Solutions to campus computer virus sought

By SARAH VOIGT Staff Reporter

An unpredictable, potentially harmful virus struck Notre Dame recently. The scene of attack, however, was not the infirmary, but rather the MacIntosh computer labs in LaFortune and O'Shaghnessey Hall.

According to Mark Eggers, Network Communications Analyst for the University tem became infected.

According to Cooper, this virus epidemic frightened many students away from the computer labs. Since early October, however, the MacIntoshes have been freed of the "n virus" and innoculated from ever contracting this particular virus again, said Cooper.

Cooper said that programs have been developed recently that can disinfect contaminated disks. "The functions of these programs are to detect the presence of the virus and then to extract it from the application," said Cooper. Cooper explained two preventative measures the MacIntosh system uses to combat a virus attack. "The 'killvirus' is a dummy 'n virus' that inhibits the real virus from spreading through the applications. Then we have a 'vaccine' function that acts like a sentinel that detects the virus, alerts the user and guards the system from worms and viruses," said Cooper. According to Cooper, the highest risk group includes those who share applications like MacWrite with their friends. The more computers that a disk enters, the greater the possibility that it will become infected.

PLO leaders say they will accept UN resolution

Associated Press

ALGIERS, Algeria--PLO leaders accepted a U.N. resolution Sunday implicitly recognizing Israel's right to exist and recommended the PLO's parliament to endorse the decision.

Approval by the Palestine National Council, the PLO's parliament-in-exile, is virtually certain and would meet one of the conditions for U.S. recognition of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The action by a committee of PLO leaders showed that chairman Yasser Arafat has won his struggle with hardliners over the controversial U.N. resolution 242. In the 450-member PNC, 80 percent to 85 percent of the parliamentarians are aligned with Arafat.

In Washington, President Reagan was asked if he was pleased with the PLO leaders' action and said, "We're still looking at that; that's all I can say."

The declaration accepting the resolution was debated and being drafted by a committee for presentation to the plenary session of the Palestine National Council, which began a four-day meeting in Algiers on Saturday.

"The PNC will come out with a political decision and a program of peace," said PLO spokesman Ahmed Abdul-Rahman.

"In the political statement, we will adopt all resolutions of the U.N. Security Council dealing with the Palestinian question. What's more, we will emphasize resolutions 242 and 338 as the basis for an international conference to achieve peace in the Middle East."

Resolution 242 calls for an end to hostilities and Israeli withdrawal from territories occupied in the 1967 war. Adopted by the Security Council in 1967, it implicitly recognizes Israel by referring to the right of all states in the area to live within secure and recognized borders.

Resolution 338, passed in 1973 during the Arab-Israeli war, calls for an end to fighting, urges implementation of Resolution 242 and, most im- portant, calls for negotiations between Arabs and Israel toward "a just and durable peace in the Middle East."

In the closed-door committee meetings among PLO leaders, there was strong opposition to Resolution 242 from the Marxist-oriented groups, particularly George Habash's Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

Habash's faction is the second-largest of the eight groups comprising the PLO. Arafat's Fatah is the largest.

Sources close to the talks said that after two days of haggling, it was clear no compromise was possible.

Habash agreed to note his reservations but bow to the majority and not create a major split.

Salah Khalaf, a top Arafat aide known as Abu Iyad, said, "Never in my career have I seen the Palestinian leadership acting as responsibly as it is during this session. Unity is priority and the minority is ac-

Computing Center, a computer virus is a program that enters a computer system, effects the system and then duplicates itself. Depending on what the virus is programmed to do, it can simply cause quirks in the system, or it can delete entire programs and close files.

The virus that infected MacIntosh computers on campus in late September is called the "n virus," according to Joel Cooper, a campus computer consultant who works extensively with MacIntosh systems. Since early October, Cooper has worked to kill the virus so that the computers in the writing labs would be healthy.

The "n virus" traveled on applications such as MacWrite and MacProject. As a result, when a student inserted a contaminated disk into the MacIntosh computer, the whole sys-

Palestinian guerrilla kills hostage, is seized after 18 hour ordeal

JERUSALEM-A Palestinian guerrilla, who kept awake during an 18-hour hostage drama by cutting his arm with a bayonet and pouring salt in the wound, killed a Lebanese captive Sunday before being overpowered by U.N. soldiers. The gunman, who U.N. officials said was high on drugs or alcohol, belonged to a fivemember Palestininan squad that seized a U.N. observation post in south Lebanon about 8 p.m. Saturday.

The guerrillas took the victim--a Lebanese technician--and five Finnish soldiers hostage after their plans to launch an attack in Israel failed, security sources in south Lebanon said.

Timur Goksel, spokesman for the 5,700-member U.N. interim force in Lebanon, said U.N. negotiators refused to meet the guerrillas' demands for a helicopter or an escort to take them to the port city of Sidon. After nightlong negotiations, four Palestinian guerrillas surrendered Sunday morning.

INSIDE COLUMN Housing policy destroys 'family unity' at ND

Imagine this scenario: Your parents kick you out of the house because you are going to have a new baby brother or sister. Maybe they make you move in with your next-door neighbors. Or maybe they put you on a waiting list in case any of your other brothers.or sisters decide to move out voluntarily.

But don't worry. This situation is purely hypothetical, since no family could possibly be cruel enough to force a family member to leave his or her home.

Wait-worry. It's not purely hypothetical. No family except perhaps the "Notre Dame family" could do such a thing.

Freshmen, sophomores and juniors have recently received a letter informing them that their dorms may not have room for them after one-fourth of each hall's capacity has been reserved for incoming freshmen. If this does happen, next year's sophomores, juniors and seniors may transfer to a hall that does have room for them, or a lottery may be held to determine a waiting list for each hall and assignments will be made as openings occur.

Whatever the case turns out to be, there is a possibility that students will be kicked out of their dorms if they don't turn in housing contracts on time or if more students turn in contracts than their dorms have room for.

What happened to the Notre Dame "family?" Of course incoming freshmen should be able to live on campus to acclimate them to this family. But does this mean that other family members no longer have the privileges of or are even a part of the family?

This is what the University in effect is saying by introducing the possibility that students may be forced to leave their dorms

Well, you might say, virtually every other school in the United States has a similar policy, and most students at those schools can't even get campus housing after their sophomore or junior years. We didn't go to every other school. We came to Notre Dame. We made the decision to join the Notre Dame family-a very special aspect of Notre Dame.

Many gave up the opportunity to join fraternities or sororities at other schools, since these are outlawed at Notre Dame. But we never really missed anything because our halls are supposed to be like fraternities and sororities without the negative aspects. After all, most of us have lived in the same dorm for the years we've been here, or at least plan to live in the same dorm. We've participated on the same interhall teams with the same teammates. We've developed close friendships with the people we've lived with during our time at Notre Dame.

the University

One would think that an administration which claims to care so much about the whole "Notre Dame experience" a student coming here receives would do whatever possible to enhance that experience.

One would think also that an administration which proclaims how special the "Notre Dame family" is would do its best to protect the unity of the family

One would think that this same administration would think of options other than forcing students to leave their dorms to accomodate incoming family members.

What about limiting the number of freshmen accepted so as not to sacrifice the quality of living for students already accepted and attend-ing the University? Or what about the Task Force for Residentiality's suggestion that the University should "seriously consider" building adequate housing for students who desire on-campus housing?

To be fair to the University and Student Residences, none of this is guaranteed to happen. But the fact that it is being considered and planned for should make us wonder how concerned the University really is about the members of its family.

Elderly landlady suspect in killings

Associated Press

SACRAMENTO, Calif .--Police found a fifth corpse Sunday buried in the yard of a treeshaded Victorian boardinghouse and hunted for landlady the 71-year-old suspected of killing the elderly victims and cashing their Social Security checks.

Investigators said they believe seven or eight bodies may have been buried in the yard, based on the number of residents who are missing, Homicide Lt. Joe Enloe said. Authorities were seeking boardinghouse manager Dorothea Puente for questioning, police Sgt. Bob Burns said.

A resident of the rooming house, John McCauley, 59, was arrested Sunday for investigation of being an accessory to homicide, Enloe said. Authorities said they believe he helped Puente dig the graves of the victims.

"We do not believe that this could have been done solely by herself," Enloe said. "We know she's had people help her dig the holes.

Puente, who is on parole for her 1982 conviction for drugging and robbing three people, was interviewed by police after the first body was discovered Friday but released for lack of evidence.

The woman apparently had been cashing some of the victims' Social Security checks for several months, Enloe said. He said the motive in the slayings was believed to be robbery.

Earlier, police had said the victims may have died by poisoning.

Nearly $1.1 million may be spent on prison decorations

Associated Press

BOSTON--Massachusetts has budgeted nearly $1.1 million to beautify prisons with art under a little-known law being criticized by lawmakers and officials.

The expenditures for anything from lawn sculpture to paintings to art classes stem from a law passed in 1981 under then-Gov. Edward King. It requires that 1 percent of construction costs on public buildings be devoted to art, up to a maximum of $100,000.

Prison construction will be one of the biggest areas of state construction over the next decade because of the need to update and expand an antiquated system.

As a result, a large chunk of public money will be go toward art in new or renovated state and county prisons.

Massachusetts, with an $11.6 billion budget for fiscal 1989, is grappling with a potential deficit that some say could be $500 million or more because of lessthan-projected revenue growth.

Gov. Michael Dukakis, who lost the presidential election to George Bush last week, is expected to address the fiscal crisis on Monday.

The art law, which was buried within a complex construction bill, drew incredulous responses from some public officials.

"You have people here accused of stealing art from people's homes and they're going to be rewarded with art? It doesn't make any sense," said Bristol County Sheriff David Nelson, whose new Bristol County House of Correction, slated for completion next year, qualifies for $100,000 in artwork.

State Rep. Joseph Hermann introduced legislation last week to exempt prisons from the 1 percent law

"I don't consider a jail a public place, unless I'm going to say, 'Come on, honey, let's go down to the jail and look at the art,''' he said.

State officials defended the art expenditures, saying they are meant to benefit visitors to prisons and neighbors of the facilities, not just inmates.

"A piece of public art could do a lot to remediate the affect of having a prison in your com-munity," said Rick Schwartz, a spokesman for the Massachusetts Council on Arts and Humanities.

At the Worcester County Jail, for example, an outdoor sculpture was put in place with art money. Schwartz said there has been an increase in the number of inmates taking art appreciation courses, partly as a result of the sculpture project.

"Ninety percent of all prisoners get out," Schwartz said. "To put these people only through the most brutal situation and have them experience only the worst aspects of life is short-sighted."

Kathy Robertson, spokeswoman for the Division of Capital Planning and Operations, which manages state construction projects, said the art "is a benefit to the community; it's a benefit to the prisoners; it's a benefit to the employees."

Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall is in line for $25,000 in art money because of a renovation project and an additional $100,000 because of new construction.

vie for key positions in Congress

Associated Press

WASHINGTON-Congress is preparing for a final fling at the ballot box-this time to elect its own leaders for the next two years.

The jobs at stake range from leadership in the Senate to the second and third positions in the line of succession to the presidency of the United States.

With Democrats expanding their control of both the Senate and the House in last Tuesday's election, no upheavals will take place in party control of the 101st Congress and all of its committees. Democratic leaders keep their majority status; Republican leaders remain minority leaders.

Only a few of the leadership spots are contested, topped by the fight to succeed Robert Byrd of West Virginia as Senate majority leader. Byrd will step down from top party lead-ership to succeed John Stennis of Mississippi as Senate president pro tempore, a largely ceremonial job that is third in the line of succession to the presidency, behind the vice president and speaker of the House

Jim Wright of Texas is certain to return for his second term as speaker of the House of Representatives-a position voted on by all House members but held by the majority party.

Three men want the powerful Senate majority leader post--Daniel Inouye of Hawaii, Bennett Johnston of Louisiana and George Mitchell of Maine. Their campaigns have been confined to quiet cloakroom conversations, with a rule of thumb being that the less said publicly, the better. Inouye broke the public silence among the three candidates earlier this month to say he expects to win on the second ballot.

ways to best avoid a computer virus attack. "I tell students to always buy software from reliable sources like computer stores," said Cooper. He also suggests that students use floppy disks instead of hard disks, since viruses do more damage to the larger and more complex hard disks.

Although Notre Dame's computer network contracted the virus rather late, in comparison to other college campuses throughout the country, Cooper foresees the "n virus" crisis as the first of many battles against viruses. He perceives these products of malicious programmers as inevitable.

"Human nature is such that this is just the beginning of the problem. Many viruses just haven't made it here yet. For many programmers, it's an ego trip to develop effective viruses."

Baltic states show benefits, dangers of Gorbachev's plan

Associated Press

MOSCOW-Three tiny republics on the Soviet Union's western fringe are showing Mikhail Gorbachev's Kremlin the benefits of its new reform policies, but also the dangers of loosened central control and greater local initiative.

After the 1939 Hitler-Stalin pact deeded control over Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania to the Kremlin, the Russians kept a tight grip on the three ministates along the Baltic Sea. But President Gorbachev,

But President Gorbachev, the Communist Party chief since March 1985, is promoting more local autonomy in a bid to revive the stagnant national economy.

Moscow's relaxed embrace and greater tolerance for local initiative and opinion may have let the genie out of the bottle in the nationalistic, prickly Baltics, with unforeseen consequences for the Westwardlooking republics and for the multi-ethnic nation as a whole.

"We have been reduced to the level of slaves in a manor," one Estonian, Enno Petts, complained during October's organizational meeting of the People's Front, an independent group seeking more say for Estonians over their own affairs.

As a sign of Kremlin concern over rising disaffection in the Baltics, three members of the ruling party Politburo flew there last week. In remarks reported by Soviet media, they promised increased economic and cultural automony but ruled out any restoration of independence, which ended for the Baltic states in 1940 when the Red Army marched in.

"It is possible to receive independence and to lose everything else," Politburo member Viktor Chebrikov told Estonians on Saturday.

Growing clamor in the Baltics has focused on Gorbachev's blueprint for political change. Activists say the changes will annul their republics' right to secede-now recognized in theory by the 1977 Soviet Constitution-and shift economic and social control to Moscow. The political transformation, which also creates a new national congress and a powerful presidency, leaves the republics "with fewer rights than a province of czarist Russia," said the newspaper Sovietskaya Estonia, summing up complaints voiced at a recent meeting of Estonia's People's Front.

The 60,000-member People's Front sent a telegram to the Soviet leader complaining that "these drafts are a step backward in the development of electoral democracy."

The Latvian Peoples' Front also has rejected the proposed reforms, and an equivalent group in the third Baltic republic, the Lithuanian Restructuring Movement, plans to meet to discuss the issue.

The Kremlin leadership needs the more productive and innovative Baltic states to spur its economic reform campaign, and the visiting Politburo members seemed at pains to ensure residents that their concerns are heard in Moscow.

Researchers at IU Medical School will test new drug

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS--Researchers at the Indiana University Medical Center are hoping a new drug they plan to test will improve the quality of life for Alzheimer's disease victims.

The drug, Milacemide, is designed to "excite" sluggish brain cells of Alzheimer's victims, said Dr. Hugh Hendrie, chairman of Indiana University's department of psychiatry.

try. The drug will not arrest the relentless brain disorder, but scientists are hoping it will at least slow the loss of mental control suffered by victims of the ailment.

The drug can improve memory by stimulating a group of chemical messengers in a part of the brain associated with memory and learning, doctors say.

"It's just like a lock and key," Hendrie said. "The (cell) receptor is sitting there like a little lock, and the chemical agent comes in with a particular molecular structure. It fits into the lock, and it turns the lock?" ory developed by Graham Collingridge, a British researcher who found that memory cells are activated by a process involving a naturally occurring amino acid.

Based on this finding, the Illinois-based Searle pharmaceutical company developed Milacemide. Given orally, it delivers an extra helping of this amino acid to the brain, setting off a chemical chain reaction.

Despite its promise, Milacemide's worth as a therapy for Alzheimer's remains to be proven, said Robert Frederickson, Searle's senior director for central nervous system research.

"Alzheimer's is a very devastating situation and you have a lot of very desperate people out there looking for something to help them. You really don't want to create false hopes," Frederickson said.

Such caution partly stems from medical science's disappointing experience with the widely publicized drug THA.

That drug was based on the finding that a chemical messenger called acetylcholine was deficient in the brains of Alzheimer's victims. THA that blocks the enzyme destroys acetylcholine. Although tests of THA continue, it is naive to believe that major results can be achieved in this way, said Dr. Robert prominent Terry, a Alzheimer's researcher from the University of California at San Diego.

State school officials stress importance of early education

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS-Programs to help children at risk of failing in school need to start in pre-school, according to a statement released Saturday by a national group of top state school officials.

The Council of Chief State School Officers, which is meeting here through Monday, said states must reach disadvantaged children earlier and increase parental involvement with their pre-school children.

"The council believes the single most important investment to be made in education is the provision of high-quality programs for the nation's families," the statement said. Good early-childhood programs are linked to success in school, the council said. Prekindergarten programs should begin at age 3, the statement said. "Parts of a fabric of early childhood education programs already exist; these parts need to be woven together to reach all who need and want to be covered," the report said.

Programs must include a well-prepared staff, appropriate adult-child ratios, sound evaluation and programming that would fit the child's and family's needs.

"Public policy must incorporate the best of what we youngest children who are know about caring for and most at risk and for their educating young children," the group said.

New parents-particularly those with children younger than 2--need to be helped to "essupportive tablish early, partnerships to help their children," they said. States should also support family roles at home, assure that formal schooling would fit with the child's early experiences and be sensitive to the family's culture.

"The family 'curriculum' in the earliest years is more important than the school curriculum," the statement said. 'However, increasing numbers of families need assistance in providing experiences which lead to positive development of children.'

U.S. anti-drug efforts ineffective

Associated Press

WASHINGTON-Bolivian farmers brought three times as much new land under coca cultivation in 1987 as the government of that country eradicated under an agreement with the United States, congressional investigators said.

Widespread corruption in Bolivia and the violence of the drug lords in Colombia, along with greatly increased cultivation, have rendered U.S. State Department anti-drug programs in those countries ineffective, investigators for the General Accounting Office wrote in a report last week.

GAO did not examine the programs of the Drug Enforcement Agency in Bolivia and Colombia.

Colombia is the world's largest producer of cocaine, which is made from the coca leaf, and the source of 75 percent of the U.S. supply. Production capacity for 1987 was estimated by the State department at 143 tons. Bolivia is the second-ranking producer with capacity of 99 tons.

State Department anti-drug expenditures in the two countries will have totaled $106 million by the end of the current fiscal year, with current time.

annual spending about $10 million in each country. Spending by the Drug Enforcement and drug-related Agency spending by the Agency for International Development in both countries add $15.6 million a year.

A voluntary coca eradication program wiped out 2,570 acres in 1987 and early 1988, "an all-time high for Bolivia," but an estimated 8,150 acres were brought under cultivation, making the total about 100,000 acres, the report said.

"Bolivian narcotics interdiction efforts during 1987 were even less impressive since only 2 percent of the coca paste produced in Bolivia was seized, in addition to 148 kilograms (326 pounds) of cocaine," the GAO report said.

Colombia has made a notable effort to combat coca cultivation and processing and has been the most cooperative of all Andean countries but was unable to prevent farmers from increasing coca area from 38,300 acres in 1985 to 61,800 acres in 1987, GAO wrote.

Colombian- eradication fell from 4,940 acres in 1985 to 1,140 acres in 1987, though seizures of laboratories nearly doubled from 725 to 1,360 in the same

Murder suspect turns himself in LAFAYETTE, Ind.-David Ohm, the second suspect in the Oct. 19 murders of two elderly Tippecanoe County men, was custody Sunday in after surprising authorities.

Ohm, 20, walked into the state police post north of West Lafayette early Saturday morning and was being held in Tippecanoe County Jail without bond, officials said.

Ohm was taken to the jail after talking for nearly two hours with a lawyer, Edward Kennedy. The lawyer said someone from his firm, Heide, Sandy, Deets and Kennedy, would represent the Lafayette resident, but declined to comment further.

Ohm also met briefly with state police Detective Sgt. Herb Clear, who is in charge of the murder investigation. Ohm refused to talk about where he was since the killings or about the murders, Clear said.

Ohm and Bryan Brown, 21, also of Lafayette, are accused in Annandale, Va., by FBI agents and returned to Tippecanoe County, where he is being held without bond. Police speculated that Ohm fled south about five days after the murders, when he learned that he was wanted for questioning about the killings.

Brown and Ohm are being held in separate areas of the jail, police said.

Ohm arrived at the state police post Saturday with another man, whom Clear identified as Michael Collins, a high school friend of Ohm's. Clear said he did not know how and where Ohm and Collins had met up.

drug-dealers still roam streets

Associated Press

ANGELES-Drug-LOS dealing gang members are murdering in record numbers despite police sweeps and the mayor's pledge to "take these terrorists off the streets.'

But authorities insist the battle is being won in target areas such as south-central Los Angeles and say those successes are not reflected in the numbers

Police Department figures show gang-related homicides rose threefold in October compared with the same month last year, from 11 to 33. For the year through Oct. 31, they were up nearly 25 percent, from 166 in 1987 to 207.

This year's total already surpasses the record 205 gang killings for all of 1987

In Los Angeles County areas where the sheriff enforces the law, 79 gang-related murders were recorded by late October, matching the total for all of 1987

Meanwhile, crack-dealing Crips and Bloods, the deadliest gangs in the nation's secondlargest city, continue to surface in towns and cities across the western United States.

"We aren't losing the war, we just aren't winning in the data," department spokesman Cmdr. William Booth said Friday. However, Booth conceded, "The data does tell us we are a long way from winning the war.

In April, Mayor Tom Bradley, a former police lieutenant, vowed during the first 1,000officer gang task force sweep, "We are going to take these terrorists off the streets of Los Angeles.'

More than 21,000 people, 12,000 of them gang members, have been arrested by the department's gang task force since February, most of them during the highly publicized sweeps, including one Saturday night that netted more than 175 people. Police said they do not know how many arrests resulted in convictions.

Next year's mayoral race between Bradley and his expected challenger, Councilman Zev Yaroslavsky, will certainly put the focus on gangs again.

"Crime is the No. 1 issue on everyone's mind," Yaroslavsky said Friday. "The gangs in the city have become the purveyor of drugs to the nation."

U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, FBI and Customs agents recently joined the Department Police and Sheriff's Department in the gang battle. "The Los Angeles drug problem is not just a local problem. Federal intervention is absolutely essential," Yaroslavsky said.

A few nights ago, we were sitting happliy at a hall council meeting for our dorm. Like most students on campus, we think our dorm is the greatest. So imagine our surprise when it was announced that the Office of Student Residences had enacted a new housing policy which strikes at the heart of University life-the "family" atmosphere.

Julie Scharfenberg Julie Bennett

guest column

What? You say you haven't heard of this policy? Well, let us tell you about it. This new policy may have a drastic impact on you. The Office of Student Residences has put into effect a quota system to "eliminate the necessity of placing incoming freshmen in temporary housing." Under the new policy, the rector/rectress of each dorm is required to block off 25 percent of the dorm for incoming freshmen. If returning students comprise more than 75 percent of a particular dorm, one of two things will happen: returning students will have the "option" of transferring to another dorm with "leftover" space for the upperclassmen. If this is not successful in creating the required 25 percent, students will be placed in a lottery. The winners get to stay in their own dorms. The losers are forced out.

The Office of Admissions has consistently underestimated the matriculation rate for several years, resulting in an overabundance of incoming freshmen. But is that a reason to forcibly relocate students, who have formed close friendships in their dorms and who were guaranted on-campus housing? No student we have talked to thinks so, but student opinion does not seem to matter to the administrationas has been proven in the past. Are we paying $14,000 a year to cover someone else's mistakes?

One of the main reasons we came to Notre Dame was the appeal of its unique residential life. We liked the idea of the University as an extended family and our hallmates as our immediate family. We were assured that the lack of fraternities and sororities would not hinder the formation of close-knit friendships; in fact, it has helped them. We have developed many close friendships at Notre Dame, especially within our dorm, which has been better than any sorority. Now all that is threatened by a policy which will tear apart our "family." The worst is that we may not be able to room with the roommates we have chosen.

We have a few questions for the people who decided to implement this brilliant policy: How would you like it if your son or daughter were suddenly forced out of his or her dorm? Taken away from his or her friends with no guarantee of being placed with other friends? Faced with the possibility of getting the roommate from hell during his or her junior or senior year?

The administration has persisted in making serious mistakes. First there was the SYR/Alcohol policy fiasco. Then it moved on to cause the freshmen football ticket disaster. Now, on top of it all, they shove a new residential policy at us. What is happening to that beautiful family image the University so carefully constructed in its viewbooks and information packets? We are appalled at the fact it has become mere propaganda. We had expected more from an administration supposedly committed to creating a Christian environment of love, trust and friendship.

Did the Office of Student Residences realize that there are other alternatives to solving this problem?

First, admit less freshmen. The Office of Undergraduate Admissions has failed to recognize the effect a winning football season has on the matriculation rate.

Second, put freshmen wherever there is room. This solves the problem of temporary housing. A disproportionate number of freshmen in a given dorm is not damaging because they are adjusting to a new living situation anyway. Why uproot the returning students and force us to readjust too? This would be requiring us to go through another freshman year at a time when we are making crucial choices for our future. Instead of limiting confusion, the new policy will increase it on all levels.

The third and best solution, and the one most roundly ignored, is to leave the situation alone. This type of situation will ultimately correct itself. There will be students who switch dorms on their own. Why disrupt the lives of those who are happy where they are? Direct proportion does not lend itself to a happy environment.

The new policy is in effect. Yes, once again your opinion has not mattered. Now is the time to stand up. We pay to attend this University. We pay to have our opinions matter. We are paying to have our lives disrupted. It is time for this to stop. Start now by writing to the Director of Student Residences. The student publications are also good places to voice your opinion. Don't forget to ask parents and alumni for their letters, calls and support as well. But for your own sake, don't be silent or your number may (or may not) come up next spring.

Fat Boys skit harms our community

Dear Editor:

I am writing concerning the Fat Boys parody in the Sorin Hall Talent Show. Regardless of its intent, the parody was offensive to many, both blacks and nonblacks, in the University community. Moreover, it is a reminder to all of us of the need to continually address the issues of ethnic and racial insensitivity as well as that of blatant racism.

In any academic community civility and human behavior are basic to the good order of the community. These characteristics provide a critical context for teaching, scholarship, and quality living. In a place like Notre Dame which is rooted in gospel values and the Catholic tradition, expectations necessarily supersede the minimal requirements and standards of the law and basic good order.

Racial slurs in any form or forum are antithetical to the values of the University. Further, they are nothing short of harassment and degrading to the whole community. Harassment in any form is a serious violation of the expectations of this academic community. The absence of ill-will does not mitigate the hurt caused to others or the insensitivity of the behavior.

The attitudes reflected in racially insensitive or racist behavior are much more difficult to change than the behavior itself. Nonetheless, attitude change will be essential to the eradication of racism on the campus, in our nation, and in the world. Communication and collaboration are key elements in altering perceptions and attitudes. Each of us should look for opportunities to increase communication and share experiences with persons of differing cultural and racial heritages. Taking advantage of the activities offered in this Year of Cultural Diversity would be a good beginning for some. Constructive dialogue in the residence halls would also be a good beginning for others.

No one likes to be degraded, especially in the name of entertainment or someone else's fun. I share the deep regrets of many for what was offensive and hurtful to the black members of our community.

Grad School Nite set for Tuesday

Dear Editor:

Is there life after college? Although many undergraduates think not, life after graduation poses more questions and possibilities than ever before. Recognizing the overwhelming variety of choices facing Notre Dame and Saint Mary's graduates, student government, the senior class, the Graduate Student Union and the Alumni Association are sponsoring the first annual "Graduate School Night" on Tuesday, Nov. 15, from 7 - 9 p.m. in Theodore's. Of course, refreshments will be served.

Graduate School Night is an opportunity for all undergraduates to explore the possibility of graduate school. Representatives of Notre Dame's Law, M.B.A., Humanities, Social Science, Engineering, and Science graduate schools will be on hand to offer advice and information. Questions on testing, applications, finances, and any other concerns will be answered by graduate students from almost thirty different departments.

Graduate school is an option that many of Notre Dame's students eventually take. So why not stop by Theodore's between 7 and 9 tomorrow night, grab a snack, and get a jump on the graduate school game?

Student volunteers work to provide affordable housing

NATE FITZGERALD accent writer

abitat for Humanity seeks to eventually eliminate ramshackle housing and homelessness with a simple formula. Combine the forces of volunteer labor and lowincome families to construct affordable housing for deserving hard-working families.

Kevin Mundy, a Notre Dame senior, began working with the South Bend affiliate of Habitat last spring, and now heads the campus chapter of Habitat. Kevin always had an Bend affiliate's house on three separate workdays this fall. Groups from campus, including students from ROTC, the band, and the Stanford Hall, have also helped on the workdays, doing anything from putting up vinyl siding to building a retension wall to prevent erosion.

Charlie Maher, a senior who has helped in the renovation of the South Bend affiliate's house on South St. Joseph's Street, said, "It's nice to see something accomplished by the end of the day.'

"partnership with Habitat."

The Osbourne's were in a seemingly hopeless situation before they were introduced to a Habitat representative. Thier son, Ricky, is a victim of Klipel Feil syndrome and Sleep Apnea, disorders requiring that he be taken to Riley's Childrens Hospital in Indianapolis once a month for checkups. The medical bills that the Osbourne's have are so large that they would not be able to own decent housing without Habitat.

"Our payments would be triple in the normal housing market," said Betsy Os-bourne. "We don't know what we'd do without them (Habitat), the students coming out and working is fantastic."

She added that she is definitely going to continue working with Habitat after they have completed their hours. " I'm completely sold on it," she said.

The key to Habitat," said Mundy, " is that it's not sheer charity. After having committed the hours, we are insured that we will get responsible and dependable people.'

Mundy says that ideally, he would like to have the membership of Habitat up to about 40 so that he could take ten people out to the worksite each weekend and each person would only have to volunteer once a month. If the South Bend affiliate has a lag in workdays, members of the Notre Dame chapter can also work at sites in LaPorte or Elkhart, or help with fundraising for the South Bend affiliate.

Habitat was founded 12 years ago by Millard Fuller in Americus, Georgia. The houses usually cost an average of $25,000 to $30,000, built from the ground up, or undergo renovation as in the case of the South Bend house. By providing a way for people to help themselves, Habitat is successfully working to eliminate ramshackle housing in America and around the world.

Such is a typical scene in NBC's outrageous new com-edy "Dear John," which airs on Thursdays at 9:30. The show situates itself around One-Two-One, a support group for divorced and separated people. John's (Judd Hirsch) wife walks out on him and leaves him a note to that effect-hence the show's title. John attends a One-Two-One meeting where he meets the show's other regulars Ralph (Harry Groener), Kate (Isabella Hofmann), and Kirk (Jere Burns). It isn't long before the four are sharing their deepest secrets with each other and their director Louise (Jane Carr). Ralph, who personifies the word "nerd," tells about his friend who recently had an eye removed. Still uncomfortable with the group and not knowing what to say, Kate replies, "Was there something wrong with it?" "No," John replies sarcastically. "He did it for cosmetic reasons." Kirk, a self-proclaimed "stud," asks if John keeps in touch with his Kate tells Ralph to think pleasant thoughts about his past. Ralph tells his friends a story about the time he took his small camper and went on a long trip. The trip turned to disaster when some "punks" pushed the camper down a hill with Ralph in the bathroom. "Have you ever been trapped for two days, upside down in a toilet?" interest in carpentry and construction, and working with Habitat provided an outlet for these skills.

During his eight weeks working at a Habitat project in North Philadelphia, Kevin saw that Habitat for Humanity would fit in well at Notre Dame. The cast is very talented and realistic in portraying the characters; however, the writers are the cause for the sparkle in this gem of a comedy. The comic situations and one-liners make even the most stern of audience members laugh.

"Dear John" is a welcome addition to NBC's strong Thursday night lineup. It is a creative show to which its audience can relate. While inviting her group to a party, Louise says, "There will be other people such as yourselves. Granted, that doesn't sound like much of an *induce-*ment. "Louise couldn't be more wrong. It's a great inducement for viewers to tune in...and they do. Stay Tuned: The oldest of NBC's "The Golden Girls," Sophia will march down the aisle in an upcoming episode. The entire cast of "The Brady Bunch" will re-unite for "A Very Brady Christmas," which will air on CBS this Christmas. On the same note, a "Hart to Hart" reunion movie is in its planning stages. factor is that they also have to put in 500 hours of "sweat equity" as payment for their home. The Osbournes will work 250 hours on the renovation of their house, and will work the remaining 250 hours on the next project by the South Bend affiliate. Betsy Osbourne describes this as their

Irish wrestlers maul Falcons to win first dual meet of year

By GREG SCHECKENBACH Sports Writer

With the help of four pins, the Notre Dame wrestling team destroyed an outmanned Air Force squad 36-9 in its first dual match of the season Sunday at the Joyce ACC.

In the opening match, Andy Radenbaugh cruised to a 14-7 decision over Air Force's Kurt Buller at the 118-pound division. Radenbaugh is one of undefeated three Irish wrestlers, with Marcus Gowens and Chris Geneser being the other two.

Gowens, a freshman yet to lose a match at Notre Dame, squeaked by Tom Tingley 4-3 in the 126-pound class. The entire match was close as the score indicated, but Gowens clearly dominated his opponent.

Then the hammer fell. Senior Irish co-captain Jerry Durso pinned Jon Larson in an im- tinued the winning ways with a pressive time of 1:44. Durson had Larson sprawled on the ground in less than a minute, and the Falcon sophomore never got back up again.

"Jerry is looking much better. then last year," said Irish assistant coach Rick Stewart of his squad's 134-pounder. "Our goal for him is to win the national championship."

Pat Boyd, who has recovered fully an injury that kept him out of action for most of last season, needed just over six minutes to pin Mark Ciccarello in the 142-pound division. That put the Irish ahead 18-0 in the team scores.

Todd Layton added six more points to the team score in his 150-pound match. The sophomore from Independence, Kan., was far ahead of Tim Williams on points when the Air Force wrestler was disqualified for committing too many penalties.

Sophmore Mark Gerardi con-pin of Tom Herring at 2:55. Gerardi is suffering from a slight leg injury, but he should be back to full strength in a few weeks.

"We really wrestled well today considering it was our first match of the season, and I'm sure we'll do nothing but build," stated Gerardi.

Air Force freshman Rob Downey stopped the Irish shutout with a controversial decision over Notre Dame's Todd Tomazic. With one second left in the match, Tomazic was ahead by one point. Downey took Tomazic down and was awarded two points for the win. According to the referee, time had not yet expired in the match. This loss cut Notre Dame's lead to 30-3.

Chris Geneser dominated Air Force's Chase McCowen in the 177-pound match that followed Layton's loss. Geneser pinned McCowen in five minutes.

Flanner earns a shot at Pangborn in IH

By CHRIS FILLIO Sports Writer

Sunday night Flanner (7-2) defeated Stanford (8-1) in interhall soccer to advance to the championship series against Pangborn.

In a tightly contested match played under the lights at Cartier Field, Flanner forward Jim Keglovits scored the only goal of the game halfway into the second five-minute overtime. Up to that point it had been mostly a defensive battle

While Stanford kept the ball in Flanner's end for the majority of the game, some key plays on corner kicks by goalie Tom Malone kept the ball out of the net. Stanford sweeper Marcelo Renya played an exceptional game, keeping the offense of Flanner at bay and limiting the shots on goal.

Stanford captain Mark Kowalski noted his team's inability to keep play flowing from defense to offense.

"We didn't finish up front," said Kowalski. "We won the fifty-fifty balls and were aggressive, but we couldn't finish."

After eliminating the tough Off-Campus Hoobers, Stanford appeared poised to

"The wet turf and conditions might have helped us," said Flanner coach Bart Fox. "We didn't play a very good game."

Junior Stanford goalie Greg Talbot made the transition to that position remarkably well, recording several shutouts over the course of the season. The young team finished the season much better than expected, and will return most of its players for next year.

Flanner will now attempt to avenge a 2-0 loss to Pangborn which occurred earlier in the doubleelimination playoff tournament. Flanner must win two games in order to claim the championship, while Pangborn needs but a single victory.

"Man for man, we match up against Pangborn," said Fox. "But lately we haven't been playing well as a team. It's going to be tough."

The two teams will square off in the initial game at 7:00p.m. Tuesday night at either Cartier Field or Moose Krause Stadium. The site will be determined by NVA early this week.

And the Gold team used all of the above to jump out to a quick 17-4 lead early last night, a lead that they never relinquished.

The Blue squad tried to counter but couldn't seem to get completely comfortable with the offense, as it repeatedly put up near misses and could not find the bottom of the cylinder with any regularity.

The Gold team pulled out to a 21-9 lead before the Blue team cut the lead to 10 points only to see Haysbert score a breakaway basket off one of her three steals.

Freshman Deb Fitzgerald found the basket for the Blue squad to bring the score to 27-17, but the quick hands and feet of Karen Robinson and fellow sophomore Sara Liebscher stifled any hopes of a Blue comeback.

Gold-medal Soviets tour United States

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. -- The last time U.S. basketball fans saw these guys, Olympic gold medals were being hung around their necks. Medals that were supposed to be for the United States team.

The Soviet Union changed that with an 82-76 semifinal victory that kept the United States from the gold-medal game for the first time ever.

It went on to win the gold medal over Yugoslavia and put on a victory celebration usually reserved for NCAA championship games. It continued when the players arrived home.

"Basketball is No. 1 sport there," said guard Sharunas Marchulionis, the Gail Goodrich look-alike who would love to play in the NBA. "all people were happy. They celebrate."

The Soviets started a ninegame tour against NCAA competition on Saturday at North Carolina. And, with 10 of the same players from the team that won the gold medal, they beat the Tar Heels 104-93.

Sabonis, Marchulionis, Alexander Volkov and Valeri Tikhonenko are all considered NBA caliber. Sabonis was a first-round draft choice of the Portland Trail Blazers.

Graduate Mary Gavin's heir apparent Robinson was also able to display her talents at the point of the Gold team's offense, feeding senior Heidi Bunek underneath for many of her team-high 12 points and setting the transition game in motion to set the tempo for much of the game.

The Gold team also had success with Haysbert slipping inside the key, as she scored eight points primarily off a quick first-step around her defender, and with junior Cathy Emigholz hustling under the boards to grab the loose ball and score off second shot attempts.

Both teams had trouble establishing position inside, as neither team had a good night rebounding.

The Notre Dame men's and women's swimming teams rebounded from last weeks defeats to sweep four dual meets from its opponents this weekend. Kevin Reisch details the action below.

Irish rebound by winning four meets

By KEVIN REISCH Sports Writer

A rejuvenated Notre Dame swimming team showed up in the pool this past weekend to capture its first two victories of the season. The Irish men's and women's squads bounced back from previous defeats against Texas Christian by blowing Wisconsin-Milwaukee and Ferris State out of the water.

At Rolfs Aquatic Center Friday night, the Notre Dame men exploded to a 172-127 triumph over Wisconsin-Milwaukee. The women also raced past the Panthers, 165-141.

"This meet showed what Notre Dame swimming is all about," said Irish coach Tim Welsh. "It was a strong team effort, with great team unity. We swam faster, more relaxed, and more assertive than last week.'

Sophomore Paul Godfrey paced the men with first-place finishes in the 200-yard butterfly (1:59.57) and the 200-yard backstroke (2:03.81). Senior captain John Froman added another win (49.25) in the 100-yard freestyle event. These were just a couple of stars in a meet dominated by the depth of the Irish "Wisconsin-Milwaukee was fast, but they had some holes in their program," Welsh said. "Whereas depth was our strength, depth was their weakness. In addition, our front-line performances were much better."

The women swept past the Panthers in the first race and never looked back. Katie Pamenter, Becky Wood, Christy Moston, and Tracy Johnson combined for a triumph in the 200-yard medley Later, relay. Pamenter (backstroke), Wood (breaststroke), and Johnson (freestyle) all sped to a pair of victories in their respective events.

On Saturday, Notre Dame traveled to Ferris State and again overwhelmed the competition. The men topped the opponents 152-83, while the women outscored them 132-107.

Freshman Chuck Smith led the Irish by leaping to first in the 50-yard freestyle race (22.25) and the 100-yard freestyle (48.55). In the 400-yard medley relay, David Thoman, Jay Nash, Bill Jackoboice, and Chris Petrillo teamed up to top the field. Jackoboice continued his success with an individual triumph in the 200-yard breaststroke race, beating his teammates Jim Byrne and Roger Rand by less than a second.

For the women, sophomore Amy Tri coasted to first in the 1000-yard freestyle (11:09.83) and the 200-yard butterfly (2:26.04). Freshman Jackie Jones won the 200-yard freestyle event, while her classmate Debbie Brady contributed a victory in the 500-yard freestyle race. To round out the scoring, the combination of Pamenter, Bolattino, Quinn, and Johnson accounted for a triumph in the 400-yard medley relay victories, Notre Dame raised its record to 2-1 and gained momentum for the National Catholic Championships taking place Dec. 1-3 in Philadelphia.

Senior Theresa Rice said that nobody was satisfied with their performance because they didn't reach their potential. But she added that the conditions were less than ideal. The course was muddy and the temperature was in the low 40s.

Women finish disappointing 15th

Rice, the captain of the squad, came in first for the Irish, finishing 32nd overall with a time of 18:36 on the 5000 meter course. Lucy Nusrala was 77th, despite falling in the mud toward the end of the race. She was followed by Linda Filar. Terese Lemanski (94th) and Jennifer Ledrick (110th) rounded out the first five runners for the Irish. The scoring was based on team performance.

Two facts made the Irish finish especially frustrating. First, the team wasn't able to improve on last year's performance in this same meet. Notre Dame finished 14th from among 22 teams at the 1987 Districts. The Irish had wanted to better their results from last season, but they didn't.

18th,

Second, the squad had run en-couragingly at the previous two races, against USC, where they won by a large margin, and at the Midwestern Collegiate Conference Championships, where they lost by only two points. The Irish were looking forward to continuing to run well at the Districts.

Now that the season is over, Coach Connelly gave an overall evaluation.

"We had some talent, but I don't know that we ran up to our capabilities," he said. "We didn't meet our expectations."

Theresa Rice was more positive

"We have to keep this in perspective. We had a few key injuries to combat throughout the season," she said. "I would say the season was successful.

Irish volleyball turns Golden in sweep of Classic

By MOLLY MAHONEY Sports Writer

They were golden.

The Notre Dame women's volleyball team outshined a talented field of opponents last weekend to capture the inaugural Golden Dome Classic and cast a new light on its chances to gain a first-ever NCAA bid.

The Irish started out slowly Friday night but still won in three games over Duke, 15-7, 15-8 and 15-6 and took the court Saturday like a team possessed to beat Northwestern easily in a three-game match, 15-3, 15-5 and 15-5.

"I always told the girls that if we put it all together we'd destroy someone," said Irish head coach Art Lambert, "and that is exactly what we did tonight (against Northwestern).

"We looked a little sluggish Friday, but (Saturday) we did all the little things right and just put on an impressive display as a team."

Notre Dame's play was indeed impressive Saturday night, as the Irish, playing their last home match of the year, used emotion and consistent play to dominate the Wildcats and claim three spots on the all-tourney team. Seniors Mary Kay Waller Seniors Mary Kay Waller and Maureen Shea and freshman sensation Julie Bremner all earned all-tourney honors. Waller was also named the tourney's most valuable player.

The Irish, led by strong allaround play from the team's four seniors--Waller, Shea, Zanette Bennett and Whitney Shewman--who were playing their last collegiate home match, established the tempo of the match early in game one. The Wildcats could never get into gear.

Bears beat Redskins;

Northwestern, as the Irish took an early 6-0 lead that they never relinquished.

The Irish did not let up in game two, as they wore the Wildcats down with long volleys and a human wall that sent the Wildcat's team hitting percentage into into a swift decline.

Notre Dame did not even appear daunted by a slow start in game three that kept the team in holding pattern until Bennett dropped a soft shot into the Wildcat defense to break a 5-5 tie.

The Irish took off at that point, as the Wildcats did not score another point in the game and finished with a deplorable .063 hitting percentage.

Bennett led the Irish with a team-high 12 kills for a .474 hitting percentage and also tallied four total blocks.

Imitation was the sincerest form of flattery for Waller and Shelton, who both registered 10 kills for a .400 hitting percentage. Waller also tallied a team-high five total blocks. Bremner hustled all over the court to record a team-high 13 digs defensively and 38 assists to set up her hitters.

Friday night the Irish lacked the techical polish of Saturday's performance, but the team survived an error-filled battle with Duke even with an unusually high 12 service errors.

Notre Dame was able to overcome its sloppy play in the first game largely because of Shea, who was able to control play on both sides of the net.

The Blue Devils made the Irish work for every point in the second game as well, picking up many of the Irish spikes with their hustle. But once again, they could never mount a serious offensive attack.

The third game gave the Irish a chance to experiment with some new talent, as freshman Christine Choquette and Katie Kavanaugh joined the lineup, to put the finishing touches on the Irish victory. Waller owned the net, as she recorded a match-high 15 kills for a .591 hitting percentage and four total blocks, as well as a team-high five digs.

Shelton provided some much need firepower from the left side as she tallied eight kills and a slew of seniors—Bennett, Shea and Shewman—all added seven kills to the cause.

Northwestern shocked Penn State earlier Friday evening, breaking their 25-match winning streak with a four-game victory, 15-12, 9-15, 16-14 and 15-8.

The impressive Irish play may be a harbinger of things to come for the team if they can continue to come on strong in the remaining two weeks of the regular season before NCAA bids are announced.

"I can't say enough about how the team looks right now," said Lambert. "It doesn't guarantee us a bid, but it is definitely a step in the right direction."

Bowl outlook no longer fuzzy

Associated Press

Miami will probably stay home for the holidays. But Notre Dame and West Virginia apparently are heading for a Fiesta in Arizona.

Although bowl bids don't officially go out until Saturday, many of the nation's top college football teams are already making travel plans.

Fourth-ranked West Virginia seemingly locked up a Fiesta Bowl date against No. 1 Notre Dame with a 35-25 victory over Rutgers, leaving No. 3 Miami as a likely opponent for the Oklahoma-Nebraska winner in the Orange Bowl. "We're going to be participating in a major bowl and there will be plenty of time for people to make their arrangements," West Virginia athletic director Fred Schaus said.

Schaus wouldn't name the bowl, but there was little doubt he was talking about the Fiesta.

Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz, whose team is also being sought by the Orange, was coy when asked about the bowl situtation.

The key to being successful at a cross country meet with many competitors is to have depth, minimizing the gap between its first and last runners. At districts, Cahill, O'Rourke and Mulvey provided that depth, making the gap between the first and fifth runners 69 seconds.

"The success of the team is highly due to Cahill, O'Rourke, and Mulvey," said Piane. "We told them from the outset of the season that the three, four and five runners would determine the season for us. At the meet, they came through."

Bill Taylor, who was also the winner of the Notre Dame Invitational earlier this year, won the 10,000-meter district meet.

Ron Markezich led the Irish runners, placing eighth on the course in 31:35. Garrett finished 16th, completing the course in 31:56.

"When I finished the race I thought that I screwed up,' said Garrett, who was hoping to finish in the top 10. "Then I turned around and saw Ryan (Cahill), Tom (O'Rourke) and Mulvey, and knew we had a shot at qualifying."

"What bowl can we go to to possible enhance our standings?" he said. "Winning the national championship is nice. It's not an absolute necessity and it's not something everyone's obsessed with, but if you are going to do something in tradition with Notre Dame's history ... let's be the best we possibly can be."

Translation: look for a Notre Dame-West Virginia matchup in the Fiesta, no matter what happens the rest of the season. Both teams are currently undefeated, although the Irish still must play Penn State and No. 2 Southern Cal, while West Virginia has a date with No. 15 Syracuse on Saturday.

Notre Dame handed Miami its only loss this season, 31-30. But the Irish have no desire for a rematch, so the Hurricanes will probably have to settle for an Orange Bowl berth against the Big Eight champion.

The tentative lineup for the other Jan. 2 bowls looks like this: Michigan vs. the Southern Cal-UCLA winner in the Rose; Arkansas vs. Florida State or UCLA in the Cotton; Auburn or

Louisiana State vs. Southern Cal or Florida State in the Sugar; Clemson vs. the Nebraska-Oklahoma loser in the Citrus; and Syracuse vs. Auburn or LSU in the Hall of Fame

Michigan clinched the Big Ten championship and the Rose Bowl berth with a 38-9 victory over Illinois. But Michigan coach Bo Schembechler said he's only thinking about Saturday's upcoming game against arch-rival Ohio State.

"We're playing the biggest game of the year next week," he said. "The Rose Bowl doesn't mean as much to me as playing at Ohio State.'

LSU clinched at least a tie for the Southeastern Conference title with a 20-3 victory over Mississippi State, but they haven't clinched a spot in the Sugar Bowl.

If Auburn beats Alabama in Birmingham Nov. 25, it will share the league championship with LSU. If that happens, the Sugar Bowl committee will choose the league's representative in New Orleans.

Why are these men celebrating? The third-ranked Miami Hurricanes will probably be home for the holidays, playing on their home turf in the Orange Bowl. Although bowl are still a week away, most of the games are already set.

to gain its third straight Atlantic Coast Conference title and a trip to the Citrus Bowl.

his biggest race of the season by far, finishing 26th in 32:22. O'Rourke was right behind, running the circuit in 32:26, good enough for 29th. Mulvey sealed the Irish effort with a 39th-place finish in 32:43.

The Irish couldn't expect worse conditions at the meet, which partially explains the rather high times of all the runners. Conditions were described as "very windy, rain, muddy, in the low 40s."

"We got out there for the race and it was pouring," said Gar-rett. "It was like a mud-slick, and it was 45 degrees and freezing. It was the worst conditions I've ever run in."

Piane was honored by being named District IV coach of the year

"Something like that is really meaningful because it comes not from my wife but from the other coaches," he said.

Irish qualify for NCAA Meet

Cross country finishes 2nd in tough District IV

By SCOTT BRUTOCAO Sports Writer

It's "nationals, here we come."

Sports

The men's cross country team rose to the occasion on Saturday, finishing second at the District IV meet in Champaign, Ill., to secured the team a bid to the NCAA Championships

This is the second consecutive year that the Irish will be going to nationals, a feat they haven't accomplished since their repeat performance in 1965-66.

The Irish finished second in the district meet behind defending national champion Wisconsin and two points ahead of Michigan.

Following the meet, Irish named district coach of the year by a coaches poll, the second straight year he has received that honor.

"This race can be more satisfying in some ways than last said Piane. "Even year,' though nobody expected us to do it last year, we didn't have as many adversities to overcome.

Piane is referring to the fact that the Irish have been plagued by injuries, losing two of their top seven runners, Mike O'Connor and Pat Kearns, for the season, equivalent to Lou Holtz losing 27 of his football players for the year because of injuries.

The key to the team's success was not in its customarily awesome performances from

Head Coach Joe Piane was its top two runners, Dan Garrett and Ron Markezich, but from the strong showings from Ryan Cahill, Tom O'Rourke, and Rick Mulvey.

These three, having some problems earlier in the season, came together for the team's biggest test of the year and gave the team a trip to Des Moines, Iowa for the National Championships on Nov. 21.

"Those three all came together great," said senior Ron Markezich. "In the past they didn't put it all together, and Dan (Garrett) and I were coming through. At districts, Dan and I didn't run that well, and they saved us. Now we just have to put it all together at nationals.'

Captains lead 'Gold' over Blue

Special to the Observer

Co-captains Joe Fredrick and Jamere Jackson combined for 51 points to lead the Gold team past the Blue 74-66 in the Notre Dame basketball team's intrasquad charity game at the Joyce ACC

The charity game, which saw the Gold team actually dressed in white jerseys, drew a paid attendance of 1,470 fans and an income of $2,066 to be split between the Logan Center and Neighborhood Study Help Program.

Fredrick led all scorers with 28 points. The junior from Cincinnati, Ohio, shot 11-of-18 from two-point range and 2-of-3 from three-point land.

Jackson, a junior from Peoria, Ill., shot 10-of-15, including a perfect 2-of-2 from beyond the three-point stripe, for 23 points. Jackson also led all players with eight assists. Sophomore guard Tim Singleton scored 11 for the Gold, and junior Keith Robinson chipped in with 10.

Freshman guard Keith Adkins led the Blue team with 23 points. The freshman from Paintsville, Ky., made five three-point shots in the last nine minutes of the scrimmage. Junior Scott Paddock added 18 for the Blue, while Daimon Sweet freshman scored 11.

The Gold team's Keith Tower and Robinson each pulled down seven rebounds, as did Paddock for the Blue. Tower, a freshman from Coraopolis, Pa., also committed four fouls. All those fouls came in the first 15 minutes of play

The Blue team built a lead of as much as seven points during the first seven minutes of the game, but Jackson led a 17-4 run by the Gold. Jackson scored nine points and Robinson added six during the outburst.

Jackson and Fredrick took over from there, and the Blue team never did regain the lead. Fredrick scored 20 points in the final 20 minutes, and Singleton made nine of his 11 points during the same time span.

LaPhonso Ellis, the highly regarded freshman from East St. Louis, Ill., takes a Sunday night class and had to miss the scrimmage.

The Blue team was composed of Adkins, Paddock, sophomore Kevin Ellery and freshmen Elmer Bennett and Daimon Sweet.

Fredrick, Jackson, Robinson, Singleton, Tower and junior walkon Tim Crawford made up the Gold team.

Joe Fredrick (3) and Jamere Jackson led the Irish Gold/White team over the Blue in Notre Dame's annual intrasquad game held Sunday at the Joyce ACC. The co-captains combined for 51 of the winning team's 74 points.

Dame women's basketball team proved that it is indeed possible, as it engaged its annual intersquad battle--the Blue-Gold game.

The Gold team may have soundly defeated the Blue 43-19 in the game's one half of play, but win or lose, the yearly ritual provides coaches and fans alike with an opportunity to mark the team's progress and gives the players a chance to break out of the monotony of preseason drills.

The Gold team dominated play for the entire game, but, with just one freshman-Comalita Haysbert--and six returning letterwinners, it was able to take advantage of the relative inexperience of a Blue team comprised of many newcomers.

DALLAS--The Notre Dame men's soccer team's first-ever NCAA Tournament appearance turned sour in six minutes.

Southern Methodist University defender David Carlson scored his first goal of the season six minutes into Sunday's first-round game and the Mustangs went on to eliminate the Irish 2-0 in front of 1,343 fans at Ownbey Stadium.

"SMU played a very good game," said Notre Dame head coach Dennis Grace, whose team finishes the season at 17-4-2. "When you get behind early to a team that's given up only 12 goals all year, it gets pretty tough."

The Mustangs (11-2-6) have given up only 12 goals in 19 games this season, and outshot the Irish 16-2 Sunday. Three SMU shots hit the goalpost, while SMU keeper Matt Frederick saved the only Notre Dame shot on goal.

Carlson's was the first goal scored against Notre Dame in four games.

All-America forward Larry McPhail drilled a shot into the right corner of the net mid-way through the second half for the second Mustang tally.

SMU tied a school record by recording its 12th shutout of the year.
