

HPC wants compromise constitution

The Hall Presidents Council met last night and discussed at length and in depth the role designed for them in the Krashna Administration's proposed new Student Government Constitution. Emerging from the conference with Krashna and SBVP Mark Winings was a realization, in the words of HPC executive Coordinator, Tim Mahoney "that the answer is not this constitution or the Senate, but somewhere in between."

In closing the meeting, it was decided by Council Chairman John Barkett that the presidents would make informal recommendations to Krashna on the type of participation that would be acceptable to them, since the idea of a "Presidents Council" as expressed in the original draft of the new charter did not seem to appeal to many of the presidents.

The entire question of HPC participation in the constitutional referendum and the Senate elections on Wednesday came about as a result of a proposal made at the last meeting of the group. Last Thursday, Executive Coordinator Mahoney said that since he thought the Senate elections had not attracted enough candidates in many halls and since the expected turnout in some halls was "about 10%", the hall presidents themselves should run for the office, including their vice-presidents or some endorsed candidate if their hall had more than one seat in the Senate. The Senate-HPC thus created would then set up an interim government to discover the "best possible solution to the problem."

On the whole, the presidents rejected the proposal but endorsed the idea behind it, i.e., that the answer is not in either extreme of the issue, but in some idea not yet given official endorsement by any group.

The first order of business was the determination of the extent of action received on Mahoney's proposal. Most of the presidents seemed willing to go along with their halls in the matter, with only a few endorsing candidates and no one running himself.

Mahoney then summarized the situation, "We've generated some kind of interest in the election. The questions have been asked. I would only ask for some open-mindedness. It's not a clear-cut case of for or against the Senate."

One of the major considerations of the presidents in discussing their new role was the element of time that would have to be spent away from their respective halls. SBVP Mark Winings said that the time would be great enough that "all the elements of hall government would have to be strong."

But he also said that the time would be at most about ten or eleven hours in budget considerations.

Some of the presidents compared the new body to the Senate, expressing the fear that it would become "as ineffective as the Senate."

Winings said that he did not foresee such a development and that the composition, meaning "the personalities and presidents" involved would act against this.

SLC fails to decide on proposed Judicial Code

By Bob Higgins

In a meeting highlighted by the presence of NBC television cameras, the Student Life Council Monday again failed to come to a decision on the major issue of appellate procedures in the proposed Judicial Code.

Student Body Vice-President Mark Winings began the discussion on the proposed appellate proceedings by requesting a caucus for the purpose of deciding exactly how the amendment should be worded. After a lengthy debate on the legality of Winings request, SLC Chairman Professor William Egan granted the five minute recess.

The Student Life Council

In an attempt to resolve the conflict between the SLC and the Board of Trustees over the appellate structure of the Judicial Code, Winings proposed an amendment which granted the Dean of Students the power to appeal a verdict of innocent beyond the Hall Board. The bill called for the creation of a five-member appeal board consisting of three students, one faculty member and one administrator. This board would receive appeals from either the prosecution or the defense in a case upon request. A simple majority would be empowered to overturn a guilty verdict, and four of five would be required to overturn a verdict of innocent.

After a long discussion, a motion was presented to table the proposal because of the confusion caused by the lack of a printed copy of the amendment for each member of the council. The motion carried and the proposal was tabled.

Later in the meeting, Winings' amendment was recalled from the table at his request. After further debate, University Vice-President Phillip Faccenda proposed that the motion again be tabled because of what he termed the continuing confusion in the intent of the amendment. SBP Dave Krashna and student Representative Glen Corso objected strongly to Faccenda's motion claiming that the proposal was clear enough and a vote should not be put off any longer.

The vote to table ended in a tie which was broken by Chairman Egan's vote in favor of the motion, preventing a vote on Winings' bill for the second time.

Following the meeting, Winings termed the council's action, "A cowardly way to go about business." He contended that "A vote should have been taken today."

Portions of the meeting were taped by NBC's "First Tuesday" film crew who plan to use the segment as part of a presentation on life at Notre Dame on the December 1 show.

In other business, Carol Handley, a political science major at St. Mary's, was appointed permanent secretary, replacing GSU representative Rick Umbrecht who had served as temporary secretary.

Dean of Students Father James Riehle proposed an amendment to the judicial code calling for establishment of an appeal board consisting of two SMC and two ND students to try appeals of parking violations incurred by one school's students on the other school's campus. The amendment was passed and will take effect immediately.

Krashna disappointed with trustees

SBP Dave Krashna expressed disappointment with the reaction of the Board of Trustees to the report he presented to them at a meeting last Friday. Krashna felt the Trustees had been especially unresponsive to his proposal calling for increased funding for minority recruitment, claiming that the Trustees were not accurately assessing the need for assistance to the Minority Student program.

"My reactions to the meeting were not very good" Krashna said. "I thought that the Trustees were not really honestly appraising what we had done."

Krashna's main complaint centered on the specific questions thrown at him by the Trustees which he was not prepared to answer. Krashna said the Trustees had instructed him to keep the report as general as possible and so he was not ready to discuss each detail of the report in depth.

The report concentrated on what Krashna termed the three main concerns of his administration: student social life, minority recruitment and a revitalized University Forum. Though two of the ideas received some favorable comment from the Board, Krashna's minority student report came under heavy criticism from the Board members.

Krashna refuted the major objection of the trustees which he claimed dwelt on a disproportionate percentage of minority funding. Krashna felt the 26% figure of percentage of minority aid in total university aid was misleading. "26% is not enough if you have a low total amount."

Riehle gives gambling warning

By Cliff Wintrobe

Dean of Student Father James Riehle said yesterday that The Observer expose of gambling rings on campus involving students apparently has "substantially corrected" the situation, but warned that the university would step in if this was not the case.

"From what I can gather as of this moment pending subsequent investigation, the situation seems to have been substantially corrected by Friday's article in The Observer," he said. "I know that some people involved have gotten scared and are quitting."

However, he added that if reports from hall rectors, rector assistants, and other students indicate that the "fear" generated by The Observer article has not been enough to stop the gambling, then he would become involved in correcting the situation.

He said that he was not aware of any response to the article from the South Bend police or the Indiana State Police but expected that some feedback would be apparent.

Likewise, Riehle said he had not talked over the weekend to any members of the Board of Trustees about student gambling and he did not know whether they discussed the issue among themselves.

He said that he had known for two weeks that some students were selling gambling tickets but that he was unaware of the scope of the operations as detailed in The Observer. From information he had received he said he "assumed it was a small thing."

"A few students passing out gambling cards to his buddies at no profit to himself" was the way he had pictured the campus gambling scene. The possibility of ties with gamblers in Chicago was new to him Riehle said.

He said that there were "all kinds" of gambling operations in South Bend, and he assumed that the students were picking up the betting cards from these operations.

People in some halls; rectors, rector assistants, and students, had communicated to him that students gambling was heavy this year, but Riehle said their accounts did not indicate that the gambling was part of a ring.

He said that he met with these informants and the group decided to collect more information before embarking on a course of action. The Observer expose interrupted their collection Riehle said, and he expressed the hope that the article would suffice to stop the gambling.

Riehle said the penalty assessed to a student caught involved in a gambling ring would depend on the gravity of his involvement and his status as a student; whether he was on probation or whatever.

Election recess vetoed at SMC

By Ann Therese Darin

The St. Mary's Academic Affairs Council vetoed an academic alternative proposal to the recently defeated twelve day election recess, but then apparently opened the same avenues to students who wished to campaign.

The defeated proposal "recommended" that students negotiate written agreements with teachers to arrange their work loads during their ten-day absence. The teachers then could instigate no punitive action against students.

However, the Council members suggested that students who wish to absent themselves from classes and campaign but have doubts about their academic plans, should try to work out written agreements with their teachers.

In defeating the proposal by a 4-2 vote, the Council felt that it was superfluous to already existing policies. They also stated that no amount of legislation can change a teacher's classroom policy, and that the proposal incorrectly assumed that the faculty would be unduly punitive to students.

Students would not have had to show any proof of participation in a political campaign to be eligible for the special arrangement.

"It's unfortunate," said Ann Marie Tracey, student body president, "that the Council failed to take a definite stand on the issue; however, with the consideration of the academic freedom of the faculty, its position is understandable."

The ambiguity of the attendance system and difficulties that arise in the exercise of the function of the Community Relations Board came up in discussion on the proposal.

Although both Notre Dame and St. Mary's have 'no cut' policies," said Carol Henninger, Academic Affairs chairman, "Notre Dame generally interprets its rule so that its students can attend or cut classes at will. St. Mary's policy is interpreted as compulsory attendance. This ambiguity must be changed."

Miss Tracey said the role of the Community Relations Board, which is to rule on student-faculty or student-administrative disputes, will be "hard to do because of the abstract basis for possible issues such as grades or 'unfair' decisions."

USC only Top Ten team to lose

"It's been a long time since the Stanford Indians left the farm to visit Pasadena but Coach John Ralston's football forces may have turned the corner en route to the Rose Bowl when they beat an old tormentor—Southern California. Stanford, which hasn't played in the granddaddy of all bowl games since 1952, emerged as a solid contender for the Pacific Eight Conference title and the Rose Bowl host role that goes with the crown by upsetting the fourth ranked Trojans, 24-14,

Saturday. Top ranked Ohio State, the favorite to be the visiting team in the Rose Bowl, also advanced as expected Saturday. The Buckeyes, gaining their third win without a loss, blanked Michigan State, 29-0, in Ohio State's Big Ten Conference opener. Next opponent for the Buckeyes in Minnesota.

USC was the only team in United Press International's top ten to lose during the past weekend.

Second ranked Texas rolled to its 24th consecutive triumph, the Longhorns walloping arch rival Oklahoma, 41-9, and third rated Notre Dame ran up the highest score ever recorded against an Army team, crushing the under-manned Cadets, 51-10. The Irish, unbeaten in four games, face Missouri next Saturday.

In other games last Saturday fifth ranked Nebraska dumped Missouri 21-7; sixth rated Mississippi rallied behind the leadership of Archie Manning to stop Georgia, 31-21; No. 7 Air Force Academy defeated Tulane, 24-3; eighth rated Michigan blanked Purdue, 29-0; No. 9 Auburn crushed Clemson, 44-0; and No. 10 Arkansas beat Baylor, 41-7; Elsewhere, 11th ranked Arizona State stopped Washington State, 37-30; Oregon upset 13th ranked UCLA, 41-40; 17th ranked Tennessee beat 15th ranked Georgia Tech, 17-6; No. 18 Colorado trounced Iowa State, 61-10; and 20th ranked San Diego State downed Southern Mississippi, 41-14.

Scott Hempel moved into the ND elite over the weekend. His five successful conversions placed him in the tenth position of all time Irish scorers. Hempel's three year total is 141, which passed former Notre Dame star Nick Eddy. Eddy had 140 points in his three year career.

Joe Theismann and Tom Gatewood, the latest in Notre Dame's series of great pass-catch combination, have added their names to the long list of Irish players who have excelled in the Army - Notre Dame series, one of the great traditional battles in college football history.

The South River Roadrunner hit on 20 of 29 pass attempts against the Cadets, good for 277 yards and three touchdowns, in leading the Irish to their fourth straight victory.

Gatewood, who gave the Cadets fits last October in Yankee Stadium, presented an even greater tactical problem to the Army Saturday as, despite double coverage, he gathered in eight Theismann aeriels for 136 yards, a touchdown and a two-point conversion. The nation's leading pass catcher with 36 grabs, Gatewood is a sure All-American selection and appears well on his way to breaking Jack Snow's single season pass reception mark of 60, set in 1964.

The questionable status of All-American guard Larry DiNardo cast a shadow of gloom over Saturday's victory celebration. A knee injury on the fourth play of Notre Dame's first scoring drive has made the status of DiNardo questionable for Saturday's important encounter with Missouri in Columbia. Mike Martin also left the field limping in the first half and the Irish attack will be seriously hampered if these two line stalwarts are not able to play this weekend.

The upcoming battle with the Missouri Tigers shapes up as a big game for the Irish. Fifth-ranked Nebraska took the measure of the Tigers in a hard-fought contest last Saturday while the 7th-ranked Air Force Academy Falcons topped Mizzou three weeks ago in St. Louis. An impressive victory is a must if the Irish are to lay claim to the nation's No. 1 ranking.

The Notre Dame defense will have to be "up" for this game as the Tigers, with the nation's No. 3 running back in '69, halfback Joe Moore, and a pair of receivers, Mel Gray and John Henley that tallied 13 TD's last year, can put points on the scoreboard.

The Irish specialty squads have not distinguished themselves thus far this season. Notre Dame has yet to "spring" a punt or kickoff return, while the opposition has recorded several long runbacks.

A man to watch when the Irish kick off is No. 47, sophomore Him Musuraca. He's been getting in some solid hits on opposing returners and is a sure tackler.

Everytime I hear Coach Pagna speak I am more impressed with the man — as a speaker, a coach, and as fine a representative of the University of Notre Dame as anyone could ask for.

It was a real pleasure for me to hear Don Miller speak at Friday night's rally, too.

The Cadets, both on the field and in the stands, showed a great deal of spirit and competitive drive. Though out-manned and outclassed they didn't quit.

Toward the end of the Army game my mind began to wander and I pondered these puzzling questions: Just which cheerleader speaks over the "mike" and, since ND and SMC are drawing ever closer together, when will we have a co-ed stripper?

Scott Hempel is working his way into the record books from a number of angles. This past weekend he booted five conversions giving him a total of 141 career points. This places the senior placekicker in the tenth position of all-time Irish scorers. He moved ahead of Nick Eddy who previously held the tenth position with 140 points.

Ruggers remain undefeated

by J.W. Findling
Observer Sportswriter

Notre Dame's A and B rugby teams both registered impressive shutouts against Indiana University this Saturday behind Stepan Center. The "A" team won their third game without a loss 3-0 against a Hoosier team that was last year's Big Ten champions. The "B" team won 16-0 to not only remain undefeated but also to remain unscored upon.

The only Irish score came with ten minutes left in the game. With the ball on the Indiana 20-yard line, Tom Herlihy reversed his field and pitched back to Bill Berry. Berry made a beautiful pass to Herbie Giorgio who carried the ball into the end zone for the try. The conversion was missed, but it didn't matter as the Irish defense held on for the shutout.

Charley Blum, Bill Choquette, Jim Hagenbarth, and Phil Krause (son of "Moose" Krause) all played well for Notre Dame. The Irish ruggers were, however, dissatisfied with some of their offensive play. They plan to work hard this week on their backfield passing in order to generate more offense in their next game.

Three points will not be

Irish boot Michigan

Combining a new offensive alignment with a two-goal performance by Hugh Schoemaker, the Notre Dame soccer team handed the Michigan Wolverine booters a 2-1 setback Saturday morning behind Stepan Center.

Notre Dame had been using a 5-man offensive front but switched to a 4-man front against the Wolverines and the strategy paid off in the second win of the season for the Irish. They now boast a 2-1-2 mark.

Notre Dame grabbed the lead in the first quarter of play as Jim Patton, taking a free kick, passed enough to defeat their next foe, the Palmer Chiopractic Rugby Club. The game is next Sunday in Davenport, Iowa and the Irish ruggers agree that this should be one of their toughest opponents.

The ruggers season record now stands at 3-0.

The ball to Schoemaker in the center of the field and Schoemaker drilled a shot past the Michigan goaltender from 30 feet out.

The Irish scored what proved to be the winning goal in the third quarter with Tom Shriver picking up the assist on Schoemaker's second tally.

Michigan notched their lone score late in the final stanza.

The Irish booters play one game this week, traveling to Goshen College for a Wednesday afternoon encounter.

Counseling program discussed at St. Mary's

By Mary Dalheim

The counseling program at St. Mary's College was one of the most extensively discussed issues at the meeting of the Educational Policy Committee of the Board of Trustees Friday morning, according to Carol Henninger, Academic Commissioner.

Directors Miss Mary Martucci and assistant director Miss Wheaton made presentations of their guidance and counseling program at St. Mary's. Miss Wheaton, who directs Career Planning and Placement, stated that she wanted to reach underclassmen as well as upperclassmen, and try to make them aware of the possible careers open in their major fields. Miss Wheaton also handles job transfers for alumnae and student placement in part-time jobs.

The ND-SMC recruiting program was also discussed. As it stands, St. Mary students registered with the placement bureau will be able to attend recruiting sessions and interviews held at Notre Dame. A proposal suggesting that Notre Dame students be allowed to attend recruiting sessions at St. Mary's, primarily in the field of education, is under discussion.

Miss Martucci, explained the goals of counseling as well as the Student Advisor Program. She proposed that student advisors be not only compensated for their work, but given academic credit as well. The Educational Policy Committee recommended that this proposal be accepted. She pointed out that many students aren't reached by the counseling program, so the Educational Policy Committee recommended that the counseling program be improved

The medical director went on to say that nearly ten percent of the students in South Bend schools as well as 16 of his 32 assistants were presently suffering from this intestinal flu.

Krashna's constitution reviewed

John Barkett, wanted the HPC to chair its own meetings, opposed to Krashna's proposal, which gives the SBP the chairmanship. This point was never resolved.

Barkett asked Krashna and Winings if they had considered

Several presidents, including Joe Stankus of Holy Cross and modifying the Senate before they decided to abolish it outright. Mahoney added the question of whether size was the problem with the Senate.
