Board of Commissioners approves list of proposals

by Sue Wuetcher
Senior Staff Reporter

The Board of Commissioners has approved a list of proposals to be presented to the Student Affairs Committee of the Board of Trustees on May 3.

Two representatives from InPIRG will present their petition concerning their proposed funding mechanism to the Trustees for approval. Student Body President Bill Roche and Student Body Vice President Bill Vita will address the Trustees on the changes in the composition of the Campus Life Council. These changes include the addition of the Off-Campus Commissioner and the Judicial Coordinator, to the Campus Life Council.

Reid, director of Student Activities, is contemplating clarifying the policy in du Lac to allow the sale of food items only.

Roche's proposal stated that "A hall food sales shall sell food items, non-alcoholic beverages, and no more than ten items from a predetermined list of no less than 25 non-food items. This list shall be determined by a group consist-

Judicial Coordinator Jim O'Hare will speak on the current status of the Judicial Council. Student Government HPC and C.I.C liason Frank Guilfoyle will give the Trustees a report on social space on campus, presenting request forms from individual halls for social space. Off Campus Commissioner Shannon Neville will present an off campus report.

In other business at last night's meeting, the Board unanimously approved a food sales policy which had been presented by Roche.

He explained that as it stands now, there is no set food sales policy. He noted that John ing of four food sales managers to be elected by all of the food sales managers, and the Director of Student Activities. This group shall review the list at least twice a year and at other times during the year at the group's discretion.

"I think the policy is as flexible as you can get taking into account both sides of the issue," Roche said.

Faculty, course changes accompany new semester

by Mark Rust
News Editor

Most students on campus will pick-up cards today for next semester, a semester characterized by a few faculty changes and an infusion of new courses, primarily in the College of Arts and Letters. While the department chairmen in the College of Business report that there will be no significant changes in their area next year, the other colleges--Arts and Letters, Science and Engineering--show numerous changes.

The Art, Economic and History departments each report one new course. "Art and Religion" which will be taught by Douglas Kinsey, will explore the relationship between man's art and his religious aspirations. The course is cross-listed with Theology 355.

In the department of Economics Richard Newfarmer will introduce a course entitled "Corporate Power and Industrial Organization." The 400 level course will attempt to measure the impact of different corporate structures on the economy.

The History department will continue its mini-courses next semester, which department chairman Fr. Marvin O'Connell says have been "quite successful." The History department has added one new course--History 301--which will be taught by Frederick Pike and a team of eight professors. The course will be concerned with the domination of imperial powers over colonial peoples.

The English Department also plans to continue their mini-courses which "have worked out quite well," according to Acting Chairman Thomas Werge. The department has also added an "Afro-American Literature" course, taught by Linda Beard, which will "add a new dimension to the department," according to Werge.

American Studies plans to expand their internship program next semester with additional spots at the South Bend Tribune, WNDU, Notre Dame Press, the Archives, Historical Preservation Society of South Bend and Discovery Hall Museum at the Century Center. The work-study spots are open

As Pearl river rises

Hundreds evacuate in flood

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) - Hundreds of residents downstream of flooded Jackson fled their homes yesterday as the surging Pearl River defied forecasts and edged higher. In Alabama, thousands were evacuated as new flooding threatened.

And to the south, the Army Corp of Engineers said yesterday it would open the Bonnet Carre Spillway, hoping to slow the rising Mississippi River before it strains the levees protecting New Orleans.

Officials here have estimated that more than 17,700 persons already have been flooded out in the metropolitan area. Sandbag levees designed to stem the rising Pearl were holding.

Evacuations were underway in the downstream cities of Georgetown, Monticello and Columbia, where officials said as many as 2,000 persons might leave.

"We're prepared for the worst in case it happens," said Monticello Mayor Tommy Jolly. "We're moving people out of low areas now."

President Carter on Monday designated the state a disaster area, making thousands of flood victims eligible for federal assistance. In addition to flood losses, much of the state experienced extensive property and road damage because of torrential rains last week.

In Alabama, the number of people evacuated because of floods rose towards 5,000 yesterday with as many as 3,000 people in and around Selma being evacuated. More than 600 families were evacuated at Demopolis.

"A lot of people won't come out until they're forced to and that's bothersome," said Selma's Civil Defense director, Warren Rhoades. "We're going to have an awful time getting everyone out at once and I expect a lot of people to be evacuated tonight."

After one rescue boat spent an hour getting to a woman in a house near Selma, she asked: "Can I take my stereo and television?"

"No, m'am."

"Well, I'll see you later,"

Tenure creates problems

by Rob Powers
Staff Reporter

Tenure has created a web of problems for American colleges, according to a recent Wall Street Journal article. "Tenure can lead to the retention of the least creative faculty members and to the extrusion of the most creative," an anthropologist commented.

At Notre Dame, 360 out of a faculty of 650 research and teaching fellows are tenured. According to Assistant Provost Sister John Miriam Jones, this ratio is in keeping with the recommendations of the American Association of University Presidents (AAUP) that tenure be limited to 50-65 percent of the faculty. "This allows for a larger percentage of new talent," Jones said.

The article pointed to Muhlenburg Collge, a small liberal arts college in Pennsylvania, which has kept a moratorium on tenure spots since 1974 because 72 percent of the faculty was already tenured. The administration will continue the ban until 1982, when the tenure level is expected to decline to 66 percent.

Eighty temporary teachers, hired for a limited time and not on tenure track, account for only 10-15 percent of the faculty at Notre Dame. At Columbia University, temporary, non-tenure track teachers comprise the bulk of the faculty in the humanities. Only eight tenure track jobs were offered there last year, as compared with 30 in 1968.

Jones pointed out that both the advantages and disadvantages

Whereabouts of Idi Amin remain a mystery in Uganda

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)--The whereabouts of ousted dictator Idi Amin remained a rumor-shrouded mystery yesterday, a week after the Ugandan capital of Kampala fell to Tanzanians and his exile enemies. While some reports placed him in Libya - presumably a safe haven since Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy has been a staunch ally - others said he was in his northwestern Uganda tribal homeland. Still others said the self-proclaimed "president for life and conqueror of the British Empire" had fled to a neighboring country.

Supreme Court will rule against media in pending case

WASHINGTON (AP)--A report that may represent a major breach in the secret deliberations of the Supreme Court says the justices have decided against the news media in a ruling that could alter the nation's libel law. In nationally televised reports Monday night and yesterday morning, ABC News said the court soon will rule that public figures suing for libel may ask what a journalist's "state of mind" was while preparing the challenged news story. The report said Justice Byron R. White is writing the court's majority opinion, and that Justice William H. Rehnquist is joining White.

Alabama Supreme Court sets new execution date for Evans

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)--The Alabama Supreme Court yesterday set a new execution date of April 27 for John Louis Evans III, the condemned killer who beat the electric chair by only six hours. But because of a new appeal filed on behalf of Evans, there appears little chance the execution will be carried out then.

ND may offer new course in fall covering 19th century studies

by John McGrath
Senior Staff Reporter

Pending final approval on a $20,000 grant request, Notre Dame plans to offer a new course this fall designed to integrate a wide range of 19th century institutions and studies.

Edward Manier, associate professor of philosophy, and the man who devised the course, noted that the class will examine the role played by 19th century literature, politics, art, and science in transforming Enlightenment period ideals into 20th century theories of modernization and industrialization.

"What we're trying to do is recreate a slice of the 19th century," Manier explained.

"The course will tie together the history of 19th century social thought, with an examination of Tocqueville and Marx, and 19th century scientific advances, with a look at Darwin."

Manier developed the outline for the new course, which will be known as "Evolutionary Images of Humanity," during the year he spent as a fellow at the National Humanities Institute at the University of Chicago in 1977. The theme of the three-year institute, which has run from 1976 through the present year, is "Technology and the Humanities," so it was only natural for Manier to construct a curriculum based on this theme.

The class, as envisioned now, will consist of two sections, one for freshmen, and the other for upperclassmen. Credit for the course will be granted on the 375 level of Philosophy, History, or English.

In addition to Manier, who will teach the course, there will be appearances by four guest professors from the College of Arts and Letters. John J. McDonald, associate professor of English will discuss the influences made by Emerson, Greenough and Whitman on 19th century society, while Philip Gleason, professor of history, will examine migrations that took place during the time with a special emphasis on Tocqueville's Democracy In America. William Solomon, associate professor of philosophy, will discuss 19th century ethics in his guest appearance, and Marjorie Kinsey, adjunct assistant professor of art, will examine the art, particularly the painting, of the period.

A large part of the cost of the institution of the new course is to be underwritten by a $20,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities. NEH will pay for faculty salaries as well as materials such as slides, films, and reserve books for the course under proposed grant.

Manier submitted the proposal for Evolutionary Images of Humanity to the NEH last year, but has indicated that he must further clarify his plans for implementing the objectives of the course in another proposal before the grant is finally approved.

"I'm pretty confident about the outcome," Manier noted.

Manier emphasized that he would like to see students from all four colleges take the course because of its integrated nature and its relevancy to our modern culture.

"The course will provide a background for an analysis of the problems we face in the 20th century about the impact of industrialization on our culture," Manier explained.

There will be two required texts for the course, both authored by Manier. The first is a compilation of selections from the authors to be examined during the course of the semester, and the second is Manier's recently published book, The Young Darwin and His Culture Circle.

Indiana State Police to charge three ND students with theft

by Michael Lewis
Executive News Editor

The Indiana State Police will file theft charges against three Notre Dame students who have been accused of stealing three highway barricades worth approximately $70.

The charges will be forwarded to the St. Joseph County prosecutor's office, where a decision will be made whether or not to file a warrant for the students' arrest.

Dean of Students James Roemer said he expects the case to proceed through regular legal channels.

"I think it will go through the court process," Roemer said. "My conversations with the State Police indicate that they have enough evidence to take it to court, although it's hard to say at this point what the prosecutor will decide."

Roemer also said he will not take any action in the case unless it is referred to him by the prosecutor's office. "I think the court process ought to be a sufficient deterrent," he explained.

The students allegedly picked up the barricades on the Indiana toll road near the South Bend exit toll booth. The state police noted the license number of the student's car, and traced it back to the campus.

They then called Notre Dame Security for a verification of the car's description. A joint effort of the state police and Security located the students on the campus.

Saint Mary's kicks - off An Tostal

by Pam Degnan
Staff Reporter

Saint Mary's will kick-off An Tostal with an "Evening for the Children," a variety benefit show on Tuesday, April 24 at 8 p.m. in Angela Athletic Facility. Admission for students is $1 and $2.50 for the general public. All proceeds will be donated to the St. Jude Children's Hospital.

The show, which is composed of talent from both campuses, will feature the final performance of the Toe-Tapping Trio and the jazz routine of Debra Sedore and the Sedore-ettes.

Other activities scheduled for the evening include an excerpt from A Sleazy Bus Station, a comedy play recently reviewed at the Indiana Playwright's Fair. The benefit will also mark the on-stage debut of the Outcasts, a comical-improvizational group.

Various types of music including jazz, folk and rock will compliment the evening's activities. Campus and local musical groups will be featured throughout the program.

The benefit is the finale to a year long effort on the part of many students in raising money for the Saint Jude's Children's Hospital. Some of the activities that were sponsored throughout the year for this charity drive include dorm and class happy hours, the Regina Talent Show and individual club functions.

Mary Jo Ptacin and Adri Trigiani, co-chairmen of the event, encourage the community to attend the benefit show.

"We feel like we've planned an exotic, exhilarating evening of dazzling entertainment. We encourage the whole community to come out and support our fund raising drive for the children in Saint Jude's Hospital, Trigiani said.

Record Sales to distribute albums

Backorder albums will be distributed next week, according to SU Record sale coordinator Curt Hench. The delivery of the albums was delayed by the Teamsters strike last week.

"Fathers and Sons (wholesale record company in Indianapolis) knew about the upcoming trucker's strike and didn't send the albums out," Hench said. "As soon as the strike was over they sent them out."

The albums will be distributed Monday through Friday from 12 to 4 p.m. at the Ticket Office. Refunds will be made at that time.

Defective albums may be returned for exchange from Wednesday through Thursday of next week at the Ticket Office from 12 to 4 p.m. There will be no refunds or exchanges on defective albums without the purchaser's copy of the order form. Further details will appear in the Observer.

Hench added that the delay did have one good consequence. Because of the delay we were able to fill a lot of backorders that we wouldn't have been able to fill otherwise.

CSPA awards Observer 'Medalist' ranking

In a recent rating by Columbia Scholastic Press Association, The Observer received 928 points and obtained a "Medalist" ranking in the college/university division. The rating covered issues from Jan. through Dec. of 1978.

According to the Association scorebook, the "Medalist" ranking is granted to publications from the First Place ratings. "This honor, the Association's highest ranking, is based on those intangible qualities which become evident to the judges which could be characterized as the 'personality' of the entry."

There is no specific score attached to the "Medalist" ranking. It is given to not more than ten percent of entries obtaining between 850 and 1000 (the maximum) points.

Classification of the entry is determined by the method of production, the type of publication, and the type of enrollment of the institution. This allows the entry to be compared with those of a similar nature. Announcement of the standings were made at the annual convention of the C.S.P.A. held in mid-March in New York City.

The Observer received its highest ranking in the area of content/coverage. Of a possible 225 points, The Observer was awarded 219. In the area of writing/editing, 397 of 425 points were given. Design/display merited 272 points of a possible 300. An additional 40 points were given as a special credit. In three categories, The Observer editorial/opinion page received a perfect score.

Busick, O'Brien speak to HPC on ticket distribution

by Aileen Lavin
Staff Reporter

Ticket Manager Mike Busick and Business Manager of Athletics Joseph O'Brien spoke at the HPC meeting last night in Sorin Hall regarding the sale and distribution of basketball tickets for next year.

Each year, there are 5,000 tickets allotted to the students with 4400 of them going to upperclassmen and graduate students, 400 going to freshmen, and the other 200 going to Saint Mary's. At this time the question at hand is whether to continue the summer issue as it was last year, or change the system to a spring or fall issue.

Previous to the 1978-79 season, the only time the 5000 tickets were all taken by students was during the 1973-74 season. Because of the problems resulting from the demand for tickets exceeding the number allotted, Busick is considering returning to the spring issue to facilitate dealing with these problems. "If we conduct a spring issue, we then know how many tickets are available for freshmen," Busick said.

Busick assured the HPC that if a lottery for lower arena seats was necessary, the students would be informed of their seating status before they got to the ticket counter. He apologized for the inconveniences caused by not informing the students that they were not seated in the lower arena this past season.

The decision on ticket sales and distribution will be made within the next two days. "In light of what other schools do, we probably do a better job than anyone in the country in taking care of the students first," Busick maintained.

Student Body President Bill Roche was at the meeting last night to get their endorsement for a proposal he was to bring before the Board of Commissioners. The proposal reads,

"A Hall Food Sales shall sell food items, non-alcoholic beverages, and no more than ten items from a predetermined list of no less than twenty-five non-food items." The proposal also sets up a group consisting of four Food Sales managers and the Director of Student Activities to review this list at least twice a year.

Roche is trying to get this proposal adopted into the du Lac manual. The HPC voted unanimously to endorse the proposal.

At Saint Mary's Election tickets to run - off

by Ellen Buddy
Saint Mary's Editor

Elections for class and hall officers were held last Wednesday, prior to Easter break, at Saint Mary's. "The turnout was excellent, especially since it was before break," according to Election Commissioner, Mary Mullaney. "The requests for absentee ballots were also high, showing great interest on the students' part," Mullaney said.

LeMans Hall officers for next year will be President Jeannie Ament and Vice-President Peggy Blum.

Holy Cross Hall elections resulted in a run-off between two of the three original tickets. The tickets in the run-off are Estelle Geyer and Kim Kearny and the second ticket is Lyn Van Wassenhove and Sally Vita.

McCandless and Regina Halls did not hold elections because no tickets presented themselves for candidacy. According to Mullaney, "there will be elections in these two halls within the next two weeks."

The Augusta Hall government is structured differently than the halls previously mentioned. Elections were held for four spots including Judicial Commissioner, Secretary, and Social Commissioner in addition to Hall President. There will be a run-off election between Julie Marous and Sue Turcotte for president. Muffit Fitzpatrick was elected judicial commissioner, Bernie Drossel will be Augusta's secretary and Tish Premazic will be social commissioner.

Openings on the tickets for class officers were for president vice-president, secretary and treasurer. Next year's Junior Class officers will be Susie Eckelkamp, Anne Callan, Susan Mitchell and Patty Zidar. This ticket ran unopposed.

The elections for Senior and Sophomore class for next year both resulted in run-offs. The run-off in the Sophomore class will be between Leslie Griffith's ticket and Eileen Murphy's ticket. Elaine Belle's ticket and Debbie Roberts' ticket will be in the run-off for Senior class officers.

According to Mullaney, both tickets in the run-off for Senior class officers requested an open forum to discuss campaign issues and platforms. The forum was held in the lobby of LeMans Hall last night.

After a flip of the coin, Belle's ticket decided to go second, so the forum was opened by the Roberts' ticket.

Both tickets were allowed approximately 20 minutes to present their platforms, activities and goals for next year. The floor was then open for questions from the audience. Questions were concerned with subject matter from semi-formals to the Senior trip in Acapulco. "It was the best forum I've ever seen," Mullaney said, "the candidates presented themselves well."

All of the run-off elections will be held today in the lobby of LeMans between 8 and 5 p.m. and between 5 and 6 p.m. in the cafeteria on the LeMans side.

Booby - trap bomb slaughters four policemen in Northern Ireland

BESSBROOK, Northern Ireland (AP) - A booby-trap bomb killed four policemen yesterday in the worst such incident in a decade of Northern Ireland's sectarian violence. Twelve other people were injured in the explosion, an apparent escalation of the Irish Republican Army's spring offensive against British rule.

The police were killed when a bomb blew up their Land-Rover as it passed a booby-trapped van parked on the road, police said. It was the highest police death toll in a single incident since Northern Ireland's troubles began in 1969.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the blast, but police said it had all the signs of an IRA ambush.

Violence had eased off in 1978, but Guerrillas of the predominantly Roman Catholic organization launched anew onslaught last month to coincide with the British campaign leading up to May 3 national elections.

At first police said the explosion was caused by a land mine planted in a drainage culvert under the road. But a Royal Ulster Constabulary spokesman in Belfast said later that the bomb was hidden in a small van parked on the roadside near the culvert.

"As the police Land-Rover passed the van, it exploded and the Land-Rover was totally destroyed," the spokesman said.

A witness nearby, pub owner James Scott, told a reporter: "not a bit of the vehicle was left intact. It completely disintegrated with the force of the blast."

Police said it appeared the device was detonated by remote control by a terrorist lying in wait in the surrounding countryside, a tactic used by the IRA in the past.

Among the injured were two sisters, ages 4 and 5, and their father, who was driving a car only a short distance in front of the police vehicle. They were admitted to Daisy Hill Hospital in Newry, suffering from facial cuts and shock, a hospital spokesman said.

Twelve people required hospital treatment, including four policemen who were in a second vehicle 200 yards behind the Land-Rover.

The Royal Ulster Constabulary, police force in the British province, has lost 121 officers since Catholic-Protestant sectarian strife erupted here in 1969. Police injuries total 3,500.

The ambush came less than 24 hours after IRA Provisional guerrillas claimed responsibility for gunning down an off-duty prison officer at his sister's wedding in the border village of Clogher.

The mostly Roman Catholic IRA has declared prison officers, police and British soldiers prime targets in its campaign to force Britain out of Northern Ireland.

of the tenure system, saying, "Tenure allows the scholar to get into research and teaching and frees him from worrying about his job, but people sometimes get that far and quit. If you discover you've made a mistake in hiring someone, you're stuck with him."

Federal legislation extending the retirement age to 70 will further aggravate the situation. "We will have to add five years to the life of every tenured position on the board in 1982," Jones said, "and this obviously limits the number of people you could put into them."

Jones said she does not believe the tenure system is discriminatory towards women or minorities. "It doesn't discriminate per se. Only in the last six to eight years have we concentrated on this endeavor. It will take a while to get them up to the tenure level," she explained.

She added, however, "Tenure is not inherently discriminatory. That is possible at first when there are only men on the faculty."

Jones also cautioned against hiring unqualified people simply to fulfill minority quotas, warning that to do so is "programming them for failure."

An assistant professor in the College of Arts and Letters who preferred not to be named, was denied tenure this past year and complained of a "cloak of secrecy" around the tenure process. According to the assistant professor, this secrecy is unique to Notre Dame. He said he was denied any explanation of the decision, and was told only that his teacher ratings were too low, although he claims they were above average.

He attributes his dismissal to the "financial crunch" within the university, forcing the university to grant fewer tenure positions, and "the university's reluctance to expand into new areas of study."

He said that if he cannot find another tenure-track position at another university he will be forced to accept a one-year part-time position.

"There is a profound disrespect on the part of the administration for the faculty here," he added. "The faculty is never consulted. The faculty senate is a joke; they only have the power of agenda."

The article mentioned Hampshire College, a small liberal arts school in South Amherst, Mass., which now hires faculty members on a renewable contract basis without tenure.

Jones said that such apolicy would be difficult to implement at a large university such as Notre Dame, but advocated a "longterm renewable contract" of five to eight years after which the teacher would be re-evaluated. "Ideally, it would be a good thing," she said.

Shelter for battered women to celebrate first anniversary

by Jim McConnell

The St. Joseph County Y.M.C.A. Women's Shelter will hold a dinner tonight at Century Center, celebrating the shelter's first anniversary. The shelter, opened on April 3, 1978, serves to provide temporary housing, counseling, and support for battered women and their children.

The shelter was begun after a study, conducted by the Women's Action Committee Task Force on Women in Crisis, indicated the need for such a facility, citing that in St. Joseph County alone, there are upwards of 250 women who are annually in need of services provided by the shelter.

Notre Dame Mardi Gras monies have provided partial funding for the shelter. The Mardi Gras Committee, first approached by the Women's Shelter Advisory Committee in October of 1977, while the shelter was still in the planning stage, allocated $1300 toward its development in what John Reid, Notre Dame's director of Student Activities termed, "an act of good faith, with understanding that the money would be returned should the proposed project not become a reality."

The money enabled the committee to rent a three bedroom house in downtown South Bend. During the shelter's first six months in operation, it served 84 women with 104 children. The average length of stay per family was 8 days.

According to Theresa C. Tyler, the council's funding chairperson, "In a very real sense the shelter would not be available to these families in crisis without the generosity of the Notre Dame students."

In September of 1978 the committee reapplied for subsidizing and was granted an additional $1500 to further work work of the shelter.

Currently, the shelter is equipped to handle 12 to 15 women and their children at any given time. The maximum length of stay is generally two weeks, with exceptions made as need dictates.

All calls to the shelter go through the Y.W.C.A. hotline. At that time, callers are directed to a shelter volunteer, specially trained to deal with beaten women, and answer their questions and counsel them concerning the advisability of relocating to the shelter.

she said.

The water at Demopolis, just below the confluence of the Warrior and Tombigbee rivers, was expected to crest at 74 feet today, 26 feet above flood stage, which would be the highest level on record.

Demopolis Mayor Hugh Allen warned sightseers they would be arrested if they continued to get in the way of rescuers.

In Jackson, where flooding has reached rooftops in many northeast residential areas and has forced officials to close roads into the downtown section, the river stood at 43.2 feet at midday, more than 25 feet above flood stage. It had been predicted to crest yesterday at 43.1 feet.

"The river's still coming up little by little but we're hoping it is about to crest," said Carroll Fulgham, a spokesman for the city of Jackson. "We don't really know when it will stop, but the levees are still holding."

Despite guerrillas

Rhodesian voters flock to polls

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) - Undeterred by threats of guerrilla violence, blacks and whites turned out in large numbers yesterday to vote as equals on black majority rule. A hundred thousand soldiers guarded against sabotage attempts by black opposition guerrillas.

In latest reports on the first day, at least 568,382 people voted, said Eric Pope-Simmonds, registrar general. He said last night that the figure, covering only voting until 3 p.m., equalled 20 percent of the nation's electorate. The polls did not close until 7 p.m. (1 p.m. EST).

The size of the turnout surprised even optimistic election officers. "It's startling," said one white official.

The government hopes a large turnout will prompt political recognition of the break-away British colony, which has been an international outcast since it unilaterally declared its independence in 1965. The government also hopes for an end to crippling military and economic sanctions brought by the United Nations in response to Rhodesia's policy of racial separation.

The 12,000 black guerrillas of the Patriotic Front alliance of Zambia-based Joshua Nkomo and Mozambique-based Robert Mugabe have vowed to sabotage the elections, saying the new government would be a facade for continued white rule.

In black areas of Salisbury, lines of voters snaked around buildings for more than half a mile in some cases. Many women were among the blacks, voting for the first time in Rhodesia's history.

In white suburbs, black servants voted with their white employers. One black man in white uniform and chef's hat told reporters: "I am going to vote with my boss because we all want peace for our people."

In some rural areas where guerrilla threats against black residents have been high, large turnouts were being reported.

Even as whites and blacks voted to end 90 years of white minority rule, the bitter guerrilla war ground on.

The military announced that 20 more people had died in the previous 24 hours. The six-year bust war has claimed nearly 16,000 lives.

White Prime Minister Ian Smith last year formed a biracial government with three moderate black leaders, Bishop Abel Muzorewa, Ndabaningi Sithole and Jeremiah Chirau and agreed to a new constitution providing for a black majority in parliament.

The Patriotic Front spurned an offer of amnesty and participation in the election.

Whites, who comprise just 4 percent of the population, were guaranteed 28 seats in the first 100-seat House of Assembly in Zimbabwe-Rhodesia, the new name the country will take when a black prime minister assumes office about a month from now.

The 28 white members were elected last week, with only whites voting. Both whites and blacks vote this week to choose the 72 black members.

Black leaders say privately they had to promise whites strong representation in the new government, including control of the security forces and civil administration for five years, to attain black majority rule without forcing skilled whites to flee the country.

Nuzorewa, the black leader favored to become the country's first black prime minister when election results are announced next week, predicted yesterday that international recognition would be inevitable once a popularly elected government was installed in power.

The United States and Britain have refused to send official election observers, but about 50 unofficial observers from a number of countries, including the United States and Britain are watching the elections.

Black American civil rights activist Bayard Rustin, in Bulawayo as an unofficial observer, said he was "exceedingly favorably impressed" by the voting process.

In a move to prevent multiple voting, officials required that voters hands be dipped in an indelible liquid that glows under ultraviolet light machines at each polling place.

Speaking to 30 people

Toohey discusses pre-marital sex

by John Ferrol
Staff Reporter

"America is pretty thoroughly screwed up about sex," stated Fr. Bill Toohey, Director of Campus Ministry, at a Knights of Columbus meeting last night.

Toohey, speaking to a group of 30 on the subject of pre-marital sex, also stated that "there is a significant problem at Notre Dame" concerning sexual behavior.

"The students fail to see the more significant questions and issues about heterosexual relationships," said Toohey, "and parietals is not one of them."

Toohey emphasized that the basic issue is interpersonal relationships. He stressed the importance for students to engage in "numerous, prolonged, informal, and personal relationships with the opposite sex."

"The Notre Dame situation breeds confusion about what a man or a woman really is," remarked Toohey, "and you cannot be healthy unless you know what the other sex is."

He went on to note that Notre Dame students desperately need basic sex education, Christian principles for sexual behavior, and the experience of numerous heterosexual relationships.

Toohey mentioned that the word 'intercourse' has taken on a different connotation today. Originally, the word meant 'conversation.' Toohey noted that the first problem in marriage splits is a "communication breakdown," not sexual difficulties.

"The challenge in heterosexual relationships," said Toohey, "is to have the verbal and the non-verbal communication be consistent." He stated that much of the body language in relationships does not reflect the actual status of the relationship.

Toohey mentioned that many gestures, such as the kiss, have been cheapened over time. "The kiss should say what is already true," he said. Toohey emphasized that "body language is not supposed to cause the relationship but express the relationship."

Toohey stated that the act of sex should express the consummation of a relationship. According to him, the individual engaging in coitus should be saying to the other "I am yours, I am bound to you, I will love you forever."

Toohey stressed the difference between the casual, anonymous sexual act and the pre-marital sex performed by an engaged couple. "The capability of the one against the other is the difference between night and day," Toohey stated.

Responding to a question, Toohey again emphasized the importance of seeking interpersonal relationships. "We cannot possibly grow unless we take the risk and go outside of ourselves to other people," he said.

Reid encourages applications for football concession stands

by Laura Larimore
Senior Staff Reporter

Applications for football game concession stand operations are due during the month of April, according to John Reid, director of Student Activities. All halls and University-approved organizations are eligible to apply.

A lottery to determine individual game assignments will be held May 1. "With six home games and 12 stands per game, there will be a total of 72 assignments," Reid said.

The thirteenth stand is always awarded to the Knights of Columbus chapter, since they donate all proceeds to charity, Reid added.

Reid stated that virtually all groups that apply receive an assignment. In past years, 60-70 groups have usually applied. Smaller groups, those under 15-20 members, are usually paired together. Any assignments left over are put through a second lottery with the larger groups, such as classes and halls, receiving first chance.

Reid encouraged all undergraduate organizations approved for 1979-80 to apply. Forms may be picked up in the Student Activities Office on the first floor of LaFortune.

The average stand makes between $200-$350 at a game, Reid concluded.

Ohlgren to lecture on computers

Dr. Thomas H. Ohlgren, professor of English at Purdue University, will discuss "Computer Cataloging and Indexing of Illuminated Manuscripts" during a talk tomorrow at Notre Dame.

The talk is at 1 p.m. in room 242 of the Computing Center and Mathematics Building. The public is invited to attend.

Ohlgren recently completed a survey of projects in this area and is chairman of a session on standards for cataloging art works set for Dartmouth College in August.

program will all add their own unique perspectives to this course synthesis.

The College of Aerospace and Mechanical Engineering reported that they will add three professors and perhaps a fourth to their program next year. Two assistant professors will be added to the regular faculty, one in Aerospace and the other in Mechanical Engineering. In addition the department will also add a visiting professor—Kohyu Satoh from the Fire Research Institute in Tokyo—and there is a "very good possibility" that a visiting professor from Oklahoma State will be added to the faculty according to Albin Szewczyk, department chairman.

Two faculty members will be acquired in Civil Engineering pending official appointment. One will work in soil mechanics and the other will specialize in structural engineering.

Two new courses have been added to the curriculum in the Engineering College, and both deal with resource alternatives. "Nuclear Reactor Theory" will be taught for the first time in the fall, and "Measurement Lab" will deal with solar energy.

In the College of Science only the Math and Physics Departments report changes in curriculum and faculty. According to Department Chairman Walter Miller, Physics majors have been given a list of electives offered next year, including "Instrumentation with Microprocessors," a course which he indicated is "very popular." An informal seminar on Atomic Physics, which is not listed in the course schedule, will be offered to graduate students next fall.

In the Math Department, Andrew Sommese will join the regular faculty, according to John Derwent, Department chairman. Sommese is currently teaching at Cornell after an extended teaching engagement in Bonn, Germany.

Course descriptions for the new Social Justice courses will be released today. They will be outlined and explained in tomorrow's Observer.

Bookstore competition begins

by Frank LaGrotta
Sports Writer

Spring, in all its splendor, has returned to Notre Dame. Officially, that is.

Sure, last month's sunshine and robin's return served as good indicators that better days are on the way. But warm down jackets and waterproofed boots were kept handy until the real sign of old man winter's demise appeared...

Bookstore Basketball.

Well, there was plenty of that, along with sunny skies (filled with robins, of course) on campus yesterday as the Ironmen returned to the concrete hardwoods to vie for this year's Bookstore crown. Tournament commissioner, Leo Latz, was extremely pleased with the events of opening day.

"It was a very smooth start, considering the difficulty we had notifying yesterday's participants," Latz commented. He added that the confusion was caused by the Easter holiday because most of the students were not on campus.

In one of the afternoon's most thrilling matchups, John Gacy and the Boys Down Under eeked out a 22-20 overtime win over The Ragsters. Chris Beeman paced the winners with 11 points while teammate John Brooks chipped in seven. Bill Siewe dropped 11 for the losing team.

Hal Reilly led Gramps and the Burners to a 21-18 win over Midnight Ramblers as he made good on 11 of 27 shots. The Ramblers relied on the hot hand of Mark Thuney (six points) for their scoring punch.

You Guys Didn't Show Up defeated P. Posse 21-15 as Nick Vehr and Curt Bailey combined with 12 points for the winners. John Keiser was the Posse's leading scorer with five points.

Ken Valdiserri took a step toward this year's Hoosier Award, putting on a 9-for-33 shooting exhibition that sparked Vegetable Products to a 21-17 win over Joe's Pranksters. Mark Bubberman hit seven of 14 shots and pulled down seven rebounds for Joe's boys.

In other action, Hugh Quinn's 11-for-21 performance led Too Late +3 to a 21-7 win over Rolling Heads while John Daley scored 13 points and pulled down 11 caroms in a 21-16 Chico Escuela and D.D.'s win over IBWMF. In the afternoon's only forfeit, Two Studs and Three Puds advanced to the next round of competition when their scheduled opponents, Numnuts, failed to show up.

Latz and his staff were very encouraged by the enthusiasm displayed by the student body despite a recent NCAA ruling that prohibits varsity basketball

ND tennis team's 8-game win streak snapped

by Michael Ortman
Sports Writer

When you're hot, you're hot, and when you're not, you're not. This weekend, the Irish tennis team tasted both extremes as it extended its winning streak to eight consecutive victories before falling to the Indiana Hoosiers, 6-3. The loss dropped Notre Dame to 12-7 on the year.

The netters started the Easter vacation off in grand fashion, whitewashing host Valparaiso, 9-0. The out-classed Crusaders were no match for the Irish netmen. Because of limited time and court facilities, the teams played ten game pro-sets, rather than the standard best-of-three six game sets.

The team piled back into the van for another road trip. The next stop for the Irish was DeKalb, Ill., where they rolled over three opponents in two days to sweep the Northern Illinois Quadrangular. Notre Dame downed St. Ambrose (8-1), Bowling Green (6-3), and finally, host Northern Illinois (5-4) to post its eighth straight victory.

After a day-long layover in South Bend, the netters took to the road once again for a Monday afternoon meeting with Indiana in Bloomington. The injury ridden and fatigued Irish proved no match for the powerful Hoosiers.

loss snaps Notre Dame's 8 match winning streak.

Second seeded Carlton Harris was nursing a sore right elbow when he took on Indiana's Jeff True, a native of South Bend. The healthier True quickly disposed of Harris, 6-1, 6-2. The other singles matches, however, were much closer.

In the number-one singles, Indiana's Randy Druz need three sets to put away Mark Hoyer, 2-6, 6-4, 6-1. Third seed Herb Hopwood nearly sent his match with Hoosier Mike Dickinson into a third set, but he too came up a loser, 6-2, 5-7.

The two victories in singles for Notre Dame came in what proved to be the closest matches of the afternoon. Freshmen Tom Hartzell and Tom Robison both needed tie-breakers to win their respective matches. Number five Hartzell defeated Tom Lockhart, 6-3, 2-6, 7-6, while number six Robison, favoring a wrist injury incurred against Bowling Green, downed Mark Behr, 6-2, 7-6.

These two freshmen have been the hottest men on the team of late, Hartzell winning eight of his last nine matches, and Robison taking his last nine in a row.

Entering the doubles competition, the Irish trailed, 4-2 and needed a clean sweep of the three matches to win. But it was not to be for the tired netmen as the team of senior captain Mark Trueblood and Bob Koval was the only one to come up with a victory, defeating True and Dickinson, 4-6, 6-1, 7-5.

"They were just plain tired," explained coach Tom Fallon. "The team had a really rough weekend of traveling and playing. I think they just needed a few days rest before playing Indiana."

The players hope to get that much-needed rest before Thursday's match in Chicago against DePaul. The road schedule doesn't lighten up any after that, however. Sunday the team will be in Terre Haute to take on the powerful Indiana State Sycamores, who have already beaten Indiana twice. On the return to South Bend, the team will stop in Lafayette to do battle with the Boiler-makers of Purdue on Monday.

Four first place finishers helped lead the Notre Dame track team to a third place at the Arkansas State Invitational held last Saturday in Jonesboro, AR. The Irish trailed only Kansas and Arkansas State in the ten-team meet.

Leading the way for Notre Dame was Dennis VanderKraats, who took first in two events. The senior co-captain paced a one-two Irish finish in the 3000 meter steeplechase, winning the event in 8:57. Freshman Chris Lattig followed VanderKraats, taking the runner-up spot in 9:02.

In the 5000 meters, VanderKraats also took first, winning in 14:29.

Jay Miranda led an impressive Irish performance in the 800 meters, as he won the race 1:50.4. Notre Dame placed two others in this event, as Chuck Aragon took third in 1:50.6 and Jim Slattery placed sixth in 1:52.8.

Junior Marc Novak was the other first place finisher for the Irish, as he turned in an impressive performance to win the 10,000 meters. Teammate Ed Bomber took fifth in this

Italians highlight fencing

The Italian Delagation captured two of the four individual weapon titles at the 1979 Junior World Fencing Championships, held this past weekend at the Athletic and Convocation Center.

The foil gold medal was captured by Italian Andrea Borella, one of nearly 300 fencers from 32 different nations participating in the five-day event.

The finals in women's foil, held on Sunday evening, were also dominated by the Italians. Nineteen-year-old Annarita Sparaciani and 16-year-old Dorina Vaccaroni, in addition to capturing everybody's attention captured the gold and silver medals, respectively, in women's event.

The Soviet Union, which won the total point-based World Cup team trophy, managed one gold medalist. Igor Kutcheriayvi won the epee gold medal in a fence-off of four fencers who tied for the top record in the finals of that weapon.

Hungary's Imre Bujdosó won the sabre medal in the 20-and-under competition, ending a two-year Russian domination in that weapon.

An apparent political incident occurred during the first night of competition, as one of the three Chinese entrants in the foil did not compete in his scheduled bout with an Israeli fencer, and was announced as having an injured right leg. Tournament officials set up an appointment with a doctor for the Chinese fencer, but he did not show up, causing speculation that he did not want to face the Israeli for political reasons.

But this incident did little to mar the spirit of competition and
