Reagan declares dollar has fallen to lowest level

Associated Press

WASHINGTON- President Reagan, seeking to shore up the embattled U.S. dollar, declared Tuesday that the currency had fallen enough and that his administration is "not doing anything to bring it down."

Reagan's remarks, seeming to contradict recent suggestions by other officials that the administration would let the dollar fall, helped fuel a rebound in foreign exchange markets, where the dollar had plunged to new 40-year lows.

"I don't look for a further decline, don't want a further decline from where it is right now," Reagan told reporters in off-the-cuff remarks at the start of a meeting with visiting Israeli President Chaim Herzog.

A weaker dollar makes U.S. goods more competitive abroad but reduces Americans' purchasing power and standard of living. Too sharp a plunge can rekindle inflation and drive away foreign investments needed to finance the federal budget deficit.

Although Reagan's comments buoyed markets, at least temporarily, analysts suggested the remarks did not necessarily signal a shift in U.S. policy. They said the administration may have little choice but to accept further declines in the dollar, despite criticism from Europe and Japan.

The alternative is raising U.S. interest rates, a course neither the White House nor the Federal Reserve Board seem likely to embrace, the analysts said.

Even as the president sought to bolster the dollar, his new commerce secretary, C. William Verity, said the markets should set the proper level for the dollar.

"We can do an awful lot of things, and we probably will, but in the end it is the marketplace that will determine how far the dollar will fall if it will fall any further. And I happen to be a believer in markets," Verity said in a question session at the National Press Club after his first major speech as commerce secretary.

The dollar gained ground after Reagan's statement, rising to 134.15 Japanese yen in New York from 133.60 yen in earlier trading. The dollar closed in New York on Monday at 134.18 yen and fell in Tokyo on Tuesday to 133.65 yen, the first time it has ever tumbled below the 134-yen level.

Lay Catholics advocate more dialogue

By REGIS COCCIA
Assistant News Editor

A conference of four Catholic lay leaders said Tuesday night that the Vatican should continue consultation with Catholics worldwide regarding the role of the laity in ministry.

The symposium, the first of its kind at Notre Dame, was intended to promote awareness of lay issues and dialogue with church leaders following last month's Vatican synod on the laity, said Father Robert Pelton.

"I think it was a good and appropriate follow-through on the synod, which just terminated," said Pelton, director of Notre Dame's Institute for Pastoral and Social Ministry, which sponsored the event.

Pelton said a videotape of the symposium will be aired nationally by the National Catholic Television Network in about two weeks.

Donna Hanson, chairperson of the U.S. Bishop's Committee on the laity, spoke on the importance of the issue of dialogue between the Church and its lay members. She has been a part of that dialogue herself, speaking to the pope during his recent U.S. visit.

"Eight of 11 (lay) discussion groups in San Francisco this year chose to talk about the relationship between laity and clergy," Hanson said. "This symposium at Notre Dame is something I see as tremendous to continue this dialogue."

Holland, founder of the American Catholic Lay Network and a sponsor of a conference for lay Catholics in Rome during the recent synod, said laity in the American church must work to promulgate unity with laity in other cultures.

"I think it's very important to open ourselves up to other cultures, particularly across ideologies in the wide range of cultures," said Holland. "We do need to be careful, especially in world cultures. We carry a lot of weight," he said. "We're an important part of the Church."

Other panelists in the symposium included: Patricia Crowley, co-founder of the worldwide Christian Family Movement and member of the first couple to receive Notre Dame's Laetare Medal; and Loretta Jancoski, theologian and visiting scholar at Notre Dame.

Panel discusses AIDS prevention

By KATHLEEN CROOKS
News Staff

A panel of speakers stressed the need for protection against AIDS in a discussion entitled "Sex on Campus" at Theodore's Monday.

All the speakers said the most important thing to know about AIDS is how to prevent it.

Several methods are available to protect oneself from AIDS infection, according to Dr. James Moriarity of University Health Services. They include having sex with only one partner, avoiding anal intercourse, and using contraceptives such as condoms, spermicidal jellies, and diaphragms, he said.

Sally Coleman, a nurse at the infirmary, said the infirmary is going to start a support group for victims of infectious diseases. She said the group is to be called "Life Raft" and would provide total confidentiality. The group is scheduled to begin meeting in January.

A victim of AIDS calling himself "Rick" listed symptoms generally associated with AIDS. These include flaking skin, insomnia, night sweats, and significant weight loss.

"I don't want anybody to go through what I am going through right now," he said, giving this as his reason for wanting to speak to people about AIDS.

A second victim, who identified himself as "Allan," described his illness, telling the audience about his weekly hospital visits. He also described how he contracted the AIDS virus through sexual contact in 1983 at the age of 23.

Dr. Robert Hunt, a specialist in infectious diseases, noted that the medical community has been unable to find a cure for the disease, only methods of treatment for the symptoms.

Father David Tyson, vice president for student affairs, said that in a community like Notre Dame it is important to emphasize both individual and public health when considering infectious diseases.

At the University, the primary concern would be to help the individual deal with the disease spiritually, emotionally, and physically, while protecting the Notre Dame community, said Tyson.

Chivalry in the 1980's: Frankly, my dear...

"Guys at Notre Dame are so rude. What ever happened to chivalry? Where are the guys who threw their coats over puddles and spent evenings serenading their girlfriends?" remarked a friend of mine at dinner the other night.

All I could muster up in defense of males at Notre Dame was the tired cliché, "Don't you think you're being a little demanding? Besides, chivalry is not dead."

"No, I hate to disappoint you, but it died years ago," she replied.

Now I was on the spot. I wasn't prepared to defend ye ol' cliché. After a few silent seconds all I could come up with was, "No, it's still around; it's just harder to find. Modern society complicates it too much."

That, thank God, was enough to satisfy her for the duration of the meal. I don't know why she didn't ask, "How do you mean complicates it?" It's just as well, because I didn't have an answer for it.

With the thought of chivalry still on my mind, I made an effort to open a door for my companion on our way out of the dining hall. I was confronted with the dreaded double door dilemma: How do you open the first set of doors and get to the second set without running or having the woman wait?

All of a sudden I realized that I had a reason why chivalry is more difficult -- doors probably weren't as close together in the old days. Two days went by without further examples of chivalry's difficulty, and I was giving up hope of finding more. That night, however, I hit a gold mine.

Some friends and I went out for dinner with our dates before a SYR. Upon arriving at our table, I pulled out the chair for my date. After that show of chivalry I tried to push the chair in, but the chair wouldn't move. I'm hardly accusing my date of being heavyset, but she obviously didn't realize that it would be of immense help if she did not let all her weight rest on the chair. I had found my second reason -- women today are not as prepared for chivalrous deeds.

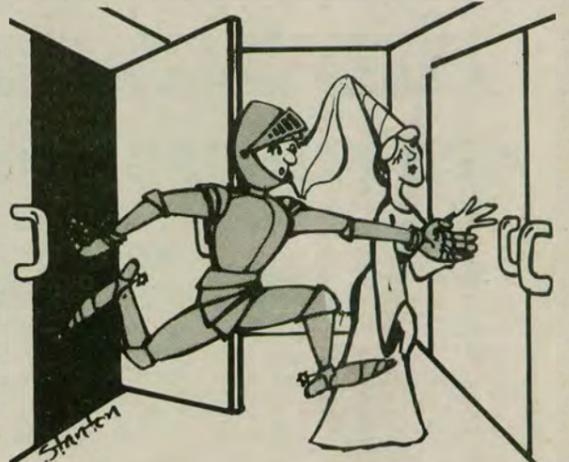

After dinner I paid for the both of us. I was happy to do it. All of a sudden I realized what a long-term financial commitment a steady girlfriend would be in college. I'd have to pay for a lot of meals and flowers if I wanted to treat her the way I thought she deserved.

In the middle of my financial sorrow, I realized that I had found reason number three college students cannot afford to be overly chivalrous, thus making chivalry appear less often than some guys would like.

I was really getting carried away with this renewed interest in being chivalrous. Women were really charmed with the extra attention.

Chris Donnelly

Assistant Viewpoint Editor

About two days later I discovered problem number four. By this time I'd become overzealous in my attempts to be chivalrous. I spotted a woman carrying a large load of bags, and I offered to help carry them.

"What, do you think women are inferior to men?" she said curtly.

I was taken aback. "I was just trying to help," I replied in my defense.

She only said, "Oh, so you think women are weaker than men."

It was no use. I had run into an avid feminist. Although I must admit she probably didn't need the help, the encounter left an impression on me. From then on I was more wary of what I did and for whom I did it. Whose dinner do I pay for? Whom do I open doors for? This was yet another difficulty with being chivalrous -- you don't know how some women will respond to your actions.

A week had passed, and I found myself walking back from dinner with the girl who had started this whole chivalry problem. As we entered her dorm I opened the first set of doors for her, and I just made it to the second set without looking rushed. Despite our conversation a week ago, she didn't seem to notice this chivalrous act. After we were inside she turned to me and said, "My girlfriends and I were discussing your remark about chivalry the other day. What do you mean by more complicated?"

"Well, let me tell ya . . ."

Reagan meets with possible court nominee Kennedy

Associated Press

WASHINGTON- Judge Anthony Kennedy's selection to the Supreme Court appeared all but certain Tuesday, but White House officials went to unusual lengths to guard against the failures that brought down President Reagan's previous two choices.

Administration officials arranged courtesy calls with leading senators for Kennedy amid Republican bickering over the defeat of Robert Bork and the withdrawal of Douglas Ginsburg.

In a Senate speech, moderate Republican Sen. William Cohen compared conservatives' criticism of White House chief of staff Howard Baker to a mugging "on the back stairs of the White House."

On Tuesday, Cohen, R-Maine, said, "The truth is that Howard Baker was shoved overboard by the ideologically pure because he was recommending a 'confirmable conservative,'" adding, "That phrase suggested compromise or, worse, appeasement."

Reagan met for a half-hour Monday evening at the presidential residence with Kennedy, a federal appellate judge from Sacramento, Calif., spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said. The nomination announcement would be forthcoming before the week was out, he said.

A face-to-face session with the president is customarily the final step before such an announcement. But Fitzwater said it had been agreed that "more consultations would take place" first, particularly with members of Congress.

Kennedy, 51, was accompanied to the White House by Baker and Attorney General Edwin Meese, two top advisers who reportedly have disagreed over strategy and nominees for the seat that has remained vacant for more than four months.

Meese and other conservatives are widely reported to have persuaded Reagan two weeks ago to select Ginsburg for the court seat after the Senate voted down Bork.

Baker is said to have favored Kennedy, and he has been accused by conservatives of undermining Ginsburg when an uproar followed Ginsburg's admission he smoked marijuana in the 1960s and 1970s.

Cohen said the conservatives took the view that in Ginsburg, "We've got a man who will make the Bork haters beg for a chance to recant."

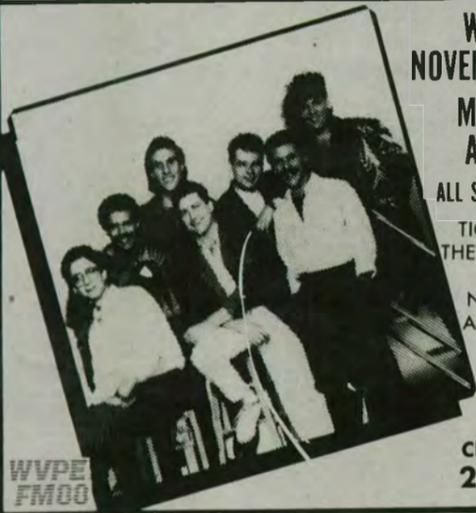

But the Maine senator said that after the marijuana disclosure, it "was a group of conservatives who gathered on the floor and came to the conclusion that Judge Ginsburg had to go, not any liberals or not any moderates."

Goldrick said students must pay $1,400 for the damage, according to Bob Daley, co-chairman of HPC.

"The disagreement comes over who should be responsible—HPC, Student Senate, the individual classes, or a combination," said Daley.

In other business, the HPC is organizing a Sports Trivia Contest next week. One representative chosen from each dorm will compete for three positions on the final team. The three winners will receive an all-expense-paid trip to Florida, where they will compete against teams from thirty schools in the Superbowl Sports Trivia Contest sponsored by the firm OCC Productions.

Guest speaker Mary Berger of the Foreign Relations Committee in Student Government discussed an upcoming newsletter for students studying abroad. The newsletter will consist of general dorm news and personal classified ads; it will be sent to students in all of the overseas academic programs.

Another guest speaker discussed a weeklong "Designated Driver Awareness" program sponsored by the senior class to help prevent drunk driving. The program provides designated drivers who show a special key with a complimentary soda at participating bars and restaurants in the South Bend area. The special keys will be distributed to all students during lunch at the dining halls Friday, Nov. 13 and Monday, Nov. 16.

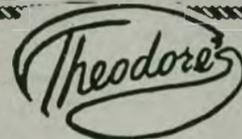

Margo Kirchner, president of Badin Hall, speaking on behalf of the Logan Center of South Bend, said "The Logan Center is asking students to donate their student Alabama tickets. The tickets would enable the retarded students enrolled at the center to attend the game." Tickets will be accepted Nov. 11, 12, and 13 during dinner at the dining halls.

Mary Shaw, a nurse at the Clinic for Sexually Transmitted Diseases in South Bend, said the clinic has already administered over one thousand AIDS tests and emphasized the discreet nature of the tests and the clinic.

According to Shaw, it takes about two and a half weeks to get the results of the tests administered at the clinic. Hunt described another set of tests which take 3 to 12 weeks before results are available.

The program commenced with "Beyond Fear," a videotape from the American Red Cross on AIDS.

Illegal solicitation increasing

By SUSY PASQUINELLI
News Staff

The number of arrests by Security of people illegally soliciting on University property is increasing, said Patricia Lyons, Notre Dame's assistant general counsel.

Security has found a growing number of unauthorized "entrepreneurs" in the parking lots surrounding the Stadium during home football games, said Rex Rakow, director of Notre Dame Security. These people solicit fans to purchase an array of products such as hats, stickers, footballs, and jerseys bearing unlicensed Notre Dame logos, he said.

They are selling their goods in increasing quantities at home football games, basketball games, and special events at the Joyce ACC such as Wrestlemania, said Lyons.

People found by Security to be selling these unauthorized products are issued non-contractual notices for illegally soliciting on University property, according to Rakow. Repeated offenses following this warning lead to arrest on the grounds of trespassing on private property.

The goods bearing the unauthorized logos are confiscated. The perpetrators are taken downtown, and a complaint is filed with the South Bend police.

Those currently authorized to sell official Notre Dame products include the Hammes Notre Dame Bookstore, about sixty manufacturers licensed to merchandise the goods in retail stores year-round, and roughly two hundred recognized student groups, according to Lyons.

The Notre Dame logo, the University's "ND" insignia, the Leprechaun and the "Fighting Irish" slogan are among the Notre Dame regalia which are copyrighted, according to Rakow. Any unauthorized use of these is considered copyright infringement, he said.

'Carnival of Careers' coming

By KATIE KEARNEY
Assistant Saint Mary's Editor

More than 90 alumnae and representatives from graduate schools, volunteer programs, non-profit organizations, government agencies and employer groups will attend Saint Mary's Carnival of Careers.

"This event is designed to introduce students to professionals who are excited and knowledgeable about their jobs, careers and work settings and to educate them about the world beyond Saint Mary's," said Jeff Roberts, Saint Mary's coordinator of placement services and assistant director of counseling and career development.

"We extended over 600 invitations to people that represent different careers to educate, inspire and fire up our students," said Roberts. "We believe this is the best way for students to get direction in their lives in a way that is convenient, doesn't cost anything and doesn't take a lot of time."

The Carnival is scheduled to take place Thursday from 3-6 p.m. in the Angela Athletic Facility.

Roberts said the timing of this event is important because students are beginning to select majors and courses for next semester, and information from the representatives could prove beneficial.

"The Carnival of Careers is also designed to showcase the academic programs of Saint Mary's College," Roberts said. "This is an opportunity for our students to teach the representatives the value of the Saint Mary's education. If the representatives have a good experience here, they're bound to tell their employers and make it easier for our students when they are looking for jobs."

This is the fourth year the event has been held, and it has grown immensely, said Roberts. The first year, only 40 organizations attended the day, but the popularity of the event among students has caused it to expand.

Roberts said he believes he and the sponsors "have found the form to help students and educate employers about our students. That is why we've continued to put the program on and why it has expanded the way it has."

"This year more than ever a strong student turnout is important," Roberts said. "Since twice as many employers are attending this year, the potential for making a good impact is greater."

"This is a student-organized event, financed by students for students," Roberts added.

The primary sponsors are the Saint Mary's student government, senior board, junior board, sophomore board, student nurse's association and the counseling and career development center. Said Roberts, "The spirit of this event is the students."

Roberts said this event is open to all Saint Mary's and Notre Dame students and he encourages everyone to come and meet people who are in the business world and listen to their ideas. Roberts said the representatives will tell it like it is.

"If people are not hiring, we want them in here to tell our people that," Roberts said. "The news may not always be good, but our people have to know that so they can adapt their plans."

Petition proposes library reforms

By MIMI TUOHY
Staff Reporter

Three programs for the Cushwa-Leighton Library at Saint Mary's were proposed in a petition distributed at the Saint Mary's Board of Governance meeting Monday night by Julie Parrish, vice president for academic affairs.

and Career Development Commissioner Mary Welsh said that the Carnival of Careers will be Thursday, Nov. 12, from 3-6 p.m. in Angela Athletic Facility. Volunteer organizations and businesses pertaining to all majors will be represented.

"We are looking for a good turnout. Many interesting companies are coming, and I hope the student body will take advantage of this opportunity," said Welsh.

Requested are opening the library at 11 a.m. on Sunday, staffing the circulation desk with a student or graduate student and conducting a survey of students using the library after 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

The petition will be circulated in the dormitories until Thursday, Parrish said. They will be available for signatures in the dining hall on Friday.

"This (the library schedule) is a continuing problem," said Student Government President Eileen Hetterich. "It was a problem two years ago, and it is still one today. We would appreciate the help of the student body in finally solving the situation concerning the library hours," she said.

In other business, Counseling

Hetterich announced that next week the student government will present a slide show and a movie showing how the people of Chile are affected by the recent poll tax. The slide show will be presented Monday afternoon in Stapleton Lounge of LeMans Hall. Also Monday night the movie "Missing" will be shown in Carroll Hall at 7 p.m. The Chilean project will conclude on Tuesday with a mass in LeMans chapel at 12:15 p.m.

"This is our way of doing something for people in need," said Hetterich. "We hope that the student body will participate in the events that we have planned," she said.

Major Solidarity leader arrested

Associated Press

WARSAW, Poland- Police Tuesday captured Kornel Morawiecki, the last major underground Solidarity leader and a fugitive since the 1981 martial law crackdown.

Morawiecki, leader of a militant Solidarity faction known as Fighting Solidarity, was arrested at an apartment in Wroclaw in southwestern Poland, government spokesman Jerzy Urban announced.

Arrested with him was a 46-year-old woman identified only as Hanna L., Urban said.

He said Morawiecki was being investigated on suspicion of smuggling and possessing false identification papers.

Morawiecki's daughter, Anna, said from her home in Wroclaw that she had learned of the arrest. She said her brother, Mateusz Morawiecki, a university student, also was seized.

She said security agents from the Interior Ministry searched her father's home for six hours after the arrest.

Morawiecki, a physicist formerly employed as a researcher at Wroclaw Technical University, became active in opposition politics after university protests in 1968, his daughter said.

Morawiecki was on trial on charges of attacking Poland's foreign alliances but not in custody on Dec. 13, 1981, when Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski imposed martial law. He happened to be out when security agents came to arrest him, and has been a fugitive ever since, his daughter said.

Even at 71, Frankie still does it 'My Way'

TOM McDONALD
accent writer

Most 71 year-old men are content spending a Tuesday evening curled up in a Lazy-Boy reading the latest Follet novel, puffing a cigar and sipping brandy. The 71 year-old, tuxedo clad gentleman who turned up at Notre Dame's ACC last night is simply not content with such relaxation. For Frank Sinatra still loves the spotlight, the stage, the microphone, and yes, of course, the ladies.

Notre Dame is certainly an interesting place for Sinatra to turn up. Sinatra's sporadically few performances during the last few years have been reserved for places like Carnegie Hall, or at the Stardust in Las Vegas. Nonetheless, an arena full of curious fans were glad to pay the $27.50 to get a glimpse of the controversial singer known simply as "The Voice."

The scene at the ACC was tame, and in stark contrast to previous Sinatra settings in Las Vegas. The audience was primarily comprised of older patrons, and for the first time I almost felt uncomfortable in a concert setting. I guess I know how my mother felt when I took her to an Echo and the Bunnymen show. No fights broke out with Sinatra's burly bodyguards, no drinks were thrown in the faces of reporters, and no sleek, blond-haired vixens sporting minks dotted the front row.

Sinatra opened up with a version of Stevie Wonder's "You Are The Sunshine of My Life", and demonstrated the impeccable phrasing that made him famous. Having lost much of the range of his early days, fans didn't seem to care. Backed by a superb orchestra, and an excellent sound system, Sinatra's baritone voice, periodically lacquered with whiskey, hit the correct notes on "Mack the Knife," "For Once In My Life," and "New York, New York."

Saying that, "I finally got to Notre Dame," Sinatra spoke about his time growing up in Hoboken, New Jersey, and that "drinking and singing" was still a great way to live.

Hampered by a knee injury, Sinatra required assistance to get on stage, but once finding it, quickly established his charismatic rhythm. At 71, Sinatra has mellowed with age, and proved to his audience that he has not lost that remarkable presence that has characterized his half-century career.

Despite the volatile and sometimes unsavory events that have peppered his past, Sinatra remains the consummate performer and boasts an impressive resume of credentials. Sinatra has sold millions of records and has appeared in over 50 films, winning an Academy Award for his performance in "From Here To Eternity."

Near the end of a distinguished career, it certainly was a pleasure to have the Chairman of the Board drop by for a visit to Notre Dame, providing a welcomed freshness to the likes of Whitesnake and Def Leppard.

As one neighboring fan

The Observer/Suzanne Poch
Striking that classic Sinatra pose, Frank lit up the JACC last night in his first ever appearance at Notre Dame.

pointed out, Sinatra did not require such distractions as smoke, lasers, or in the case of the Beastie Boys, caged women to work his magic. Concluding the 70 minute show with two of his trademark hits, "Strangers in the Night," and "My Way," Sinatra proved to his audience that a 71 year-old man can still belt out a tune. Leaving the lone microphone on stage, Sinatra bowed to his fans, thanked his orchestra and retired into the night.

How's your news sense?

Associated Press

How much do you remember about the stories that have been in the news recently? If you score fewer than five correct answers in this quiz, you have been spending too much time on the crossword. If you get eight or more right, you rate an "A."

1. Among results of the elections around the country was the re-election of W. Wilson Goode as mayor of: (a) Boston; (b) Philadelphia; (c) San Francisco.

2. Kentucky elected a new governor, the Democratic candidate: (a) Ray Mabus; (b) John Harper; (c) Wallace Wilkinson.

3. In a speech marking the 70th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution and commenting on the Soviet Union's history, Mikhail S. Gorbachev restored some official respectability to: (a) Stalin; (b) Trotsky; (c) Khrushchev.

4. Saying that the sanctions he imposed had caused Japan to stop dumping computer chips on world markets, President Reagan: (a) ordered the removal of all economic sanctions, saying they were "counterproductive"; (b) insisted all economic sanctions remain until Tokyo gives American products free access to Japanese markets; (c) ordered the lifting of $84 million of the sanctions.

5. The House voted 254-158 to: (a) prohibit use of lie detectors by most private employers; (b) permit unrestricted use of lie detectors; (c) allow continued use of lie detectors under strict new federal guidelines.

6. The White House announced that Ann Dore McLaughlin would replace William E. Brock, who resigned in order to manage Bob Dole's presidential campaign, as Secretary of: (a) Labor; (b) Commerce; (c) the Interior.

7. The Labor Department said that in the third quarter of the year, the nation more than doubled the productivity improvement of the last year. Its efficiency in producing goods and services increased at an annual rate of: (a) 2.7 percent; (b) 4.7 percent; (c) 3.17 percent.

8. The Rev. Jerry Falwell announced that he would: (a) leave his television ministry and devote all his time to political campaigning and the Moral Majority; (b) retire from politics, resign his ministry and become a missionary; (c) give up his post as president of the Moral Majority and return full time to his church and television ministry.

9. Wade Roberts, a U.S. Army private, was in the news. He: (a) appeared in Moscow after a disappearance of seven months and said he was defecting to the Soviet Union; (b) returned to this country after having defected to the Soviet Union seven months ago; (c) was arrested in West Germany and charged with having spied for the Soviet Union.

10. In a worldwide survey of almost 30,000 passengers who fly often, the highest ratings went to: (a) American Airlines; (b) Swissair; (c) Air Canada.

No really, they're for real

accent writer

All right, I've been getting a lot of questions about the WVFI Top Ten every week, i.e. "Come on, you're making up these band names yourself, aren't you, Ann?" Well the answer is "no," and to prove it, I am going to give you a little information about this week's Top Ten which might make them seem more real to you.

The BoDeans are from Waukesha, Wisconsin and recently released their second album, Outside Looking In. The song "Only Love" is the first single off that album. You might also have heard of the BoDeans because they were the opening act for U2 all fall. They're sort of a country-sounding rock band with lots of guitars.

Paul Kelly and the Messengers are from that musical mecca Australia, and "Before Too Long" is their first single. It features good harmonies and melodic "R.E.M.ish" guitars.

Philadelphia's The Dead Milkmen score big with "Instant Club Hit" off their third LP entitled Bucky Fellini. These guys are very satirical and hilarious as they cut down basically all aspects of society with catchy music.

"Sweet Fire of Love" is by Robbie Robertson, former vocalist for The Band, a '60's group which played alongside the likes of Bob Dylan. U2 provides backing instruments and vocals here and the resulting sound is very balanced and soulful.

England's Aztec Camera had not released anything in four years, but they come back now with "Deep and Wide and Tall." The song is pop, but not too sweet. Let's just say it's "pop"-ular.

"Everything's Explodin'" by The Flaming Lips is one of those all-too-rare songs which become very popular, even though the band is virtually unknown. The Flaming Lips really rock out and could be called a hardcore band. They're loud!

Everyone knows Bryan Ferry, the legendary singer from Roxy Music. "The Right Stuff" is part of his current solo effort, and it was cowritten by former Smiths guitarist Johnny Marr. It is upbeat and typical of Ferry and Roxy Music. "The Right Stuff" is good stuff.

"Fangs" is a song by the Minneapolis foursome Trip Shakespeare, who took Notre Dame by storm last Friday night. It features good guitars as well as good harmonies by three of the members.

The Edge of U2 took off for awhile and did a solo movie soundtrack project. "Rowena's Theme" is a cut off that soundtrack. It is not much like a U2 song at all in that there are no vocals, but the guitar work is very beautiful.

"Three Cards" is by a group called The Balancing Act, and this band is one of the up and coming names in college music today. Critics love them and obviously, so do WVFI listeners! Well, that's it! Hope it helped.

Goals of club do not threaten others

Over the last few years, the issue of homosexuality has gradually come to be seen as a topic worthy of discussion by members of the Notre Dame and St. Mary's community, creating tensions between religious beliefs and the realization that many of the community's members are gay or lesbian. Rather than tackling this difficult issue directly, the community has, for the most part, decided to ignore it in the hope it would disappear.

Michael Dini

On Nov. 3, however, the Observer, on its own initiative, took a bold step toward resolving these tensions, challenging all of us to examine and discuss homosexuality in an intelligent and open-minded manner. The Observer proposed that official recognition of Gays and Lesbians at Notre Dame/St. Mary's College is consistent with the overall Catholic foundation of the University and is, in fact, essential to academic freedom. This recognition would not imply acceptance by the administration of a homosexual lifestyle.

The members of GLNDSMC would like to extend their thanks to the Observer for its support. The Nov. 3 editorial indicates a genuine effort to understand and discuss homosexuality with the sense of intelligence, maturity and compassion it deserves. The Observer has come to understand the goals of GLNDSMC and should be commended for its work.

In light of subsequent columns and letters, however, it is evident both that there are still those who imagine gay/lesbian people in terms of unidimensional stereotypes as well as those who have little or no idea of the purposes of GLNDSMC. If an appropriate discussion is to occur concerning the recognition of our organization, it is necessary to define that for which we stand.

First, to become aware of the struggle and suffering that many gay and lesbian persons face in coming to grips with their sexual orientation in the homophobic atmosphere at Notre Dame and St. Mary's, GLNDSMC seeks to support those who are gay or lesbian or who are examining their sexual orientation, and does so with the assurance of confidentiality.

Second, GLNDSMC seeks the ongoing education of its members and of the non-gay members of the community concerning gay and lesbian issues. Educational efforts in the past have included public lectures on campus by such speakers as John Fortunato (on the spiritual journeys of Christian gays and lesbians), Sr. Jeannine Gramick (on homosexuals and dissenters: can Catholics be either or both?) and Ann Mueller (on the important roles played by parents of lesbians and gays). On Nov. 21, Sue Hammersmith, Dean of Arts & Sciences at Ferris State College in Michigan (formerly of the Kinsey Institute at I.U. Bloomington) will speak on the sociology of homosexuality at 7:00 p.m. in 117 Haggar. Over the past two years, GLNDSMC has provided speakers for classes on both campuses. We believe that in order to bring about an atmosphere free of prejudice, education is essential.

Third, GLNDSMC provides opportunities for gay and lesbian persons to socialize and get to know one another in an environment free of tension and hostility --an atmosphere necessary for the development of the individual.

Fourth, GLNDSMC seeks to be an effective instrument to advance justice and to achieve equality for gay and lesbian persons. As the only student organization on the campuses which actively strives for this justice (GLNDSMC representatives have met with staff members of Campus Ministry as well as with representatives of student government on both campuses in pursuit of this goal), GLNDSMC is essential in this endeavor.

Do any of these purposes conflict with the mission of a Catholic university? Not only are these goals consistent with those of Catholic institutions such as Notre Dame and St. Mary's; they are characteristic. Apparently, misconceptions about our organization have led some to believe that we exist for quite different reasons. Advocacy of a particular "lifestyle" is by no means proposed by GLNDSMC. The manner in which an individual decides to lead a life is a personal choice. We are brought together by the fact that we are homosexual people who need the support commonly required by members of reviled minorities. One's "lifestyle" is independent of the organization. GLNDSMC provides the necessary information and resources for individuals to make informed, moral decisions concerning their development as persons. We don't provide the decisions.

Were GLNDSMC to become a recognized organization on both campuses, there would be no more homosexual students than are already here. However, it happens, one's sexual orientation is irrevocably determined long before one arrives at college. Only the way in which homosexual persons are perceived and treated as part of this community will have begun to change --and change in a manner which is far more consistent with the Gospel that is presently the case.

Michael Dini is a graduate student in the Department of Biological Sciences and a three-year member of GLNDSMC.

Gay debate sorely lacking in morality

The recent Viewpoint columns of Nov. 3 were incredible. Not only were we bombarded by letters urging us to accept homosexuality as a legitimate alternative lifestyle, but we were so urged under the guise of some enlightened form of Catholicism.

William J. Sammon

guest column

Conspicuously absent from the rhetoric of homosexuality promulgated by William Storey, Ann Pettifer and the Observer staff is any reference to spiritual morality and salvation. To these messengers of modern "enlightenment" spiritual morality and salvation are dead relics of an oppressive age. Mr. Storey, a professor emeritus of theology, strangely skirts the issue of morality. Ms. Pettifer, on the other hand, advocates immediate gratification of the self, provided that it is sheathed. For her the entire notion of an eternal soul is the fanciful historical creation of insecure men to justify oppression. The Observer editorial started its lecture with what appeared a statement of fact, indisputable no doubt in their eyes: Notre Dame has a commitment, as a Catholic university, "to education through an active exploration of all facets of our life." Wrong. Notre Dame, as a Catholic university, has no more a commitment to active exploration of homosexuality than it does to active exploration of the occult.

The spiritual barrenness of homosexuality is what the university has a commitment against. By its very nature the only product of homosexual union is raw eroticism. The product of heterosexual union, however, aside from the raw eroticism, is the potentiality of procreation, the creation of a new spirit. It is precisely this fact of procreative spirituality that makes heterosexual love and union more special, or spiritual, than the momentary orgasmic bliss of either heterosexual or homosexual eroticism.

Homosexuals do indeed populate our campuses, perhaps in substantial numbers. Nonetheless, it is better that they are here without a Gay and Lesbian Society, for they may be more restrained and reflective in their indulgent desires than at a secular institution devoid of any moral ethos. The cross that they bare (sic) indeed makes their life more miserable and lonely. The pain and suffering that they feel is real, but it is not the mission of the Church to make people feel good about themselves. We are all sinners in the eyes of God, homosexuals included. God also loves us all unconditionally, but His love does not allow us to commit any act we desire. The Church's mission is to help us save our souls for eternal salvation. Homosexuality certainly always has and always shall exist as alternative sexual behavior. Nonetheless, as Catholics we must acknowledge that homosexuality creates only transitory pleasure; it is not the only avenue to a spiritual teland, but it must be condemned.

It is not at all surprising that advocates of homosexuality divorce themselves from discussions of morality. Homosexuality is not immoral, they say, who said so anyway -- a bunch of celibate old men in some monastery in the fourth century. They are unwilling to recognize that they are engaging in immoral acts; they desire to be told that it is all right to indulge their urges. Morality is all a matter of relativism, they say. There is no absolute right or wrong, it is all relative to the individual. By our personal musings we can discover our own morality. This message is nauseous not wholly because of its content, but because of its wrapping. They would have us believe that their beliefs fall within the realm of Catholicism. They can believe what they want, but they cannot stand there preaching secularized hedonism telling us we are intolerant because of our indignation at their noxious brand of liberation tainting our faith and the faith of our fathers and our mothers.

Who ever thought that they would see the day when Glory's mantle of Our Mother, Notre Dame, was cloaked around the spiritually naked corpse of the raw eroticism of indulgent homosexuality. What is most troubling, however, is not how far the homophiles have fallen, but how far we may have as a community. Have we become so callous to their moaning tirades that we might actually succumb to their poisonous rhetoric? Only time will tell if we acknowledge their complaints as valid and recognize GLNDSMC, a time when there is no longer any right or wrong but a time when morality is all relative.

P.O. Box Q

Fear of gays still inhibits dialogue

Dear Editor:

From behind the faultily-erected barrier of a false or feeble liberalism, Matt Crowley took several cheap shots at gay people in his Nov. 4 guest column. Despite his disclaimer about being homophobic, he clearly harbors many elements of homophobia within his personality. Mr. Crowley's defense that "someone close to me is an admitted homosexual" is the second major evidence of this. The first clue is that "as... a Christian" he must dissent to "The Observer's opinion on the recognition of the Gays and Lesbians at NDSMC." The clear implication is that recognition of the group (not to say a decision to let others live as God or nature has seen fit to create them), is an unchristian stance.

But to return. The use of the word "admitted" as an adjective for homosexual presupposes that homosexuality is a crime to be confessed. Crowley's assertions that he does "not wish to instigate any sort of witchhunt" and that he does "not intend to condemn or degrade homosexuals" are clearly belied by the phrase "admitted homosexual" and the clause "my values lead me to speak against such a club." The use of the word "values" clearly underscores the (in his opinion) valuelessness of both GLNDSMC and homosexuals.

Mr. Crowley's objection to what he perceives as the advocacy by GLNDSMC of a gay lifestyle is further evidence of homophobic projection/paranoia. Clearly, as Professor Storey suggested in his Nov. 3 column, administrative recognition of GLNDSMC would "counteract... homophobia," encourage healthy self-acceptance by gay people and a "safe atmosphere" for that acceptance, and contribute to shaping healthier, happier sexual attitudes." GLNDSMC "ministers to the special needs" of gay people. I fail to see Mr. Crowley's evidence for (or indeed the relevance of) his statements that: members of this club "are very certain in their minds and hearts that they are homosexual;" that "they are not 'exploring their sexuality' or debating the morality of alternative lifestyles. They are not concerned with the debate on 'a proper Catholic response to such a life.'" What support group or gathering of people with a common identity/interest on campus makes dysfunctional self-loathing a requirement for membership? Where do the other agenda Crowley cites come from?

His further statement that "the club is an advocacy group, looking to promote their lifestyle and encouraging others to consider 'gay' life," raises the same questions. This last also sounds suspiciously like Anita Bryant's hysterical homophobic campaign in Dade County, Florida, of several years back. Just as the existence of gays in the schools there did not constitute "recruitment," so the existence and administrative recognition of a support/common interest group for gay people on this campus do not constitute advocacy of a lifestyle.

Need I continue? Crowley suggests that "recognition of one commonly objectionable group" would open the door for destructive anti-Semitic hate organizations like a "Nazi club," or would encourage the formation of an "Atheist club." "Commonly objectionable?" I beg your pardon? But he is not homophobic.

I await with baited breath the revelation from Mr. Crowley of which of "our Christian values" shall have been "tossed aside" when GLNDSMC is formally recognized. Is that the one about loving God with the whole heart, soul, mind, and strength, or the one about loving our neighbor as ourselves? Are there any Christian values inconsistent with or not covered by these two laws, given by one who claimed that therein were summarized the Law and the Prophets (Matt 22:37-40), both of which he and his followers claim he has fulfilled? Does the reputed wholesomeness of this campus include the tossing aside of the second of these commands by refusing to respect and listen to those whose views differ from the opinion of the majority?

Finally, Mr. Crowley asks how we can "prevent further erosion of the moral character of Notre Dame, if GLNDSMC is recognized. Yet he fails to demonstrate how recognition of the group would compromise anything but the obvious homophobia of which he partakes. I would suggest that the falseness of his pseudo-liberal position on the issue is much more immoral than would be addressing the issue fairly and honestly, from a clearly stated rather than a deviously constructed position. To begin any honest dialogue on any issue, it seems to me, we must begin with an honest self-awareness of where we stand on that issue. To argue a homophobic position behind a facade of non-homophobia does nothing to advance the free exchange of ideas, which after all is the primary purpose of any university.

Narrow minds lead only to disaster

Dear Editor:

It is a disconcerting feeling to know that there are people in the wholesome NDSMC community that would like to see the administration acknowledge the existence of a gay and lesbian club. NDSMC is a pure island in a world full of degenerates who wish to band together and force us to give up our heterosexual preferences. How can these people actually think that we, as Catholic heterosexuals, will allow them to band together in an organized, officially recognized group? To allow such an insidious act to occur, would be like recognizing a club made up of Protestants in our Catholic utopia - or worse yet, Buddhists (for they do not even believe in the same God as we do.)

The Catholic Church is not wrong in ignoring the most inclusive statement Christ made, which is to love your neighbor. As any upholding Catholic knows, Christ lived and interacted with us on this earth as a human being. Part of the human condition is fallibility. It becomes obvious in the story of the Samaritan woman that this condition was imposed on Christ as well. In his innocence, Christ overlooked the sinful flaws in this woman's persona. He actually believed, in full blown naivete, that one should be compassionate to all.

Yes, I do understand that Jesus Christ did become a human being in order to set an example for all of us and that while in that form, did ask us to love one another. But, as has been pointed out in previous articles, there is an obvious limit to the compassion we are to show others who are not like us. Remember, as Matt Crowley so eloquently said (in the November 4 issue), they "have tossed aside one of our Christian values." We should not tolerate these infractious members at the NDSMC community.

Those of you who believe that people, such as homosexuals, have a place in our wholesome community are sadly mistaken. Granted, Jesus Christ did stress to love our neighbor, but he obviously meant it within reason. To fully accept and officially recognize a group with different sexual beliefs is just too much. We also must not allow other groups with the like cause of attempting to form and thereby break up our community of sameness. Those with preferences, be they sexual, political, or religious, that differ from our views should be expelled from our tight-knit community. After all, a community is an entity that is composed of like-minded people. Those that do not hold the same beliefs ought to be quelled through expulsion, or at the very least, have their privileges restricted.

We do not want those with lifestyles different from our own to live among us. Since they are of a different lifestyle it is obvious that a serious erosion of the moral character has occurred. We cannot forget that our community is famous for its wholesomeness.

There are not many people with enough courage and conviction who will publicly criticize a proposal. I am very pleased that Mr. Crowley, through voicing his own humble opinion, has spoken for "our community as a whole." He, of course, did not include gays and lesbians in this broad statement, they think differently and are, therefore, clearly no longer part of our community. He is correct in inadvertently saying that there is no place for homosexuals in the NDSMC community.

If you agree with the previously stated views, I, for one, am terrified that you are the future leaders of our country. Hitler himself began his reign of terror by subtly imposing restrictions upon the Jews, Catholics, and homosexuals which eventually led to extermination in later years.

Keys to symbolize drunk driving week

Dear Editor:

This is the third day of the Notre Dame Designated Driver Week, organized by the senior class. We have initiated the program in memory of Michael J. Cogswell, our classmate who was killed in a drunk-driving related incident last December.

We are promoting more than just awareness, we are promoting responsible action and concern for others. By extending the program to Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students, faculty, and staff as well as members of the South Bend Community, we emphasize the importance of a concerted community effort building upon the concern and respect for others.

Members of the senior class will be distributing designated driver keys during lunch on Friday and at the Block Party. These keys can be used by designated drivers for free soft drinks at participating local bars and restaurants.

Please take a key and place it on your key chain. Our hope is that as you reach for your keys, you see the N.D.D.D. key and renew your commitment to responsible drinking by designating a driver for the evening. Remember: drunk driving is not a personal choice, but a public danger.

Bedrosian wins Cy, edges Sutcliffe by 2

Associated Press

NEW YORK- Philadelphia reliever Steve Bedrosian, who led the major leagues with 40 saves, won the National League Cy Young Award Tuesday by the slimmest margin in the award's history.

Bedrosian, who set a major-league record with saves in 13 consecutive appearances, edged Rick Sutcliffe of Chicago 57-55 in voting by the Baseball Writers Association of America. Rick Reuschel, who played for Pittsburgh and San Francisco, finished one point behind Sutcliffe in third place.

Bedrosian received nine first-place votes, five more than Sutcliffe but only one more than Reuschel. However, Sutcliffe received more second- and third-place votes than Bedrosian or Reuschel.

"This is the ultimate,"

Bedrosian said during a news conference at Veterans Stadium in Philadelphia. "The thing I'd like most is to be in the World Series someday, but don't get me wrong. I'm really excited about this and I'll never forget it as long as I live."

The closest election prior to this year was in 1981, when Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles beat Tom Seaver of Cincinnati by three points.

Bedrosian is the third reliever to win the NL Cy Young Award since the leagues started giving out separate honors in 1967. Bruce Sutter of Chicago won in 1979, while Mike Marshall of Los Angeles was honored in 1974.

It is fourth time this decade that a Philadelphia pitcher has won the NL Cy Young Award. Steve Carlton won in 1980 and 1982, and John Denny won in 1983.

14-0 deficit and a third-and-12 situation, she hit Colleen Kretz for a six-yard completion. But following Kretz was Heidi Hanson, who grabbed Kretz's lateral and scrambled 27 more yards for PW's first score.

The PW defense tightened up, forcing Farley to punt three plays later. Starting on her own 48, Kronenberger put together a two minute scoring drive giving PW a chance to tie with no time on the clock. A tough Farley rush forced Kronenberger to rush a pass which fell incomplete, ending PW's title hopes.

"We thought we might have trouble with their defensive line," said Farley coach Greg Rowe, "but our offensive line played great. It really opened up the passing game for Carol.

Facing Farley in the finals will be BP, an easy winner over Lyons by a score of 30-0.

If game balls were handed out, Carolyn Burke would definitely deserve one. She scored all four BP touchdowns and helped BP rack up 207 yards of total offense.

On its first offensive play from scrimmage, BP quarterback Teresa Coombs pitched back to Ann Curoe who hit Carolyn Burke for a 42 yard touchdown completion.

buddies get together and order a pizza for this one.

And it seemed everyone had a friend coming out for this game. New England accents were everywhere, especially when Boston counterparts couldn't find a place to 'pahk the cah.'

The fan interest is there, the competition is strong, and the shared religion provides the common background. Here's one vote for an annual Boston College-Notre Dame game, even if Golden Girl Missy can't make the trip.

The Irish could be pickin' Cotton very soon, but don't count out the possibility of two straight trips to Miami - one to play the Hurricanes and, if they have enough fun on that trip, a return visit for the Orange Bowl.

"We are only looking at four teams to play the Big Eight champion," said Pete Williams, chairman of the Orange Bowl Team Selection Committee. "They are Notre Dame, Miami, Syracuse and Florida State."

Williams also added that Miami has not pressured the Committee to give them an unconditional bid prior to playing Notre Dame and South Carolina.

The most probable location for Notre Dame's New Year's Day party is Dallas. The Cotton Bowl wants Notre Dame and Dallas-native Tim Brown, while the University appears ready to take the big money of the Cotton Bowl. It's been a long time since the last payoff from a New Year's Day bowl.

A big win over the Southwest Conference Champion would also be a positive springboard for next season and a boost for Notre Dame's recruiting efforts.

But speculation now just leads to blowing off homework, or it least it has for my roommates and I. The Cotton Bowl is probable, the Orange Bowl is possible, but as Head Coach Lou Holtz said Tuesday, "Right now all I'm concerned about is playing Alabama-nothing else matters."

The Big Three.
Alabama. Penn State. Miami. Anybody who scanned the schedule in August must have raised their eyebrows at the sight of these three finishing off the 1987 Notre Dame schedule.

Saturday. The Crimson Tide is fulfilling its traditional cheer by rolling past their opponents in recent weeks, most recently 10th-ranked LSU, to silently move up the Associated Press poll to No. 11.

Saturday's game will be an all-out war. 'Bama is hungry for the Sugar Bowl, while an Irish win over the Tide would dispell anyone's thoughts that Notre Dame is not for real.

Penn State and the ever-present bad boys from Miami come next. One only needs to be reminded of two things to prepare for these contests- Paterno's "the mystique is gone from Notre Dame" quote and the ugly 58-7 score of two years ago against the Hurricanes.

"That was an old play which we added a new twist to in practice," said BP coach Dan DeBoer. "I can't believe it worked that well."

While Coombs let Curoe help in the passing game, she still finished the game 7-of-9 for 107 yards and two touchdowns.

Late in the first half, BP extended its lead to 16-0. Facing 4th and goal at the six, Burke broke free in the corner of the end zone to haul in Coombs throw. Scoring on the last play of the first half gave BP the momentum it needed as it coasted to the shutout victory.

While the offense scored every time it touched the ball, the BP defense was just as good. Lyons was able to gain only 43 yards of total offense and three first downs. The BP secondary held Lyons' quarterback Mary Bohmer to 2-of-8 passing for only 14 yards. Defensive end Maggie Citarella had two sacks in leading the way.

The two rivals meet at 1 p.m. Sunday at Notre Dame Stadium for the women's Interhall championship.

Irish tennis to face 'best of the Midwest'

By CHRIS FILLIO
Sports Writer

In its first competition in several weeks, the Notre Dame women's tennis team travels to Madison, Wis., today for the Rolex Regional Qualifier. The four-day single elimination tournament will run through Nov. 15.

The tournament will include "the best of the Midwest," according to Irish head coach Michele Gelfman.

"Indiana, Northwestern, and Wisconsin all have a full team and are ranked both nationally and in the Midwest," said Gelfman.

Other schools competing will be Miami (Ohio), Western Michigan, and the majority of schools in the Big-10 and Mid-American conferences. In total, more than thirty teams from across the Midwest will compete.

"It's a huge draw, to say the least," said Gelfman.

Freshman Ce Ce Cahill leads the way for the Irish. As the number-one singles seed in the tournament, Cahill will attempt to improve on her spotless 21-0 season record.

"Ce Ce is physically prepared for the tournament," said Gelfman. "What is important is that she is mentally prepared. In past tournaments she has always been seeded number one. There's always that pressure. But as a freshman, that pressure is doubled."

Completing the singles field for the Irish will be senior Michelle Dasso, sophomore Stephanie Tolstedt, and freshman Kim Pacella. Cahill/Dasso and Pacella/Tolstedt will pair up in the doubles competition.

Despite the lack of recent matches, Gelfman said the team looked very well in practice. She has been especially pleased with the progress of the doubles teams, which underwent re-shuffling following injuries to sophomores Alice Lohrer and Resa Kelly.

"I think the improvement will take hold," said Gelfman. "Our goal is to get someone in the finals."

LSU's loss to Alabama last week helped the Irish move to seventh in this week's AP Poll. A complete listing of the top 20 teams is on page 11.

O.C. soccer survives

By ROB PIERCE
Sports Writer

"And the meek shall inherit the earth..." Almost.

The Off-Campus Hoobers, defending champions and league powerhouse, received the scare of their lives Sunday from unheralded Flanner F.C. Falling behind for the first time all year, the Hoobers for a 2-1 victory in a penalty-kick shootout.

Shawn Mastic shocked the Hoobers with a goal midway through the first half -- the first score O.C. has given up all season -- and for thirty minutes it looked as if seventh-seed Flanner might pull off the upset. But O.C. regrouped and tied the score on a penalty kick by Mike Johnson. Then the defenses took control, holding the opposition scoreless through a five-minute sudden death period.

In the ensuing shootout, Off-Campus clinched the victory by converting all five, while Flanner could only manage four.

The win moved the Hoobers into the second round to face Zahm, a 2-0 winner over Stanford. Off-Campus again proved that it was a legitimate contender for the title with a 2-0 shutout. Ron Yuro scored the gamewinner on a penalty kick midway through the first half, and goalie Pat Marschall turned away the few shots he faced.

In the remaining first round matchup, fourth-seeded Fisher met fifth-seeded Morrissey, with the winner earning the right to play top-seeded Holy Cross in the second round.

Morrissey jumped out to a 1-0 halftime lead on a goal by Gerry Quinn but came out flat after the intermission and lost 2-1. Fisher capitalized on defensive lapses by Morrissey and scored twice in the second half on goals by Chris Crossen and Pat Murphy.

Morrissey slips into the loser's bracket to face Flanner B, who dropped a 3-0 decision to Holy Cross in the opening round, today at Stepan Field.

In other loser's bracket action, Flanner F.C. finally did pull off an upset, knocking third-seed Stanford out of postseason competition, 1-0. Stanford, who lost to Zahm in the first round, dominated play throughout the contest but could not beat Flanner keeper Nat Vorkies.

Flanner's Mastig, taking advantage of a rare scoring opportunity, netted the only goal of the game with two minutes remaining for the victory and a date with the winner of today's Flanner B vs. Morrissey matchup.

three touchdowns on the day, including the first two in the first half.

"We were just running right at 'em," said Martin. "The line was making really big holes."

Dan Boyle's 15-yard TD reception with just seconds remaining in the first half was the back-breaking straw, as the second half regressed into fighting and late hits. Four players-two from each team-were ejected from the game. Luckily for the Studs, the two players will be allowed to play in the championship game. Defensively, Stanford was equally dominating. Inside linebacker Bill Sullivan was 'all over the field' according to Martin, and Fisher's only threat (and eventual score) came in the closing minutes of the game against Stanford's second team.

Stanford and Dillon will square off on the grass of Notre Dame Stadium next Sunday at 2:30 p.m. to claim the championship trophy.

Irish tennis to use Qualifiers as only true fall indicator

By GEORGE TRAVERS
Sports Writer

The Irish men's tennis team travels participates in the Rolex Qualifier this weekend for its second competitive tournament of the fall. This individual meet provides a chance for the Irish to compete against the top tennis players in the country.

It has been a strange fall for Notre Dame and the rest of college tennis. Due to a recent NCAA ruling the fall schedule had to be switched to a series of unscored exhibitions. The Rolex/ITCA Qualifier is not a team exhibition but an individual tournament to determine the top singles and doubles players in the midwest.

The regional qualifier will be held Thursday thru Sunday in Bloomington. The Irish expect to be well represented. The top players will go on to the national championships in January at Stanford University.

First year head coach Pat Bayliss still sees his team as somewhat of an unknown quantity. The NCAA ruling has made it very difficult for Bayliss to see his players in actual competition.

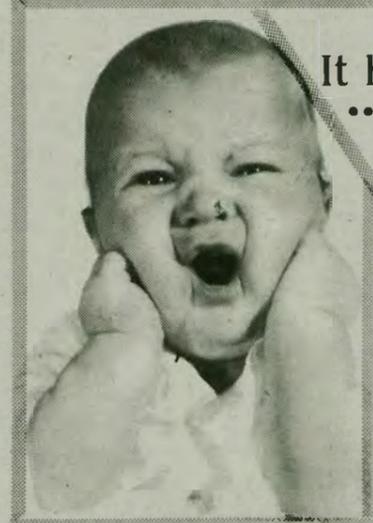

"I'm still trying to get a feel for the midwest region," Bayliss said. "Our only tournament this fall was at Wake Forest where we got in as alternates and didn't look impressive."

"The Rolex Qualifier will give a few of my players a chance to show off against the best. We're really starting to improve in practice and I hope it carries over to the tournament."

The invitations to the regional qualifier are as yet un-set but Bayliss has a pretty good idea of who will go. The two top Irish singles players-junior Brian Kalbas and sophomore Mike Wallace-are expecting bids. Other hopefuls include Ryan Wenger, Dave Reiter and Paul Daggs. The Irish doubles teams of Reiter-Wallace and Wenger-Kalbas hope to compete.

A battle from the opening rounds, the Qualifier is open to all players at the major mid-western schools. The Irish hope to raise a few eyebrows in preparation of the spring season.

Farley edges PW; B-P slays Lyons

By JEFF HEILERT
Sports Writer

While the sidewalk connecting Breen-Phillips and Farley may only be fifty feet long, come Sunday at Notre Dame Stadium, that distance is going to feel like miles.

Both teams were victors last Sunday in their respective semifinals, and now begin the preparations for the much talked-about rematch of last season's finalists.

In the afternoon's opening game, Farley hung on to defeat a tough Pasquerilla West team 14-12. The game was decided on the last play, when PW failed a conversion.

Both teams looked good for a half. Farley dominated early, taking a 14-0 lead midway through the game, before PW rallied for two scores late in the second half.

An interception by Farley's Jen Bonnvecio led to the game's first score. After a two yard sweep by tailback Tammy Goodwin, quarterback Carol Elliott found a wide-open Colleen McGillis for a 62 yard touchdown strike. Sue Shelton capped off the score with a tough conversion catch, giving Farley the two point cushion it needed.

Late in the first half, Elliott and McGillis teamed up once again, this one covering 27 yards. Elliott finished 8-of-15 for 177 yards and two touchdowns.

PW, however, would not quit. In the second half, the team showed why it won the regular-season championship. Quarterback Kathy Kronenberger led the way, completing 6-of-16 passes for 82 yards. Facing a

Stanford, Dillon win in semis

By TIM SULLIVAN
Sports Writer

Both of the favorites-Dillon and Stanford-convincingly moved into the final game of the men's interhall football playoffs with strong victories over strong opponents in the semifinal round.

Dillon wore down Pangborn for a 19-7 victory, while Stanford's high-powered offense was too much for Fisher, as the Green Wave fell 26-7.

The final Dillon-Pangborn score is deceiving. Pangborn took the lead into halftime and was within six points of the Big Red until late in the fourth quarter, when a Dillon insurance score put the game out of reach.

Dillon's first and second drives were both successful, yet not touchdown-producing. Both ended in Mike Brammer field goals, as the Big Red had jumped out to a quick, 6-0 lead.

Pangborn was still fighting. The Violence's ground game keyed a strong second quarter drive to the Dillon 20. There, the teams traded fumbles, before Pangborn's freshman quarterback John Jacobs hooked up with his tight end, Rob Kossler, to give Pangborn the lead.

Pangborn played respectable second-half defense, but the Dillon ground game finally kicked into gear, and the powerful Big Red began to assert control. The key play in the third quarter (and in the game) was a muffed Pangborn punt. Because of the play, Dillon took over with great field position and took the lead. Brammer did the scoring honors on fourth down for Dillon with a 2-yard TD run to give the Big Red a 13-7 lead.

Pangborn's offense was stymied throughout the second half by Dillon defensemen Paul Drey and Gary O'Brien (16 tackles). Drey's second interception of the afternoon set up the insurance score. Freshman Tim Murphy keyed the time-consuming final drive and capped it with a nine-yard TD run.

"When they got up 7-6," said Dillon player-coach Jeff Morgan, "We had a little breakdown. It took us a while to get going."

But the Big Red 'got going' in time for the win.

Stanford took a cue from the Fighting Irish football team in its win over Fisher. Using its powerful offensive line, Stanford simply ran over the Green Wave.

Running back Dan Diebel was the prime recipient of quarterback Al Martin's frequent handoffs. Diebel ran for

Of Boston, Bowls and 'Bama

Last Saturday's game with Boston College was only the third meeting between the two Catholic schools ever.

All three games have been momentous occasions. The first ushered in the Dan Devine era in 1975 with a 19-3 Irish victory. The second was Notre Dame's last bowl victory, a 19-18 win over eventual-Heisman Trophy winner Doug Flutie and company in the 1983 Liberty Bowl. The third allowed the Irish to keep rolling in this "we're back" season and virtually clinched the Heisman for Tim Brown.

Notre Dame and BC will not meet again until 1992 when the Golden Eagles come back to Notre Dame Stadium.

Why?

Notre Dame and Boston College should play each other every year, and not just because the Irish won Saturday, although that's pretty important too. But think of it. Notre Dame plays Navy every year, and beats them badly every year. Twenty-four straight victories does not make much of a rivalry. I'm not sure anybody gets up for this game anymore. Not even the Pentagon.

But Notre Dame-Boston College stirs emotion. It did Saturday, and not just because the ninth-ranked Irish were down 17-6 at the half. And also not just because the Screamin' Eagles have Missy Johnson, the "Golden Girl" and National Baton Twirling Association champion.

When these two schools go head to head, Notre Dame's strong Boston following taunts BC faithfuls, and Beantown, with its strong Irish Catholic tradition, becomes a city divided. I bet even His Holiness at the Vatican and his

Field hockey ends season with victory

By KATIE CRONIN
Sports Writer

Kentucky's bluegrass was the other team's home turf in every game the Irish field hockey team played at the Midwest Regional Independent Tournament this past weekend. The team lost two but managed to win their final game of the season at the tourney in Louisville.

Also, senior and co-captain Benet DeBerry was selected to the tournament All Star team.

Notre Dame lost their first game 4-0 to eventual tourney champion Eastern Kentucky. After five shots on goal apiece in the first half, the teams were tied 0-0 at halftime, but ECU came out strong in the second.

"We were playing well and then we broke down, particularly on defense," said Irish head coach Jill Lindenfeld. "Nothing seemed to work right offensively either."

A disappointing 2-1 loss to Louisville was next on the Irish agenda. Notre Dame's Mindy Breen scored first at 27:55 in the first half, but the team was unable to capitalize on a game total of 23 shots on goal. Louisville tied the score quickly, putting the ball in the cage at 28:51. Then the Cardinals took the lead in the second half on a score following a penalty corner.

"It took some of the wind out of our sails when they scored right away," said Jill Lindenfeld. "We controlled the game but we couldn't put on the final touches. That's been our problem all year."

It was not a problem in their final game. The Irish beat Bellarmine College 2-1. Annie McGlenn, the team's leading scorer, tallied on an assist from Benet DeBerry at 21:25 in the first half. Playing her last career game, Louisville native Daisy Wagner scored on an assist from McGlenn at 31:39.

Bellarmino managed to put the ball in the cage at 6:49 in the second half. Notre Dame took 19 shots on goal to Bellarmine's 11.

"Both teams played well. Annie McGlenn had one of her best games at left wing. Forward Daisy Wagner did too," said Lindenfeld.

"After the second game we weren't in the running for the tournament, but we wanted it for ourselves," said co-captain and goalie M.J. Beetel. "It was our last game. We just had to win. So we played like we were behind the whole game."

The Irish finish their season 8-10-2.

"We were very inconsistent," said Lindenfeld. "We went from playing very well, with highlights like the Georgetown game, to very poorly. We could have easily won a few games we lost."

"Our haunting problem was controlling games and being unable to score. Our offense was young and inexperienced. The defense came through for us a lot. Next year it'll be the opposite. Leading off with goalie M.J., we're losing a lot defensively."

Ticket sale announced

Special to The Observer

Basketball season ticket sales to students are scheduled to begin Monday, November 16, according to Notre Dame ticket manager Mike Bobinski.

Sales to seniors will begin that day with other classes following in sequence.

Students should receive their applications in the mail by Friday. Anyone who doesn't receive one should go to the ticket office.

The price for the 16-game package is $80 for lower arena seating and $54 for bleacher seats.

The package does not include tickets to the Valparaiso and St. Joseph's (Ind.) games which take place during Christmas break. The package also does not include tickets to the Big Four doubleheader at the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis featuring Notre Dame vs. Kentucky and Indiana vs. Louisville. Ticket sales for those games will probably be held the week after student ticket sales.
