Notre Dame at a glance . . .

The University of Notre Dame, once an obscure school in the northern Indiana wilderness, has become in little more than a century a great institution of higher learning, recognized the world over for the high caliber of its teaching, research, and public service.

Founded in 1842 by the Holy Cross Fathers, a French missionary community, Notre Dame is now governed by a predominantly lay Board of Trustees, one of several evolutionary changes which have kept the University among the pioneers in American Catholic higher education. The chairman of the Board of Trustees is Edmund A. Stephan, an alumnus of the University and a Chicago, Ill., attorney. The president of Notre Dame is the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., who has served since 1952 as the University's sixteenth president.

Administration Building (36)

The first president of the University, the Rev. Edward F. Sorin, C.S.C., whose statue stands at the beginning of the Administration Building mall, began his school for boys on the site of a log chapel. A replica of this log chapel, which served as a missionary outpost of the first priest ordained in the United States, is found today on campus, amidst more than 80 other campus structures, highlighted by the magnificent Notre Dame Memorial Library.

Now well into its second century of service to the nation and the Church, the University consists of a Graduate School, the Notre Dame Law School (the oldest Catholic law school in the United States), and four undergraduate colleges: Arts and Letters, Science, Engineering, and Business Administration. Specialized units within the University include the Lobund Laboratory, an internationally known facility for radiation chemistry research; the Mediaeval Institute; the Jacques Maritain Center, the Center for the Study of Man in Contemporary Society; the Institute for Advanced Religious Studies; and the Center for Continuing Education.

Father Hesburgh heads a faculty of 604 persons who hold advanced degrees from virtually every major university in the world. Laymen predominate on the faculty which numbers about 55 priests and religious, most of them members of the Congregation of Holy Cross. While Notre Dame is Catholic in its origin, traditions, philosophy and atmosphere, other denominations have always been represented in its faculty and student body.

Research is an important mission of every great university, and grants totaling more than $7,000,000 annually are testimony of the quality of Notre Dame's research programs. Lobund scientists are engaged in a variety of projects dealing with cancer, heart disease, nutrition and germfree human surgery. The University's research in radiation chemistry, the most extensive underway on any college or university campus, is centered in a new $2,200,000 Radiation Research Building erected by the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission. Other major areas of research include nuclear physics, polymer chemistry, international relations, aeronautical and metallurgical engineering and the social sciences. Expediting all of Notre Dame's research projects is a new Computing Center, built around a UNIVAC 1107.

Nieuwland Science Hall (52)

A university exists primarily, of course, for its students. Notre Dame's 7,200 students, known both for their scholarship and their spirit, represent every state of the Union and fifty-two foreign countries. In recent years graduating seniors have compiled an impressive record in nationwide fellowship competitions conducted by the Woodrow Wilson, Danforth and National Science Foundations.

Approximately 4,700 students live on the campus, and nearly one-third of the University's buildings provide living, eating and recreational facilities for them. Most of the undergraduates live in Notre Dame's nineteen residence halls, each with its own chapel. They eat in the University's two large dining halls which serve approximately 16,000 meals daily. More than 1,200 students are members of the Army, Navy, and Air Force ROTC units on the campus. The Stepan Center and the LaFortune Student Center provide excellent facilities for dances, other extracurricular activities and special events.

Lewis Hall (80)

Religion has never been "extracurricular" at Notre Dame. Sacred Heart Church, the Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes and the many chapels and shrines all serve as reminders that religion and morality are the mark of the Notre Dame man. Students attending the University have an unparalleled opportunity for spiritual development. Courses in theology (not required of non-Catholic students) are included in the curricula of all the colleges. For it is Notre Dame's conviction, today as always, that it is not enough for a University to develop professional competence in a young man. To it must be added a sense of moral and social responsibility which will fortify his family, professional and civic life. Notre Dame students are heavily committed to the Church's social apostolate, which received renewed emphasis during the Second Vatican Council. During a recent school year some 500 students were involved in tutoring disadvantaged youngsters in the South Bend area, and the percentage of Notre Dame graduates who enter the Peace Corps has been remarkably high.

Notre Dame's thousand acre campus, with its twin lakes and many wooded areas, is virtually a self-sustaining city with its own post office, power plant, television and radio stations and campus hotel, The Morris Inn. The University, with a full-time staff of 2,285, is one of the largest employers in the area. Its current annual operating budget is about $35½ million. However, Notre Dame's endowment of $60 million is one of the smallest among the nation's major private universities.

In September, 1967, Notre Dame launched an ambitious $52 million, five-year program designed to achieve development in depth of the University, particularly on the graduate level. Principle elements are the University's endowment for faculty salaries, its graduate and research programs, and its new campus construction. The program is called "SUMMA: Notre Dame's Greatest Challenge."

OF SPECIAL INTEREST

Some of Notre Dame's buildings and facilities, because of their historic character, recent construction or for other reasons, are of special interest to visitors. Among them are:

The Administration Building (36), surmounted by its famed golden dome and statue of Our Lady, was erected in 1879 after fire destroyed its predecessor. Also known as the Main Building, it houses the office of the president and the other principal administrative offices of the University. Murals by Luigi Gregori depicting the life of Christopher Columbus can be seen along its first-floor corridor. It is a tradition that students do not use the front steps of the building until the weekend of their graduation.

Sacred Heart Church (29) is the center of campus religious life. Built in 1871, its Gothic spire encloses the oldest carillon in North America. Of particular beauty are its stained glass windows imported from LeMans in France, the baroque altar in Our Lady Chapel, and the "Pieta" by the late Prof Ivan Mestrovic of Notre Dame. The body of the late John Cardinal O'Hara, C.S.C., former president of the University, is interred in a chapel to the left of the main altar.

The Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes (28) is a replica of the world-famous shrine at Lourdes in France. Completed in 1896, it is a center of devotion where students, faculty members and visitors pause to pray day and night. The Confraternity of the Immaculate Conception of Our Lady of Lourdes, whose offices are located to the rear of the Grotto, distributes Lourdes water throughout the United States.

Notre Dame Memorial Library (72)

The O'Shaughnessy Hall of Liberal and Fine Arts (56) is the home of Notre Dame's College of Arts and Letters. The stained glass windows in its Great Hall represent the seven liberal arts of the ancients. O'Shaughnessy Hall houses the University Gallery whose fine collection of painting and sculpture can be viewed from 1 to 5 p.m. daily. The building, dedicated in 1953, is the gift of Mr. I. A. O'Shaughnessy and the late Mrs. O'Shaughnessy of St. Paul, Minn.

Nieuwland Science Hall (52) provides classrooms and laboratories for Notre Dame's chemistry, physics and mathematics departments. Occupying a portion of the building is an "atom smasher" which is central to the University's nuclear physics research. The building, which was dedicated in 1953, honors the late Rev. Julius A. Nieuwland, C.S.C., who developed the formula for synthetic rubber and founded THE AMERICAN MIDLAND NATURALIST which is published by the University.

Computing Center and Mathematics Building (71)

The Notre Dame Memorial Library (72), which opened in the fall of 1963, stands at the center of a new east campus quadrangle. The thirteen-story building has a capacity of two million volumes and can seat nearly half of the University's undergraduates at one time. The college library occupies the first two floors, and the tower section of the building is devoted to graduate materials in the various academic disciplines and to several of Notre Dame's specialized research units.

Lewis Hall (80), a residence hall for nuns studying for advanced degrees at Notre Dame, is the newest of the University's eighteen student residences. The four-story building, which accommodates approximately 140 nuns and includes kitchen facilities and an enclosed courtyard, is a gift of the Frank J. Lewis Foundation, Chicago, Illinois.

The Hammes Notre Dame Bookstore (19), in addition to handling texts and other materials for students, has available campus souvenirs, religious articles and other items of interest to visitors. The bookstore's hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday. Dedicated in 1955, the building is the gift of Mr. Romy Hammes, Kankakee, Ill. and the late Mrs. Hammes.

The Center for Continuing Education (81), is the campus focal point for conferences, seminars and other specialized programs which provide an opportunity for scholars, businessmen and professional people to keep abreast with advances in their respective fields. Constructed through a $1 1/2 million grant from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation, Battle Creek, Mich., the Center provides twenty-two seminar rooms, an auditorium, audio-visual center, theater, and other facilities.

Sacred Heart Church (29)

The University Dining Halls serve the student body and provide banquet facilities for up to one thousand guests. The North Dining Hall (60), which opened in 1957, provides six attractive dining rooms and basement storage space for forty carloads of food. A cafeteria, open to visitors, is located in the South Dining Hall (17). Its hours are 7 to 10:30 a.m., 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., and 4.45 to 7 p.m. Snacks are available at The Huddle, in LaFortune Student Center, from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.

The Morris Inn (21) is an air-conditioned, 92-room hotel operated by the University at the entrance to the campus. It is the gift of the late Ernest M. Morris and Mrs. Morris of South Bend, Ind. Alumni and friends of Notre Dame are always welcome at The Morris Inn. Its dining room is open from 7 to 10:30 a.m., from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., and from 5:30 until 8:30 p.m.

The new Athletic and Convocation Center (79), with its twin arenas totaling more than 400,000 square feet, is the hub of campus sports competition. One arena has a seating capacity of 12,000 for basketball, convocations and other special events. The other includes an indoor track, a baseball infield, an ice skating rink and facilities for a variety of sports.

The Notre Dame Honor Concept

The Honor Concept expresses in a single sentence the entire commitment of the Notre Dame student:

"As a Notre Dame Student, I pledge honesty in all my academic work and will not tolerate dishonesty in my fellow students."

The Concept captures the meaning of the ideal of Honor, for it depends ultimately on the individual's personal avowal of academic honesty, in face of all difficulties. Its development at the University is thus hindered by the lack of commitment to honesty on the part of some, and the lack of concern on the part of others. Yet the Concept, initiated by the students, faculty and administration together, is a common effort for a common good and its growth is the responsibility of all.

A functioning Honor Concept can be not only a source of pride in itself to the University, but also a means to the attainment of ideals of individual and university life. Since it confronts the individual with the challenge to be honest with himself and with others, it lays open the opportunity to attain a new level in human dignity. Since an individual student cannot realistically accept the value of honesty unless it is very nature, unites all students into a community bound together by commitment to honesty. Finally, since the Honor Concept cannot function without the authority of the faculty and administration in academic matters, nor without their support of the student effort, it implies a closer understanding, mutual trust, and mutual respect among the elements of the Notre Dame community.

THE PRINTS OF GUADALUPE POSADA. Enrique Echeverria, former artist-in-residence at Notre Dame, has selected for us this group of prints by Posada from the Galeria Nacional. The craftsman whom Jean Charlot has called "Printmaker of the Mexican People," Posada was a vital influence upon muralist Jose Clemente Orozco.

Who Said ...
“First Things First?”

We don't know but we agree with the idea. And one of the first things you should do while you're young is check into your life insurance

Now - while you are in college - you qualify for the BENEFACTOR; the life insurance policy created for college students.

You pay less because you are a preferred risk. The BENEFACTOR is completely adaptable to your individual needs, all through your life.

It was created by College Life . . . The original and only life insurance company serving college men only.

You should take time now to listen to your College Life representative. It could be the most important conversation you'll ever have.
