4 passengers killed when bomb explodes aboard TWA flight

Associated Press

ATHENS, Greece - A bomb exploded inside a TWA jetliner bound for Athens yesterday, hurtling four passengers 15,000 feet through the Greek skies to their deaths, officials reported. At least three of the victims, including a baby, were Americans.

A little-known Palestinian group claimed responsibility for the bombing, saying it was in retaliation for "American arrogance" in last week's U.S. military clash with Libya.

Seven other people, including four Americans, were injured aboard the Boeing 727, flight 840 from Rome, which landed safely in Athens 10 minutes later, a gaping hole in its side, officials reported.

The explosion occurred at floor level in rows 10 or 11 of the passenger cabin, blowing one seat out through the hole as the jet flew at 15,000 feet, TWA President Richard Pearson said in New York. A senior Athens airport security official, Panagiotis Christopoulos, had said the blast occurred in the cargo section below the seats.

The airline said 121 people were on board, including 111 passengers, seven crew members and three off-duty crew members. Earlier accounts said 124 were on board. The flight originated in Los Angeles, stopped in New York and was scheduled to go on to Cairo, Egypt, after leaving Athens.

"There was a big bang and then the man beside me was blown out along with his seat," said Ibrahim al-Nami, 29, a Saudi Arabian passenger who was among the injured. "I felt myself being pulled out too and I hung on to my wife's seat beside me."

Three bodies were found on an unused Greek air force landing strip outside Argos, 120 miles southwest of Athens, said Christopoulos. Police said all four bodies were recovered.

He identified the dead as Alberto Stino, a Colombian-born American; Dimitra Stylianopoulou, 52, a Greek; her daughter, Maria, 25; and her infant granddaughter. The baby's name and age were not given.

A reporter in Argos, Georgios Seraphim, told The Associated Press that a shepherd saw the bodies tumbling from the sky.

"The villagers found them - the partly dismembered body of an elderly man, a woman and a baby girl, about 18 months old, and a shattered plane seat," Seraphim said. He said "part of a leg" of a fourth person was found.

Christopoulos at one point said another man and another baby were missing, but those reports turned out to be wrong.

The Palestinian group, Arab Revolutionary Cells, claimed responsibility for the bombing in an anonymous telephone call to a Western news agency in Beirut, Lebanon.

The caller, speaking in Palestinian-accented Arabic, said the Ezzedine Kassam Unit of the Arab Revolutionary Cells planted the bomb aboard the plane in retaliation for last week's military confrontation between the United States and Libya in the Gulf of Sidra.

It was a response "to American imperialist attacks against our Arab nation and the Jamahiriya (Libya)," the caller said.

He denounced "American arrogance and attempts to dominate our Arab nation," and said his group would stage further attacks against U.S. targets "across the world."

There was no immediate official Libyan comment on the attack. But an employee of the government

Cooke ticket, Thoman win run-off elections

By CLIFF STEVENS

Copy Editor

One close and one decisive victory marked the off-campus commissioner and sophomore class office run-off elections held March 20.

Victorious were Tracy "Race" Thoman in the race for OC commissioner and the sophomore ticket of Pat Cooke, president; Theresa Barnhart, vice president; Chris Downes, secretary; and John Ruhlin, treasurer.

Thoman narrowly defeated candidate Steve Tacyaerts 121 to 108 votes, or 52.8 percent to 47.2 percent of the vote.

"I think everyone made a really good choice, and I'm going to do a really good job," said Thoman.

She said a spring formal and a push for more money are her immediate plans.

Cooke handily won the sophomore class race with 603 votes, or 61.5 percent, to the 378 votes, or 38.5 percent won by the ticket consisting of Patrick Creadon, Erica Hinkle, Tom DiResta, and Sam Bailey.

The voter turnout in the run-offs was lower than the initial turnout on March 18, according to Ombudsman election figures. While 1,214 sophomores voted on March 18, only 1,011 voted in the run-offs. Likewise, 295 off-campus students voted in the first round as compared to 234 in the run-offs.

Cooke's ticket won every hall except Dillon, Howard, Morrissey, Pangborn, and Sorin.

Dillon Hall voted for resident Creadon with 53 votes to Cooke's 2. Bailey's home hall Pangborn voted for Creadon's ticket 46 to 10.

Pasquerilla East resident Hinkel failed to win her hall, which voted 42 to 36 for Cooke's ticket.

Tutu calls for sanctions against South Africa

Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa - Bishop Desmond Tutu, risking arrest for treason, said yesterday only harsh economic sanctions can force the white government to change its course and avert "a catastrophe in this land."

The black Anglican bishop said he realized he might be prosecuted for making his first direct call for sanctions, but said he did not care because "our children are dying, our land is burning and bleeding."

"I call the international community to apply punitive sanctions against this government to help us establish a new South Africa: non-racial, democratic, participatory and just," he said.

In Soweto, the huge black township outside Johannesburg, black activist Winnie Mandela returned to the home from which she was barred for nine years. Her attorney said the government had, in effect, lifted a banning order that had restricted her movements for more than two decades by deciding not to contest an appeal.

Government reports said most of South Africa's black students returned to class after the Easter recess, heeding a decision of black leaders not to resume a boycott that involved about 200,000 students before it was suspended last year.

Andrew Zondo, a 19-year-old member of the outlawed African National Congress guerrilla movement, was sentenced to death for a bombing that killed five whites Dec. 23 at a shopping center near Durban. He was convicted Tuesday.

Tutu, the bishop of Johannesburg who won the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize for his eloquent opposition to apartheid, did not recommend specific sanctions but said they should be punitive, coordinated and immediate.

He told a news conference international pressure is the only hope for ending the racial policy through which 5 million whites deny rights to the 24 million blacks.

Information Minister Louis Nel said sanctions "would lead to unemployment and misery, would increase polarization and escalate violence in South Africa."

"The South African government will not succumb to pressure from whatever quarter but will continue along the difficult path of peaceful constitutional development," he said.

Neither Nel nor any other government official to whom the question was put indicated whether legal action would be taken. Doing so would be risky because of the intense international criticism South Africa already faces and the great respect Tutu commands.

The bishop said while touring the United States last year that, unless there were significant steps to dismantle apartheid by the end of March, he would risk treason charges by calling for sanctions.

Asked yesterday about the prospect of arrest, he answered, "I don't think I am going to be deterred by that kind of consequence."

Lawyers disagree about whether a call for sanctions constitutes economic sabotage under South African law, and there is no case to set a precedent.

Tutu declared: "I have no hope of real change from this government unless they are forced. We face a catastrophe in this land and only the action of the international community by applying pressure can save us."

He said the government had ignored four proposals he made in 1980: a common citizenship for all residents, abolishing the "pass laws" that control the movement of blacks, no more forced removals of blacks from land sought by whites, and uniform education for all races.

"If the government had implemented them, we would have saved a great deal of anguish, bloodshed and the loss of property and an increase in bitterness and hatred and anger," he said.

More than 70 percent of the country's blacks support some type of sanctions, he said, and foreigners who say they would be especially hard on blacks "should stop being so hypocritical."

"I ask white people: what would you do if 1,200 of your people were killed?" he said, referring to the black death toll in 19 months of anti-apartheid unrest. The death toll for both blacks and whites is nearly 1,300.

Pugliano takes OC senate race

By BUD LUEPKE

Fred Pugliano defeated Eileen Hartigan in a run-off election for off-campus senator held two weeks ago.

Of the 227 total votes cast, Pugliano garnered 132 while 85 votes went to Hartigan. Write-in candidates received the remaining 10 votes.

Hartigan said although she did not expect many people to vote the day before spring break, she was disappointed more did not vote.

"I'm always disappointed when people don't vote but then gripe about the senate not doing anything," she said.

Pugliano was not available for comment.

ND is in communication rut

One of my government professors cited statistics which showed that while the majority of Americans dislike the United States Congress, they like the individual legislators who represent them.

People also are much more likely to express actively their discontent with government than voice their satisfaction.

What is true for the nation appears to be true for Notre Dame.

Students often attack the administration that governs their lives, especially in columns and letters to the editor in The Observer. The students expound a distaste for the University's policies.

As Notre Dame has become a more formalized institution, student access and daily contact with individual administrators have decreased. While individual congressmen have been able to prevent public discontent towards Congress from damaging their personal popularity, Notre Dame's administrators have been unable or unwilling to separate themselves from unpopular policies.

Thus, students attack not only the administration, but specific administrators as well.

Why is this the case?

The average citizen sees his congressman as the public's servant, while the average student pictures himself as the University's slave.

The perceptions of the administrator's and student's roles of each other do not coincide with the reality. These perceptions overwhelmingly influence and reinforce the actions of each party.

Administrators naturally assume students understand that they, in fact, are working in the students' best interests.

The students doubt the intentions of the University. They do not see administrators as either caring or comprehending the students' viewpoints.

In short, what we have here is a failure to communicate.

This failure stems from the fact that, unlike the citizen who is going to be a citizen for his entire life, the Notre Dame student is only here for four years.

Each year, a new class enters the University and the process of communication immediately starts all over. Any progress made in improving the relations between the administration and the students must begin again.

Each year, the relations may be the exact opposite of the previous year's. In such an environment, a vicious cycle easily can form and once formed be difficult to erase.

Remember, people are much more likely to note the negative and express their disgruntled feelings more frequently than positive ones. What is positive is often ignored.

And when genuine, even beneficial, action is taken, this movement frequently becomes misinterpreted. The historical rut of administrative and student relations causes repeated miscues.

Joe Murphy

Editor-in-Chief

For example, the issue starting to circulate is whether student government and the Student Activities Board should be on the Budget Unit Control System. If campus history is any guide, the administration will be the target of unfair verbal attacks.

How do I know this?

History repeats itself. When the University requested The Observer join the BUC system, cries of protest erupted from newspaper personnel about censorship and undue University influence over the newspaper.

The University weathered the verbal assault, and The Observer went on the BUC system. Unlike the predictions of administrative meddling in Observer editorials, the University has done exactly what it said it would do. It has insured financial accountability and efficiency.

Besides, if the administration wanted to shut down the newspaper, it could easily do so. The Observer has two loans with the University, is located in a University building and receives invaluable assistance from University personnel.

From the newspaper's experience, student government and the SAB would do well to join the University's system. What will happen, however, depends on what type of communication takes place between the various parties involved.

As spring enters the campus, fresh lines of communication can be established and the historical rut can be changed.

Administrators must increase their direct contact with students. By doing so, more students will realize most administrators do care first and foremost about the students, that administrators are human beings who try to do the right thing and that past differences can be overcome.

Even if students still disagree, even vehemently, about University policies, the students will be less likely to have such a strong disdain for the particular administrators with whom these policies are associated.

The ultimate question students should ask themselves is why would anyone devote his entire life to this University, as many administrators have, unless he cared about educating students?

In short, both students and administrators have room for improvement in the manner in which they communicate to each other.

If there is to be any progress between administrators and students, both sides must have a desire to make some. What happens depends on how effective both are in communicating each others perspective.

Saint Mary's Board of Regents seeking junior representative

By MARY FRAN GISCH
Staff Reporter

In search of a student to serve on the Board of Regents for next year, Saint Mary's has recently sent letters to juniors explaining the position and the application process, according to current student regent Anne McCarthy.

"Once the student writes a letter telling why they are interested and qualified, then I help review applications along with Dean of Students Mary Anne O'Donnell ...," McCarthy said.

"We recommend two applicants and Dr. Hickey (College president) reviews the candidates before those two are sent to the Administrative Board, who makes the final decision.

The applications are due Monday. "My position as student regent involves much more than I ever thought it would," she added. McCarthy said the Board of Regents is the highest governing body in the College that sets policies and makes financial decisions. The student regent on the Board has full voting privileges.

"I wasn't sure how the other regents would regard me since I am a student, but they were always very interested in what I had to say," said McCarthy. "They saw me as a regent with a student's perspective of things."

"I don't think people realize how worthwhile to both the students and the College the student regent is," added McCarthy, who is also Senior Class President. "Being in student government, as I am, is not a criteria for the position, as some have thought it is. We are hoping for many more applications for the position this year," McCarthy said.

As a board member, McCarthy said she was expected to attend the Regent's three meetings which are held in the fall, winter, and spring. "We interviewed the final presidential candidates at the January meeting in Chicago and made recommendations to the Administrative Board who made the final decision," McCarthy said. "It was a great experience to be a part of such important decisions."

He contended that the public pressure President Reagan to impose limited sanctions, and said, "I am not appealing to him. I am appealing to the American people."

Air Force plane crash kills 11 crewmembers

Associated Press

MAGDALENA, N.M. - An Air Force search-and-rescue airplane carrying 11 crewmembers crashed in a ball of flames yesterday in a desolate area of west-central New Mexico, and authorities said all aboard were killed.

The HC-130 plane was assigned to Kirtland Air Force Base at Albuquerque, said Kay Peterson, spokeswoman at the base. Ruben Leal, public affairs specialist at Kirtland, said the airplane was on a routine training mission.

Rudy Chavez, state police dispatcher in Socorro, said the medical investigator reported all aboard the aircraft were dead.

"The wreckage is scattered over a mile radius," at the scene 10 miles north of Magdalena, Chavez said.

Bob Hlady, spokesman for University of New Mexico Hospital, said the hospital's helicopter ambulance was dispatched to the scene but "did not come back with anybody."

Joe Sanchez, a ranch hand, said he witnessed the accident from about 10 miles away.

"We saw a big ball of smoke, then another one, then a big ball of fire," he said. "It was a big old explosion-like a forest fire."

He said he met sheriff's officers on the way to the crash site and went to the scene in an isolated area known as Bear Mountain.

The wreckage was "spread in little canyons and little hills ... and little trees," Sanchez said. "It looks like a lot of burned parts on the ground, broken parts."

A state police helicopter, a military aircraft and a helicopter ambulance from Albuquerque were at the scene, said Sgt. John McAninch of the state police in Socorro.

Reagan orders probe into plane bomb blast

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - President Reagan ordered an investigation into the bomb blast yesterday that killed four passengers on a TWA flight to Athens, his aides said.

"It is highly probable that the situation that occurred does involve violation of United States law and so it is appropriate that we provide investigative resources," Attorney General Edwin Meese said in an interview on the CBS Evening News.

"The president directed U.S. authorities to cooperate in the investigation," White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters in Santa Barbara, Calif., near where Reagan is vacationing.

Speakes said the president was notified of the explosion at 6:35 a.m. (9:35 South Bend time), by Donald Fortier, an official of the National Security Council.

The Justice Department, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Federal Aviation Administration were assigned to help Italian and Greek authorities investigating the bomb, which exploded on a Boeing 727 as it flew at 11,000 feet over southern Greece.

The chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and a prominent expert on terrorism, both speaking prior to the telephone call claiming responsibility, said they believed the bombing may have been related to Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy, but neither suggested he ordered the attack.

Terrorists may have set the bomb "to make us look impotent," said Robert Kupperman, an expert on terrorism at the Georgetown University Center for Strategic and International Studies.

"My instincts tell me that this is related to the Gulf of Sidra matter," said Kupperman. "In my mind, I see it as purely a retaliation."

Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., said that the incident, "coupled with the very real possibility of Libyan-inspired terrorist attacks following our recent freedom of navigation exercise in the Gulf of Sidra, underscores the need for prompt and effective action to combat the spread of international terrorism."

State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said FBI and FAA investigators are looking into the explosion, but declined to say specifically whether the State Department believes it is safe for Americans to travel in the region.

Vice President George Bush, who was briefed on the incident by NSC officials, planned to depart as scheduled today on a trip to the Middle East, said spokesman Marlin Fitzwater. Bush plans to meet the leaders of Saudi Arabia, Oman and Bahrain.

In other developments:
• a spokesman for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Bill Carter, said officials were "monitoring the situation."

FBI agents cannot go to a foreign country and investigate unless invited by the country, but they can gather evidence in cooperation with foreign agencies for presentation to a grand jury for a possible indictment.

• the Justice Department entered the case based on several federal criminal laws permitting prosecution of someone who damages a U.S. aircraft overseas, said department spokesman John Russell.

The Comprehensive Crime Control Act of 1984 empowers the department to prosecute a person who damages a U.S. airliner overseas and the offender is subject to life imprisonment if death results from the incident, said Russell.

Other federal laws may also allow the department to prosecute the perpetrators for placing a bomb on an aircraft, committing a murder on a U.S. aircraft in flight over the high seas and assault on a U.S. aircraft in flight over the high seas, said Russell.

ND, Fermi scientists put comet on record

Special to The Observer

Researchers from Notre Dame and the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory are currently in Australia to continue recording Halley's Comet on magnetic tape and videotape at speeds they said they hope will reveal new information about the comet's structural changes.

The group, headed by Notre Dame physicist-astronomer Terry Rettig, recorded digitized comet images that were broadcast live from the U.S. Naval Observatory near Miami in January. Unlike the Miami trip, however, more cooperative weather at Mount Stromlo-Siding Spring in northeastern Australia should provide several hours of clear viewing time each night.

The late-March-to-early-April observation at the isolated Australian site should provide an exciting look at the comet, Rettig said.

Much of the equipment will be the same as in the Miami trip: an 11-inch Cassegrain telescope, a Charge Coupled Device video camera and Notre Dame's image intensifier, capable of boosting the brightness of the comet to 10,000 times the intensity seen by the human eye.

A new rapid-acquisition spectrometer has been designed to allow the researchers to observe changes in the components of the comet that occur in a time span as brief as a few seconds. Combined with a recently-improved Video Data Acquisition system from Fermilab researchers, the system has been quickened to produce high-resolution digitized images.

During the Australian observation, Rettig said he expects to record at a pace of 16 digitized images every 12 seconds. Digitized images of the comet, which can be produced in color and black-and-white, appear as a bright dot surrounded by concentric circles, according to Rettig.

The researchers said they hope the unique system will enable them to gather new information about the forces influencing the comet. Some of the initial data they said they hope to collect is expected to reveal more about the comet's structural activity and changes that may be caused by the intense solar wind and magnetic field of the sun.

Workers destroyed barricades at the Subic Naval Base in the Philippines to end a 12-day strike. Before barriers were destroyed, strikers said they beat upon signs outside the entrance to the largest U.S. navy base in the Philippines to keep fellow strikers awake and to reduce tensions. Story below.

Filipinos end strike at U.S. base

Associated Press

SUBIC NAVAL BASE, Philippines - Filipino workers tore down their barricades outside the largest overseas U.S. Navy base yesterday and ended a 12-day strike that had forced the diversion of a five-ship flotilla and strapped nearby businesses.

More than 1,200 militant strikers at Subic held out a day longer than workers at Clark Air Base and six smaller U.S. military installations.

Leaders of the Subic picket line agreed yesterday evening to go along with a compromise settlement reached the day before, however, and the barricades of logs, rocks and metal grillwork came down.

The militants retired on a note of defiance.

"This is not the end of the struggle of Filipino workers," said Larry Salazar, a leader of the union representing 22,000 workers who struck all the bases. "The next time we barricade the gates, we will make sure the organizational weaknesses are overcome."

"We have reached the limitations of our power," he told The Associated Press after announcing the leaders' decision to the strikers. He said the U.S. military and Philippine government would not recognize the militants, so "there is no point in us remaining at the barricades." Night-shift workers entered Subic soon after the barricades were dismantled.

Businessmen in the nearby city of Olongapo, who lost an estimated $1.2 million during the strike, had brought increasing pressure on the strikers to allow American servicemen off the grounds.

Losses to more than 300 bars, restaurants and other businesses around Clark were estimated at $1 million.

Bar girls and taxi drivers fought pickets at Clark last weekend.

Twelve people were hurt in scuffles at Subic when the strike began, including servicemen and strikers. Four people were injured in the weekend melee at Clark.

Sex slavery conviction overturned

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. - The 1984 conviction of a New Albany man charged with bringing Southeast Asian refugees to the United States as sex slaves has been overturned by a federal appeals court, officials in Indianapolis said yesterday.

Judge Richard Posner of the 7th Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago, said he found fault with the trial judge's instructions to the jury and was critical of both the prosecutor's and defense attorney's procedures during the trial of John Wolf.

U.S. Attorney John Tinder said Wolf would be retried.

The case centered on the Mann Act - a federal law that forbids transporting a person across state lines for "debauchery" or "immoral purpose."

Posner and Chief Judge Walter Cummings found the trial judge, U.S. District Judge S. Hugh Dillin, did not make it clear in his final instructions to the jury that lewd intent must have been Wolf's dominant reason for bringing the woman to the United States.

The appellate court also criticized Assistant U.S. Attorney Paula Lopossa for asking improper questions during a cross-examination of Wolf.

Posner also called defense attorney Michael McDaniel's handling of the case "inept." Posner said McDaniel, of New Albany, committed "forensic suicide" by apparently never objecting to improper questioning.

"Defense counsel seems to have been paying no attention to the trial," Posner said.

Judge William Campbell dissented, saying Wolf's actions were "outright shocking and disgusting" and said the "jury verdict appears more than reasonable and based on easy listening."

Career Placement Center ignores practicality

This story describes my experience with people who mindlessly follow rules with complete disregard for the real intent of the rule or the rule's effect upon others.

Charles Schrock

guest column

Career and Placement has a rule which states that if one cancels and interview after 10:00 a.m. the day before the scheduled time of the interview then the student loses interviewing privileges as a punishment. This rule promotes attendance to interviews. Attendance keeps Career and Placement in good standing with companies and happy companies give more jobs which makes everyone happy. By blind enforcement of this rule, Career and Placement took a good situation and made it bad.

Last Friday afternoon I learned of my accepance to a graduate school. No longer needing or wanting a full time job, I called Career and Placement to tell them I would not need the interview for which I had scheduled myself for on Monday. However, they informed me that I must take a "cut" and lose interviewing privileges temporarily. Since I still need a summer job and still need to interview, I could not accept losing any interviewing privileges. I explained my situation, that I needed to maintain interviewing privileges but wished to give my unneeded interview to someone who could use it and they once again quoted the rule.

On Monday morning, still six hours before the interview, I took it upon myself to do the job that they avoided. I found someone on the alternate list and took him to Career and Placement's office. I again explained that I did not need the interview, that I could not afford to lose any interviewing privileges, and that I wished to give my interview to someone who could benefit from it. The solution only required that Career and Placement not charge me with a "cut". Then I would be happy, a fellow student would be happy. The logic must have been too simple and straight forward. They still insisted that if I did not interview with them I would lose some interviewing privileges. I then asked if I could walk into the interview and then walk out. They stated that I would not lose any privileges for this action in spite of how bad that it would make them look. I then asked if I could walk into the interview and introduce someone who really needed the interview. They stated that despite the fact that this option would appear much more acceptable than me just walking out, it would not count as an interview and that I would lose some privileges. I am at a loss to understand their logic and how such a simple solution can completely escape the grasp of those at Career and Placement.

As a last resort, I intended to explain the situation to the interviewer and have her talk to the people at Career and Placement. But by this time, the alternate interviewee had become too disgusted with the people at Career and Placement. He just went home in disgust and I have a very nice but wholly unproductive chat with the interviewer.

I do not advocate the casual breaking rules as a general practice. Very few rules have an intrinsic value, they only have a value for what they do. Before applying a rule, one should consider the rule's effect and the relationship of the effect of the intent of the rule. In this case, the effect of the rule, wasting an interview, contradicted the intent, to bring the most interviews to the most people. Career and Placement will hopefully reevaluate their enforcement of the rules so that similar problems do not arise in the future.

P.O. Box Q

Notre Dame fails to accept minorities

Dear Editor

"Life is a holiday. Let's enjoy it together" was the Observer's Quote of the Day on March 13. On the same day, a front page headline read, "Stations won't run messages of Gays/Lesbians." For the homosexual and other minority students on this campus, life is anything but a holiday.

How can we enjoy it together when the University of Notre Dame, both in the policies of the administration and in the passive attitudes of the students that makes these policies easy to enforce, sends certain messages to its minority students which are painfully clear?

To the homosexuals, the message is: "You can go to school here. Just don't clutter up our airwaves."

To the women students: "We'll admit you. Just don't ask us to provide you with the same services we provide for our male students." Or, "Don't ask us to do your laundry."

To the black students: "We'll pay some of you to entertain us on the athletic field. Just don't expect us to be interested in your rallies or cultural events." Or, "Don't expect us to listen to your concerns," which were voiced in part by nationally recognized speakers during Black History week and which suffered from poor attendance.

All these messages can be summed up in this way: "Just because you are here doesn't mean you are equal. If you are a homosexual, a woman, or a non-white person, you are not entitled to the same rights as, and are therefore inferior to, the average Notre Dame student."

Occasionally, another message is issued, like that of Eileen Ridley, Reginald Daniel and Sandy Rossow, who gave up positions at WVFI and WSND in order to stand up for those who cannot be heard over their student radio stations. Their message is this: "Some of us refuse to roll over and play dead while our fellow students are being run over."

Life is not a holiday, but together we can respond to these messages and demand that Notre Dame becomes a school that not only admits homosexuals, women, blacks and other minorities, but accepts them as well.

Efforts by Healy aided volcano victims

Dear Editor:

One of the main roles of the student body president is to respond to and serve the needs of the students and community. Often this service goes unnoticed. Well, it's tough to please everyone, to be perfect all the time. For those who feel that Bill Healy did a less than adequate job—why did you resort to the Observer to voice your opinion? Have you no backbone to confront Healy in person and voice your opinion?

On Nov. 17, a volcanic eruption and subsequent mudslide destroyed the Colombian city of Armero. Being a Colombian and concerned for the welfare of my countrymen, I wanted to help in any way possible. Other concerned students and I organized the Colombian Relief Fund in an effort to raise money for the survivors of the tragedy.

Being new to the complex world of student organizations, I went to see the student body president. Healy received me cordially and was sincerely interested in my organization's cause. He proceeded to contact key administrators and other personnel whom he thought would be helpful.

The end result, over $3000, was raised to help the Armero survivors. All this was possible due to the hard work of Bill Healy and the various students who donated their time and energy. I want to thank all these students and especially Bill Healy who made all this possible. For those who may disagree with some of Healy's actions in the past, obviously you weren't there to make the difference.

Birth control a needed option for women

Dear Editor:

I would like to commend Gertie Wimmer on her article in the Friday, March 7 Observer, "Many lives can be ruined because of Catholicism." In fact, I wish I had written the article myself as it accurately presents a picture of the difficult and potentially damning decisions a pregnant woman faces.

I think that all those people who profess to value life should begin to focus on the problems which are present before the pregnancy occurs (not just after the fact). It seems that if pro-lifers want to live up to their name than they need to consider not only the life of the baby but also the life of the mother.

In Wimmer's article, she focuses on the need for birth control. For me, an Episcopalian, birth control is not an issue in my church but, if it were, as it is in the Catholic Church, I would find it inconceivable to deny women (and men) the right to choose when they want to have a baby. After all, creating a life is a tremendous responsibility. At the very least, the baby needs to enter this world as a wanted and loved child. Unfortunately, these circumstances do not always reflect reality.

Is it so terrible to think that a woman may want the best for her child? The girl described in Wimmer's article could not offer her baby the aforementioned type of life. It's too bad because this situation could have easily been prevented by a little knowledge and the use of birth control. I make my appeal to both pro-life and pro-choice supporters.

Please, open up your mind to include not only the life of the baby but also the life of the mother. Those who are given life deserve a certain quality and dignity of life. To ensure this, please take the issue back a step and reach out to the core of the problem. That is, look at birth control as a viable and necessary option for all women and consider all other factors which contribute to the problem of teenage and unwanted pregnancies.

I make my appeal to both pro-life and pro-choice groups because I believe that only through a shift in focus can we achieve concrete and viable solutions to the issue at hand.

Goodwill . . . what a bargain

features copy editor

What's red, white, blue and an adventure every time? No, it's not last night's entree at North Dining Hall. It's not tonight's special at Dining Hall either.

The big sign in front of the Goodwill store on Eddy Street, and it's pretty symbolic of the Goodwill experience, which is more full of American adventure than an Indiana Jones film.

"I certainly enjoyed it," said junior Mark Skolnicki after his initial visit a few weeks ago. While at the Eddy Street store he purchased a pair of gray, red and white size-54 boxer shorts. The shorts later sported the motif of "The Guild," section 3B of Alumni Hall, during the Irish Wake. The section was holding a wake for "Big Ed," the man who use to hand out towels in the locker room of the Rockne Memorial.

During his first visit to Goodwill, Skolnicki also purchased a tuxedo-type jacket to be used during the dance. His reaction to the items' performance after the formal was positive. "Goodwill? It's great. The shorts I bought, and the jacket, really made the dance for me, if not for the whole section. We couldn't have done without them," said Skolnicki.

While most students aren't as enthusiastic as Skolnicki about the one-of-a-kind items Goodwill has to offer, Beverly Redding, manager of the Eddy Street store, admits that many Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students do shop there, "especially during the 50 percent-off sales."

"Most of the time students come in here looking for crazy clothes or jewelry for theme parties. For example, there must have been a

Madonna party around somewhere after our last sale, because a lot of girls who came in bought black dresses and bracelets. We just can't get enough of that stuff in anyway," Redding said. Hawaiian shirts, shorts, hats and clothing items with paisley designs don't stay in the store long when school is in session, either," said Redding. The store also carries a number of more conservative items that are especially popular with the college-age crowd. "The furniture usually goes fairly well, although there are a lot of other used furniture places in the area. The other items that sell well are our long wool coats. It seems that many students aren't prepared when the South Bend winter weather hits, and they come in looking for thick coats at relatively cheap prices," said Redding.

Saint Mary's student Mary Jean De Crane went into a Goodwill store this past winter for just that reason. "I was looking for something long and warm that I could wear when the snow was here, and I thought Goodwill might have some of those coats. They didn't, but it was still interesting to look around. They have a lot of strange things there," she said.

Although many students find the wares at thrift shops like Goodwill strange, these shops carry the same type of goods you could find at Ayres in the mall. The first difference with the shirts, pants and such at Goodwill is that they are usually second-hand, although the store does sell first-hand items as well. The second difference is that because most clothes aren't quite new, the prices are a lot more amenable to a student budget. The average price for a pair of pants, for example, is $3.25. Blouses and shirts range from $2.75 to $3.25, depending on the quality, and dresses usually sell for $4.25. T-shirts can be bought for approximately $2, and spring coats sell for about twice as much.

The Observer/Jim Weber

Although these prices are reasonable, they are still too hefty for some budgets. So the Goodwill chain regularly has half-price sales.

This sale at the Eddy Street store is usually held on the third Saturday of every month. Within the store, though, one can always find different color tags, which signify some change in the original price of the item, usually a 25 percent discount because the item is out of season.

A major reason why some students avoid Goodwill or other second-hand stores is that they question the cleanliness of the clothes. Redding explained that there is nothing to fear, because the Goodwill clothes are all washed or dry-cleaned in the main store on Western Avenue. That is the point where all the clothes collected from Goodwill deposit boxes in the South Bend area are cleaned and then redistributed.

Like the major first-hand stores, Goodwill changes its store stock with the changing seasons. "They're bringing in the spring line now," Redding said.

Goodwill also carries a large supply of household items, like glasses, lamps, toys and records. In addition, second-hand stores are gold mines for collectors trying to find old and valuable records for low prices. The LPs at Goodwill sell for 25 cents, while three 45 rpms can be bought for that same low price. If one hurries he might even be able to catch the last Bay City Rollers album in stock.

Sophomore Rob Luxem had some experience with the household section of the store when he accompanied an old roommate to buy a lamp.

"We found a lamp for him right off," Luxem said. "It was looking for the lampshade that took an hour. And we never did find it." Luxem is philosophic about his experience, though. "I mean the lamp was ugly, but I realized that if I ever wanted anything, I could probably find it at Goodwill," Luxem said.

And would there be a next trip for the Goodwill adventurers?

"Definitely," said Luxem. "If you drive me there," said Skolnicki.

If one would like the Goodwill experience, he should drive to one of the three local locations. Closest to campus is the store at Eddy Street and South Bend Avenue, which is open Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., Friday 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The main store at 1805 Western Ave. is open Monday through Saturday 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Friday until 7 p.m. and Sunday from 12 to 3 p.m. The Goodwill store in Niles, which caters to a more conservative, Michigan housewife crowd, is located at 109 E. Main St. Their collection of novels, romance and otherwise, is considered larger than that at the Eddy Street location, in case one is looking for some summer reading.

So, for those looking for some classic jams or who just feel like digging through stuffed racks of interesting vintage clothing, it might be profitable to check out Goodwill. Shoppers for bargains will be glad they did.

Goodwill is located at Eddy Street and South Bend Avenue.

The Notre Dame women's basketball team captured third place in the Women's National Invitational Tournament in Amarillo, Tex., over spring break. Teams taking part include Ohio State, Loyola, Iowa State, Purdue, Kenyon and Louisville. Action is slated from 5 to 10 p.m. tomorrow and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday. - The Observer.

Golf team beats Lewis despite rain

By FRANK HUEMMER
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men's golf team traveled to South Florida in preparation for its spring season anticipating the hot Florida sun. When they arrived to polish up their game, they encountered rain, rain, and more rain.

The team came back to Notre Dame on Easter Sunday not realizing that it had gained excellent preparation for the beginning of the season. On Tuesday the golf team defeated Lewis University on Burke Memorial Golf Course as the day began with sunny skies, but by noon dark clouds had begun pouring out rain.

The Irish gold team finished with a total of 370. Steve Fuhrer and John Anthony carded 73 while Rich Connelly and Lon Huffman scored 74. John O'Donovan's 76 and Chris Bona's 79 finished the gold team's successful round as it routed Lewis by 39 strokes.

Meanwhile, Lewis University totaled 409 as a team and was led by Carl Ficek at 75. Next in line were Robb Bordner at 80, Joe Just at 81, Dom Camden at 86, and Tom Arduino at 87.

The Irish blue team also had an impressive showing by totaling 383 as Tom Ryan and Tim Hanlon both shot 76. Norm Campbell, George Molinsky, and Mike Culver carded 77, while Doug Giorgio had a 78.

"When the rain came, we had smiles on our faces and we came out and played real well because we had practiced in the rain," said Notre Dame head coach Noel O'Sullivan. "I hope we never have to play in the rain again, but if we do the team will be psychologically and physiologically ready to play."

Six Irish golfers travelled to Florida to play some of the best courses in South Florida. First they played the prestigious Doral Blue Monster course which has a par 72 and course rating of 73. They then advanced to Loxahatchee which was designed by the Golden Bear, Jack Nicklaus, and has a par 72 and course rating of 73.1.

Furthermore, they tackled the very elite Mayacoo Lakes, another course designed by Nicklaus, which has a par 71 and rating of 73.5. Key Biscayne, par 72 and rating of 73, also was played by the Notre Dame linksters. The other three courses the team practiced on were Indian Creek (home of Raymond Floyd), Biltmore, and Adios, which was designed by Arnold Palmer.

This is a very impressive list indeed. What makes it even more impressive is the fact that the team practiced in torrential rainstorms on six of these seven terrific courses.

The team had the option of not playing, but instead they all donned their rainsuits and umbrellas to play the challenging holes of every course. As a whole the team's numbers were extremely good especially considering that they were hampered by the weather. The number one player was John O'Donovan who turned in some outstanding performances, tearing up the difficult courses.

This weekend the gold team participates in the Purdue Invitational Tournament. Teams from the Big Ten and the Mid American Conference will be facing Notre Dame. 36 holes will be played on Saturday and then 18 more on Sunday.

The blue team will travel to Michigan to play in the Southwestern Michigan Junior College Invitational. Notre Dame is one of the ten teams entered and has been runner-up the past two years.

us. Washington and Lee had played several games and scrimmages before playing us, and we weren't used to the heat (around 75 degrees most of the week). They're a great team, though, by far the best we've played."

Jim Shields scored four times for the Irish, and Grote added two goals and four assists. Sophomore goaltender Matt McQuillan had a stellar game, making 26 saves and turning away several point blank shots.

Friday, Notre Dame took on a seemingly outmanned Radford squad. However, a lackadaisical Irish team led only 4-3 at the half and actually trailed 6-5 heading into the final quarter. It took a flurry of quick goals in the fourth frame to salvage the win. The Irish scored three goals in 48 seconds to ice the game, 9-6.

McQuillan had 11 saves and a healthy Franklin tallied four goals. Shields had two goals and an assist while Grote contributed a goal and four assists. Art Brady won two key face-offs down the stretch to put the Irish in scoring position.

If O'Leary could find a dark spot during the trip, it would be the game against William and Mary on Monday, March 31.

"We played horribly," said O'Leary. "We couldn't do anything well. We had trouble completing two consecutive passes. As bad as we played, we felt that we were still in it after three quarters (the Irish trailed 8-1), but we just didn't have anything left.

"McQuillan had another good game (19 saves) and the defense played well, considering that they (William and Mary) were always attacking."

"Outside of William and Mary," said O'Leary, "I was pretty pleased. We proved that we can play with some good teams, and we came back well in the close ones. I'm sure we learned from it and I'm confident we'll be ready to play on Saturday."

The Irish host Wooster College on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. on Cartier Field.

Three-point goals, instant replays arrive on NCAA basketball scene

Associated Press

DALLAS - The three-point goal and use of televised instant replays to correct timing and scoring errors will come to college basketball next season, the NCAA men's rules committee announced yesterday.

Under another rule change, coaches no longer will be charged with a technical foul if they leave the coaching box to protest errors involving timing, scoring or alternating possession.

Dr. Edward S. Steitz, secretary-editor of the rules committee, said the three-point goal, which has become a popular feature in the NBA, was adopted by the 12-member committee following a five-year experimentation among 20 conferences.

Three points will be credited for a shot made 19 feet, 9 inches from the basket.

Steitz said it was hoped the three-pointer would ease the rough play underneath the basket and give more attention to outside play.

"It's going to force teams to play more defense away from the basket," Steitz said. "People will say 'you are putting the little man back in the game' and that's good."

Notre Dame head coach Digger Phelps, saying he was "very surprised" to see the three-point goal pass, was less than enthusiastic about the new rule.

"It would be nice, one of these years, to let the game settle down and see what we really have. If anything needed to be addressed it's still the foul situation at the end of games," said Phelps.

Bobby Dotson, an assistant coach at Louisville, also questioned the need for the three-point goal.

"The game was going awfully good. I don't see why they need mess with it. I can't understand why they would put something like this in. I think it's silly."

Steitz said conferences experimented with different distances for the three-point goal before adopting the 19-9 distance.

"Some conferences used the pro distance (23-9) and didn't find that desirable," Steitz said. "As a result of a questionnaire, most of the coaches preferred 19-9."

Of the use of instant replay, Dotson said, "I think there is a time for it to be used, but not on a judgment call."

Steitz emphasized that instant replays would be used only to correct mistakes made by scorers and timers, and not for any officiating calls.

Steitz said an incident that occurred in Kansas City during the NCAA Midwest Regional two weeks ago was a factor in the decision to use instant replay.

A clock malfunctioned causing 15 seconds to be lost during a game between Kansas and Michigan State and the incident was blamed for blemishing the Jayhawks' victory.

"When there is a problem area that we haven't addressed, we'll try to address it," said Steitz, athletic director at Springfield, Mass., College.

Steitz said the committee also singled out several existing rules that would be stressed next season.

They include illegal use of hands and arms during rough post play; ejection of players because of flagrant intentional fouls; illegal screening away from the ball; and three-second violations.

offensive backfield, where freshmen D'Juan Francisco, Mark Green, and Cory Southall, as well as veteran Hiawatha Francisco continued to shine. The younger Francisco was especially impressive yesterday before limping off the field with an apparently mild ankle injury suffered when he fell over a downed defender on a non-tackle drill.

"That D'Juan Francisco had his best day out there since I've been watching him," said Holtz. "The play he got hurt on was just a bump drill, but I don't know yet how serious it is."

Others being watched carefully included junior Tom Rehder, who was moved from tight end to offensive tackle, junior Alvin Miller, who was put back at split end after a trial run at tight end, and sophomore Matt Dingens, back at defensive tackle after getting the nod from his doctor that Dingens' illness had been alleviated.

"We felt we had to make some decisions over the break," noted Holtz of the changes. "Rehder's an athlete and a winner, and we need help there inside. Split end may be Miller's best position with his size and speed. As for Matt, we'll just have to see. But it's always good to have anybody back."

Dingens' return could be a key addition to the 3-4 defense being shown, as he is one of a few experienced players on the line. Manning that line yesterday were holdovers Wally Kleine and Jeff Kunz, with transplanted linebacker Robert Banks and ex-offensive linemen Marty Lippincott and Tom Gorman also working in the trenches.

Miller's and Rehder's switches, meanwhile, seem to bode well for the futures of freshman Andy Heck and junior Joel Williams at the tight end slot. Heck has shown soft hands to go with his big frame, while Williams has a good deal of game experience in the role.

The offense as a whole has shown a different look as Holtz has kept true to his word and mixed up the offensive sets to include just about every possible formation. In fact, all the Irish units ran wishbone and straight option sets as well as the usual I-back and split-back formations.

EXTRA POINTS - The injury to D'Juan Francisco was the only one suffered yesterday, but in the Mar. 20 scrimmage, fullback Frank Stams suffered a fracture above the ankle that will keep him out at least until fall practice. . . Holtz kept a group of players after practice to do exercises as a punishment for missing a mandatory team meeting. The last player allowed to leave, to the merriment of the entire squad who gathered around, was the coach's son, Skip, who is working out at quarterback to gain coaching experience. . . Holtz and his coaching staff will hold a coaches clinic Friday and Saturday at the ACC for coaches at all levels. Any coach interested should call Joe Yonto at 239-7067.

Irish track is successful outdoors, getting good times early in season

By PETE GEGEN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame track team opened its outdoor season with two non-scoring meets over break. Coming off an excellent indoor season, the team posted some impressive times for these early-season meets.

In Tuscon, Arizona, the team faced Arizona, Brigham Young, Illinois, and Northwestern in the Willie Williams Invitational. Jim Tyler won the 1500-meter run with a time of 3:46, followed by Jeff Van Wie who finished two seconds behind. In the 800-meter run, John McNelis and Robert Nobles both ran excellent times of 1:49.21 and 1:49.77 respectively.

Van Percy placed third in the 400-meter run with a time of 48.23.

The 1600-meter relay team of Nobles, Tyler, McNelis, and Percy took third with a time of 3:12.

"These are really good early season times," said Irish head coach Joe Piane. "All of these runners qualified already for the IC4A's."

Brian Driscoll, in his first attempt at the javelin this year, registered a toss of 193-0. In the triple jump, Rick Meunch had a jump of 46-6. And Tony Ragunas placed third in the 200-meter dash with a time of 21.96.

The second meet took place last Saturday, as the team hosted the eighth annual Notre Dame Invitational. Nicknamed the Snowshoe Invitational for its traditionally bad weather conditions, this year's version of the meet featured warm temperatures and a strong breeze which slowed down the runners.

Mike Brennan placed first in both the 110-meter high hurdles and the 400-meter intermediate hurdles. Joel Autry was also a double winner, taking the long jump and the triple jump.

Ron Markezich won the 1500-meter run with a wind-hindered time of 4:04.09. Tim Smith placed second in the discus with a toss of 154-3, along with Chris Matteo in the pole vault and Muench in the triple jump. Driscoll won the javelin.

Piane will use all his runners in the tri-meet this Saturday against Indiana and Michigan State at Bloomington. Indiana finished third in the NCAA Indoor Championships.

"Indiana was touted as the potential indoor and outdoor champs this year," Piane said. "We are definitely going to pull out all the stops against them."

Miller to defend Dinah Shore title

Associated Press

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. - Alice Miller, the sensation of the LPGA tour in 1985, tries to end an awful start in '86 when she begins defense of her title Thursday in the Nabisco Dinah Shore LPGA tournament.

Miller, who joined the women's golf circuit in 1978, blossomed as a player in 1985.

She wound up the campaign with four victories, including a three-stroke victory over Jan Stephenson in the Dinah Shore, probably the women's most prestigious tournament.

But this year, plagued by inconsistent putting, Miller hasn't been in serious contention in any of the six LPGA events she's played and ranks 69th on the 1986 earnings ladder with $6,458.

Miller admits her success last year probably made her complacent. Her earnings on the tour may even have been surpassed by what she won in such unofficial events as the mixed Skins Game and the Senior Partner. "After that kind of financial success, the motivation for the new season just wasn't there," she said. "You start thinking maybe you can just take some time off and have a good time.

"I expected a slow start, but I didn't think it would be this bad or last as long."

Notre Dame women's fencing team takes 3rd at NCAA championship

By TRISH SULLIVAN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's fencing team recorded its best finish ever in women's fencing history as the Irish captured second in the NCAA Championships, losing to Pennsylvania in the championship round, 8-6. Their previous best was last year's ninth place finish. In addition, sophomore Molly Sullivan copped top honors in the individual competition compiling a perfect 15-0 slate.

The tournament was held over break at Princeton, N.J., with 12 schools competing overall.

Sullivan slashed her way through the competition over the weekend to capture the title after a fifth place finish last season. The fencing sensation from Massachusetts placed higher than last year's champion, Caitlin Bilodeaux of Columbia, and contributes her success to regular season bouts against her rival.

"Caitlin and I had competed throughout the year," said Sullivan. "And I have been getting good results so I felt pretty confident facing her again. I had been training really hard for this year. I have been in a lot of Olympic and national competitions, but winning this one showed me how important the college level of competition is too. It feels really good."

"Molly simply dominated the tournament," said Irish head coach Yves Auriol. "She fenced superbly and showed great maturity bout after bout."

"I am also very happy with the 11th place finish by (freshman) Janice Hynes. This is certainly a good indication of things to come from her."

Hynes and Sullivan combined with juniors Vittoria Quaroni and Cynthia Weeks and senior alternate Janet Sullivan to lead the Irish to their second place finish as a team.

Notre Dame advanced to the finals after receiving the fewest touches in a 8-8 first-round match against Wisconsin. Perhaps the key point in the competition however came when the Irish found themselves struggling against a tough Columbia-Barnard team.

Alternate Janet Sullivan was called in to take a crucial match, 5-2, which spurred the team to a 9-7 victory in the semifinals. The Irish then went on to lose to Pennsylvania in the championship round 8-6.

"I am very proud of these girls," said Auriol. "They worked hard all year and were beaten by a fantastic team. But we are young and the majority of the squad is returning, so we look for even better finishes in the future."

The Observer/Greg Stranger

New Notre Dame football coach Lou Holtz used the 12-day spring break to put together the final pieces of the squad that he and his staff plan to work with for the remainder of the season. Marty Burns details the team's practice in his story below.

Bookstore Basketball begins today with annual Hall of Fame contest

By MIKE CARDINALE
Sports Writer

The basketballs are bouncing at Stepan and Lyons. Notre Dame Security is preparing to clear the Bookstore courts of automobiles. 584 team captains gathered in the Library auditorium last night to receive the familiar multi-colored game schedules. These events point to one inescapable conclusion - Bookstore Basketball XV has arrived.

This year, the world's largest basketball tournament will involve 584 teams in 583 games over a three week period. Handling the difficult task of organizing the tournament will be a young, but experienced, staff headed by the Tournament Commissioner, sophomore Steve Wenc. The staff includes five sophomores and three commissioners with previous Bookstore experience. "The staff should provide a good foundation for upcoming years," said Wenc.

The action begins this evening at 6:15 on the Bookstore courts with the fifth annual Hall of Fame Game. The game pits last years champions, Fun Bunch Finale, against Switek/Montanaro and the President's Men.

This game traditionally is played just for fun, as a good way to get students involved in the tournament. It epitomizes the lighthearted spirit of Bookstore, and past games have proved entertaining to all who attended.

According to Wenc, "Switek and Montanaro were the obvious choice. You don't have to prove to anyone that they're funny."

The newly elected Student Body President, Mike Switek, said "we expect complete, total and utter defeat." Vice-President Don Mon-tanaro added "we do hope that they really are a fun bunch." Neither Switek nor Montanaro were willing to reveal any of their plans for the game, but it is certain that they will pull out all stops in an attempt to upset the Fun Bunch.

Fun Bunch Finale is led by last years Tournament MVP, senior Steve Treacy. Joining him in the backcourt is senior Pat Collins, captain of the men's interhall basketball champions, Sorin. The frontcourt is comprised of three varsity football players, sophomore Tom Rehder, and seniors Greg Dingens and Rick DiBernardo. DiBernardo was also a member of the Sorin championship team.

With all five players having previous experience on the team, the Fun Bunch Finale is still the team to beat. This tournament could prove to be unusually strong, however, as at least three former varsity basketball players will play this year. Joseph Price will play for Port-a-Pit, Tim Kempton will play for The Embarrassing Stains and Jim Dolan will play for Lee's BBQ Roundhouse.

Other teams to watch, returning from last year's final 16, are Tequila White Lightning, a perennial powerhouse, Showtime, Let's Go Crazy, WBBS w/Ed Smerciak, Tofu Chaka Khan, Four Fags and A Zahmbie and Much More Manhood.

The rules and regulations of the tournament remain unchanged from last year. All players are urged to read carefully the rules pages attached to the schedules. One change this year is that later games can be played on the newly-lighted Lyons' courts, easing the load on Stepan, and simplifying the scheduling of varsity football players.

The tournament begins in earnest on Friday, with two days of preliminary round games, aimed at reducing the field to 512. The first full round will run from Sunday to next Friday.

Football practice starts as Holtz finalizes team

The Lou Holtz era may have been chartered last Nov. 28, but it really only began yesterday afternoon on the practice field behind the ACC.

In the first practice after a 12-day break over which Holtz and his coaching staff kept busy watching practice films, the new Notre Dame mentor finally got a look at a team entirely composed by his staff. The previous five practice sessions, which culminated before the spring break with the team's first full scrimmage, were geared mainly to experiment at positions and to make films that the coaching staff could evaluate.

While Holtz had refused to make any permanent changes until he had seen the films, the squad that took the field yesterday proved the veteran coach was determined to have his team settled and ready to begin serious training after break. That team showed not only some diverse offensive and defensive sets as well as position changes, but best of all to Holtz' eyes, the same intensity that had characterized the pre-break sessions.

"Our mechanics, our awareness, and our sharpness was all there today," said Holtz, echoing the sentiments he had expressed after the first scrimmage. "I was happy that we picked up where we left off. I felt today was probably the best for execution that I've seen yet."

While it was more difficult to measure that execution yesterday as opposed to last week's formal scrimmage, it was clear in the play of several individuals. Among the more obvious areas in this regard was the

Irish lacrosse wins two against stiff opponents

Before heading to Virginia for his team's spring trip, Notre Dame men's lacrosse head coach Rich O'Leary said that a split with the four teams that his squad was scheduled to play could be expected.

As it turned out, O'Leary played the prophet as the Irish won games against Virginia Military Institute, and Radford, while dropping decisions to Washington and Lee and in addition to William and Mary.

On Monday, March 24, Notre Dame used a 13 goal scoring barrage in the second and third quarters after starting tentatively to down VMI by a score of 15-9. In the game, Joe Franklin had four goals and two assists, co-captain Tom Grote had two goals and four assists, and John Olmstead added three goals. Unfortunately, late in the fourth quarter, Franklin was hit in the mouth and received ten stitches on his lip.

The injury forced Franklin, last year's high scorer as a junior, out of action against Washington and Lee two days later. O'Leary expected Washington and Lee to be his team's toughest competition on the trip, and to play them without Franklin would make things a lot tougher.

After playing a solid first half, the Irish trailed 7-4, but were not out of it. They tied the score at 9-9 with seven seconds left in the third quarter. But, according to O'Leary, Notre Dame simply "ran out of steam" in the fourth, and lost the game, 13-9.

"We worked incredibly hard to get to that point (the 9-9 tie)," said O'Leary, in his sixth year at the team's helm, "and I think that the conditioning factor took its toll on
