Discuss Mideast

Nixon confers with Gromyko

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon conferred with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko for 2½ hours yesterday in talks the White House said were "helpful" in laying the groundwork for improving Soviet American relations now chilled over the Middle East.

The importance of those relations in maintaining world peace will be stressed by Nixon in his address today before the U.N. General Assembly in New York, Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said.

Despite Gromyko's charge the day before that the United States was misrepresenting Soviet actions in Cuba and the Middle East, the White House said his lengthy discussions with Nixon yesterday were "conducted in a friendly atmosphere throughout."

The subject of Cuba, and U.S. concern that the Russians might be building a submarine base there, was not discussed.

Ziegler said without elaboration that the two discussed European security, including guarantees of Allied access to West Berlin, the Middle East, Vietnam and the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks which resume in two weeks in Helsinki, Finland.

Ziegler said the session was "helpful for laying the basis of improved relations between the United States and the Soviet Union. We also believe the meeting was useful from the standpoint that it allowed the President to give his personal and direct expressions on the subjects discussed."

A possible summit meeting with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin at the United Nations aborted, so Nixon sent word through diplomatic channels that he would welcome a chance to talk to Gromyko, the highest ranking Soviet official he has met for talks since he took office.

The two conferred for two hours and 15 minutes in Nixon's White House office, "accompanied by Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who escorted Gromyko here from New York; Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's national security affairs adviser; Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin, and interpreters.

Then Nixon took Gromyko to his hideaway office in the adjacent executive office building for a 15 minute chat alone. On their way back to the White House afterwards, they were preceded by Ziegler who told newsmen, "There will be no questions."

At midafternoon, the Soviet Embassy issued a rare press statement attributed to Gromyko calling the talks "very interesting."

"I would like to express hope that the meeting and discussion will be of positive significance for the development and improvement of Soviet American relations," the statement said.

Co-ed discussion today

by Jeanne Sweeney

St. Mary's Student Body President Ann Marie Tracey and St. Mary's Academic Affairs Commissioner Carol Henninger, are scheduled to moderate an all school convocation today. The convocation has been called to discuss recent developments in the coordinating committee on co-education and the presidential search committee on the agenda for today's meeting.

A rumor leaked by a Notre Dame administrator last week that Notre Dame will definitely become a co-educational institution in the near future triggered off much talk on the SMC campus about co-education.

St. Mary's Coordinating Committee met Wednesday evening in an effort to define St. Mary's goals as a liberal arts college and to plot its future. In addition, other people were invited to broaden the discussion which included administration, faculty and student members.

Carol Henninger, a student on the committee, said that the basic premise agreed upon by the committee was for "coordination, to whatever extent involves a social and academic mix."

Discussion centered upon various considerations for SMC's future including the possibility of a St. Mary's Liberal Arts College of Notre Dame University.

St. Mary's would still retain its identity as demonstrated by the return of an independent title, while becoming an integral part of N.D.

Another possibility considered by the committee would allow for an initial exchange of men and women of both campuses. Some St. Mary's dorms could be occupied by men and an equal number of girls would reside on the Notre Dame campus.

The committee discussed the appointment of a person whose specific job it would be to work out full cooperation between all ND and SMC departments.

Finally, the committee called for a strong and progressive academic program of liberal arts which would be the college's most outstanding feature and attraction.

Whether ND goes coeducational or not, St. Mary's Liberal Arts College would still be a integral part of the ND-SMC community.

Dr. Schlesinger, Chairman of the Humanistic Studies Department, emphasized that we are very intent on leaving all options open for consideration.

Sister Alma assured those present that the Board of Trustees will not refuse a decision reached by the consensus of the SMC community.

Miss Noel, of the English Department, expressed the desire for positive action, even to the point of a definite proposal for a working — and workable structure.

This same group will meet Monday evening and a committee headed by Father Runde has been also invited to present a proposal they have been working on independently.

Carol Henninger, the Academic Affairs Commissioner, said, "I was greatly encouraged by the exchange of ideas at the meeting, and by its tone, openness, and commitment to definite action."

Miss Henninger encouraged the attendance today of all students at the 4:15 p.m. convocation in Carroll Auditorium of all who are concerned about the future of SMC. Further information about the coordination committee's plans and about the recent visit from the hired ND-SMC consultants will be discussed during the meeting.

Hawk: 'US hasn't changed'

by Dave Bach
Thanks to WSND

David Hawk, co-founder of the 1969 Moratorium said last night that "the policies of our government haven't really changed" in the last 20 years. What the United States is trying to do now, Hawk contended, is to "maintain a pro-Western client state in South Vietnam."

The only difference between 20 years ago and the present, he said, is that now the government is "getting a little bit slicker about the way they are trying to maintain that client state."

He said that President Richard Nixon's strategy is two-fold: 1) trying to reduce American casualties; 2) "playing" with periodic troop withdrawals, and "the so-called peace plan."

However, he conceded that "Nixon's strategy on the whole, so far, has worked admirably... He has the support of a large number of Americans but precisely because he has convinced through a variety of means that he is trying and succeeding in ending the war."

But, he added, "I think his intentions are to reduce troops only to the level of 200,000 or 100,000, thinking that that, in fact, will be enough to maintain a pro-Western government in South Vietnam."

Bomb delays policeman's funeral

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A time bomb exploded outside a church yesterday as mourners gathered for the funeral of a policeman killed in a bank hold-up.

Gov. Ronald Reagan said the "vicious" act was part of the "fiendish tactics" of revolutionaries.

Police Chief Al Nelder said three small sons of the slain officer, Patrolman Harold L. Hamilton, were in the vestibule of St. Brendan's church when the bomb went off 13 minutes before the scheduled start of the service.

No one was injured although an officer was standing only 10 feet away when the bomb exploded, throwing nails, screws and bolts as far as 400 feet.

"If the intention was to injure, kill or maim police, the fact of the matter is that it almost did that to some children — particularly the Hamilton children," Nelder said.

About 100 persons, including 20 children from St. Brendan's school, were in the church and some 200 police officers were outside waiting the arrival of the funeral cortege when the explosion occurred.

Nelder said the church was searched before the funeral and "this leads me to believe the bomb was planted far in advance."

Nicholas Daphne, president of Daphne's funeral home, which handled the arrangements, said the funeral was delayed about 10 minutes because Mayor Joseph Alioto was delayed in getting to the chapel.

If it had gone on time, he said, the casket would have been carried up to the church for a preliminary service held at the front steps at about 9:50 a.m. — within three minutes of when the bomb went off.

Film sponsors merge

by Greg Rowinski

According to Commissioner Bob Brinkman, the Cultural Arts Commission has been formed this year to bring a "sense of the Arts" to the Notre Dame - St. Mary's campus. The Commission consists of the Cultural Arts Festival, the Sophomore Literary Festival, and Cinema '71.

The three groups have been consolidated, Brinkman explained, to bring together the necessary files and references, provide monetary stability, and to eliminate the calendar hassles and quarrels of the past.

Each group will still hold its separate functions. The CAF will still present films, as will Cinema '71. However, the SLF will not include films, nor will patron cards be sold.

Ten special fundraising films will be sponsored by CAF and SLF at which all will be charged admission, including CAF card holders.

Brinkman emphasizes that this will not devalue the card. More card-admission films will be available this year than last. These movies will be at straight admission because of their expense and the fundraising purpose.

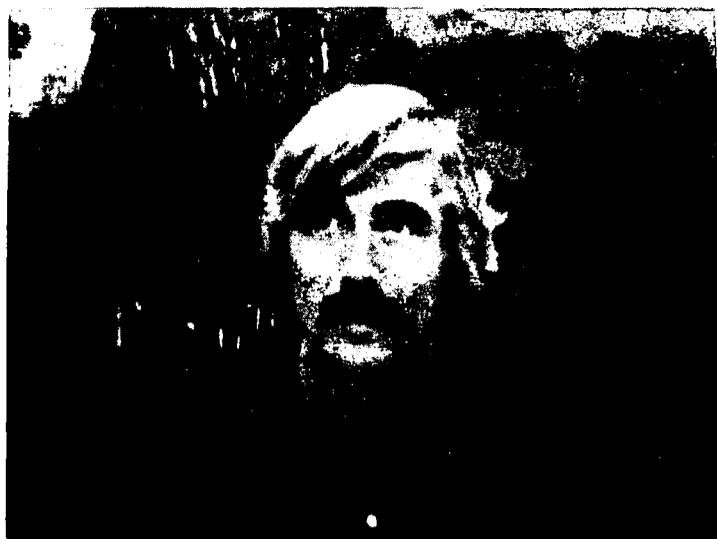

The opening flick of the series will be 'The Graduate,' to be shown on November 5 and 6. 'Bonnie and Clyde' will follow on November 14 and 15. Others include '2001: A Space Odyssey,' 'Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid,' 'Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf,' and 'Blowup.' The Commission wishes to bring to campus, if they are available, 'Midnight Cowboy,' 'Yellow Submarine,' and 'Mash.'

'Heart is a Lonely Hunter' is scheduled for Friday and Saturday, October 23 and 24.

'Fahrenheit 451,' the Commission's last offering, brought a 'fair' turnout, according to Brinkman.

CAF events are currently being scheduled. The Chicago Second City Players, an improvisational drama group, will perform at O'Laughlin Hall on October 31 at 8:30. This troupe presents drama in a loose structure, combining set speeches with improvised dialogue. The actors face the task of remaining in character in these speeches.

Cinema '71 will present a Surrealism Festival from November 16-21. This presentation is "about what's happening," according to Brinkman.

Kennedy Institutes asks funds

by Fred Schaefer

Mark Winings, chairman of the Kennedy Institute, announced yesterday that he plans to ask for "over $100,000 from the Board of Trustees. Winings said that "unless we get a big grant, the Institute will die. This would be unfortunate because it is potentially the best organization on campus."

The Kennedy Institute is a 2 year old organization, founded by Fr. Hesburgh after the assassination of Robert Kennedy. Winings explained that it is "broadly concerned with social action."

"It has a fantastic potential, it's controlled by the students, and literally anything in this area can be done," he said.

As an example, he cited the study done of Fabens, Texas by Prof. D'Antonio and Mr. Erwin Press. The sociological study examines what Winings calls "A classic example of poverty, exploitation, the mores of these people, and the whole Mexican-American plight. This is the definitive study in this area I believe."

Frosh ask end to hours Poll parents for opinions

by Maria Gallagher

St. Mary's freshmen have introduced a proposal to abolish the school policy of curfew hours for their class, possibly by the next semester. The present freshman curfew is 12 midnight on weekdays 2:00 a.m. on weekends.

Initiated by popular sentiment on campus, the plan is chiefly due to the efforts of Sheila Carney and Jane Redmond both freshmen. They have already presented some suggestions to Sister M. Immaculata, C.S.C., Dean of Students, who said she was personally not in favor of a revision of the rules in the middle of the year.

However, Sister Immaculata advised the girls that if they wanted to take further action, they could write all the freshmen parents to get their views and opinions. In order to avoid the considerable time and expense such an undertaking would have required, freshmen were contacted by phone and requested to place self-stamped, self-addressed envelopes in specified mailboxes.

Support of their efforts was evidenced by the tremendous response—almost 78% of the class. The letter to be sent to the parents will state the existing rule, present the proposed change, and invite comments.

Another letter with essentially the same content will be sent to each member of the faculty. They expect to have received all replies by November 1. Miss Carney expressed the hope that the girls would also write to their parents and urge their support of the plan.

In order to have the rule officially changed, the proposal would have to pass through three committees of the student assembly, and then be submitted to the Board of Trustees for final approval.

Dissent . SUAC and The Lib

A minor controversy has been set off among various circles in the Administration and students with the scheduling of two controversial females, Ti-Grace Atkinson and Jane Fonda.

Ti-Grace received a very hostile audience when she spoke here last Thursday night. In fact,

Observer Insight

SUAC head Jim Metzger claimed that it was the first time that he had brought in anyone and had her heckled. The various elements in Ti-Grace's speech, including how the church oppressed women and her obscene language were believed to be contributing factors to audience hostility.

The selection of Jane Fonda to speak on the "Ills of Society" has stirred criticism from many SMC students including Student Body President Ann Marie Tracey.

"It is regrettable with the number of intelligent women speakers that they have to bring in a woman noted for her theatrical and movement reputation rather than her intelligence, contributions and speaking ability," she said.

lity," she said.

Metzger defended the selection saying that she "personified all that a woman should be today, involved and liberated." He also claimed that she had proven her competency because she had "lived by the alternatives that she will be talking about." He cited her arrest and work with the Indians, and work with the GI's as evidence of her commitment.

Metzger asserted that this year, unlike under John Mroz, the Academic Commission was going to concentrate on bringing in quality speakers, rather than "anyone with a name."

Both Ti-Grace and Jane Fonda are part of the Commission's Women's speakers series. Co-chairman Missy Underman said that the series was not designed to be solely for advocates of Women's Liberation. However, Jim Metzger said that potential speakers for the series included Gloria Steinham and Betty Friedan, both noted women's lib advocates.

The Academic Commission plans to ask the Senate for $23,000, while $3,500 will come from co-sponsorships and SMC (Continued on page 8)

SLC

The Observer wishes to extend its most profound congratulations to the distinguished Messrs. of the Student Life Council for finally passing the revised judicial code. After considering some more pressing matters, like when the Student Life Council would meet (that took an hour) or whether the minutes taken by the distinguished Mr. Winings were objective (half hour), the SLC finally buckled down and did a job.

Now the Judicial Code goes up before the university Potentates a third time, and if this cup is once again refused, we are all in serious trouble. We have been without an effective code for too long, now, and one can only hope that the Administration and the Board of Trustees will put that reality ahead of the petty considerations that have so far predominated these proceedings.

When the Judicial Code was passed late last year, there was only one dissenting vote — the vote of the Student Body President. The President protested that the code was too "legalistic." He did not suggest an alternative to legalism in a code of laws.

But Father Hesburgh, acting, perhaps, on this one dissenting vote, sent the bill back to the Student Life Council, with some "recommendations." The bill was rewritten, and brilliantly rewritten, by the Rev. James Burtchaell, C.S.C., provost of this University. The Student Life Council unanimously passed the bill.

The University Trustees vetoed the bill early this year, protesting that the controversial "double jeopardy" provision would prevent the University from prosecuting cases above the trial board level. After much haranguing over whether this new court should be a civil court or a criminal court, the SLC passed the Houck-Massey amendment, which made provisions for the retrial of a defendant convicted in a lower court. Once again there was one dissenting vote. Once again it was the Student Body President.

It is our sincere hope that the Board of Trustees will pass the revised Burtchaell code forthwith. It is also our sincere hope that with this out of the way, the Student Life Council will turn itself to the problems that are facing this campus. They are many. They are difficult. They must be overcome.

There is no more time for games.

Letters

Dear Mr. Corso:

In reply to the discriminatory articles in the Thursday October 15 issue of the Observer, I wish to make a few comments and come to the defense of the University employees who were so ridiculed. I because of necessity work in the Maintenance department in order that I may earn the wages and receive the income to help support my children and to give to them whatever education this income will provide. I and including many others who work in the same capacity "as maids" are more than willing to give forth our best efforts to do the daily, monotonous, dreary work that is expected of us. But for us to do "Kennel Work" as brought forth by the "Kennel Master", one Rev. Griffin, is out. I sympathize with my fellow lady employees in refusing to clean out the "Dog Pen." If he is so attached to the "mutt," then I suggest that he should clean his own room. Furthermore, if I were assigned to clean his room, I would make sure that if the dogs first fall didn't give the results desired, then I would make it a point to drop him (I presume it is a him) from a higher height to be able to get the desired results.

Having been reared in the faith of the writer of the "Open Letter," I have always been told that in being ordained to the priesthood, a man chooses God as his companion for life and not a dog as the writer states.

The second article "I am a janitor" ridicules the nationalities that are employed within the University. There are all nationalities working and cleaning up the daily messes that you boys create. And believe me these are messes. Many of us work to support sons and daughters at this school and at other colleges. You must remember we were all born as equals as human beings and in the eyes of God we will be treated as such. Though we have to work hard for our money, we don't deny you who have been born with a silver spoon in your mouth. All we ask you to do is to have your writers edit articles which will be of benefit to your student body.

One of the maids who regularly and for a long time has been cleaning and tucking you in.

Editor:

In the past few years this community of strivers after wisdom has been treated to a remarkable galaxy of cranks, buffoons, charlatans, and ignoramuses masquerading as visiting lecturers. One thinks of Tom Hayden, Joseph Welch, Dr. Spock, Fr. Coughlin, Ron Karenga, Allen Ginsburg, Herbert Aptheker, William Kunstler, and Swami Something-or-Other. Most of them have been subsidized with money taken from ALL students. Had Charles Manson been able to make bail doubtless he too would have appeared. It now seems, judging from the Observer's account of Ti Grace Atkinson's remarks (October 16), that new heights of intellectual and cultural excellence have been attained. If this trend continues it will soon become necessary to insist that a visiting speaker 1) pass a saliva test, and 2) submit a medical certificate attesting that he or she is housebroken.

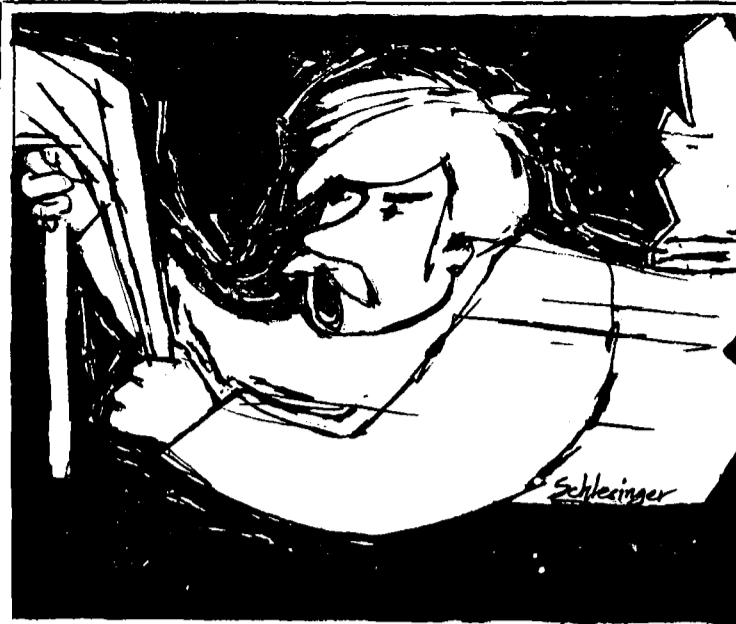

Yours sincerely,

Letting It Bleed

Reflections on Perversion

Ed Ellis

Eleven o'clock at night. A guy and his girl are walking down the hallway to the guy's room. They pass by the doorway where the keg is housed for the evening's indulgence in that All-American Utopiate, alcohol. Notre Dame has probably kept Anheuser-Busch in business for more than one economically dry season. The crowd in the room, all celibate by fate, not choice, is becoming unruly. They have exhausted the supply of Fugs albums. They have petitioned the Lord with prayer till their throats ache for more of the elixer, and they have finished drooling over the last three years of Playboy. They are bored. They watch the "lucky jerk" (if the euphemism is to be pardoned).

"Hey, the broad ain't bad, man."

Louder, "No, the guy's gonna get his piece tonight."

Altogether, louder still, "Hey, Mac, wouldn't kick her out of bed myself, bring her in here so we can make a 'piece' treaty."

The guy blushes and says something about the guys being at it again. So does the girl. That is it. Till the next night when the same guy is in almost the same place. But this time he is drunk "with the boys", and inquires as to the bra size of a young lady walking with another young man outside his window.

Another day, another perversion.

Ten guys are on the quad, playing football. Two girls, presumably from St. Mary's on their way to the library, walk along the quad, casting occasional wary glances at the pseudo-jocks showing off their presumed masculinity. And now, through the use of miniature microphones concealed in the quarterback's regulation Joe-College headband, the scene in the offensive huddle.

"Hey, look at the broads. Wonder if the blonde goes down?"

"No, she's stuck up. I already asked her and she wouldn't answer."

"What a bitch!"

Louder now, "Wannah play some ball?"

Altogether, louder still, "What are you doing tonight, Honey?"

Answer, "Studying."

"Wannah play with me?"

The girls retreat with all deliberate speed, but not without having their vague suspicions about "gross Notre Dame boys" solidified.

These two incidents, well known to any student of the University who is willing to be honest with himself, are not unique in the mentality that fosters them. They are perversions in every sense of the word. To accost young ladies with not-so-double entendre is a perversion. To cover one's walls with photographs of naked prostitutes is a perversion. To throw beer cans, apple cores, mini-footballs, toilet paper, and undifferentiated garbage at Terry Buck is perversion.

What is the underlying cause of the above-mentioned sexual irregularities? Quite simply, it takes no sociologist or psychologist to notice the obviously and disgracefully artificial relationship between the sexes here at Notre Dame. Anytime somebody finds it necessary to ask a girl for a date two weeks in advance, there is something wrong, and not with anybody's pituitary glands, either.

The obvious solution to the problem is to increase the number of women on campus. Then the guys at the keg won't have to demand eminent domain over their fellow's girl.

The atmosphere created by the artificiality of the situation is by far the most debilitating effect of Notre Dame. Those who find out about it before they begin school do not come here. This University loses its best applicants, according to the admissions office. Those who come here talk of transferring for four years, and participate in a myriad of perversions. They call the Hot-Line. They go "hogging" at the circle. No other University in the country has extracurricular activities like this!

And meanwhile, the SLC meanders for hours haranguing each other about when to meet. Student Government leaders play power politics by juggling their friends into good jobs.

Another day, another perversion. This, gentlemen, is life at Notre Dame. This is Life?

WHO IS THE GREATEST?

A dispute arose also between them about which should be reckoned the greatest, but he said to them, "Among pagans, it is the kings who lord it over them, and those who have authority over them are given the title Benefactor. This must not happen to you. No; the greatest among you must behave as if he were the youngest, the leader as if he were the one who serves. For who is greater: the one at the table or the one who serves? The one at the table, surely? Yet here I am among you as one who serves.

Letters to the Editor

Angela Davis

Editor:

Your editorials to this point have continually harbored upon the absurd but one has had to refrain from responding for either of two reasons: one, compassion dictates one's refrain and influences one's sincere desire that improvement will be the future mode. Two, one has been reluctant to comment because any reaction would only dignify your absurdities and some of your rashness.

My departure from the above position is motivated by one such rash judgment in your editorial 'Bombings' (October 15, Thursday). Immediately I must say that I do not contest those strong sentiments against the recent bombings but share in them. Instead what I must take strong exception to is your judge-jury-conviction attitude towards Miss Angela Davis.

At this time I do not question either Miss Davis' compulsions nor her particular methodologies (for not the least of reasons that I may concur with some of them.) However, the relevant issue for your consideration in the future must be that you render to our courts of law that which many people (and I strongly suspect this group includes you) have proselytized for i.e., the unique (therefore "only," not your) responsibility of the law courts system to determine guilt or innocence. This must be particularly true when the whole nation has their often omnipotent, and self-righteous eyes on Miss Davis, who presently is a "suspect."

Therefore, if Miss Davis was "a common gun moll to aid escaping criminals," let it be decided by the courts; then justice will have but one bastion, the courts, and not the streets, Mr. Nixon, or worse—your editorials.

Sincerely,
David M. Krashna

Ti Grace

Editor:

There are two things to sadden the reader of the Observer's report on the recent address by Ti-Grace Atkinson. One is the talk itself—where blasphemy apparently replaced argumentation—and the other is the Observer's direct quotation of some of the speaker's vulgarities.

There is little this community can do to protect itself from the crudities of invited speakers. Over the long haul, the open speaker's policy is vindicated, despite such performances as that of last Thursday. One hopes, however, that students are coming to realize that the visibility of such a place as Notre Dame means that some who use its platform are more interested in self-promotion than in any commerce in ideas.

On the second point, we have somewhat more control. While the use of obscenities has become fashionable in the so-called underground press of the country, the Observer would still do well to model their news treatment on such journals as The New York Times. The Times and other reputable dailies manage to cover a wide range of controversial material without lowering their standards. It is possible to convey the flavor of a discourse such as Miss Atkinson's without the scatology.

If, as I am given to understand, there was heckling of Miss Atkinson from some members of the audience, we have a third aspect of the event to lament. Boorish conduct is no answer to a tasteless lecture.

Finally, let me simply remind the editors of the Observer that, while there is no prior censorship of student publications on this campus, there still is an accountability which these publications and their editors owe to the community.

Yours, truly,
Rev. John A. O'Brien, Ph.D.

Editor:

For a good many years I have worked in journalism and I, too, cherish freedom of the press. Why do you demean this beautiful right for which many journalists have struggled and suffered?

I refer to the October 16 report on the talk given by Ti-Grace Atkinson. Any half-way professional writer could have given an honest account—including the speaker's criticisms of the Church and denial of Mary's virginity—without descending to Miss Atkinson's vulgarity.

I know those words.
I know that you know those words.

We both know that Miss Atkinson knows them.

Why must you try to show off?

Sincerely,
Katherine T. Dooley (Mrs. W.R.)

Sr Marita

Editor:

It would be impossible to personally thank the hundreds of administrators, faculty and students who unselfishly gave of their time to make the Shakespeare Marathon the success that it was. Many read for an hour, many others for several hours in rainy and cold weather. During the 97 hours, over $1100 was collected, largely due to the generosity that alumni and parents saw in those that were part of the Marathon. To all those who contributed and to all those who read Shakespeare, I give a very warm and appreciative thanks for the concern they displayed for the children of the Primary Day School. The School is by no means financially stable yet, but the first step toward success has been taken, and I thank all those who generously involved themselves in that step.

Student Union

Editor,

Too often when a group or an organization is involved in some project, its president (director) incorrectly is either given credit or recognition. I believe that this often has happened in regard to the Student Union. The case in point being the Muhammed Ali-Jerry Quarry fight. Although I was involved in the dispute, Tom Olivieri, The Associate Director, and not I, expended the most effort. He deserves the recognition of a picture in the paper for the efforts of the Student Union to secure the fight.

Peace,
Bob Pohl

Frosh must learn what ND means

by Vic Dorr
Observer Sportswriter

This is Coach Denny Murphy's first year at the helm of the Notre Dame Freshman Team, and surely no one can blame him for experiencing mixed emotions when he considers the opposition facing his charges in 1970.

The Irish yearlings will play a three game slate this season. They will entertain Michigan State tomorrow, and Tennessee on October 31, before heading to Ann Arbor for a November 7 game with the Wolverine first-year men. The Spartans, of course, pose the most immediate threat to Murphy's freshman squad.

"Michigan State's going to be higher than a kite when they come down here for the game," said Murphy, "and I've tried to impress this upon the boys. I've tried to make them realize that everyone wants a piece of Notre Dame." The Irish coach will have to wait only until 1:30 tomorrow afternoon to see what effects his exhortations have had on the players. The Spartans will square off against Notre Dame with a team that is somewhat lacking in balance, but that features several outstanding performers. Quarterback Mark Niesen and running backs Bill Simpson and Mike Holt have drawn raves from their coaches, as have guard Ray Nester and end Mike Hurd.

Murphy will meet the Michigan State challenge by unveiling an Irish Freshman Team that is a potential powerhouse. Competition has been keen for the starting positions on this squad, but nowhere more so than at quarterback. Cliff Brown, a six-footer from Middletown, Pennsylvania, will probably receive the starting nod, but two other candidates, Tom Creevy and Brian Doherty, have shown well in practice, and both will play depending on the game situation. Greg Hill, perhaps the most effective runner the Freshmen possess, will start at right half, and his running mate at left half will be Gary Diminick. Other certain starters for the offense include tight end Dave Casper and center Mark Brenneman. The offensive co-captain will be Frank Pomerico. The defense, led by linebacker co-captain Tom Devine will employ the 4-4-3 setup which has been proven so effective by the varsity this year. The front four-ends George Hayduk and Dennis Lozzi, and tackles Dan Morrin and Larry Suske-average around 230 pounds, and should prove more than a match for their Spartan counterparts. Besides Devine, the linebacking unit includes Joe Alvarado, Brian Clemente, and Tim Sullivan, all of whom are swift, rangy performers. There is still some question as to who will start at the three deep spots for the Irish.

"The kids have done a real fine job," said Murphy. "They've been very intense in learning, and have drawn together as a team. We have had no problems." This, Murphy feels, is especially encouraging in view of the fact that the team has had very little opportunity to practice together as a functioning unit.

"We've spent most of our time in preparation work with the varsity," he explained. "Each week we run the offense of whoever the varsity is playing on Saturday against the first string defense. We try to simulate it as close as possible. Colors, numbers, everything." This preparation work, when coupled to the weekly scrimmage against the second and third string varsity players, indeed leaves the freshmen with very little time in which to work as a team. Nevertheless, they seem to have overcome this obstacle with fairly little difficulty.

Besides winning, which is the natural goal of every coach, Murphy feels that one of his main tasks is to acquaint the freshmen with the style of football-both mentally and physically-that is played by the varsity.

"We run from the same offensive and defensive sets that the varsity uses," he said. "And too, I try to instill in my players that same philosophy about the game that Coach Parseghian stresses with the varsity. The Freshman Program's purpose is to introduce the basics of Notre Dame football."

Murphy took his players a long way towards this introduction the day he told them: "Everybody wants a shot at Notre Dame."

The Irish Eye

Picks

And a tip of the Leprachaun's hat to those wonderful people at Sports Illustrated who finally realized that there is a good football team roaming among the sycamores of northern Indiana. It was a real let down to find that Dan Jenkins didn't cover the ND-Mizzou game for SI. He could have picked out numerous flaws that would make the Irish sound more like the third worst team in the country rather than uphold their Number Three ranking.

With an open date on the Irish schedule, it's time to sit back and hope that a few more upsets can occur this weekend. It's highly unlikely that either of the teams in front of du Lac will fall to their opponents but possibly a bigger gap can be created for those teams that trail ND.

Ohio State over Illinois: If the Buckeyes are going to lose this season it certainly won't be this weekend. Anything less than a 35 point victory will be a moral win for the Illini.

Northwestern over Purdue: The boilermakers have been hot and cold all season. Even though they're due for a hot game this writer will stick with the upsurging Wildcats who have won two Big Ten matches in a row. The game is at Evanston and that should help matters.

Toledo over Kent State: The Rockets have shot into the Top Twenty rankings in both polls. They have the third leading defense and second longest win streak in the nation. They should get by troubled Kent State with little difficulty.

Houston over Alabama: It's getting to the point where I almost feel sorry for the old Bear. 'Bama has played a tough schedule this season and it's possible that they may finish below .500 for the first time in many moons. LSU and Auburn are still on the Tide's schedule.

LSU over Auburn: This is an upset of sorts. The Tigers from Auburn have been winning the big ones this season and the Tigers of the Bayou haven't played anyone of repute (sorry Aggie fans), but this is one of the few games LSU must get "up" for.

Stanford over UCLA: The Bruins were involved in a controversial win last week what Dennis Dummit scored with four seconds left. Films showed that his knee hit before scoring against Cal. This week there will be no argument. If the UCLANs should win, the Pacific Eight will really be topsy turvy.

Southern Cal over Oregon: SC has just managed to get by a few opponents but they're due to break a game wide open, unless maybe they are saving something for Nov. 28.

Arkansas over Texas A&M: The Aggies have been disappointing in the Southwest Conference so far. The Hogs may outscore them this week but wait until Thanksgiving when the Farmers play the only game on their schedule that really counts.

Pitt over Miami (Fla.): The Number One team in the east will have a 6-1 record when they come to South Bend for Parents Weekend. My folks have never been to a circus.

UPSET OF THE WEEK

Minnesota over Michigan: In the battle for the Little Brown Jug it could be a sad day in Ann Arbor. The Wolverines may have played themselves out against State. Besides the upset of the week has been pretty hot lately.

In the other big games it looks like: Penn State over Army, West Virginia over Colorado State, Syracuse over Navy, North Carolina State over Maryland, North Carolina over Wake Forest, Duke over Clemson, Tennessee over Florida, Florida State over South Carolina, Georgia over Kentucky, Georgia Tech to get back in the win column against Tulane, Michigan State over Iowa, Indiana over Wisconsin, Nebraska over Oklahoma State, Oklahoma over Kansas State, Kansas over Iowa State, Mississippi over Vanderbilt, Texas over Rice, Texas Tech over SMU, Air Force over Boston College and Washington over Oregon State.

Crew , sailing information

The Notre Dame Crew will have one fall race to be held at its Mishawaka site on the St. Joe River this Saturday. The races will begin at 2 p.m. hosting Purdue and Wayne State.

Anyone wishing to see the races can reach the site by driving east on the Jefferson Highway for a few miles till passing the large power plant on the right. The next right will be the Marina Entrance. All those big boat experienced sailors who would like to crew for the Kennedy Invitational for ND this spring please call Tim Flood (8862) before Wednesday, the 28th. Experience is necessary.

$1,000 to Sr. Marita

The report was entered in a sociological contest and "literally walked away with three first place awards."

The groups also have been working with Sr. Marita and her day school. They gave $1,000 to her, and have been "writing reports to submit to various organizations for her. We were considering sending one to the Ford Foundation, but it sometimes takes seven years to get a reply, so we didn't."

For a time, it appeared as though an Indian reservation would be the recipient of the Institute's efforts. "We thought we were going to start a reservation, but that kind of fell through. We're working along the same lines on a smaller scale for next year," explained Winings.

"We hope to get more people involved directly. We're going to need students and ideas," he stated.

will contribute $1,200 for a total budget of $28,000 to $30,000. When asked if there was any check on the Commission regarding proper use of funds, Metzger claimed there were none, except for Observer stories and individual student queries.

Ti-Grace Atkinson was paid $500 of which $200-$300 was for traveling expenses. Jane Fonda, on the other hand is being paid $1,250 of which some will be made up by charging students $ .50 for attendance.

Metzger explained the various processes the Commission follows in order to procure suitable speakers. The prime source of potential speakers is suggestions from the staff. Invitations are sent out to those people and when replies are received the commission evaluates them on the basis of their price, scheduling availability, experience, relevancy and interest.

Other processes include going through speakers' bureaus, faculty and student recommendations. The same criterion are used to judge potential speakers obtained in this manner. Metzger stated that the Academic Commission was open to any suggestions the students might have.

Hawk

Hawk, in his address to a sparse crowd in the Engineering Auditorium, also commented on the past successes and future plans of the peace movement. He said that the anti-war movement has been relatively successful, in that it has "put the administration on the defensive three times." He cited the resignation of former President Lyndon Johnson, the moratorium movement of last fall, and the campus strike last spring as the major successes along this line.

Mr. Hawk, who is now attending a theological seminary in New York, also said that violence is not an effective means of social change. Citing the overwhelming superiority of civilian and military police power, he advised that it would be useless to fight militarily.
