SLC Representatives Elected

By Mike O'Hare

The results of the SLC elections this past Friday may produce a critical showdown in student government, due to the election of write in candidate, Ann Marie Tracey.

The results of the SLC elections showed Ann Marie Tracey and John Cullen victorious on the North Quad. The winners on the South Quad were Buzz Imhoff and Rich Urda, while Dave Tushar captured Off-Campus. Kezele will represent the Towers. The vote was 289 for Kezele and 29 for Joe Schupp.

In the controversial North Quad election, Ann Marie Tracey and John Cullen were elected to the SLC. Miss Tracey received 435 votes while Cullen gathered 261 votes. Close behind Cullen were Jerry O'Connor with 223 votes, Tom Leahy with 222 votes, and T.C. Treanor with 138 votes. Commenting on his election, John Cullen wanted to thank all the North Quad candidates for a hard but clean fought campaign.

Miss Tracey commented that, "I think my election indicates an awareness of the real issues at hand—coeducation." She also remarked that, "The students must take an active role in order to get the kind of co-education they want." Miss Tracey expressed concern over the possibility of her being refused a seat on the SLC. One administrator was reportedly dismayed at the news of her election to the SLC and doubted if she would be allowed to sit on the Council.

From the South Quad, Rich Urda and Buzz Imhoff garnered 521 and 670 votes respectively.

Gary Caruso finished third in the race, with a total of 342 votes. Concerning his election, Buzz Imhoff remarked that, "The big job is now to carry through the promises of the campaign." Imhoff went on to say that he hoped to bring the idea of SLC cooperation and communication from theory to reality.

Rich Urda said that he was pleased with the SLC results, believing that the best candidates had won. He said that Buzz Imhoff and himself are already discussing ways to implement their campaign programs. Urda remarked that in a meeting Saturday with Father Hesburgh, Hesburgh was confident that the SLC would recover the potential it had at its inception three years ago.

The Off-Campus election results showed Dave Tushar defeating Joe Schlosser. Tushar received 59 votes compared to Schlosser's 29. Tushar stated that, "I hope that I'll be able to do the best job possible."

Disunity leads to disorder in nation's capital

by Dave Lammers
Special to the Observer

Washington was a scene of confusion due to a lack of unity yesterday. The desire for non-violent civil disobedience by blocking traffic was still strong among most demonstrators. But it is clear that others came here with no allegiance to Ghandian non-violence.

Until the police appeared, Potomac Park was the site of rock music, dope smoking, wine drinking and some political organizing. Many came intending to leave after the concert, but the far more serious political discussions could begin today. Sunday, the government revoked the camping permit and at 6 a.m. Sunday morning many campers awoke to a police van announcement that the park was to be cleared.

Sunday afternoon the protestors were divided, confused, angry, and tired, which was exactly the intention of the police move. An example of this came in the morning when a police van circling the park was hit by bottles thrown by a dozen or so angry campers until a youth jumped on a moving car and shouted for an end to the bottle barrage. But such incidents - and the political attitude of those who stoned the van led one woman to remark that the protestors were "guerrillas fighting their own government."

The blue uniformed Washington police are calm but present everywhere, standing on almost every corner and complemented by low-flying helicopters that circle over every point of protest activity. Most discussion today tried to anticipate the action to the police, the federal troops and national guardsmen, as the police and long-haired protestors continue another chapter of the too long anti-war movement.

Saturday morning after arriving, Chet Sygal and I visited the offices of three Representatives and talked to their aides. Representative Bennett - who is a

McGlynn says student concern is needed on campus

By Pat Sullivan

A little care and concern for others could "markedly" reduce the incidence of theft, assault and other crimes on campus according to Security Investigator Jerry McGlynn.

The incidence of all stealing and assaults at Notre Dame could be "markedly reduced through vigilance of students, faculty, and staff," McGlynn said during a recent interview in his firehouse office.

"Not only are the members of the community passive in this regard," McGlynn said, "they don't help each other or even defend themselves in an assault situation."

I hope the word is not out that Notre Dame students don't fight back."

McGlynn, who graduated from ND in 1960, worked as an insurance investigator and also did some work in black ghetto areas before returning to Notre Dame. Now, in addition to studying for his MBA as a grad student, he is the security investigator in charge of assaults and larceny.

According to McGlynn's calculations for the 1970 calendar year, there were 349 thefts of personal property, 229 breaking and enterings with intent to commit larceny and 26 assaults.

The security force is the "scape-goat" for these crimes, McGlynn said, adding that much of the blame lies in the negligence of the community.

It is up to each member of the University community to work at curtailing the incidence of crime on the campus, McGlynn said. Members of the community should be less passive about suspicious strangers in buildings and parking lots, he added.

McGlynn cited the example of a drifter who hung around campus until he finally pulled a gun on some students and robbed some others.

"Such trouble could be stopped," McGlynn said, "if students, faculty, and staff - within their own areas of responsibility - would spot outsiders and question them." Doors should also be locked to remove the possibility of theft, he said.

OBSERVER INSIGHT

According to McGlynn not only is the community passive in challenging strangers, it won't even defend itself.

Four students were walking together on the campus, he recalled, "and somebody came up and rapped one in the mouth." The other three didn't do anything.

In another incident three students were walking with their dates past the Law Building. Three juveniles came out of Alumni and one guy grabbed one of the girls. The three students, according to McGlynn, didn't do anything.

"I'm not saying they should have smashed him; just an aggressive foot forward would have been enough. And then there was Ed Grimmer getting knifed: there were enough people nearby that somebody should have done something. I hope the word is not out that the students don't fight back."

McGlynn admits that the majority of trouble comes from outside the campus, "But we have our share of it here." He thinks most of this inter-student crime could be stopped by the hall governments and judicial boards, but right now "this mechanism just isn't functioning."

The trouble from outside is a bigger problem, McGlynn said, and the security force is somewhat handicapped in this area.

"There is a lot more crime now than when I was a student here. But there is also a lot more activity." The Convocation Center and other programs, he said although good for community relations, have also brought a lot of young trouble-makers onto the campus. Any person who is not an ND student and has no legitimate business on campus is trespassing on private property, McGlynn said. This is why the Student Manual requires every student to carry and show his I.D. on demand to any university official.

In assault cases investigated by McGlynn, "these young uneducated outsiders feel they are displaying their individual power by being able to assault 'more educated people.'" The main assault area on campus starts from the Huddle, and goes down the main quad, the circle, and Notre Dame Ave.

Planned Parenthood ideas misunderstood

The misconception that Planned Parenthood is an organization to help people have more children is fairly common among poor, white families in Gary, Ind., according to a study conducted by the department of psychology.

Dr. Bobby J. Farrow, associate professor of psychology and one of the three directors of the team studying "Psychological Attitudes and Birth Control," explained that the Planned Parenthood offices, in Gary, who supported the study, were concerned that they reached only about six per cent of the families needing and desiring help in limiting family size.

The study was co-directed with Dr. John F. Santos, chairman of the department of psychology, and Dr. Jonelle M. Farrow, acting chairman of the department of psychology at Indiana University, South Bend.

Referring to the misconception among some that Planned Parenthood was primarily to help parents have more children, Farrow commented, "After all, their only radio and television commercial depicts a woman with a great many children. It was created to help the raise funds, not to reach the people it is trying to help."

However, almost 80 per cent of the men and women questioned approved of birth control, and had tried to limit their own family size for financial or personal reasons. Ninety per cent thought four children or less was the ideal family size, while about 30 per cent favored the two-child family. These families had an average of three children.

Over half believed that overpopulation posed a threat to the world, and perhaps even to the United States, at some point in the future. However, when asked what considerations would lead them to consider having fewer children, over half responded "financial considerations," while only about 15 per cent indicated the world situation or living conditions would be important. Only three per cent believed religion would influence their decision to have more children or to engage in birth control practices.

Birth control pills were the favorite method of contraception, used by almost half of the respondents. Barely a third of the men had heard of the intrauterine device (IUD), while two-thirds of the women were aware of this method. However, Farrow added, less than five per cent had actually used either the IUD or surgical methods to limit family size.

More than 40 per cent indicated that they had tried to take steps to prevent pregnancy before the birth of their last child. Of these families, almost half had used birth control pills, considered 99 per cent effective when used correctly. Most families had learned about various birth control methods from friends and neighbors, rather than from doctors or Planned Parenthood representatives.

The research team plans to continue its study of these families, trying to assess what psychological traits characterize those who are conscientious about trying birth control methods, and what traits describe those who either reject or discontinue efforts to limit family size.

R.A.P. to present two films on war

The Refuge Aid Program will formally end tomorrow, May 4 in conjunction with the anniversary of the Kent State tragedy.

In commemoration of the anniversary, the R.A.P. will show two free films, Once Upon A War, a documentary on the refugees, and In the Year of the Pig, a commentary on US involvement in Asia. They will be shown at 7 and 10 tonight and tomorrow night in room 122 of the Hayes-Healey business building.

For those wishing to make final contributions to the refugees, there will be collections in both dining halls today and tomorrow at dinner. Any other contributions may be mailed at any time to R.A.P., Box 626, Notre Dame, Ind.

The Observer is published daily during the college semester except vacations by the students of the University of Notre Dame and St. Mary's College. Subscriptions may be purchased for $8 from The Observer, Box 11, Notre Dame, Ind. 46556. Second class postage paid, Notre Dame, Ind. 46556.

THE WORLD IS FULL OF BEAUTIFUL PEOPLE AND PLACES. To help you get there, TWA introduces the Getaway* Program.

If you could dig hitch-hiking across Spain or camping along a road in England. Staying at a chateau in France or living near a beach in California. TWA brings you Getaway.

First there's the Getaway* Card. With it, you can charge airfare, hotels, meals, cars, just about anything just about anywhere. And then take up to two years to pay.

There's also the Youth Passport* Card. It lets you fly at 33 1/3% off on all domestic flights on a standby basis.

It also gives you reduced rates at many places you'll be staying.

Youth Passport is good on 20 other airlines. It costs $3 and it's available to anyone between 12 and 21.

And if you send in the coupon, we'll send you the Getaway Vacation Kit.

It has a Getaway Book, a 224 page look at 19 of the great cities of the world.

Three brochures, one on America, one on Europe, and a third on Africa, Asia, the Orient, and the Pacific.

It has the independent Getaway Brochure. For those who would rather travel by themselves than with a group.

And it has applications for both the Youth Passport and Getaway Card.

Mail in the coupon for TWA's free Getaway Vacation Kit.

Facenda explains judicial practices

(This is the third in a series of interviews with University Vice-president and General Counsel Philip Facenda on the University Judicial Code. In this discussion Mr. Facenda considers the relationship between University rules and civil law. The interview was conducted by Observer News Editor John Abowd, ed.)

income tax is based on the federal tax, the state could initiate two similar actions. If I am found guilty the bar association would disbar me because commission of a felony is automatic disbarment. That's five separate court actions because of one violation. One action can have many reactions. Q. This idea of dual jurisdiction caused some obvious problems during the drug case proceedings. One of the biggest of these was that on the civil level the question of guilt was thrown out because of evidential terms yet in the university level the question of guilt was pursued. Weren't the protections of the civil law denied on the university level because of the use of the "imminent danger clause"?

A. That's not true. We deal constantly with inaccuracies and we report inaccuracies, and they become fact if they are repeated often enough. One action, as I said, can submit the accused to more than one trial but only to one trial by a given sovereign. "Double jeopardy" involves only one sovereign. There can be as many trials as there are different sovereigns. Each has the opportunity to use its own evidence but only one, the state, has the power to subpoena evidence.

The problem in this case is that the university's evidence is better than the evidence of the state. In the three cases that have been appealed, the defendants have been found guilty. The appeals court has lowered the punishment for two of the three accused and retained the Dean of Student's punishment for the other, but all three have been found guilty. The fourth student's case is still pending in the court. He has not asked for an appeal. Q. Why doesn't the University turn its evidence over to the courts?

A. If the University made it its business to see to it that each of its students who could be was forced into jail, that would be the answer. To suggest that the University try to convict any student just because they know evidence against him is ridiculous.

Q. What would a civil court do if a conviction by the University Judicial system was tested?

A. First of all, there would be no problem with the several sovereigns because that idea is accepted by the law. The tests have always been on the question of "double jeopardy." There has never been a test of the theory that a penalty by a school or by a bar association is the equivalent of a criminal sentence. It would have to be equal to be "double jeopardy."

In theory, what we have here is a double punishment but opponents don't recognize the fact that there has been more than one community offended by the action. What the courts would consider first is the question of guilt or innocence and this is what your paper has ignored. If the student had been found guilty by legal means then I think the court would refuse to hear the test case.

Professor Voeglin speaks about philosophic growth

Civilization, in the modern era, was forced to seek a new apocalypse every twenty years, thus forming "paroxysms of successive avant-gardes". Eric Voeglin said Friday evening as he concluded a two day conference on his works on new departures in western political thought.

The main idea of Professor Voeglin's lecture was the problem of man trying to express his experiences in symbols. He connected this with the problem of "the relation between the truth of philosophy and the truth of revelation."

Prof. Voeglin drew a contrast between Plato and the Gospel of Saint John to demonstrate this relation. According to Prof. Voeglin, Plato calls the Cosmos the son of God, while the Gospel calls Jesus, a man, the son of God. So while Christianity was forced to express itself in Greek philosophical thought in order to spread through the Roman Empire, it was differentiated by its placing of God in the consciousness of man rather than in the Universe.

Prof. Voeglin felt that truth is being unfolded in history. Truth, to him, is limited by the horizons of five questions. These questions do not form a series of propositions from which one can

by Jim McDermott

The United States has made a "bad investment" in continuing its involvement in the Indochina war, concluded several economics professors at a student government sponsored forum on the economics of Vietnam held last night in the library lounge.

Keynoting the symposium, Assoc. Prof. Thomas Swartz discussed the traditional view of the economic effect of a war, an increase in the national income. The effects of the "Great Depression" of the 1930's and the slump following the second world war were both counteracted by U.S. involvement in a war.

"In this view, Vietnam was poorly timed," Swartz told the small group. "It came at a time when we were at full employment," and the result was the "chaos" that is presently characteristic of the economy.

De-escalation from the war would not pose a great threat to the economy, he continued, but the fears of workers that their jobs were dependant on continued military spending would hamper any economic planning for withdrawal.

Frank Jones, an assistant professor, added that there was some evidence that the economic returns of the war spending may not be as large as had been previously expected. Noting that planners had anticipated a "multiplier" effect for the expenditures, he said that this may have destroyed the "one appealing aspect" of the war.

He explained that the war has drained private expenditure far more than had been projected in early estimates.

Assoc. Prof. Dennis Dugan, chairman of the department, noted the benefits and costs of the war. The benefits that had been claimed for the war, an impetus to economic growth and a boost to national pride, are both myths, he concluded. The costs of the war, the actual expenditures, the loss of 55,000 men and their future earning ability, and the lost opportunity of the soldiers in Vietnam added up to over $200 billion.

"The war has been especially frustrating for economists," Assistant Professor Kenneth Jameson added. He found that the economy had become less able to respond adequately to the shock of major expenditures, and had become dependent on the continued existence of protected industries.

Additionally, "the war came at a time when the economy was functioning well. It messed up the system more than we could handle. It destroyed much of the prosperity of the Sixties."

The lost opportunity to gain a "peace dividend" at the end of the war was also noted by Prof. Jameson. According to a recent Brookings Institute report by Charles Schultze, former director of the federal budget under the Johnson Administration, the "peace dividend" has been lost.

The problem in Vietnam will not be the de-escalation of the war, but will be the re-ordering of national priorities, Jameson concluded.

Groovy Gifts for Grabby Grads

Yes, I know how busy you are—cramming for finals, deciphering your notes, helping old grads find their dentures after Class Day—but let me interrupt your manifold activities—cramming for finals, deciphering your notes, searching for meat in the dormitory stew—to remind you that Commencement Day is almost upon us, and it's high time you started shopping for presents to give your friends—who are graduating. So pause a moment in your busy schedule—cramming for finals, deciphering your notes, raising bail—to look over this list of charming gift suggestions.

We will start with the hardest gift problem of all: what do you give the person who has everything? Well sir, here are some gifts I promise you he does not have:

1. A low hurdle.
2. A street map of Perth, Australia.
3. Fifty pounds of goose fat.
4. A supply of Miller High Life Beer.

"What?" you exclaim, your young eyebrows leaping in perpendicular incredulity. "The person who has everything does not have a supply of Miller High Life Beer?" you rasp, your young lips curling in horizontal derision. "What arrant nonsense!" you snarl, making a coarse gesture.

But I reply with an emphatic "No!" The person who has everything, I insist, does not have a supply of Miller High Life Beer—not for long anyhow—because if he is a person who enjoys a beer light but mellow, hearty but delicate, a beer that cloy not, neither does it pall, a beer that is forever amber and forever ambrosia, a beer deliciously dependable and dependably delicious, a beer, in short, for all seasons—if, I say, he is a person who enjoys such a beer—and who does not? eh? who does not?—then he does not have a supply of Miller High Life. What he has is a supply of empty Miller cans and bottles and a thirst that could turn dangerous if neglected.

So of course we will give all our graduating friends plenty of Miller High Life. And if you're looking for some additional gifts, too, here are more suggestions:

For someone graduating with a degree in American history, how about a hand-blown jade figurine of Millard Fillmore with a clock in the stomach? (Mr. Fillmore, incidentally, was the only American president with a clock in his stomach. It's true of course that James K. Polk had a stem-winder in his head and Chester A. Arthur, as you know, chimed on the quarter-hour, but only Mr. Fillmore of all our chief executives had a clock in his stomach. To be sure, Franklin Pierce had a sweep second hand and Zachary Taylor ticked and Martin Van Buren had a Swiss movement but, I repeat, Mr. Fillmore and Mr. Fillmore alone had a clock in his stomach. Moreover, Mr. Fillmore was the first president with power steering. Small wonder they called him "Old Hickory!")

But I digress. Returning to Graduation gifts, here is another that is sure to please—a gift certificate from the American Society of Chiropractors. Accompanying each certificate is this enchanting little poem:

Is your tailbone now a failbone?
Has your sacrum been dislodged?
Are you hating vertebrating?
Come right in and get massaged.

Is your lumbar growing number?
Has your pelvis run aground?
Does your caudal tend to dawdle?
Come right in and let us pound.

Finally, if you have a music-loving friend, how about a personal portable radio that plugs right into his ear? Next year you can give him a little pick to dig the plug out.

* * *

When the excitement of Commencement is over, we, the brewers of Miller Beer, have what seems to us a fine suggestion: sit down for a peaceful moment and relax with a glass of Miller. If you've got the time, we've got the beer.

N.D. loss string reaches 8

by Jim Donaldson
Observer Sports Editor

The Notre Dame baseball team stretched its losing streak to eight games over the weekend, dropping a three game series with Miami of Ohio Friday and Saturday in Oxford and bowing to Xavier at Cartier Field on Sunday. The Irish nine's record now stands at 7-18.

Friday's loss to Miami, which is rated no. 9 nationally, was a heartbreaking one for coach Jake Kline's club. The Irish held a 3-0 lead going into the last inning of play and were on the verge of an upset victory but their hopes were crushed by Al Mills' grand slam homer with none out in the bottom of the ninth.

Rich Eich, a sophomore left-hander, had gone all the way on the mound for Notre Dame and had shut out the hard-hitting Redskins for eight innings, holding them to just four base hits, but his control failed him in the final frame. Three straight walks set the stage for Mills' blast.

Eich's record is now 0-2 for this year.

Captain Charlie Horean had given the Irish an early lead by belting a long, bases empty home run to center field in the second inning.

Singles by Pete Schmidt, Horan and Joe LaRocca in the eighth inning brought home the second Notre Dame tally.

The Irish added their last run in the top of the ninth. Jim Panici opened the frame with a single and when the ball got by the Redskins' left fielder, Panici advanced to third. Bob Roemer plated Panici with a sacrifice fly.

The Irish, downhearted after Friday's setback, were no match for Miami on Saturday and lost both ends of a twin bill. The Redskins won the first game, 11-2, and took the nightcap 6-1.

In the first game, Miami hit Irish starter Jim Noe hard in the early going, tagging him for three runs in the second inning, and two in the third. The Redskins added a single run in the fifth inning and pushed across five more markers in the sixth stanza.

The loss dropped Noe's record to 2-2 on the year.

Miami banged out 14 hits in the one-sided contest, including the two home runs. Don Eversman rode on of Noe's pitches out of the park with two men on base in the second inning and Ken Kovacs

Junior right-hander Art Webb was charged with the loss, his first decision of the year.

Xavier took an early lead, scoring two runs in the second inning off N.D. starter, Mike Riddell, but the Irish tied the count with a pair of markers in their half of the second. A single by Krill, Roemer's RBI double and an infield error accounted for the Irish tallies.

Xavier regained the lead in the top of the third, pushing across three runs and building up a 5-2 advantage.

Once again, the Irish fought back to tie the score, picking up a single run in the fourth and adding another pair in the sixth.

A walk, an infield error and a fielder's choice gave N.D. its fourth inning tally and while Krill's single, a walk to Tom O'Connor, Roemer's sacrifice

Charlie Horean hit a home run for the Irish in Friday's loss to Miami clouted a grand slam in the sixth.

Horan and Panici drove in Notre Dame's two runs.

In the nightcap, the Redskins scored two runs in their first time at bat against Irish starter Ron Schmitz and were never headed thereafter. They scored three runs in the third inning and one in the fifth while handing Schmitz his fifth defeat of the year against two victories.

Phil Krill drove in Notre Dame's only run of the second game with a fourth-inning hit.

The Redskins long ball bats continued to boom in the second game as Art Grzeskowiak belted a two-run homer in the third inning.

The Irish were unable to snap their losing skein Sunday as Xavier tagged five Notre Dame pitchers for nine hits and eight runs, beating the Irish, 8-6.

and a two-run single by Webb brought home the two runs in the sixth.

Xavier wrapped up their victory by scoring three runs in the seventh inning.

The Irish were able to pick up a run in the eighth on Dan Phelps' pinch-hit single, a walk to Schmidt, LaRocca's infield single and a sacrifice fly by Horan, but weren't able to catch Xavier.

The Irish nine will attempt to break their losing streak this afternoon in Evanston, Ill., against the Northwestern Wildcats.

Notre Dame will return home after the Wildcat game and will play host to Hillsdale College Tuesday afternoon at Cartier Field. The Irish will play a doubleheader with Hillsdale, beginning at 3 p.m.

No. 1 unit wins Blue-Gold game

by Vic Dorr
Observer Sports Writer

Notre Dame's varsity football team concluded more than a month of spring drills Saturday with the annual Blue-Gold game—a full-dress scrimmage held under exact game conditions on the stadium field. 18,073 spectators, including scouts from Northwestern and Purdue, were present at the scrimmage, but anyone hoping to see the Irish quarterback dilemma solved once and for all was disappointed.

Coach Ara Parseghian started Jim Bulger at quarterback for the blue squad, but alternated him with Pat Steenberge throughout the afternoon. Cliff Brown, the other prime contender in the QB derby, directed the gold team for most of the game, although he was spelled for brief intervals by Brian Doherty, another freshman. After the game, which saw Steenberge and Bulger play to nearly a standoff, Parseghian said:

"If the season were starting tomorrow and I had to select a quarterback right now, I'd probably pick Steenberge because of his experience. He has been hampered all spring by a sprained ankle and a broken finger on his throwing hand." But, while Parseghian gave Steenberge a cautious edge in the QB race, the Irish coach didn't rule out Bulger or Brown, either. "Jim Bulger has improved tremendously and actually has had a better spring than he indicated today. Cliff Brown has simply been swamped with the maze of terminology and technique that is involved in playing the quarterback position. He's gained a great deal of experience in the past two weeks in our stadium scrimmages, and he's learned to react to game-type situations."

The game itself, which was almost forced to take second place to the battle for the quarterback role, saw the first-team blues capture an expected 35-12 decision over their gold-clad opponents. But stiff resistance by the gold defense and some timely aerial antics by Brown kept the issue in doubt for nearly three quarters.

The two teams volleyed punts for much of the first period, and neither was able to mount much of a drive until Bulger's blues received the football on the gold 40-yard line with slightly more than three minutes left in the initial quarter. Then, relying mainly on line plunges by fullback Andy Huff, Bulger drove his team steadily downfield. With 3rd and eight from the gold 13, Bulger fired a pass over the middle to tight end Mike Creaney. Linebacker Tom Devine nearly intercepted Bulger's toss, but he only succeeded in tipping it to Creaney, who was standing a yard deep in the end zone. Mike Eckman converted for the blues, and the first team defense then went to work to protect their 7-0 advantage.

The blue defense didn't have long to wait, either, as the golds mounted their first serious threat of the day when Mike Parker plucked a Pat Steenberge pass out of the air and returned it to the blue 25 yard line just as the first quarter was ending. Three plays later, though, the golds found themselves with a 4th and 15 from the blue 30, and Brown abandoned his quarterbacking chores to attempt a 47 yard field goal. His kick was easily long were awarded a free kick after the safety, and Ed Gulyas boomed a 62 yarder to the gold 32-yard line. Two plays later, Eric Patton stole a Brown pass and returned it to the gold 27. Bulger directed the blue offense to a his second TD of the day on a three-year plunge with 5:35 remaining.

Cieszkowski's touchdown closed the scoring, but Bulger did make two final tries—60-yard bombs which were both in-enough, but it was wide to the right by several yards. The gold offense was given the ball right back, but once again Brown couldn't penetrate the blue 30. So, with 4th and 3 from the 34, he again lined up to attempt a placement...this one of 51 yards. The crowd, which had been shaken by Brown's 47 yard try, went wild when his 51 yarder through the uprights.

Brown further shook things up by knocking the ensuing kickoff out of the end zone. The blues go the ball on their own 20, and Steenberge promptly cranked them up for an 80 yard scoring march. Greg Hill scored the TD, but the big play in this drive was Steenberge's bomb to John Cieszkowski, which carried from the blue 37 to the white 20. Brown's offensive unit then returned the favor, by driving 60 yards for a touchdown—their only one of the day. Brown hit tight end Dave Casper for the score, and then converted himself to make the score 14-10 at half.

The golds got the football again to begin the second half, but this time it was the blue defense which came up with the big play. Linebacker Rick Thomann intercepted Brown on the gold 26, giving the ball back to Bulger, who had been reinserted as the blue signal-caller. Bulger moved his team to the gold 11, and then gave the ball to Huff three times in a row. Huff responded by scoring the third blue TD, on a five-yard power play. Eckman's kick made it 21-10 and it was never really close after that.

The final gold points came late in the third period, when Jeff Hein dumped Bulger in his own end zone as the blue team qb was attempting to pass. The blues touchdown—their fourth of the day—in eight plays with Cieszkowski scoring from the one. The score remained at 28-10 for the remainder of the third, and much of the fourth period. Then, midway through the final quarter, Brian Doherty punted for the golds and dropped his kick out of bounds on the blue six-yard line. Steenberge came in to quarterback the first team offense, and he ignited a 94-yard, 15 play touchdown drive. During this drive, the most consistent of the scrimmage, he worked chiefly with screen passes and occasional ground efforts by Hill and Cieszkowski. "Cisco" scored intercepted—during the closing moments of the game.

Bulger completed 7 of 18 passes for 1 tally and Steenberge hit on 7 of 18 also, but for no touchdowns. The only other margin between the two was in interceptions, where Bulger had three—one more than Steenberge. For the golds, Cliff Brown hit on 7 of 22 for 1 TD, and he too was intercepted twice. Andy Huff, who has made an outstanding comeback this spring, led all ground gainers with 42 yards in 7 carries for 1 TD. Gary Diminick was the leading rusher for the gold squad, with 37 yards in 5 carries.

Jones signs with Chaps

DALLAS, Tex.—The Texas Chaparrals of the American Basketball Assn. announced Saturday the signing of Collis Jones of Notre Dame.

Jones was a first-round draft choice of the rival National Basketball Assn. Milwaukee Bucks, and Texas' fifth-round choice.

Terms of the contract were not released. Among the reasons Jones offered for choosing to sign with the Chaps over the NBA champion Bucks were "a very fair contract and the opportunity to make an immediate playing contribution to the team."

Jones set an all-time record at Notre Dame by playing in 85 consecutive varsity games and became the fifth leading scorer in Notre Dame history.

The Irish Eye

A note on Dee's departure

After seven years as head basketball coach at Notre Dame, Johnny Dee decided to call it quits last Friday.

His decision to resign made a lot of people on this campus happy — the same people who booed Dee at Irish basketball games in the Convo in the past few years. The "Dump Dee" club has had a substantial membership on campus the past couple of years.

Let me say that anyone who says that John Dee has not contributed to Notre Dame basketball, that he has not done a good job, is doing the man a great injustice.

I don't think that John Dee is a great coach. He's not a John Wooden or a Joe Mullaney. But John Dee IS a very good coach. Notre Dame and its student body owe him at the very least, a "Thank you", and most certainly not a "Good riddance".

When coach Dee came to Notre Dame seven years ago his job was to rebuild the Irish basketball program.

Coach Dee said that he "...came to Notre Dame with a specific goal — building a basketball program that Notre Dame could point to with pride." And I don't think that there is anyone associated with the game of basketball in the country today that doesn't respect Notre Dame and John Dee.

Under Dee's direction, Irish basketball squads won 116 games and lost 80. In his seven seasons at the helm, Notre Dame played in five post-season tournaments, making four NCAA appearances and participating in the NIT on one occasion.

This year's team finished the season with a 20-9 record, giving coach Dee his fourth consecutive 20-win campaign, a feat never before accomplished in 72 years of Notre Dame's basketball history.

In 23 years of coaching high school, college, AAU and professional ball, Dee has had 22 winning seasons.

Dee's teams have taken on, and beaten, the best opposition in the country. He has made Notre Dame a basketball power. You can't ask much more from the man.

Perhaps the new coach will improve Notre Dame's basketball fortunes. That's going to be awfully difficult. Improving on four straight twenty-win seasons against the type of schedule Notre Dame plays is well nigh impossible, especially since the club's top six players have graduated.

I have no idea who Dee's successor will be and won't even venture a guess. I know that he'll have to work hard to match Dee's record.

Dee worked hard to get Notre Dame basketball where it is today and his efforts went largely unappreciated. I just didn't want him to leave without a "thanks".

disillusioned hawk, who has given up hope for a military victory in Indochina - employs an aide who told us, "Hell, everyone is against the war." The aide went on to give support to Nixon's policy of leaving the bombers in Indochina and said, "We want to maintain interests in Indochina, so that means we have to protect our financial interests there through a military force."

Representative Brademas' two aides believe that Congress can be convinced to cut off funds for the war soon. They noted that the conservatives were very disturbed that the war was undermining the internal strength of the army after veterans told Congressman of the two hundred and ten "fighting" incidents, where United States soldiers killed their own officers.

The majority of protestors hope the disruptions tomorrow morning will be non-violent.

The thirty Notre Dame people here are part of the Indiana delegation, which presently claims about five hundred members. Plans call for the Indiana people to move to the intersection of Pennsylvania Avenue and Constitution at 5:45 a.m. to block the intersection, talk to the police and waiting motorists, and, if necessary, submit to arrest. Whether this means the protest can be peacefully carried out, as we now rest in the Student Union of George Washington University, is still in doubt among the tired, confused, but hopeful Notre Dame contingent here in Washington.

Prof. Voeglin on philosophy deduce a logical system, but a series of nine propositions which prevent the formation of a system.

Prof. Voeglin also examined the problem of plethos, which he called "The diverse manifold of types." Plato, who wanted a homogenous society of very similar citizens, is contracted with Aristotle who favors a variety in the people composing a state. Aristotle noted that the realization of social disorder does not of itself, produce social order. With the Empire of Alexander, however, the problem became much more complex as there emerged a much greater diversity in the people under a given ruler.

In the Renaissance, Prof. Voeglin claims there was a constant desire that the generation in which one was living, was undergoing a great change, that would result in a new glorious epoch of man. This, Voeglin connected with a rise in what he called "neoneoplatonism". In this viewpoint, the platonic idea of the universe being saturated with the Divine essence was reintroduced, after Christianity had emphasized the human consciousness. The moderns, therefore, tend to view the ancients as possessing a wonderful culture which was forcibly destroyed by the Christians and the barbarians.

Prof. Voeglin says that these moderns ignore the decay of Rome because it is contrary to their logic. They view man as going through three periods, "childhood, adolescence and maturity." Thus, they tend to see man as emerging into a new age of adulthood. Prof. Voeglin remarked that they ignore the fourth age of man, senility, when man decays and dies, since this would imply that golden ages can likewise fade away. From this, Prof. Voeglin feels that the sense of "immanent achievement," rather than the achievement itself, is the mark of the modern period.

McGlynn stresses need for active concern of students

Although these areas are lighted and patrolled, the assaults are difficult for the security force to stop, McGlynn said. Constraints of budget and wages keep the force small, and "we have to catch somebody in the act to make it stick."

In many cases McGlynn added, the students can recognize outsiders and potential trouble better than the force. "But if people don't call, the force can't help."

If the passivity of the community is hindering security, so is the active verbal abuse the force receives from some students.

"These immature students vent their anger on a cop they know can't fight back by virtue of his oath. Some people on the force have quit because of this. The rest are discouraged; but this hasn't changed their attitude toward their necessary function."

McGlynn admitted that when he was a senior in 1960—the days of morning checks, lights out, and 12:30 curfew on weekends with one week confinement on campus for every five minutes late—the students had their fun with the security force too.

He recalls a cop they called "Fat Frank," who would prevent students from carrying beer into Washington Hall. The would fake that they had beer in their jackets, and it was always a big joke when Fat Frank would search them and find nothing.

"We had our fun," McGlynn said, "but the vicious name-calling wasn't there." He feels there will be "stern action" in the future if this verbal abuse does not stop.

Jerry McGlynn sent out a final plea: "With the help of the community, Student Government, and the Observer, I hope we can make the University a safe and happy place to live."
