Reagan tells Israel to yield

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan said yesterday night that Israel should yield the occupied West Bank and the Gaza Strip to Palestinian self-government under Jordanian authority as part of a "fresh start" formula for lasting peace in the Middle East.

Just hours after the last PLO fighters left Beirut, Reagan said, "With the agreement in Lebanon, we have an opportunity for a more far-reaching peace effort in the region, and I am determined to seize that moment." He said America had conferred secretly with Israel, Egypt, Jordan and Saudi Arabia. A top U.S. official said there had been no direct responses.

Reagan said the Palestinians who live in the occupied West Bank and Gaza area should govern themselves "in association with Jordan," not in an independent state. He said that should happen in a five-year transition following the election of a self-governing Palestinian authority. He offered no blueprint for the projected association with Jordan.

He said the United States will not support any additional Jewish settlement in the West Bank and Gaza, adding that "a settlement freeze by Israel" would enhance peace prospects.

He said Jerusalem, also held by Israel since 1967, "must remain undivided," its status to be negotiated.

Seeking "an exchange of territories for peace," Reagan said he was abandoning the role of mediator to outline the proposals, which altered American policy along with the American role. He called it "a new American policy to try to bridge the remaining differences" on Palestinian autonomy.

The 1978 Camp David accord also called for Israeli withdrawal from the West Bank and Gaza, but it did not specifically point toward a Jor-

Security makes changes; more officers wear guns

Notre Dame security officers are now authorized to carry arms while on duty, said Security Director Glenn Terry yesterday. This policy is one of several changes adopted by the Notre Dame Security Department during the summer.

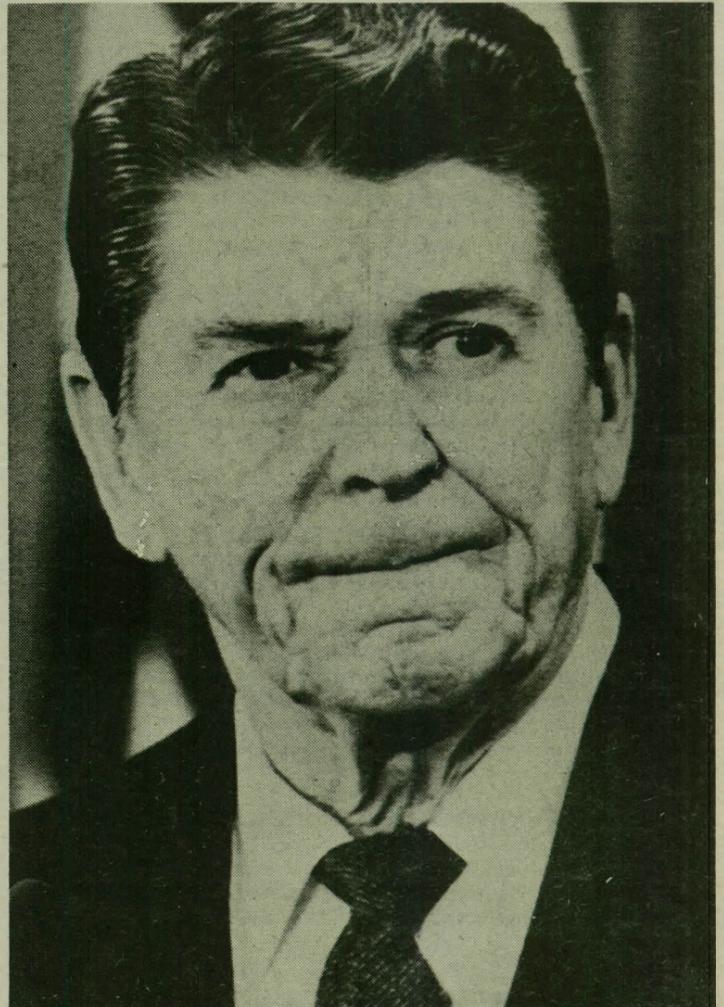

While department policy has for a long time given both Terry and the assistant director the authority to carry weapons as they see fit, the number of officers trained and authorized to carry weapons has increased over the past three years, Terry stated.

"We have either acquired people with law enforcement training or trained them at the police academy. It is a basic ten-week training course. At the present time, in addition to the shift commander, we have nine full-time people who could be serving as shift commanders and three part-time. Two of these three will probably never carry guns," Terry said.

"What we are basically suggesting is that people who are working in marked cars patrolling the campus area will be potentially armed. Some of them will not be armed because

Begin calls meeting on Palestinian problem

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin curtailed his vacation yesterday to deal with President Reagan's plan for Israel to give Palestinians authority, but not an independent state, in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

The new U.S. plan linked the territories' future to Jordan and called for a "freeze" on Jewish settlements in the Gaza and the West Bank of the Jordan River.

Reagan unveiled the plan last night after telling Begin of its contents in a letter that drew quick protests in the Jewish state.

Begin, who had been resting in the Mediterranean resort of Nahariya, called an emergency Cabinet meeting for today. Afterward, he will confer with U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who is in Israel for a two-day visit.

The Israeli cabinet was certain to reject what it described as Reagan's demands.

Reagan said: "the United States will not support the use of any additional land for the purpose of settlements during the transition period. Indeed, the immediate adoption of a settlement freeze by Israel, more than any other action, could create the confidence needed for wider participation in these talks.

"Further settlement activity is in no way necessary for the security of Israel and only diminishes the confidence of the Arabs that a final outcome can be freely and fairly negotiated."

Hessaid "self-government . . . in association with Jordan offers the best chance for a durable, just and lasting peace."

Seeking "an exchange of territories for peace," Reagan said he was abandoning the role of mediator to outline American efforts to achieve this. "The United States will not support the establishment of an independent Palestinian state in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, and we will not support annexation or permanent control by Israel," he said.

Israeli officials said advance word on Reagan's ideas came Tuesday in a message from the president to Begin saying he wanted Israel to stop settling Jews in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, and accept a direct link between those territories and neighboring Jordan.

Reagan's message threw a shadow over U.S.-Israeli relations as Weinberger arrived. The defense secretary is regarded here as "tough on Israel," and the Reagan letter seemed likely to lead to some harsh exchanges between Weinberger and his Israeli hosts.

Two hundred people demonstrated in front of Weinberger's Tel Aviv hotel to protest the contents of the Reagan letter.

Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-NY, said after meeting Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir that Shamir was "very unhappy with the president's letter" and considered it "inconsistent and incompatible" with the Camp David accords.

The radio said other unwelcome points in Reagan's letter were a call for Jerusalem's 100,000 Arabs to vote in autonomy elections, and for West Bank Palestinians to be responsible for their security during the autonomy period.

New chairmen, faculty

ND, SMC announce appointments

The appointment of new Notre Dame department chairmen and new members of the Saint Mary's administrative staff and faculty have been announced.

A new member of the Notre Dame faculty and a native of England, Professor Gordon A. Sargent, will direct metallurgical engineering and materials science. He comes to Notre Dame from the University of Kentucky where he was a specialist in surface analysis. He also served at the Mellon Institute of Pittsburgh after graduation in 1964 from the Royal School of Mines, Imperial College, London University.

Kenneth E. Moore, associate professor of Anthropology and a member of the Notre Dame faculty since 1970, will head the Department of Anthropology. He is a specialist in urban anthropology and cultural change in Mediterranean nations.

A member of the faculty since 1966, Associate Professor Edward A. Kline has been named chairman of the English Department, succeeding Thomas A. Werge, who will return to teaching. Kline has served as director of the freshman writing program here and is a specialist in computer-aided instruction.

Professor Michael J. Loux has been named to succeed Cornelius Delaney in the Philosophy Department. Loux joined the faculty in 1968 following graduation from the University of Chicago, and is an authority on metaphysics and history of philosophy.

Succeeding Ellen B. Ryan as chairman of psychology will be Thomas L. Whitman, associate professor and specialist in behavior analysis. He has been a member of the faculty since graduation from the University of Illinois in 1967.

Professor Thomas P. Fehlner, an authority of inorganic chemistry and photoelectron spectrometry, will succeed Roger K. Bretthauer, as chairman of chemistry. He received a Ph. D. degree at Johns Hopkins University in 1963 and joined the Notre Dame staff the following year.

In the Physics Department, Professor Walter R. Johnson has been named to succeed Walter C. Miller as chairman. Because he will be on leave during the academic year to attend the Institute of Theoretical Physics at the University of Frankfurt on a Von Humboldt Award from the Federal Republic of Germany, the post will be filled by Professor Neal M. Cason, a specialist in high energy elementary particle physics who has been at the University since 1965. Johnson's field is quantum electrodynamics and atomic physics.

Named acting chairmen of engineering departments for one-year terms are Arvind Varma, succeeding Roger A. Schmitz in chemical engineering, and Kenneth R. Lauer, taking the place of James I. Taylor in civil engineering.

Karen Croake, a graduate of Purdue University, has joined the administrative staff of Saint Mary's as public information officer. Croake was previously a member of the Sports Information department at Notre Dame.

John Lee Cook, previously director of computer services at Edison State Community College in Ohio, has been appointed director of Computer Services at Saint Mary's. Cook earned his bachelor's degree in business administration from Marshall University in 1974, and received his M.S. in computer science from Purdue University in 1978.

Doris J. Watt, M.S., University of Arkansas, has joined the College as an instructor of Biology.

The Department of Business Administration and Economics has two new members. They include Jerome L. McElroy, associate professor, Ph.D., St. Louis University, Ph.D., University of Colorado, and Robert G. Sanford, associate professor, Ph.B., University of Notre Dame.

Aileen Wehren is a visiting assistant professor, Ed.D., the State University of New York Graduate School of Education, in the Saint Mary's Education department.

Other new appointments at Saint Mary's include the following:

Thomas F. Bonnell, English instructor; John R. Shinnars, assistant professor of Humanistic Studies; John C. Akers, instructor of Modern Languages; Dorothy Bryant, instructor of Music; Ann L. Plamondon, visiting associate professor of Philosophy; Terence J. Martin, Jr., instructor of Religious Studies; and John H. Morgan, visiting associate professor of Sociology, Anthropology and Social Work.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz says U.S. government payment of some of Poland's debts to creditors in this country helps keep pressure on the martial law government there. Forcing a default could lead Poland to repudiate its debts, Shultz added in a letter he sent to Congress on Tuesday, the second anniversary of the founding of Poland's Solidarity trade union. Shultz's letter, released by Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., said: "Keeping the pressure on Poland has generated a net financial flow from Poland to the west. The drain on the Polish economy, together with our economic sanctions, is forcing the Jaruzelski regime to pay a heavy price for the suppression of human rights and freedom in Poland. By contrast, a declaration of default at this time would be contrary to the national interest of the United States." — AP

Ford Motor Company and Chrysler Corporation are expected to follow General Motors Corporation's lead and and pretty much hold the line on new-car prices in the 1983 model year, auto industry analysts say. The move is meant "to promote an early recovery in auto sales, while holding down inflation," a GM statement said. GM chairman Roger B. Smith said the action will help GM's cars be competitive. — AP

The South Bend job market worsened in mid-summer as a depression continued in manufacturing, construction, and wholesale-retail trade employment. Extended factory recalls and a scarcity of summer jobs contributed to 9.9 percent unemployment rate in July in St. Joseph and Marshall counties, up from a 1982 low of 9.1 percent in June, according to the Indiana Employment Security Division. Despite the sharp, one-month increase, the July jobless rate was the second lowest of the year for the South Bend-area — and a full percentage point between this year's 10.9 percent peak in January and March. — South Bend Tribune

Rejecting a $1.5 billion counter-offer by the Martin Marietta Corporation, Bendix Corp. Chairman William Agee vowed that the Southfield, Mich.-based firm will continue its effort to merge with the Maryland company. "We are determined to push our transaction through to completion," Agee said in a statement released Tuesday in Detroit. Members of the board who were present at Tuesday's meeting in New York also unanimously recommended that shareholders of Bendix reject the Martin Marietta made Monday, Agee said. The merger action began last Wednesday when Bendix, a supplier for the aerospace, electronic and automobile industries, announced its intention to merge with Martin Marietta of Bethesda, Md. But late Monday, following a special directors meeting in New York, Martin Marietta's 14-member board authorized company executives to launch a $75 a share offer for 11.9 million shares, or 50.3 percent of Bendix outstanding common. Martin Marietta said it expected to follow up with a merger in which each remaining Bendix common share would be converted into a combination of Martin Marietta preferred and or common stock with a market value of about $55. That phase of the takeover attempt would be worth $649 million, bringing the total value of the transaction to $1.5 billion. — AP

Joe Frank Harris, a Georgia legislator for 18 years, brushed aside charges he would be a puppet for the powerful house speaker and defeated a better-financed opponent for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. In another primary battle, Max Cleland, who headed the Veterans Administration during the Carter administration, unseated appointed incumbent David Poythress for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state. Harris, 46, will face Republican state Senator Bob Bell in the general election. Incumbent George Busbee, a Democrat, cannot seek re-election this year because he has already served two consecutive terms. — AP

Spread a little sunshine

He sat alone shivering in the cold grey of that early August morning. Wearing only a pair of too-short polyester pants to protect himself from the numbing wind, he scavenged a cardboard box from a nearby garbage can and, after opening the bottom and top of it with his fragile hands, fit the box over his head and brought it down around his narrow shoulders. The box covered only his shoulders and sunken chest, but it provided a moment of warmth and solace for this destitute man.

He would remain sitting there all day and probably through much of the night, just as he had for the previous four days. As he sat there against the marble foundation of that deserted office building at One Times Square on West 42nd Street, he crossed his arms underneath the box and allowed himself a slight smile at his own ingenuity. As the well-dressed business men and women rushed past, each stole a glance at this pathetic sight before scurrying on to their all-important jobs. No one stopped to give him money, or a jacket, or anything. I was one of those people.

Further east on 42nd, near the corner of 5th Avenue, a woman stood in the middle of the sidewalk. From a distance, she might have passed for any other middle-class woman in her early 40's, but as one neared this sole stationary being on the bustling sidewalk, her persona exuded a much different message. Her face was streaked with the dirt and grime of the streets, garnered from sleepless nights spent on the hard, grimy floor of Grand Central Station. Wrinkles lined her toughened skin, and accentuated her gaunt and drawn face. Long and unkempt grey hair dropped limply around her hunched shoulders. Several layers of clothing, probably her only possessions, hung from her frail and bent body. But perhaps the most telling aspect of this poor lady were her eyes; dark and mournful, so full of sadness and despair that one could not even imagine the terrible tragedies that had befallen her troubled life.

She remained in that same spot hour after hour, a meek, gentle figure in a land of harshness and hostility. With her bony hands clenched in front of her, shoulders hunched so high as to make her neck disappear, and wearing a look of young innocence, she appeared more like a little child expecting to be struck by an angry parent than a a middle-aged woman begging for survival.

In a soft voice full of sadness and just a touch of hope, she asked, "Change? ... quarters? ... dimes? ... nickels? ..." each one a pleading question.

Instead of crying for her, or even giving her some of the loose change I had jingling in my pocket, I followed the lead of everyone else. I averted my eyes and rushed past.

Near 3rd Avenue, an elderly Oriental man lay unconscious in front of a card store. Just a minute before he had been feebly making his way west along the sidewalk, hugging the gargantuan buildings in an attempt to protect himself from the threatening hordes that rushed past. Then suddenly, he clutched his chest and dropped to the ground. He lay on his side, his mouth open, eyes shut. His body didn't so much as quiver as he lay there dying.

As one man approached the fallen form, he nervously checked the time on his expensive digital watch and then stepped over the outstretched leg of the victim. Another one made a wide circle around the man and continued on his way. As I neared the scene, a couple of people stopped and checked for the man's pulse or any other sign of life. I couldn't stop. There was nothing I could do.

As I strode by the old man, I heard the voice of one of those who had stopped: "Somebody call 911. I think he's dead."

I tried hard to swallow the lump in my throat.

I still feel the sadness every time I think of those incidents and how I failed to help when the opportunity presented itself so dramatically. Unfortunately, I fear that many of us have been guilty of this same inaction at one time or another.

Every day of our lives we are called to help others, whether it be a destitute person in the big city or a roommate who needs a friendly shoulder to lean on.

It certainly doesn't take a special person to help others. Anyone can do it, but often times we fail. All it takes is a little bit of patience and understanding. Then maybe we can all bring a small ray of sunlight into a world that is all too often darkened by the harshness of our human existence.

Two die in Polish protest

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Martial law authorities said yesterday that riot police killed two demonstrators and arrested 4,050 in putting down Poland's biggest outbreak of violence under martial law. They promised "no leniency" for those behind the unrest that swept a dozen cities.

Authorities in Gdansk also discovered the body of a 22-year-old man with head wounds "in the region of disturbances" Tuesday called by Solidarity on the suspended independent union's second anniversary.

The English-language service of the official news agency PAP said the man "may have been another casualty" of the protests and that an investigation was under way.

The wife of interned Solidarity chief Lech Walesa told reporters in Gdansk after visiting her husband that he opposed street rioting but felt workers should fight authorities with "appropriate measures." She did not elaborate.

Solidarity's underground leaders called for the anniversary demonstrations and said they were a test of whether the union still had broad support.

Poland's martial law chief and Communist Party leader, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, met with his Military Council of National Redemption and issued a series of law-and-order decrees, the state television said.

They included:

- prompt action on investigations against dissidents from the Committee for Social Self-Defense, a key advisory group to Solidarity, and indictments "for offenses committed against the state and society."

- Speedy prosecution of people detained for participating in riots.

- Appropriate "resolute" steps by provincial leaders to "ensure peace and public order." The communist, read by a uniformed military announcer, did not elaborate.

Telephone service was cut in Wroclaw, Lubin — where the two demonstrators were killed — and the Krakow suburb of Nowa Huta, and direct dialing between cities suspended again, the Communications Ministry announced yesterday. Direct intra-city dialing was cut when the crackdown began last December and restored in May.

Warsaw's governor, Gen. Mieczyslaw Debicki, held a meeting of the Warsaw provincial defense committee and declared "no leniency will be shown to the organizers and participants of (Tuesday's) riots."

President Reagan condemned the use of force in Poland. "These events once again point up the need for reconciliation and restoration by the government of basic human rights in Poland," White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes told reporters in Santa Barbara, Calif.

"He (Reagan) deeply regrets and condemns the use of deadly force to break up peaceful demonstrations in Warsaw and other cities on Solidarity's second anniversary," Speakes said.

He said Reagan believes the two demonstrators killed in the southwest city of Lubin "can only serve to deepen the already extensive chasm separating Polish authorities from the Polish people."

Currency-exchange controls

Mexican banks nationalized

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Jose Lopez Portillo yesterday ordered the nationalization of all private Mexican banks, which he said had "sacked" the nation. He also imposed currency-exchange controls to stop the flight of capital from Mexico during its worst economic crisis in half a century.

He ordered all banks closed until Monday. Foreign-owned banks are not affected by the nationalization.

Lopez Portillo said he took the action "because the critical conditions now require and justify it. It is now or never. They have already sacked us. Mexico is not finished. They will not sack us again."

"The country can no longer permit the exit of dollars to pay for real estate acquired outside the country," the president said in his final state of the union speech before leaving office Dec. 1. "We should make every effort so that this practice ends."

A decree issued shortly after Lopez Portillo spoke said foreigners entering Mexico will be required to declare how much money they are carrying, and can exchange leftover pesos for foreign currency when they leave. It said the number of dollars Mexicans can take abroad will be limited.

On the flight of job-seeking

Mexicans to the United States, Lopez Portillo said his country could not restrict the constitutional freedom of its inhabitants to leave. "We will never accede to patrolling our borders," he said.

He criticized the United States for refusing to recognize communist-ruled Cuba, and said Mexico hoped to "conciliate the irreconcilable" by achieving contact between these "two great peoples."

The president said banks were taking money from the country against the nation's interests, and full exchange controls will be imposed. He gave no details on the controls, or how the nationalization would work.

The government already has frozen $12 billion deposited in Mexican banks to stem the exodus of dollars crucial to meeting the nation's $81 billion foreign debt.

In announcing during his over three hour speech to a joint session of Congress that U.S. and other foreign banks were not affected by the nationalization, the president said, "We are not involved in a witch hunt."

He acknowledged that the Mexico's economic crisis, the worst since the 1910-1920 revolution, had led to continued flight by impoverished Mexicans seeking jobs in the United States.

"Mexico does not accept any scheme that would restrict the constitutional freedom of all inhabitants to transit or leave Mexico," he said. "There are no walls here. The presence of undocumented workers in the United States is a problem of real, existing demand of labor in that country."

The president said $22 billion in funds had left the country in the last two or three years, much of it going to U.S. savings accounts and to buy real estate in the United States.

Boston Herald American reporter Paul W. Corsetti, left, talks with his attorney Thomas C. Troy Jr. from his cell at the Middlesex County House of Correction in Cambridge, Mass. Tuesday night.

Corsetti had to return to jail after Justice William J. Brennan Jr. would not act on a stay for Corsetti Tuesday. Corsetti has been sentenced to a 90-day jail term for refusing to testify in a murder case.

Boston reporter jailed for refusal to testify

BOSTON (AP) — A reporter found in contempt of court for refusing to testify in a murder trial was hoping for a stay from a U.S. Supreme Court justice or a pardon from the governor after spending his first night behind bars.

Governor Edward J. King promised Tuesday to "review the case thoroughly" today and consider attorney Thomas C. Troy's request for a pardon for Paul W. Corsetti. The Boston Herald American reporter was returned to jail Tuesday evening to serve a 90-day sentence.

U.S. Supreme Court Justice William C. Brennan Jr. could still grant a request for a delay of the sentence.

Corsetti, 33, was returned to jail Tuesday night after a 24-hour delay — granted Monday by a state Supreme Court Justice — passed with no word from Brennan.

Asked if he had ever considered giving in, Corsetti said, "No. I never changed my mind. I believe what I did was right."

Corsetti was cited for criminal contempt in March 1981 after refusing to testify at a pre-trial hearing in the case of Edward R. Kopacz Jr., 21, of Lowell, who was accused of murder. Corsetti had written a story saying Kopacz, who was later acquitted, had admitted a role in the slaying.

Corsetti said he refused to testify about the interview because he had promised not to disclose the conversation in court. He contended that two police officers had the same information anyway.

He was jailed after the state Board of Pardon and Parole turned down his request for parole or a reduction in sentence. The board, which is advisory, also recommended that King not grant a pardon.

Year-long recession may end

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new sign of a nearing end to the year-long recession appeared Tuesday when the government reported that its main barometer of future economic activity jumped 1.3 percent in July, its fourth consecutive gain.

Those recent increases in the Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators — after 11 months of declines — should mean recovery from the recession before long if the index is performing as designed.

Both government officials and private economists reacted positively to the new figure, saying overall national economic activity should be increasing substantially by the October-December quarter.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said such broad activity — as measured by inflation-adjusted gross national product — is "unlikely to show much change" for the current July-September period. Private economist Michael K. Evans said real GNP probably is actually declining in this quarter.

However, Baldrige said, "I believe the leading index and the recent sharp drop in interest rates are paving the way for solid economic improvement." He hailed the new report as "encouraging evidence that economic recovery is about to get under way."

Jerry Jasinowski, chief economist for the National Association of Manufacturers, had much the same comment, saying the new report "provides further evidence that we're on the road to economic recovery."

Jasinowski said he was concerned by one index category that showed businesses' liquid assets declining in July — a sign, he said, that "business continues to face a cash squeeze."

But mainstream economists now generally agree that at least modest recovery is close at hand — if not already here.

they have not reached the status of first-class officers."

Terry explained that one reason for allowing officers to be armed is that the expansion of the Notre Dame campus has caused greater concern for protecting valuable property from theft.

"We have identified our expansion, including the addition of the new Credit Union, the Snite Museum, and the WNDU station, as an added vulnerability," Terry stated.

"We had to develop a long-range plan in order to have trained people who can cope with potential problems."

In addition to some patrol officers being armed, there are other situations, such as football games, in which there might be several armed guards, Terry said.

"There is the further possibility that on other occasions, with a considerable amount of control, we could conceivably have officers serving special requests of other agencies," he added. For example, groups that have events at Stepan Center and have previously hired Notre Dame security officers in the future.

Terry also said that the Security Department has been training investigators who might be using concealed weapons, subject to his approval and that of Dean Roemer and others in the Administration.

When The Observer first contacted Roemer for a statement on the issue earlier this week, he said he was unaware of any security officers carrying guns. According to Terry, Roemer issued a policy in 1977 for the Security Department limiting the number of personnel who could be armed to the Security Director, the Shift Commander, and his relief.

"While there were some discussions in between, I don't think it was ever spelled out to the point that he (Roemer) was aware of my utilization of first-class officers who would have the use of weapons," Terry stated.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The last PLO contingent evacuated west Beirut yesterday to the machine-gun salutes of leftist comrades, and Lebanon's prime minister quickly ordered armed militiamen off the streets so the capital could return to normal.

The pullout — forced by the Israeli invasion — came two days ahead of schedule and signaled an end to the PLO's 12-year reign as a state within a state in Lebanon.

President Reagan said the 800 U.S. Marines in the multinational peacekeeping force will withdraw from Lebanon "within two weeks."

cussion before school started, but the timing just did not allow it." He said that the current policy now has Roemer's approval.

Another area of the department's expansion involves the purchase of two new Dodge Diplomats. The purchase was based on a five-year plan submitted to Thomas Mason, Vice President for Business Affairs, Terry said.

"In addition, we disposed of one car, the old Chevrolet station wagon. We are going to keep the old Ford as a spare, and we hope sometime in the next few months to have the pick-up fixed so that it looks a little better," he added.

Overall, Terry feels that the security staff's skill in handling cases is improving. "We feel that we do a sufficient amount of training so that our people can cope with problems better," he stated.

Commenting on whether more off-campus students are living in high-crime areas, Roemer said he did not get surveys of where high-crime areas are in the city.

"My gut reaction is that, if the statistics were available, students wouldn't pay attention.

"I don't think they would base their decision about housing on what someone says about a particular area."

Terry said the department has no plans to patrol the Campus View area.

"Campus View is in the county, and it is the responsibility of the Sheriff's department to handle any security problems there. It is not within our jurisdiction."

Terry suggested that students living off-campus take some precautions of their own.

"They ought to have dead-bolt locks and make sure that they are furnished as part of the contract."

He also suggested that students consider investing in one of the more sophisticated alarm systems. In addition, Terry said he hopes that students on campus will cooperate in lessening the potential for crime.

Security Dept.'s firearm policy dates from 1977

by KELLI FLINT
Executive News Editor

Qualified Notre Dame security personnel have been able to carry firearms since 1977.

During that year, the Board of Trustees voted to declare the Notre Dame security department a police agency. This decision enabled the department to authorize official police officers to carry arms.

Assistant Security Director Rex Rakow said Security Chief Glenn Terry, along with University officials, spent two days reclarifying the firearms policy. Copies of the policy have not been released.

Dean of Students James Roemer assured that there would be no changes in the existing firearms policy. Roemer, along with Vice-President for Student Affairs Father John Van Wolvlear, worked with Terry on restructuring the policy.

Rakow recited the department's written firearms policy. "A firearm is used only to protect the life of an officer or somebody else," he said, "and only when all other means have been exhausted."

When Rakow and Terry joined the Security Department in 1979, they began sending personnel to the police training academy in Indiana.

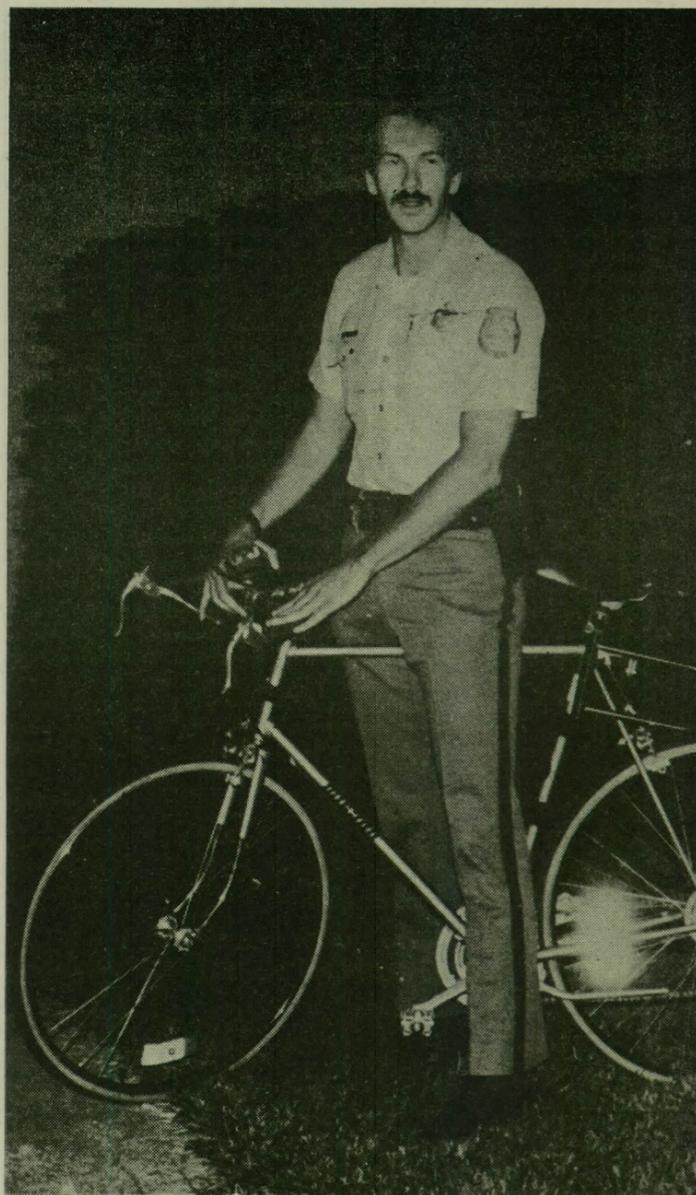

"Officers go through 10 weeks of extensive academy training," Rakow said. "Training includes not only firearms but patrolling and other means to maintain the safest possible campus."

The department is staffed by about 49 personnel. Rakow said of these 49, 14 are authorized because of training with power of arrest to carry arms. "Terry and myself count for two of these," Rakow noted.

Rakow said there are not appreciably more security personnel bearing weapons. "There are now more with the training behind them to authorize them to do so.

"Not all of the 14 will carry weapons at all times," he said. "Unless there are specific problems, the only personnel carrying weapons will be those in mobile units."

As of today, there will no longer be armed security officers in the Athletic and Convocation Center. Officers bearing weapons had been patrolling the building since July, 1981. "The University decided it was not needed," Rakow said.

Barney Kantz, a campus security guard, is one of several guards in the Notre Dame Security Department who are authorized to carry firearms. This firearm policy was recently clarified by Security Director Glenn Terry. See story at left. (Photo by Scott Bower)

The Mourabitoun, the largest Lebanese Moslem militia allied with the Palestine Liberation Organization, told its 1,500 fighters to comply with Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan's normalization orders when they go into effect this morning along the Green Line dividing Beirut into Moslem west and Christian east.

But the Israelis say the Mourabitoun must also turn over its heavy weapons to the Lebanese army and evacuate west Beirut and that about 25,000 Syrian troops in the eastern Bekaa Valley must leave the country before the Israelis pull out.

The Israelis shot down a Syrian MiG-25 Foxbat jet in a dogfight over Beirut Tuesday, the first such clash since June 9, three days after the Israelis invaded. The Syrians claimed yesterday the jet was downed by an "enemy ground-to-air missile."

In addition to confronting the remaining Syrians, the Israelis are embroiled in a new controversy over Reagan's new plan for a "broader peace" in the Middle East.

The Greek passenger ship Mediterranean Sun sailed out of the Beirut port at 12:08 p.m. (6 a.m. EDT), carrying the last batch of 633 PLO fighters, 45 women and 33 children bound for Tartus.

Among the last evacuees were the PLO's top security chief, Salah Khalaf, better known as Abu Iyad, and chief of staff Brig. Gen. Saad Sayel, known as Abu Walid.

As they set sail, exiled PLO chief Yasser Arafat arrived in Greece on a visit before flying to Tunis to set up a PLO political office at the Arab League headquarters.

Weinberger was in Lebanon when the last stage of the PLO exodus was completed under the supervision of U.S. Marines in charge of the Beirut port. But his path did not cross that of the departing guerrillas.

September 3
Atlantic City (1980) Louis Malle, USA, color, 103 min.
Louis Malle, one of France's premier directors, combines Hollywood financing with a European sensibility in capturing both the superficial glitter and the underlying decadence and decay of the atmospheric New Jersey gambling city. Burt Lancaster won an academy award nomination for the best performance of his career.

September 10
Orchestra Rehearsal (1979) Federico Fellini, Italy, Color, 72 min.
In Italian with English subtitles.
The spectacle of the orchestra rehearsal becomes a metaphor for the current political chaos of Western civilization in Fellini's most direct comment on the contemporary scene since La Dolce Vita. Commissioned to make a short film taking place inside a rehearsal room, Fellini delivered an enormously controversial and gloriously funny bombshell inspired in part by the Aldo Moro kidnapping.

September 17
That Obscure Object of Desire (1977) Luis Bunuel, France, color, 100 min.
In French and Spanish with English subtitles.
In this darkly humorous satirical film, Bunuel follows out the surrealist premise that the last revolutionary act in modern times is to be madly in love—and not to have sex with the object of that love.

September 24
Jonah Who Will Be 25 in the Year 2000 (1976) Alain Tanner, Switzerland, color, 110 min.
In French with English subtitles.
Tanner describes his funny, uplifting, freewheeling, indescribable film about eight veterans of 1968 stranded between revolution and accommodation as "a dramatic irrag-comedy in political science fiction." 1976 National Society of Film Critics Award for Best Screenplay.

October 1
The Passenger (1975) Michelangelo Antonioni, Italy, color, 119 min.
Antonioni takes alienation to its logical conclusion in this moody thriller starring Jack Nicholson as a burned-out reporter who escapes his own identity only to find deadly risks in the one he adopts.

October 8
Chloe in the Afternoon (1972) Eric Rohmer, France, color, 97 min.
In French with English subtitles.
In the last of his series of "moral tales," Rohmer casts Bernard Verley as Frederic, an introspective Paris commuter whose moral dilemma is posed in terms of Chloe—a Parisian bohemian—or Helene (Francoise Verley), his suburban wife.

October 15
The Aviator's Wife (1980) Eric Rohmer, France, color, 104 min.
In French with English subtitles.
The first of Rohmer's new series, "comedies and proverbs," spins out an intricate web of chance meetings and missed connections that unexpectedly becomes an offbeat and comic detective story. A powerful underflow of languorous eroticism, all the more powerful for being unrequited and understated, informs the chronicle of a jealous young student's longing for an independent older woman.

November 5
Rocco and His Brothers (1960) Lucino Visconti, Italy, B & W, 180 min.

In Italian with English subtitles.
Inspired by the literary works of Giovanni Verga, Dostoevsky and the biblical story of Joseph and his brothers, Rocco is both epic historical drama and psychological study. Spanning the geographical and social boundaries of Northern Italy in the 1950s, the drama is divided into five segments, each of which concerns one brother of a peasant family that migrates to Milan.

November 12
Contract (1980) Krzysztof Zanussi, Poland, color, 114 min.
In Polish with English subtitles.
Inspired by the idea but disliking the execution of Robert Altman's The Wedding, Zanussi underlines this ambitious, polyphonic comedy centering on a two-day wedding celebration among the Polish haute bourgeoisie. Balancing buoyant farce with scathing social comment, Zanussi paints an eerily prophetic vision of a deteriorating society heading relentlessly toward the brink.

November 19
Stroszek (1977) Werner Herzog, Germany, color, 108 min.
In English and German with English subtitles.
A lyrical, melancholy, bitterly funny tale of three oddly assorted misfits who follow the American Dream to Railroad Flats, Wisconsin, a godforsaken truck stop where they find a bleak eldorado of TV Football, CB radio, and mobile homesteading.

December 3
The Magic Flute (1975) Ingmar Bergman, Sweden, color, 134 min.
In Swedish with English subtitles.
This adaptation of Mozart's opera is a luscious, thoroughly enjoyable triumph. Mozart's score, accompanied by a Swedish version of the lyrics, supplies the backbone of this tale of love, magic and quest as it follows a pair of star-crossed lovers and an impish little man whose greatest desire is to find a wife.

December 10
Man of Marble (1977) Andrzej Wajda, Poland, color, 160 min.
In Polish with English subtitles.
Like Citizen Kane, an epic investigation of a man's life, Marble follows a young filmmaker as she unravels the life of Maleusz Birkut, government-created hero of the 508 working class. Acclaimed by Godard as "the most significant film in the last five years" and by other critics as "the most effectively political film since Z."

For teenage girls

Law may cause risky abortions

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Teenagers wanting abortions could suffer an added "crisis of self-respect and dignity" under Indiana's new abortion notification law, according to testimony yesterday from a counselor who has dealt with a similar law in Minnesota.

Indiana's law, like Minnesota's, requires doctors who perform abortions on minor women to notify the patients' parents or get a court waiver. The Indiana law carries a possible eight-year jail term and a $10,000 fine for those who don't comply. It does not apply to married minors or those living independently of their parents.

The constitutionality of Indiana law is being challenged in federal court by Planned Parenthood Affiliates Association of Indiana, two doctors who perform abortions and two pregnant minors. Lawyers for Planned Parenthood Federation of America are arguing the case.

The Hobson's choice between telling parents about a teen-age pregnancy or going to court to get a waiver is sometimes disastrous for minors seeking abortions, said Katherine Welsh, a counselor and administrator of the Midwest Health Center for Women at Duluth, Minn.

"The most painful part for these young women is that this (pregnancy) has been the most major dramatic secret they've ever had, and now they have to share it publicly and sometimes be reprimanded by a judge for not using birth control," Ms. Welsh said.

In the year since the Minnesota law has been in effect, Ms. Welsh said her clinic has performed over 60 abortions on minors where a court waiver was obtained.

She said that in many cases, the court proceeding left patients so agitated that they required tranquilizing drugs if the abortion was to be performed on the same day. Ms. Welsh added that the tension cause by the hearing can make the abortion procedure more painful and difficult for patients.

Ms. Welsh said the Indiana law was likely to elicit the same response from teen-age abortion patients.

She also cited delays of up to two weeks under the Minnesota statute, which requires that both natural parents of a minor abortion patient be notified.

Dr. Richard Schmidt, a Cincinnati obstetrician and gynecologist and former president of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, testified later in favor of the new law.

"I can see no rational basis for putting abortion in a different framework from other medical procedures for minor children," Schmidt said, adding that the new law will give doctors a valuable standard to follow on whether to notify parents.

In earlier testimony, Henry P. David, a psychologist and director of the Transnational Family Research Institute at the University of Maryland, said, "I believe we will have more second-trimester abortions and more children born to women who do not want them" under the Indiana law.

The law, which took effect yesterday, is patterned on a Utah law. Similar abortion laws are either in effect or in the legal process in Massachusetts and Minnesota.

Bicycling tours of China increasingly popular

HONG KONG (AP) — For tourists looking for something different on a China trip, several Hong Kong companies are offering bicycling tours.

Lizanne Galbreath, a 24-year-old American from Columbus, Ohio, who took a 13-day tour of southern China, described her trip as "a fantastic experience which gave me a real insight to the country."

Lai May-lun, a Chinese woman executive of the Hong Kong telephone company, pedaled for four days in China and said, "It was highly relaxing."

Available records here show some 2,000 people, ranging in age between 6 and 84, have participated in these increasingly popular tours in the past 18 months.

The most popular routes are from the special economic zone of Shenzhen bordering Hong Kong to Canton, provincial capital of Guangdong, and from Canton to Ziqiao, a Ming dynasty Taoist retreat.

Slow Soviet pipeline United States imposes sales bans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is ready to impose penalties on a British company that plans to ship pipeline equipment manufactured with U.S. technology to the Soviet Union.

A Soviet freighter in the port of Glasgow, Scotland began Tuesday to load 500 crates of turbine parts produced by the John Brown Engineering Co. of Glasgow. The parts are intended for use in the trans-Siberian natural gas pipeline to Western Europe.

State Department spokesman John Hughes said here that "measured" and "appropriate" punitive action will be taken by the Commerce Department against John Brown as soon as legal determination is made that the parts have been shipped, even though the exact nature of the penalty remains to be determined.

In California, White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said no decision has been made about what action would be taken against the British firm.

He said Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige and Secretary of State George Shultz in Washington talked with national security adviser William P. Clark in Santa Barbara by telephone Tuesday.

The State Department said the form of the penalty will be similar to the temporary denial orders issued last week against two French firms after they obeyed French government orders to ship compressors to the Soviet Union for use on the pipeline.

The two companies were temporarily banned from buying U.S. products and technology.

The Washington Post and Los Angeles Times reported yesterday that the administration will impose only limited sanctions on the John Brown company. The New York Times said senior administration officials recommended to Reagan that the sanction should be softened and should be the same for all nations defying the embargo. CBS News said the sanctions would be less severe against John Brown, and that the sanctions against the French companies would be lessened.

John Brown has been told by British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher to ignore the American ban.

In Glasgow, port officials said loading of the turbines including parts made by the General Electric Corp., is expected to take four days.

President Reagan wants pipeline construction stopped or slowed to bring pressure on the Soviets because of their support for martial law in Poland, to prevent Western Europe from becoming overly dependent on Soviet energy, and to deprive the Soviets of $10 billion in hard Western currency the pipeline is expected to earn annually.

danian association with those territories. The accord urged Jordan's King Hussein to enter the negotiations, but he never was willing.

The proposals faced virtually certain rejection by the government of Menachem Begin and there was no indication how King Hussein would view this effort to bring him into the peace process.

Reagan said the American commitment to Israeli security "is ironclad," and departing from his released text he added that he had followed Israel's struggle for survival, recalling that the Jewish state once was only 10 miles wide in spots. "I am not about to ask Israel to live that way again," he said.

The president interrupted his vacation and flew to Burbank to make the speech.

Administration officials described the president's address as "a major new peace initiative." Reagan called for:

- Full Israeli withdrawal from the West Bank and Gaza, in exchange for Arab recognition of Israel's right to exist and security guarantees.

- Linking Jordan with the administration of the West Bank, at least as an interim measure, but full Palestinian autonomy.

The plan also asks for the immediate freeze on Israeli settlements in the occupied territories, but does not call for dismantling any of them at this time.

Don't waste your potential to love others

Besides sharing in the excitement that comes from the start of another school year, I have the pleasure of beginning my first column. The start of this new year of great experiences will also be the start of this column's consideration of some very important, philosophical questions, "How can I be happy?" and "What good is faith?" These two similar questions may strike one at first as being too subjective, too broad or even too "square" for any kind of interesting, relative discussion.

David M. Schorp

They would have been sermons

So anyone who is to deal with these types of questions must feel he can do so in a manner that is practical, sensible, and easy to understand. Whether you will agree or disagree with what you will read, I hope to at least provoke some insightful and clarifying thought.

The following is an article that appeared in the December 10, 1981 edition of The Battalion, at Texas A&M University, which I think can best introduce you to me and my style of writing.

You won't read very many letters like the one you are about to read. It is written about people and our happiness, subjects usually not encountered or treated too directly by us. The author is someone whose efforts are prompted by the beauty he sees in people. So whether you agree or disagree with what he has to say, at least know that he feels he's acting "because he cares."

One of the most basic feelings we have is the need to be wanted. To the extent that man is a social creature, we need to feel from others that we're living a good life. As an example: in a crowd, isn't there a sort of deep pull to be a part of the fun and excitement? And how do we respond to those feelings? Although we don't ever totally get rid of our insecurities, true happiness comes from realizing from where and how security is obtained.

The environment is our American, capitalistic society. In representing American business, and how consumer oriented businesses make their money, I'd like to talk about advertising propaganda and television.

People working in the advertising departments of our big consumer corporations are smart guys. They realize of course that in order to sell something, they must create and appeal to a need. What better need to appeal to than the same very basic human need to have others know we're living a good, happy life?

Take a minute and think about television commercials: "After all, life is worth living, so buy a Buick," "Live in Britannia," or "Have a Coke and a smile!" (Wouldn't it be more realistic to say, "Have a Coke and a burp?")

Here are we insecure, searching people trying to live happy lives, and we are constantly being bombarded with these kinds of advertising ploys: "Buy this and be happy," "Buy that and be sexually fulfilled," and "So and so's pregnant with John's baby!"

People are wonderful creatures, but many in this country are caught up in believing that much or most of their happiness, and sense of fulfillment and security, is to be obtained from driving their beautiful cars, from wearing nice clothes and making themselves up, from acting macho or cool. What these people try to do is to obtain happiness from exterior things, their material possessions and their outward mannerisms. Can we achieve happiness only from our standing with other people?

Happiness can't come solely from others, and other things. It comes from ME. From my inside, from the heart. How? I believe that a most fundamental human wisdom is this: we are on this Earth to love. Now this all sounds a little mushy and even a little more vague (but not "uncool", damn it), so a more practical paraphrase is in order. Inner happiness is loving the people around us, in our minute-by-minute interactions with them, and as it applies to our situation in life whether we're doctors, teachers, ditch-diggers, cooks, or students. Fulfillment comes not from getting the job with the most status or money, but from finding the vocation which best permits us to use our talents and abilities to love others.

Where do we find happiness? By making others happy! It becomes a very beautiful cycle. We love other people, and that makes us feel better about ourselves, so we show our love even more, which makes us feel even better about ourselves! Growing toward this kind of lifestyle means gaining a lot of things, the most important things in life: happiness, security, character, strength. It may also mean changing a lot of one's ways. But, it's not simple fighting, attempting to fulfill our urge for attention, and need for security in the ways that this capitalistic society can lead us to believe.

That people may not be as happy as they can be here is my concern. People are all so wonderful because we have the potential to love: if that potential is not being realized in so many cases it is to me the greatest of human wastes. We at Notre Dame, young, intelligent, and hard working, have so much of this potential. Let's not waste it!

David Schorp is a graduate student of the engineering college.

Oil: going, going, gone

It isn't the kind of cause that Jane Fonda or Moral Majority leader Jerry Falwell would take on, but someone ought to try to talk all of us into driving our cars less. We spend too much time going places that aren't any better to be in than where we were. We just can't wait to go in the car because we have never given up the dream that there's something wonderful going on somewhere else.

Andy Rooney

A Few Words

I know I waste more time driving than any other way. Saturday afternoon I often take a nap after lunch and I've had the guilty feeling that it's doing nothing, but a little nap doesn't compare with a drive when it comes to wasting time. I don't think twice about getting in the car and spending twice the time I'd spend napping in driving to a hardware store to buy glue. I know I have some glue in the house somewhere, but I'd rather get in the car and drive than look for it.

Leaving home, driving along a road and then arriving at a destination gives us a false sense of accomplishment. Usually we haven't really done anything but burn gas. If I was careful and limited my driving to the times it was important for me to get somewhere, I bet I'd spend less than half the time on the road that I spend now.

None of us can imagine what the world will be like without me. I'm always wondering how things will be most different in 100 years when none of us is around. I suppose the biggest change will be brought about by the fact that people will be doing without gas and oil. There won't be any left, so they'll have to do without.

The biggest business in the world is oil. Fortune magazine lists the 500 biggest corporations in the United States and Exxon is at the head of the list. This week, Exxon announced it's closing 850 gas stations. Do you think that is the first, faraway, cold wind indicating the end of oil? I do.

Exxon says that the demand for oil is leveling off, but it's leveling off because it's getting more expensive as it gets scarce. There can be a temporary glut of oil because they've pumped too much out of the ground, but those pools of oil under us are going, going, going. They aren't oceans, they're just pools.

Exxon has 20,500 gas stations across the country, so losing 850 doesn't mean Exxon's going out of business. But when a big, smart corporation starts cutting back like that, it's not just because it's tired of washing windshields.

We're using less gas because our cars are lighter and their engines are more efficient. It's a good thing, too, because the actual gasoline we buy at the pump is not as good as it was 10 years ago. A gallon of unleaded 91 octane gas will push a car designed to use it about 7 percent further than unleaded gas that is only 87 octane. The gas of 10 years ago that was often as high as 96 or 97 octane, with lead in it, would push a car 14 percent further than the cheapest unleaded regular you can buy today.

The handwriting is on the gas station wall. Closing 850 Exxon stations is only the beginning. There are still more than 150,000 gas stations around the country and you can bet a lot of them will be closing in the next 25 years. Starting a campaign to encourage all of us to drive less may not be necessary. The cars will just keep getting lighter and lighter, smaller and smaller and more efficient, but gasoline will get more and more expensive and there'll be fewer and fewer places to buy it.

And then there won't be any way for me to waste time Saturday afternoon except by taking a nap.

New players in same old game?

Unless you have been in a comatose state for the past few months you are well aware of the Israeli invasion of Lebanon. I find it ironic that the world continues to allow Israel to use military force as its sole local foreign policy. The airstrike in Iraq and the siege of Beirut are unmistakable acts of aggression. The Western world may verbally condemn the Jewish state for its actions, but if the great powers truly wanted to put a halt to the obliteration, they would have stopped vital shipments of arms and other aid long ago.

Randy Fahs

Thursday analysis

The world seems to feel guilty for the persecution of the Jews in the past, especially during the Holocaust which nearly wiped them out as a people. Unfortunately, the world seems to have missed the fact that the Palestinian refugees, especially those who survived the Beirut seige, are suffering in a way that mirrors the suffering of the Jews, a people who were kicked out of their homeland and have been subject to violent attacks and persecution for four thousand years.

It is tragically ironic that the Jews, who suffered so many hardships for centuries as they longed to return to their homeland, could be so cruel and unsympathetic to the plight of the Palestinian people. Clearly this is the case as can be witnessed by the destruction in Lebanon and the close diplomatic ties that the Israelis keep with the racist and oppressive regime of South Africa.

I am not granting absolution to the PLO for its terrorist activities, but I would like to point out that the Palestinians have replaced the Jews at the top of the list of displaced people. The Western world made a grievous mistake when it failed to provide an adequate solution to the Palestinian problem when it created Israel in 1948. It is an error that is being repaid with blood and misery.

You may feel that the expulsion of the PLO from Lebanon will quiet things in the Middle East, but the situation will again heat up as the PLO guerillas regroup in the eight nations which have now become their homes. The Jews should take a lesson from their own past which shows that the tougher you make it for a particular national group, the stronger and more resilient they will ultimately become. No amount of force or distance will quell the longings of the Palestinians for a homeland of their own. As one of my neighbors so eloquently pointed out to me, "You can never kill an idea with a bullet." Unfortunately, many more bullets will fly, and many more people will die before peace finally comes to the Middle East.

The initial practice for the Notre Dame women's soccer club will be held this Saturday, September 4, at 10 a.m. at Stephan Field. Anyone interested is invited to attend. A short organizational meeting will be held before the practice session. — The Observer

Tryouts for Saint Mary's fall sports continue this afternoon. The SMC tennis team will hold its tryouts through tomorrow from 4 to 6 p.m. each day on the outdoor Angela tennis courts. Meanwhile, the SMC volleyball squad will hold its tryouts today from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Angela Athletic Facility. Any interested Saint Mary's student is invited to try out for either team. — The Observer

The axe fell for five former Notre Dame players as NFL teams trimmed their rosters to 60 players yesterday. Linebacker Bob Golic, who started several games for the New England Patriots last year, and Bernie Adell, a rookie free agent also with the Patriots, were waived by the league's worst team. Golic, a second-round draft choice in 1979, had figured to be a key member of the Patriots linebacking corps, especially after the retirement of Steve Nelson. Adell, a native of nearby Ipswich, Mass., was not chosen in last spring's draft. Elsewhere, linebacker Steve Heimkreiter was cut by the Baltimore Colts, wide receiver Kris Haines was given his unconditional release by the Chicago Bears, and Greg Knafelc, a quarterback in his playing days at Notre Dame, was cut after attempting to hook on with the New Orleans Saints as a tight end. — The Observer

The Rugby Club will hold a mandatory organizational meeting tonight at 7:30 in the LaFortune Ballroom. — The Observer

The Notre Dame wrestling team will hold an important meeting for all students interested in participating tomorrow at 4:30 p.m. in the ACC auditorium. For further information, contact Br. Joe Bruno at 9-239-7454. Freshman are especially encouraged to join the team. There will be no cuts. — The Observer

A fall program for novice for first-year boxers, sponsored by the Notre Dame Boxing Club, will be held beginning with the first workout on Tuesday, September 7, at 3:30 p.m. in the boxing room of the ACC. The program, consisting of workouts and learning sessions designed to initiate young athletes to the sport of boxing, will last six weeks and will culminate in a novice tournament the week before fall break. Interested students may sign up at the Boxing Club booth at Activities Night or attend the first workout. — The Observer

The Non-Varsity Athletic office has announced the first set of registration deadlines for the early fall's interhall sports. All interested students can sign up to participate in the following sports: interhall tennis (men's and women's singles, and mixed doubles); grad-faculty tennis (men's and women's singles, and mixed doubles); 16-inch softball; and co-rec softball. Deadline for these sign-ups is Tuesday, September 7. Interhall football sign-ups also will take place in the next week, but will be conducted within the individual dormitories. For more information, contact your dorm's athletic commissioner or call the new 24-hour NVA phone line at 239-5100. — The Observer

Irish basketball greets Adrian Dantley, Kelly Tripucka and Austin Carr headline a list of 18 former Notre Dame players who will be returning to the Athletic and Convocation Center September 18 to participate in the Logan Center Benefit Basketball Game. The game is being organized by Notre Dame assistant basketball coaches Gary Brokaw and John Shumate, both former Irish All-Americans who will play in the game. "It will be a great opportunity for all of us to help give something back to the South Bend community and enable local fans to do the same," says Brokaw. Tip-off is set for 1 p.m. on Saturday, September 18, just seven hours before Notre Dame opens its 1982 football season against Michigan at Notre Dame Stadium. Tickets are $6 in the lower arena and $4 for upper arena. Tickets are selling fast at Gate 10 of the ACC. — The Observer

ND lacrosse coach Rich O'Leary will hold a mandatory meeting for all those interested in playing lacrosse this fall today at 4:30 in the ACC Auditorium. If you have any questions, call Coach O'Leary at 239-5108. Anyone planning to play lacrosse must attend this meeting — The Observer

Off-campus football team will hold an organizational meeting for all those O-C'ers interested in playing this year. The meeting will be held tonight at 7 p.m. in LaFortune, first floor. Please call Tony Aiello or Bob Ott at either 233-6495 or 239-5303 and register if you are interested. — The Observer

The ND Rowing Club will hold a mandatory meeting for all members tonight at 8 p.m. in the LaFortune Little Theatre. Plans for the upcoming season will be discussed, and elections for vice president also will be held at this time. — The Observer

Crosby defends

Former pro shoots for title

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Young Bob Stanger earned co-medalist honors with 36-hole totals of 141 yesterday as the field was trimmed for match play in the 82nd U.S. Amateur golf championship.

Bob Lewis, a 37-year-old veteran, fired a 1-over par 73 at The Country Club to go with his 2-under 68 at nearby Charles River Country Club Tuesday.

Stanger, 23-year-old former Duke captain and now an assistant coach at his alma mater, was unable to duplicate his first-round 69 at the host club, but was happy with a 72 at Charles River for a share of the medal.

After topping a field of 282 survivors of sectional play throughout the nation, Lewis and Stanger will lead 64 candidates into grueling match play. Two rounds are scheduled for today and two more for tomorrow, with the semifinals Saturday and a 36-hole championship set for Sunday.

However, only 63 berths were decided before darkness halted play last night. Thirteen players, tied at 152, will play off for the one remaining berth in the match competition early today.

Lewis quit the pro tour after three years in the early 1970s and regained his amateur card in 1978. He was runner-up for the national amateur championship in 1980 and was beaten in the semifinals last year.

"Losing last year was a big disappointment because I really thought I had a good shot at winning," the man from Warren, Ohio, said. "Ever since I've been priming myself for this tournament. I set my goals high and I've worked hard."

"I thought medalist all day and now I'm very confident going into match play. I'm playing very well, and I'm a good match player. I never underestimate an opponent, but whoever beats me here is going to have to play very well."

Stanger parred the first seven holes of the second round, then ran into a string of four bogeys in a row.

"I was beginning to wonder if I was losing it, but then I sank a 25-foot downhill putt on the 12th hole and that saved me," Stanger said.

Rick Fehr of Brigham Young and Tom Pernice finished two strokes behind the leaders, while Ed

Humenik, whose 69 left him just one stroke behind first round leader Lewis, soared to a 77 at The Country Club, but easily made the cut at 146.

Tied at 144 were Eric Levi Johnson, Brad Faxon, Billy Andrade and Kevin Dillen. Another stroke back were Brian Mogg, Bob Wolcott and Don Bliss.

Defending champion Nathaniel Crosby, who struggled on the easier Charles River layout Tuesday, breezed into match play with a consistent 74 and a 149 score.

Martina Navratilova, the U.S. Open's first-seeded woman, won despite the rain last night as the richest women's tennis event continued. (AP)

... Grooms

Scott Grooms has returned to Notre Dame after a brief stay at Miami (Ohio). The junior quarterback will sit out a year before returning to action. (Photo by Cheryl Ertelt) summer that Grooms knew for certain that he would be returning to South Bend. His transfer surprised a lot of people and didn't exactly cause jubilee among the coaches at Miami.

"They weren't too happy, to say the least," says the quarterback. "They have to sign a release to put me back on scholarship here, and they haven't yet." As it stands now, Grooms will have to finance the costs of this semester until Miami officials concede to sign the release.

In the meantime, Grooms is practicing with the Irish squad, but will sit out the 1982 season, leaving him with two years of eligibility. Grooms is making progress under Ron Hudson, the new quarterback and receiver coach from UCLA.

"Coach Hudson has helped so much in just this past week and a half," praises Grooms. "The coaches had told me a lot of my problem was inconsistency, but now I'm improving a lot. Coach Hudson has helped everybody with their confidence and ability to play. He's optimistic with all the quarterbacks and a great asset to our football team."

This is not Grooms' first encounter with Hudson. When Grooms was in high school, the coach recruited him for UCLA. Though Hudson didn't succeed in signing the hot prospect, he nevertheless established a good rapport with him. Ironically, both ended up at Notre Dame.

Grooms is necessarily at the bottom of the quarterback chart right now, but will be able to fight for a position in the spring. He has no guarantees and no promises that he'll play, but he is optimistic.

"I really feel I can play here," comments Grooms. "I'm sure Coach Faust will play his best quarterback, and if it happens to be me, then I'll play. I just want to do what I can to help the team."

inter-divisional match-ups.

Atlanta got themselves some breathing room by winning a big game on the road.

Bob Horner drove in two runs as the resurgent Atlanta Braves held on to their National League West lead by downing the Philadelphia Phillies 4-0.

Rick Camp, who began the season as a reliever and wasn't used as a starter until mid-June, posted his 11th victory against seven losses, surrendering eight hits in seven innings. Gene Garber relieved in the eighth after Camp gave up a pair of singles, and picked up his 27th save.

The Braves took a 1-0 lead into the fourth en route to their 12th win in 14 outings. Rafael Ramirez opened with a single, the first hit off loser Mike Krukow, 12-8. Ramirez then stole second and scored on Horner's two-out single. The hit was only Horner's third in his last 27 at-bats.

Pete Rose, who went 0-for-3, including hitting into a double play, set a new major-league record for lifetime outs, passing Hall of Famer Hank Aaron, who held the mark at 8,593 outs.

At the same time, the Dodgers were losing to the Eastern leaders, the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-5.

Right-hander Juan Eichelberger scattered eight hits in his first start since July 9 and Joe Lefebvre drove in a pair of runs with a single and home run as the San Diego Padres defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-1.

Eichelberger, 7-11, who spent three weeks on the disabled list with a shoulder injury, hurled his seventh complete game of the year while walking two and striking out one.

The Pirates' run came on Jason Thompson's 29th home run, leading off the ninth. It was Thompson's third home run in two games and tied the score 1-1.

The Padres broke the tie while they parlayed four singles and a walk off starter Rick Rhoden, 8-12, and reliever Enrique Romo for three runs in the sixth.

While the Pirates were not helping their own late-season cause on the road, the Expos were doing their best to stay within striking distance by winning at home. Andre Dawson drove in a run and scored another, and Randy Lerch earned his first Montreal victory as four Expos pitchers scattered seven hits in beating the Cincinnati Reds 2-1 last night.

The Expos scored both runs off Reds' ace Mario Soto in the fourth inning. Warren Cromartie walked and Dawson blooped a triple to short left field that eluded a diving Mike Vail. Al Oliver then drove in Dawson with a sacrifice fly.

Lerch, 1-0, yielded five hits in his first start since being acquired from the Milwaukee Brewers on Aug. 14. Jeff Reardon got the final two outs to record his 21st save.

Soto, 11-10, gave up only five hits and struck out nine in going the distance for the 10th time.

The Reds scored their run in the ninth off Bryan Smith. Johnny Bench doubled and Vail tripled him home. But Woody Fryman came on and struck out Dan Driessen. Reardon then took over, striking out Larry Biittner and pinch-hitter Ron Oester.

The Cubs and the Giants renewed their month-long feud at Candlestick Park, and again, Chicago came out of it the winner. The red-hot Cubs got a homer from Leon Durham and good relief work from winner Bill Campbell and Lee Smith, who picked up the save, as they topped San Francisco, 7-6.

Pete Falcone threw a six-hitter, and George Foster homered to help the New York Mets end the major league's longest losing streak this season at 15 games, with a 5-1 victory over the Houston Astros.

Foster hit a sacrifice fly that capped New York's two-run first inning, then slugged a two-run homer in the third, his 13th of the season, to put the Mets up 4-0.

The Mets added an unearned run in the fifth when Mookie Wilson singled, stole second, took third on a groundout and scored on a passed ball by Alan Ashby.

Wilson led off the game with a single off Vern Ruhle, 7-11, and Bob Bailor walked. Rusty Staub singled to left for one run as Bailor advanced to third, and one out later Foster hit his sacrifice fly.

Falcone, 7-8, walked four and struck out five in recording his second complete game of the season. He lost his shutout with two out in the ninth when Ashby hit his ninth home run.

The 15-game losing streak was one longer than a streak by the Minnesota Twins which extended from May 19-June 2, and matched the second longest in Mets' history. New York lost 17 in a row during 1962, their first year.

Tennis championships Gerulaitis, Clerc upset

Vitas Gerulaitis sits by glumly after being upset in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships by Fritz Buehning. (AP)

NEW YORK (AP) — Upsets knocked out two of the top players from the men's ranks yesterday, while defending women's champion Tracy Austin crushed Catherine Tavier of France in opening-round matches at the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

Second-seeded Jimmy Connors took a first-set tiebreaker 7-5 en route to defeating Jeff Borowiak 7-6, 6-2, 6-3.

In night matches, the tournament's top seeds, John McEnroe and Martina Navratilova made their 1982 debuts at the National Tennis Center.

Fritz Buehning ousted fifth-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis 6-4, 7-6, 6-3 and Kim Warwick of Australia eliminated No. 7 Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina 3-6, 6-4, 1-6, 6-1, 7-6, while Austin was beating Tanvier 6-2, 4-1 when the 17-year-old French woman twisted her right ankle and couldn't continue.

In the fifth-set tiebreaker, Warwick took the opening point, breaking Clerc with a cross-court backhand service return. He raced to a 4-0 lead, breaking Clerc again when the Argentine's cross-court forehand was called wide.

Clerc won the next point, before Warwick volleyed a winner and hit a service winner. That gave the Australian a 6-1 lead. Clerc won the next two points, the second with an ace, but Warwick closed out the match 7-3 when Clerc netted a backhand.

The world's richest tournament, the U.S. Open will distribute more than $1.5 million in prize money, with the winners of the men's and women's singles collecting $90,000 each.

Buehning broke the flamboyant Gerulaitis in the opening game, racing to a 3-1 lead. But the blond New Yorker won the next two games, breaking Buehning in the sixth game and tying the score 3-3 before the match was delayed for 75 minutes by rain.

When they returned to the center court in Louis Armstrong Stadium, Buehning broke Gerulaitis' service again, then served out the set.

The two battled through the second set, each losing serve once, before going into the tiebreaker. Buehning, ranked 56th in the world on the Association of Tennis Professionals computer, won 7-4, giving him a 2-0 lead over Gerulaitis.

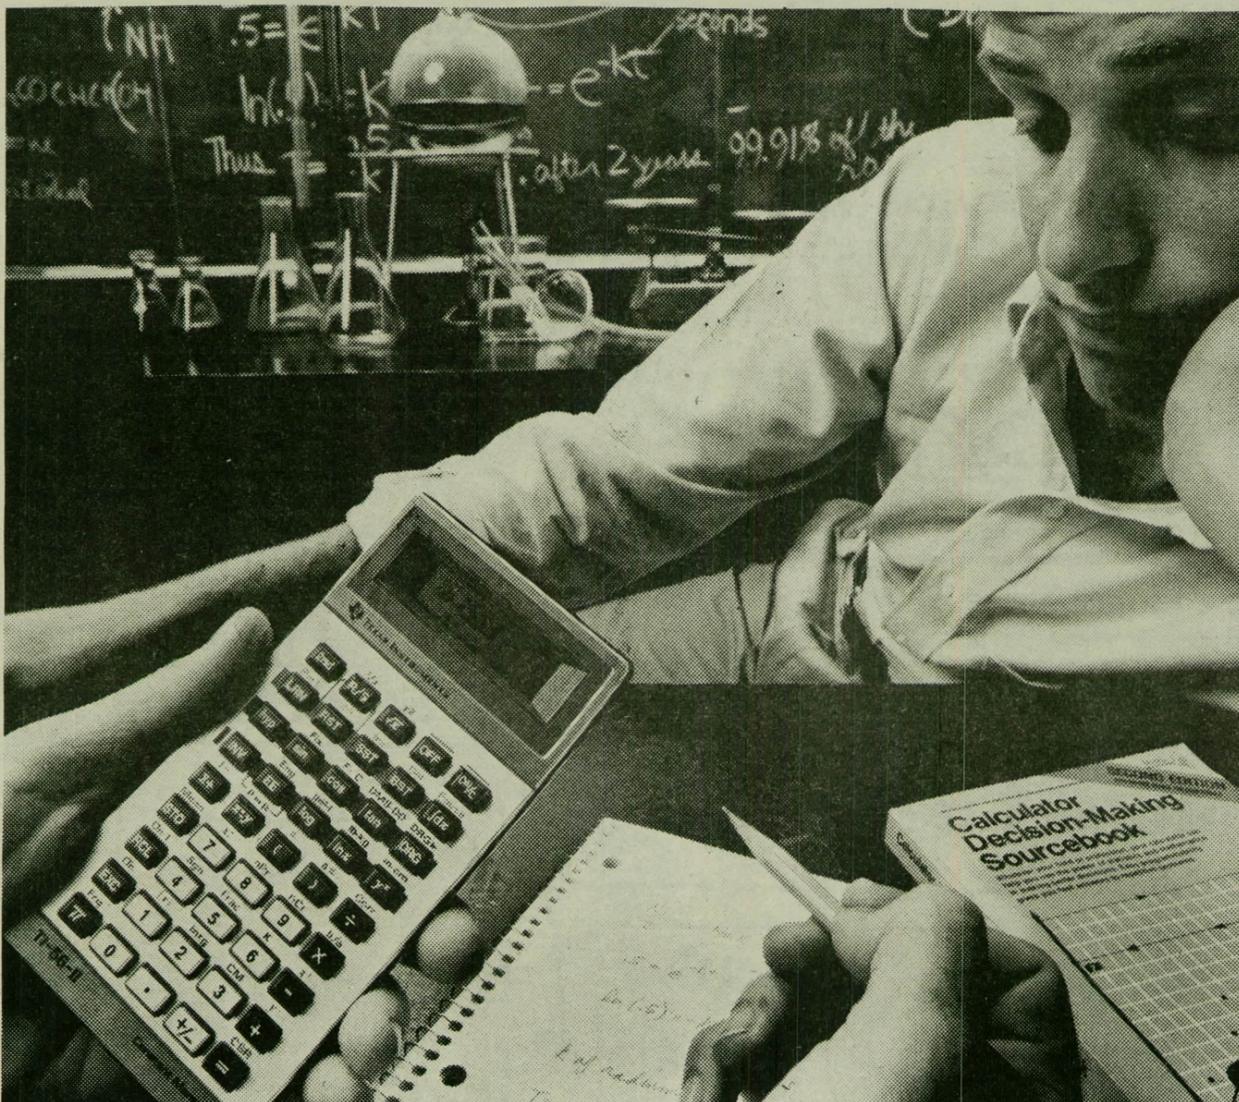

Austin never took off her sweater in the chilly, windy weather that followed the rain. And Tanvier didn't put any pressure on this year's No. 3 seed — who is seeking her third U.S. Open singles title.

Because of the rain, 12 first-round matches scheduled to be played on the outer courts were postponed until today, including fifth-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia, the runner-up here in 1980, against Australian Sue Leo and No. 16 Zina Garrison, the 1981 U.S. Open junior girls champion, against Michaela Pazderova of Czechoslovakia.

Martina Navratilova had no problems downing Laura DuPont in her opening round match of the U.S. Open tennis championships last night, but defending champion John McEnroe's match with Tim Gullikson was plagued by a power outage and rain and was delayed until Thursday.

The McEnroe-Gullikson match, which was tied 3-3 in the first set, was halted when a bank of lights on the east side of the National Tennis Center's Louis Armstrong Stadium went out. Twenty-five minutes later, as electricians worked to restore the lights, it began raining and the match was postponed.

Earlier, Navratilova weathered a 17-minute rain delay as she took only 44 minutes to trample DuPont 6-1, 6-1.

Wednesday's Solution

SU Book sale opens today

The Student Union's annual Book Exchange begins today in LaFortune Student Center, Room 2C, just off the ballroom. The used book exchange lasts from 4-6 p.m. today and Friday. Students who submitted used books for sale can pick up their money or their books that did not sell on Sunday from 3-5 p.m. The Student Union said it will not return money or books at any other time.

Jazz Band auditions Sunday

Tryout auditions for the Notre Dame Jazz Bands and jazz combos will be held on Sunday, September 5 in the Jazz Loft of the Band Annex Building (opposite the Huddle) at 1 p.m. Currently there are openings on all instruments in the Jazz Bands — saxophone, trumpet, trombone, piano, guitar, bass, and drums. No prepared material is required for the audition. The Jazz Bands play at the Collegiate Jazz Festival and for other events and concerts on campus. For further information contact Father George at 239-7136.

Baseball pennant races heat up

By The Associated Press

In the American League, the contenders stayed within striking distance of each other, as the top teams in the east all won, and the two leaders in the west both lost. Nothing is close to being settled, especially given a schedule that has Milwaukee playing Boston and Baltimore — in second and third, respectively — 13 times before the season closes.

In Detroit, Alan Trammell drove in three runs with a two-run triple and a squeeze bunt last night as the Detroit Tigers defeated the California Angels 5-3.

Detroit starter Milt Wilcox, 9-7, who was reactivated from the disabled list on Aug. 9, allowed nine hits in 8 2-3 innings. He struck out six and walked two. Pat Underwood retired Rod Carew for the final out with runners on first and second in the top of the ninth to record his third save.

Lou Whitaker put Detroit in front 1-0 in the first inning when he hit the first pitch from California starter Ken Forsch, 11-10, for his 12th homer of the year.

In the second, Howard Johnson led off with a single and scored on Tom Brookens's one-out triple. Brookens came in on Trammell's squeeze bunt.

Johnson and Enos Cabell walked in the seventh and both scored on Trammell's two-out triple.

But the Angels didn't lose any ground in their race to keep pace with the division-leading Royals. Texas rookie Mike Smithson tossed a six-hitter for his first major-league victory as he pitched the Rangers to a 7-3 win over Kansas City in a game that featured a near-brawl.

Smithson, 1-1, hit Frank White in the elbow leading off the third and struck Amos Otis in the back of the batting helmet later in the inning. The Rangers were up by five runs when Otis came to bat in the sixth. On three successive swings, Otis' bat went flying — into the seats behind the Texas dugout, and twice into shallow left field.

As plate umpire Mark Johnson thumbed Otis out of the game, both benches and bullpens emptied onto the field but no punches were thrown.

White, after taking one swing in the fourth, took himself out of the game with a severe bruise where the pitcher hit him.

George Wright hit an inside-the-park homer in the third inning following a Bucky Dent single as Texas took a 2-0 lead. It was Wright's seventh homer and came off loser Paul Splittorff, 9-8.

At Comiskey Park meanwhile, left-hander Jerry Koosman fired a four-hitter, leading the Chicago White Sox to a 6-0 victory over Cleveland, sending the Indians to their seventh straight loss, and pulling his team to within 7 games of K.C.

Koosman, 7-6, allowed a bunt single to Carmen Castillo in the third inning, singles to Chris Bando and Jerry Dybzinski in the eighth and pinch-hitter Rodney Craig's single in the ninth. It was Koosman's 30th shutout in his 15-year career. He struck out seven and walked two.

Chicago broke a scoreless tie with four runs after there were two outs in the sixth inning.

Greg Luzinski started the rally with a double off Cleveland starter Lary Sorensen, 10-11. Steve Kemp followed with a single to center to score Luzinski.

Singles by Carlton Fisk and Mike Squires produced another run. Vance Law was then intentionally walked to load the bases and Aurelio Rodriguez rapped a two-run single to right.

In the Eastern Division, Cecil Cooper and Paul Molitor slammed two-run homers to power the Milwaukee Brewers to a 7-3 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

Milwaukee starter Doc Medich, 10-11, allowed five hits in eight innings and Jim Slaton retired Seattle on two hits in the ninth. Medich is now 3-0 since the Brewers purchased him from Texas on Aug. 11. He walked five and struck out a season-high seven batters as he boosted his career record over the Mariners to 12-1.

Manny Casilo singled, Richie Zisk walked and both scored when Al Cowens lined a triple over the head of Gorman Thomas in center field to put the Mariners ahead 2-0 in the first inning.

The Brewers came back with three runs in their half of the first against Mike Stanton, 2-4, who made his first start since 1975. Jim Beattie, the Mariners' scheduled starter, was scratched because of a sore right shoulder.

And the two teams chasing the Brewers hung in there as well. Baltimore downed Toronto 5-2 in the league's only afternoon game to remain five games out of first.

The Red Sox are four games out, thanks to Carney Lansford, who homered, doubled and drove in two runs to pace Boston to a 7-4 victory over the Oakland A's in a game delayed for an hour and 15 minutes by rain.

Boston starter Brian Denman, 2-1, gave up only four hits over five innings and was removed after the rain delay, which came with one out in the bottom of the sixth. Mark Clear, the third Boston pitcher, went the final two innings to pick up his 13th save.

With the score tied 2-2 in the sixth, Dave Stapleton doubled, stole third and after a walk to Gary Allenson, scored on Jerry Remy's single.

The game was then delayed by rain.

When play resumed in the sixth, Rice delivered a run-scoring single off reliever Bob Owchinko, 2-4, who relieved starter Steve McCarty after five innings. Carl Yastrzemski, who had earlier singled to become only the second player to get 100 hits in 21 seasons, then singled again to score Remy for a 5-2 lead. Hank Aaron also got 100-plus hits in 21 seasons.

Lansford's ninth homer leading off the second gave Boston a 1-0 lead. The Red Sox made it 2-0 in the fourth on a fielding error by first baseman Wayne Gross.

Dwayne Murphy singled in the top of the sixth and Mitchell Page followed with his fourth homer of the year to make it 2-2.

Further west, Gary Gaetti and Kent Hrbek each knocked in a pair of runs and Al Williams hurled a six-hitter to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 7-2 victory over the New York Yankees in the Metrodome last night.

Gaetti's two-run triple and Hrbek's two-run double highlighted Minnesota's 15-hit attack against four New York pitchers. Yankee starter Dave Righetti, 8-7, took the loss.

Al Williams, 6-7, was rocked for a 425-foot first-inning solo homer by Jerry Mumphrey, but had little trouble after that.

Mickey Hatcher led off the Minnesota third with a single and went to second when Dave Righetti's pickoff attempt was wild. John Cas-tino followed with a single, and Tom Brunansky bounced into a double play with Hatcher scoring.

With two outs, Hrbek and Gary Ward singled and Gaetti tripled both home for a 3-1 Minnesota lead.

The Twins added three more runs in the fourth. Bobby Mitchell and Lenny Faedo led with singles and Righetti gave way to reliever George Frazier. Mitchell scored when Hatcher reached base on third baseman Graig Nettles' error and Hrbek followed with a two-run double.

In the National League, the month of September opened on an extremely tight race in both the east and west, as contenders faced off in

Grooms returns for football

By DAPHNE BAILLE
Sports Writer

Guess who's back? Quarterback Scott Grooms has returned to Notre Dame after having spent a semester at Miami University of Ohio.

Grooms left Notre Dame at the end of the 1981 fall semester in order to fulfill his ambition to play college football. With Tim Koegel and Blair Kiel sharing the quarterbacking duties last season, Grooms was not seeing much playing time. A transfer to Miami seemed to be the solution to his problem.

"At that time, I wanted to go where I could play two years of football," explains the 6-3, 200 lb. junior. "It wasn't that I didn't like this school or the atmosphere as a student. I wanted to play football, and I also felt a little obligation to my family and friends who also wanted to see me play."

The Greenfield, Ohio native discussed his departure plans with his coaches here and received mixed reactions. While none of the coaches wanted to see him leave, some agreed that perhaps it was the best course for Grooms to follow.

"I had lost my confidence by not playing here," recalls Grooms. "I wanted to go to a smaller school where I'd be almost sure of playing." Grooms chose Miami because of its football tradition and good academic reputation, and also partly because his younger brother would be there this year.

Once Grooms arrived at Miami, the reception was only lukewarm. The student body and coaching staff were happy to welcome a blue-chip quarterback, but the team reaction was more reserved. Some of the players may have understandably felt resentment towards this athlete from Notre Dame.

Regardless of anybody's reactions, Grooms set out to improve his playing skills. He began working out through quickness and weight programs, and then concentrated on spring ball.

"I feel that I improved my quarterbacking in the spring," reflects Grooms. "I tried to go out every day and concentrate on my passing, my release, and all aspects of the game. I wasn't working with the number one unit or anything, but I was still able to improve."

If all was going well at Miami, why the transfer back to Notre Dame?

"I missed Notre Dame," admits Grooms. "I had a lot of friends here and realized that this is where I should be, that this is where I want to earn my degree. There's no doubt that I made the right decision to come back. So far it's been great to be back."

It wasn't until the middle of the

Shiner injures knee, undergoes surgery

OG MIKE SHINER

Offensive guard Mike Shiner, already hampered by a broken thumb he suffered in last week's two-a-day practice sessions, came up even worse Tuesday.

The 6-8, 262-lb. senior quick guard went down with partially torn ligaments in his knee during the afternoon drills. The Sunnyvale, California native underwent arthroscopic surgery on the knee at St. Joseph's Medical Center yesterday morning.

The full extent of the damage is unclear at this point, but doctors believe Shiner will miss at least 4-5 weeks. That kind of timetable would see him returning after the second or third game of the season.

In the meantime, coaches will be shuffling their offensive line in an attempt to find a replacement. The Irish depth chart lists Barry Young behind Shiner at the quick guard spot.
