I can run, and I'm a team player."

Rod Smith will be joining a New England Patriot organization screaming for talent in the defensive backfield. It is unsure whether Smith will be asked to play cornerback or safety at the pro level, but he believes he has the capabilities to handle both slots.

"I played both CB and safety in college, so I don't think there will be any difficulty making the transition to either spots," said Smith, who's versatility tempted the Patriots enough to make them trade a fourth round selection to move up in the second round to select him.

"Foxboro is a beautiful area, and it is a lot like Minnesota, where I am from," added Smith. "I am also only a hope, skip and a jump away from New York and Boston."

Saint Mary's track team ran the last leg of their season at the Elmhurst Invitational this past weekend where they posted many personal and season bests.

But for seniors Sandi Macklin and Sharon Fisher, the meet did not reflect their last season.

Macklin's track meet was cut short when she pulled a hamstring in the 4 x 100 relay. Macklin, running third leg, passed a bad exchange to fellow senior Lynn Pfeffer when the injury occurred.

"I never thought a pulled muscle could feel that way," stated Macklin.

"The relay team was a different combination which worked well in practice", said Coach Larry Szczecowski. "She pulled her leg at the exchange which slowed them down - it was too bad."

Macklin tried to participate in the long jump but she could not get down the runway. Although disappointed, Macklin was pleased with her season performance.

"I never expected to do as well as I had done", said Macklin.

Senior Sharon Fisher, due to a misunderstanding, was not able to make her last meet.

For senior Lynn Pfeffer, her track season is not over yet. Pfeffer is trying to qualify for the nationals. To do this, she must participate in other meets in the next two weeks.

"If I am to qualify in the provisional nationals, I need about 10-11 more inches", said Pfeffer. "I'm hoping but I am happy with this season's end."

According to Szczecowski, Pfeffer had a good week in practice but it did not work out for her. "She was trying too hard," he said.

Pfeffer jumped 32'11 in the triple jump and landed 15'6 in the long jump. She threw 110'11" and placed third in the last event of her track career.

"The javelin was my last event", said

Irish golf teams finish spring season

This past weekend the men's and women's Golf Teams traveled to Columbus, Ohio for tournaments hosted by Ohio State University. Similar to prior tournaments, this was the fourth straight weekend that the teams were subject to inclement weather conditions.

"Once again, the weather was not in our favor, we had to face a very cold, windy and rain-plagued course," said Coach Tom Hanlon.

Despite the adversity, the women's Golf team finished a strong sixth place at the First Annual Lady Buckeye Spring Invitational.

Leading the team with a combined three round total of 232 and an impressive fifth place finish overall in the tournament was sophomore Crissy Klein.

Chris Dayton

"I am very proud of our of what we have accomplished this past weekend. We played very well considering the course conditions," said Hanlon.

"Our sixth place finish was very encouraging. This tournament demonstrated our ability to out perform teams that had defeated us earlier in the year," commented junior Kathy Phares.

The men's golf team competed in the Kepler Intercollegiate at Scarlet Golf Course this past weekend.

Leading the men's team with a combined three round score of 237 and a twenty-seventh place finish overall was junior Joe Dennen.

Overall, the team finished seventeenth in field filled with some of the countries top teams. Unfortunately for the Irish, the weather seemed to have affected their team performance all spring.

"There was hardly a weekend that went by that the cold, rainy weather did not hinder our performance. We are a good team. We have gotten much stronger in competition, but the weather never really gave us a complete opportunity to show it," said Head Coach George Thomas.

For both teams, Monday night brought forth signs of the upcoming season and recollections of the past as the teams gathered for their annual banquet.

For the men's team, juniors Chris Dayton and Joe Dennen were named co-captains for the upcoming season.

Junior Chris Dayton was also named Most Valuable Player for the Irish based on his performance in this past season.

"I am very pleased. I know that Joe and I are both looking forward to next year
