Vice President Bush arrives here to campaign for area congressmen

By CLIFF STEVENS
Assistant News Editor

On the campaign trail for Republican congressional candidates, Vice President George Bush made a brief appearance at Michiana Regional Airport yesterday.

Greeted by the waving of miniature American flags and high school marching band music, Bush practiced his hand-shaking skills with the crowd of several hundred.

Notre Dame basketball coach Digger Phelps exchanged a few words with Bush at the airport and presented the Vice President with a gift.

After attending a private fundraiser in Niles, Michigan for fourth District congressional candidate Fred Upton, Bush left late afternoon yesterday for Washington.

Bush welcomed the possible

Republican presidential candidacy of evangelist Pat Robertson in a short question session with reporters.

"I think the process should be wide open," Bush said. "If he decides to run, and I decide to run, we'll meet head on."

Bush said the prospects for his undeclared presidential candidacy were boosted by the results of Michigan's Aug. 5 primary election, which began a complex process of selecting state delegates to the national convention.

"After all the smoke had cleared, and all the claims and counter claims, I think it's conceded we did very, very well," he said. "And that incidentally has been of national importance to me because it's been picked up and followed all across the country. I don't believe all these polls, but I'd rather be where I am in the polls than where I used to be."

Asked about the thousands of Michigan residents and businesses who suffered damages during torrential rainstorms that swept the state last week, Bush said the victims can expect some federal disaster aid.

"I know we'll be able to help the flood victims. The question is degree," he said.

Federal officials have inspected conditions in the counties declared a disaster area by Gov. James Blanchard, who has formally requested federal help, Bush said. "We ought to have something on that very soon," he said.

The vice president said he will make his own recommendation after touring the flood-stricken areas near Midland with Rep. William Schuette, R-Mich. "And that will help, but I think the facts are pretty well established now, so it's a question of going through all those procedures that are required," he said.

Terrorists strike at French again in assassination of military attache

Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon A lone assassin using a silencer-equipped pistol killed the French military attache outside the French Embassy yesterday. It was the latest of a series of terrorist attacks on French targets here and in Paris.

Anonymous telephone callers in Lebanon and France claimed responsibility for the assassination in the name of two obscure groups and threatened further blows. One demanded release of an alleged terrorist jailed in France.

Police said Col. Christian Goutierre, 60, had parked his car near the French Embassy in Christian east Beirut at 8:30 a.m. and was about to get out when the gunman approached him.

They said the attacker shot Goutierre three times in the head with a silencer-equipped pistol and escaped in a waiting green BMW. Police described the gunman as a tall, dark-complexioned man wearing a white shirt and beige trousers and believed to be in his late 20s.

Goutierre had parked his car outside the embassy's security zone, which extends 100 yards around the four-story building and is patrolled by embassy guards and Lebanese police. There was no immediate explanation why he did not park in the security zone.

France, like most Western countries, moved its embassy to Christian east Beirut from the Moslem western sector two years ago because of frequent kidnappings and bombings. Switzerland and Greece are the only Western countries that still have embassies in west Beirut.

Gay professor claims ND restricted duties after public statement

By MIRIAM HILL
Senior Staff Reporter

A theology professor has accused the University of discriminating against him by limiting the number of students he can teach after he publicly said he is a homosexual and an atheist.

Professor William Storey, who retired in 1985 and was one of the founders of Notre Dame's graduate program in theology, identified himself as a homosexual in an article in the March 20, 1986, edition of the South Bend Tribune.

Storey earlier had stated that he is an atheist in Fidelity, a right-wing Catholic magazine.

As a result of those articles, especially the Tribune article, Storey said, the University almost did not appoint him to teach in the 1986-87 school year. The University agreed in September to let him teach 12 graduate students.

The students are listed by name in a letter Storey received from Father Richard McBrien, chairman of the theology department. The letter specifically states that Storey may not take on any additional students or classes.

Such a limit, Storey said, is "an infringement of my rights as a professor. And I reject it (the limit) because it's dictated by prejudice against gay people and against me in particular."

Storey said he has filed complaints about the University's action with the American Civil Liberties Union and the American Association of University Professors.

Storey said the agreement he now has with the University is drastically different from the one he had last year, which outlined his duties in general terms.

Professor Thomas O'Meara, who acted as chairman of the theology department last year, said he was not involved in deciding whether Storey should be allowed to teach. O'Meara added, however, that the administration was upset about "two stances that he (Storey) took -- atheism and homosexuality."

"I would guess that the decision had to do with both issues and perhaps the first more than the second," O'Meara said.

Storey, however, said his homosexuality upset the administration more than his belief in atheism. "The only problem is I'm gay and I had the nerve to admit it," said Storey, who has

Coca-Cola will sell S. African holdings

Associated Press

ATLANTA The Coca-Cola Co. announced Wednesday it will sell all of its holdings in South Africa in protest of that country's policy of racial separation.

Donald Keough, president and chief operating officer of the company, is also chairman of the Notre Dame Board of Trustees.

Keough said in a statement released Wednesday that the company had been reducing its investments in South Africa since 1976.

Keough was elected president of the Board in May, replacing Thomas Carney.

At this same Board meeting, the trustees altered the the University's investment policy pertaining to South Africa, but did not divest.

The soft drink company plans to sell at least part of the holdings to black South African investors. Coke products still will be sold in South Africa.

Donaldson said the Atlanta-based company made the final decision to pull out because it was dissatisfied with progress toward abolishing apartheid.

Final plans for the pull-out will not be completed for another six to nine months, but Donaldson said the overall plan involves selling off all interests in bottling and canning plants in the racially torn country.

A Coca-Cola syrup production plant will be moved out of the country and the syrup shipped in for bottlers.

Donaldson said he could not estimate how much money is involved.

The Southern Christian Leadership Conference announced in August that it would call for a boycott of Coca-Cola and other American companies if they had not divested by Jan. 15, 1987, the birthday of slain civil rights leader the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

Notre Dame's Foreign Study Programs this year sent 41 students to Angers, France, 35 from Notre Dame and six from Saint Mary's; 36 students to Innsbruck, Austria, 33 from Notre Dame and two from Saint Mary's; 19 students to Tokyo, 12 from Notre Dame, three from Saint Mary's; and one each from American University, George Washington University, Tufts University, and University of Michigan; five students to Mexico City, all from Notre Dame; and four students to Jerusalem, two from Notre Dame, and one each from Seton Hill College and Manhattan College. No students applied for the Cairo, Egypt program, though many students have recently attended meetings for next year's program, according to Isabel Charles, director of Foreign Study Programs. Charles said she could not speculate why students did not sign-up for the program last year. - The Observer

Saint Mary's Ireland Program will send 23 students abroad this year, 16 students from Saint Mary's and 7 from Notre Dame. The college's Rome Program will have 37 students, 30 from Saint Mary's and six from Notre Dame. After the U.S. bombed Libyan targets last spring, "a few parents decided to bring their students home (from Rome) since it was almost the end of the semester," said Peter Checca, counselor of the Rome Program. Checca said 14 out of 64 students flew home early last semester. Added Checca, "Italy's been pretty quiet since then." - The Observer

A psychologist used a naked Barbie doll Wednesday as she testified at the trial of seven women who removed their shirts, saying the doll showed the next-to-impossible image women are taught to strive for. "Breasts like this would defy gravity," Melissa Farley, a clinical psychologist at the University of Iowa, said at the indecent exposure trial in Rochester, New York, of the women who took their shirts off in a city park three months ago. They are challenging a state law that allows men, but not women, to appear in public naked from the waist up. The offense, "exposure of a person," is punishable by up to 15 days in jail and a $250 fine.

AIDS will eventually touch student lives: SMC lecturer

By MARILYN BENCHIK
Assistant Saint Mary's Editor

Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome can and will confront Saint Mary's students in their later careers, said Ella Harmeyer of the Saint Mary's Nursing Department yesterday at a lecture in Stapleton Lounge.

Harmeyer said not one Saint Mary's nursing student has cared for an AIDS patient because students risk contracting the disease in which case the college risks a lawsuit.

"Students are trained to care for these patients. We cover medical and emotional aspects of the disease," she said.

"One student who graduated two years ago was assigned to care for an AIDS patient. She expressed her concern to me about it, and surprisingly she was not worried about her own safety. She thought the patient deserved nursing attention from the most competent, experienced nurse instead of herself simply because she was the last one who was hired," said Harmeyer.

Education majors, social work majors and medical technicians should have some informed decisions about what they will or would do in a situation where they might encounter an AIDS victim, she said.

Mary Feeley of Saint Mary's Campus Ministry said, "At Saint Mary's we can make a statement about our own beliefs as the disease comes closer to students and families. This is first and foremost."

"The Church has not been helpful at supporting homosexuals. Few people in the Catholic Church are willing to speak out concerning homosexuality. AIDS victims have found support within the Gay Community," she said.

Dr. Robert W. Clausen, M.D. Department of Biological Sciences University of Notre Dame, spoke about the medical aspect concerning AIDS.

"Those people with an increased risk of developing AIDS have had thrush (a yeast infection in the mouth), venereal disease, an intravenous drug user, and older adults," he said.

According to Clausen when the immune system has been hampered to the point where it is "down", there is an increased chance of contracting AIDS.

Aids is transmitted through sexual relations with male homosexuals. Women develop the disease in heterosexual relations with men, according to Clausen. "No lesbian cases have been cited so far," he said.

"Intravenous drug abuse and blood transfusions are other transmitting vehicles," added Clausen.

"As far as saliva is concerned, it cannot transmit AIDS from domestic, social or work contacts. There is a possibility the disease is contracted through sexual kissing due to its more intimate contact," Clausen said.

'Man learns aggression after birth'

By ERIC M. BERGAMO
Staff Reporter

People are not born with aggression, but learn aggression when they are young, according to anthropologist Ashley Montagu.

Montagu spoke on the topic of human aggression during a lecture in the library auditorium last night. The lecture was the first in the Exxon Distinguished Visiting Scholars Program and was sponsored by the anthropology department.

"There is no innate aggression in human beings, that we use this as an excuse. Then people published these books which become bestsellers, as they have become, and which they tell you we are innately hostile, aggressive creatures and we are born that way," he said.

Montagu said that this aggression is formed during childhood when the emphasis is on "beating the child into obedience." The baby, when first born, has no idea of aggression and instead learns it through obedience.

Montagu explained that pediatricians in the earlier part of the century advised that parents should never kiss or hold a child.

"The experts of that time said that you never kiss a child at night when you send him to bed, you shake hands," Montagu said.

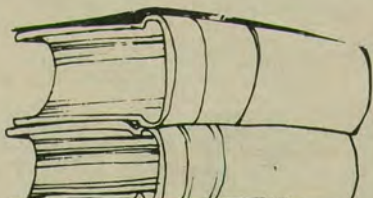

Montagu said that people's responsibility is "to make yourself over into what you ought to be and what you ought to be is, as a matter of fact, that you are nothing more than a deteriorated baby, who has all the potentiality for becoming a warm loving human being. It is your responsibility to make yourself over into what you ought to be and that is a warm loving human being."

parietals

Changes in the parietals policy are under consideration since being proposed at a Judicial Council meeting held this week.

A committee headed by Student Senator Brian Holst, and including Judicial Coordinator Maria Cintron, Lewis Hall President Kris Thompson, Student Senator John Bauer and Student Body Cabinet Member Bruce Lohman presented a tailored parietals policy to the Judicial Council.

According to Holst, the proposed changes to Du Lac include an extension of visitation hours to 12:30 a.m. on Sunday evenings, pushing back morning visitation time until 10 a.m. during the mornings and eliminating "the possibility of suspension or dismissal for parietals for first time offenders with a clean record."

According to Cintron, the committee will present and discuss the proposals at the next Student Senate meeting on Monday. Once finalized and approved by the Senate, "It will be presented to the CLC (Campus Life Council)," Cintron said.

In other business, several council committees were formed. Brendan Judge will head the Legal Services committee. Currently, the committee is "trying to get a list of South Bend lawyers that would be willing to take legal cases" concerning criminal charges against students, said Cintron. According to Cintron, there is a need for such a service because the Legal Aid program of the Notre Dame Law School can only handle civil cases.

Judicial Coordinator Cintron also announced her office hours. She will be available from 2 until 3 p.m. on every Monday, Wednesday and Friday and from 11:15 a.m. until 12:15 p.m. on each Tuesday and Thursday in her office on the second floor of LaFortune Student Center.

Congress cheers President Aquino after she addresses joint session

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Philippine President Corazon Aquino, in a speech that brought a shower of affection from a joint session of Congress, pledged yesterday to take up "the sword of war" if peacemaking with communist rebels fails.

Mrs. Aquino, in the seventh month of her leadership of a major U.S. ally which was led for more than 20 years by Ferdinand Marcos, offered thanks for the role Congress played in changing U.S. policy toward her country.

At the same time, Mrs. Aquino, widow of the assassinated Benigno Aquino, an opposition leader in the last years of Marcos, appealed for help to build "a new home for democracy, another haven for the oppressed."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said afterwards, "That's the finest speech I've heard in my 34 years in Congress."

Members of the House and Senate, many wearing yellow roses symbolizing the color Mrs. Aquino chose for her presidential campaign, crowded the chamber. Scores of Filipino Americans were in the gallery crowd.

Within hours of her speech, the House passed 203-197 a bill giving the Philippines a $200 million cash infusion to help deal with economic distress. The measure was sent to the Senate, where prospects for approval were uncertain.

Some opponents suggested the money be spent instead on improving U.S. military facilities at Subic Bay Naval Station and Clark Air Base.

Mrs. Aquino underscored her policy of negotiating with the Communist New People's Army guerrilla movement but said, "I will not stand by and allow an insurgent leadership to spurn our offer of peace and kill our young soldiers and threaten our new freedom."

"We face a communist insurgency that feeds on economic deterioration, even as we carry a great share of the free world defenses in the Pacific," she said in her only reference to U.S. military bases in the Philippines.

Invoking the name of President Abraham Lincoln, Mrs. Aquino said, "I understand that force may be necessary before mercy. Like Lincoln, I don't relish it, yet I will do whatever it takes to defend the integrity and freedom of my country."

"I must explore the path of peace to the utmost, for at its end, whatever disappointment I meet there, is the moral basis for laying down the olive branch of peace and taking up the sword of war," she said.

"Still, should it come to that, I will not waver from the course laid down by your great liberator," she said in another reference to Lincoln.

Mrs. Aquino said the aim of the negotiations, under way in Manila, was to bring the insurgents "down from the hills and, by economic progress and justice, show them that for which the best-intentioned among them fight."

Philippines President Corazon Aquino leaves the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception Tuesday after Mass. Aquino spoke to Congress yesterday. Story at left.

Tensions rise on eve of Schultz - Shevardnadze consultation

Associated Press

WASHINGTON Secretary of State George P. Shultz will confront Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze head-on today with a demand to free American reporter Nicholas Daniloff, and is ready to cut short their summit planning session unless he gets a satisfactory reply, U.S. officials said.

In Moscow, however, Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev yesterday denounced the correspondent for U.S. News & World Report as a spy and suggested the United States had exploited the case to try to spoil superpower relations.

As tensions rose, the Soviets exchanged barbs with the Reagan administration yesterday over a U.S. order that 25 Soviet diplomats assigned to the United Nations leave the country by Oct. 1.

Shevardnadze, arriving at Andrews Air Force Base on the eve of the two-day meeting with Shultz, called the expulsion illegal and also "a bad decision."

In New York, the chief Soviet U.N. delegate, Alexander Belonogov, said the Soviets already had cut their mission to 218, which is 10 below the demanded level.

But Bernard Kalb, the State Department spokesman, said Soviets holding visas were "well over the level of 218." He declined to give a precise count, and he accused the Soviets of disobeying the order, issued initially last March, by not providing the names of any departing diplomats.

The U.S. spokesman, responding to Gorbachev's statement on Daniloff, said the reporter was the victim of "contrived charges, a frameup, and there is no retreat from that."

Kalb said the Daniloff case was Shultz' "priority" in the impending session with Shevardnadze.

"This kind of behavior cannot but provoke condemnation, nor can it remain without consequences," Belonogov told a news conference held one day after the State Department announced the expulsion order.

taught at Notre Dame for 19 years.

Because the University maintains a policy of confidentiality on all appointments and promotions, most administrators contacted declined to comment on why Storey's teaching responsibilities were limited.

"We have a strong tradition here of not making public comments about appointments," said Michael Loux, dean of the College of Arts and Letters.

Notre Dame's faculty handbook states that retired professors are appointed to teach by a letter from the provost on a year-to-year basis. The appointment must first be approved by the department in which the professor teaches, then by the dean of the college and finally by the provost.

Storey received a letter of appointment to teach in the 1985-86 school year and expected to receive another appointment in 1986 so he could continue to advise the doctoral students who were studying under him.

When Storey did not receive a letter of appointment from the provost by May 1986, he contacted O'Meara, who was acting as chairman of the theology department while McBrien was on sabbatical. O'Meara told Storey that he was not going to be appointed to teach, but gave no reason for the University's decision, Storey said.

In July, Storey sent a letter to University President Father Theodore Hesburgh, asking him to overturn the decision and allow him to teach.

Hesburgh's reply thanked Storey for his years of service to Notre Dame but did not state whether he could continue teaching.

Hesburgh was out of town and could not be reached for comment yesterday.

When Storey's students found out that he would not be teaching them, they complained to the theology department. McBrien, who returned from sabbatical in August 1986, negotiated the compromise that allowed Storey to teach this year.

McBrien said he wanted the students who were studying under Storey to finish their work with him.

"My concern, and Professor Storey's concern, was for the students that he was already under obligation to," McBrien said.

McBrien added that he wasn't certain whether Storey would be allowed to continue teaching once those students completed their work.

McBrien said he did not know why a compromise was necessary for Storey to continue teaching.

"Obviously, the change in the arrangement goes back to something that happened last year and I wasn't here last year," McBrien said.

Nuclear agency quarrels surface during Congressional conference

Associated Press
WASHINGTON The Nuclear Regulatory Commission yesterday defended its efforts to tighten regulatory screws on a contaminated nuclear fuel production plant that has been the sole source of fuel for Navy nuclear submarines.

But one of the NRC's members said the commission's staff could have been more aggressive.

It is "entirely incorrect" to say the NRC is not being aggressive in regulating the Nuclear Fuel Services plant in Erwin, Tenn., commission chairman Lando Zech told a House subcommittee.

"The NRC record of monitoring and oversight would indicate ... concern over a number of years at that facility," Zech said, responding to criticism from Rep. Edward Markey, chairman of the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on energy conservation and power.

Based on complaints last December from the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, Markey's subcommittee studied NRC documents on plant conditions and concluded that the facility is "the most dangerous uranium fuel production plant that the NRC licenses."

The NRC has proposed four fines against Nuclear Fuel Services and put new conditions on the company's operating license.

Zech and other commissioners agreed that despite some improvement, the Erwin facility still needs to be upgraded in the areas of cleanliness, radiological controls and general operations. "It seems to be a pretty sloppy operation. It's just not up to the standards that we should be insisting on," said Commissioner James Asselstine.

Asselstine also said he had some reservations about the way the NRC staff had handled health and safety complaints at the 29-year-old facility.

President denounces Democrats

Associated Press
MONTGOMERY, Ala. President Reagan, campaigning across the deep South, accused Democrats yesterday of "political shenanigans" in Alabama and "stagnation, arrogance and the abuse of power" in Louisiana.

In a 10-hour sweep through the two states, Reagan hit Democrats with some of his toughest political rhetoric and said losing the Republican majority in the Senate would stalemate his presidency, confronting him with a "totally hostile Congress."

Stumping in Alabama for Sen. Jeremiah Denton in his race against Democratic Rep. Richard Shelby, Reagan castigated Democrats for the political disarray in the governor's race that has split their party and boosted Republican election hopes.

In Louisiana, appearing on behalf of Senate candidate Henson Moore, Reagan blamed Democrats for the economic woes of the state where unemployment has climbed to 13.6 percent because of the tailspin in the energy industry.

President Reagan has declared September 19, National POW/MIA Recognition Day.

These articles are being run to highlight the issue of Prisoners of War/Missing in Action soldiers still unaccounted for.

All privileges were lost in Vietnam captivity

Maj. Jack Butcher, wing safety officer and pilot with the 22nd Tactical Fighter Squadron, learned about the importance of sacrifice as a member of the 4th Allied Prisoner of War Wing in Hanoi for two years during the Vietnam War.

Ssgt. Anita Bailey

"What I learned, what so many of my colleagues learned, is that the only way to keep the freedom we cherish and defend is through sacrifice," he said. "Like all beliefs and ideals we place a high value upon, it must be earned through a price paid by someone. Today's remembrance of POWs and MIAs recalls the price paid and still being paid by all POWs and MIAs, their families and anyone who has sacrificed in the name of freedom."

Butcher entered the Air Force in 1969 through the ROTC program at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. He went through undergraduate pilot training, then survival training and finally to Da Nang. He had only been in Vietnam four weeks when his OV-10 Bronco, on a reconnaissance mission over Laos, was brought down by gunfire.

His captors in Laos had one mission: to get him to Hanoi alive. During the grueling four month walk to Hanoi he received some makeshift treatment for his open wounds and leg injuries.

He didn't see another American until he reached Hanoi, and it was there at the POW camp that he finally felt like he was a part of the military, he said.

"Before that, my military career had been somewhat of a blue. But when I got to Hanoi, the senior American officers there sat down with me and explained 'All right, the POW chain of command here is...the senior officers are...and this is what is expected of you,' etc.

"Finally with all the training I'd received, there was still no way mentally to prepare for being a POW. I had a lot of mixed emotions about being a pilot and going to 'Nam, and I could have avoided it, but I wanted to see if 'Nam was really like all the publicity described. What I found out was that, yes, there were mistakes being made, but the military should not have gotten all the bad press," he said.

Jimmy W. Kilbourne
guest column

Collectively, he is a man of many faces: the guy next door, the fellow across the country. He is near and he is far.

He is of many faiths and philosophies. He worships as a Catholic, Jew, Protestant, or maybe a Buddhist - or maybe he does not worship at all.

His home is the car-choked streets of New York from Park Avenue to Harlem, the wooded hills of Appalachia, the brown-white sands of Miami Beach or the sunsplashed shore of Malibu - every state and territory is his own.

The American POW or MIA is every creed and color. He is a black man, white man, red, brown or yellow. His education ranges from the elementary school dropout of the ghetto to the high school graduate from suburbia. He could have worn the black gown and mortarboard of a graduate from the University of California, Harvard, "Ole Miss," Notre Dame, Purdue, Air Force Academy, West Point or Annapolis.

Back home his political philosophy may have been conservative or liberal. He may have voted Democratic, Republican or Independent - if indeed he was old enough to vote at all.

He is the son of a man who migrated from town to town picking grapes, or who walked the halls of the Senate, or held a scapel, or taught school. His father may have worn a badge, the eagle insignia of a colonel, gold stripes of an admiral, the chevrons of a sergeant, or the blue suit of a banker.

He is the only son of a widowed parent or the last of a dozen children. He has a family of his own or a girl who waits alone.

He is the teenager who left the drive-in hamburger stand for the rice paddy, or a career soldier with 25 years of service. His average age is 29 years.

Before volunteering or being drafted, he clerked in banks and grocery stores, sat at office desks, pressed parts in a giant factory or picked cotton and tobacco.

Serving with distinction during World War II, he knew later of Checkpoint Charlie. He waded ashore at Inchon, flew the Berlin Airlift, blockaded Cuba and advised in Thailand, Laos and the Republic of Vietnam. He has been in and out of prison camps in Germany, Japan, or North Korea.

In Southeast Asia, he served aboard Navy patrol boats or carried a rifle as a Marine or Army infantryman. He flew helicopters, transport aircraft and fighters for the Air Force, Army, Marine Corps and Navy. As one of the POWs and MIAs, he was shot down, ambushed, cutoff, or kidnapped. He has lived in captivity many years. But he continues to serve.

Despite deprivation and often inhumane treatment, he continues to serve in solitary confinement, shackled, abused.

And he keeps faith. Refusing to participate in activities which might be harmful to his comrades, to himself or to the United States, he keeps his faith. Occasionally but rarely, he returns to friendly lands and home.

He has won every combat decoration his country can bestow. He has been recommended for the Medal of Honor, for extraordinary heroism. He has won the Air Force Cross, the Army Distinguished Service Cross, the Navy Cross, the Silver Star and Legion of Merit.

His uniform is decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Bronze Star and the Purple Heart.

The POW/MIA represents distinguished service in the cause of freedom. His unparalleled contributions, achievements, sacrifices and decorations span an entire generation and encompass the broad spectrum of our free enterprise system. He is America!

Rams make big deal with Houston for rookie quarterback Jim Everett

Associated Press

ANAHEIM, Calif. - The Los Angeles Rams, who've had little success with the aging quarterbacks they've signed in recent years, yesterday acquired the rights to a promising young passer, rookie Jim Everett.

They paid a steep price for the acquisition of the rights to Everett, the former Purdue standout who has been a contract holdout with the Houston Oilers this season.

Los Angeles gave the Oilers Pro Bowl guard Kent Hill, the Rams' first picks in the draft for the next two years, their No. 5 pick in 1987 plus defensive end William Fuller for Everett, the third player selected in the 1986 NFL college draft.

"We had to pay a healthy price, but we feel it's worth it," Rams Coach John Robinson said. "You look ahead to the next five years, the big stumbling block for the Rams was a quality quarterback."

"Steve Bartkowski, Dieter Brock and Steve Dils are fine for this year, but each is in their 30s ...

"We see Jim Everett as one of the young quarterbacks with a great future. We're anxious to get him here as soon as possible, but it's premature on how much he would be used this year," Robinson said. "He's coming into a great environment here with a number of proven people on offense and a strong defense."

"He's a franchise-type guy," Bartkowski, the Rams starter this season, said of Everett. "They don't come along that often."

"I'm excited; it's probably the best thing ever to happen to me," Everett said in a conference call to the Rams' headquarters in Anaheim. "I know the team is committed to winning. It has a great coach."

"There's no question in my mind I did the right thing. It's worked out in everyone's best interests."

Everett indicated he doesn't expect lengthy negotiations with the Rams, saying, "We won't start talking until Monday as I understand it, but I'll be in real soon."

He said he's not concerned with the Rams' plans for him this year, commenting, "They have a fine quarterback in Bartkowski, and my only goal is to improve daily. The more I can learn from Bartkowski, the better off I'll be in the long run."

His holdout in Houston was "This is going to be interesting," Demoff said. "John is going to have to be fair. There's no reason for him to play games. He surely knows Jim's value ... But you have to give the Rams a lot of credit. They outsmarted the 49ers."

Ladd Herzeg, the Oilers' general manager, said, "The last meeting that I had with Jim I could tell he wanted to play right at first. And that probably wasn't going to happen here."

In recent years, the Rams signed several veteran quarterbacks, but they had little success. Among the group were Joe Namath, Dan Pastorini, Bert Jones, the Canadian Football League veteran Brock, and Bartkowski. Although the Rams are 2-0, the passing of Bartkowski, who played for Atlanta and Washington last season, has been mediocre.

The Rams had to outbid the San Francisco 49ers for Everett. The 49ers, who lost quarterback Joe Montana for the season after back surgery this week, had offered both of their first-round picks next year, a second-round choice and nose tackle Manu Tuiaosopo. The Oilers were demanding Pro Bowl nose tackle Michael Carter.

Joe Sternberg, the leading Irish scorer last year, is getting more offensive help this season. Pete Gegen previews this weekend's soccer matches in his story at right.

Soccer team travels to face MSU, returns home Sunday vs. Tri-State

By PETE GEGEN
Assistant Sports Editor

The 5-1 Notre Dame soccer team looks to add two victories to its record this weekend.

The team is in East Lansing, Mich., today for an afternoon contest against Michigan State. Then the team returns home Sunday to face Tri-State in a 1 p.m. contest on Alumni Field.

The Irish have been opening some eyes lately with their excellent play. The defense began the year with two straight shutouts and is allowing an average of one goal a game.

Meanwhile the play of the offense has been the biggest improvement for Notre Dame. The team has scored an average of three goals a game, a one-goal improvement over last seasons' record-low average of two.

The offense has been led by sophomore forward Bruce "Tiger" McCourt. McCourt has eight goals and three assists through six games, and he recorded the team's first hat-trick since Rich Herdegen scored three against Valparaiso in 1984.

To contrast with last season's scoring production, McCourt's 19 points is only six shy of equaling last season's leading-scorer Joe Sternberg's total of 25.

McCourt is joined in the scoring department by sophomore Randy Morris and freshman Dave Augustyn on the front line, and Sternberg and freshman Rolfe Behrje in the midfield.

The Irish enter the game having tied the Spartans in their last two matches. While not much is known about them this season, Head Coach Dennis Grace noted that the Spartans played very well in a 3-1 loss to Indiana last week.

"They did something against Indiana that we didn't do, and that's score a goal," noted Grace. "I'm looking forward to seeing what we can do against them."

The game against Tri-State was moved from October 30 to

Sunday at the request of both teams.

The Tri-State contest pits coach against former player. Dan Coughlin, former keeper for the Irish, is now the coach of the Trojans.

Notre Dame will be without the services of three of its players this weekend. Senior forward Bill Gross is out for a week with an injured shoulder suffered in the Michigan game. The injury is similar, though less serious than the one suffered by captain Jim Flynn at the beginning of the season. Flynn is about two weeks away from returning to action.

The keeper spot has been hit particularly hard with injuries this season. Following Flynn to the bench is sophomore Kevin Mayo, who broke his thumb in practice this week.

With Mayo out for three to four weeks, Tim Hartigan has moved up to the backup-keeper slot. Grace noted that freshman keeper Dan Lyons is also ready to play.

Bosox complete sweep of Brewers

Associated Press

BOSTON - Rich Gedman and Marty Barrett drove in two runs apiece with bases-loaded singles in a six-run third inning as the Boston Red Sox rolled to a 7-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers last night, completing a four-game series sweep.

With their 16th victory in their last 19 starts and their 12th, straight at home, the Red Sox hiked their record to 90-57, going .500 for the first time since Oct. 2, 1978.

The Red Sox also increased their American League East lead to 10 games over idle New York and Toronto, reducing Boston's magic number for clinching the title to six.

Bruce Hurst, 12-7, breezed to his fourth consecutive victory and 10th complete game of the season. Hurst scattered five hits, struck out 11 and walked two.

Milwaukee starter Pete Vukovich, 1-3, took the loss.

Boston's Wade Boggs had an infield single and a double, extending his hitting streak to 20 games and raising his average to .352. Boggs also drew his 100th walk of the season, tops in the league.

As football fever continues its reign on the Notre Dame campus, fans have another cause for excitement. The 1986 Men's Interhall Football season is about to begin, with a full slate of games scheduled for this Sunday at Stepan Field.

Alumni Hall, the 1985 Interhall Football champion, will once again be a strong contender in the Leahy division. Despite losing many key players, Alumni coach Paul Loughlin remains cautiously optimistic.

"We just have to take things one week at a time," he said. "No one really knows what to expect until after everyone's played."

Alumni begins its defense at 2 p.m. against newly-formed Pangborn, who had combined with Fisher to compete in past years. Other Leahy Division games pit Stanford against Holy Cross and Zahm against Cavanaugh. Both contests start at 3 p.m.

The Parseghian division will probably feature the year's most intense competition. Perennial powers Morrissey, Dillon and Flanner will all field strong teams, while Off-Campus will try to rebound from their 0-5 record of last year.

This week's best game should be the clash between Dillon and Flanner. Charlie Rice, the head coach of Dillon, anticipates a physical game.

"We got a tough break opening against Flanner, who perennially fields a good team," he said. "We have a solid nucleus, but we need some key spots filled by untested players."

Other Parseghian games feature Grace taking on Morrissey and Off-Campus against Keenan, both at 1 p.m..

The Rockne division, led by last year's division champion Sorin, should also feature some hard-hitting action. Sorin begins its season against Howard, while St. Ed's battles Carrol. Both games begin at 4 p.m.

Come on out this Sunday, hung over or not, and watch the opening round of games as Interhall Football - a great Notre Dame tradition - begins its 1986 season.

ND field hockey team plays well despite double-OT loss to Illinois

By MARGOT MACHECA

The Notre Dame field hockey team travelled to Northern Illinois University Wednesday and, although they came back with a

Jill Lindenfeld

3-2 loss in double overtime to drop their season record to 1-3, the Irish players had nothing to be ashamed of in their defeat.

When time ran out in regulation, the Irish and the Huskies were tied 1-1, with Notre Dame's lone goal coming on a 40-yard drive by Stephanie Giggetts. The senior forward scored unassisted after beating four defenders in an open field breakaway.

Notre Dame's all-time leading scorer, Corinne DiGiacomo, tied the match at 2-2 with only twenty seconds left in the first ten-minute overtime period to keep the Irish hopes alive. Northern Illinois had scored just thirty seconds into the period.

Only three minutes passed in the second OT before the Huskies slipped a goal by junior goalie M.J. Beetel. The Irish failed to score and the match ended in a disappointing 3-2 final.

Although the Irish tired in the second half of regulation, Coach Jill Lindenfeld said she felt a change in her players when they began the extra periods.

"We had a breakthrough with the girls going into the overtime," she said. "I felt a real desire to win in all of them."

Lindenfeld stressed that NIU dominated the match, but the Irish took their time and played better late in the match.

"Our girls played with poise all through the game," she said. "They put their hearts and guts into the extra minutes on a field that was fourteen yards wider than we are used to playing on."

The Irish look to improve their record this weekend with away matches against Ohio today and Kent State on Saturday.

Irish look for first '86 victory against Spartans

By MARTY STRASEN
Assistant Sports Editor

EAST LANSING, Mich. - At some point early tomorrow evening, there will be a tough college football team with a winless record of 0-2.

That's what is at stake when 20th-ranked Notre Dame takes on Michigan State tomorrow afternoon at Spartan Stadium in front of a sellout crowd of 76,000 and a CBS national-television audience.

The Spartans held down the No. 20 slot in the AP preseason poll but dropped a heartbreaker, 20-17, to Arizona State in their season opener and lost the position to the Irish, who were impressive in a 24-23 loss to third-ranked Michigan last Saturday.

Now, Notre Dame head coach Lou Holtz finds himself looking for his first Irish victory against a team which finished 7-4 last year, had the nation's leading rusher and has lost only 14 times in 89 home openers.

"Had we won the (Michigan) game it would have been a tremendous morale boost for us," Holtz said. "Now I'm not sure what our reaction's going to be going into Michigan State."

"For the first time, you don't know how a football team is going to react on the road. I think this one is going to react very positively and play very well. (Michigan State) was picked to be in the Top 20 preseason and I can see why. They are impressive."

Spartan head coach George Perles has led his troops to back-to-back winning seasons for the first time since Darryl Rogers did it in 1977 and 1978, and this year State looks to break into the Big 10 conference's elite - usually meaning Michigan and Ohio State.

One thing's for sure, however. The team coming away with an 0-2 record could have an uphill battle to fight in 1986.

Michigan State's offense vs. Notre Dame's defense:

If the name Lorenzo White is an unfamiliar one, you probably haven't been following the Heisman Trophy race very closely. Remember the hype over Auburn's Bo Jackson? White was the man who beat out last year's Heisman winner in the rushing department, picking up 1,908 yards for the Spartans to lead the nation.

In 1986, Perles just might have a solid passing attack to complement the explosiveness of the 5-11, 204-pound

White, who led the Big 10 in touchdowns last year with 17 and rushed for better than 220 yards in four games.

Senior quarterback Dave Yarema is coming off the best game of his career in the loss to the Sun Devils, completing 26 passes in 33 attempts for 258 yards. His .577 completion percentage is topped by only six other Big 10 signal-callers with 500 or more attempts.

"They have the same ingredients on offense that the University of Michigan does," said Holtz. "They have a good offensive line, a great tailback, a good blocking fullback in (Bobby) Morse, and the development of Yarema means a lot to them. He's a very accurate passer, can scramble, finds the open receiver and is oblivious to the pass rush.

"Offensively, they're an awful lot like Michigan except that Lorenzo White, as everybody says, is the greatest running back in the entire country. I think you have to concede that Lorenzo White is going to gain a lot of yardage. What we don't want to do is give him any more than he deserves."

A lack of targets shouldn't be a problem for the 6-3 Yarema, who has a fine receiving corps returning. Senior flanker Mark Ingram led the team in 1985 with 34 receptions and split end Andre Rison pulled down 19. Morse, whose father, Jim, captained the 1954 Notre Dame football team, is also a receiving threat coming out of the backfield. Junior tight end Mike Sargent played in all 12 games last season, catching only two passes as he was used mainly in a blocking role.

In the trenches, however, the Irish should find the going a little easier. Last weekend, the front line of tackles Robert Banks (left), Marty Lippincott (nose) and Wally Kleine (right) was outweighed significantly against the Wolverines.

Tomorrow, Michigan State sends three returning starters on the field in junior center Patrick Shurmur, senior guard Doug Rogers and sophomore tackle Tony Mandarich. To stop the Irish from getting to Yarema, big performances will be needed from sophomore Mark Hill and junior David Houle, two newcomers to the offensive line.

Besides stopping White, or at least slowing him down, the key for Notre Dame will be putting some pressure on Yarema in the passing situations. Outside linebacker Dave Butler is back in the lineup and Cedric Figaro could be blitzing occasionally from the other outside spot.

Senior captain Mike Kovaleski was named the Associated Press Midwest defensive player of the week for his efforts at the inside backer spot against the Wolverines. Kovaleski was in on a game-high 17 tackles in the contest.

Notre Dame's offense vs. Michigan State's defense:

Heading into last weekend's Michigan game, the big question was whether Notre Dame could move the ball against one of the better defenses in the nation. After picking up 455 total yards on a myriad of formations and plays - from wishbones to split-backs and from roll-outs to options - the offensive unit is now faced with another question:

Was last week's success a result of a hyped-up group of players in their first game under a new head coach, or can the Irish continue to march upfield at will?

"Our weapon is to control the football," Holtz said. "We would like to continue to do a lot of different things. I know some people think it's a sort of fly-by-night operation but it really isn't. There's a lot of correlation in our offense."

"I am impressed with Mark Green with the ball in his hands and I think Anthony Johnson and Braxton (Banks) can run pretty well. Pernell Taylor really worked hard and, still, Tim Brown showed that he is just an all-around great player."

Steve Beuerlein also answered some important questions in the Michigan game, throwing for 263 yards on a 21-of-33 completion ratio, behind the protection of an impressive, young offensive line. Senior center Chuck Lanza was named offensive lineman of the game for the Irish.

A leg injury will sideline fullback Frank

Stams for approximately two weeks, according to Holtz, which means Taylor could be one tired fullback after tomorrow's contest.

The strength of the Michigan State defense lies beyond the line of scrimmage, where a veteran linebacking corps and an impressive secondary will be trying to put the lid on Beuerlein's passing attack.

All-America candidate Shane Bullough and Tim Moore, who combined for 275 tackles last season, head the linebacking squad along with sophomore Kurt Larson.

Junior Todd Krumm, who paced the team with four interceptions in 1985, is one of three returning players in the defensive backfield. Seniors Dean Altobelli (strong safety) and Paul Bobbitt (free safety) also will have their hands full with speedy Irish receivers like Brown, Reggie Ward, Milt Jackson and Alvin Miller.

But for the Spartans to slow down the Irish offense, a defensive line with only one returning starter will have to come through. Left tackle Mark Nichols (6-2, 238) is the lone returnee, while David Wolff and John Budde move from part-time roles in 1985 to spots at tackle and end, respectively. The other end position will be occupied by a freshman, James Szymanski.

"Defensively, they play something like the 46," Holtz said. "They line up all different ways and twist and stunt and create an awful lot of bad plays. They never let you establish a rhythm on offense and it's very, very effective."

"It's going to be a little difficult for our offensive linemen because it's whole new blocking schemes and a whole new basic concept. (Michigan State) really pursues well and they don't make a lot of mental errors."

PEERLESS PROGNOSTICATORS

Each week, the Observer sports staff, a random student picked by the sports editor and some well-known figure in the Notre Dame community predict the outcome of the week's major college football games. Records are compiled as to how each person does against the spread. In other words, it isn't enough to pick the winner of a given game. The person must pick the winner and give the underdog points. Home team is in CAPS.
