

Nixon Does It

NEW YORK (UPI) - The New York Times released a presidential election survey yesterday which showed Richard M. Nixon in a commanding lead over both his rivals and George C. Wallace slightly ahead of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

The survey, made by Times correspondents of political leaders in all 50 states, showed that as the campaign entered its final month Nixon was leading in 34 states with 380 electoral votes - 110 more than the 270 needed to win.

The Times ran the survey on the same day it chose to endorse Vice President Humphrey's candidacy in its leading editorial. The newspaper called Humphrey "a humanitarian, and authentic and effective liberal, and a man of proved character, courage and judgment..."

The newspaper said the survey was made too early to reflect any changes which might have taken place as a result of Humphrey's speech about the bombing of North Vietnam - which some believe was an effort to attract "dove" voters.

It quoted Democratic campaign leaders as saying the speech has generated an increase in contributions and encouraged supporters to Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy and the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy to back Humphrey.

Wallace in Ohio?

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Supreme Court begins its new term Monday with an unprecedented opening day hearing of a plea to permit George C. Wallace's name to appear on the presidential ballot in Ohio. The court resumes work with a calendar of cases involving Vietnam, race relations, demonstrations and poverty, and with uncertainty over the tenure of Chief Justice Earl Warren.

It will disregard precedent by hearing a plea on opening day it usually waits until the second week—challenging a lower court order designating Wallace as a write in candidate in Ohio.

The former Alabama governor charged that Ohio election law requirements place independent candidates at a disadvantage and that his name should be on the ballot with the Democratic and Republican candidates.

Ohio requires that a new party must have signatures of 15 per cent of the total vote in the last statewide election before it can appear on the state's ballot.

When the court adjourned its last session, it was assumed that Warren would not be present when it reconvened. But the Senate's rejection of President Johnson's nomination of Associate Justice Abe Fortas as his successor leaves the court makeup unchanged.

Warren submitted his resignation with the stipulation that he would step down when his successor was confirmed. What, if any, plans the president has for submitting another nomination is not known, and it is possible Warren may serve until the present administration in January.

Berrigan and Friends

BALTIMORE (UPI) - The trial of nine Catholic pacifists accused of burning draft card records begins today and threatens to turn this city into a little Chicago.

Hundreds of anti-war protestors congregated in Baltimore during the weekend to take part in marches and rallies during the federal trial.

The "Catonsville Nine" are accused of invading a draft board in the suburban Baltimore community of Catonsville May 17, scooping two drawers full of records into wire baskets and burning the records in a parking lot outside.

The city's entire police force was ordered on 12 hour shifts starting midnight yesterday. Complicating their problems was a rally for third party presidential candidate George C. Wallace in Baltimore tonight.

William Sloane Coffin, chaplain of Yale University, and former Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike of California, were planning to take part in the rallies, according to spokesmen at the Interfaith Peace Mission, headquarters for area anti-war activity.

Coffin currently is free on bail while his federal court conviction on charges of encouraging violation of draft laws is appealed. Coffin was convicted in the same Boston trial as pediatrician Benjamin Spock.

Several hundred students at Cornell University—where one of the nine, the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, a brother of Philip and a Jesuit priest, was a chaplain—began arriving this weekend. One student said they had been granted leaves of absence for the week.

Other large delegations were coming from New York, Boston, Washington and Philadelphia.

Recall Petition Not Submitted

Organizers Absent; Avoid Debate Challenge

With an opening prayer of, "My God, help us to put aside party labels and personal prejudices so that this body may accomplish something for the students of this university," the Student Senate began operations last night for the upcoming year.

Since this initial meeting was mainly organizational, Student Body President Richard Rossie, who acts as chairman for all Senate meetings, spent the first half of the meeting delegating committees and informing the Senators of important upcoming events.

The organizers of the "Recall Rossie" petition failed to appear before the Student Senate last night to present their petitions. A Senator approached by the group to present the forms declined to do so, returning the petition to those from whom he had received it.

David Fritts, Junior Senator from Cavanaugh, explained his stand saying "I was asked to present it to the Senate. I was acting as a messenger because a constituent of my hall asked me to... I returned the petitions because I felt I could not justifiably endorse it. The Senator who presents it had to endorse it. I feel I could not give the recall justification because at the present time I am neutral."

Fritts said he was unsure as to the plans of the group now, and made clear he had no connection whatsoever with the petition passers. Speaking of those who had asked him to submit the petitions, Fritts maintained "The people who gave me the petition were the same people who distributed it."

With the non-submission last night, speculation was aroused that the group itself will appear before a Senate session tonight to present the petitions personally to Student Body President Richard Rossie. If no Senator will endorse the petition, as seems likely now, the group will be compelled to itself make the petition presentation.

SBP Rossie himself explained at the Senate meeting the procedures for when and if the Senate considers the petitions. Rossie said "A Senator can introduce the petitions in the Senate. If not they can be presented to me. If the petitions are given to me I want them given to me before the Senate as a whole."

Rossie said a committee would have first to consider the validity of the petitions. Then and only then would the Senate pass final judgement and decide on calling an election. A paradox in the entire situation is that the Student Body President himself must recommend the committee to the Senate.

By failing to appear last night, the petitioners escaped an open debate challenge from Human Affairs Stay Senator Mike Kendall. Kendall and Scholastic Contributing Editor Thomas Payne posted the challenge in Lyons Hall, home of some of the group, Friday and have yet to receive an answer. Kendall said last night "We feel there is no basis in fact for any of the challenges on the petition. The petition itself does harm to Richard Rossie's position with the Administration. The easiest way to refute their position is to meet them in open debate before the student body and to refute them. If they have a position which they feel can be defended they have a duty to come out and face those who differ from them."

Rossie presented the four standing Senate committees and their chairman, who are all stay senators, as Academic Affairs, John Hickey; Student Life, Steve Ahern; Constitutional Revision, Bob Rigney; and Human Affairs, Mike Kendall.

The main part of the meeting was concerned with discussion of the all-important Student Life Council and Rossie wasted no time in stressing the immediacy of the Senate's action on this matter. He said, "We'll have a Senate meeting tomorrow night, Tuesday night, Wednesday night, and every night until we resolve the method of election of the student members to the Student Life Council. I feel we owe it to the students to get this Council working as soon as possible."

The remainder of the meeting became involved with an argument over whether or not to accept Pangborn's Jim Scherer's motion to officially endorse the SLC. Stay senator Mike Kendall of Carroll and junior Mike Mead of Holy Cross both objected to the immediate endorsement of the SLC.

"I think the matter should be discussed, because if we immediately accept the SLC as the legislative body on student life, then we will set the tone of all our (the senate's) dealings with the SLC, enabling them to disregard us in their legislative decisions," said Kendall. Mead said, "We'll be cutting our own throats if we accept them as a legislative body. The Senate is more representative of the students' wishes than they are."

Both Scherer and Rossie countered, that the Senate never could legislate on student life before anyway, and the SLC is our first chance to really legislate on student life issues.

Mead successfully tabled the motion of endorsement of the SLC, and, true to his word, Rossie announced that there will be another Senate meeting to-nite to resolve the endorsement and to quickly set up the election procedures for the student members of the SLC. He delegated separate committees to discuss election processes after the meeting.

HPC Meeting

Nominations for the office of chairman of the Hall Presidents Council were held at a meeting last night in the student center amphitheater. Those nominated were Phil McKenna, Bob McCarter, and Paul Dillonburger. Elections will take place next week. Secretary of the council will be appointed by the chairman pending approval by the council. Both terms of office will expire next October.

SLC Members

The final election results determining the administrative representatives on the newly-formed Student Life Council were announced on Sat. by Vice President for Student Affairs Rev. Charles McCarragher, CSC. The winners were elected from a preliminary list of 30 administrative personnel, submitting applications to the council.

Selected were three prefects and three deans: Reverend Thomas E. Blantz, CSC, of Zahm Hall, Rev. Laurence G. Broestl, CSC, of Sorin, and also assistant VP under McCarragher, Rev. James Schiltz, of Farley, Dean William B. Lawless of the Law School, Dean Bernard Waldman, head of Science, and Dean Frederick Crosson, of Arts and Letters.

A total of 67 people voted in the election, including anyone working under the president or the various vice presidents of the University, deans of individual colleges, and all rectors and similar personnel.

Death of the Senate

According to Student Life Commissioner Larry Landry more than 80 per cent of the on campus student body voted in last Thursday's Student Senate elections. Unfortunately that Senate will probably be the most ineffective one ever selected.

The reason is not that the senators selected are poor ones, that can hardly be determined at this point. In fact it would seem that there is a healthy representative cross-section of student opinion in the Senate this year.

Sunday night was the first meeting of the year for the Senate. They will soon be asked by Student Body President Rossie to ratify the Student Life Council. The Senate has no choice but to approve the Council, which is the first policy-making committee in which students have been permitted to participate. The Council is a large step in the Rossie administration's attempt to make student opinion more prominent in affairs which concern students.

While the Senate was always allowed to make recommendations to the student affairs office or whatever appropriate department, the Council has concrete policy-making responsibilities. Those eight students will help shape University policy regarding students, which is considerably more than merely offering suggestions.

The Senate will also be asked to define the relationship the student representatives on the Council will have with the Senate and the method of selection of those students.

Most probably the Senate will allow the student representatives almost unlimited freedom in bringing their own proposals and suggestions to the Council. They almost certainly will retain the right of impeachment or recall of the six elective members of the board.

But the fact is the eight Council representatives will be able to write proposals and present them much more quickly than the 48-member Senate.

In effect, except for ratifying the Student Government budget the Senate is obsolete. The Senate has suggestive powers in student affairs while the Council has policy-making power in the same realm. Proposals made through the Senate first will be delayed three times longer than if they were posited directly by board members. The Senate will be relegated to approving such bills as the repudiation of the Presidential Review sit-in, as was done last year. Nice, but it does nothing.

The Senate could retain its power by requiring all student initiated bills to go through the Senate before moving on to the SLC. But that would be handcuffing the student members of the Council and defeating the purposes of student leaders in obtaining student representation on the SLC.

The Senate simply must make itself ineffectual by ratifying the SLC and giving student members of the board sufficient room for operation. The death of the Senate, that's progress baby, which many people suspected even before the Student Life Council was created.

Big Wheels Plan For Grand Prix

Though the football season has barely begun, the Student Union Social Commission is already preparing plans for next May's Spring Weekend and Notre Dame's first Grand Prix. Senior Bob Folks, SUSC coordinator for the Spring festivities, said yesterday that "We have planned a very exciting weekend during which we will be trying to involve as many students as possible. During the second week of May we will combine the Irish Cup Rugby championship, the various class proms, a concert (with the performers to be announced) and the first annual Grand Prix de Notre Dame - an interhall go-cart race."

The Spring Weekend has been a part of the social scene on campus in the past, but never has it really enjoyed any great success. This year according to Folks things will be different as the Social Commission will coordinate all the social activities during this week in May in order to better insure the success of these activities.

One of the major goals of the weekend Folks explained in this way: "More and more people are beginning to recognize that ND is a very good place to send their kid - and it is improving. More students are thinking and are engaging in more activities on campus. But, many are faced with the problem of finance and this scholarship fund will help those potential students who could contribute much to this community." In addition to this contribution it must be stated that scholarship students tend to give more of a social and economic diversification to the student body - a variation somewhat out of the mold of the stereotyped white upper middle class Catholic ND boy.

As Part of the Grand Prix program the commission will sponsor guest appearances by several racing personalities.

The Grand Prix itself will be a go-cart race with an entry from each hall and from off-campus. Drivers will be chosen by the halls and though all engines and bodies will be provided by the Student Union, any modifications and "turbo-charging" of the power plants will be left to the individual halls' automatic mechanics. The course will be in the usual European grand prix style, with numerous sharp turns, curves and straightaways, and will be set up on the new asphalt parking lot south of the Convocation Center.

About drawing student interest and support for this Grand Prix of Notre Dame, Folks added: "Once we have laid out our plans and taken care of more of the details we will approach the newly elected hall presidents in order to gain their approval and their help. We are very interested in their opinions and feel that they can aid us tremendously in achieving success. They (the hall presidents and other hall representatives) are possibly the biggest factor in the success of this production... Also, we feel that the Grand Prix will generate more interhall competition."

James Collins To Speak In Series

Dr. James D. Collins, professor of philosophy at St. Louis University will be the first speaker in the University's "Perspectives in Philosophy" series, which starts this evening.

The lecture series, now in its third year, is designed to present an authoritative discussion of a different philosophical theme each year, and the 1968-1969 subject is the historiography of philosophy. "We hope to illustrate the close relationship which exists between the history of philosophy and the actual conduct of philosophical investigation," said Dr. A. Robert Caponigri, current series director.

Collins will give three 8:00 p.m. lectures in the Memorial Library Auditorium and his subjects will be "The Insistency of Modern Sources" (tonight)

"The Art of Historical Questioning" (Wednesday), and "The Interpreting Present and Its Modes" (Friday).

Collins, 51, holds his doctorate from Catholic University, and is a specialist in modern philosophy who has taught at St. Louis for 23 years and written 11 books in the fields of modern philosophy.

Other speakers scheduled for the series are Dr. Walter Kaufmann of Princeton; Dr. Albert W. Levi of Washington University in St. Louis; and Dr. Paul Oscar Kristeller of Columbia University.

The Observer is published daily during the college semester except vacations by the students of the University of Notre Dame. Subscriptions may be purchased for $10 from The Observer, Box 11, Notre Dame, Ind., 46556. Second class postage paid, Notre Dame, Ind., 46556.

Peacemongering

The first issue of Peace Monger, Notre Dame's newest underground newspaper, appeared yesterday at the Library Lounge Coffee Hour and in the Huddle. The single-page, dittoed newsletter was dated Thursday, September 26, 1968.

A second, more up-to-date issue is expected today. No publisher, editor, or staff members are listed. The only clue to its publisher is a quotation in the masthead from Our "Leader": "Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall." The newsletter is published at Notre Dame, according to the masthead. The publication calls for "correspondents and contacts to send in news, views and reviews: peacelovers; anti-imperialists, vets, pacifists, libs, conservatives, sds, radicals, isolationists, one-worlders, ycs, sane, hippies- all peace mongers write in."

Departmental Heads: In, Out

The appointments of new department heads in mathematics, economics and mechanical engineering were announced Friday by Vice President for Academic Affairs Rev. John E. Walsh, CSC.

Rev. Ernest Bartell, CSC was named Chairman of the Economics Department. Bartell had been acting head of the department since February.

Dr. Timothy O'Meara was named Chairman of the Mathematics Department and Dr. Kwang-Tzu-Yang will head the mechanical engineering department.

Bartell, 36, graduated from Notre Dame, received his masters from the University of Chicago and his doctorate from Princeton. He is a specialist in the economics of Catholic elementary and secondary schools.

Bartell has created a committee for curriculum reform within the economics department which is composed one-third each of faculty, graduate students and undergraduate students. He also said the department will eventually investigate the problems of the inner city, minority groups and the underdeveloped nations.

O'Meara, 40, replaces Dr. Wilhelm Stoll who is currently on leave of absence at Stanford University. O'Meara is a native of South Africa and specializes in algebra and number theory. He received his doctorate from Princeton and was a member of the Institute for Advanced Study before coming to Notre Dame six years ago.

Yang, 41, replaces Dr. Edward Jerger, who was promoted to Associate Dean of the College of Engineering. Yang is a native of China and earned all his degrees at the Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago before joining the Notre Dame faculty in 1955. His interests are heat transfer, fluid mechanics and thermodynamics.

Institute Established

The establishment of an Institute for International Studies to coordinate the growing international involvement of Notre Dame was announced yesterday by the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, CSC.

Father Hesburgh appointed Dr. Stephen D. Kertesz, a former Hungarian diplomat and head of the University's Committee on International Relations since 1955, director of the new Institute. Professor Kertesz said yesterday that the objective of the Institute "is less a matter of inaugurating new programs than of coordinating established academic and service functions in the international relations field."

According to Kertesz, the Institute will:

1) develop and coordinate the international relations work of the University in teaching, research, and service.

2) relate the disciplinary work of the departments, the area programs, and the CIR to the work of the University's several colleges and faculties.

3) establish and maintain annual schedules of priorities in research projects.

4) serve as a clearinghouse for information and research projects of an international character undertaken by personnel outside the social sciences and humanities.

Voting Age

There will be a final opportunity for student over 21 and residents of Indiana to register as voters in the coming election in either party. Booths will be set up just outside the dining halls at the noon and evening meal.

The law requires that a citizen must live within the state for a period of 6 months to qualify as a legal resident. Those unable to register at the dining halls may contact Eric Wieschhaus, 301 Walsh (8097) anytime before 8:00 pm. The deadline for voter registration in Indiana is midnight tonight.

Expensive new Bic® Clic® for big spenders

Only Bic would dare to torment a beauty like this. Not the girl... the pen she's holding. It's the new luxury model Bic Clic... designed for scholarship athletes, lucky card players and other rich campus socialites who can afford the expensive 49-cent price.

But don't let those delicate good looks fool you. Despite horrible punishment by mad scientists, the elegant Bic Clic still wrote first time, every time.

Everything you want in a fine pen, you'll find in the new Bic Clic. It's retractable. Refillable. Comes in 8 barrel colors. And like all Bic pens, writes first time, every time... no matter what devilish abuse sadistic students devise for it.

Summa's First Anniversary

SUMMA, "Notre Dame's Greatest Challenge," is celebrating its first birthday this week. The program has reached 72 percent of its $52 million goal as gifts total now $37,477,855. According to James W. Frick, Notre Dame's vice president for public relations and development, "SUMMA is on schedule." More than 19,500 gifts to Notre Dame from alumni, friends, parents, corporations, and foundations have been made since SUMMA began last fall, and thousands of volunteers have been involved in solicitation, Frick said.

Frick stressed the high level of alumni support - an average gift of $791 - despite the fact that Notre Dame's alumni body is young, with 60 per cent having been graduated since 1950. Members of the University's predominantly lay board of trustees have given 25 per cent more to the current campaign the University vice-president also noted.

Within the last year, two teams of top Notre Dame officials led by the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, CSC, and the Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, CSC, executive vice president, have traveled 20,000 air miles to launch SUMMA in 40 major U.S. cities attended by 11,000 persons. This February, two other groups of University officials will be speaking at kick-off dinners in 15 additional metropolitan areas around the country.

Before Nov. 5

The American Presidential campaign these days is boiling down to a three way battle amongst a man who claims to be the safe port in a time of storm, a man who will see to it that only one unlucky protestor ever lies beneath his automobile, and a man who claims to be a lesser evil than the previous two. It seems to be the rule with all three major candidates that you speak strongly about "law and order" (some also attach the term 'justice') and dispose of pressing problems such as the plight of the ghetto or the war with bland pledges of happiness to come. "I will end the war." Sure, but how?

From the point of view of someone looking for a choice, as opposed to presumably an echo, the array of candidates and the dearth of concrete positions constitute a profound disappointment. The great debate on the War, for instance, has to put it mildly, failed to materialize with the exception of some sparring between President Johnson, a non-contender, and Vice President Humphrey.

We would hope that in the remaining month of the campaign the issues, those questions considered by the intelligent and aware voter, come to the fore and are the subject of debate. Our wish is that we will not go the the polls in November sure only of how Curtis LeMay stands on use of nuclear weapons (and sure, too, that he means exactly what he says). This has at times been a year of hope for the educated and the young in America. Let us hope that 1968 does not end up being a year of emptiness.

A New Activism

"Nothing ever gets done around here, and nobody cares about anything until after football season is over." In the past this has been a more than accurate description of the political climate at Notre Dame. This year things have changed. A petition to recall a Student Body President and highly accelerated student government activity have marked this fall as a time different from the past.

While we disapprove of the petition to recall Mr. Rossie, the drive itself underlies a growing activism at Notre Dame. For the past two years liberals and radicals have had a near monopoly on open political activity at Notre Dame. Such unbalanced activism has been held by many to be unhealthy if not dangerous. With the drive to recall Richard Rossie, the more moderate and conservative forces have emerged as a legitimate force which could potentially establish a more equipoised political mechanism. Separate from the petition, the growth of the Young Republicans and the revival of the Young Americans for Freedom point again to the rise of a more moderate, popular activism.

We applaud the degree of student involvement seen on campus during the last few weeks. This is evidence of greater student concern and responsibility. Acknowledging that much of this activism stems from opposition to Student Body President Rossie, we feel, never-the-less, that this reaction actually represents fulfillment of a primary Rossie objective: maximum involvement of the Notre Dame student community.

It would seem that even if Mr. Rossie has achieved a setback in his attempt to unify the student body behind him, reaction to either him, his methods, or his objectives have brought the Notre Dame student into a greater awareness of the role of the student and student community.

Awareness, however, must lead to a desire for accomplishment. The new activism we have encountered must not be allowed to split the student body, but must lead to a desire to get things done. Those opposed to Rossie should realize their responsibility to put forth alternatives.

Our opposition to the recall petition is based upon the fact that we envision it as a negative approach to the problems facing student government and the student body. It is most lamentable that those who seek to replace Rossie or his means offer no effective replacements or alternatives.

It must also be noted that the Student Body President has the obligation to clearly put forth, as he did last spring, his programs for student power. With proposals advanced on both sides and a degree of cooperation achieved, dialogue can replace private grumbling. In this manner a unity can be established and activism can truly lead to accomplishment.

WHY DO THEY KEEP CALLING ME THE THIRD CANDIDATE? WHO ELSE IS THERE BESIDES ME 'N HIM?

Reflections of An AL Jock

The political events of the campus during this last week and my involvement with them has brought back still fresh memories of the first extremist conversations I ever had - with the insurance agent in my town who was heading up the John Birch society's "Impeach Earl Warren" petition drive.

I met this gentleman at a party which myself and friends had attended as a lark. Taking us aside he talked about Warren as a "Communist" and told how, by his decisions and actions, the Chief Justice had "abrogated his responsibilities to the Constitution and the people of the United States."

We were playing right-wing youths that night, so we pressed him as to what he wanted. He told us that we could "get out into the shopping centers and go door-to-door" with petitions. We would be moderate, saying what we really wanted was a review of the courts' decisions and that popular pressure would force Warren to take in his wings." Of course, explained the Bircher, "What we really want to do is nail him the wall like the rat he is."

I was intrigued, and said, "I don't think these petitions will do any good. Would you please explain how we can have an effect." Taking me close-in, the impeachment spokesman contended "What we're really trying to do is destroy his credibility. He won't be able to go ahead with what he's trying' to do in freeing those Communists and helping labor unions like Reuther's. He'll be helpless!"

As the evening wore on, we saw this gentleman again and he had an armload of petitions. I asked "Besides you, who all is involved in this drive? The eyes shifted around and his tone became suspicious: "Why do you want to know that?" Innocently I replied that I wanted to know the type of people in the local John Birch Society. The answer this time came back like a shot: "I can't tell you. This is a spontaneous organization here in Bellingham. We've seen what's going on and we want to do something about it. No one of us is the leader. We just share our purposes and are involved in this petition effort."

It seemed strange to me that an insurance agent would be taking out after the Chief Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court. I asked our hero if he had any experience in government of the field of education. There was a haughty, proud denial. The insurance agent stated, "I want you to know that we here are businessmen and workingmen, not receivers of federal handouts and bleeding-heart liberal intellectuals."

I reflected on the meaning of what I had heard. The Bircher was obviously a narrow and uneducated man, unaware of the deep issues being considered by the Court or of Warren's hidden accomplishments in pushing the nation's supreme legal tribunal towards an activist path. He was operating at a surface level, looking at what appeared to be a host of criminals running wild and Communists set free. More than narrow, the man was devious. He was willing to use children to coo reassurance as they handed our documents to destroy the credibility of the United States Supreme Court. He planned for his petition passers to say "We just want some of his decisions reconsidered" even as his true purposes were revealed by a high school kid scratching the surface.

Five years have passed since I met the Bircher. He is still in the insurance business. I walked past his office this summer and, sure enough, the very moderate sounding "Impeach Earl Warren" petitions were posted in the window. Later I went to the headquarters of a Bircher running for Congress and a polite girl walked up and said "Sir, would you like to sign a petition to Impeach Chief Justice Earl Warren? We feel he does not deserve the trust of the American people and that his decisions must be reviewed." Then and there, I thought again of the words I had heard long ago at the party "What we really want to do is nail him to the wall...."

Even Fairer Than Thee, Sweet Hal

BY DAVID KAHN

"You gotta see it zapped"

In the beginning, there was sphere-sphere-fire, the primal orchestration of bass and kettle drum and one single monolith examined by a multitude of hairy beasties--apes possessed with a certain degree of Homo Sapiens inquisitiveness.

In 2001, major triads expand into Strauss familiarity, and pinwheel space stations waltz in the void. And not-so-human humans transverse the skies donned in perma-press attire resembling the rectilinear architecture and mobiles in which they live and travel.

In 2001, there is that isolated misty-mystic space mission, where a man's chief antagonist is his computer, a "conscious entity" nicknamed Hal. Here, Kubrick boards his own thematic space ship with a man vs. machine preoccupation as original as Rossum's Universal Robots, and as recent as Fantastic Voyage.

Or perhaps the computer-human tug-o-war is a metaphor for man grappling with his rationality, a rationality which must be transcended in order to experience the color blazes of "beyond the infinite." Stanley Kubrick speaks in his own prophetic tongue: "In 2001, the message is the medium. I tried to create a visual experience, one that bypasses verbalized pigeonholing and directly penetrates the subconscious with its emotional and philosophical content." -An illuminating quote, to be sure.

Beyond the Infinite is Euclid with a magic lantern. Beyond the Infinite is blurb and bubble prima causa. Beyond the Infinite is that self-same monolith, indeed the TRUE embodiment of Heisenberg's uncertainty principle, or, most assuredly, the ULTIMATE representation of Godel's incompleteness theorem. Ah-Stanley knows. In 2001, reality is still a mystery, existence is without rational scheme, and man's basic contention is the death-wish. Baah.

2001: A Space Odyssey is an insult to the imagination. As Kubrick's camera captures detail-to-detail the technological superfluity of the Twenty-First Century, the filmgoer is not even permitted to guess explanations as obvious as Pan-Am Grip Shoes. Furthermore, Kubrick's audio-visual cosmology fills in, shades, delineates that which the private imagination can perform much more successfully, without cinematic interpretation.

Kubrick's grand finale does not evoke "fearful metaphysical considerations." On the contrary, the audience reacts with a marijuana "hea-VY, hea-VY," or a speculating "Martha, they sure spent a lot of pennies on this one."

This multi-million dollar space voyage proves nothing except that the cinema technology of Kubrick and Clark can oppress and manipulate the mind as thoroughly as the technology they depict.

And all of this is not a criticism, mind you, just a reaction.

The Mail

The OBSERVER welcomes letters to the editor.

Letters should be sent to PO Box 11 Notre Dame, and must be signed. A name will be withheld only when disclosures which are made in the interest of the university community would subject the writer to reprisals.

Letters deemed libelous, defamatory, or abusive cannot be printed. Since the flow of letters to the editor is large and space is limited, letters of 300 words or less are preferred.

An Apology

Editor:

This letter is intended as a public apology and a chance to set the record straight. The past few weeks have seen great improvements made in the relationship between the Notre Dame and St. Mary's student bodies. Recently, a letter was distributed to the two campuses bearing my signature as Chairman of the Notre Dame Free University. This action carried with it an unfortunate faux pas, which may have hurt many people.

This year, Free University is a joint endeavor of the two schools, with co-chairmen. In my haste to have the letter printed, I omitted the name of the co-chairwoman, Maryanne Wolf. Because of this, some people have assumed that Free University is merely another in a series of "co-efforts" in which St. Mary's was relegated to a minor role on committee.

Nothing could be farther from the truth. St. Mary's is playing an integral role in the development of the experimental college, without which, we at Notre Dame would be pressed. To any who have been hurt by my blunder, I apologize.

Richard Libowitz

Voice of Dowd

Editor:

As I neither initiated or assisted the recall petition, it is unfortunate that such an impression was fostered. The action was taken by a group of concerned students who sought to deter Mr. Rossie from what many students on this campus consider an undesirable course of action, injurious to the best interest of the student body and the university.

I harbor no sinister fears of betrayal by our student body president. But when he speaks of "changing the academic and administrative structure of this university," when his manner is consistently arrogant, then it is time for conscientious students to make their opinions known.

Perhaps this set-back has taught Mr. Rossie a valuable lesson. We want a student body president who exhibits tact and discretion, as well as determination. We want him to remember that he represents all of us, that he represents Notre Dame. All of the students are for progressive changes, but they don't want to destroy the good already here, or ruin it for those who will follow us.

Even a leader endowed with a "mandate" must realize how far he can go in the direction he wants to go.

Sincerely,
Pat Dowd

Pro-Rossie

Editor:

Preliminary indications are that the majority of the students who signed the "Recall Rossie" petition are members of the Class of '72.

As a tired old senior, I would sincerely and humbly like to offer a little advice to these freshmen.

You have been here three weeks. If as many of you signed those petitions as some would have us believe, you have already managed to weaken the bargaining position of a Student Body President who at the end of last year was elected by the largest majority in Notre Dame student government history. And he was running against two candidates. Maybe there was a reason.

Practically every student government and student publication official endorsed radicals with little or no contact with reality. So maybe they say the nasty things they do for a reason.

Large numbers of upperclassmen are spending large amounts of time trying to bring reform to Notre Dame in academic and social matters. Time that could be spent studying or sleeping or drinking or something. Maybe they're wasting their efforts in idle histrionics. But maybe they have a reason.

Perhaps what students have been trying to do here for the five years that student government has been in existence at Notre Dame has been folly, and your class has arrived at the right time to stop Notre Dame from being destroyed. And I mean that sincerely, not as a light touch of sarcasm. Hell, we seniors have no claim to infallibility.

But then again, maybe what has happened to the past three freshmen classes that I have witnessed will happen to your class. Maybe after the football season and the hoopla is over, this place will get on your nerves. And you'll get angry about it and try to do something. And you'll be blocked at every turn by the sheer inertia of this place. And you'll get out and shed your blood and sweat and tears because you see all the potential Notre Dame has for greatness that is being wasted for no good reason. And maybe among you will rise a Rossie that you will elect to the Student Body Presidency by even a bigger margin than we elected ours. And maybe you'll be able to point to your class as the one that finally got this show on the road.

Freshmen, all I'm saying is this. You're making a bed for yourselves right now that you're going to have to sleep in for four long years. If you ruin our chances for change now, you may be ruining your own chances in the years to come. All I ask is this. Make awfully sure you know what you're doing now in this your third week here. Because you're going to have to live with your actions for a long time after I've left this place. And I'm a little worried for you.

Yours in Notre Dame

More Pro-Rossie

Editor:

I was surprised and saddened to learn of the "Recall Rossie" movement which your paper reported recently. While I could not endorse everything that Rossie suggests, I believe his leadership has been a catalyst for a resurgence of student vitality which has been long overdue.

Those who would condemn a politics of power should recall that the politics of ease, concession confusion and beauty practiced by the Murphy and other past student governments did little to enhance the position of under-graduates at Notre Dame.

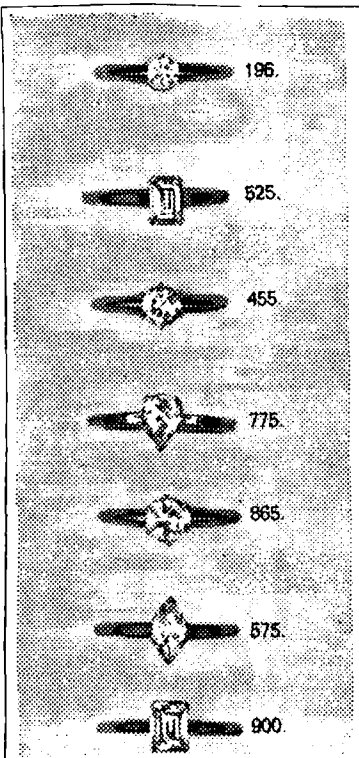

Mr. Rossie's leadership has been directed in part toward improving the intellectual life at Notre Dame. The renewed concern for this life displayed by some students as a result of Mr. Rossie's efforts is a refreshing, and in some ways miraculous, turnabout.

One might take issue with recent statements coming from those connected with or supporting the student government. Certain remarks were not only offensive but destructive and insipid as well. They have done a great deal of damage to a student administration which thus far has exhibited remarkable qualities of purpose and energy.

I believe that these qualities displayed by the Student Body President warrant admiration and deserve support.

Mr. Rossie presents an alternative to the managed mediocrity of the past. It is high time the student body on this campus approve this alternative. Yours truly,

Here We Go Again: Gibson, Gibso

DETROIT (UPI) — Plucky Bob Gibson fired a five hitter in the gloom of a misty drizzle for a record seventh straight World Series victory and speedster Lou Brock blasted a homer, triple and double Sunday as the St. Louis Cardinals routed the Detroit Tigers 10-1 and grabbed a commanding 3-1 edge in the series.

The Series' fourth game, scheduled to start at 1 p.m., EDT, didn't get under way until 1:30 p.m. because of the rain and then was delayed for an hour and 14 minutes at 2:15 p.m. with two out in the top of the third inning. When the downpour halted the match the Cards already held a 4-0 lead against 31-game winner Denny McLain.

McLain, suffering his second straight loss to Gibson as the Tigers were pushed to the brink of elimination in the best-of-seven series, didn't come back when the game resumed in the mist at 3:29 p.m.

But Gibson strode back to the mound in the damp, 50-degree weather and won the respect of the capacity crowd of 53,634 fans at Tiger Stadium—including Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey by allowing just three hits over the final seven innings to boost his World Series mark to 7-1. He also homered in the fourth and walked with the bases loaded in the eighth.

The Cards can now end the Series Monday in the fifth game when they send Nelson Briles to face Mickey Lolich, who recorded the Tigers' only victory in the Series in the second game.

Brock, who hit .414 in last year's Series, went 3 for 5 to boost his average to .500 with eight hits in 16 at bats. He clouted McLain's second pitch of the game into the right centerfield bleachers, tripled in the fourth inning and hit a bases-loaded double over center fielder Jim Northrup's head in the eighth.

Brock then capped the performance by stealing third for his seventh theft of the series—tying his single Series record of last year—and also tying Eddie Collins' career record of 14 steals in the World Series. Brock's drive actually would have been a triple in the eighth, but after he neared third, he retreated because Gibson was slow in rounding third and he thought the pitcher might stop there.

Gibson, who didn't have as much stuff as he did Wednesday when he had a record 17 strikeouts in the opener, still managed 10 strikeouts. He's now the only pitcher who's struck out 10 or more batters in five different series games.

He's the only pitcher to win seven straight games and to pitch seven straight complete games.

His 7-1 record is second in percentage among pitchers who have won six or more games only to former Yankee star Lefty Gomez, who was 6-0 in the series. The seven wins leave him tied for second on the all time list with Yankee standouts Red Ruffing and Allie Reynolds, who were 7-2.

Only Whitey Ford won more games, 10, but Ford lost eight series games. Gibson now has struck out 84 batters in 72 series innings while Ford holds the record of 94 but he pitched in 146 innings.

Gibson lost his bid to become the fifth man in history ever to pitch two shutouts in a series when Northrup homered in the fourth. Eddie Mathews, inserted at third by manager Mayo Smith, followed with a long foul drive but then grounded out and Gibson was in charge the rest of the way.

With the Tigers trailing, there was some weird play in the third and fourth innings before the game became official when five innings were completed.

With the Tiger fans chanting "rain, rain" and the Tigers stalling by going back to the dugout to get different bats in the hope that the rain might resume before five innings were completed, the Cards countered by twice deliberately getting thrown out by trying to steal. In the middle of the fifth, the umpires warned both managers that the strange play wasn't helping baseball's image and after the game was official, there were no more incidents.

Weekend Sports Roundup

It was an outstanding team effort that lead the Notre Dame sailing team to a first place finish in its home regatta this weekend at Diamond Lake. Though failing to take any individual honors the Irish dominated the 11-team event in low-pointing runners-up Indiana and Purdue.

Rich Doyle and John Hildebrandt were outstanding in their classes as a total of seven Notre Dame crews competed. Team member Pete Senecal commented that some of the crews were untested in team competition and in light of their efforts termed the regatta "a great success."

Notre Dame	48
Indiana	64
Purdue	75
Northwestern	81
Wisconsin	88
Iowa	88
Maryville	90

Fred Rohol's hat trick—three consecutive goals—led the Irish soccer club to a 5-3 victory at Indiana State yesterday.

Center forward John Pedrotty and outside right Dan Adams each tallied one goal for ND.

The Irish battle Northwestern 10:30 a.m. Saturday behind Stepan Center.

The Oriental Martial Arts Club of Notre Dame is sponsoring judo and karate lessons.

Karate classes will be held Monday through Friday from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Fieldhouse. Judo instructions will be given each evening at the Tai Jutsu studio in South Bend.

Those interested in either lessons should meet in the Fieldhouse at 5 p.m. today.

Boxing club president Bob McGraw has announced the opening of a novice training program in preparation for the annual Bengal Bouts next March.

Training begins Wednesday. Aspirants should register at the boxing room, in the Fieldhouse balcony, from 3 to 5 p.m., any day before the opening of drills.

IOWA CITY— Notre Dame opened its cross country season Saturday with a 25-30 victory over Iowa on South Finkbine golf course.

Bob Watson led the Notre Dame runners, finishing first with a time of 20:13.2 for the four-mile course. In the end it was the Irish depth that proved the difference though.

Iowa's Curt LaBond and Dave Eastland finished second and third, but Notre Dame captured fourth, fifth, seventh and eighth to seal the victory. The loss left Iowa with an 0-2 season record. ND is 1-0.

The results for each team's top five:

Notre Dame— 1. Bob Watson, 20:13.2; 4. Kevin O'Brien, 20:50; 5. Jim Rycyna, 21:21; 7. Mike Collins, 21:34; 8. Mike Donnelly, 21:45.

Iowa— 2. Curt LaBond, 20:31.3; 3. Dave Eastland, 20:43.6; 6. Craig Donath, 21:28; 9. Dick Jensen, 22:00; 10. Steve Szabe, 22:06.

Jays Lounge. On US 31 just across the border in Michigan, serving your favorite beers and liquors — seven days a week.

The Notre Dame water polo completed its fall season on a winning note Saturday, splashing to a 7-6 victory over Illinois at the Chicago Circle campus. The win evened the team's record at 1-1 following an earlier loss to Western Illinois.

Irish Offense: Eleven Prolific Men

By TERRY O'NEIL

Ara Parseghian sipped the soft drink that things go better with (as opposed to the one that makes you come alive) in the visitors locker room at Iowa Saturday.

A writer said, "Ara you got a helluva offense. When's the last time you remember 79 points (does anyone not know the Irish won 51-28) being scored in one game.

Before answering, Ara took another sip. That was a severe mistake, though, because he was quickly upstaged. Always-witty Joe Doyle, of South Bend Tribune fame, quipped, "Back in Akron when he was playing basketball."

Ara wasn't laughing. "I don't like having to outscore these teams each week but I guess we'll have to do it this year. Our defense is just too young and crippled with injuries right now," Ara said.

His Notre Dame offense had just put the blitz to another opponent. These Eleven Prolific Men had stacked up 35 first downs, 331 yards rushing, 256 yards passing and 587 yards total offense.

Like an avalanche rolling down on a Swiss village, the Irish offense engulfed and destroyed the small, inexperienced Hawks.

Hanratty reminded you of the guy who will start World War III. He sits at his control desk with millions of buttons in front of him. He knows they're all going to set off terrible destruction. He just doesn't know which one to push first.

Against Iowa, the first team offense had the ball for 10 series of downs. Seven of them resulted in touchdowns, one in a field goal. Twice Iowa stopped ND — once on the Hawkeye 42, once on the Hawkeye one-foot line.

The accompanying box shows exactly how awesome the 1967 ND offense is. This year's Irish have an excellent opportunity to break those seven all-time Notre Dame records.

Ara believes that college football has taken a definite turn toward yard-gaining and point-scoring.

"It's amazing, isn't it?" he asked rhetorically. "The population explosion has provided us with so many talented kids that the defense is just hard-pressed to keep up with the offense.

"The skills of today's passers and runners and receivers are so much better than former years. Now you tell the defense it must contain these boys on a field 50 yards wide and 100 yards long.

"You just can't do it. You saw what happened out there in the first quarter. They (Iowa) thought they had Hanratty trapped in the backfield. So Gladieux's defender came up a little too tight on him, Hanratty got free and Gladieux ran right past his man," Ara said. The result was a 69-yard pass completion.

"It's just come to the point where these kids have too many skills to contain on a field so big."

Someone asked Ara if he'd like to abandon two-platoon football and return to the limited substitution game which generally produced lower scores

"No," Ara replied. "As a coach, I don't like these high scoring games. But I realize they're very exciting and appealing for the fans.

"We couldn't have anything worse than a 3-0 game out there. Just a lot of head knocking all day. If I've got one unit, I have to teach them offense and defense. That limits the things I can teach them on offense and, therefore, they won't score as much.

"There's nothing better than the platoon game. Sure, it's wide open, but I'm willing to take those high-risk plays because I know I can pick up yardage so quickly."

Shame on you, Ara, for telling lies like that. With those Eleven Prolific Men you have playing offense, no play is high-risk.

While the offense was stealing the headlines Saturday, Mike McCoy and the rest of the Irish defensive front four was pressuring Iowa quarterback Larry Lawrence.

Scoreless Ties Featured In Interhall Grid Games

By GREG WINGENFELD

The 1968 Interhall Football season opened Sunday cold & soggy. Intermittant showers saw three scoreless ties and some hard-running backs.

Halfback Walt McGuire and quarterback John Tatu were the difference as Pangborn dumped highly-regarded Sorin, 14-0. Sophomore fullback Barney Koller helped Alumni run past an undermanned Lyons team, 28-0. Cavanaugh's balanced attack scored on an interception, a halfback option pass and a fullback draw as Zahm succumbed, 18-0.

In other games, Kennan subdued Stanford, 12-0, and the Dillon-Farley, Morrissey-Walsh, Breen-Phillips-Holy Cross games ended in 0-0 deadlocks.

Pangborn's Tatu ran for a seven yard touchdown late in the first half. McGuire, a bruising runner throughout the game, gathered in a Tatu pass and fought off two Sorin defenders to complete a 27 yard play in the second half. This action occurred after Tim Sweeney, Sorin's super quarterback, was injured on a kickoff return. Dick Lippert's interception of an errant pass triggered the score.

Fullback Koller scored on runs of four and five yards and was credited with one of Alumni's pair of safties. Bill Wich returned the second half kickoff for an 80 yard touchdown and took a 22 yard pass from quarterback Gordon Zimmerman into the endzone to cap the scoring. Lyons, with only 12 men in uniform, could not get past it's own 15 yard line in the entire first half.

Dick Grahm picked off a Zahm pass and outraced everyone for a 48 yard touchdown early in the game. Cavanaugh added to its total on a halfback option from Joe Skalya to split end Bud Clifford covering 19 yards and a nine yard ramble by fullback Bill Brown. Larry Schneider's interception was the only bright spot for Zahm.

Carl Rak's three yard plunge and a Micowicz to Waters bomb of 58 yards were all Keenan needed to defeat rival Stanford. Stanford twice missed on fourth and short yardage situations to stall drives.

The name of the Breen-Phillips-Holy Cross game was giveaway. Five fumbles and four interceptions marred the game. Dillon looked to be the stronger of the two but Farley managed to keep its goal line uncrossed as time ran out with Dillon on the one.

The Morrissey-Walsh encounter was a thriller. Coach Larry "Bear" Vuillemin's Walsh attackmen couldn't avoid penalties in the first half and it cost them some sizeable gains. A 58 yard scamper by Everett "Jackie" Bingham was nullified by a penalty. Bingham and fullback Bill O'Donnell gained good hardage on the ground. Kent Casey and Dick Salzberry did some stalwart running for Morrissey. The only sustained drive of the game was late in the fourth quarter when Walsh reeled off four first downs only to finish on the nine yard line as time ran out.

Next week's games include: Breen-Phillips vs. Zahm, Sorin vs. Off Campus, Holy Cross Vs. Kennan, Lyons vs. Dillon, Stanford vs. Cavanaugh, Farley vs. St. Edward's and Walsh vs. Pangborn.
