Rivers, Voce key 60-58 comeback

By DENNIS CORRIGAN

Plain and simple, Notre Dame's 60-58 victory over number-one North Carolina Sunday was a Notre Dame Moment. It was one of those games that goes from the sports pages to the history books.

The Irish, down as many as 16 in the first half, fought and scrapped their way to victory. David Rivers' jumper from inside the foul line put the Irish ahead to stay with 1:06 left to play, and then the Irish hung on despite the Tar Heels and their own fans.

"We didn't crack when it was time for us to crack, and that's a sign of maturity," said Notre Dame head coach Digger Phelps, whose squad's record rose to 12-5. "We've lost four games - to Indiana, DePaul, West Virginia and UCLA - all in the last minute. But I told the kids, 'You can play with anybody,' and today was an opportunity for us to go for our moment. That's just something we're very good at here at Notre Dame - knocking off top-ranked teams. I knew if we stayed with it we were going to get it done, even with the technical at the end.

"We really wanted to win this game. Carolina's a great team, and (North Carolina head coach) Dean Smith's a great coach. They'll be in the Final Four. We just did some things at the end and got away with it. That's what worked for us today, and we made the key foul shots at the end."

It was a day the Irish were not to be denied. Four free throws by Rivers and Gary Voce at the end sealed the win. Both played the final nine minutes of the game with four fouls. Phelps wasn't about to take out his established and rising stars.

Instead, he switched to a 1-3-1 zone, and the Irish got back in it.

"They went to a zone, and we had some open shots," said Smith. "We just didn't make them. They wouldn't have gone to a zone if it weren't for foul trouble. It worked."

Indicted suspect to turn himself in today

By MARK PANKOWSKI

The person indicted by a county grand jury in connection with a fatal traffic accident will turn himself in to authorities today, the county prosecutor's office said.

The St. Joseph County grand jury returned the indictment on Thursday, one day after it reviewed three fatal traffic accidents, including the one that resulted in junior Michael Cogswell's death.

Because the grand jury's indictment was sealed, it wasn't known whether the Notre Dame student arrested in connection with Cogswell's death was indicted.

A source, however, said the 21-year-old student will be charged with a misdemeanor.

County Prosecutor Michael Barnes said information about the indictment won't be released until the person charged is arrested.

The prosecutor's office said plans have been made for the person to turn himself in today, when his attorney would be available.

On Wednesday, the grand jury listened to testimony and reviewed police records in three accidents.

One of those accidents involved Cogswell, who died from massive head injuries 10 hours after being struck by a car on Dec. 6. Following the accident, a 21-year-old student was arrested on the charge of driving while intoxicated.

The prosecutor's office did not charge the student, but instead sent the case to the grand jury for review.

The student was then subpoenaed to testify at the grand-jury hearing, which was closed to the public. The student, however, said he did not testify.

After the accident, police said the student told them he was driving east on Saint Mary's Road, stopped at a stop sign, then went forward and hit an unknown object.

One of Cogswell's roommates said Cogswell was walking with two friends when he was struck.

Chairman visits South Bend to kick off Special Olympics

By JOE MURPHY
Editor-in-Chief

Eunice Kennedy Shriver, founder and chairman of Special Olympics International, visited South Bend Friday to launch the final six-month campaign toward the VII International Summer Special Olympic Games.

"This is the largest sporting event for the mentally retarded ever," said Shriver, the sister of the late President John F. Kennedy.

"This year, (ISSOG) is also the largest sporting event on a university campus."

The ISSOG will be held this summer on the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's campuses from July 31 to Aug. 8. More than 4,700 athletes and about 15,000 volunteers are expected to attend the games.

"We have grown a great deal over the last four years, especially internationally," said Shriver, speaking at a press conference.

"In 1979, we had 14 countries represented in the Special Olympic Games. In 1983, we had 50. And in 1987, we have 65.

The number of participants from foreign countries in 1979 was 150. In 1983, it was 800. In 1987, it's 1,350," she said.

Added Executive Director of ISSOG Committee William Bankhead: "We feel like we have brought the greatest athletic event in the world to the greatest athletic facilities in the world."

Shriver also was in South Bend to plan the opening ceremonies which will be held in the Notre Dame Stadium before 60,000 people and a national television audience, according to Michael Minich, director of marketing and public relations of the ISSOG.

Among those celebrities coming to the games, Shriver said, will be Whitney Houston, Jane Fonda, who will host aerobic clinics, Maria Shriver Schwarzenegger and her husband, Arnold, who will run the weight clinics.

"And we have Frank Gifford who will be doing a 'Wide World of Sports' special show which will be an hour and one-half. That will be shown Aug. 10," said Shriver.

The games are composed of 14 competitions including basketball, soccer, equestrian, weightlifting, and tennis.

Representatives to the games are expected to come from such countries as China, Cuba, Nepal, Yugoslavia, and Suriname.

The ISSOG has an operating budget of $4.8 million which is expected to be a boost to the South Bend community, said Minich.

The funding for the ISSOG comes from individual and corporate donations. So far, Bankhead said, the ISSOG has raised 80 percent of its $4.8 million goal.

Three 17-year-olds, one possessing a handgun stolen earlier this year, were arrested late Thursday by Security, according to Phil Johnson, assistant security director. The youths also had in their possession tools frequently used in burglaries and items taken from a student's car in the campus' D6 parking lot. The three were detained in the parking lot after Security received a report from a Notre Dame student that a suspicious vehicle was in the lot. - The Observer

An American reporter has been detained in Iran, the Swiss Foreign Ministry said Sunday, and hours after his detention the Iranian news agency said a person posing as a journalist had been accused of spying. Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency (IRNA) said Saturday night a "spy of the Zionist regime" had been arrested after entering the country with a false passport and disguised as a journalist. It did not identify the person by name or nationality. - Associated Press

Unfortunate incidents mar the finish of a great victory

WOW!

It was a victory worth savoring. Or was it? Three incidents occurred yesterday that took away some of the satisfaction out of Notre Dame's incredible win over number-one ranked North Carolina. To me, when a few students shouted a racial slur at an opponent, threw objects at the referees and tossed food around the dining halls, they embarrassed the Notre Dame student body.

The first incident happened before the game even began. Flyers distributed around the student section instructed the fans to shout a phrase upon the introduction of each of Carolina's starting line-up. So, when the second player was announced, he was welcomed with the shouts of "Sit down, white boy!"

My heart sank when I heard it. I hoped to God that the TV audience had not picked it up back home.

What some would consider to be an innocent remark was, in fact, an embarrassment to the school. One must ask why it was necessary to taunt an opponent by making reference to the color of his skin.

What was meant by "Sit down, white boy?" I can only take it to mean that only blacks are fit to play basketball and that one's skin color determines success in that sport. Furthermore, anyone from the South could tell you how loaded the term, "boy" is when talking about race.

To whoever authored the flyers, I would like to know why race had to be injected into good, clean athletic entertainment. Frankly, when I watch basketball, I don't care whether the players are black or white, I go to see good basketball. It's obvious that the creators of the flyer had something else in mind. It's also obvious that Minority Awareness Week held on campus just last week had no effect on student attitudes concerning racial issues.

The second incident could have lost the game for the Irish. It really came home to me how many idiots attend this school when I saw a torrent of blue and gold placards descending on the court. Of course they knew it would stop the game. Of course they knew it would infuriate Digger. But they did it anyway.

No, in the end the technical foul didn't hurt us. But, imagine if just one Notre Dame field goal had been erased from the scoreboard. It could have happened.

The third disappointing incident has happened before and, I suppose, will happen again. What seems like harmless fun turned into a dangerous game of glass flying in all directions. The food fight that occurred in B-section of

Chris Bowler

Managing Editor

North Dining hall left glass scattered over a large area of the floor. Is it any wonder that the residents of South Bend, like those who live in the Northeast Neighborhood, think of us as kids rather than adults?

Let me be clear: I think that a general celebration was definitely in order yesterday. The team and the school deserved it. But I wonder whether many of us have too much pent up emotions waiting to burst into immature and destructive behavior. Celebrating and showing school solidarity is great --until someone gets hurt. The point is, these seemingly minor actions have real and unintended consequences. At the very best, these students who shouted a racial slur didn't know what they were saying --in which case they came off as unthinking. At worst, they knew exactly what they were saying --a proposition that I won't even consider. In any case, Notre Dame's student body ends up looking bad. For a moment, just a short moment, one could catch a glimpse of who some of the students are who attend Notre Dame.

The events I noticed Sunday don't dampen the exhilaration that I felt as the clock ran out and Notre Dame was on top. An ND moment had occurred.

It was the kind of Notre Dame moment that I wouldn't mind repeating next time --but with a few less idiots in attendance.

Filipinos vote on new constitution after failed coup try

Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines - Filipinos cast ballots today to approve or disapprove a new constitution. The voting was seen as a crucial test of strength for President Corazon Aquino's 11-month-old administration.

Small explosions within 20 minutes occurred at three locations in Manila the night before the plebiscite, but no one was injured, private radio station DZRH said.

The explosions, apparently from homemade bombs, were at the San Roque Roman Catholic Church, a bookstore and in a vacant lot about 200 yards from the DZRH studios, according to the broadcast. Police said they had no suspects. Also Sunday night, Manila police arrested two men and seized 120 sticks of dynamite after learning of a plot to disrupt the voting.

Explosions rock Manila, troops on alert to prevent trouble

The military put 79 battalions on alert to prevent trouble during the nationwide voting, which came days after the government put down a military coup attempt by supporters of former President Ferdinand Marcos.

Polls were open from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. (6 p.m. Sunday to 1 a.m. Monday EST). Nationwide results were not expected for days, but the private National Movement for Free Elections said it expected definitive results from the Manila area by midnight (11 a.m. Monday EST).

Ramon Felipe, chairman of the Commission on Elections, predicted an 80 percent turnout of the 25 million registered voters.

The plebiscite marked the first time Aquino went to the electorate for a show of support since the "people power revolution" swept her to power in February 1986 following contested presidential elections. That uprising forced Marcos to abandon the presidency after 20 years and flee into exile in Hawaii.

Marcos said Sunday in Honolulu that, "I have been informed that massive cheating and fraud has already happened." He claimed lower level government workers had been offered 100 pesos (about $5) each to vote for the document.

The proposed 20,000-word charter was completed in October by a 48-member commission Aquino appointed despite opposition from both leftist and rightist critics.

The plebiscite asks voters to respond "yes" or "no" to the question: "Do you vote for the approval of the Constitution of the Republic of the Philippines as proposed by the Constitutional Commission."

The constitution would sharply reduce the power of the president, re-establish a two-chamber legislature, guarantee civil rights and ban the military from political activity other than voting. It would confirm Aquino in the presidency for a six-year term.

Presidential spokesman Teodoro Benigno has said the plebiscite was a "vote of confidence in Corazon Aquino" and an approval margin below 60 percent would spell trouble.

Former Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile campaigned against the charter. His Coalition of Democratic Action predicted a 60 percent "no" vote unless the government "rigs the election."

It was unclear what would happen if the proposal is rejected.

Low-key communications begin as leaders look for Waite

Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon - Intensive "hush-hush" negotiations involving Syria, Iran and Lebanese militia leaders have started to determine the fate of missing hostage negotiator Terry Waite and to ensure his safety, a senior militia official said Sunday.

"These hush-hush talks are in high gear," said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "The parties concerned are burning up the (telephone) wires trying to ensure Mr. Waite's safety. Plenty of Syrian and Iranian emissaries are shuttling back and forth."

Waite, personal emissary of Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie, flew to Beirut Jan. 12 on his fifth trip to Lebanon to win freedom for foreign hostages.

The Anglican Church envoy has not been seen publicly since he left the Riviera Hotel in west Beirut on Jan. 20, presumably to negotiate with Islamic Jihad, a pro-Iranian Shiite faction that holds Americans Terry Anderson and Thomas Sutherland. Both men were abducted in 1985.

Various reports have said Waite may have been taken prisoner.

"The lack of direct word from Mr. Waite since his disappearance two weeks ago has alarmed all sides concerned and every effort is being made to find out about him," said the knowledgeable militia source.

Iran is believed to wield influence with some of the groups in Lebanon that have claimed responsibility for abducting Western hostages. Syria is the main power-broker in Lebanon, and has about 25,000 soldiers in north and east Lebanon under a 1976 Arab League peacekeeping mandate.

Druse leader Walid Jumblatt, whose militia was in charge of Waite's security, offered himself as a hostage Saturday to replace Waite if reports of his abduction were true.

But the Church of England said Waite left strict instructions forbidding any rescue mission, ransom payment or substitution of hostages if he was kidnapped.

A church statement about Waite's message was issued after London's Sunday Express reported that "Beirut terrorists" were demanding a ransom of $4 million for Waite's release.

Runcie also said Sunday he had no "fresh news" about Waite. "I have had some contact yesterday (Saturday), indirectly. I am very anxious about where he is," he said.

Eleven foreigners, including three Americans, two West Germans, an Indian and a Frenchman, have been kidnapped in Moslem west Beirut since Waite's arrival.

An underground group threatened late Saturday night to kill the three Americans and the Indian unless Israel freed 400 Arab prisoners and flew them to Syria on a Red Cross plane within one week.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin on Sunday rejected the group's demand, saying Israel will not act as an "international bank" for terrorists.

The threat to kill hostages came in a handwritten note signed Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine. It was delivered to a Western news agency and a Beirut newspaper along with photos of two American captives among four educators kidnapped at Beirut University College on Jan. 24.

The pictures showed Jesse Turner, 39, of Boise, Idaho, a visiting professor of mathematics and computer science; and Alann Steen, 47, a native of Boston, a communications instructor.

They were kidnapped along with Robert Polhill, 53, of New York City, a lecturer in accounting; and Mithileshwar Singh, 60, a visiting professor of finance, an Indian native and legal resident alien of the United States.

There now are 26 foreigners missing and presumed kidnapped in Lebanon, including eight Americans.

Congress ready to override Reagan's water bill veto

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - President Reagan faces a major spending defeat this week if Congress, as expected, overrides his second veto in three months of popular $20 billion clean-water legislation.

Nobody, least of all the president, will be surprised by the pending House and Senate votes over an aid-to-the-states issue that Reagan says is the "first great battle of the (budget) deficit in the 100th Congress."

"I know this veto is going to be overridden," he said Friday at a ceremony that contrasted markedly with the quiet pocket-veto he used last Nov. 6 to scuttle an identical bill after Congress had left town and was unable to take override votes.

There is one element of suspense this week on Capitol Hill: Will the House follow the lead of the Senate and reject a proposal to add $12,100 to the annual $77,400 congressional salary?

Unless the House rejects them by midnight Tuesday, the raises, recommended by Reagan, are automatic for lawmakers, federal judges, the Cabinet and top-level bureaucrats. The House won't start hearings on the issue until Monday, and the question isn't yet on the floor debate agenda.

Dooley winner tells of hardships

By ERIC M. BERGAMO
Staff Reporter

For 1987 Tom Dooley Award winner Michael Novell, working in the Philippines as director of the Save Our Children program and as a Peace Corps volunteer have been difficult but rewarding experiences.

Novell spoke about these experiences Friday afternoon at the Center for Social Concerns.

"It was a very intense period of my life. My wife was working with me and it was very, very hard. The things you read about, the tortures, the people being abused were true. A lot of horrible things happened."

Novell, a 1975 graduate of Notre Dame, joined the Peace Corps after his graduation and worked for three years in the Phillipines. He spent most of that time working at a rural health unit that served over 29,000 people.

"Conditions there are quite different from what you would find in developed countries. One time for five months there were only two of us there: myself and a sanitation expert," Novell said.

Despite the hardships of working in an underdeveloped area, Novell found the work rewarding.

"It was a good experience for me because during that time I made the decision to stay in the field of what we would call community development."

Novell returned to the United States for graduate studies in public health at UCLA. It was during this time that he joined Save The Children. His first assignment took him to Southeast Asia where he worked for two and a half years in the refugee program. Novell worked for six months as a nutrition program manager. He eventually became director of the program which included a language and cultural orientation program for those refugees who would be migrating to the United States.

Novell returned to the Philippines five years ago to start a new project in community development. His associates are currently working with three sites: one in a lowland rice farming area; one in a mountain area with an ethnic minority group; and one that is being started in Manila.

Some of the goals of community development in these areas are "trying to decrease the death rate in terms of malnutrition. We have a community health workers program where you find someone who has basic reading and writing skills and someone who is willing to put in the time to teach them some low-level, simple areas of health," Novell said.

"We're trying to increase rice production through the use of agricultural credit, giving a commodity loan. We work through farmer's aides; these are farmers who have a sixth grade or high school education and what they do is they act as a middle man with our staff," he said.

The Save The Children program also works with women in expanding their role in the community, Novell said.

"What we are trying to do is to improve the lives of children and their families and the communities in which they live through community self-help projects," he said.

Save The Children depends mostly on nationals to run their programs in over 46 countries worldwide.

Future plans for Save The Children are to locate new sites for community development in the countries that they are already in. Save The Children is also conducting extensive refugee assistance programs in Ethiopia, Somalia and Sudan.

Novell said that Notre Dame influenced his going into community service and helping other people.

"One of the things I left with, it wasn't clearly imprinted in my head, but I had this feeling that it was extremely important to keep thinking what it meant to be a part of the community and a member of a group," Novell said.

"Look at the alumni group, that's a community, that's a group of people working together. The more I thought about it, the more I saw how it pertained to everything you do in life," said Novell.

Novell said he was "surprised" at being given the Tom Dooley Award.

"I haven't had contact with the University for so long."

USX workers ratify contract, return to their jobs today

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH - United Steelworkers members, ending a six-month work stoppage at USX Corp. plants, begin returning to work today under a newly ratified contract that swaps pay concessions for job security.

After a day of counting ballots, union officials announced late Saturday that their members had ratified the four-year contract by a vote of 19,621 to 4,045.

The industry's longest work stoppage ended on its 184th day.

"We're pleased that our employees have ratified the contract," said David Roderick, chairman of the nation's largest steelmaker. "Now we can get about the business of supplying the customers."

But owing to poor business conditions that forced USX, formerly U.S. Steel, and five major competitors before it to negotiate labor concessions, work at 25 USX plants in nine states will resume only as orders warrant.

"It will not be an immediate recall of all the people," said James McGeehan, chief union negotiator.

Workers were to be called for orientation briefings Monday and production would resume within several weeks at the company's biggest operations, the Gary Works in Indiana, the Mon Valley Works near Pittsburgh, the Fairless Hills Works near Philadelphia, the Lorain Works in Ohio, and the South Works at Chicago, said USX spokesman Thomas Farrell.

Production at the Fairfield Works near Birmingham, Ala., was to resume in late February or early March, he said. Insufficient orders would delay the restart of plants at Orem, Utah, and Baytown, Texas.

USX also has steel or iron ore plants covered by the pact in Minnesota and Michigan.

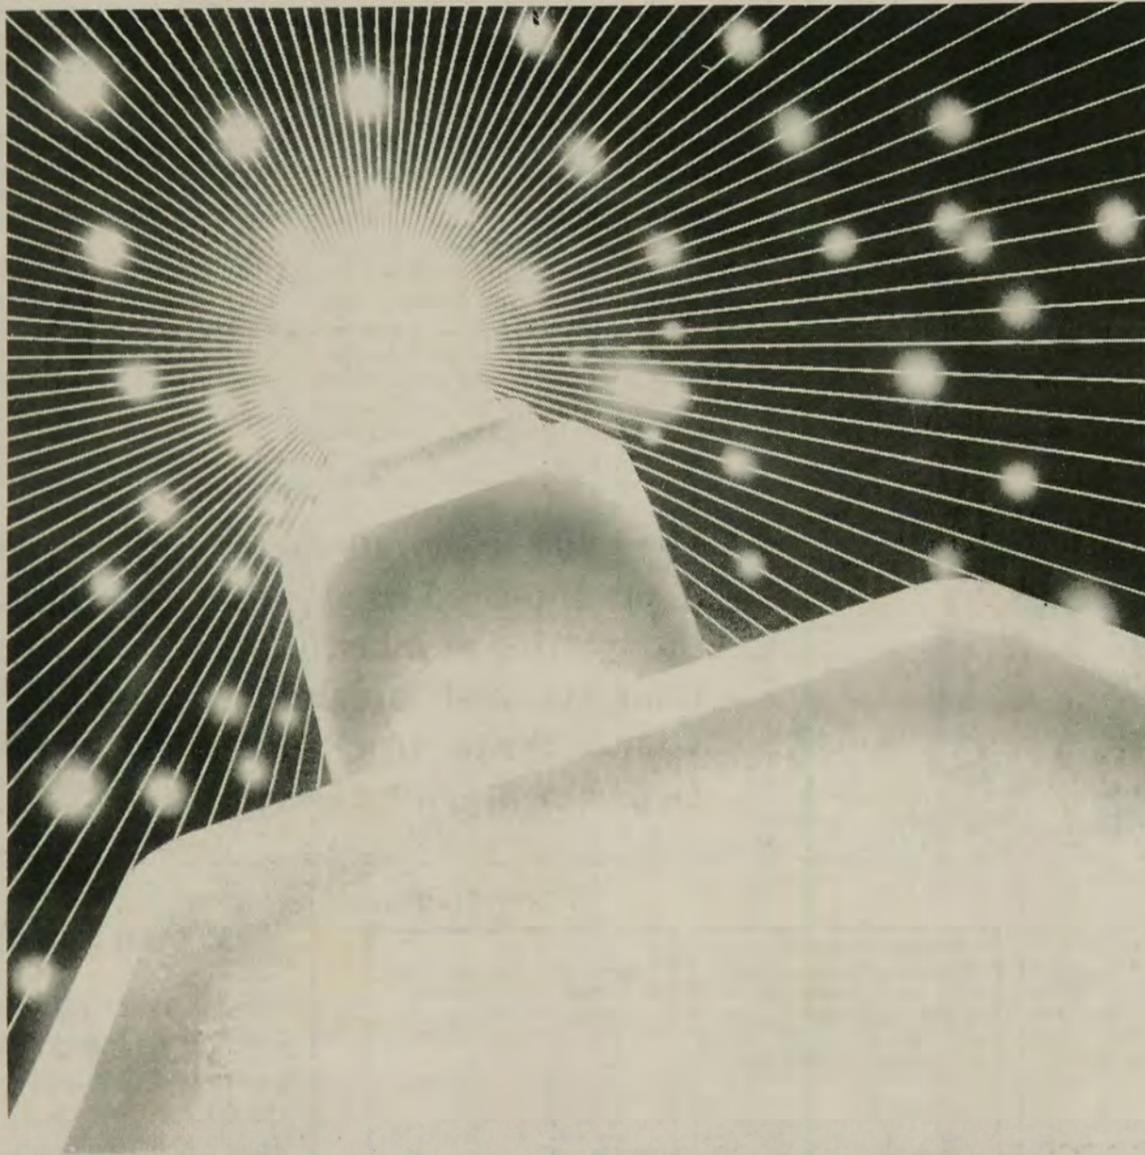

Counting on a big win

United Steelworkers in Lorain, Ohio count USW-USX Corp. ratification ballots in Pittsburgh Saturday. A USW spokesman said the voting was 4-1 in favor of accepting the new contract in the Lorain local.

UAW signs new contract with Deere

Associated Press

MOLINE, Ill. - United Auto Workers union members representing more than 12,000 workers in six states on Sunday approved a contract with Deere & Co., ending a five-month work stoppage, the union said.

Members of 14 locals at 13 idled facilities, most in Iowa and Illinois, voted more than 75 percent in favor of the pact, said UAW Vice President Bill Casstevens.

He did not provide vote totals on the contract, which is to run through Sept. 30, 1988. At least one local voted against it.

The contract, which concludes the longest work stoppage ever at the farm-equipment company, includes job security provisions but no immediate wage increase, said union spokesman Karl Mantyla.

Deere has committed $14.4 million to establish a "protected employee group" similar to one established last year in a contract with Peoria-based Caterpillar Inc., said Mantyla.

Way to go, Irish!

Notre Dame's 60-58 victory over North Carolina Sunday will live forever as a Notre Dame moment. It was one of those games that comes along once in a lifetime.

Sunday's game helped ease the pain of several years of missed chances, close losses and losing seasons which have haunted Notre Dame athletics in recent years. Sunday, a Notre Dame team hung tough against the number-one team in the nation and with the game on the line, these Irish pulled out a win.

When the horn sounded to end the game, Notre Dame erupted. The students mobbed the court, celebrating a game that they had been as much a part of as anyone who played. Notre Dame head coach Digger Phelps said afterward that although NBC named Gary Voce the game's MVP, the student body deserved to be named second.

But at the end, those same fans came close to taking the game from the players they had so ably supported. From pregame warm-ups to well after the game was over, the fans had rattled the Tar Heels while exhorting the Irish. Then, they celebrated too early by throwing their ND placards on the court, which cost the Irish a technical foul. This action did not show the rest of the nation the class that Notre Dame students really possess. Moreover, it almost cost the Irish the game.

But Sunday was a day fated for the Irish. They made the key plays and free throws necessary to make the game a Notre Dame moment. This season's edition of the Irish proved true the words Phelps spoke to a different squad six years ago, "Nobody leaves Notre Dame number one."

The Notre Dame students, despite their one trespass, proved to the world what we have known for a long time: We Are ND.

Chants lessen quality of supportive crowd

History Month to help complete our college education.

Marvin H. Lett

Dear Editor:

The victory over top-ranked North Carolina is one that will be savored for years, no doubt. The students' participation and support played a positive role in it. Yet as we enter the month of February, set off to recognize the contributions of blacks to this country's history, I do not feel that the chants welcoming Carolina's starting lineup were appropriate as a beginning. "Sit down, white boy! Your mama! Two plus two equals five, right J.R.?" Such statements as these might be less disappointing if they were coming from the mouths of racially uneducated people but not from future leaders in our government and corporate America. Though the students probably felt that these chants were innocuous, I found them quite condescending. The black student-athletes that have graduated and will graduate from Notre Dame are not the only blacks that can do well academically. While I am sure that J.R. Reid can add and read, contrary to a particular chant, I also feel confident that tutors on most college campuses do not work exclusively for the benefit of minorities, either students or athletes.

A large part of the college experience comes from those things learned outside of the classroom. I would hope that those students so vocal in supporting the Irish are as energetic in challenging generalities they might foster about others. Toward this goal various activities have been planned for Black

Sailors deserve credit for work in victories

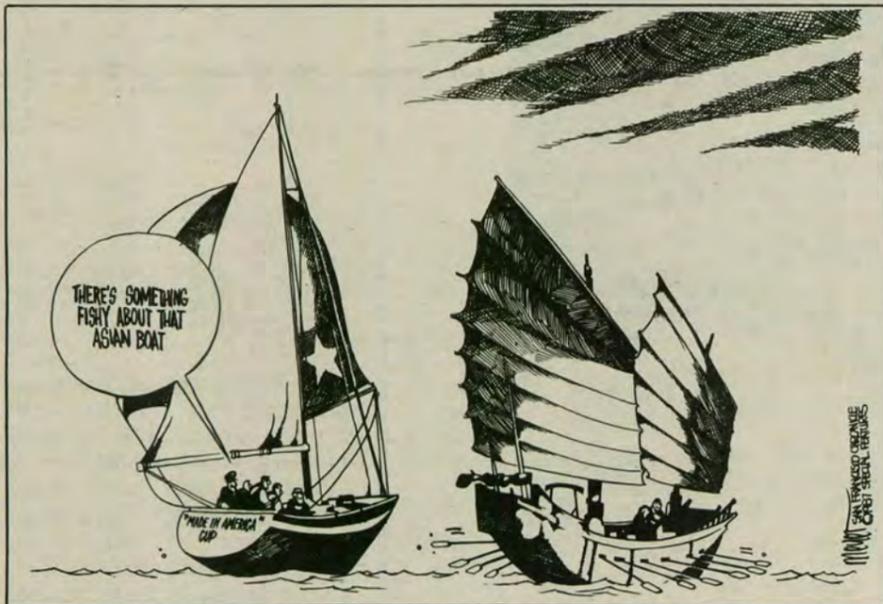

Dear Editor:

I was extremely disappointed with Marty Burns' article, "Please blow away Stars and Stripes, forever." Burns displayed a surprising lack of knowledge about the America's Cup. To those who have ever been to a real beach or wish they had, sailing is an enjoyable sport.

Burns maintains that the "private beaches along the Eastern seaboard" choked on their caviar, formed a syndicate, and rehired Dennis Connor to bring the America's Cup back. Obviously, Burns did not do his homework. Connor is based in San Diego, California, well over 2,500 miles from the East Coast. He was not alone on the West Coast, as Newport Beach, California also had a boat called "The Eagle." In fact, these syndicates are funded by corporate sponsorship, not the skipper's pocketbooks. The yachts come from numerous cities and countries to compete in the "Super Bowl" of sailing. Did you forget about "French Kiss" and "Italy", who were eliminated earlier?

I and many other Americans hope that Dennis Connor and "Stars and Stripes" do recapture the America's Cup. This is something we, as Americans, can be proud of.

Soap SWIM

All My Children--Kyle made a pass at Yvette. She caught it and went six yards for the first down. On the next play Kyle made a handoff to Yvette but she was hit behind the line of scrimmage and coughed up the ball. Sabrina told Kyle that he was going to "have to control the ball."

Another World--Dirk feared that Jenny was sleeping with George. George feared that Jenny had been sleeping with six people. Patrick figured that pretty well settled the question of whether or not Melissa was a nut case. Richard ran for governor while Tina went shopping for sexy underwear to wear in next week's episodes.

Falcon Crest--Everybody agreed that Falcon Crest was a stupid name for a TV show. Later Chase tried to make love to Donna but Donna ran over him got tattooed in a really wierd place. Ben realized that someone had stolen all of his long underwear.

Loving--Muffy and Buffy fell in love and consummated their passion by changing the oil in Buffy's Mercedes. Gwyneth told Harry that his hair was too long. Harry got mad and backhanded her across the right cheek. Later Harry felt bad and backhanded her across the left cheek just to even things up. Nancy decided that she wanted a child but later she decided she wanted a Snicker's Bar instead.

One Life to Live--Max had warm feelings for Maggie but Maggie had much warmer feelings for Carl. Anna realized that Dick was dying and she begged him to leave the toaster oven to her when it was all over. Meanwhile, Max was still having warm feelings for Maggie. Lisa got food poisoning and had to have her stomach pumped.

Ryan's Hope--Vince and Carla made love. Bob and Anna made love. Lynne and Mike made love. Georgina and Tom made love. Trisha and Ron made love. Tim and Moira didn't make love but they did get pretty excited.

Santa Barbara--Ashley got all bent out of shape. Kathy begged, pleaded, screamed, asked nicely and implored Greg to take her bowling. Greg refused but promised to take her to the Burger King drive-in if she was a good girl and promised to eat all her green beans. Kevin murdered Mary and forgot where he left the body. Tracy got carded.

The Young and the Restless--Kay worried that Phillip didn't really love her and that he was just using her for her body. Phillip admitted this readily and Kay said, "Well, okay, as long as you're honest." Shannon wondered why they call these stupid things soap operas. Kris was visited in his room by the ghost of Marilyn Monroe. She attempted to seduce him and he responded with, "Sorry, I never make love to the most beautiful woman in history on the first date." Diane wondered aloud, "If we're so young and restless, why don't we get a job or something?"

Before and after in this week's soaps

ALL MY CHILDREN: Matt confessed to Erica that he was a witness to Earl's murder. Ellen missed finding Ross in Natalie's bedroom. Ellen feared Mark might kill himself. Hillary was excited about her new job at Tempo. Coming: Hillary's new assignment takes an unexpected twist.

ANOTHER WORLD: Jamie and Michael discovered that Reginald owns the hospital where Donna had been placed. When they went to get her, she was gone. Rachael mistakenly thought Mac had gone to New York with Rose and she rushed to Mitch to tell him her marriage was over. Coming: M.J. feels threatened by Chad but makes a dangerous decision anyway.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Emily refused to acknowledge that James was the villain everyone said he was. Casey was upset at the way he perceived Craig was treating Lyla because of Casey's romance with her. Bob and Kim worried about the questions they knew they had to answer once Frannie learned more of the truth. Coming: James begins to suspect he might be in danger.

CAPITOL: Angelica panicked at the thought of Trey learning more about her than she wanted him to know. Sloane realized she had to make a new assessment of her life. Coming: Kelly decides to face a hidden problem.

DALLAS: Ewing Oil made a financial comeback as Bobby and J.R. secured important deals. April continued her ploy to get back her 5 percent of Ewing Oil. Ray and Jenna's friendship was put on hold when Ray decided to fight Donna for custody of their unborn child. Coming: B.C. Calhoun continues to cause problems for J.R.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Mike assured Robin he wanted to convert to Judaism in spite of her attempts to dissuade him. Adrienne tried to tell Patch her secret, but Kayla interfered before she could do so. Shane talked Kim out of pleading guilty to second degree murder. Roman suspected Kim's fingerprints may have been artificially placed in the vial. Coming: Kayla worries about Patch's apparent interest in Adrienne.

FALCON CREST: The kidnappers demanded that Meredith be handed over to them in exchange for Richard's son. Richard vowed he'd make Angela pay for putting Meredith in his household. Emma, who now knew she wasn't having Dwayne's baby, decided to have one with Karlotti. Coming: Dan Flix gets into a tight spot.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Duke and Angus suspected Jonathan would use poison to kill them. Angus later took the poison to end the long vendetta. Anna learned Camellia is Duke's half sister. Jake found Lucy who seduced him by begging for one night of love before going to jail. Coming: Sean has a proposition for Alan and Monica.

GUIDING LIGHT: Josh was not completely sold on Sylvia's story. Roxie and Johnny found some rough spots in their developing relationship. Rusty got some troubling information on Lewis Trucking. Coming: Josh considers an important move that might involve more danger.

KNOTS LANDING: Abby felt more isolated than ever as Olivia continued to distance herself from her. Karen felt isolated as Anne seemed to become more important both to Mac and to Paige. Coming: Abby decides to take more drastic action.

LOVING: Tony tried to get Trisha to stop drinking. Steve later told Trisha he never stopped loving her. Trisha overdosed on drugs and Nick begged Tony who admitted he was a doctor to help her. Gwynne and Clay made love but he was still determined to settle a long time score with her. Coming: Harry learns about Clay.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: A body identified as Keith's was discovered. Tina weighed Max Holden's invitation to go with him to his silvermine in Argentina. At the trial, Maria testified she saw Vickie and Tom kissing and that Vickie said she wanted to start a new life. Judith defended Vickie's right to keep her children even if she had amnesia. Coming: Maria believes she's winning her battle for Clint.

RYAN'S HOPE: On the wedding night, Melinda confessed to Pat that she was ill and he had a right to annul the marriage. Pat insisted on remaining married and told her he felt sure they'd find a cure. Maggie who decided to divorce Roger, told Jill she was pregnant. While making love to Della, Roger called out Maggie's name. Coming: Siobhan finds upsetting evidence that could change her life.

SANTA BARBARA: Jeffrey helped Kelly escape. Cruz joined Eden and Pearl in Switzerland to rescue Kelly. Caroline withheld telling Lionel she was Alice's mother. Lionel was shattered when Caroline said she couldn't move in with him yet. Coming: In spite of himself, Mason begins to respond to Julia.

THE YOUNG & THE RESTLESS: Traci, delighted with Tim's assessment of her writing, reassured him Brad would support her return to school. Steven felt he was getting closer to the root of Ashley's terror. Victor became more concerned about Nikki's health. Coming: Lauren is shocked at the continuing fallout resulting from the way she brought Evan into Faren/Michelle's life.

Dirk. In reality, Jenny had been sleeping with Kyle from "All My Children" so Dirk and George both ended up getting chumped. Katherine got her trendy new haircut caught in the fan belt of her Porsche and Carl saved her by cutting it off at the roots. Katherine took this as a sign of affection and they made passionate love in a Laundromat.

As the World Turns--Angela was concerned over Bliff's increasing infatuation with stamp collecting. Tonia and Craig went on their honeymoon and Tonia had an affair with the boy who brought room service. Craig wanted to have an affair with the boy who brought room service too but Tonia told him that the boy was "all mine and you can't have him. He gives me something you never could and anyway you're a... a creep!"

Capitol--Everybody died.

Dallas--Bobby and Pam ordered a set of Ginsu knives from a television commercial. J.R. confessed his love for Donna and Donna confessed her love for Bobby and Pam's set of Ginsu knives. Sue Ellen realized that there was no God and in response to this she decided to indulge her favorite fantasy - running nude through the streets of Dallas.

Days of our Lives--Patrick continued to question Melissa's mental state. Melissa said, "I'm not crazy, I'm just crazy for you." Then she stepped around the corner to Burger King and shot with Carl's BMW. Then she ran over Carl with Carl's BMW. Carl survived but got picked up by a UFO on his way out of the hospital. Yvonne got gum disease and John said, "I'd rather kiss my cocker spaniel than you, Yvonne." Then Yvonne informed John that she was going to have his child and John said, "Oh no you don't. No woman with green yechy stuff on her gums is gonna have my child!"

General Hospital--Dr. Harper accidentally left his college ring in Nora's vena cava during her open heart surgery. He decided to forget about it and go get a drink. Dr. Ralph's affair with Nurse Carlson ended when Nurse Carlson caught him fondling a pituitary gland. She said, "I always knew you were a pituitary gland fondler!"

Guiding Light--Reva told Jack her true feelings and Jack said, "You might as well face it, you're addicted to love." Reva responded by saying, "Jack, I've been shot through the heart and you're to blame. And furthermore you give love a bad name." Jack said, "Sorry baby, I didn't mean to turn you on." Reva said, "My name ain't baby, it's Reva. Miss Jackson if you're nasty." Getting the last word Jack said, "I've made up my mind--I'm keeping my baby, oooh I'm gonna keep my baby yeaah, ooohh."

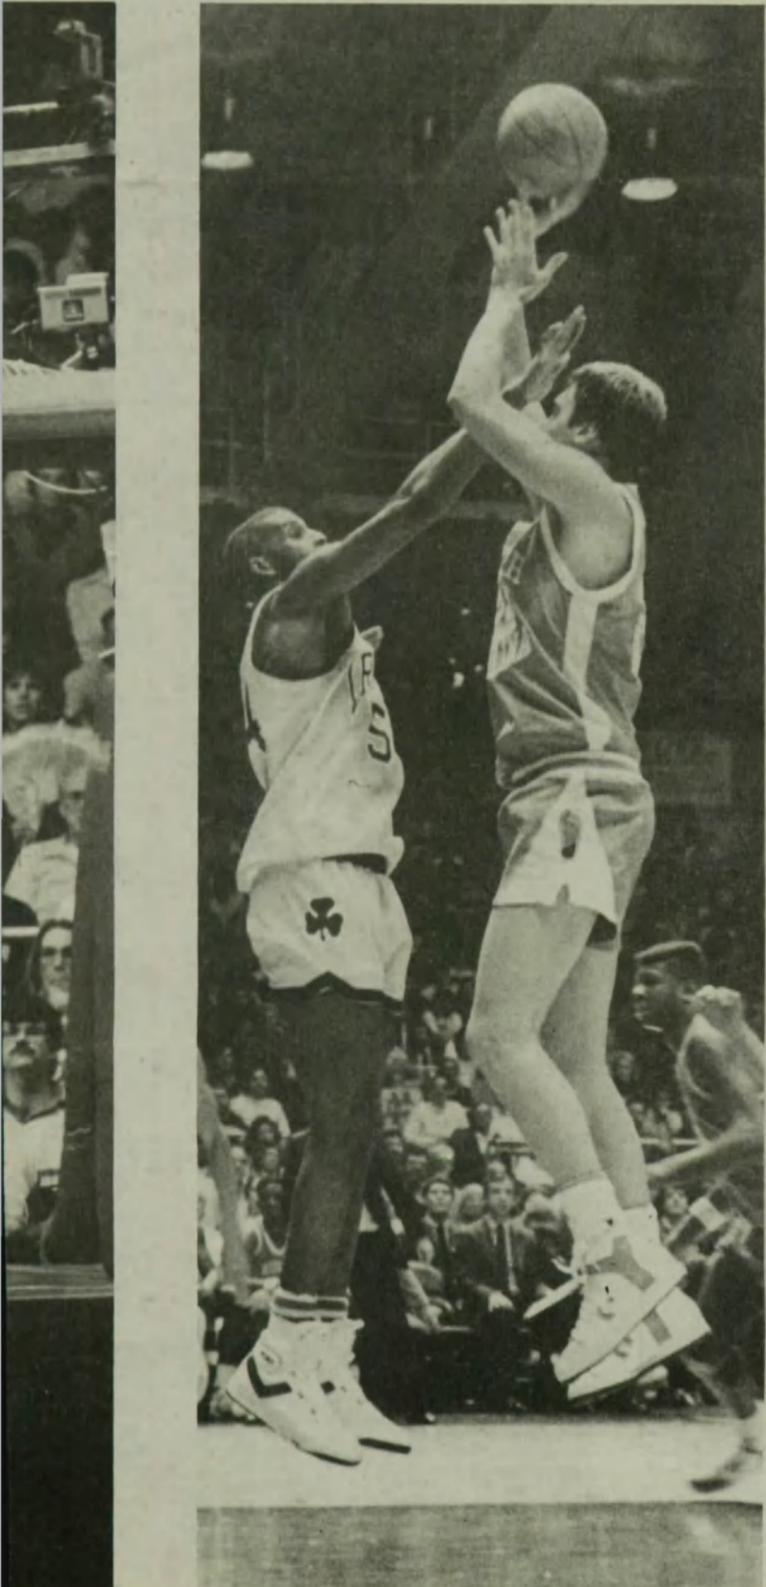

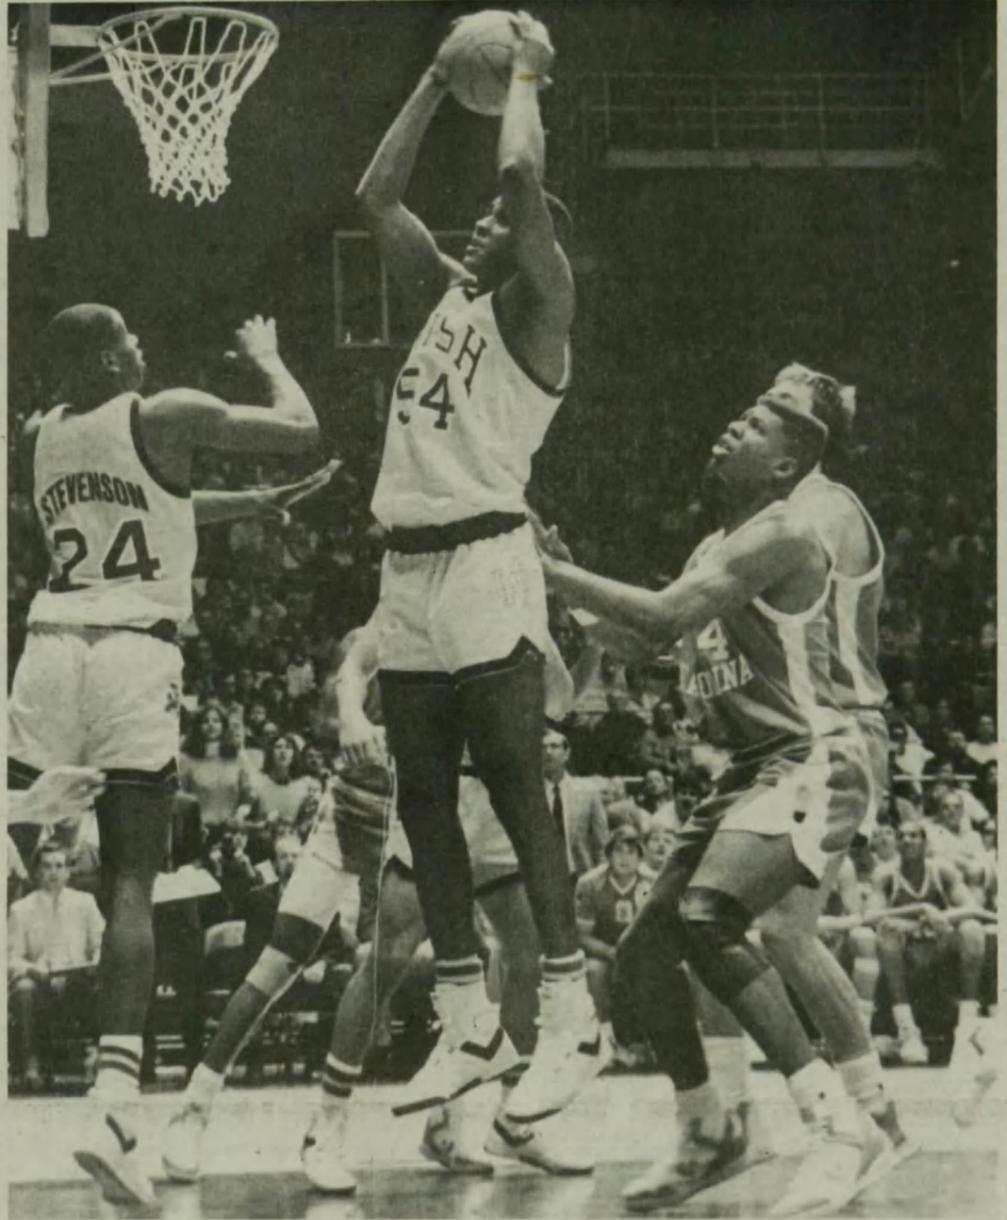

Knot's Landing--Keith invited Don Knots to Knot's Landing. Jeremy got beat up for having such a stupid name. Angela joined a motorcycle gang and

Special to The Observer

Non-Varsity Athletics' first annual Late Night Olympics are on tap for Friday, Feb. 13, and the deadline for entries is Monday, Feb. 9.

The Late Night Olympics combine athletic and fun events in an effort to promote co-ed, inter-dorm competition and to raise money for the International Summer Special Olympics, to be held in South Bend this summer.

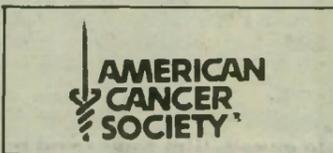

Non-Varsity Athletics has scheduled some other deadlines for some of its upcoming events as well.

Students are reminded of the Stretcher exercise program, which is already in progress on Tuesday and Thursday, beginning at 5:20 p.m.

Other available openings include aerobics, hydrobics and the Century Club. NVA also rents cross-country ski equipment from Tuesday to Sunday, and has a regular schedule of cross-country events on tap for the month of February.

The deadline for indoor soccer is Wednesday, with both men's and women's events slated.

Registration and/or further information on these activities and others may be obtained by contacting the NVA at 239-6100 or by stopping by the offices in the ACC.

Packers select Braatz for front-office position

Associated Press

GREEN BAY, Wis. - Tom Braatz, named Saturday as executive vice president of football operations for the Green Bay Packers, says he has no timetable for making the Packers into winners again - but he welcomes the task.

Braatz, who has been with the Atlanta Falcons organization since 1965 and was director of college scouting for the Falcons last season, said he was lured to the Green Bay job because of what it entails.

"It's just football. You don't have to fool with tickets and you don't have to fool with public relations," he said. "It's just football and that's what's fun about it."

He said his first priority is to get the Packers ready for the National Football League draft in April.

Green Bay finished 4-12 last year and hasn't had a winning season since going 5-3-1 in the strike-shortened season of 1982.

Braatz, 54, a Kenosha native, said he should have no trouble working with Packers Coach

Forrest Gregg, whose responsibilities will be reduced somewhat.

"Forrest and I have had several discussions in Indianapolis prior to me taking the job," Braatz said, referring to meetings while in Indianapolis for scouring potential recruits.

"Everything was ironed out before I said OK," he said. "You can't initiate and you can't consummate trades unless you get with the coach. He knows better than I the needs of the football team."

Braatz will begin his new position Feb. 20 and will sign a four-year contract later this month, said Packers President Robert Parins.

Parins said Braatz was selected after an extensive search which included interviews with five people and evaluations of 20 other candidates.

The hiring of Braatz will mark the first time since Vince Lombardi was hired in 1959 that the Packers head coach has not had complete authority over the football operations.

Upset

Rivers, who was scoreless in the opening half but finished with 14 points, penetrated to hit three jumpers down the stretch with Carolina's Ranzino Smith in his face, and Voce hit four from the line and grabbed a key rebound at the end to seal Notre Dame's upset.

"I got into a rhythm," said Rivers, whose father travelled from New Jersey to see his son play at Notre Dame for the first time. "When I get into a rhythm - where I'm controlling the tempo - whether I have a hand in my face or not I tend to shoot well. I just got into a good groove.

"There wasn't a particular moment when I felt I could score. It was just the offense we were in. I have the option to go one-on-one. When I felt Ranzino was giving me enough room, I took the shot."

Even at the end, it looked as if Notre Dame's own fans would take the game away from the Irish. Cardboard signs were thrown to the floor after Voce grabbed a rebound and was fouled after a forced shot by the Tar Heel's J.R. Reid. The crowd went wild, and referee Gerry Donaghy whistled Notre Dame for a technical foul. Voce, who hit on five-of-six free throws and scored a game-high 15 points, calmly stuck both ends of the one-and-one for the win.

"I missed converting on a three-point play before, and Coach Phelps sat me down and told me what I was doing wrong," said Voce. "So I felt pretty good when I went up there at the end. I just thought to myself, 'I'm going to hit this one.'"

Jeff Lebo hit the technical shot and a jumper at the buzzer for the final score.

Joe Wolf scored 14 to lead the Tar Heels, who lost their their second game against 18 wins.

But in the first half, the game looked as if it would be all North Carolina, which played solidly without injured point guard Kenny Smith. Smith underwent arthroscopic surgery Saturday morning to remove loose cartilage from his left knee.

Yet with Wolf hitting short jumpers and Lebo and Smith gunning from three-point range, the Tar Heels took control for much of the opening half.

The Irish stayed with the deliberate tempo to slow down the potent Tar Heels, who entered the game averaging 94.7 points per contest. The Irish chipped away and went on a seven-point spurt at the end of the half to cut a 16-point lead to nine at the half.

"I said at halftime that that we've got to start going to hole, penetrate, draw the fouls or look to pass. We only had one foul shot in the first half, and that told me we had to go in-

As for Phelps, he didn't care that Smith wasn't in the back-court for Carolina today.

"One thing we didn't do in practice yesterday was worry about Kenny Smith not playing," said Phelps. "I told the team that when you lose a key player it helps you. It works against the team you're playing because your kids do things better. My kids wouldn't let me read the papers this morning because they didn't want me to think about Smith not being in the line up."

While Phelps and Rivers both said that they'd celebrate the win and get on with the season,

Practice, practice

By MARTY BURNS
Assistant Sports Editor

Did anybody really believe it could happen?

Yes.

Irish head coach Digger Phelps not only believed his squad could upset No. 1 North Carolina, he went so far as to have his team practice cutting down the nets after Saturday afternoon's practice.

Practice shearing the twine? It might seem somewhat cocky, but then again it worked.

"We knew we could win this game," said forward Mark Stevenson. "We did a trial run after practice at cutting down the nets. Donald (Royal) and the Gold team were going to do one hoop, while the Blue team took the other one. We felt they were ripe for us to take them, and that our game plan was perfect."

This, of course, is not the first recorded incident of Phelps' coaching the post-game ritual. It became well-publicized after Notre Dame's 71-70 upset of UCLA in 1974 that Phelps had made his team practice cutting the nets before the game.

"We've never practiced cutting the nets before," said a jubilant Royal, still wearing the shredded twine around his neck. "But Coach just had us do it yesterday. I'm glad I got a piece of that net because this is by far the biggest win of my career."

side. We felt at halftime that Rivers could go for more one-on-one, and we let him do that."

Went the Irish went inside, they looked to Voce, who has found a baseline jumper to make him a scoring threat along with Donald Royal inside.

"I didn't think (Voce) would be that good a shooter," said Coach Smith. "He didn't play quite that well, at least as an offensive threat, on the tapes I watched.

"This was a learning experience for us. I thought we responded well, particularly in light of Kenny not being here. We played with poise, but we didn't play the last minute the way I'd like to have seen them play. We can learn from that."

this is one win they won't forget for quite some time.

ner in which they roared back over the final few minutes to steal the game from the Tar Heels. Their defense kept Carolina off-balance, giving up only four points over the final six minutes, while the offense, behind David Rivers' clutch shots and some fine free-throw shooting by Voce and forward Donald Royal, came through when it was necessary.

"Notre Dame certainly had a very fine second-half performance," stated Tar Heel head coach Dean Smith. "I felt that we dominated in the first half, but they played very well at the end. I congratulate Notre Dame for its victory. It has to be exciting for them."

Smith didn't have to look into the Irish locker room to make that last prediction. But if he had he would have seen a team celebrating like it truly appreciated its moment in the limelight.

And while the remainder of the season may bring its share of disappointments, this Notre Dame team has carved its place in history.

"It's just something we're very good at here at Notre Dame - knocking off top-ranked teams," smiled Phelps.

helped key. It was a party that evoked memories of other, similar victories over top-rated teams.

Afterward, Dean Smith acknowledged the crowd but had a question for the officials.

"I'm sure Digger will talk to them," said Smith of the technical foul call. "I thought that when a technical is called because of the crowd, it's on the coach, so it would be two shots. But that wouldn't be a nice way to win a game. Until they don't throw things again, that's the way you stop it. I did hate to see them take away what I thought would be a layup at the beginning of the game.

"There's a lot of enthusiasm here, but I don't think the crowd got to us at all until the end. Our kids have been to Duke, Clemson and other places, and while they're very vocal here, they are in those places as well."

But until this season, those schools hadn't beaten North Carolina. Students elsewhere didn't have the celebration Notre Dame students got to have.

me in mind. That will help the whole team."

Not paying attention to Voce is a mistake that North Carolina head coach Dean Smith realized too late.

"Voce is a big improvement from the tapes I saw," said Smith. "He didn't even look to shoot most of the time. Now he's more offensive minded. I didn't think he'd be that good a shooter."

It wasn't always that way for Voce. Much has been made of the fact that he didn't play basketball until he was 13. Yet Voce had the potential, and Shumate, a premier center in his playing days, brought it out.

"Shumate didn't think I was working hard enough or possessed the desire," said Voce. "He spoke to me about it, and it hurt. But then I started to work harder. He's really worked on my aggressiveness and consistency."

Voce couldn't have picked a better time for his arrival on the court.

"It meant a great lot to me," Voce said of Sunday's win. "My mom and friends (in Queens, N.Y.) saw it. They had to be saying, 'What's Voce doing in South Bend?' Now they know Notre Dame is good club."

"We believe in ourselves, and this was definitely a confidence builder. We've been searching for our identity. We knew we could play. I'm not sure anybody else did."

As for Shumate, it looks as if his search for a center is over.

Irish take second in Invitational as John Carroll's depth too much

By STEVE MEGARGEER
Sports Writer

To the casual fan, Notre Dame may have looked much better than John Carroll in yesterday's National Catholic Wrestling Invitational at the ACC. Looks aren't everything.

While the Irish turned in several outstanding individual performances en route to winning four individual championships, John Carroll's balance and experience helped it eventually capture the tournament title. Notre Dame finished in second place.

"We have better people, but we just don't have enough of them. We don't have the balance they have, so we needed to win the close matches," said Irish coach Fran McCann. "Their balance was a factor, but we still had the people to win it. We just didn't do it."

Freshman 118-pound Andy Radenbaugh, and sophomores 126-pound Dave Carlin, 134-pound Jerry Durso, and 142-pound Pat Boyd won individual titles for Notre Dame. Radenbaugh, Carlin, and Durso won their final-round matches on major decisions, while Boyd took his on a pin.

John Carroll's victories were a bit on the closer side, but the team still managed to take five individual championships to emerge victorious in what was essentially a two-team race between John Carroll and Notre Dame.

"They've got four or five seniors in their lineup. I knew they'd be tough," said McCann. "They dominated this tournament for years."

It was John Carroll's ninth

Rebels win over Auburn

AUBURN, Ala. - Guard Freddie Banks scored 36 points - including 27 on 3-point field goals - and forward Armon Gilliam added 31 as third-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas defeated No. 19 Auburn 104-85 in an intersectional college basketball game yesterday.

Banks hit nine of 13 3-point attempts and 13 of 21 overall from the field as the Runnin' Rebels improved their record to 21-1.

For the game, UNLV, a Pacific Coast Athletic Conference team that was ranked No. 1 for eight weeks this season, hit 14 of 28 3-point shots.

Chris Morris and Jeff Moore led Auburn, 12-6, with 17 points apiece and Mike Jones added 16 before 12,584 fans, the second-largest basketball crowd in the Tigers history.

UNLV led 60-49 at halftime and Auburn's Frank Ford hit the first field goal of the second half with 19:04 left to cut the margin to nine.

But the Rebels outscored the Tigers of the Southeastern Conference 29-10 over the next 12 minutes to build an 89-61 lead with 9:13 remaining. During that stretch, Gilliam had nine points and Banks six.

UNLV was able to stifle the Tigers' inside game in the second half with a tight 2-3 zone defense.

championship in the last ten years. Notre Dame won the title last year to break John Carroll's string of eight consecutive championships.

Other wrestlers placing for the Irish included 150-pound junior Ron Wisniewski (third), 167-pound sophomore Chris Geneser (second), 190-pound senior Dave Helmer (third), and heavyweight freshman Mike Crouse (third).

Geneser's loss in the finals was only his third of the season, as he currently holds a record of 23-3.

"We lost a couple of tough matches. Helmer lost a close one in the semi-finals, and that hurt us," said McCann. "Chris still isn't looking really good since coming back from his injury. This could be a blessing in disguise for him. He's got to start working on some things, and he realizes it. He'll work through it. He's dedicated."

Despite having to settle for second place in the tournament, McCann was pleased with the winning individuals, particularly Durso. Durso, returning after a two-week layoff because of a shoulder injury, was named the outstanding wrestler of the tournament.

"Jerry hadn't wrestled in two weeks, and he looked like dynamite. Boyd didn't have a close match in the tournament, and I wouldn't quarrel with him being named outstanding wrestler either," said McCann. "Our first four guys (Radenbaugh, Carlin, Durso, and Boyd) are tough. I think they and Geneser can qualify for nationals. They just have to believe they can."

McCann was also pleased with the way the tournament was run as a whole.

"I'm pleased because I want to host some tournaments here in the future, and this tournament was sort of a training ground for us," said McCann. "We want to host a regional next year. I think we'll put in for it, and I'm confident we'll get it."

Notre Dame's next dual meet will be at home against Michigan State on Thursday.

Stars & Stripes sails ahead to 2-0 Cup lead

Associated Press

FREMANTLE, Aus. - Stars & Stripes, proving it can win in all winds, blew away Kookaburra III in stiff breezes yesterday for a one-minute, 10-second victory that brought the America's Cup halfway back to its home of 132 years.

The U.S. yacht took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven finals and carried skipper Dennis Conner to within two victories of redemption for his 1983 loss of the prize.

Much calmer conditions were forecast for today's third race. Kookaburra III skipper Iain Murray, feeling his boat is better suited to light, shifty winds, decided not to call an off day.

Track team beaten by Wolverines despite banner outing for Muench

By PETE GEGEN
Assistant Sports Editor

Saturday afternoon Rick Muench was having one of those days where everything he did was going right. He had taken second in the high jump with a personal best of six feet, two inches and in the long jump with a leap of 23 feet, 2 3/4 inches.

But in the triple jump, the last event to finish the meet, Muench was unknowingly jumping for an Irish team victory. Muench had finished his jumps before the results of the second-to-last event, the mile relay, were announced, which had left the Irish down by only two points. A first place in the triple jump would mean a team victory for Notre Dame.

But it was not to be. After jumping 47 feet, seven inches in the preliminary jumps, he had scratched in the finals and the Wolverines' Butch Star-nack jumped 47 feet, nine inches to take the event and the meet from the Irish.

"I scratched on my last three jumps," said Muench. "I broke down in the middle of my runs. It was just one of those things."

But in the eyes of Head Coach Joe Piane, the scratches were insignificant compared to the day Muench had.

"He just had a terrific day," said Piane. "He's not world-class, but he competes every time he's out there."

In fact, Piane had very few things to gripe about after losing to Michigan by the score of 67-64.

"I'm not going to complain," he said. "This is one of the better teams in the Big Ten, and the difference was only two inches. You know, I bet if we ran this meet again, we would win it."

The Irish jumped to a 10-point as they took each of the first four events. Shot putter Tom Kraus did not have one of his best meets but still managed to win the shot put with a toss of 51 feet, 11 3/8 inches.

Hurdler Glenn Watson then set a meet record and qualified for the IC4A's by taking the 60-yard high hurdles. His time of 7:35 also was just nine-one hundredths of a second shy of the NCAA championship qualifying standard.

"I got off to a better start," said Watson, who had been slow out of the blocks in his two previous races. "I knew (Michigan's Phil Webb) was close. I just wanted to get away from him."

Sprinter Tim Brown has also been working on his starts, and it paid off as he won the 60-yard dash in a hand-held time of 6.2 seconds.

Dan Garrett made it four in a row for Notre Dame by winning the mile run. He held off a charge by Michigan's Chris Brewster with 300 yards to go to win the race.

The Wolverines then took a large bite out of the Irish lead when they swept the 800-yard run. Notre Dame's David Warth hit the wall after leading early, and Michigan's Matt Butler, Earl Parrish, and Rob Rinck passed him to finish one-two-three. The nine-point sweep gave the Wolverines a 32-31 lead.

Omar Davidson increased Michigan's lead to two when he out-ran Notre Dame's Robert Nobles in the 600-yard dash. But Brown and Tony Ragunas got the lead back for the Irish when they finished first and third respectively in the 300-yard dash.

Michigan took the lead for good when Scott Crawford set a new meet record in the high jump with a leap of six feet, eight inches, and Rollie Hudson barely edged Notre Dame's Jeff Van Wie for an exciting conclusion to the 1000-yard

Irish distance runner Mike

O'Conner qualified for the IC4A's in the two mile with a time of 8:58.35, but he finished second to the Wolverine's Chris Brewster, who set a meet record with a time of 8:53.88.

Notre Dame almost picked up ground in the pole vault when it appeared Michigan's Dave Irvine would not clear 14 feet, six inches. But on his third attempt Irvine cleared the bar and went on to clear 15 feet to take the event. Chris Matteo and Chris Componovo finish second and third respectively for the Irish.

It appeared Michigan had wrapped up the meet when its mile relay team beat Notre Dame's. But Michigan's team was disqualified when its first two runners ran inside the inside lane. As a result, Notre Dame found itself down by only two with the triple jump results yet to come.

AFC takes defensive Pro Bowl

Associated Press

HONOLULU - John Elway threw for the game's only touchdown, and Denver Broncos teammate Karl Mecklenburg spearheaded a smothering defense to lead the AFC to a 10-6 victory over the NFC in yesterday's Pro Bowl football game.

Elway, who threw for 304 yards in the Broncos' 39-20 Super Bowl loss to the New York Giants the previous Sunday, put the AFC ahead to stay with a 10-yard touchdown pass to Todd Christensen of the Los Angeles Raiders on the final play of the first quarter.

That touchdown - and a 26-yard field goal by New England's Tony Franklin just before halftime - were set up when the NFC's return specialist, rookie Vai Sikahema of St. Louis, fumbled the ball away on punt returns.

The victory halted, at least temporarily, the NFC's domination of the AFC in recent postseason play. The National Conference had won five of the last seven NFL all-star games and five of the last six Super Bowls, the last three by wide margins.

The AFC reduced the NFC's lead in the Pro Bowl series to 10-7.

Seattle's Fredd Young recovered the first fumble by Sikahema, who had turned the ball over just twice during the regular season, at the NFC 17 to set up the touchdown.

Miami rookie linebacker John Offerdahl fell on the second Sikahema fumble at the AFC 44, setting up Franklin's field goal and a 10-0 lead.

The NFC was limited to a field goal of 38 yards by Morten Andersen in the third quarter and a 19-yarder by the New Orleans kicker in the opening seconds of the final period.

Defensive end Reggie White of Philadelphia was a standout for the NFC, logging a Pro Bowl record-tying four sacks. Although on the losing team, he was voted the game's most valuable player.

Saturday night letdown costs Irish as hockey team splits weekend set

By PETE SKIKO
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame hockey team earned a split of its two-game series with Wisconsin-Stevens Point this weekend in the team's final home series of the season.

The Irish won the hard-fought opener 2-1 Friday night behind junior Tom Mooney's third-period goal and the tenacious goaltending of junior Jeff Henderson. Head Coach Lefty Smith felt that Friday night's contest was indicative of how well his team can play on a given night.

"Friday night's result came about because the whole team hustled and played well together," said Smith, in his 19th year as head coach of the Irish. "We were finishing off our checks, and playing solid defensive hockey. Pat Foley had his usual quietly super game and I was extremely pleased with the play of Bruce Haikola who played for Lance Patten (out with an injury). Here's a kid who's battled nagging injuries and pneumonia all year and who came on Friday night to play a great game for us."

Sophomore Matt Hanzel opened the scoring for the Irish and, later, with the score tied at 1-1, Mooney pumped in the dramatic game-winner.

Unfortunately, as well as the Irish played as a team on Friday, their effort was not duplicated in the fatal first period of Saturday night's game, which saw Stevens Point roar to a 5-0 lead.

"The first period on Saturday night was just a disaster," said Smith. "It wasn't just a letdown by one or two people, it was pretty much everybody. We looked flat and our passing was not crisp at all. Once we got into the second and third periods, our collective game improved, but we had just dug ourselves too deep a hole in that first period.

"We changed goalies in the second period and our second goalie, Lance Madson, played extremely well, as did (junior) John Welsch, who hustled and played with good intensity. At times, we passed well and hit the open man, but again there seem to be too many key times when we put the puck on the wrong stick when we break down the ice. Inexperience due to the youth of our squad probably explains a lot of that, but at times it can be frustrating."

One thing that certainly did not frustrate Smith was the support his team received on both nights from the student body.

"I cannot express how much (the crowd's enthusiasm) meant to us," said Smith. "The coaching staff, the players and I want to thank everyone who came to the games for their support. It can really pick a team up and give it the edge in a close game."

Pat Foley, Roy Bemiss, and Tom Mooney did the scoring for the Irish on Saturday night.

The Irish, now 8-12, travel to Colorado Springs next weekend for a series with the Air Force.

Women's basketball team takes out frustrations on MU

By BRIAN O'GARA
Sports Writer

To most Irish basketball fans, the big game of the weekend was played yesterday afternoon in front of a capacity

ACC crowd and a nationally televised audience. To head coach Mary DiStanislao and the Notre Dame women's basketball team, there was another pretty important game played on the same court 24 hours earlier.

Saturday, the Irish ended a two-game losing streak and put together one of their finest performances of the season in a 95-60 rout of Marquette. Notre Dame was in complete control of this one from the opening tipoff as several school and personal bests were recorded.

"I think I'm going to savor this one," said DiStanislao. "Everyone came out with intensity. Everyone came out ready to play. Heidi (Bunek) played real well. Mary (Gavin) played real well. Everyone played well."

It is no secret that the Irish have been struggling this season. If the game of basketball could be compared to a jigsaw puzzle, it would be appropriate to say that the team has been unable to put all their pieces together at the same time this season. Until Saturday.

Outside shooting has been a major concern for DiStanislao since the season's beginning.

Against Marquette, the Irish had a .600 team shooting percentage, and found a red-hot shooter in freshman Annie Schwartz. Averaging five points a game, Schwartz hit nine of ten shots to lead Notre Dame with 18 points. Sophomore Diondra Toney also found her range, hitting several outside shots and finishing with 16 points.

The Irish also have struggled to control the tempo of their games. But on Saturday, junior point guard Mary Gavin had the game in her hands as she registered a version of the "triple-double" with 11 points, 10 steals and 14 assists. Gavin, already Notre Dame's all-time leader in assists with 439, ran the Irish fast break expertly, forcing Marquette turnovers and making several dazzling passes. Her 10 steals in the game is a new Notre Dame record.

With Gavin forcing turnovers from the backcourt, the Irish also played tenacious inside defense, led by Heidi Bunek's four blocked shots and 11 defensive rebounds. The Warriors shot only .377 from the floor. Only four teams have shot better than .500 against the Irish all season.

With solid outside shooting, a harassing defense and a full-steam fast break, the Irish were unstoppable. All the pieces of the puzzle were firmly in place. Their 56 first-half points, many of them coming off the fast break, were one short of the school record for most points in a half, set in 1985 against Loyola.

"When we got the ball we just went with it," said DiStanislao. "It's funny - our team numbers go down and we decide to pick up the tempo a little bit. If you want them to play more aggressively you have to reward them and let them go."

The Irish now sport a 5-12 record as they head into Tuesday's 7:30 p.m. contest with Western Michigan.

Belles improve to 5-2 with first home win

By JANE SHEA
Sports Writer

The Saint Mary's swimming team won its first dual meet at home Saturday when it defeated both the University of Chicago and Olivet College by scores of 80 to 48 and 104 to 8 to raise its record to 5-2.

"I was very excited about the win," said Head Coach Nancy Jo Kuzmitz after the meet.

Sophomores Peggy Halloran and Kiernan Walter came in first and second place in the 1000-yard freestyle with times of 12:01.31 and 15:07.88.

In the 200-yard freestyle, Julie Cournutey, a freshman, was first with a time of 2:16.31 while Sara Maurer, a sophomore, came in second.

The 100-yard backstroke was won by senior captain Patty Juckniess with a time of 1:11.36 and second place was captured by junior Julie Veselik. Junior Magan Rafferty won the 200-yard backstroke.

Margaret Meanion, a senior, won the 100-yard breast stroke and was second in the 200-yard breast stroke with times of 1:18.76 and 2:53.48 respectively.

The Belles came in first and third in the 50-yard freestyle with the help of freshman Erin Tierney, who had a time of :26.82, and junior Mary Beth Hogan, who had a time of :30.70.

Tierney and Cournutey also took first and third in the 100-yard freestyle with times of 1:01.20 and 1:03.61.

Tanya Reeves, a sophomore, won both the 100 and the 200-yard fly with times of 1:10.25 and 2:37.17.

"Peggy Halloran was outstanding in both the events she swam in," said Kuzmitz.

Halloran had first in the 1000-yard freestyle and the 500-yard free.

Saint Mary's took first and second in the 400-yard freestyle relay with times of 4:07.13 and 4:26.54. The first place team included Rafferty, Juckniess, Tierney, and Halloran. Both teams qualified for the nationals.

The Belles next meet is Tuesday when they take on Kalamazoo at home.

Notre Dame knocks off North Carolina, 60-58

Voce's emerging offense keys Irish inside production

By DENNIS CORRIGAN
Sports Editor

After Sunday's win was safely in the record books, Irish head coach Digger Phelps said that Assistant Coach John Shumate had found a copy of the Doobie Brothers' "Long Train Running," a song Shumate and his teammates had used to psyche themselves up to play UCLA. The Irish used that song to get themselves pumped up to upset North Carolina.

For Shumate, it was another find that really keyed the Irish win - Gary Voce. In the past eight days, Voce's play has been nothing short of amazing.

Last Saturday, Voce scored six points and grabbed 13 rebounds against UCLA. He followed that performance with 14 points and 12 rebounds against Dayton last Tuesday. Just two days later, he had six and eight. Sunday, he had the game of his career for the third time in a week by scoring 15 points, including the game-sealing free throws, and hauling down 10 boards, including the one which sent him to the line for the final shots. NBC named him the game's MVP.

Now Voce has become a threat inside which opens up a new look in the Irish offensive scheme.

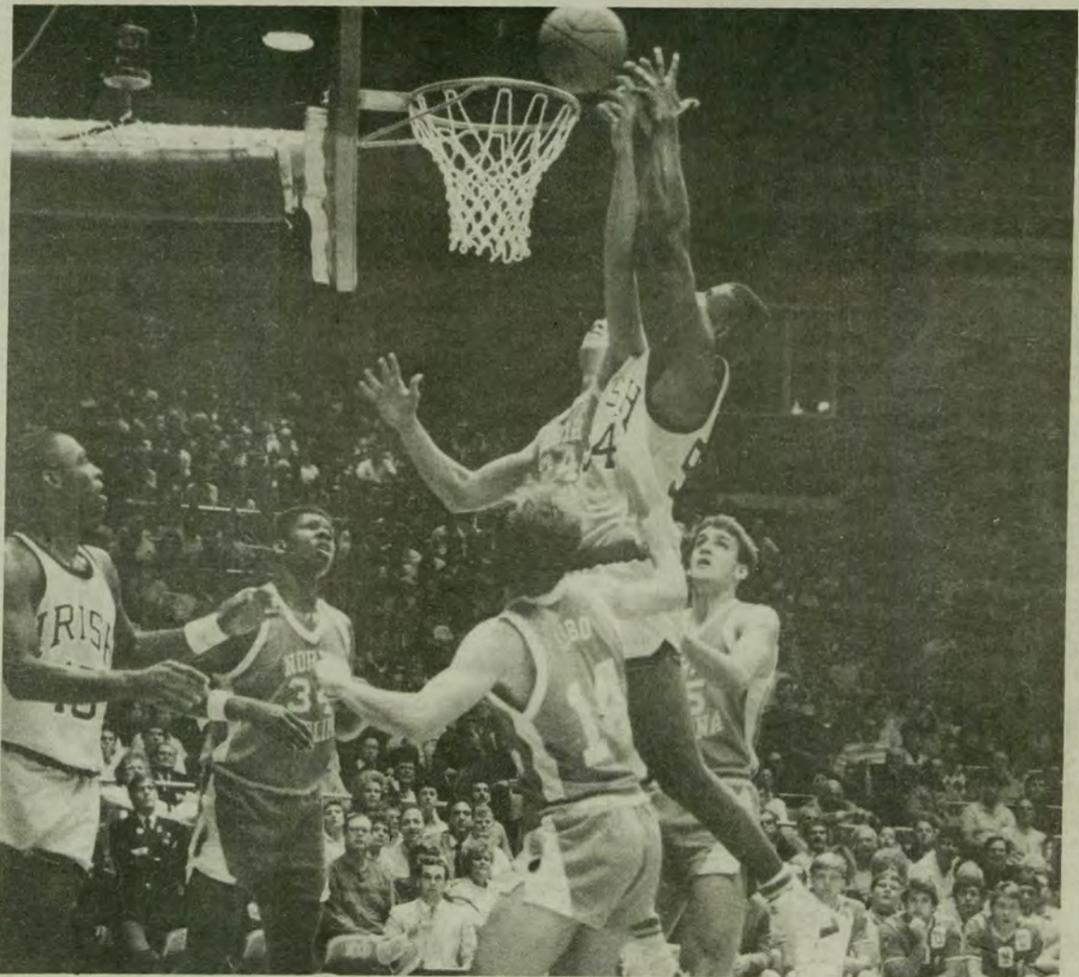

"I told Gary two weeks ago after the loss to West Virginia that he was going to have to step out and shoot from the baseline," said Phelps. "We did that against UCLA, we did that this week and we did it today. He can stick that shot. That's a new dimension in our offense."

With the coaches showing confidence in him, Voce has shown confidence in himself.

"I felt I could score if I wanted," he said. "Lately, Coach has told me it was OK to take the outside shot more because teams were not playing me as an outside player. That was putting more pressure on the guards. I've always felt I could play the post."

"I think maybe other teams will see this and say Voce is a threat now. Whether I get the ball in the post a lot or not, the other teams will have to keep

Irish win makes ACC crowd go crazy, almost too crazy

By DENNIS CORRIGAN

The Notre Dame student body had come under fire of late for its less-than-enthusiastic support. Sunday the students put that notion to rest. If anything, they were over-enthusiastic.

"When it's time for these moments," said Irish head coach Digger Phelps, "(the students) don't let you down. Gary Voce was named MVP, but I think the second votes went to the student body. They were just awesome. That's the best I've seen since 1974."

The students, as is traditional for big games, stood throughout and created a deafening roar from the time the Irish stepped on the floor for pregame warm-ups. They had jeers for each of the Tar Heel starters when they were introduced.

"Pat Walsh, one of our student managers, came up with those introductions that you see in the seats," explained Phelps. "He was really upset with the students so he came up with them, which is fine with me. He really got the students fired up at the Marquette game."

When Donald Royal canned the game's first bucket, a blizzard of toilet paper hit the court along with a few of the 10,000 yellow ND placards. Phelps warned the crowd that a repeated display would cost his squad a technical foul. Almost disastrously, his plea went unheeded.

"They warned me the first time that the next time something came out it, it would be a technical," said Phelps. "I had to get to the PA to warn the students. When something else came out, I said to (referee) Joe Forte, 'That was a North Carolina fan.'"

With five seconds remaining in the game and Notre Dame up 58-55, the crowd began to celebrate, and the signs rained down on the court. With Voce heading to the line, referee Gerry Donaghy whistled the Irish for a technical. "It would have been a tough situation to to have your students lose the game for you," said

Phelps. "It's just a question of who did it and why they did it. From that standpoint, we got away with it, but I think the students will be upset with each other."

Voce hit both ends of the one-and-one to run the lead to five and keep the Irish on top. North Carolina's Jeff Lebo hit the technical shot and a last-second basket to end the game. With that, the Notre Dame faithful took to the floor to celebrate the victory they had

Comeback victory even sweeter after previous last-minute losses

By MARTY BURNS

Already on the season they had been blown out. In another game, they blew a huge lead in the last few minutes and lost. They came up short in two other close attempts at an upset. They were at times snakebitten, at times careless, and often painfully dull.

But Sunday afternoon, they were the best team in college basketball - at least for one day.

This Notre Dame basketball team, which many felt lacked the talent and chemistry which characterized many of the past great Irish teams, had done what only five other teams in Notre Dame's history had been able to do on the hardwood of the ACC: They had knocked off the No. 1 team in the country.

And when it was all over, and the crowd had spilled onto the floor to help the Irish players cut down the nets, the scoreboard stated the unbelievable: ND 60, No. Carolina 58.

"We just really wanted to win this game," said Irish coach Digger Phelps in a post-game conference room located safely away from the melee on the floor. "We've lost four games this year in the last minute, but I told the kids, 'You can play with anybody', and today was an opportunity for us to go for our moment."

And what a moment it was. The Irish trailed the contest at one point 32-16, and found themselves down 53-44 with only six minutes to go. In addition, junior guard David Rivers and junior center Gary Voce were playing with four fouls apiece.

"We didn't crack when it was time for us to crack and that's a sign of maturity," noted Phelps. "We did a better job of controlling their trap in the second half and we started to go inside more."

The task of breaking the Tar Heels' swarming half-court trap (which yielded only three turnovers in the second half compared to eight in the first) fell to Rivers, while the usually-timid Voce erupted inside to power the Irish offense.

"I think this whole year we've been searching for an identity," said Voce. "We've had a lot of heartaches this year, a lot of close games that we've lost. I think we felt like we really needed to win a big game. We knew all along we could play, but we needed this for our confidence."

If anything should be able to give the Irish confidence as they head into the homestretch of the season and their now almost-assured NCAA Tournament bid, it should be the man-
