Peace With Johnson Possible - Thuy

PARIS (UPI) - Yuan Thuy, chief North Vietnamese negotiator at the Paris talks, said yesterday President Johnson "still has a chance" to obtain a peaceful solution to the Vietnam War before the U.S. elections next Tuesday.

Thuy spoke a few hours after he and American diplomats met for the last regular session before the elections and reported no progress toward expanding the Paris talks into a full fledged peace conference. Rumors persisted that some kind of a break was imminent.

"I clearly believe that if President Johnson wants a peaceful solution to the war he still has a chance to do so before the elections," Thuy said.

Thieu Urges "Constructive Attitude"

SAIGON (UPI) - President Nguyen Van Thieu said yesterday "the end of the war is near."

The chief executive spoke at the inauguration of a new 18 man government inspectorate, a body set up to fight corruption in the South Vietnamese government.

His speech was concerned mainly with the tasks facing the inspector panel but he did touch fleetingly on the question of war and peace, saying:

"It is important that we take a positive, constructive attitude now because the end of the war is near."

There have been rumors in almost every capital of the world that some break was imminent in the delicate diplomatic negotiations begun by Washington in an effort to end the war.

Thieu's statement was the first major indication the peace offensive started by President Johnson might be bearing fruit. However, Thieu cautioned earlier in the day there had been no breakthrough—an expression also used by Johnson last weekend.

Americans Win Nobel Prizes

STOCKHOLM (UPI) - The coveted Nobel prizes in physics and chemistry were awarded to Americans yesterday. Each award is worth $70,000.

The physics laureate, Prof. Luis W. Alvarez of the University of California, was honored for atomic research on the smallest particles in nature. The 57 year old scientist helped develop radar and the atomic bomb.

The winner of the chemistry prize, Norwegian born Prof. Lars Onsager, 65, of Yale University, was cited for discovering the "fourth law of thermodynamics." Onsager's law concerns chemical alterations which result from changes in pressure or temperature.

Hungry Cosmonaut Lands in Snowdrift

MOSCOW (UPI) - Soviet Cosmonaut Col. Georgy Bergovoi made a soft landing in a snowdrift yesterday, ending a four day solo flight in space he said was as quiet as a baby's cradle.

The shivering spaceman received a hero's welcome, then warmed up with a bowl of soup.

The 47 year old war hero and test pilot came down from his 61 orbit flight in the Soyuz 3 spaceship in the frigid Kazhakstan countryside.

"I feel excellent," he told villagers wading toward the spacecraft through the snow and the crew of a pickup helicopter. "But I'd like something to eat."

Middle Eastern Situation Worsens

TEL AVIV (UPI) - Syria's new war government dominated by 14 military officers was reported yesterday to be preparing for another "battle of destiny" with Israel. Egypt accused Israel of planning to attack and Israel warned of "heavy reprisals" if the Arabs start anything.

Peace efforts by United Nations envoy Gunner Jarring were said to be near collapse. With the situation steadily approaching an acute state four new clashes erupted along Israel's northern and eastern territories bordering her Arab neighbors. Three Arab commandos were killed and three Israeli soldiers wounded in the bloodiest clash, a brief firefight Tuesday night near Mount Hermon. An official spokesman in Jerusalem said Russian made rifles and hand grenades were found after the encounter.

NO OBSERVER TOMORROW

As everyone knows, November the First has traditionally been a day set aside by the Church to honor All Saints. However, recent tests have shown rather conclusively that there are no saints on the Observer staff. Consequently, in deference to all the other saints around here we have decided not to profane the day by publishing tomorrow.

ND Students Like HHH; Nixon Has Edge at SMC

Hubert H. Humphrey, Democratic nominee for President, captured 14 halls to edge out Richard Nixon in the SUAC sponsored Mock Presidential Election held yesterday. The Vice-President managed nearly 35% of the vote, while the Republican nominee received 33%.

Two write-in "non-candidates," Edward Kennedy and Gene McCarthy, also ran strongly. Dick Gregory nosed out George Wallace for fifth place, while Pat Paulsen finished seventh, despite a heavy TV campaign.

Nixon, who managed a strong finish by winning at St. Mary's, won in only five halls: Dillon, Howard, Keenan, St. Ed's, and Stanford, but ran a close race in several others. Young Republican Chairman Mike Kelly was encouraged by the results. He said, "Nixon ran much stronger than I had expected, because of the overwhelming Democratic color of the campus and the pro-Humphrey stance of almost all student leaders." Kelly held that the close race is a sign of the disaffection with the Vice-President on this campus. "I hope this is a reflection of the efforts of the YR's," Kelly concluded.

Rich Hunter, chairman of the ND Young Democrats, said he was gratified by the results, and that they would be wired to the Vice-President. "Nixon lost, no matter what the YR's say," Hunter commented. "They had the time and materials, but we Democrats had over 50% of the student body on our side. This is the first step; this proves Humphrey can win next week."

A total of 21 political figures received votes. 80 ballots were disqualified because the person written in was not a politician. Write-ins receiving more than 10 votes were Kennedy, McCarthy, Nelson Rockefeller (48), John Lindsay (21), and William Buckley (14).

John Mroz, SUAC chairman, was extremely pleased with the turnout. "The number of idiotic votes was very small, which shows that the students are concerned. The voting was relatively heavy." Mroz pointed out that "This is one of the ways SUAC is trying to spread its interests. Almost 100 SUAC men were involved with the Mock Election."

Raskin Seeks Change in 'Authoritarian Society'

Marcus Raskin, speaking to a crowd of over 100 persons at the Library Auditorium last night, urged the building of an anti-authoritarian fourth party in the United States.

Raskin, the National Director of the New Party, called the three existing parties basically "right-wing" authoritarian institutions who represent the basic structures in society.

In articulating the purposes of the New Party - New Politics Party in Indiana - Raskin stated its intent "to change the authoritarian structures in society." He hoped that the New Politics Party could "bring into the electoral and political processes huge groups who are now disfranchised," numbering among these students and blacks.

Raskin advocated the building of parallel counterstructures on the local level, to make clear to great numbers of the uneducated what society really is - a "top-down" structure.

Raskin urged groups to work to make universities democratic communities, as well as communities of scholars.

He called upon students to "go beyond the profile of what society expects" to become more human and, especially, more politically involved. In a question period, Raskin was asked what he thought of the future of the third and fourth parties in the United States.

He said the Wallace appeal was directed toward a lower middle class "protective of what they have" or "pegged to a deferred payoff." According to Raskin, Wallace says, "Look, you fools, your taxes are going to the poor," when in reality they are going to the rich who control the structures in society.

Doctor Scott To Speak at SMC Commencement

Dr. Nathan Alexander Scott, Jr., has been chosen to speak at the 1969 Commencement Exercises of Saint Mary's College. Dr. Scott was third on the list of proposed speakers submitted to Msgr. John J. McGrath by the Senior Class Speaker's Committee. Michael Harrington, first on the list, was not invited because "Saint Mary's College should not bestow an honorary degree on a fallen away Catholic," according to Msgr. McGrath.

Dr. Scott, a professor at the Divinity School of the University of Chicago, is a prominent Protestant theologian and author. His major works include The Tragic Vision and the Christian Faith, The Broken Center: Studies in the Theological Horizon of Modern Literature, and The Vision of Death. His studies of Albert Camus, Reinhold Niebuhr, Samuel Beckett and Ernest Hemingway have also been published. Dr. Scott, 43 years old, received his A.B. from University of Michigan, his B.D. from Union Theological Seminary, and his Ph.D. from Columbia. He is literary editor of the Christian Scholar.

Concerning Msgr. McGrath's decision against Harrington, Senior Class President Kathy Lammers said that she "was never informed of how the decision was made or of what the criteria for commencement speakers were." She said that seniors were "very upset with the reason behind the decision". Lammers continued, "It seems so archaic. To hold a spiritual decision against a man is opposed to everything we've been brought up to believe. Michael Harrington gave John Kennedy the intellectual stimulus to begin the War on Poverty. He is one of the nation's foremost sociologists. I'm sure his speech would have been creative, original, and directed toward this year's college graduate. He knows what is happening. Father McGrath's argument holds no water in the

Awaits SLC Ruling

Morrissey Sets Parietal Hours

The Morrissey Hall Council met two nights ago and passed a bill prescribing rules and procedures on women's visiting hours in that Hall.

The bill states that such action was necessary because "the ruling bodies of this University persist in ignoring this problem . . . they continue to encourage the development of 'meaningful communities' in words only, denying the face of what Michael Harrington has done."

K.T. Cannon, chairman of the Speaker's Committee, states that she was informed by Father Zemanick, assistant to Msgr. McGrath, that Msgr. McGrath was upset because Harrington had been raised as a Catholic but had fallen away, and because Harrington supposedly registered as a Communist four years ago. "I told Father Zemanick to go on to the next name on the list if Father McGrath was upset", Cannon said.

members of these communities the right to actually govern themselves." The hours were established on all Sundays, Fridays, and Saturdays, going to 1 a.m. on the latter two days. Also included in the bill was the statement "an open house may be declared by majority vote of the Morrissey Hall Council, although the President of Morrissey Hall retains the power of veto over such a declaration."

Hall Council President Phil McKenna commented, "The bill is a statement of hall feeling. It has been passed, but it has not been implemented, although we may do so at any time." Asked about when the bill most likely will be put into effect, he replied that the council will probably wait until next week's meeting of the S.L.C. when the parietal hours issue will be brought out before considering putting the bill into effect. "The hall has not decided to buck the system, but to work within the system." He also said that the hall was not afraid of direct confrontation with the university.

Future action planned by McKenna and other hall residents is the initiation of referendums in all halls so the Student Life Council will be made aware of how each hall feels on the parietal issue.

SLC Elects Permanent Officers

Early yesterday morning the Student Life Council met, approved a set of provisional guidelines, and elected officers for the coming year. Dean William Lawless of the Law School was named permanent chairman, Prof. John Houck of Business, his vice-chairman, and Mr. Phil Faccenda, executive secretary.

Also initiated was a three-man steering committee, with one representative from each contingent, to handle scheduling of agenda. Appointed to the committee were Rev. Thomas Blantz of Zahm Hall, Assoc. Prof. Gerald Jones of the physics dept., and senior Mike McCauley.

The basis of yesterday's meeting however, was spent fidgeting with a statement of prepared guidelines drawn up last week by Lawless, Houck, and Student Body Pres. Richard Rossie.

As the procedures now stand after numerous amendments SLC meetings will be open to the public and area press and generally held in the Center for Continuing Education at 8:00 Wed. evenings. Next week's session, though, will be at 9:00.

Issues to be discussed at future meetings will be determined by the steering committee, with the administrative help of Mr. Faccenda. Any member of the SLC or any group submitting the signatures of 50 students may approach the committee with a topic for debate. Special consideration, however, will be given to recommendations by the Student Senate. Rossie was particularly emphatic that since this body officially represents the students it should be given particular attention.

The issue of open meetings also drew some concern. The policy established would allow for "closed" discussion at the discretion of an SLC member, but generally the meetings will remain open. WSND taped yesterday's entire session.

SUAC Notes

The Student Union Academic Commission will sponsor poetry readings by Phil Perry and Bernice Daczeqitz of Loyola University on Sunday in the LaFortune Center. The readings will take place at 2PM in the second floor lobby.

The SUAC sponsored lecture series on the Religions of the World will feature its second speaker, Dr. Martin Marty, this Sunday. Dr. Marty, currently a professor at the University of Chicago Divinity School, will speak on Protestantism, with a concentration on Luthernism, his own denomination. The title of his talk, "Here I Stand" comes from the renown comment Martin Luther made to the Papal Legate when he was asked to recant his writings at the Diet of Worms in 1521. Among other things, Dr. Marty is the co-editor of Christian Century, he is on the editorial board of the National Catholic Reporter, he has written numerous books on Church history and related fields, and he is very popular as a lecturer. The talk will be in the Libreyary Auditorium at 8:00 p.m.

ND Second In Total Offense

Notre Dame takes the second most productive offense in the nation to Philadelphia Saturday for a 1:30 p.m. battle with Navy in John F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium. A capacity crowd of more than 100,000 is expected.

Latest NCAA college football statistics show ND's Eleven Prolific Men averaging 517.2 yards per game rushing and passing. Only Houston is better with a 528.4 norm.

The Irish are rated fourth in scoring with an average of 36.7 points per contest. Kansas leads with 45.2 points a game. Houston is second with 38.2 and Ohio University third with 37.7.

Navy is suffering through a bad year. The Middies have beaten only Pittsburgh (17-16) in their first six outings.

Coach Bill Elias' boys will be at a serious weight disadvantage Saturday. Both their lines average 205 pounds per man, compared to 232 for the Irish offensive wall and 250 for ND's defensive front four.

The Middle offense is paced by quarterback Mike McNallen, a 6-2 180-pounder from Chicora, Pa. Irish coach Ara Parseghian said earlier this week that "Navy will probably throw any number of times and run the outsides a great deal."

Halfbacks Coley O'Brien and Denny Allan return to action this week. O'Brien, who gets the starting nod, suffered a mild concussion at Michigan State last weekend. Allan, out of both the Illinois and MSU battles with a pulled hamstring, will back up Coley.

Irish linebacker Jim Wright, who re-injured a knee in East Lansing, will start at right inside linebacker.

Only change in their week's lineup is at left defensive halfback where John Gasser replaces Jay Standing.

Frosh Entertain State

Undefeated freshman football coach Wally Moore will be out to up his record to 4-0 Friday. His fledgling Irishmen will take on Michigan State at 1:30 p.m. in Notre Dame Stadium. Moore's record includes 1966 victories over the Spartans and Pittsburgh, and a 21-17 win over Pitt last year.

"It looks right now as though we've had an excellent recruiting season," says Moore, "But we won't know for sure until after Friday's game. We managed to get some nationally known and sought players like Bill Trapp (6'3", 205 lb. end from Chicago), Bill Etter (6'2", 185 lbs. quarter back from Spokane), Tom Gatewood (6'2", 210 lbs. halfback from Baltimore), and Scott Williams (6'2", 210 lbs. end-linebacker also from Baltimore)."

The Irish have a couple of swift backs in Clarence Ellis and Gatewood. Ellis is a 6'0" 180 lb. halfback from Grand Rapids, Mich., while Gatewood have what Moore calls "strong speed". Notre Dame is also supplied with size, with the likes of Phil Gustafson of Galesburg, Ill. and Herman Hotten of Tuskegee, Ala., a pair of 6'2", 250 lb. tackles.

Notre Dame faces a tough foe in the Spartans. According to Moore, MSU boasts superb backfield speed and a good-sized offensive line. Two years ago, the Irish slipped past State 30-27 on a 32-yard Ed Ziegler field goal with 1:15 remaining.

Coach Moore's offense was dealt a crippling blow on Monday when the highly-regarded Gatewood was lost with a broken hand. Gatewood, who sustained the injury in a blocking drill, must wear a cast from approximately four weeks. This will keep him out of the second MSU game on Nov. 15, and leave him doubtful for the Nov. 23 contest with the University of Tennessee.

Bengston Doesn't Believe

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Phil Bengtson, the Green Bay Packers coach, isn't the emotional type.

He doesn't slam doors and start kicking things around when he loses and he doesn't go out and do the town when he wins a big one.

Bengtson won a big one Monday night in Dallas when his Packers paddled the previously unbeaten Cowboys, 28-17, and he and his team didn't get back to Green Bay until 3 Tuesday morning. By 9 a.m., Bengtson was back at work.

"There's a whole lot to do," said the Packer coach from his desk in Green Bay. "Dallas was a must game for us but now we have Chicago coming up and we have to get ready for that one."

No coach likes to single out any of his players over the others because anytime he does all the rest feel neglected. Bengtson, in that regard is a great deal like his predecessor, Vince Lombardi, who invariably would credit the entire team following a key victory.

But there was one Green Bay player who did make the difference in Dallas Monday night and whether Bengtson was breaking one of his rules or not, he did single him out.

"Bart Starr," said the Packer coach in response to the question of which player more than any other was responsible for Green Bay's triumph.

"Having him back was a big help."

Had the Packers been beaten by the Cowboys, the season might have been all over for them. As it turned out, Starr, who had been hampered with a pulled muscle in his arm, tossed four touchdown passes and Green Bay now is tied with Detroit for the Central Division lead.

The oddsmakers had made Dallas the favorite for any number of reasons in Monday night's contest. Primarily there was the question of Starr's condition. Then there was Jerry Karpner, the Packers' brilliant offensive lineman, who was in no shape to put in regular duty.

Add to that the fact the Cowboys had won six in a row, were playing in their own backyard and wanted this particular game probably more than any other one this season, and you get a good idea of why Dallas was favored.

Through most of the first two quarters, the oddsmakers looked as if they knew what they were talking about. The Cowboys led, 10-0, with less than three minutes remaining before half time. Then it happened. Starr hit Carroll Dale with a 26-yard scoring pass and the Packers went into their dressing room trailing only by three points at intermission.

"That play more than any other one did it for us," Bengtson revealed. "We were back in the ball game."

The Green Bay coach didn't resort to any tirade during the 20 minute breath catcher. There was really no need for him to do so.

"We consider it more of a re-organization period," he explained. "We went over a number of things which we had worked on all week."

When the Packers went back out for the second half, the difference in them was immediately noticeable. The line blocking was far better and that made Starr much better.

He threw two TD passes to Marv Fleming in the third quarter and another to Boyd Dowler in the last quarter. When it was all over, there it was: the Packers always win the big ones.

Bengtson says the win over Dallas could have the effect of changing the whole season around for his Packers.

"It was a real must game for us, no question about it. Our boys had confidence in each other and I think they proved there's nothing wrong with the Packers. I haven't seen the game movies yet but I did notice several things I liked. Jerry Kramer also got in for a few plays and I think he'll be ready for Chicago."

One victory was all it took to disperse the crepe hangers who were going around saying the Packers might be all through.

Phil Bengtson, who isn't the emotional type, never believed what they were saying about the Packers.

For sure, he doesn't believe it now.
