American Catholic Studies Manuscript Competition Winner

Anthony J. Kuzniewski, a Jesuit seminarian, has been named the winner of the 1978 competition for the best book-length manuscript in American Catholic studies sponsored by the Center for the Study of American Catholicism.

"Faith and Fatherland: The Polish Church War in Wisconsin 1896-1918" is a study in the history of the Polish Catholic community. Based on extensive research in archives and newspapers of the Polish American community, it narrates the struggle of the Wisconsin Polish to maintain allegiance to their faith and culture in a German and Irish church.

Kuzniewski received his Ph.D. degree at Harvard University and currently is completing theological studies at the Jesuit School of Theology in Chicago.

Armstrong Award

The James E. Armstrong Award of the Notre Dame Alumni Association will be presented this year to Dominick J. "Nappy" Napolitano, associate professor of physical education and director of nonvarsity sports at the University who is retiring this June after a 51-year association at the school.

Raymond C. Gutschik, professor of earth sciences, was invited to be a North American corresponding member of the International Union of Geological Sciences' Subcommittee on Carboniferous Stratigraphy.

Madonna C. Kolbenschlag, H.M., assistant professor of American studies, was a member of a panel of judges for the 1979 Distinguished Service in Journalism Awards sponsored by the Sigma Delta Chi, the Society of Professional Journalists, judging in the television editorial category.

Ralph M. McInerney, Grace Professor of Medieval Studies and director of the Medieval Institute, was reappointed editor of The New Scholasticism by the executive council of the American Catholic Philosophical Association at the annual meeting of the association in Toronto, April 19-21.

Morris Pollard, chairman and professor of microbiology and director of the Lobund Laboratory, has been appointed to the editorial board of the Journal of Virological Methods.

John F. Santos, professor of psychology, has been named by the Regional Program for Minority Elderly to be on its six-man advisory and task force to develop a regional research center that will focus on the problems of ethnic and minority elderly residing in the southeastern part of the U.S.

James B. Stewart, director of the Black Studies Program and assistant professor of economics, has been awarded an Independent Study Fellowship by the National Endowment for the Humanities for the 1979-80 academic year. Stewart also has been named to the accreditation committee of the National Council for Black Studies. He continues to serve as the mid-western regional coordinator for that organization.

Activities

Tomoaki Asano, associate professor of microbiology, presented a paper, "Carcinogenesis by Dietary Nitrite in Experimental Animals," at the Annual Meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology in Dallas, Tex., April 1-10.

Hafiz Atassi, associate professor of aerospace and mechanical engineering, presented a seminar on April 3 at the University of Missouri, Rolla, entitled "Aerodynamics of Lifting Surfaces in Nonuniform Motion." He also gave a paper, "Effect of Shape and Incidence on the Instability of Airfoil Pitching Oscillations" at the 20th Structures, Structural Dynamics, and Material Conference in St. Louis, April 4-6.

Wendy Carlton, assistant professor of sociology and anthropology, presented a paper on "The Sociology of Motherhood" at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, on April 7, for the "Age X Gender" Conference. Carlton also spoke on "The Socialization of Medical Students to the Avoidance of Ethical Issues in Medicine" to members of the Committee on Medicine and Religion, St. Joseph Hospital, South Bend, on April 19.

Francis J. Castellino, professor of chemistry, gave a talk, "Structure and Activation of the Human Fibrinolytic System" at the Department of Biochemistry, Medical College of Virginia, Richmond, Va., April 9.

Jay P. Dolan, associate professor of history and director of the Center for the Study of American Catholicism, chaired a session on "American Bishops and Ethnic Catholic Traditions" at the spring meeting of the American Catholic Historical Association held at Notre Dame on April 6. American Council of Learned Societies Aids to Individual Scholars

No. FY79-137

Because of the length of the guidelines and program descriptions, what follows is only a summary of opportunities offered by the American Council of Learned Societies. For a copy of the brochure, contact the Office of Advanced Studies, Division of Research and Sponsored Programs, Extension 7433.

The general categories of fellowships and grants include the following fields of specialization: philosophy (including the philosophy of law and science); aesthetics; philology, languages, literature and linguistics; archaeology; art history and musicology; history (including the history of science, law and religions); cultural anthropology; and folklore. Proposals with a predominantly humanistic emphasis in economics, geography, political science, psychology, sociology and the natural sciences will also be considered.

Programs for area studies, conducted mainly under joint sponsorship of the ACLS and the Social Science Research Council, are open to humanists and social scientists.

Programs:

Fellowships: ACLS Fellowships are designed to provide opportunities for scholars to engage in research outlined in the brochure.

Study Fellowships: Study Fellowships are designed to assist young scholars in the humanities to enlarge their range of knowledge by study inside or outside the humanities in disciplines other than their present specialization which normally employ a different methodology.

Research Fellowships for Recent Recipients of the Ph.D.: These Fellowships provide funds in support of humanistic research.

Grants-in-Aid: The purpose of Grants-in-Aid is to provide funds in support of significant humanistic research.

Travel Grants for Humanists to International Meetings Abroad.

Grants for Research on Chinese Civilization.

Mellon Fellowships for Chinese Studies

Grants for East European Studies.

Programs with the U.S.S.R.

Programs with Eastern Europe.

Special Grants for Collaborative Activities and New Exchanges.

Travel Grants for Senior Scholars in the Social Sciences and Humanities.

Slavonic Studies Seminar in Bulgaria.

Deadlines:

For the various programs deadlines range from September 30 to January 15.

General inquiries and requests for application forms should be addressed to:

National Institutes of Health - French National Center for Scientific Research Program for Biomedical Scientific Cooperation

No. FY79-141

Under an agreement between the U.S. National Institutes of Health (NIH) and the French National Center for Scientific Research (CNRS), the two organizations share in the support of well-qualified U.S. scientists selected to work at laboratories in France and similar French scientists selected to work at U.S. laboratories. The purpose of the program is to advance biomedical knowledge through cooperation between U.S. and French scientists in fields of special interest to the NIH and CNRS. Approximately five scientists of each country will be exchanged annually. It is expected that these exchanges will serve as the basis for further and continuing substantive joint relationships, such as collaborative research projects and seminars.

The type of activity undertaken with a host laboratory may include the conduct of a basic or clinical research study, familiarization with or utilization of special techniques and equipment not otherwise available, and/or related cooperative efforts. The program does not provide support for activities which have as principal purposes brief observational visits, attendance at scientific meetings or independent study. Priority will be given to certain biomedical areas specified by the NIH and the CNRS.

The period of interaction of the foreign scientist with the host institution is expected to be of sufficient duration to achieve substantive, specific goals. Except under very unusual and strongly justified circumstances, the minimum period of support will be for 6 months and the maximum, 12 months. Requests for extension beyond 12 months will be considered.

The program is administered for the NIH by the Fogarty International Center (FIC).

The initial deadline for receipt of applications of U.S. scientists is August 1, 1979.

National Science Foundation NATO Advanced Study Institutes

No. FY79-147

The National Science Foundation has announced its program of summer Advanced Study Institutes for junior faculty members and advanced graduate students. Funds are available to support travel to various NATO countries for two to three weeks. About 51 awards will be made.

Applications are made to the Institute Director, not to NSF. A list of Institutes and directors may be obtained from the Office of Research and Sponsored Programs.

Administration on Aging Dissertation Projects in Gerontology

No. FY79-148

Support is available for doctoral students to complete dissertation projects related to the field of gerontology.

New guidelines are currently being developed and are expected to be ready soon with an early to mid-June deadline expected. Last year approximately 20 grants of around $5,500 each were awarded. In addition, also granted were an additional 10 grants to minority students.

Past priority areas have included housing, employment, retirement, health care, community services and support systems.

National Endowment for the Humanities Media Program

No. FY79-149

The National Endowment for the Humanities Media Program provides support for radio, television and film projects that advance public understanding and use of the humanities; are of the highest caliber in terms of expertise in the humanities and technical production; and are suitable for national or regional broadcast in the case of television, or for national, regional or local broadcast in the case of radio.

Applications will be accepted from any nonprofit organization, institution or group capable or involving competent scholars in the humanities and fully experienced production personnel in collaboration on projects meeting the above standards. Both two and four year colleges received grants last year (1978).

Grants in this program are made primarily in the following categories: (1) Development Grants to assist in the research and writing of scripts; (2) Pilot Grants to assist in the production of a pilot program within a projected series; (3) Production Grants to assist in the full production of a program or series. Planning Grants are also available to support efforts which bring together scholars in the humanities and production personnel to develop project ideas based on topics and themes in the humanities.

Memo from the Committee on Search Procedures

To the Notre Dame Community:

As members of the newly formed committee set up to study the adequacy and suitability of the procedures that have been used by search committees charged with providing recommendations for the filling of the higher administrative positions in the University, we request interested members of the Notre Dame community to submit to us in writing their views on these matters. Communications should be sent to Chairman of the Committee on Search Procedures, c/o General Program of Liberal Studies, 318 O'Shaughnessy.

In a meeting with the Faculty Senate, Provost O'Meara suggested to the senate that it form a committee to survey the procedures that have been used by recent search committees for such positions. The senate in subsequent deliberations deemed it wise to have the membership come largely or entirely from the membership of search committees. Professor DeSantis as chairman of the senate, then appointed the chairman of the committee who established the committee in this manner.

Sincerely,

Frederick J. Crosson
Michael J. Crowe (chairman)
John E. Derwent
Herbert Sim
H. Ronald Weber

Faculty Senate Journal March 13, 1979

At 7:38 p.m. the chairman, Prof. Vincent P. De Santis, called the meeting to order in Room 202 of the Center for Continuing Education and asked James G. Neal to offer the prayer. The Journal for Feb. 13, 1979 was approved with one minor revision. In presenting the Chairman's Report, De Santis first noted the executive committee's annoyance with the number of errors generated by the publication process of the senate journal in Notre Dame Report. De Santis stated that he and Katharina J. Blackstead have voiced their concern to the editor and have made provisions for the senate to assume the final proofreading responsibility for its journals as published in the Report, a practice which will continue until an alternate solution is found.

Continuing with the Chairman's Report, De Santis addressed himself to the two ongoing senate concerns of retirement and social security, elaborating on each as follows:

In the area of retirement, De Santis noted that he had anticipated the provost's recommendation not to grant protection to 1979-82 retirees, but that he was nonetheless disappointed upon its issuance. De Santis reported that both he and Prof. Thomas L. Shaffer of the executive committee of the Notre Dame chapter of the AAUP had written letters of protest to the president and provost, both of whom had informed him that the ultimate decision was based on balancing interests as well as proceeding in the best interests of the University. De Santis, on the other hand, had expressed concern that, in listing the main considerations for the decision in question, the responsibilities to those of the faculty who will have to retire at 65 were ranked last, and reiterated his own feeling that "in the matter of justice and fairness to a mere handful of people, it would seem fitting for a Catholic university to do something on its own." De Santis concluded by reporting that Fr. Hesburgh had assured him that neither he nor the provost wished 1979-82 retirees to be "financially inconvenienced," and that he would request that the Budget Priorities Committee investigate this matter.

Prof. Irwin Press, seconded by Prof. Rufus W. Rauch, moved that De Santis' letter and the provost's response be forwarded to the board of trustees.

Prof. Mitchell Jolles disagreed, arguing that he felt that the administration's decision was final, and that the senate would receive greater cooperation in the future by simply moving on to other issues.

Prof. Paul F. Conway suggested that, as an alternate avenue, senate representatives could meet with the FAC of the board of trustees, or that the senate could go on record as requesting that the retirement issue be placed on that committee's agenda.

Prof. A. Murty Kanury argued against engendering the administration's antagonism. Press countered by pointing out that aside from Academic Council agenda rights, publicity represented the senate's only true power.

A general discussion concerning the pros and cons of sending copies of the retirement-related letters to the board of trustees vs. submitting an agenda item to its FAC for the May meeting then took place.

Press next withdrew his motion in order to make way for the consideration of Conway's suggestion, whereupon Kanury, seconded by Press, moved that the senate act in accordance with the recommendation to contact the board of trustees.

Jolles, seconded by Prof. Robert L. Irvine, moved next to divide Kanury's motion into two parts, the first to address the question of whether or not to pursue the issue with the FAC of the board of trustees, the second, assuming the passage of the first, to decide on the actual method of implementation.

Following a brief discussion the question was called, and the first part of the motion carried.

In discussing the second part of the motion, Kanury expressed his conviction that the full senate should decide on the specific documentation to be forwarded to the FAC of the board of trustees.

Conway suggested that perhaps a senate position paper might present the strongest argument for the reconsideration of the retirement issue.

De Santis enumerated the documentation in his possession, including the original senate resolution based on the AAUP position, the accompanying letter to the provost and the board of trustees, as well as correspondence between himself and the president and provost following the announcement of the decision in question.

More discussion followed. Prof. Michael J. Crowe expressed his concern regarding the financial status of the 29 1979-82 retirees and advocated that the retirement benefits as well as cost to the University issue be addressed.

Prof. Phillip Sloan pointed out that justice and fairness could be viewed from many perspectives, and called for equal consideration of the 29 junior faculty members who would, in the case of a decision reversal, not be granted tenure despite their six "difficult" years at Notre Dame.

Kanury next withdrew his motion in order that De Santis and Conway might determine, in behalf of the senate, relevant material for presentation to the board of trustees.

Jolles, seconded by Irvine, moved that the correspondence in question be treated as confidential material, and therefore specifically not be sent to any other body.

In response to a protest from Rauch, Jolles defended his motion by contending that its passage would enable the senate to compile a more thoughtful presentation to the board of trustees.

Prof. Kenneth E. Goodpaster called the question and the motion was defeated by a voice vote.

The meeting was adjourned at 8:45 p.m. and reconvened at 8:50 p.m.

Continuing with his Chairman's Report, De Santis referred to the provost's recent letter to the faculty in which, he felt, the social security cutoff was described in sufficient detail so as to obviate the need for a further explanation of the matter by himself and Conway.

Jolles moved that the senate pass a resolution commending the provost for his actions in attempting to assure a high level of retirement benefits for the Notre Dame faculty. The motion was seconded by Kanury.

Press, contending that such a resolution was premature, advocated that the senate remand to its Faculty Affairs Committee an immediate comparative study of the "peer" and "Big 10" institutions, and urged all senators to bear in mind that Notre Dame's benefits are among the worst of Indiana institutions.

Kanury, Sr. Margaret Suerth, O.S.B., and Prof. Mary K. Tillman spoke in favor of the commendation; Press urged its postponement for a month.

Prof. Joseph A. Tihen, seconded by Goodpaster, moved that Jolles' motion be amended to read as follows:

That the senate commends the provost for his actions in attempting to prevent the further deterioration of the level of retirement benefits for the Notre Dame faculty.

Jolles, objecting to the amendment, argued that the provost had not only taken steps to prevent further deterioration, but had actually increased faculty fringe benefits by his action. A brief discussion followed. Goodpaster called the question on the amendment and it carried, with Jolles requesting to be cited in the minutes as having been opposed to its passage.

The question on the entire motion was called and passage was overwhelming.

Speaking for the Committee on Administration, Prof. Michael J. Francis reported that, as requested at the last senate meeting, he had looked into the Department of Labor's recent visit to Notre Dame to find that apparently all government contracts of a certain size involve the possibility of such a visit so as to insure that fair employment procedures are being followed. During the course of the late-December visit, Francis continued, Notre Dame was found not to be in compliance with the law and was given 30 days to provide proper information and to set goals for the hiring of women and minorities. The responsibility for meeting the department's request from the academic vantage point was given to Sr. John Miriam Jones S.C., from the personnel vantage point, to G. Thomas Bull. Francis addressed himself primarily to the academic side of the issue, reporting that according to Jones, the Labor Department's complaints dealt to a large degree with the manner in which Notre Dame organized its hiring information and not with the substance of its hiring policies. One extension of the 30-day deadline was granted to Notre Dame, Francis continued. Relevant materials were then forwarded to the Gary office of the Department of Labor, were accepted there and were forwarded to the regional office in Chicago where they were also approved, and are presently on file in Washington. Francis expressed his uneasiness over (1) the fact that these goals, which are of significance to the entire Notre Dame academic community, were reached at the level of department chairmen and above and were therefore not subject, apparently due to time constraints, to university-wide discussion and (2) that these goals have yet to be made public to the faculty.

In conclusion, Francis reported that Jones had agreed to meet with the Committee on Administration after the holiday to discuss the situation.

Francis also noted that his committee had been invited to a meeting on faculty women's issues, and reminded De Santis that the senate had taken no action in appointing a committee to study the policies and procedures for filling upper-level administrative positions at the University. De Santis replied that he had conferred with Crowe regarding the possibility of his chairing the committee, but had made no further appointments to same.

De Santis asked Francis whether the issue of evening classes, mentioned at the February session, had been investigated. Francis replied that he was unaware of any such charge and had therefore taken no action.

Irvine, speaking for the Committee on Faculty Affairs, reported that the FAC had met on March 7 to develop an "excellence at Notre Dame" questionnaire, but had been hampered in so doing by limited attendance and the lack of standardized practices among the various academic units which led to barriers in communication. Another meeting would be required, Irvine continued, and urged full senate attendance due to the importance of the issue.

Irvine next reported on his synthesis of the responses to his preliminary "excellence at Notre Dame" questionnaires which had been sent out to 12 faculty members.

Complaints included: heavy teaching loads without time for research development; insufficient resource commitment for excellence in research and publication, including the library, the University Press, general facilities, lecture/seminar series, computer assistance, typing, travel, and stipends for graduate students; excessively large classes; faculty "time and talent" drained because of inadequate support; general policies which are not expressed with clarity and decision (too much rhetoric, too little substance); and policies originating at the department level being either petty or non-existent.

Irvine noted that, of the 12 persons polled, only one mentioned Notre Dame's sub-standard salaries.

Further observations included: that the faculty is confused and restless, is uncertain regarding the University's new posture on research, and has no idea as to to whom to turn for either help or complaints; that faculty members are not aware of policy differences between departments and colleges; that very little cross-fertilization of information exists between departments and colleges; and that the senate is not held in highest esteem by many faculty members who contend that it is either "a deliberating body" or "an agent of the AAUP."

One source, Irvine continued, complimented the University for its promotion of ideals and values which have gained for it national distinction.

Irvine continued by noting that the senate was, in his opinion, in a unique position to gather data and to thereby facilitate the resolution of some of the "complaint category" areas, and therefore once again urged senators to attend the next meeting of the FAC.

Jolles commended the work of Irvine's committee and, seconded by Kanury, moved that the senate empower the FAC to formulate and send the "excellence at Notre Dame" questionnaire to the entire faculty in its behalf.

Conway and Goodpaster argued for approval of the questionnaire by the entire senate, and at De Santis' suggestion, a special senate meeting was decided upon for March 27.

Finally, in regard to the fringe or courtesy benefits issue, Irvine commented that the University decides on these matters without seeking faculty input and suggested that a list of fringe benefit questions be compiled for subsequent senate submission to the associate provost.

Sloan, speaking briefly for the Committee on Student Affairs, noted that the constitution of the undergraduate student government had been amended so as to insure a voice in campus affairs for off-campus students.

There being no old or new business, the meeting was adjourned at 10 p.m.

Those absent but not excused: John Connaughton, law; James Daschbach, aerospace and mechanical engineering; Emerson Funk, physics; Sonia Gernes, English; John J. Kennedy, marketing; J. Kerry Thomas, chemistry; Ronald H. Weber, American studies.

Respectfully submitted,

Faculty Committee for University Libraries Minutes

April 2, 1979

Present: Harvey A. Bender, Michael J. Crowe (chairperson), Vincent P. DeSantis, John W. Lucey, John R. Malone, Robert C. Miller and Thomas J. Schlereth.

The meeting was called to order at 3 p.m. DeSantis again urged minutes be more detailed to associate members' names with the comments made. Other members however expressed the view that the minutes do no need to be so detailed as long as they convey to the University readership the agenda items discussed and decisions and/or actions taken. The minutes of the March 26, 1979 meeting were unanimously approved for publication.

Budget

Crowe read to the committee Father Hesburgh's response to his letter of March 13. Father mentioned that five collections had been purchased over the recent years, costing nearly $1,000,000, and asked whether these were included in the ARL statistics. Miller responded that these expenditures as handled in the past are not and cannot be reported to the Association of Research Libraries; but that arrangements are being made to handle this type of expenditure through library accounts so that such monies can be included in the Libraries' reporting. Miller also mentioned that volumes thus acquired cannot be counted until they are cataloged. He speculated that these unprocessed gifts, while of great importance, would not have affected Notre Dame's rank in the ARL statistics to any great extent. Committee members agreed that the buying of bulk collections is a serious policy issue. Miller responded by indicating his understanding that the Libraries' Administration will be a part of the decisioning for appropriate use. Miller will respond to Father Hesburgh's letter.

Miller told the committee members that the appropriation from the University for the Libraries is received in two separate increments: personnel and nonpersonnel funds, and that these are not interchangeable.

Miller explained to committee members that the approval plan will mean that we are spending more on current imprints than in the past; that the shortage in funds for retrieval buying will be offset somewhat by the available NEH funds and by the anticipated additional endowment income; and that the Libraries are presently soliciting Title IIC funding for support of the program in American Catholicism. In response to a question about placing new serial subscriptions, Miller indicated that all new subscriptions would probably have to be charged against allocated book funds, and that they may be placed on a one-year only basis with review required before continuation. Miller also indicated that the Libraries are looking at substituting film and/or fiche for paper copy of serials in some cases. He also stated that the Libraries must develop a built-in mechanism that will not allow subscription costs to consume the entire budget.

Policy on Confidentiality of Circulation Records

This policy is a local adoption of a national library policy. It is intended to protect individual users from improper disclosure or misuse of information about library materials charged out by them. The committee unanimously approved the policy, subject to approval by University Counsel. (see appended)

Proposal Regarding Membership on the Committee

Crowe proposed that there be social science as well as humanities representation on the committee. It was suggested that balanced representation on the committee could be secured by proper nomination and structuring of the ballot. It was also suggested that election of any member to the committee, even those representing specific colleges, should be by the entire faculty. No action was taken on these matters. The names of proposed nominees for the two positions becoming vacant will be submitted at the next meeting. The optimal structuring of the committee will be discussed at a future meeting.

The next meeting is scheduled for Monday, April 16, at 3 p.m. The meeting adjourned at 4:30 p.m.

University Libraries Statement of Policy: Confidentiality of Circulation and Related Records

This policy is intended to protect individual users of the University Libraries, University of Notre Dame, from improper disclosure or misuse of information about library materials charged out by them in their use of the libraries.

The University Libraries recognize that their circulation records and other records which identify the names of library patrons with specific materials are confidential in nature.

To insure this confidentiality, the Libraries will observe the following guidelines: (1) The details of an individual's borrowing history will not be publicized or released to unauthorized personnel within the libraries or to any individual or agency external to the libraries, except pursuant to such process, order or subpoena as may be authorized under the authority of, and pursuant to, federal, state or local law relating to civil, criminal or administrative discovery procedures or legislative investigatory power. Any such release shall require the explicit approval of the director of libraries who is responsible for obtaining appropriate legal counsel that the process, order or subpoena is in proper form and has showing of good cause for its issuance. This rule will not apply to the extent that it is necessary for the libraries to maintain records of delinquent borrowers. Such records will, however, be maintained in confidence and will be available only to persons involved in the assessment and collection of fines and replacement fees. It will further not apply in the cases of individual titles needed by other patrons who request the name of the current borrower. (2) Once a borrowing transaction has been completed, no records will be retained which would permit the circulation history of library materials to be related to the identity of individual borrowers.
