Editorial

Never, since student power and self-government was systematically organized seven years ago, have so many students been so bitterly disillusioned about what student government can do for them and about what they can do for themselves. The massive turnout for SBP hopeful Bob Kersten and for UnCandidate the Cat has conclusively proven that students at Notre Dame reject what the candidate himself termed so neatly "the student government oligarchy," which has situated itself in La Fortune for the past three years.

That's why it is so important to elect Paul Dziedzic Student Body President tomorrow. All of Dziedzic's past efforts in student government have been directed towards throwing student government open to the student body. All of his plans for the future point in precisely that direction.

As Ombudsman, Dziedzic and his small staff have handled the complaints of close to a thousand people at Notre Dame and St. Mary's. He has dealt with individuals one-on-one, and he has solved their problems. He has expanded the office's capabilities by a factor of two.

As a candidate for Student Body President, Dziedzic has offered a comprehensive, intelligent plan for opening student government to the students or more correctly, of bringing student government to the students. By searching through an organized assembly of hall presidents and section leaders, Dziedzic would form a closer union between student government and the students than has ever been formed before.

Paul Dziedzic has the sort of courage which can lead this union. He had enough courage to publicly ask his cabinet chief, John Barkett, to explain why he was organizing Notre Dame support for the St. Mary's strike, and enough courage to tell Barkett to go to hell when he couldn't give an adequate answer. It is the courage of conviction, and Paul Dziedzic leading the convictions of the student body will be something with which the Trustees will have their hands full.

This union between students and student government, once formed, would be a potent force in dealing with Administrators and Trustees. It would be potent when the

Ballot tampering causes SMC re-vote

Alteration of forty Augusta Hall ballots in favor of Eileen Fitzpatrick caused yesterday's Saint Mary's Student Body Presidential election to be invalidated, according to candidates Jean Seymour and Sue Welte.

According to Seymour and Welte, Ms. Fitzpatrick brought knowledge of the vote-tampering before the election committee and caused chairman John Gaal to declare the election invalid.

Gaal and the election committee is obliged by the SMC Procedural Manual to count all ballots twice within 24 hours of the original election. Last night, the counting stopped when the 40 vote discrepancy was discovered.

According to Election Committee member Lori Sofranek, only 200 votes were actually tabulated, although Gaal told the Observer that all the votes were counted.

"We cannot allow such an obvious tampering incident to go unseen," said Ms. Seymour, candidate for SBP. "We were asked by the election committee and Eileen to keep this whole thing quiet, but that course of action is clearly not in the best interest of students."

"No new administration," said her runningmate Sue Welte, "can go into office with something like this hanging over its head. We object to the fact that those ballots were not counted, and we want it brought out in the open."

According to Ms. Seymour, none of her representatives at the counting saw the 40 allegedly invalidated ballots. They were shown one, and the hall name was not revealed.

An information leak from the Election Committee reportedly brought the Augusta incident to light, according to Ms. Seymour.

Jan Natale, campaign manager for the Seymour-Welte team, said, "For all we know, those 40 ballots may not have made a difference one way or the other. All the candidates have put a lot of work into this, and I hate to see this election be dragged out two more days if it isn't absolutely necessary."

Kersten, Dziedzic slated for runoffs

by T.C. Treanor
Observer Assistant Editor

Bob Kersten, a joke candidate whose candidacy became more and more serious as the campaign went on, last night polled 1740 votes - 35.8 percent of the electorate - to lead the field of nine Notre Dame Student Body Presidential contenders.

The voter turnout of approximately 75.8 percent of the undergraduate student body is the heaviest turnout in any Student Body Presidential race in the last seven years. Out of a student body of 6400 students, 4855 voted yesterday; the weakest showing came from off-campus, traditionally a light voting area, with only 356 voting.

The 36 percent figure is not nearly enough to give Kersten a first - ballot victory, though. Instead, he will face Ombudsman Paul Dziedzic in a runoff election tomorrow.

Dziedzic collected seven hundred sixty-nine votes, or 15.8 percent of the electorate to out-distance SLC Vice-chairman Floyd Kezele by 103 votes for the second spot and a right to appear on the ballot with Kersten.

Kersten carried all halls save Lyons, Keenan, Badin, and St. Joe's in heavy voting turnout. He scored majorities in Breen-Phillips and Walsh, his home hall.

Student Government Ombudsman, Dziedzic took two halls, Keenan and St. Joe, but did not score a majority in either.

Kezele, SLC Towers representative, collected over 200 votes from the high rise dormitories and ran well in Farley, Holy Cross and Dillon.

Kezele racked up a total of 666 votes or 13.7 percent of the total, while Hall Life Commissioner Bob Higgins garnered 9 percent of the vote, with 439 ballots.

That total was nearly matched by Joe Schlosser, off campus junior who came in fifth with 437 votes, for 9 percent. Schlosser came in second off campus, losing it to Bob Kersten.

Higgins ran strongly in Alumni, home of his running mate Ron Pogge, in Badin, his home hall and in Zahm and Morrissey.

Zahm was the big hall for Chuck Luken, giving him 60 votes. He ran only nine votes behind front runner Bob Kersten there. Across the rest of campus it was a different story with Luken coming in sixth with 254 votes. The only other place he ran strongly was Fisher, his home hall. Sorin, home of his running mate Walter Spaak, gave the ticket 17 votes.

Lyons hall was captured by Gary Caruso who edged out Bob Kersten there by seven votes. Caruso finished seventh with 241 votes for 5 percent of the total. He ran well behind the other four candidates in every single hall except

Bob Kersten

Paul Dziedzic

Zahm, where one vote separated him from Floyd Kezele and eight from Bob Higgins and Joe Schlosser.

Michael Cunningham and A. Dennis Thomas were distant eighth and ninth place finishers respectively. Cunningham, with a total vote of 82, or 1.7 percent ran well only in Dillon, his home hall. Across the rest of campus he failed to get above ten votes in any hall. Thomas managed to garner eight votes on campus, with twenty coming from off campus. His total was 28 or .6 percent.

None of the Above, on the ballot for the first time this year, got 189 votes, or 5.6 percent of the total, thus outdrawing four of the candidates. The heaviest voting for none of the above was in St. Ed's, Dillon and Cavanaugh. Across campus it failed to gain more than 12 votes in any single hall.

Crowd around WSND table in LaFortune student center watches Kersten comment on the election as final results are released.

CAC plans cancellations to balance overspending

by Joe Powers

The Cultural Arts Commission will cancel the Spring Folk Festival and will attempt to break contracts with Tom Rush, Duke Ellington, and the Chinese Dance Company in a last ditch effort to balance their over-spent budget.

CAC Commissioner Robert Brinkmann also assured in a statement made last night, that "there will be no changes, whatsoever," in plans for the Sophomore Literary Festival.

When Cass Rejent, Student Government Treasurer was asked to estimate how deeply the CAC had overspent its funds, he replied, "I'd rather not talk figures, it might scare people. Let's just call it a substantial amount."

While Brinkmann stated that he did not have a present figure to give, he expressed hope that the deficit could be whittled down to $1,600 by the end of the year. "However," he admitted, "the CAC will lose more if it can't get out of the contracts."

Tom Rush is contracted for an April 28 appearance in Stepan Center. He was to have been the feature artist in the now defunct Folk Festival. Duke Ellington is scheduled to appear April 6, also in Stepan. The Chinese Dance Co., as part of the Performing Arts Festival is booked for the end of March. Brinkmann felt the Ellington concert would break even but anticipated a $1,000 loss if the CAC could not escape from the contract with the dance group.

Rejent, a senior business major, cited mismanagement in contract dealings as one of the major reasons behind the CAC's financial woes. He added, "Brinkmann has unilateral control over all contracts." "when they're written up, there's never a clause allowing the CAC to back out."

Rejent pointed out a bungled incident earlier in the year where Brinkmann allegedly signed a contract with a company that "promised 'X' artist at a certain time and date and demanded a 50 per cent deposit immediately." The artist cancelled out due to "illness" but the CAC has still not received a refund of the deposit, which Rejent estimated to be $4,000.

Brinkmann admitted that he had signed such a contract, that he had, in fact, signed two contracts with the company mentioned, neither of which materialized. Brinkmann explained that Neil Young cancelled out because "they said he was sick," and "We decided to cancel Sea Train when the price jumped $2,500." The booking firm which contracted the artists still holds the $6,250 deposit.

Phillip J. Faccenda, Vice President and general counsel for the University, was contacted Monday by the CAC to arrange for a return of the deposit. He stated that he was "still checking into the matter," but that it appeared to be nothing more than a "routine business problem."

Speculation that some of the speakers for the Sophomore Literary Festival would have to be cancelled was squelched at a meeting last week between Brinkman, Ray Funk, chairman of the festival, and Student Union Director Bill McGrath. Brinkmann explained that many professors had synchronized their course reading lists to concur with the authors presented at the festival and felt, "it wouldn't be right to cut it down."

In relation to the budget, Brinkmann announced the presentation of four additional films this semester in the hope that the money raised would cut substantially into the deficit. Rejent stated that the Student Government would probably underspend its budget by $6,000 this year and this money would probably go to the Cultural Arts Commission. He did not seem to feel that this would balance the budget, however, as he added, "The CAC will have to get out of some of those contracts or we'll all be nailed to the wall."

"Delicate" news is so hard to communicate in a letter—and so much more graciously said with a long distance call. Costs so little, too, when you dial direct (about ½ the cost of person-to-person). For example, a direct-dialed call to Niagara Falls after 5:00 p.m. would cost less than $1.00. The tactful way to "break news" is to call. The economical way is to dial the call direct.

Voter Registration Drive nets 70% success

Check your state -- and vote this year

by Greg Rowinski
Insight Staff Writer

The Notre Dame-Saint Mary's Voter Registration Drive, co-chaired by Pat Coyle and Joe Myers, has been active since its inception in early September.

The impetus for the drive was provided by SBP John Barkett, according to Coyle, who supplied the interested Coyle and Myers with the information Student Government had received from national voter registration groups which outlined campus registration campaigns.

Notre Dame posed a difficult problem for any such campaign, since 85 per cent of its students are from out of state. ND's drive required a unique approach.

At the time of the group's organization, it was nearly impossible for non-residents to register in Indiana. Since then, the situation has improved.

The group's initial approach was to encourage students to register at home. An early poll resulted in a 53 per cent already registered figure. Since then, the percentage of registered voters has increased to 70 per cent.

Posters obtained from national organizations were displayed around campus, urging students to register at home. Permission was obtained from University President Fr. Theodore M. Hesburgh, himself a member of the National Advisory Board for the Student Vote, and then acting SMC President Sister Alma Peter to include a registration reminder with the tuition statements mailed out during Christmas vacation.

Since Christmas, efforts have continued. Absentee-registration request forms were made available at the dining halls. Coyle reminded any interested in requesting such forms to be sure to contact their boards at least a month before the elections.

The St. Joseph County Board of Elections has clarified its stand and make it possible for non-residents to register here.

To meet this change, the group has had two of its members, Joe Henderlong and Sheila Culligan deputized to register voters in Indiana.

This registration campaign will take place from March 1 to 14. It is aimed primarily at the 30 per cent still not registered, but will also involve any of the 70 per cent who wish to void their home state registrations to vote in the Indiana elections. Thus, any student who did so would be eligible to take part in Indiana's May 2 primary.

Coyle has also worked with Ombudsman Paul Dziedzic to send delegates to the Emergency Conference for New Voters, which provided information on how to organize registration drives in the delegates' home states.

Brother Ryan discloses to HPC

New appliance ban proposed by Don Hopper

Last night at the Hall President's Council meeting, Brother Kieran Ryan opened himself to suggestions for alternatives to the appliance ban recently proposed by the University.

The Assistant Vice-President for Business Affairs also explained the rationale behind the ban with the aid of a five page release including a letter from the University's insurance company, Royal-Globe, which said that the use of refrigerators should be discontinued and also a fact sheet from I&M Electric Company.

The letter from the insurance company to Mr. C.S. Reddy, Notre Dame Insurance Officer, said, "The practice of installing used domestic type refrigerators in dormitory rooms by students should be discontinued." The reasons they cited for this suggestion included breakdown in electrical wiring, thus bringing about fire situations, lack of accommodation for these facilities in older dorms, and the possibility of leaking gas in an older unit using ammonia as a refrigerant.

The fact sheet showed that such appliances as air conditioners, "domestic type" refrigerators, televisions, toasters and hot plates had an average load exceeding 400 watts, and, in the case of the air conditioner, approached 1800 watts. Ryan considered this to be creating "a dangerous peak load," especially between the hours of 10:30 pm to midnight, when usage increases greatly.

Emphasizing that the proposal has not been implemented but is only under consideration, Bro. Ryan felt that the University had no alternative save for banning certain high wattage appliances for reasons of health and fire safety.

"It has been drafted for consideration only and represents the position I think we more or less have to take," Ryan said.

Rewiring of Interest

He added that the rewiring factor was of particular interest. In a letter to John Barkett from Bro. Ryan dated Feb. 18, 1972, the cost to date of rewiring seven halls was quoted at $272,172. The total in refrigerator fines collected to that date was just over 50 thousand dollars.

He said the fines have a two-fold purpose; namely, to deter the students from the use of appliances and to help defray the cost of rewiring.

In effect, the statement provided for the prohibition of air conditioners, broilers, rotisseries, skillets, toasters, and hot plates. It further limited the size of electric refrigerators in rooms to three cubic feet (concerning this, Bro. Ryan said that he had heard that there are units with capacity up to 4.6 cubic feet which would not be much different from the smaller units and that their acceptance was under consideration). Notwithstanding this ban, all refrigerator operators would be fined next year at the rate of $20.00 per semester. Television sets also, would be subject to a fine of 10 dollars a semester.

HPC Comments

Bro. Ryan stressed the fact that he was "completely open to suggestions" and at the end of his presentation several hall presidents had some prepared as well as comments on the policy.

--Dave Loring of Keenan wondered whether the funds to be allotted by the Trustees could be utilized to defray the cost of rewiring. Bro. Ryan said that there were other priorities which had been put off for a few years which would have to be taken care of first.

--Both Joe Markosek of Farley and John Kwicien of Morrissey questioned the validity of making it the responsibility of students presently at the school to pay for depreciation that has been taking place for forty years. Furthermore, they thought that halls which do not need rewiring were being unjustly taxed for the renovation of older halls.

After Bro. Ryan's departure, the HPC considered a proposal to form a committee to investigate possible alternatives to the ban and related fines, but the consensus was that the presidents should get back to their respective halls for opinions first.

Peter Gennaro to choreograph spring musical, 'Showboat'

Peter Gennaro, well known dancer and choreographer will be working with the Notre Dame-St. Mary's Theatre all this week (February 28 to March 3). Mr. Gennaro is in town to do the choreography for Show Boat, the spring musical.

The father of Notre Dame senior Michael Gennaro, Peter Gennaro agreed to do the show when he heard that Dr. Roger Kevin was looking for "a Peter Gennaro type choreographer." Mr. Gennaro said he "wanted to do something for Notre Dame."

Peter Gennaro is perhaps best known to audiences for his dancing and choreography on the Ed Sullivan television show. He has also performed on and choreographed the Perry Como Show, the Andy Williams Show, the Jackie Gleason Show, and the Judy Garland Show, and appeared in numerous specials such as the Robert Goulet Special, the Mitzi Gaynor Special, the Bing Crosby Special, and Brigadoon.

On the Stage Mr. Gennaro has danced in shows like Guys and Dolls, Kiss Me Kate, The Pajama Girl, and Bells are Ringing. He was the choreographer for Fiorello, and Hallalujah Baby, co-choreographer for West Side Story, and he choreographed both

Eileen Fitzpatrick and current SBP Kathy Barlow were unavailable for comment. Representatives of both the Seymour-Welte ticket and the Observer tried until 5 am this morning to contact them.

According to the election committee decision, there will be no campaigning until the re-election. Signs already posted will remain posted, but no new material or campaigning is allowed.

Gaal also said that stricter balloting procedures will be used. Election committee members will be the only ones allowed to monitor the voting, and other precautions will be considered.

Father Chambers sets up displaced students rules

by Sue Prendergast

Badin and Walsh residents will move into other halls according to a quota system established by Fr. Thomas Chambers, director of student residence, and an ad-hoc housing committee of hall presidents.

The displaced students will hold equal rank with their classmates in other dorms in selecting rooms. "Time in Badin and Walsh equals time in any other hall," according to Dave Tobben, secretary of the committee.

More than 325 beds will be available to Badin and Walsh residents, although only 270 are expected to be needed, Tobben said. The extras will be assigned to freshmen.

The committee consulted each hall president in setting the quotas which range from 30 in Flanner and Grace to 10 in Fisher, Holy Cross, Howard, St. Ed's, and Sorin.

"There will be some flexibility in these figures, but we (Office of Student Residences) will try to stay close to them," Tobben said.

In other business, Fr. Chambers told the committee that all lofts and partitions in the rooms will be removed this semester or this summer at the latest, since they violate regulations and create fire hazards.

The committee agreed to initiate fire drills in the halls. "As far as I know, there is now no process for evacuation," Tobben said.

Fr. Chambers proposed establishing hall damage control boards to determine who is responsible for damages to the hall. These boards to be composed of 3 or 4 members of the hall judicial boards, would relieve pressure on the hall presidents, Tobben said.

Defeated SBP candidate Bob Higgins came out with a strong statement of support for run-off contestant Paul Dzeidzic last night in post-election activities. Earlier in the evening, runner-up Floyd Kezele urged students to "get out and work like hell for Paul Dzeidzic." Other candidates that could be reached failed to throw their support into the camps of either Dzeidzic or primary winner Bob Kersten.

In his statement, Higgins said "We wholeheartedly encourage everyone to consider the future of Student Government and support the Dzeidzic-Sherrod ticket."

Higgins also confirmed the support of coalition ticket mates Jean Seymour and Sue Welte in saying that they fully endorse Dziedzic and Sherrod.

The Hall Life Commissioner noted that Dziedzic "more fully demonstrates the spirit of co-operation we worked for."

Chuck Luken, candidate from Pangborn Hall, failed to support either run-off candidate claiming that he could not be honest with himself if he told people who to vote for. "We've been fighting against endorsements this whole campaign," he said. "In an election like this no one should really tell someone else who to vote for."

Luken expressed happiness at the student dissatisfaction with Student Government that was mirrored in the Kersten vote. "I think the vote for Bob demonstrates a need for an alternative." He claimed that throughout the campaign, his approach was one of an alternative, but noted that Kersten was a "radical alternative."

The Student Senator noted the possibility of a Student Government-in-exile saying that there are many thinking of it if Kersten wins. But Luken asserted that "I still think he'll (Kersten) win."

When Joe Schlosser was reached, he revealed that he was very happy with his showing. He also refused to come out in direct support of one of the run-off candidates.

"We really needed to turn Notre Dame over in this election and we did," Schlosser commented. "We're still carrying energy into Spring and into next year."

Schlosser registered his intention to continue more Student Center concerts and "open-air things in the Spring." "They'll all be spontaneous, very open affairs," he said. He also pledged at least one more film to follow-up on the one produced for his campaign.

Mike Cunningham who campaigned on a social activities platform felt that he could not give an endorsement as of last evening. Cunningham was not particularly pleased with his showing in the election, noting especially his poor showing in Dillon Hall.

He also expressed a desire to aid in the social make-up of the campus for next year. But Cunningham said "Whether or not I get a title, I'll still help next year."

Denny Thomas, a campaigner for the off-campus students, also didn't endorse a candidate, though he said "if Bob Kersten was elected, I would not regard it as any kind of tragedy."

Thomas noted that when you've got 28 votes in an election, "You've gotta be philosophical about the whole thing." And he further conceded that "I don't think anyone will pay too much attention to me, but I imagine most of my supporters will go with Kersten."

Thomas avoided declaring a definite endorsement of Kersten, though.

Candidate Gary Caruso could not be contacted late in the evening either for statement or endorsement.

SMC girls comment on merger; tell of disappointment, anger

by John Cominsky

Editor's note--Mr. Cominsky researched this story with St. Mary's students on Tuesday afternoon, following the announcement of the Notre Dame-St. Mary's merger negotiation cancellation.

Final cancellation of merger negotiations will force St. Mary's students to make serious decisions concerning their academic futures. The consensus of student opinion seems to be that St. Mary's has committed institutional suicide, and that those students who entered SMC because of the promised merger no longer have a stake in the college's future.

In speaking to students yesterday, they, especially sophomores, are under extreme pressure to decide immediately whether to stay at St. Mary's, attempt to transfer to Notre Dame, or to leave the two institutions completely. The nature of application deadlines is such that many of these decisions will be hasty, and many others will be resolved through inaction. Those unable to transfer out will feel imprisoned by circumstance, and the resultant apathy will kill community at St. Mary's, according to some SMC students.

INSIGHT

No Merger Regretful

Many students, with a genuine love for the friends they have made here, and the institutions themselves, regret the decision not to merge, and see no future for a St. Mary's separate from Notre Dame. They believe that financial and organizational stalemate should not be allowed to stand in the way of academic excellence and a more realistic social situation. Merger with a previously existent institution may be the best method by which to ease into coeducation.

General discontent, and talk of negative recruitment, indicate that some present students would discourage applicants from attending St. Mary's. Without a steady influx of students genuinely interested in St. Mary's, the school could become an alternative for Notre Dame's cast-offs, and an aura of second class citizenship would arise.

Basically Merger Oriented

Since St. Mary's appeal to its present students seemed to be basically merger oriented, it would also seem that whatever appeal SMC had previously no longer exists, or is overshadowed by present mistrust. The need for a Catholic women's college may no longer exist, or may call for an institution radically different than those now in existence. St. Mary's obviously cannot remain a sister school, on an equal basis with a co-ed Notre Dame. Tension and rivalry will replace the present community and mutual interest.

Jazz Festival announces schedules and judges

Jazz-rock percussionist Aynsley Dunbar of Frank Zappa's "Mothers of Invention" has joined the list of distinguished judges participating in the 14th annual Collegiate Jazz Festival at the University of Notre Dame March 9-11.

Other nationally famous personages on the panel include Roberta Flack, top recording artist; Dan Morgenstern, editor of Down Beat magazine; Jamie Aebersole, reed player, and Hubert Laws, winner of the 1972 poll by Down Beat as best jazz flutist.

Sixteen major university bands will participate in competition on March 10-11 in Stepan Center, and 15 midwest high school bands will compete all day March 11 in O'Laughlin auditorium on the adjoining Saint Mary's College campus. The top band in this group will perform at the Saturday evening finals of the collegiate group. In addition, three guest bands are scheduled.

Participating in the festival, which Down Beat has described as "the first and foremost of all college jazz festivals," will be bands from Arizona State, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, University of Illinois, Ohio State and Michigan, Southern University of Baton Rouge, Shenandoah Conservatory of Virginia, Malcolm X College of Chicago, and others.

Festival judges will participate in a symposium, "The Current State of Jazz," at 7:30 p.m. March 9 in Notre Dame's Center for Continuing Education. This session and a talk by Morganstern on "Jazz History" at 2 p.m. March 10 in the Memorial Library Auditorium are open to the public without charge.

Admission to evening sessions March 10 and 11 is $3 each night. The afternoon session March 11 is $2, or one can purchase admission to all sessions for $5. There is a 50 cent admission for the high school competition March 11.

2-LITTLE LOVING

ND hosts 'Nova in home finale

by Joe Passiatore

Basketball season at the ACC comes to a merciful close tonight at eight o'clock when Notre Dame plays host to the Villanova Wildcats.

The unrelenting Notre Dame schedule again pits the Irish against an NCAA tourney hopeful, and as the North Carolina and South Carolina games recently proved, teams that have the incentive of post season activity going for them are not likely to be upset.

The game will mark Nottre Dame's first appearance at home since the Fordham rout, a game that could have given the basketball season some semblance of respectability but instead turned into one of the low points of the year.

The Irish have a four game losing streak and their total won-loss record of 6-18 will be the exact opposite of the team they will face tonight. With Dayton awaiting the Irish Saturday after tonight's Villanova match-up, nobody is betting against a twenty-loss season.

This year has been a long and exasperating experience and neither the fans, players, nor Digger Phelps can be blamed if they are now looking ahead to next year when help will arrive in the persons of a recovered John Shumate and the impressive freshmen backcourt pair of Gary Brokaw and Dwight Clay. Next season will be the year Notre Dame will be surprising people and evening accounts with teams such as Indiana. Right now, however, the Irish are not unlike the punch drunk fighter who keeps getting up after being knocked down on the hope that he can come up with a knock out punch.

At any rate, even if Notre Dame hadn't been drained by the trials of an unsuccessful season, the task of defeating Villanova would be a difficult one. The Wildcats are currently competing for an at-large berth in the Eastern division of the NCAA tournament and have knocked off such teams as South Carolina, Duquesne, St. Bonaventure, and Tennessee.

They don't have many cold shooting spells, as is evidenced by their 48 per cent field goal percentage over the year, and their average offensive output is 82.6. On defense they allow just over 70 points a game.

The leaders of the club are two holdovers from last year's fine team which beat Notre Dame badly at the Palestra. Hank Siemontkowi and Chris Ford are the senior returnees and they occupy the two forward positions.

Siemontkowski is 6'7" and averages 18.5 points per contest, along with 10.2 rebounds. Ford, Tom O'Mara, a consistent performer for the Irish cagers all season, will lead Notre Dame against Villanova tonight in the final home basketball game of the year.

6'5", played guard on last year's team, but has shown no ill effects in the transition to forward as he contributes over 17 points and eight assists every game.

The leading scorer for the Wildcats is 6'4" junior guard Tom Inglesby with 19.5 points per game. Inglesby hurt his ankle in a recent game, but in keeping with Notre Dame's lack of luck this season, he should be ready to go tonight. The other guard is Eddie Hastings who is usually good for about eight points a game. 6'8" sophomore Larry Moody is the center and his statistics are 10.2 points and 7.8 rebounds per game. The Wildcats are led by veteran coach Jack Kraft who has made a habit out of winning seasons.

The game will be the last opportunity to see Digger Phelps' crew in action and, admittedly, chances of an upset are slim.

Roller Ruckus in the Raw?

Just in case you missed it, Your Own Jolters (or Our Own Jolters, as the case may be) downed the Southern Eagles in Roller Derby action Monday night in the Convo, 41-40.

The intricate details (are there any, ask Stan the Mouth) of the pseudo-sport fiasco were far beyond my comprehension, it being the first time that I had watched with undivided attention the fantastic debacle.

But from what I can remember (it was one of those forgettable experiences) the Derby dandies put on quite a show.

More than once, Francine Cochu, the 4-11 sparkplug "jammer" of the Jolters "sat out" (?) through the legs of hefty, 5-7, 160 pound Jan Vallow of the Eagles to score for the home team. And Jerry "the Blond Tiger" Cattell of Your Own was the victim of quite unconvincing pugilistic fakery by "Sudden" Sam Tiapula and 1968 Roller D. "Rookie of the Year" Ronnie Turbin throughout the evening.

But the biggest response of the night by the blood-hungry Hoosier crowd came when "fiery" Ann Calvallo of the Jolters draped the chunky Vallow over the Derby rink rail, and proceeded to give the Eagle matron a sound spanking with her "pivot" helmet (shades of de Sade?).

At that point the crowd came to life, and Margie Laszlo, apparently a Hoosier favorite, seized the moment.

The lanky Laszlo, who gave up a modeling career (?) for the Derby life, circled behind the flustered Vallow, and attempted to pants the Eagle female co-captain.

It was a low blow, to be sure, and the referees gave Laszlo a one minute penalty, and a $10.00 fine for ...well for...ah, trying to expose Vallow to the crowd, I guess.

All in all though, the whole exhibition seemed to be a rather boring insult to anyone with an I.Q. of over 53, who paid to see twenty eight adults whiz around a banked track.

But the resident Hoosiers loved it, those 2,000 plus who showed up. And actually it would be only fair to mention that all the participants in the contest (I refuse to call them athletes) are damn good skaters. But that is as far as any athletic excellence goes.

More important than being able to skate, is the ability to give an Academy Award performance at the drop of a hat.

Evidently, the most important move in an endless repertoire of dramatic stunts for the Roller Derby artists seems to have been one where one of the skaters, under the impetus of a well-placed hip block by an opposing skater dives onto the rink rail, suspends his or her body there for a fraction of a second, falls to the ground (being careful to fall on the head), feigns brain damage for a split second, and then climbs back into the rink, seeking retaliation.

Timing is very important in this intricate move. Get up too soon, and the crowd, who may already have a slight feeling that everything ain't kosher may finally realize the fakery. Get up too late, and the coach may have cardiac arrest.

Actually, the whole routine is rather simple, the hardest part is making it seem real.

And last night was a good test for the Derby actors and actresses. After all, if you can fool 2,000 Hoosiers, you can probably fool anyone.

Anyway, the outcome of the cosmic clash between two of the members of the International Roller Derby League (ya gotta be kiddin' me) was never in doubt. The baby blue and black clad Jolters were in command throughout the battle.

Oh, the Jolters and Eagles kept the score close, but it seemed as though everyone in the Convo sensed that Your Own Jolters, playing in front of Their Own People would not disappoint the home town fans.

And as it turned out, the Eagles took the dive, and there was no doubt that the sun would rise on the Wabash tomorrow.

When it was all over, the patrons made their way out, many walking past the track, trying to sneak a peek at the Derby lovelies and studs. One gentleman eased close to the railing, in an effort to get Ann Calvallo's autograph.

Apparently, the guy forgot to bring a pencil and pen, and the pug-nosed, freckled 43 year-old vet gave him a look that would have turned a mountain lion into a petrified pussy and said, "What the hell do you expect me to sign it with, my nose?"

Well gee whiz, Ann, the least you could have done is grabbed that piece of paper and blown your nose with it. I mean, for the rip-off you and your cohorts just pulled off, it might have been supremely symbolic.

Ya know what I mean?

Coaches sound off on Frosh rule

by John Fineran

This January, in a surprise move, the NCAA ruled that freshmen would be eligible for four years of varsity competition in football and basketball. Many of the big powers in both sports were against it; many of the schools which saw the immediate advantages of the ruling favored it. Between now and the starts of these two seasons, the athletic boards of the colleges, universities, and the various conferences will have to decide their opinions on this rule and the incoming students that each September brings.

The NCAA ruling was finally passed this January because of the continual financial difficulties of collegiate athletics. Many schools and coaches have argued for it; many schools and coaches have questioned the ethics behind such a ruling. Many questions have been put forth concerning the status of the freshman athlete in college sports: Will collegiate sports be hurt or stimulated as a result of the ruling? Will the rule itself hurt the freshmen? These questions were put forward to such notable college basketball coaches as John Wooden (UCLA)

Al McGuire (Marquette), and Adolph Rupp (Kentucky), and such football coaches as Joe Paterno (Penn State), Paul Bryant (Alabama), and Ara Parseghian (Notre Dame). The opinions of the various sections of the country were considered in the course of this report. This is the first of a two-part story. It will deal with college basketball and the freshman athlete. Football and the freshman athlete will be considered in the second part.

The questions put forward to the basketball and football coaches were the same: What do you feel in general about the ruling? Would you use freshmen? Do you think it would cause any problems on your team? Were you in favor of it? Do you think it will hurt the freshman athlete scholastically? Most of the coaches questioned did not answer the questions as they were stated, but they did have some opinions concerning the freshmen ruling.

Duquesne head coach, John "Red" Manning, commented that "a rule such as this could help my squad." The Dukes have only eight players on their varsity team. He went on, "I don't know if it will help overall though. It could hurt the fringe players, discourage them from playing college basketball. The colleges will try to get the premium players to use immediately."

Marquette coach, Al McGuire, disagreed with Manning. "I don't like it. But whatever the Big Ten does, we'll do. A rule such as this could be good for the small school."

Both Manning and McGuire agreed on one point - the affect on the freshman player.

"It could hurt the freshman player scholastically," said Manning. McGuire agreed, saying, "Would it be morally good and academically good for the freshman?"

The Dean of collegiate basketball coaches, Adolph Rupp of Kentucky, disagreed with Manning and McGuire on the scholastic point. "It will not hurt the freshman scholastically because they play as many games now as the varsity."

He went on, "We will use freshmen next year if they are qualified. It will not cause any problems. I have always been in favor of it."

John Wooden, the coach of the national champion UCLA Bruins, was probably the most outspoken of these coaches.

"I don't like the freshman ruling. I don't know how it will effect college basketball. I feel freshmen need a year of adjusting to college academics. That's why they are here in the first place. I feel they can compete athletically, but, in some cases, not scholastically. It puts too much strain on the freshman athlete."

So, as can be seen, the college basketball coaches of the country have mixed emotions concerning the new ruling. In a future article, the football coaches will state their opinions on the new NCAA freshman ruling.

SMC freshman lawsuit possible

by Maria Gallagher

A definite possibility for a freshman class lawsuit against St. Mary's College exists, according to attorney Tom Singer. SMC student government secretary Nancy Christopher revealed yesterday that Singer, a lawyer contracted to study the unmerger case, had discovered suit possibilities on two grounds:

"breach of contract" and "negligent misrepresentation."

Individual sophomores and juniors will also have grounds for suit if they feel they are receiving an inferior education, or believe they were deceived into coming to SMC with the impression that merger was imminent. Although Singer has been contracted by student government, it will be the option of the freshman class to continue to extend the issue into a court case.

At a recent meeting the freshman council recommended not to do so, but this decision was contested by the women members. They have scheduled a meeting for Thursday at Carroll Hall.

To renovate the Student Center

LaFortune contest open to all

University Vice-President for Student Affairs Fr. James Shilts and Student Government Research and Development Commissioner Ed Ellis announced yesterday a contest with a fifty-dollar first prize for students interested in renovating La Fortune Student Center.

In a statement released yesterday, Fr. Shilts noted the request of the Board of Trustees for "a student survey... taken to include the physical facilities that would enhance social life in the residence halls and in a reconditioned LaFortune Student Center that could operate around the clock, possibly with all its present offices transferred elsewhere."

Fr. Shilts continued, "We are asking all interested students to draft and submit to the Office of the Assistant Vice-President for Student Affairs plans incorporating ideas for such renovations."

Items to be considered in the plans include the current location of the Administrative and student offices in LaFortune, potential student usage, and cost.

Fr. Shilts said that some of the offices may be moved, but since this was not certain, plans could be submitted with or without the offices.

Proposals should be submitted to the Office of the Assistant Vice-President for Student Affairs by Friday, April 21. The proposals will be judged by a "qualified panel," and fifty dollars will be presented to the author of the best plan, with 25 dollars going to the runnerup.

Floor plans of the current student center may be obtained in the office of the Vice-President for Student Affairs in LaFortune.

Questions should be directed to Fr. Shilts or Ed Ellis.

Editorial

Trustee's attempt to crack down next year on Parietals, as the two women's dorms will surely move them to do.

It would be potent in making inroads in the fight to have coed dorms next year.

It would be potent in changing the current Academic Calendar, which presently has us planned to come back in the second week of August.

It would be potent in preventing the administration from enforcing the ludicrous and insulting refrigerator fines they intend to levy at us. Brother Kiernen Ryan says the University is "considering" fining students $40.00 for 3-cubic ft. refrigerators, and $10.00 for televisions.

We believe a union between students and student government led by Paul Dziedzic would be potent in removing that consideration from the Administration's mind.

Many students believe that it is impossible to deal in any way with the Trustees, and the day the student body gives up those students will be proved right. But as long as there is fight in the student body, and as long as there are intelligent, courageous, responsible men like Paul Dziedzic to lead that fight, the Trustees will not have carte blanche to run this University.

Because we believe that the students must become part of student government, and because we believe that Paul Dziedzic is the man to form and lead that union, the Observer editorial board unanimously and firmly endorses Paul Dziedzic for Student Body President.
