Targets organized crime Reagan plans drug crackdown

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan vowed yesterday to "end the drug menace and cripple organized crime" with a $200 million program that will blanket the .nation with federal narcotics task forces.

VOL. XVII, NO. 38

Reagan, criticized by Congress last year for scaling back the fight against drug traffickers, said the government will hire up to 1,200 more agents and investigators for a dozen task forces. The illicit drug business in the United States is worth an estimated $80 billion. "The time has come to cripple the power of the mob in America," Reagan told more than 300 people at the Justice Department.

Administration officials said the task forces will try to infiltrate the drug mobs, concentrating on longrange investigations aimed at breaking up networks rather than street pushers. They will be modeled after the task force, headed by Vice President George Bush, that was formed to combat the drug trade in South Florida

Although Congress must approve permanent financing for the plan, the administration intends to begin the operation by shifting available funds from other programs.

The $200 million cost of the program also includes up to $34 million to expand prisons to make room for some 1,260 additional inmates.

The administration also is backing legislation to deny bail to accused people who are considered dangerous, to impose stiffer jail terms for drug offenders and to restrict parole Reagan, citing Senate investiga-

Activities improve women's relations

By ANNE MONASTYRSKI Staff Reporter

Women have been a part of the Notre Dame community for over ten years, but it was not until a Saint Mary's junior approached the Board of Governance this year that a tangible effort was made to improve interaction between Notre Dame and Saint Mary's women.

As chairwoman of the Student Activities Planning Board, Sue Flynn responded to the ongoing lack of social contact between the women of both campuses by organizing a picnic at Potato Creek State Park on October 10th.

Flynn made the effort because she believes the so-called rivalry between Notre Dame and Saint Mary's women does not exist. In fact, she contends that the hostility, if it exists, is initiated by the male population

Lloyd Burke, Notre Dame student body president, concurs, saying, 'Maybe the men propagate the mym,

"There are 2,000 girls across the street that we have a lot in common with," said Flynn. "Dorm parties do not provide the social atmosphere conducive to forming friendships between women," she said.

Burke added, "In a pick-andchoose game (at a party) you just don't go over and talk to the competition.

'Rather than hostility, we wanted to get the two groups together (in hopes that) interacting would bring about understanding," said Flynn.

Cara Hageman, sophomore class president at Saint Mary's, organized a sophomore class Mass for women from both campuses as part of her contribution to this effort. "All these girls could have twice as many friends if we got together," said Hageman.

Publicity played a major role in organizing the Mass and the other events. Two representatives from Saint Mary's attended the hall council meetings at Notre Dame women's dorms. They informed and

By DENA MARINO News Staff

"The evidence is very clear and very convincing that Charles Horman was taken into custody and executed," author Thomas Hauser said last night in a discussion of his book Missing at the Memorial Library auditorium

In the second of a five-part political concerns lecture series, Hauser contended that the State Department had prior knowledge of the arrest and execution of Horman, a young American living in Chile during its 1973 coup.

According to Hauser, the State Department attempted to cover up its knowledge of Horman's death to hide its involvement in the overthrow of president Salvadore Allende's socialist regime.

In Missing, Hauser details the arrest of Horman by 12 Chilean troops and his interrogation, torture, and eventual execution at the Chilean National Stadium, which had been set up as a detention center for political prisoners.

According to Hauser, the victim's father contacted the U.S. State Department two weeks later, seeking the whereabouts of his son. Horman was told at that time that his son was "hiding," claims contradicted by secret State Department documents which Hauser obtained under the Freedom of Information Act and later incorporated into his book.

The alleged cover-up continued until Horman's father discovered the truth concerning his son's execution from Lovell Jarvis, a worker for the Ford Foundation, Hauser said. The State Department confirmed Horman's death the following day.

Hauser noted that the purpose of his book is to make people aware of the government's responsibility for its actions.

"I think we need a strong CIA," he invited the women, posting signs at every dorm

Still, Hageman said that out of the 150 who attended, 90 percent were from Saint Marv's

Hageman speculated that the lack of participation from Notre Dame resulted because none of the events took place at Notre Dame. She also pointed out that Saint Mary's students were more aware of the event because Saint Mary's sponsored the activity.

Concerning future activities, Hageman said, "Notre Dame women need to be more informed."

A picnic for the residents of Holy Cross and Lewis also suffered from poor attendance. Lisa Fabian, Lewis Hall President, blamed it on "bad timing."

"Everybody wanted to go to it," Fabian said. "It's just hard to find a time during the week to get together." The Holy Cross/Lewis picnic conflicted with exams and the Potato Creek picnic conflicted with events occuring at Lewis during Lewis Hall Week.

Roger A. Schmitz, dean of Notre Dame's College of Engineering, becomes the initial occupant of the Matthew H. McCloskey Deanship in Engineering during inauguaral ceremonies today. His inaugural lecture, entitled "The Faces of Engineering," will be at 4:15 p.m. in the Center for Continuing Education auditorium. The endowed deanship memorializes the founder of one of the country's largest contractors and real estate developers, who also served as a U.S. ambassador to Ireland. The chair is the gift of his son, Thomas D. McCloskey, president of McCloskey & Co. in Philadelphia. Schmitz joined the university faculty in the fall of 1979 as chairman of the Department of Chemical Engineering. He became dean of the College of Engineering in June 1981. Before coming to ND he had been a member of the University of Illinois faculty since 1962. Schmitz received his bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from Illinois in 1959, and was awarded his doctorate from the University of Minnesota in 1962. - The Observer

Police in Baton Rouge, Louisiana arrested three railroad employees yesterday in last month's derailment of a speeding freight train carrying hazardous chemicals. One was a female clerk who police said was at the controls without authorization when the accident occurred. The three employees of the Illinois Central-Gulf Railroad were charged with reckless handling of hazardous materials, a felony under state law. "The investigation indicates that alcohol and speed were involved," a state police news release said. "However, it is unknown at this time that these factors led to the derailment." More than 2,700 residents of Livingston were forced from their homes when 43 cars derailed at the edge of town and exploded in flames on Sept. 28. . . They were allowed to return home earlier this week, as cleanup crews continued to clear the tracks of wreckage. State police identified the woman as Janet Brumfield Byrd of Gonzales, La., a clerk for the railroad who was the only unauthorized person aboard. -AP

A 28-year-old Pole hijacked a Bulgarian airliner with 75 other people aboard yesterday, forced the pilot to land in Vienna and surrendered to police, airport security officials said. A Bulgarian stewardess, Pauline Dimorova, 29, was cut in the throat in a scuffle aboard the plane, the Austrian national news agency reported. She was rushed to a nearby hospital, but her condition could not be learned immediately. The Tupelov 134 airliner was hijacked on a flight from Burgas, Bulgaria, to Warsaw, the Polish capital, an airport information officer said. It landed at Vienna's Schwechat Airport at 5:33 p.m. "When the plane stopped, the hijacker was the first man out," said airport officer Fritz Magner. "He had his hands up and was asking for the police." Magner said the hijacker was Polish and was believed to be seking political asylum in Austria. Airport officials said the other 70 passengers and the five crew members were taken to the terminal and were questioned by police. -AP

President Reagan turned the White House Rose Garden into a soccer field yesterday, saying he wants the sport to spread worldwide. As the president looked on, two teams of uniformed 7-to 9-year-olds, the Green Raiders and the Stompers, booted the ball back and forth across the neatly-clipped grass. "Do I throw it or kick it?" Reagan joked. After introducing retired soccer superstar Pele and New York Cosmos high scorer Steve Moyers to the young players, the president informed them, "By the way, I am Ronald Reagan." Although Pele and Moyers were both dressed in suits and ties for the soccer promotion, they mixed it up among the young players. Several minor mishaps occurred. The ball flew into a bordering flower garden three times. And at one point, a player, injured slightly, left the field in tears. He was replaced by a pigtailed girl. Neither team had a clearly-defined goal line, but the Green Hornets

Every Mothers' Son

Mother never changes. Mother will always be a oneline, off-the-record description from a nun in a children's home: "I can tell you she is a 16-year-old Jewish girl..."

Mother never leaves me, except for that one terrible time when she told the world forever how much she loved me.

Mother never grows old. I am now older than Mother, but age has not given me the wisdom to fathom the depth of her love.

In a way, I despise Mother's strength. I cannot break from the grip of that gesture that binds me to her more than mere biology ever could.

And that is an injustice to my mother. My mother is a poor country girl who married a poor city boy and 10 years later took the 3-month-old son of a Jewish teenager to her heart.

My mother has grown older with me, and she has shown me much about the depth of a mother's love. Her demonstrations have not given me the ability to match the depth of that love.

In a way, I detest my mother's generosity. I cannot escape the kindness that nourishes me more than Mother's womb ever did.

Not that I really hate anything about my mothers — I protest in the same way a cab driver in New York City complains about the traffic: though it can be an annoyance, he is nothing without it. As a tame dog, never wanting to run far, strains at his leash; so I strain at the bonds that choke my freedom to fully express a son's love.

Being the son of two strong mothers has taught me much about weakness. I have moments when I think I am not capable of forgiving Mother for leaving me that one time, however loving her intent. And in 23 years I have not yet grown enough to easily move beyond a sense of obligation to an honest love for my mother.

Logically, I know that I am not "obliged" to my mother for her concern for me — love does not come with invoices or past-due notices. I know, too, that I can not condemn Mother for having the strength to entrust her son to strangers for eternity. Logic sometimes crumbles to dust when confronted by the heart.

But somehow, mind and spirit never quite confront one another in this search for a son's truth. They seem instead to be wrapped around each other in a gentle dance, with neither willing to take the lead. Confused, I search for identity and love.

I would like to meet Mother. We should cry together for the tender pain we have been to each other. I flatter myself that she would be proud of me, though perhaps she would be a little disappointed to discover which holiday I celebrate in December.

But meeting Mother would not untangle the knots of identity and love tied around my images of these two women. I'm not sure I would even want to know the practical reasons for which Mother left me - I would rather congratulate her for her emotional strength and present living proof that she did the right thing.

But that affirmation of her action will never come about. The law of the land prohibits it, and the gifts two women have given me make it an impossibility.

I can romanticize the untold story of a 16-year-old Jewish girl, but my mother is flesh and blood.

I can speak in poetic phrases of the perhaps-onlyimagined strength of Mother's love, but I have lived with the greatness of my mother's generosity. I have hurt her occasionally with angry words that no son can say to his natural mother. She has given too much for me to risk hurting her with a search for a woman who has already proven her strength and love.

Not that my mother would begrudge me a meeting with Mother, and not that she would be threatened by it. Perhaps I am more threatened by such a meeting than she.

Still, any search for Mother would somehow diminish the sense in which I am my mother's son — as if I were somehow saying 23 years of devotion were not enough. As if I were somehow saying the lack of an umbilical cord between us meant the lack of any link between us.

I will not be so insensitive for the sake of patting Mother on the back for having the courage to part with me.

And perhaps it is best that Mother remain a timeless one-liner from a nameless nun. Reality is not always so warm as a mother would be.

Perhaps it is best to have two mothers: one never changing, frozen in love by an act that separated her from me for all time; another, separate from me only biologically, warming me with a never-ending love and a more awesome strength than even one magnificent, unknown, Jewish teenager could muster.

That awesome strength has earned a stranger the right to be forever embraced as Mother.

L.A. police search for killer yesterday they are looking for a silent killer with an "odd" gun who shoots people sitting in their cars, then drags them onto the street and rifles their pockets.

Officers believe the same person has slain two people, an oceanographer and a Princeton University student, and suspect links to the wounding of two women in separate shootings in the Beverly Hills area this week.

Each of the four shootings occurred west of downtown Los Anthree in affluent geles, neighborhoods. Witnesses to three of the shootings described the gunman as a black male.

'He just walks up, never says a word, and starts shooting," Detective Sherman Oakes of the Wilshire Division said yesterday. "Once the victim is dead, he then goes through the victim's pockets."

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Police said added. "In fact, we're test-firing everything that we're getting in custody. We've probably test-fired 30 guns already just hoping on a longshot."

Part of the difficulty in the investigation is that the shootings are only a handful of the 675 murders recorded in Los Angeles from Jan. 1 to Sept. 30, said Los Angeles Lt. Dan Cooke.

"Bizarre, if you'll notice, has become rather routine in this city," he said.

Oakes is investigating the Aug. 19 murder of Lawrence Raphael, a 19year-old Princeton student and former local high school basketball star shot to death while sitting in a car with his girlfriend in her Hancock Park driveway.

The killer, described as a black male, shot Raphael, then dragged his body from the car and searched his pockets while his girliend watched in terror, detectives said.

"The girlfriend was sitting in the car, he had to know she was there," Oakes said. "Then he walks off. He didn't run, walks off. That's cold."

Oakes said the same gun was used to kill oceanographer Robert Owen Plaisted, 48, who was murdered as he sat alone in his car in a Hollywood parking lot Aug. 4.

"Plaisted and Raphael are definitely linked," he said. "We've got good evidence. That's our ace in the hole, hopefully."

Detective William Gailey of Hollywood said Plaisted's body was found in a parking lot adjacent to the Hollywood police station. There were no witnesses, he said.

"I've never handled one in 14 years like this," Oakes said. "In fact, I've never heard of one like this. Usually it's 'give me your money' and the guy argues or tries to resist and then he's shot. But I've never had them walk up to them without a word and assassinate them.'

Seminar to discuss myths of world hunger

By DAN McCULLOUGH News Staff

The role of the individual in finding a solution to the world hunger problem is the topic Sunday in a seminar entitled "Ending World Hunger"

The lecture, which will take place in the seminar rooms of Moreau Seminary at 1:00, is sponsored by the Hunger Project. Included is a discussion of the myths surrounding world hunger, a review of the current hunger situation, and options on what the student can do to help end the hunger crisis. An opportunity to respond or comment is also available.

Elkhart resident Janice Martin, regional coordinator for the Hunger Project for a ten-state area will conduct the seminar, which was originally designed by hunger experts in San Francisco.

Although the Hunger Project is not a politically active group which lobbies Congress, they do hope to allow the individual to see that he is the key to solving this crisis, according to 1979 Notre Dame graduate Mark George, an active member of the group.

"The goal (of the seminar) is to make ending hunger an issue on the Notre Dame campus," said George.

He invites students interested in getting involved in the world hunger cause, or those merely interested in attending Sunday's seminar, to contact him at 255-5385. This will ensure a seat at the lecture.

El Salvador Government troops counterattack

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The government sent 5,000 troops backed by artillery, fighterbombers and helicopter gunships into northern El Salvador yesterday to counterattack the strongest guerrilla drive in six months.

Stiff guerrilla resistance was reported and a national guard commander in northern Chalatenango province, where the massive counteroffensive was concentrated, tions in the 1950s and 1960s that aroused concern over organized crime, said he also will create a panel to do a three-year analysis of organized crime's influence in every region of the country.

He also proposed a national center to train local law enforcement agents in fighting such new organized crime activities as arson, bombing, bribery, computer theft, contract fraud and bid-rigging.

Attorney General William French Smith said organized crime today includes not only the traditional "families" in La Cosa Nostra, but also highly organized motorcyle and prison gangs and emerging drug cartels, particularly in Southeast Asia and Colombia.

Administration officials, who asked not to be identified, said that under the plan, up to 700 new agents in the FBI and Drug Enforcement Agency will be hired, along with another 500 law encement agents in other federal departments and federal prosecutors.

The new agents will replace the most experienced crimefighters, who will staff the proposed task forces, the officials said.

The task forces will be based in Boston, New York, Baltimore, Atlanta, Houston, St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco and San Diego. But their activities would cover broad regions and officials said no part of the country would be neglected.

A typical task force would consist of 52 federal investigators, 20 federal prosecutors, 50 enforcement personnel from agencies outside the Justice Department and 20 clerical and paralegal employees.

Reagan called for increased coordination among federal agencies and a program to enlist hhe nation's governors in fighting crime.

He said at least 10 soldiers were wounded yesterday morning at El Jicaro. "The situation is pretty critical," he said. "They've brought in a lot of wounded."

The commander, who did not want to be identified, said reinforcements continued to arrive because of unexpectedly strong resistance at Las Vueltas, a town of 5,000 people 50 miles north of the capital that about 700 rebels overran Sunday night.

The leftist rebels are trying to topple the U.S.-backed rightist government of El Salvador.

South and east of the capital, the army searched for guerrillas who attacked three military outposts and brought transportation to a standstill with warnings of heavy attacks to come.

The army's three U.S.-trained battalions were sent into Chalatenango province with other ground forces. Four American-made A-37 "Dragonfly" fighter-bombers were bombing and striking rebel positions at Las Vueltas, said the commander.

In addition, American-made sembly.

UH-1H "Huey" helicopters buzzed through the hills, firing on guerrillas with machine guns. Ground forces were pounding rebel positions with 105mm cannon set up on a soccer field on the northern side of Chalatenango City, he said.

Maj. Armando Aviles, commander of the drive, said troops and guerrillas clashed close to Las Vueltas before the army entered the city at dawn.

"The army units are advancing, but the terrain is difficult," he said.

In most previous encounters, guerrillas have melted away into the rugged countryside when the military mounted a drive against a town they have taken.

A national guard commander in Aguilares, about 25 miles north of San Salvador, said guerrillas ambushed a 300-man troop truck convoy heading to the Chalatenango fighting early yesterday, killing two troops and wounding 16 others.

The guerrilla assaults this week constitute the strongest and bestcoordinated operation since their unsuccessful effort to disrupt March 28 elections for a constituent assembly.

Fahner had described Arnold's arrest Monday as "another one of those (incidents) that are unrelated" to the killings.

Several coincidences too strong to ignore make Arnold a "possible potential suspect," and he was uncooperative with detectives, Locallo said. Authorities are continuing to investigate him, he said.

After his release on bond Wednesday Arnold said, "I had nothing to do with this Tylenol thing at all." He is charged with five counts of failure to register firearms and one count of aggravated assault stemming from an earlier incident in a tavern.

Police arrestd Arnold on Monday after an informant told them he was known to keep cyanide in his home. Detectives said they found in the home five guns and ammunition, as well as the literature on poisons.

Authorities also said Arnold had two one-way tickets to Thailand and intended to leave the country today for a 28-day vacation there. His attorney, Thomas Royce, said at thé bond hearing that Arnold will cancel his vacation.

Take the plunge!

We would all benefit from a little "plunge' at some point in our lives. To take about 48 hours' leave from the comfortable surroundings we are so well accustomed to, and experience "the other side" of civilization.

Kelli Flint

たちのないのところの

Overview

The Center for Experiential Learning (CEL) offers this opportunity to Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students every year. It's called the Urban Plunge.

An article in Tuesday's Observer described how CEL coordinates the plunge. They expect 300 applicants by deadline today at 3:00. (Extensions are a possibility. If you are interested, contact Reg Weissert.)

I happen to be one of the 260 participants distributed to 58 sites throughout the nation during two early days in January, 1982.

None of the six of us assigned to St. Malachy's Parish in Chicago knew quite what to expect from our stay. We were all told at orientation to erase preconceived notions and "go with the flow" of the site.

Our site was in a neighborhood which includes two high-rise housing projects and several vacant lots. One of our hosts noted that there wasn't a complete city block in the area

We talked about the history of St. Malachy's.

S.A.D.D. needs student support

Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD) is a group that may actually achieve a measure of effectiveness against alcohol abuse. We've all heard the rhetoric about alcohol-related problems, but none are more potentially dangerous than the drunk driver. SADD is an organization which can do more than rhetoric and the Dean of Student's guidelines on drinking. It can do more if the "S" in SADD becomes ganization which has managed to do something that the University has failed to do: make an organized attempt to combat an alcohol problem.

SADD has also managed to get good media support. WNDU, channel 16, covered their organizational meeting two weeks ago. U93 FM also managed to put news story on the air for them. And of course, my article in the Observer is not the first in Notre Dame's campus daily

One thing seems to be conspicuously absent: student support. The curse of most Notre Dame organizations and crusades has afflicted SADD. Student membership is a mere handful. With so few people it is difficult to set long-term goals or begin comphrensive planning. The next SADD meeting will be this Sunday, October 17, at 2:00 p.m. in Hofman Lounge in the basement of Keenan Hall.

Much of the damage to the neighborhood was done during the riots in 1968. One of the nuns at St. Malachy's lived in the area when the riots took place. She witnessed the destruction.

A host led us on a walking tour of the neighborhood. We watched as a boy who looked about seven years old waved a knife at us. Our host was reassuring. "Most people in this neighborhood carry weapons all the time to protect themselves," he said. "Many bring guns and knives with them to bingo."

We were undoubtedly intruders in this societal microcosm. Although no local passersby seemed to object to us, a police car pulled over as we walked by a high-rise housing project. One of the officers asked what we were doing in the area, and whether our host was carrying a gun. When he answered "no," the officer said "well, good luck" and drove off.

Tenants in these housing projects are often victimized by city politics because they live near Chicago's downtown shopping area. Cabrini Green is a ten-minute walk from Michigan Avenue.

A priest with a nearby parish noted that high-rise buildings are easily transformed into luxury condominiums. He thinks tenants may be systematically evicted for this purpose. The priest also revealed that the leases on many of the buildings will soon expire.

Several rays of hope help St. Malachy's thrive. One of these rays is Ernestine, a parishioner who owns a "love lounge" on Madison Street.

Pictures of the Sacred Heart of Jesus decorate the door of the lounge

Ernestine named it the Love Lounge after her husband and an employee were robbed and killed there one night. "There should be more love in the world," she said.

Stories similar to mine were shared at a Plunge follow-up meeting. Many said the experience changed them. Maybe they won't join Holy Cross Associates or dedicate their lives to inner city redevelopment, but they are different. They're more sensitive to a culture they may otherwise never have seen.

So consider spending two days this January in a special place. You may be glad you did.

Thanking one's natural parents

I would like to direct this reply to Mr. Mowle and his October 11 editorial on "Opening Adoption Records."

As I am adopted, I can claim to completely understand the desire to know that some adoptees have. Unfortunately, Mr Mowle is a product of the ignorant majority who claim to and even think they do understand this issue.

My opening question to him is "Did you bother to speak to an adoptee or to parents (either adoptive or natural?) I suspect not.

Next, although your presentation is quite convincing, too bad your conclusions logically follow from invalid premises. In other words, your opinion evolves from myths, not from facts.

You consistently defend the parents and condemn the adoptees for "expecting handouts." I must agree with you that the parents certainly do not "owe" us anything. But, how can you generalize that imposition and expectation of anything are the only motives an adoptee has beside curiosity? I know my adoptive parents have already given me everything I biologically and financially need.

Using your own analogy of the anonymous gift, won't the recipient wonder from whom it came? If the gift were flowers, wouldn't you be tempted to call the florist for the sender's identity? Of course you would.

Or, to use my own analogy, suppose someone were hit over the head and suffered complete amnesia. Should the victim contentedly set about building a new life? By Mr. Mowle's reasoning, if the person sought his/her past, "What good will this information be to the individual?"

parents only gave up their child by "knowing that they would be protected from future meeting by law." Protected? I think "hindered" from future meeting is more applicable. Often-times the biological parents are as eager as the child to share knowledge and experiences. Yes, even to explain.

So, why would an adoptee want to meet his/her real parents? Because natural children take for granted that they have Mom's eyes, Dad's feet or Uncle Fred's red hair. Because natural children know how they kicked, made Mom uncomfortable and decided to be born during that New Year's Eve party. Because natural children will never hear, "I did my best with what I was given," "We wish we had never adopted you," or "Let me introduce my son's adopted children."

But according to Mr. Mowle, "it seems ungrateful to insist on knowing your 'real' parents." False again. My gratefulness to my adoptive parents is evident in my actions, my ideals and in whom I've become. To them, I can easily say, "Thanks Mom, thanks Dad." I am their child and nothing can change that.

On the other hand, it certainly is ungrateful to not thank those who give you the opportunities to succeed. Why should I be denied my right to share my achievements? I think my biological parents would be proud of my achievements and content to know that they made the best decision 19 years ago. So, getting back to Mr. Mowle's analogy of a gift --- if the adoption records are not opened, how will I ever know to whom I should send the Thank-you note?

an active force.

The Students of Notre Dame can make a difference if they will come out and support this organization. It is up to all of us to gain awareness and understanding of what it means to drive drunk. SADD doesn't need the mere lipservice which has sent so many other ND-SMC organizations to their apathetic graves. It needs student participations and support to combat one of the most senseless and tragic events - the alcohol-related traffic fatality.

Most campus organizations have problems finding supportive members in the administration. SADD has managed to avoid this. One main reason is that they are a student or-

Without student support, SADD's inroads throughout campus will go for naught. I appeal to t you to join this organization and make it work. A driver whose judgement is impaired by alcohol will turn his car into a 3,000 pound machine of brutal destructive force. SADD's main goal is to make people so aware of the problem that they will no longer be needed. Please help.

The attempt to further convince the audience by warning that "the odds are very low that the natural parents would have been better than the foster parents" fails miserably. Mr. Mowle's argument implies that he thinks that the adoptee is trying to trade in his/her adoptive parents for the biological ones. Quite untrue. Acknowledging one set of parents does not mutually exclude the others. Also, Mr. Mowle states that the biological

Numbing effects of horror

A couple of weeks ago I was looking around my apartment for something to do, and I hit upon broadening my mind and reading Time and Newsweek. After reading them I was struck by the face on the cover of Time, Princess Grace. Then I looked at the cover of Newsweek and noted that it pictured the bodies of the victims of the Lebanese refugee massacre. The contrast struck me and started me thinking. Of course, Time wasn't totally insensitive, it did say "Massacre in Lebanon" in small print above the picture of Princess Grace, but the contrast remained striking. Why the differing cover stories? Is the accidental death of one important personage more important and dear to our hearts than the brutal slaughter of innocents in the refugee camps of Lebanon?

Richard Lechowich

For most of us the answer is "Of course not." The international outrage displayed by most responsible governments has been well documented. The United States, France, and Italy have all volunteered to keep the fragile peace, and American blood has already been shed defending that same peace. While the Lebanese militia that committed the massacre were right wing Phlangists, they were under the operational control of the Israeli Defense Forces(IDF). Therefore, the almost superhuman stupidity of using these troops to "guard" camps full of their hated enemies, and then failing to act for 24 hours after suspicions of massacre arose, falls fully on the IDF, Menachem Begin, and Ariel Sharon. Begin and Sharon have managed to use the international outcry to strengthen their position at home, and create a seige mentality within their government.

With almost equal idiocy, the Syrian government aids and abets the remnants of the PLO in Lebanon while refusing to evacuate its nearly 30,000 troops from the Beklea valley. This can only result eventually in another military clash. This would be unfortunate for Syria, for in recent weeks the Syrians have shown themselves to be rather poor warriors, having a 1 to 83 loss ratio against the Israeli air force.

In the 1973 war, Syrian tank losses outnumbered the Israelis 70 to 1. It would appear, therefore, that 300,000 Syrians might be able to stay in Lebanon when attacked by 70,000 Israelis, but not 30,000. The self-defeating policy of provoking the Israelis to attack by using the PLO appears to have been chosen by the Syrians. In the long run this will result in the permanent loss of the West Bank, the Gaza strip, the Golan Heights, and the partition of Lebanon. That is, barring direct Soviet intervention or American involvement, which would result in World War III. In the meantime Begin and Sharon are free to pursue their dream of "greater Israel" which does very little but create more refugees, more camps, more terrorists, and more deaths on both sides.

What struck me the most, however, was the coverage given to both situations. Slaughters do not sell magazines anymore, only superstars and other trivia does. What we want is a diversion from the sordid reality facing us. Royalty is interesting, even in death, while slaughter is not. We have seen too much of it. It is better copy to cover Princess Grace's death than just another massacre.

Only in the twentieth century has it become an accepted policy of governments to control their citizens by mass murder. The millions of Armenian dead, slaughtered by Turks in 1915, the untold millions killed in the Russian Civil War, the purges of Stalin, culminating with approximately 30 million kulaks exterminated, Hitler's Germany with the blood of 12 million on its hands all come to mind. Add to these the astronomical totals the "small" atrocities of our time: Mai Lai, the Bataan Death March, Katyn Forest, Malmedy, Ireland, Cambodia, Lebanon; the list is nearly endless. We are so drenched with blood, so sick of death, that another couple of hundred can make no impression on our battered sensibilities. I make no claim to special moral feelings, the numbers above are so huge and encompass so much suffering my mind refuses to attempt to understand and grasp them.

We cannot, however, merely turn away in horror from our environment. In an age where whatever is practical is possible, we must speak against all such senseless slaughter. We must not lose our sensibilities and become numb to the wholesale slaughter of our time. That's why I disliked the "personal touch" of just covering Princess Grace's death merely because we can grasp that and sympathize with it. Besides, it makes money. The media must not only be enjoyable; it must be informative, or it loses its purpose. It is necessary to have the stomach to look horror in the face, acknowledge its presence, and resist its further spread. Our century has seen (God have mercy on us) so much death that the time has come to make an effort to shake off the numbress of mind and heart that comes from terror and resist all such crimes to our fullest abilities. The values I am taught at Notre Dame tell me that it is not just my obligation, it is my duty. Our government's steps to preserve the fragile peace in the Middle East are a courageous step in the right direction.

Author's note: While those who know me are aware that I am in ROTC and might quickly ask the question: "How can a baby killer like you write this peace-nik editorial?" I answer that the true duty of any soldier is to keep the peace and safeguard those in his charge. For those of you who claim that armies are unnecessary, archaic holdovers, I respectfully request you examine history and human nature. Until humans are redeemed, only morally aware and vigilant people who are willing to resist tyranny will stop its spread. We must be prepared to do so or history will continue to unhappily repeat itself.

P.O. Box Q

A child's need to know

Dear Editor:

On Monday, October 11, Tom Mowle published an article entitled "Opening of adoption records: needless pain." As an adoptee who bas searched for and found her birth parents, I found this article misrepresented this social rights issue. Indeed, Mr. Mowle's admission at the end that he "...cannot claim to completely understand..." reenforced my basic malaise with his account.

Well, Mr. Mowle, why did I search for my birth parents? All of my life for as long as I can remember, I have known that I was adopted. For me, finding my birth parents was something I always dreamed of doing, something that my mother and father told me they would willingly help me do. I wanted to know if I had my birth mother's eyes, my birth fathers's chin and to whom I owed my general physique. What was my birth mother who went through such emotional trauma and social ostracization at age 16 like? What was my birth father who wanted to take on the responsibility of a family at age 18 like? away. Indeed, when my birth mother and I finally did traverse physical boundaries to meet, she expressed these same thoughts to me. "I always wondered how you were; if I'd made the right choice." And with my birth father it was a question of whether he had "...made the right choice in accepting (my) birth mother's decision to not get married but to give (me) up for adoption." I wanted to tell them that I was fine, happy and in love with life.

And lastly, I felt a bit incomplete. I have loving parents, a good life and a promising age 18 - I also had a gap in my personal history. I knew so little about those who had given me my chance to live. We are definitely creatures of environment, but some parts of who we are, are innate, I believe. I needed to see the complete picture of who I was. And as my adoption agency told me, more than three-fourths of the adoption reunions that occur are desired by both parties concerned. These situations are not the simple somebody vs. somebody cases the article made them out to be and most people believe them to be. My birth mother came to realize this through our correspondences also. Even if her initial reaction was one of anger at a breach of anonymity, her second and more truthful reaction which she holds to this day, was one of relief. And as for my birth father, it was a contact he had dreamed about for 18 years. I succeeded in finding my birth parents without the aid of files I as lucky. But there are others both adoptees. and birth parents, who are not so fortunate and yet who still try. Maybe we should all take a closer look before we fall back on the simple and incomplete understandings that most of us assume without even having experienced it.

Vets: second-class Americans

Dear Editor,

Three wars in which this country has been engaged in since 1940 have passed. Young men and women are being required by laws of the land to register for future drafts. From the news media, we are informed that three young men will have to serve time in our ptisons for refusing to register on the grounds that it is against their religious beliefs to do so.

There are many lay and religious groups throughout America's campuses which espouse "peace and justice" philosophies, but as members of the Committee for Veterans for Constitutional Rights, we must ask each and everyone of you: How can there be peace of mind and justice, when one of the most important segments of the population in America, the Disabled American Veterans, have been denied their most human and constitutional rights to gain access into our Federal Courts by Congressional laws written in 1940? Why have we been denied the rights of review, the rights blatantly abused by the Veterans Administration, who adjudicates claims by their rules and regulations procedures. There are over 3.5 million disabled veterans today whose "service connected disabilities" will never be proven. They'll never receive benefits because they are denied the same citizenship rights which all of you in civilian status enjoy! Legally, morally, and humanistically, these people have a right to a fair and unbiased trial. Congress passed a law in October of 1940 stating that ex-military personnel attaining a civilian-veteran status after service would be deprived of their Constitutional rights in federal court if they filed claims against the government and the Veterans Administration. Title NG. 38, section 211(a) is the legal vehicle for this immoral law. In the same Title volume, section number 3404 made certain that veterans would not be able to secure "due process of law." The law stipulated that any legal attorney contemplating on representing a veteran's claim must do so on the condition that, in the words of the Veteran's Administrations Board of Appeals, be or she will not charge more than $10.00 for their legal services! Veterans are also not allowed to cross examine any VA officials on how they arrived at their decisions in the claims. The meansitude of these for dimensione

The magnitude of these findings uncovering the unconstitutionality of these laws and regulations, coupled with the fact that each of you students may, at some time in your careers, be called upon to serve in our country's military services, could subject you to the very same situations we veterans have experienced. If you came home disabled, you too could be a victim of this denial of your Constitutional rights. We are asking for all your help in supporting a movement to correct this gross injustice by writing me at my home address or writing to your state's Congressional leaders and urge them to support passage of the Veterans Judicial Review Bill. The bill plans to set up a separate Court of Veterans Appeals that will free veterans from having to continuously face officials who took the brunt of these traumatic decisions. This bill will set up legal avenues that will make these officials accountable for their decisions of tomorrow

Curiosity? Yes, the type of curiosity that unadopted children also seek to solve by observing and asking their parents questions. But this is only one part of the whole picture. I'm sorry Mr. Mowle, but there was something beyond curiosity for me.

First, there was my concern for my birth parents. My mother used to tell me how worried she would ave been each and every day if she had given up a child for adoption. She often we idered how my birth mother must have felt when my birthday rolled around in August. Imagine gong through nine months out of a respect for life, only to have what you helped give birth to taken away and raised by another. Imagine standing by and letting your seed be given

SHOWCASE Friday, October 15, 1982 – page 8 Steak and Ale: quiet and pleasant

Seventy-six trombones

Seventy-six trombones lead the big parade of the All American College Marching Band, and two trombonists will be Notre Dame's own Stephanie A. Korcheck and Robert F. O'Donnell. Tenor saxophonist, Joseph F. MacKrell will join these N.D. band students on Saturday, October 23, for the Grand Opening of the Epcot Center in Orlando Florida showplace that spotlights futuristic ideas and technologies with the natural histories and splendors of many nations, in ride-through adventure shows and visual attractions.

After the parade, there will be a grand entrance and the All American Marching Band will present the Music of America. According to applying."They probably assume that coming from N.D., we are responsible, good musicians."

Each University or College member is to wear their own band uniform, according to the Epocot Newsletter, to "... retain individual identities and guarantee a colorful show effect . . ." Disney will provide a special overlay and shako to overdress each uniform. Sunday, October 24, marks the official Grand Opening of the Epcot Center. Participating with the All American Marching Band will be international preformers, the West Point Glee Club, a professional orchestra, noted guest conductors and representatives from many countries. These events will be featured in a one hour television special October 25, on the CBS Television Network Rehearsal for this All American Marching Band will begin upon arrival, Monday, October 17, and extend for five days. Disney picks up the bill for all of the transportation, hotel and food bills. As MacKrell states, "It's a free tan courtesy of Walt Disney, plus the experience of representing my country and meeting all different kinds of neat people. Donnell feels that it is not only the opening of the Epcot Center that is important, but the concept behind it - all of the different countries participating in a peaceful and fun atmosphere.

restaurant review

This week my mysterious and sultry dining partner and I dined at Steak and Ale on U.S. 31 across from the North Villiage Mall. Decorated like an English inn, the best description of the restaurant is dark and quiet. With stone walls and dim lights, the separate dining rooms provide a sense of intimacy unavailable in most restaurants this size. True to its name, the menu mainly consists of steak; chicken, seafood and quiche are also featured.

Steak and Ale's drink special is outstanding. Most drinks are 2-for-1 during dinner, with specialty drinks, daiquiris, margaritas and pina coladas starting at $2. The strawberry daiquiri had decidedly too little rum and my scotch was on the light side. The wine list was uninteresting, leaning heavily toward nationally distributed brands like Lancer's and Mateus. Most wines were relatively inexpensive. The appetizer selection was limited. We skipped the chilled shrimp ($3.95), choosing instead the the French onion soup ($1.95) and stuffed mushrooms ($2.95). The onion soup was a pleasant surprise; I found I didn't need the decorative sword I had ripped from the wall to do battle with the cheese. The soup was delicious and hot enough to keep the cheese melted and smooth, not stringy. The sauteed mushrooms were undercooked but the crabmeat stuffing was good.

The salad bar offered a nice variety of toppings with cheese, real bacon, raisins, sunflower seeds, beets (beets?) and several dressings. The best part, though, was the plates. Where else do you find chilled salad plates at a salad bar? The bread loaf was soft and warm outside but cold in the middle.

The entrees varied from steaks and prime rib ($5.95-$12.95), broiled shrimp ($9.95), Flounder stuffed with crabmeat, shrimp and cheese ($7.95) and lobster ($14.95); marinated chicken ($6.95) and quiche ($5.45). We opted for smothered chicken (7.95) and the featured Kensington Club sirloin steak ($9.75). The chicken, thick with provolone cheese, mushrooms and onions, was tender and moist. The meat could have stood a little more seasoning. The rice pilaf was also underseasoned.

The evening's big disappointment was the steak. I had ordered it medium-well and it came very, very rare. This is inexcusable in a restaurant whose emphasis is on beef. Beyond that, it was fairly tender and the marinade was good. The potato was stuffed with cheese and bacon and was properly cooked. I resented, however, the extra charge for the rice and potato.

For dessert we had the strawberry cheesecake and hot fudge cake and ice cream. The cheesecake was "not bad, not great," according to my otherwise silent partner, and less than attractive sitting in a small puddle of strawberry juices. The ice cream cake was huge but the fudge was cold. The waitress was very pleasant and the service good. Our total bill came to $37 or so including two drinks.

I found Steak and Ale to be quiet and pleasant. If you like steak, you'll love their menu. If nothing else take advantage of their 2-for1 happy hour. Also, you never know what Notre Dame dignitary you might encounter at dinner.

If you happen to need a study break Sunday, the exhibition of Dutch art from the collection of Dr. A.C.R. Dreesman will open from 1 to 4 pm. The exhibition is one of the many cultural exchanges taking place this year between the United States and the Netherlands in celebration of the bicentennial of relations between the two countries. The Dreesman collection of paintings, drawings, porcelain and silver is comprised of work from the "Golden Age" of Dutch art, the seventeenth century. At that time several factors combined to create a "Greek fire" of culture: the Dutch tolerance of intellectual and social diversity, an urban, mercantile economy, newly gained independence, and, finally, the skill and genius of Dutch artists.

Among the fifty states, from 146 Colleges and Universities, 450 band students will congregate in Florida to produce the American College Marching Band. This band will represent the United States of America among twenty-five other nations in the celebration of the Grand Opening of Walt Disney's Epcot Center.

According to trombonist,Korcheck, the experience is a once in a lifetime thing, like being present in the making of history.

The opening of the Epcot Center will bring about a new era in entertainment, states the Erie, Pa., Times. "The Epcot Center is a 260 acre complex which provides a permanent World's fair of imagination, discovery and exploration," claims the designers at W.E.D. enterprises. The Epcot Center 15 2." acut million tenor saxophonist, MacKrell, the Music of America will include such tunes as, "Yankee Doodle March", "76 Trombones", "American Patriotic Medley", "World Showcase March", and many more. All of the music must be memorized. This gives the students three weeks to memorize at least 40 pages of new music, claims MacKrell.

The three N.D. students who were chosen for the All American Marching Band applied last April, and received their acceptance in June. According to trombonist Donnell, the three people applying from N.D. were accepted. He attributes this to "luck" or "the right combination", meaning the instrument played, the State residing in and the College or University attending. Each N.D. band member chosen has had eight to nine years of experience on their instrument, combined with High School marching and three years on the Notre Dame Marching Band. There was no try-out for the All American Marching Band, states MacKrell; it was only a matter of Dutch culture during the seventeenth century represented a new age. Up until that time wealth and power were vested in royalty or landed gentry. Art was primarily of a religious nature, or it was funded by a wealthy patron for his own glorification. In Dutch society, however, wealth and power had shifted to the hands of the world's first middle class - a Protestant, urban, mercantile seet. These "burghers," and indeed the common men: the bakers, butchers, and tavern-keepers, became the new patrons of the arts. Their tastes were much more simple. Sumptuous still lifes, seascapes, daily life, full of detail and realistically rendered were the paintings preferred by Dutch buyers. Also desired were corporate portraits, showing the leading citizens and firms at work, and historical narratives for decorating public spaces. The mastery of the painters of the day at depicting the desired subject matter insured that the visual arts of the Dutch republic left the most enduring mark on the history of Western culture.

The Dreesman exhibition includes many landmark works of these masters. Represented in the show are Rembrandt, Jan van Goyen, Jacob van Ruisdael, Nicholas Maes and Fabritus. Evident in many of their works will be a concern with the subtle effects of light and color, with texture, with depiction of fine things and with detail so important in paintings of this period. The show will be held in the Print, Drawing and Photography Gallery on the second floer of the Snite Museum of Art.

SH EXTRA-Playing for kicks Johnstongoesforfieldgoal ecord as Irish take on Arizona

By ED KONRADY Sports Writer

"This will our toughest game of the season."

- Gerry Faust

This is the fifth straight week that Faust has said this, but Saturday against Arizona, he might just be correct. Why?

•Arizona's 1-2-1 record is misleading. They lost to the number one team in the nation, Washington, (whom they outscored 13-3 in the second half) and were tied in the last seconds by UCLA

•Arizona is known for their upsets on the road. In 1980, they defeated UCLA at Los Angeles and the following year they repeated themselves at the Coliseum against USC.

•Notre Dame is coming off an emotional win against Miami, and to face a 1-2-1 team could prove fertile ground for a mental letdown.

- Arizona has out-rushed their opponents this season.
- Arizona has out-scored their opponents this season.
- •Arizona has more passing yardage than their opponents this season.
- Arizona has more interceptions than their opponents this season.
- Arizona has more pass receptions than their opponents this season.

Yes, this may just become the toughest game of the season

Notre Dame is having its problems offensively. Kicker Mike Johnston has been the salvation week after week. This weekend, the senior walk-on from Rochester, N.Y., will be going after an all-time Irish record - 10 straight successful field goals. His next three-pointer will tie the record.

The Wildcat offense is a potent one, led by junior quarterback Tom Tunnicliffe. Last week against UCLA, Tunnicliffe passed for 178 yards. So far this year, he has hit 64 of 114 passes for 795 yards and five touchdowns.

TUCSON, Ariz. - If it wasn't for bad weather in South Bend three winters ago, Ricky Hunley might be playing for the Notre righting mish. mste а, пе neaded west for warmer weather and the University of Arizona.

After two jayvee campaigns in baseball, Hunley felt he probably would not play baseball this year. Football has taken the front seat and baseball has been set aside.

"I didn't have a baseball scholarship," Hunley said, "but they gave me the chance to work my way up from the bottom like everybody else. It would take a lot of overtime and dedication on my part to make it."

Hunley, a highly recruited linebacker out of Petersburg, Va., had planned to make a recruiting visit to Notre Dame, but when a snow storm hit, he delayed his visit and changed his travel plans for Tucson, where the UA campus is located.

'Everybody thought it was the ultimate being recruited by Notre Dame," Hunley said of his friends and neighbors. "When the coach from Notre Dame (then Dan Devine) came down, everybody was all excited. They wanted me to go to Notre Dame."

But when Hunley stepped off the plane in Tucson, the sun was shining and ther was no snow on the ground. He cancelled the Notre Dame trip and announced he was going to Arizona.

The weather was not the only factor in his coming to Arizona, though. He was also interested in playing baseball in the spring, and Arizona was willing to let him play both sports. The Pittsburgh Pirates drafted him in the 26th round and invited him to Florida for a week to work out with the Rookie League. But when only $6,000 was offered as a signing bonus, Hunley said, "Show me the way to the

The effort Hunley could have put into baseball was put into football. As a freshman, Hunley earned a starting spot midway through the season and finished second on the team in defensive points. He was named the Pac-10's Player of the Week in UA's upset victory over UCLA and was selected to Football News and Blue Chip Magazine freshman All-America first teams.

Having never lifted weights, Hunley hit the weight room in the off-season with such fervor that he soon became one of the strongest players on the team. The improvement continued his sophomore year when he led the team in defensive points en route to conference honors, but he said he was surprised when he was named honorable mention All-America.

"Everybody has dreams of being All-American in college and high school," he said. 'I remember when I was in high school, I could foresee it, it was something I wanted. But you start thinking in numbers of how many people in the country that play high

Thayer's place in history Notre Dame's versatile lineman writes his own chapter in Irish grid lore

By LOUIE SOMOGYI Sports Writer

Last week's Miami game left its impacts on Notre Dame senior strong-guard Tom Thayer in three ways

First, it marked the fourth different position (center) that the Joliet, Illinois native has played in his four-year career - a feat seldom, if ever, paralleled in Notre Dame football history. After lettering as a defensive tackle his freshman year, the 6-5 268-pound Thayer, who bench presses 450-pounds, has alternated at playing offensive guard and tackle before being switched over to center against the Hurricanes because of Mark Fischer's injury

Secondly, it guaranteed him a place in Notre Dame historical lore - in the chapter on courage and faith.

Years from now, Notre Dame alumni and subway alumni will probably still be retelling this story.

"Hey Thayer," Miami's nose guard Tony Fitzpatrick yelled. Notre Dame had turned the ball over with 2:58 reamining in the game and trailing 14-13.

"It's over," he grinned. "It's all over. You guys are nothing.

Thaver turned, with a grin of his own. "This is Notre Dame," he said. "It's never over."

The two headed to the sidelines Fitzpatrick laughing heartily at Thayer's statement.

"After we got the ball back and Phil (Carter) took that screen pass for 25-yards. I looked over at Fitzpatrick and told him 'Here we come," recalls Thayer with a laugh. "He just started shaking his head in disbelief."

Of course, Notre Dame went on to win 16-14.

That victory was the third and most significant happening for Thayer in the game. Ironically, though, the triumph has left him a little confused.

'We earn a tremendous win over a great football team, and the thing we hear most is how inconsistent and conservative our offense is," he says.

Indeed, the offense has come under fire in the last two weeks. Scoring only one touchdown (that on an 11-yard drive) in the last two games can do that to you.

'We've had some errors and tough breaks," Thayer admits of the offense, "But when we needed to, we wore down all four teams we played this year in the second half. We believe in ourselves. There wasn't anybody in our huddle in that final drive against Miami that didn't believe we wouldn't win.'

Nevertheless, the first four games of this season are ominously similar to the first four games of 1980. That team also started out 4-0 by defeating the exact four teams which the team has defeated this year. Later that year, the predictable, conservative offense seemed to fold - scoring only five touchdowns in the last five games, and winning only two of those games

Playing teams like Pittsburgh, Penn State and Southern Cal in three of the final four games can lead one to believe that the conservatism will eventually catch up with the Irish the way it did in 1980.

Not so, says Thayer.

"First of all, none of us could care less who we are playing later on," he says. "Arizona is a darn good football team in its own right. The fact that they will be playing Notre Dame will make them all the more better.

"Secondly, there is a big difference between this team and the one in 1980. That was a very young and somewhat immature team (14 of the 22 regulars by the end of the year were either sophomores or freshman).

"We were good (with a 9-2-1 finish) and close as a team. But when a lot of us younger players that year needed to be, or wanted to be, leaders, we didn't step forward because we were afraid that the older guys wouldn't respect us as much.

"This year we're not only experienced seniors or juniors, but we have everyone speak their own peace in the huddle or on the sideline - and we respect it."

Thayer bubbles with confidence when he speaks of this year's team and its chances for a national championship, and he becomes agitated when people feel that such talk after a 5-6 season is a sure sign of a swelling head.

We are not getting the big head," he stresses. "We don't have time to get the big head. I bet if you were to ask every member of the team what the score in just last week's game was, half of them wouldn't know. We were happy and celebrated after the Miami game, but by Sunday afternoon the only thing we were talking about was Arizona.

'We're taking one game at a time. We're not playing any mind games and "what ifs" with the future. We've built such a good thing for ourselves so far this year that we realize it would be a shame to throw it all away. If you had seen our practices this week you would know that we're not satisfied just because we're 4-0. The intensity has just been great."

The new position is perhaps most apporopriate for Thayer. Whether it's rebutting criticism of the offense, knocking opposing defenders over backwards, or standin t g up for the Notre Dame tradition when others sneer at it he is a man that commands attention; and is one who will always be the "center" of it.

Backfield Battle Kiel and Tunnicliffe reunited after freshman match-up

By SKIP DESJARDIN Sports Editor Emeritus

It has always been the quarterbacks - if you can justifiably call the two previous meetings between Notre Dame and Arizona' "always.

In 1941, Johnny Lujack made the first start of his career against the Wildcats, and the Irish won. 38-7

In 1980, Tim Tunnicliffe made the first start of his career against the Irish, and Blair Kiel had one of the best nights of his career as the two teams squared off for the second time.

This weekend, Kiel and Tunnicliffe will again be the starters. But things will be somewhat different this time.

Since that warm October night in Tucson, Tunnicliffe has gone on to an outstanding career. He is now the second leading passer in Arizona history. Time and again, he has come up with his best performances against the toughest teams. Last season, he completed 21 of his 37 passes - good for 293 yards - in a 13-10 upset of No. 1-ranked Southern Cal. The previous year, he hit 12 of 18 for 217 yards en route to an upset of No. 2 UCLA, 23-17

Kiel, who ran 80 yards with a fake punt to break the 1980 game wide open, has not been

"It's a concern anytime you can't punch the ball into the end zone," he admits. "But our goal is to get points on the board when we get inside the 30-yard line, and we've been doing that.

Wildcat Coach Larry Smith is pleased with his club's progress so far.

We are a young team," he says. "But we have good experience in our front line people. We played well in all aspects of the game last week.

"But we can't go into Notre Dame thinking about how we could have beaten UCLA, or we'll get waxed.

Both quarterbacks have talented people behind them. "Phil Carter is a great running back." Smith says. "The whole team is big and strong. Notre Dame is just a very fine football team.

Carter, who moved into fifth place on the all-time Irish rushing list last week, came alive in the fourth quarter - particularly in the winning drive. He still is not picking up a lot of yards on each carry, but he is getting the ball on over half the Notre Dame running plays.

Tunnicliffe has Vance Johnson, one of last season's top freshman, behind him. Put simply, Johnson does it all. He's rushed for 192 yards this season, despite missing the Washington and UCLA games. A tough passcatching threat, Johnson also ranks secoind in the country in kickoff returns, and 14th in allpurpose running at 130.3 yards per game.

Tom Tunnicliffe

as succesful. Whereas Tunnicliffe won his starting job outright, Kiel was forced to battle for his with Mike Courey and, later, Tim Koegel. Until this season, he had not come close to the success he found that night in the desert

This weekend, both junior quarterbacks are coming off big games. Tunnicliffe threw for 178 yards in the Wildcats' surprise tie with ninth-ranked UCLA. Kiel had his best day, in terms of percentage, since the last time he faced Arizona. Against Miami he completed more passes (21-33) than ever before, for 167 yards.

"We have got to get more consistent," Coach Gerry Faust says of his Irish. "We've been running well at times, and passing well, too. But we have to put both together, and come up with sustained drives.

"I think our offense really proved something in that winning drive against Miami. That was the fist time all year we were behind, and I couldn't have been happier with the way we rose to the challenge."

But Faust is still worried about his team's inability to get the ball into the end zone. Last week Kiel rolled out for a touchdown, but only after a Miami fumble gave the Notre Dame the ball on the Hurricane 11-yard line.

The freshman All-Ameican is the key to a speedy offensive attack.

"He's one of the best all-around runners in the country," says Faust. "And Tunnicliffe has matured into a fine all-around quarterback. The two will be tough to beat."

The Wildcats are a tough road team, as they've shown time and again. This week will be no different

Though most would see last week's game as a moral victory for Arizona, Smith is not one of them.

"I'm very disappointed," he says. "We had a great victory snatched from our hands. UCLA tied us, we didn't tie them."

The Wildcats pulled off that surprise because of Tunnicliffe, but without Johnson, That will make tham that much tougher this weekend.

The Irish meanwhile, have been struggling somewhat offensively - despite fine individual performances from Kiel and Carter.

Those four men should combine to make this the most exciting, and the closest, of any in this series to date.

school football, and how many they get to choose from to be an All-American, gol-ly, that's a lot of people.

"The day I saw my name in the paper for honorable mention, I said, 'Dan, the honorable mention list is this long," he said holding his hands apart about a foot, "and all these are linebackers. I said I got to go home and go to work."

This summer the honors continued when he was named to Playboy Magazine's preseason All-America squad. But the accolades have their downfall, too.

"Yeh, as far as the opponents, I get double teamed a lot," he said with a chuckle. "When we were playing Washington, I was seeing two, three guys, just stepping over and away from them. It only makes you better, though. I have to hustle more; I have to chase the play down instead of just running right at it. A lot of plays are ran away from me instead of right at me."

In Hunley's two-plus years, the Wildcats have been up and down from week to week. One week they can lose to a lowly Colorado State or Fresno State, but what has helped Hunley get the nationwide recognition has been victories over the biggies — UCLA two years ago when they were ranked No. 2, USC last year when the Trojans were top-ranked and the 24-24 tie with No. 8 UCLA last Saturday.

"I guess it's the attitude that we as players and the coaches take on the other teams," Hunley said of the inconsistencies. "We've got to learn that we can be beat by anybody, but we can also beat anybody.

"When we play good teams, everybody gets real psyched up because they want to beat them, they want to embarrass them. They want to let people know that were not losers, we can win. I think the guys are tired of losing. We're ready to go out and prove ourselves."

Of the upsets, one common factor has prevailed. The games have been played in the afternoon — a contrast from the traditional night games at Arizona Stadium.

"I just love games like that, especially during the day,' he said with a grin. "I like to get up in the morning and go play football and go home in the afternoon and rest and relax. The night games just drag out, it makes a long day. But I guess that's part of Arizona tradition.

"I would rather play during the day hours instead of the night. You waste a lot of energy just waiting."

Saturday Ricky Hunley will make the trip to South Bend that he never made, and the Wildcats, 1-2-1, will play another biggie — the ninth-ranked Fighting Irish in an afternoon game at Notre Dame Stadium, just the way Hunley likes it.

"I suppose people may tend to overlook Arizona a little bit with UCLA, Washington, and Arizona State all unbeaten in their own league, but I'm sure their performance at UCLA Saturday will make some folks wake up and take notice," says Faust. "You look at their season, and Arizona is not far from 4-0 at this point. Iowa had to drive 80 yards to kick a field goal with less than three minutes to play in order to beat them, and they played a great second half against Washington.

"They gained 499 yards against Oregon State, so they certainly have the capability of putting points on the board.."

In the Arizona backfield will be a pair of sophomores, fullback Courtney Griffith, who has 44 carries for 224 yards, and tailback Phil Freedman, with 37 carries for 116 yards.

Returning at tailback for the Wildcats will be Vance Johnson, who has great speed — and is the NCAA long jump champion. Johnson is second in the NCAA in kickoff returns with an average of 32.7 yards. He led the Wildcats with 192 yards rushing before he missed the UCLA contest with a bruised shoulder.

Accompaning Johnson back into the Wildcat fold will be Brian Holland, who caught four passes and rushed for 15 yards against the Irish two years ago. Holland became academically eligible for the first time this year, and can be expected to see some action. Holland has been Arizona's leading rusher in each of the last two seasons with 590 yards in 1980 and 577 yards in 1981.

Faust characterized the offensive line as "huge and very mobile," weighing in at 233–270–244–250–254 and 265 across the line in at a b b, a r b, a r b, a b b, a b b, and a b b a cross the line.

The offensive line is led by Jeff Kiewel. The senior right guard, the 254 pounder of the line, was a second-team all-Pac 10 pick in 1981.

Tunnicliffe's top recievers are a pair of seniors, split-end Brad Anderson, whose 19 catches have gained 317 yards, and tight end Mark Keel, with nine catches for 135 yards.

The defense is "as good as any we've played against," said Faust. "The linebackers have both speed and size. The secondary is well coached, which is obvious by the number of their interceptions."

The Wildcat defense is led by All-Pacific 10 inside linebacker Randy Hunley. Junior Hunley has led the team in tackles throughout the season and has two interceptions. "With senior Glenn Perkins, they form one of the better combinations in the country at linebacker," said Faust. "They've improved this year defensively, no question about it. They held the top-ranked team in the country to only a field goal in the second half, and they had Iowa on the ropes all afternoon. They held UCLA to only 65 yards on the ground, and forced them to throw probably a little more than they wanted to, and that's the mark of a good defense."

Faust himself is very impressed with Arizona, and is expecting quite a game. "Arizona always rallies when they play better teams. Under Larry Smith, the Wildcats are known for always being well-coached.

"My big concern is on our mental attitude after our Miami revenge. One thing that will help us prepare for the game is how Arizona played against Washington and that they tied UCLA last week. The players know that Arizona is a good football team.

"Letdowns are always a problem when you play a schedule like ours and Arizona's. They don't have to get ready for us, but next week they face Pacific.

"Playing us is like playing a bowl game. Teams are always ready for us."

If you love Jesus

Every October, the original Darby O'Gill (1970-1980, r.i.p.) used to turn religious. With most dogs, you can't tell if they've been born again or not. But old Darby, limping around on his bad hind leg with the sweetness of the lame boy Tiny Tim, would begin a dialogue with creation. If I had said, "Bark once, if you love Jesus," he would have barked like a fundamentalist. I had no wish to vulgarize him like a bumper sticker; he was a cocker spaniel, not an evangelist. In whatever pre-Christian creed he clung to, he didn't need a saviour to die for his sins. He had no wish to caper on street corners as a way of witnessing to Amazing Grace.

Rev. Robert Griffin

In the autumn, burning bushes called him to religious attention. He would sit in front of a maple, all scarlet with the season, like a nun before an altar. He would run to greet the leaves as they fell, the maitre d' of the coutryside. He lived in a state of high excitement, rivalling religious novices in their first fervour. I would awake in the night to find him sleepless, his paws on the window sill, listening to the wind move through the branches. He would rouse me early, to take him out to see the gift darkness had left, showered in color on the ground.

I don't know what local deities he served, what pagan power of wind or weather, or even the great Pan himself, the god of all nature, who fathers life in the lower kingdom. Autumn was, for Darby, his Ramadan and Easter. He moved through the fall landscape as though he had been called to worship with Druids in their pagan groves.

When the first Darby was very young, in his first October of life, I plunged him into a pile of fallen leaves that covered him from the keester to muzzle; it seemed like a reasonable equivalent to the River Jordan. I prayed that he would be befriended by dryads, fauns, wood nymphs, and the natural forces in the great communian of Mother Nature. I also placed him under the protection of Proteus and Triton, though it was doubtful he would ever visit the Peloponnesus. As a stranger to the "pagan suckled in a creed outworn," I did the best I could with an unfamiliar liturgy.

When Darby II came, I neglected his religious initiation, and he shows no sign of being the beneficiary of an apostolic succession in nat t ural faith, though he has romped in the faith-filled pawprints of his predecessor, and sniffed at the identical bushes and trees. I've taken him to all the spots where Pan might play his pipe for a creature. In my most Olympian Latin, I have proclaimed: "Darbatius (Secundus) O'Gill: this is a flame-colored tree. See how the leaves come drifting down." He just wants to check the North Quad to see if students have left him bits of their breakfast doughnuts strewn upon the ground.

I've chased leaves for him, after waiting and watching for their graceful flutter, to show him his predecessor did it. While I'm rubbing my nose in the earth in a ritual of welcome, as an example he can follow, he saunters off to find an old bagel left over from Menachem Begin night in the dining halls.

I take him to play among the shrubs in front of the Dome, hoping that some wood sprite will evangelize him in the polytheism of plant life. So far as I can tell, he remains unshrined, as Christians are said to be unchurched, in any of the temples of nature. I've even read him some of the poetry of Wordsworth, which should be pagan enough for a satyr. Darby fell asleep on hearing the great Immortality ode. It couldn't have sounded like good news from Pelion and Ossa.

With the exception of the Huddle, his favorite spot is the Grotto. In eating, he has always preferred people food, like any other dog. It is silly to say he would prefer peoples' religion to some reverence built on instinct. The old Darby's ashes are buried in the Grotto; it seemed the proper place to bring them when he died. I always prayed there for his well being. Finally, the time came when Our Lady seemed to say: He's been playing for a long, long day. Let him sleep now, and replace him with a puppy.

Maybe in some way I don't know of, the old dog teaches the new dog tricks.

Both Darbys, as far as I am concerned, have been Our Lady's dogs. Wherever I go, now or later, I'm sure they will want to go with me. I have enough faith for the three of us. You wouldn't want the responsibility of a family — even if they're just animals that get into mischief, if you didn't have hope that they could travel on the ticket you are using.

I still wish I could find Darby II at his worship under the October trees, close to the heart of whatever truth he knows. It would be tasteless to tell him to bark once, if he loves Jesus. The tree steeped in shadows is one he will never have to find. He needs to follow the lights that are given to him. I wouldn't want Darby O'Gill II barking up the wrong tree.

O'Toole in FAVORITE YEAR

My Favorite Year represents The directorial debut of Richard Benjamin, a B-movie actor known for his appearance in such gems as Westworld, Love at First Bite, and Scavenger Hunt. From a formal and/or stylistic viewpoint, Mr. Benjamin's inaugural effort suggests that he should stick to acting. The major problem with My Favorite Year is the made-for-viewers. Swann's reaction is vintage O'Toole, and worth the price of admission in itself.

For a long time Peter O'Toole has remained a neglected talent, an odd character outside the British acting tradition of Gielgud, Olivier, Richardson, et. al. In My Favorite Year his sensitive portrayal of the swashbuckling Swann ironically recalls the mistaken stereotypes applied to O'Toole himself. At the conclusion of this film one yearns to see O'Toole in a serious stage

"Amie, what you gonna do?" Go see The Taming of the Shrew, the first production in the 1982-83 Theatre Department's Mainstage season. Complete with a country band to introduce the westernized production, their repertoire includes Pure Prarie League's "Amie" and an original composition which is the theme song of the show. Tickets are $3 for general admission, $2.50 for students, senior citizens, faculty and staff. Curtain goes up at 8 p.m. tonight and tomorrow night.

Macbetb, a fast-paced study in evil and ambition, will begin its run tonight at 8:15 p.m. in the Indiana University at South Bend Theatre Company's Northside Theatre. The production will be repeated October 16, 22 and 23. IUSB's Division of Continuing Education will sponsor an evening of pre-theatre lectures about the play, dinner and a performance of the play on October 22. For ticket information call 237-4396.

• MUSIC

The Michiana New Music Ensemble will open its second season Sunday evening at 8 p.m. with the world premiere of "In the Midst of Calms," a two-piano work composed by Roger Briggs, assistant music professor at Saint Mary's. The concert will be presented free of charge in the Little Theatre in Moreau Hall at Saint Mary's. Briggs' work is an example of minimalism, a recent movement in reaction to the inaccessible, intellectual music of the post-war avant garde. Briggs will be joined by Jeffery Jacobs, associate music professor at Saint Mary's. The program will also include selections by Oliver Messiaen, Morton Feldman, Joseph Schwanter and Igor Stravinsky. Dmitry Paperno, prize winner in the Fifth International Chopin Competition, will perform piano works of Beethoven, Grieg and Rachmaninoff Sunday, October 17, at 4 p.m. in Annenberg Auditorium. The University Artist Series is sponsoring Paperno's visit. Admission is $2, while students with ID's will be admitted free.

•ART

The exhibition, "The Golden Age of Dutch Art: The Dreesmann Collection" will be opening on Sunday, October 17, at the Snite Museum of Art. This show is one of the cultural exchanges taking place all over the USA and Holland in celebration of the bicentennial of relations between the Netherlands and the United States. Dutch collector, Dr. A.C.R. Dreesmann has permitted the Snite Museum to borrow works by such greats as Rembrandt, van Goyen, Ruisael, Maes and Fabritius. The exhibition will be located in the Print, Drawing and Photography Gallery on the second floor.

• MOVIES

The Friday Night Film Series will be featuring another film by French director, Eric Rohmer. Rohmer begins a new series with The Aviator's Wife. An offbeat and comic detective story, it traces a jealous young student and his longing for an independent older woman. Shown in Annenberg Auditorium at 7:30 p.m., admission is $2.

The Engineering Auditorium will again be crowded tonight as Casablanca finishs its annual run here on campus. One of the best loved movies of all times, especially of Notre Dame students, it features Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman in their stellar performances in the Morocan desert. Showtimes are 7, 9 and 11 p.m. Be forewarned. The lines form very early. (They have been known to be longer than lines for The Graduate.) Admission is $1.

television feel about it; one gets the impression that in transferring this film from the big screen to the small screen its visual quality would not be altered significantly. Moreover, the texture and atmosphere here resemble the unctuous nostalgia of T.V.'s Happy Days rather than the visceral elegy of George Lucas' American Grafitti. The single redeeming quality of My Favorite Year — and one that makes the film worth seeing despite its flaws - is the terrific performance turned in by Peter O'Toole in the lead role.

O'Toole plays Alan Swann, an Errol Flynn-type preparing for his television debut on the "Cavalcade of Comedy." Benjy Stone (Mark Linn-Baker), a young screenwriter on the show, is assigned the unenviable task of "babysitting" the rakish Swann. The predictable comic situations ensue, with the dashine Swann engaging in the background, military service, and first appearance in the movies. There are even clips of Lord Jim thrown in - part of a "Swann retrospective" given in a T.V. screening room. For all that, O'Toole's performance does not satirize his own film career; rather it is a genuine, warm-hearted tribute to the acting profession itself. Anyone who has seen Lawrence of Arabia, Becket, Man of La Mancha, even Murphy's War can appreciate Peter O'Toole's special quirkiness, his inimitable brand of neurotic elegance, a vibrancy in the face of desolation and hopelessness. There's a marvelous scene in My Favorite Year in which Benjy informs Swann five minutes before showtime that Alan will be appearing on live television before twenty million role — as Lear, for instance, or perhaps as James Tyrone in Long Day's Journey Into Night.

Some credit should be given to the supporting cast — newcomer Linn-Baker's performance is appropriately understated; Jessica Harper as Benjy's girlfriend makes the most of an undemanding role; Lainie Kazan hams it up as the typical Jewish mother. Again, though, O'Toole's charismatic presence consigns the other actors to subservience; "Alan Swann" so dominates the movie that those around him fade into the background whenever he appears on screen.

To summarize, there isn't much to say about the camera work, editing, lighting, or set design in this film. Home movies have been more innovative from a technical standpoint. The performance by Peter O'Toole, however, makes this an entertaining and worthwhile night out. My Favorite Year gets the nod on his account alone.

•NAZZ

The Nazz winds up its pre-break shows tonight and tomorrow night. Opening the weekend will be the country sounds of Bob Marovich and Mary Beth Hocks who will be onstage from 9 to 10 p.m. Following them will be the group Par Three, featuring the talents of Tim Keyes, Scotter O'Grady and J.P. Keyes. These three perform mostly their own compositions with a few selections by The Police. They will take the stage at 10:30 and will play until they can't play anymore. Tomorrow night the mellow sounds of Steve Wimmer from 9 to 10:30 p.m. will sooth anyone's soul. From 10:30 p.m on, anyone that wishes to display their talent will have that opportunity. The stage will be open, so take a deep breath and show off!

•CHAUTAUQUA

Tonight at 9:30 p.m., The Wandells will take the stage in Chautauqua. The Wandells are a three piece band which originated in the Midwest and has moved to the East Coast. They play original music as well as a balance of cover music done in their own style. They have a tremendous local backing, and have played at various hall dances and local bars. They blend their music in with a spectacular "hi-aim" show.

•MISCELLANEOUS

On Wednesday, November 3, The Charlie Daniels Band will invade the Morris Civic Auditorium with its traveling show. Riding on the popularity wave of such favorites as Devil Went Down to Georgia, Charlie Daniels and company promise an evening of sparked energy. Tickets for this concert can be purchased at River City Records on U.S. 31 for $12.75. All seats are reserved.

St.Louis 1, Milwaukee 1 World Series continues tonight

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Whitey Herzog, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, stood along the third base line at wind-swept Milwaukee County Stadium on yesterday, feeling like a lucky man.

In the first two games of the 1982 World Series at St. Louis, the Cardinals had won one, and lost one.

"I have to be pleased with a split, though, in view of the fact that our starting pitching was not doing that well, and we haven't had any hits from our No. 3 or 4 hitters."

The Cardinals held a brief workout early yesterday afternoon at Milwaukee, where temperatures were in the low 50s with a strong wind. Milwaukee Manager Harvey Kuenn gave the Brewers the day off.

Game Three of the Series was scheduled for tonight (7:30 p.m. CDT), with Joaquin Andujar of St. Louis pitching against Pete Vuckovich of Milwaukee.

The Brewers won the opener 10-0 as Cards right-hander Bob Forsch failed in his starting role, giving up four earned runs on 10 hits in 5 2-3 innings. On Wednesday night, the Cards won 5-4 in the eighth inning, long after starter John Stuper had left. Stuper lasted into the fifth inning, giving up four runs on six hits. During those two games, Keith Hernandez, the Cardinals' No. 3 hitter, and cleanup man George Hendrick both were 0-for-7 with a walk apiece

Herzog was relying on Andujar to at one point this season." put a stop to St. Louis' pitching woes. Andujar, acquired from Houston for Tony Scott in June 1981, was the Cards' ace this season with a record of 15-10 and an ERA of 2.47. The right-hander was the winner in the final game of St. Louis' three-game sweep of Atlanta in the National League Championship Series, yielding six hits and two runs in 62-3 innings.

"Andujar had 10 starts where we scored two runs or less, and he didn't get any decision out of any of them," Herzog said. "And that ain't bad.

"Our ballclub alone is probably the reason he won't get any consideration (for the Cy Young Award)," Herzog said. "We didn't score runs. He could have been 12-3 tory in Game Five.

The right-handed Vuckovich was Kuenn's ace this season with an 18-6 record. Vuckovich, a former Cardinal, was 14-4 last season for Milwaukee, and over the past two years has the best winning percentage in baseball, .762.

Vuckovich, who came to Milwaukee in the same trade that also sent Rollie Fingers and Ted Simmons from St. Louis to the Brewers, made two appearances in Milwaukee's five-game victory over California in the American League playoffs. He was a 4-2 loser in Game Two at Anaheim, although he pitched a sixhitter, and he got no decision after working 6 1-3 innings in Milwaukee's pennant-clinching 4-3 vic-very definite opportunity to go to the NCAA's. We never had a vehicle to get there before.

"But that's the best part about it: The conference champion goes to the NCAA's, whether they're good, indifferent or bad. It's a super objective to shoot for."

As for the rest of this year, O'Sullivan sees only good things. "We're definitely in the top four in the conference," he says. "It's not a walkover. There are some strong golfing programs there.

"But we are good enough to compete right now. It couldn't have come at a better time. We can still put it together and maybe go places this year. I'm totally delighted."

Gallo, as you might well imagine, is enthusiastic as well.

"I'm very, very pleased," he says. "It gives teams something to shoot for. Now we can work hard to make the program good — it'll probably take a year or so. It's a big plus for the other teams, but I think it'll benefit baseball most."

The baseball team probably has had the most experience against MCC teams. Last spring break, the squad defeated Oklahoma City, 19-7, but were beaten in three straight games by Oral Roberts (5-2, 2-1 and 13-0). So although the conference should aid baseball the most, they still have some improving to do.

Coaches Joe Piane (track and cross country) and Tom Fallon (tennis) don't have as much of a stake in this as the others, but both see some advantages to the new conference.

"We already belong to two other conferences," says Piane. "We're already part of the Central Collegiate Conference and the IC4A. I was shocked initially, but I'm looking forward to it. There are some good teams there — Oral Roberts is very good."

For Fallon's tennis team, which has to qualify for the NCAA Tournament on the basis of a district tournament involving the Mid American and Big Ten Conferences, the only advantage seems to be the lure of a conference championship. "It's not really a strong conference for tennis," says Fallon, "so it's a little too early to tell its effect on us. Maybe in the long run if the other schools build up their teams, something good can come out of it."

Overall, the move to join the conference was a superb idea. For too long, these five teams have wandered in virtual obscurity with no incentive but to play out their schedules each year. Now, a tourna-

Conference

Of course, there are the obvious questions like "why didn't this happen earlier?" or "what about the women's teams?" Those answers will come in time.

But, for now, praise is due the athletic department for this move, one that can only help in both the short run and in the future.

It's nice to see them doing something for the "little guys."

The principal characters are, for the union, executive director Ed Garvey, president Gene Upshaw and attorney Joseph Yablonski, and, for the Management Council, executive director Jack Donlan and attorney Sargent Karch.

Playing supporting roles for management are Vince Lombardi Jr., assistant executive director of the council; Terry Bledsoe, assistant general manager of the New York Giants; Steve Guttman, secretary treasurer of the New York Jets, and attorney Dennis Curran.

Supporting union representatives are economic expert Mike Duberstein, attorney Dick Berthelsen and players Tom Condon of the Kansas City Chiefs, Mark Murphy of the Washington Redskins and Stan White of the Detroit Lions.

Also advising the union is Leonard Linquist, the senior partner in the Minneapolis law firm that Garvey worked for prior to coming to the union.

As the bargaining session moved through its third day, sources said Kagel was positioning both sides to tackle the financial package, the major stumbling block to a settlement.

"He is building momentum, getting agreements on a phrase here and a paragraph there, building in them the confidence they can come together on a number of issues," one source said.

Confidence that the dispute could be resloved soon, Minnesota wide receiver Ahmad Rashad said yesterday, apparently spurred the Vikings to contact their players in order to bring them together on short notice.

But an informal survey of other NFL teams turned up no evidence of a league-wide move in that direction, and a union spokesman at the talks said such action would be "premature." Further, a management spokesman said. "we have not

In an agreement forged Tuesday night by Kagel, the owners promised to "maintain the status quo" during the mediation process and not open their training camps, as they had previously threatened to do.

Kagel kept the parties talking together until nearly 3 a.m. yesterday before both sides retired for individual caucuses and some rest.

Kagel was expected to concentrate on peripheral issues during yesterday's talks before turning to the troublesome economic issue today.

The union has demanded a $1.6billion, four-year package to include incentive and performance bonuses, a minimum wage scale and the creation of a central fund from which all salaries would be paid.

Management has offered to guarantee spending $1.6 billion on salaries and benefits over a five-year period. To date, the owners have refused to consider either a wage scale or central fund.

Defeat Valparaiso, 9-0 Injuries push Laura Lee to top

By WILL HARE Sports Writer

While the Notre Dame women's tennis team has been banged up physically, their strong success this fall has been helped by the bang-up performance of Laura Lee.

Not only has she been contributing to the number one doubles unit with freshman Susie Panther, but Lee has also stepped into the limelight as the top singles competitor on the squad. She holds an overall 20-4 record in total doubles and singles matches, after undefeated postseason singles play last year and a 28-3 mark at No. 5 singles.

With Panther's movement limited by back spasms and Camille Cooper's elbow suffering from tendinitis this fall, Lee received the top billing for the Irish. But Lee is not without her own maladies, bothered by a strained shoulder, a bad ankle, and a bruised elbow.

"The non-tennis injury (banging her left elbow in a doorway) bothers me," says Lee, "because it hurts just to bend it. As far as my ankle goes, I twisted it in the beginning of the season, but with it taped up, it feels okay."

"My mobility hasn't been cut down at all but the strained shoulder has hurt my extension on my serve." Through it all, Lee has developed more consistency and is now playing as well as last season when she captured the AIAW Division II number five singles title and merited All-America honors.

"She's very much a power player," states Coach Sharon Petro. "Last year, she tried to wail on the ball.

"This year, she's had a steadier game, not trying to cream the ball all the time." Lee agrees that developing better consistency is fundamental.

"You have to try and channel the power and use it at the right times," says the sophomore. "I had to realize that you can't always power everything.

"You have to use it (the power) on certain strokes, especially on baseline shots. But consistency throughout my game is most important."

The slender blonde from California has helped the Irish to a 7-2 slate this fall while moving from number five singles last season to either number two or number one singles the entire fall. She has adjusted to the increased level of competition with a flair, losing just two singles matches thus far. "I lik t e it much more this year playing higher," says Lee. "Overall I've done better."

"The two matches I've lost were close, one a three-set match against Purdue. That one helped me to play better on the whole".

The spring season will be most important to the Irish NCAA hopes. The schedule opens with a tournament at Hilton Head, South Carolina, and continues with tougher opponents from the Big 10.

"Hopefully we'll be invited to th t e Division II nationals since the regional tournament doesn't exist this year."

If Laura Lee continues her drive for consistency, the NCAA committee should not overlook what will be a stronger and perhaps healthier Irish team.

NOTES - Notre Dame swept all nine matches in beating Valparaiso yesterday. Valpo is an independent this year, following the abolition of the AIAW. NCAA rules state that if any sport is on the Division IA level, then all sports must compete on this level. Notre Dame has requested an exemption to move to Division II in women's tennis while Valparaiso has not joined the NCAA altogether. Valparaiso's men's basketball is in Division I.

In the nine matches yesterday, the Irish did not lose a set. In all, Notre Dame won 108 of 119 games against the Crusaders. Notre Dame closes the fall schedule at Saint Mary's on Tuesday at 3:30 p.m.

What's this? A new recruit? No, it's just Hockey Coach Lefty Smith on the ice for a little demonstration for the boys. This Thursday, The Observer will have a centerspread on 1982 Fighting Irish bockey team. (Photo by Scott Bower)

National Football League Minor agreements made in strike

COCKEYSVILLE, Md. (AP) – Progress on non-economic issues was reported yesterday as negotiators resumed marathon bargaining sessions aimed at ending the 24-day-old National Football League players' strike. Sources stressed that many issues — including the key item of the union's demand for a wage scale — had yet to be addressed. But others were cautiously optimistic that a settlement could be reached as early as this weekend.

"There has been a good deal of give-and-take by both sides," a source at the talks told The Associated Press. The source, who requested his name not be used, said negotiators had concentrated late Wednesday on non-economic issues. "There has definitely been some movement," he said.

However, another source cautioned that although "there has been some progress, there are still too many issues here and on the ouside that could apset things."

A news blackout established by mediator Sam Kagel Tuesday night, when the latest round of negotiations started, has curtailed inforation on specific proposals.

One area being closely monitored by negotiators is a pending decision by the National Labor Relations Board on a union complaint that the NFL management Council has failed to bargain in good faith on the pivotal issue of wages.

"Depending on how the board rules, somebody could have another bargaining chip at the table," one source said.

Kagel, the 73-year-old San Francisco attorney named Tuesday to mediate the dispute, has kept the talks moving this week by shuffling people in and out of the meeting room as he moves from one topic of dissension to another.

Move to conference is a brilliant idea

On Tuesday, The Observer reported that, beginning immediately, Notre Dame will join the St. Louis-based Midwestern Cities Conference in five sports — baseball, golf, tennis, cross country and indoor track.

Ho-hum, you say?

How wrong you are. The move, which was first suggested by baseball coach Larry Gallo and then orchestrated by Athletic Director Gene Corrigan, is one of brilliance and has several intriging implications — not the least of which is a greatly increased opportunity for NCAA Tournament bids for these five teams.

For the football and basketball teams, gaining post-season berths, in bowl games or tournaments, is (except for last year) no problem. Even the hockey team, through the CCHA playoff structure, has a clear path to the NCAA's — last year, if you recall, they came within one victory of gaining a berth.

But for the minor sports, winning 20 games or 10 meets or whatever, just won't do. It is infinitely more difficult for an independent to make post-season play in these sports than in basketball, which in itself in tough enough.

Gallo explains his predicament. "College baseball is a conference-oriented sport," he says. "For example, in last year's NCAA Tournament, 34 of the 36 teams were from conferences. Miami (Fla.) and South Carolina were the only independents. It is very difficult for an independent to make the tournament."

Gallo should know from experience. The Irish baseball team has reached the magic 20-win plateau each of the last three seasons, including a sparkling 29-8 record in 1980. But they have not made the NCAA Tournament in 12 years.

So it should come as no surprise that Gallo was the perpetrator of this scheme. It was Gallo who, after conferring with the baseball coach of Oral Roberts (which is an MCC member), brought the idea to Corrigan about six months ago. And Corrigan, the master administrator, took it from there.

"We've been talking for a while about these teams getting a chance at going for a championship," says Corrigan. "The commissioner down there is a good friend of mine and he was all for it. I'll tell you, there's nothing like a conference — I'm an old conference man myself. And I think the athletes will enjoy a chance to win a championship.

"I hope it's just a start."

It certainly should prove to be a shot in the arm for these teams, who previously had nothing but personal satisfaction to shoot for. Now there is a conference championship, and an automatic tournament bid that goes with it, to shoot for. And who knows what that will lead to for these teams? More tournament bids? More national championships? More recognition? Better quality athletes? Scholarships?

Stop right there.

"You never say 'never," says Corrigan, "but that's not in the plans right now. So many schools are cutting back on their athletic programs because they kept pouring more and more money into the sports that didn't make money.

"We want to help build up our programs and give them a chance to grow on their own."

The Midwestern Cities Conference was formed in 1980 primarily as a basketball conference, but has since branched out into other sports. Besides Oral Roberts, the other schools in the conference include Butler, Evansville, St. touis University, Oklahoma City, Loyola of Chicago, Xavier (Ohio) and the University of Detroit. Not exactly national powerhouses, any of them.

Which is why the coaches of the five sports affected were ecstatic at this week's news.

For golf coach Noel O'Sullivan, ecstatic may not be a strong enough word.

"Hove it, Hove it," says O'Sullivan. "It gives my team what we've been striving for, for the last nine years, and that is a
