Priorities include Mid East Kissinger cites foreign policy...

by Mark Rust
News Editor

Dr. Henry Kissinger touched on Vietnam, the SALT talks, the Middle East and Cuban military incursions during a one hour lecture Friday night at Indiana University at South Bend.

Kissinger, who spoke before an audience of 800 with almost 1,000 people watching on video in four nearby rooms, told the assembled that "the U.S. cannot and will not tolerate the systematic undermining of the balance of power." He placed all of his discussion of foreign affairs within the context of a historical view of foreign policy.

"I want to stress, the situation we find ourselves in today goes back 15 years," the former Secretary of State said. "We have backed off in our negotiations to the point that now--through the Watergate years and the Carter presidency--we have gone through a 15 year process at the end of which we face few military options except the destruction of civilization, while our opponent is ahead of us in every significant military category."

"In the last 10 years we have had to come to grips with a world in which we no longer influence events relative to the task we must accomplish," Kissinger said. Since the U.S. can't do everything, "we must, for the first time, establish foreign policy priorities."

Kissinger listed two main priorities; protecting U.S. interests through supporting "moderate" forces against radical forces in the Middle East and the Third World, and linking future Russian treaties and negotiations with Cuban military conduct.

"When Cubans first appeared in Africa as Soviet proxy forces in 1975, this represented an event of profound geopolitical consequences," he said.

The U.S. did not react strongly enough at that time, Kissinger suggested, because of "domestic divisiveness." He said that the end result of this type of inaction shows itself in "moderate" governments around the world who feel an unsafe precedent has been set.

"And this," Kissinger continued, "is the important issue. The important matter is not a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba, though this is also important. The important issue is that this represents a pattern of communist intervention."

"In the nuclear age, peace is important--indeed, crucial--but peace cannot be confined to occasional agreements on this or that nuclear arms," he said.

Kissinger called U.S. policy of negotiating on arms while ignoring communist military incursions in the Third World "a mistaken strategy...very dangerous."

Kissinger said that he also considers negotiating with the Palestinians a mistake. "Palestinian inclusion in Middle East peace talks will only reward the radical forces. It creates an opportunity for radicals to create pressure. Once they are included they will want changes and it won't be done through talking--they want results."

Discussion on including the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO) was heightened four weeks ago when Andrew Young held secret talks with that group and, subsequently, resigned as United Nations ambassador. Since that time, Young has continued to rally support for the PLO's inclusion in the peace talks. The PLO is interested in Israeli withdrawal from the West Bank. Kissinger agreed that Israel needs "to make adjustments there."

We have suffered from the notion that we can win the radical countries and politicians over to our side by repeating their slogans or sending emissaries over to them," Kissinger observed.

Kissinger also discussed the not-so-subtle influence of the USSR over the Conference of Non-Aligned Nations, which met last week in Havana. The Calling the current Soviet military presence in Cuba an "unacceptable phenomenon," former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger discussed Cuba and other issues of international importance at a press conference conducted on the campus of Indiana University at South Bend Friday afternoon.

Kissinger criticized the Carter administration for "stopping strategic reconnaissance flights over Cuba," but added that he supports the administration in its negotiations with the Soviets. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance has been meeting with Soviet ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin for the past several days.

"Secretary Vance is a very professional diplomat, ... a man in whom I have great confidence, Kissinger replied when questioned about the Carter administration's negotiating tactics. He added that he could not make any final judgments on Administration tactics until some result is achieved.

"I support the Administration's demand that the Soviet combat presence in Cuba be ended," he added.

Kissinger also commented on the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty and chances for peace in the Mideast. Kissinger played a key role in each of these two issues while serving in the Nixon and Ford administrations.

He said he is "opposed to the inclusion of the PLO in mid-east peace negotiations," despite recent clamor from Third World nations who would like to see the PLO included.

Pro Soviet Amin reigns; Afghanistan in turmoil

NEW DELHI, Indian (AP)- President Nur Mohammed Tarami of Afghanistan resigned the presidency and leadership of the ruling party yesterday, Radio Afghanistan reported, as intensifying rebel warfare and political dissension pushed the country deeper into turmoil.

Tarami, citing poor health, resigned as president in favor of Prime Minister Hafizullah Amin. The 50-year-old Amin, considered a more hard-line communist than Taraki, had forced him into the background in recent months and emerged as the pro-Soviet regime's strongman.

Afghanistan has been weakened by an internal split in the ruling Khalq (People's) Party and an insurgency by right-wing Moslem tribesmen, who now control about half the country side.

Taraki, a 62-year-old former journalist who once worked as a translator for the U. S. Embassy in the Afghan capital of Kabul, asked to be excused from his positions "in view of my bad health and nervous weakness," according to the Pushtu language broadcast monitored here.

Amin's takeover as president leaves him as the unquestioned dominant figure in Afghanistan.

Taraki's resignation followed the dismissal Friday of the last two military officers in Amin's Cabinet. Diplomatic sources reported yesterday that the apparent Cabinet purge was followed immediately by shooting and loud explosions in the capital, but could not say whether there was a direct link to the political developments.

Taraki, although a Communist, was considered to be less [continued on page 8]

Paramedics deliver baby from accident victim

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - An infant girl, delivered from her lifeless mother by paramedics under radio directions from a physician, battled for her life in an Indianapolis hospital yesterday. The emergency Caesarian section delivered the full-term baby Saturday at the scene of a car-train, accident that killed the child's mother. The newborn girl was in critical condition at Community Hospital here, Lynn Bivens, a hospital spokeswoman said.

"We weren't trained to do anything like that," said John Linahan, one of the paramedics who performed the 13-minute operation in the back of an ambulance. "But sometimes you have to work so fast you don't have time to be scared or nervous."

U. S. Navy rescues 'boat people'

MANILA, Philippines (AP) - The U. S. Navy frigate Rathburne rescued 39 Vietnamese "boat people," most of them children, from a small and overcrowded fishing boat in the South China Sea, a Navy spokesman reported yesterday. The 7th Fleet spokesman at the Subic Naval Base north of here said 26 children and 13 adults were aboard the 24-foot boat. It was first spotted by a Navy patrol plane that guided the frigate to it Saturday, the spokesman said. The latest rescue brought to 691 the number of boat people plucked from the sea since President Carter on July 21 ordered 7th Fleet vessels to be on the lookout for them. All those rescued by Navy ships are automatically entitled to resettlement in the United States.

East Germans cross 'death strip border'

NAILA, West Germany (AP) - Eight East Germans, including four children, floated through the night skies over Germany and across the "death strip border to the West yesterday in a homemade hot-air balloon stitched together from bits of nylon and bedsheets. The group, made up of two families each with two children, escaped in a 12-mile, 20-minute flight that ended in this Bavarian town six miles from the border. Their leader, airplane mechanic Peter Strelzek, told reporters they had prepared for the trip for two months, since they failed in their first attempt July 4. Strelzek said they fled for political reasons, because "it was no longer possible for us to lie to our children and put up with the political conditions in East Germany."

Secret data becomes public

Californian publishes H-bomb plan

MADISON WIS. (AP) - A diagram and the complete text of a controversial letter that the government says contains secret information about the hydrogen bomb were published yesterday in a special edition of the Madison Press Connection.

The letter, written by Charles Hansen, a computer programmer from Mountain View, California, figured in a Saturday night ruling by a federal judge in San Francisco, who issued a temporary restraining order barring the student-run Daily Californian of Berkeley from publishing it.

As published in the Press Connection, Hansen's 18-page letter is about half technical information on what he says is how to build and trigger a hydrogen bomb and half social commentary on the need of the American people to have the information so they will understand the weapon's destructive power.

The letter also complains that several scientists have released secret data related to the bomb and have not been prosecuted, while free-lance writer Howard Norland, who wrote an as-yet-unpublished article on the bomb, and others working from those documents have been the target of Energy Department action.

U.S. District Judge Robert Schnacke ordered the Daily Californian and two of its editors not to publish or give anyone else material from the letter which the government classified earlier in the week as "secret restricted data" under the Atomic Energy Act of 1954.

No injunction was issued to the Press Connection, however.

Mark Sheehan, a Justice Department spokesman in Washington, said the department had no information on the publication and would have no immediate comment.

Jim Bishop, Energy Department spokesman, also declined comment.

IMS awards federal grant to ND Snite Museum

by Paul Mullaney

The Institute of Museum Services (IMS) last week awarded a $25,000 federal grant to the Notre Dame Snite Museum of Art, according to Third District Congressman John Brademas.

The Snite Museum was one of 403 museums selected from more than 1,700 applicants which submitted proposals to the IMS.

"As of right now, the grant helps us in a three-fold administrative manner," said Associate Professor Dean A. Porter, director of the Notre Dame art gallery. "First of all it allows us to engage a curator for the 'Art of the Americas,' which will be featured in the lower level.

"Secondly, it allows us to hire an assistant preparator, who will work under Greg Dunvey. Additionally, it will permit us to hire a part-time clerk-typist-- a position that the addition demands."

Construction on the Snite Museum began last fall, with plans calling for a $3.3 million building which will provide one of the largest exhibition areas on any midwestern campus. The new building is being erected adjacent to the present gallery in O'Shaughnessy Hall.

September 7, 1980 has been set as the tentative formal opening of the Snite Museum. Porter, however, is hopeful that his staff will move into the structure this coming February.

"We're very much on schedule," Porter said. "Changes have been very minimal and few. The building is going just beautifully, as is the relationship between the University, the architects, and the contractors. It has been everything we hoped it would be."

The main financing of the building came from a $2 million gift from the late Fred B. Snite of Chicago in 1976. The University has also received endowments for the new museum, including a 2250,000 gift from Walter Beardsley of Elkhart to endow a gallery of Twentieth Century art.

"But this is the most important grant we ever received," insisted Porter. "By adding onto our staff we increase the small situation to a more complex and complete one. Right now we are an art gallery -- but with this building, we'll have a first-rate museum."

"It should bring joy and respect to the University. Also, we'll have a lot of surprises for our visitors."

Containing more than 52,000 square feet, the Snite Museum of Art will include an 8,400 - square foot gallery for the Art of the Americas, and four galleries measuring 3,000 square feet.

The smaller galleries will include the University's collections of Ancient and Medieval art, Renaissance art through the 17th Century, art of the 18th and 19th Centuries, and 20th Century works.

Also included will be a museum library, a drawing, graphics and photography exhibition, storage and study area, and a space for the decorative arts. A 325-seat auditorium for the fine and performing arts will be suitable for art lectures, chamber music, poetry recital, and small theatrical productions

Students mark entrance into nursing profession

by Margie Brassil
Saint Mary's News Editor

Forty-three Saint Mary's nursing students were capped Saturday night in a ceremony signalling their entrance into the nursing field. The ceremony was held in the Church of Our Lady of Loretto and included the traditional capping and the lighting of the lamps within the mass.

Families and friends of the students participated in the mass, which was concelebrated by Fr. James Zatkan and Fr. Joseph Keena, and the Saint Mary's Women's Choir sang. Student nurses Catherine V. Shaughnessy and Mary D. Ryan gave readings and Mary E. Beckman read the "Student Nurse's Prayer."

The theme of the ceremony was centered around the dual ideas of recognition of the nurses' offering their skills and dedication to God, and the role each nurse plays in supporting each other.

Fr. Zatkan, in his homily, spoke of Saturday as also being the Feast of Our Lady of Sorrows. Zatkan, quoting the Sermon on the Mount, which was the Gospel reading, said, "Happy are those who mourn for they shall be comforted. Happier still are the nurses for they shall do the comforting."

Mary Martucci, chairman of the Nursing Department, spoke of the history of the capping ceremony at Saint Mary's and how each class has added a new dimension to the event.

As each student's name was announced she walked up to the altar and Martucci placed the cap on her head. After all the students received their caps, the lamps were lighted and the students recited the Nightingale Pledge. This pledges them to adhere to the ethics and standards of their profession.

The student nurses can now be assigned to hospitals in the area to begin their clinical work. The 43 girls who became student nurses are: Elizabeth K. Aerts, Mary Bridget Baran, Laura Barry, Carol Theresa Baugh, Mary Elizabeth Beckman, Shelia M. Braun, Deborah L. Braunlich, Patricia Ann Brinkman, Alicia Anne Bruns, Nadine B. Chapman, Patricia Jeanne Ciampa, Mary Elizabeth Culotta, Jennifer Ann Disabato, Lisa Anne Dudick, Anne Marie Elliott, Karen Marie Finkenbinder, Jean C. You're wasting your time reading this newspaper.

Not because it's not worth reading.

You're wasting your time because you could be reading it three to ten times faster than you are right now.

That's right — three to ten times faster. With better concentration, understanding, and recall.

The problem is, most of us haven't learned anything new about reading since we were 10 years old. So we're still stumbling along at a fraction of our real capacity. In fact, most people read so slowly that their brain actually gets bored and distracted between words (no wonder you have trouble concentrating when you read!)

The new Evelyn Wood RD2 reading program.

Over 20 years ago, Evelyn Wood's research with natural speed readers discovered reading techniques that could be learned and used by virtually anyone. Since that pioneering work, over a million people — from students to presidents — have put the Evelyn Wood method to work for them.

RD2 is Evelyn Wood's latest, updated reading improvement system — designed to be more effective and flexible than ever. With it, you should easily be able to cut your reading and study time by at least two thirds. That means if you're now studying 20 hours a week, you'll save roughly 400 hours — or almost 17 full 24 hour days — in this school year alone!

Spend an hour and check us out.

We know you may have trouble believing what you've just read. That's why our people are on campus now giving free 1 hour demonstrations of RD2. If you can spare an hour, we'll answer any questions you may have about RD2, and prove that you can unlearn your bad reading habits and start saving two thirds of your study time. We'll even demonstrate some new reading techniques designed to increase your speed immediately, with good comprehension.

This short demonstration could start you on your way to better grades, more free time, and a whole new outlook on studying.

It only takes an hour, and it's free. Don't miss it.

Attend a free 1-hour RD2 demonstration this week:

Firefighters battle California brush fires

(AP)-Firefighters from as far away as the East Coast were flown to California yesterday to aid weary crews battling a series of major brush fires in mountain areas of four Southern California counties.

Soot and other airborne particulates from the fire were, in areas close to the fire lines, adding to the severe smog problem already present in the Los Angeles air basin.

The fires scorched more than 30,000 acres and destroyed at least 25 homes.

Eighteen expensive homes in the fashionable Laurel Canyon area in the Hollywood Hills were reduced to "just shells" as fires erupted across Los Angeles, threatening more structures and stretching city fire crews to the breaking point, officials said.

The Hollywood Hills fire, described as "a major emergency," consumed 130 acres in 3 1/2 hours before nearly 200 fire fighters contains the 60-foot flames with fire retardant drops from two air tankers and four helicopters, said fire inspector Jim Wells. One unidentified fireman was injured.

Fire officials said the cause may have been children playing with illegal fireworks. Four youngsters were in custody last night, authorities said.

Homes burned in the Laurel Canyon area included those of blues musician John Mayall, who once released an album called "Blues from Laurel Canyon," and actress Mackenzie Phillips, who stars in the CBS television series, "One Day at a Time."

The homes at the dead-end of Grandview Drive in Laurel Canyon once offered a full vista of the Los Angeles Basin and on this wind swept day, provided a glimpse of Santa Catalina Island, 50 miles to the southwest.

But only fingers of chimneys and charred, crumbled walls remained of the burned-out homes.

"This whole part of the country is going up in smoke... We just can't afford another fire," said U.S. Forest Service spokesman Gene Knight.

"We're bringing teams in from Arizona and New Mexico, and we're bringing them in from the Idaho-Montana area. We're flying in military aircraft equipped with firefighting systems from all over the state."

Crews from Pennsylvania, Maryland and Indiana were being flown to the West Coast, a spokeswoman for the Maryland Forest Service said.

Knight said the shortage of firefighters as well as the hot, dry Santa Ana winds caused "an extremely critical situation" and warned that blazes were likely to flare up again and spread quickly.

While air quality officials said the fires weren't affecting the ozone levels measured as an index of air pollution, the smell of smoke permeated the air miles from fire lines. Soot settled through smog-choked air to cover cars and homes in nearby areas.

Officials said most of the fires were burning at levels above the air inversion blanket holding smog in the Los Angeles air basin. The heavier particulate matter, however, does fall into the valleys.

An air inversion is an atmospheric condition in which cool air is trapped by a blanket of warm air, preventing normal circulation of the escape of pollutants.

All burning permits and remote-area camping permits were cancelled in all four of Southern California's national forests, and all industrial operations involving welding, blasting or the use of heavy equipment were banned.

The state department of forestry has offered a $500 reward for the arrest and conviction of the person who started a fire that raged across 9,000 acres and destroyed an estimated $2 million in property in northern San Diego County Saturday.

Hofman encourages facilities

Freshman Year plans activities

by Ann Hesburgh

Freshman Year first offered special activities to freshmen in 1972, when Notre Dame went co-educational. Since then the program has grown and now offers activities that take place during both the first and second semesters, according to Freshman Year Dean Dr. Emil Hofman.

Hofman said his experience as dean has shown that "we need something different now that Notre Dame has gone co-educational." He would like to see additional entertainment facilities developed, such as an on campus restaurant or theater, so that "the students can see a movie in a better environment other than the Engineering Auditorium."

Hofman also said that he understands that such facilities may have low priority due to the need for additional housing and teaching facilities. "But even though there is a need for additional entertainment facilities, once given them, it becomes a matter for the students to generate the activities."

"We try to schedule things so that something is going on each weekend during the first semester when there isn't a home football game or series of tests such as mid-semester," said Hofman. "Second semester activities help to alleviate the winter blahs."

First semester activities have so far included freshman orientation, a shopping tour of South Bend, two courtyard cook-outs, a picnic at Warren Dunes. A freshmen parents' breakfast the morning of the South Carolina game and a trip to Chicago are also planned. Second semester activities include two Bendix snow parties, a trip to Chicago, and two "date nights."

Freshman Year is also responsible for the organization of the FAC (Freshman Advisory Council). This Council is composed of freshmen from Motors, the largest private industrial corporation, was interlocked through officers and directors with 63 other companies with combined assets exceeding $65 billion including the largest telephone and railroad companies.

Admittedly the documentary was one-sided, but the side presented is one too little seen, or if seen, too easily dismissed. Should profit be "the base line" of corporate decision making? If not, by whom and how should they be regulated? Does investment distort the internal economy of Third World countries? If American labor has to compete with developing nations at what level will wages reach equilibrium? To what extent does American foreign policy revolve around creating stable investment climates? How do we respond to the issues? The film causes us to ask these questions of ourselves and demand answers from those responsible.

Justified force: another name for violence

Dear Editor:

In the article "Can Pro-lifers justify Force?" (Sept. 12, 1979), Mr. Flint posed this question: "Is the person who justifies abortion as the unjustified taking of innocent human life permitted or perhaps even obligated to use force if by so doing he can decrease the number of abortions performed?"

One first must ask what is meant by the word "force." There are many kinds of Force--political, religious and economic to name a few--but none of these corresponds to the description given in the article. In fact, the "force" suggested is violence. The question should be restated as "Can Pro-Lifers Justify 'violence'?" for the Pro-life movement does employ all of the aforementioned forces except violence.

The article appeals to us several times as "Christians" but has the apparent incongruity to ask whether, in some cases, violence can't be justified by its ends. Perhaps I've been misled, but I've always been taught that in Christian theology the end never justifies the means. How can we possibly justify the destruction of one evil if we merely replace it with another?

The minute we take the law into our own hands and justify our actions by "our own good consciences," we have become that which we had sought to destroy: for if we, by our own good consciences, can justify doing violence to another (even if indirectly as in the bombing of an empty abortion clinic), then by what criterion can we condemn the violence a woman does to another by her own good conscience.

Further, many Pro-lifers consider abortion a symptom of a larger problem: the moral and spiritual decay of western society. Trying to rectify such a situation by violence is not only hypocritical, but roughly equivalent to putting out a fire with kerosene.

Robert Bolt confronts the dilemma of fighting one evil with another in his A Man for All Seasons, in the following discussion between Thomas More and Roper: Roper--So now you'd give the Devil benefit of Law!

More--Yes. What would you do? Cut a great road through the law to get after the Devil? Roper--I'd cut down every law in England to do that! More--[Roused and excited] Oh? And when the last law was down, and the Devil turned round on you--where would you hide, Roper, the laws all being flat?

Joseph Willke

'Terrorism' is more than force

Dear Editor:

Re: "Can Pro-Lifers Justify Force?" (Sept. 12), I would like to contest Mr. Flint on two key parts of his article: the use of force by the pro-life movement; and the effectiveness of the pro-life movement up to now.

First, I believe Mr. Flint has mistakenly used the euphemistic term "force" when he actually means "violence." Legal channels, especially lobbies, have long provided undeniable means of exerting great "force" in government. The kind of "force" that Mr. Flint speaks of is the commission of violent acts which has come to be known colloquially as "terrorism."

A minor problem with this form of persuasion, however, is that it is soon followed by counter-violence, retaliation. After a series of bombings, burning and other violent acts, can any one honestly believe that members of either faction would go to such great pains to make sure "that no one is hurt?" And when people are hurt and eventually killed, does any one think that we'll have moved any closer to a solution than the IRA has in Northern Ireland?

Arguing that pro-lifers are not risking anything, Mr. Flint seems to almost advocate violence as a means of proving dedication to a cause. The fact is, non-violence is much more demanding since there are no quick rewards, except of course, "the added boon of finding a group of people which one can safely and publicly vilify and annoy without feeling guilt." (Does Mr. Flint truly believe that this is such a central motivating force in the fight for integrity and sanctity of life itself?)

In this type of volatile issue, the temptation is to resort to violence. Mr. Flint seems to be under the impression that to use violence is the more courageous and difficult path. Fortunately, the Pro Life movement has painstakingly avoided this temptation and instead opted for the more difficult Christian method of non-violent persuasion and the lasting results it produces. It is slow, however, and to many impatient people it may be seen ineffective.

In truth, though, during the almost seven years since the Supreme Court decision on abortion, the Pro-Life movement has, by non-violent means, obtained majority support in the House of Representatives for a Human Life Amendment to the Constitution and is increasing the intensity of its "force" in influencing Congressional and state elections. Considering the influence of politicians in government, one could say that there has been slightly more than "little gained" from the supposedly "little ventured."

With one point, however, I must agree--millions of lives have been lost during those seven years and that is cause for grief and shame in all those who respect human life. If anyone feels this pain more, wouldn't it be those people who truly believe that this killing is immoral? Agreed, try to close down as many abortion clinics as possible, but now with molotov cocktails. All human life is sacred, regardless of age--that's what the Pro-Life movement is all about.

Administration to blame for telecast

James Roemer
Dean of Students
The University of Notre Dame
Notre Dame, Indiana 46556

Dear Dean:

Some problems concerning your interpretation of some problems concerning the WSND radio program "Radio Free Notre Dame" have recently come to my attention. I would like to suggest to the administration that there is something inherently wrong with the University and/or its policies to cause students' broadcasts to degenerate into "offensive discussions of vulgar topics."

Possibly the administration is too restrictive in its policies, so that the students cannot learn a proper level of moderation or tolerance.

I hereby suggest, therefore, that you come up with an acceptable plan of action before 2:00 p.m. tomorrow. After all, I don't want to rush you.

Sincerely,
Dennis D. McClure
Dean of Administration
The Mudshark Republic

'Sex' broadcast reflects listener's interest

Dear Editor:

We regret to hear of the unfavorable reaction to the "Sex at Notre Dame" broadcast on WSND, and its subsequent demise. It is our contention that the subject matter of the program, albeit perverted and depraved, is a necessary outlet for the frustrated members of this Victorian community.

Sexual activity of any kind at this University is rare, timid, and just plain lousy. Being that the show is the highest rated radio broadcast on campus is evidence enough that there is a very real problem of expression, especially in sexual terms, at Notre Dame. This is made obvious by the banality of the phone-in conversations. The show was malicious only in that it brought to the forefront thoughts, feelings, and desires that we all experience in the time-honored Notre Dame education.

Listeners had full knowledge of the show's title and the implications that such a subject could cause. Since discussion of sex seems to be a healthy tension reliever for a good part of the community, the quality of the broadcast only reflected the interests of the people listening.

Yet, it appears that anyone who was offended by this particular show must have been interested enough to keep their radiostuned in long enough to be sufficiently offended, especially considering the fact that the program was only intended for Notre Dame students about Notre Dame life. Perhaps in the future, those at Notre Dame offended by the 'reality of sex' will find something better to do with their time.

ND should sponsor Chicago trip to greet Pope

Dear Editor:

With only three weeks left until Pope John Paul II arrives in Chicago, I still haven't heard of any University-organized trip to greet the Holy Father.

It is important to remember why Pope John Paul should be greeted enthusiastically--in the United States and anywhere else. It is not only his personal warmth and serenity which attracts one to Pope John Paul. The Pope is the true vicar of Christ on earth, the shepherd of all souls. His responsibility for the Church is a great burden, a joyful burden, which calls for all the affection and support that the faithful can show.

We should be moved to greet the Pope enthusiastically in Chicago to show that we love him and that we pray for his intentions for the Church. There will certainly be many individuals driving and some taking public transportation to Chicago on October 5, but the University should encourage students by providing buses and information about where to stay overnight, where the Pope will be, etc.

In Case You Haven't Heard

Fr. Bill Toohey

In your cursory scan of the news these past days, you may have missed items of momentous significance.

1. The Lone Ranger needs our help. In a recent court ruling on the rights to the Lone Ranger character, actor Clayton Moore was ordered not to wear the fictional hero's mask in public appearances. The Wrather Corp., which brought the legal action and is filming a multimillion-dollar Lone Ranger movie, said that Moore is too old to look like the youthful hero and that his public appearances harm the company's efforts to promote the movie.

Well, I've got news for them. They picked on the wrong Kemo Sabe. Good citizens everywhere are up in arms. From Maine to California, fans are volunteering for an "economic posse" to ride to the rescue of Clayton Moore. They are calling for a boycott of the new Lone Ranger movie so long as Moore is ordered by the courts not to identify himself as "the daring and resourceful masked rider of the plains."

"We're mad as hell," says Joe Martelle, leader of the petition drive.

"I've been up 18 hours a day taking phone calls from people wanting to help out. We've even got a couple of Christian groups from Tulsa and Nashville who've contacted us."

If you missed signing up at the Save-The-Lone-Ranger booth at Activities Night, you may exercise your God-given, patriotic duty by contacting your local Ombudsperson.

2. Speaking of patriotism, two of our nation's finest protectors were in the news lately. Super-Christian, Anita Bryant, manifesting her finest self-righteousness, has joined the ranks of our country's direct-mail hucksters, launching a campaign to finance an escalated battle against the millions of "perverts" she sees everywhere seducing little children. Anita informs us that our contributions to her cause are "tax-deductible gifts of love." And, in case you missed it, Phyllis Schlafly finally clarified for the whole world why she is such a harsh critic of women's lib: "It supports affirmative action to get women in jobs in place of men, and I think that is an attack on the family."

3. Timothy Leary, who came to campus last year and conned Student Government out of a fat check for two hours of incoherent rambling, is in the news again. He still has legal problems, like being busted the other day for alleged possession of cocaine. But the big news is his resurfacing as a stand-up comic. Tim is packing them in with a $5 cover and two-drink minimum at a Los Angeles watering-hole. In his act he takes on "Jane Fonda, Jack Nicholson, Woody Allen, irate blacks, the 'Ayatollah Ralph Nader,' Mexican-Americans without a sense of humor and all people who expect to be rewarded for their handicaps." Now's the time to invite him back to the campus; he expects to be working Las Vegas in six months, and then we'll never get him at his present bargain rates.

4. A book called Campus Shock is making some waves currently. Written by Lansing Lamont, it is a reporter's collection of horrors contained in interviews conducted in the Ivy League schools, plus Michigan, Stanford, Berkeley and Chicago. According to Time, it speaks of college life as a round of rape and robbery and rising racial distrust, or crowding and cheating and grade grubbing and sexual anxiety, of pulverizing noise from stereos and fear of future unemployment. The quotes and statistics are often devastating. In one year 4,500 books were stolen from the Berkeley library. When caught, college thieves and cheaters tended to say, "I didn't do anything that everyone else isn't doing." Faculties were not much help either. Many, Lamont reveals, objected to taking a moral stand for fear of "sounding like scolds" to their students. As a University of Chicago professor confided, "We lack the language to teach right and wrong." No further comment needed.

5. Finally, just when you may have been thinking there was no way to top the super-psych moment of the green football jerseys at the start of the Southern Cal game of two years ago, word has reached us that negotiations are underway to arrange for Pope John Paul II to helicopter into the center of the stadium just before kickoff of the Georgia Tech game. As the luck of the Irish would have it, that is precisely the day the Holy Father will be traveling this way, enroute from Chicago to Washington, D.C. Stay glued to the Observer for final details.

St. Francis' Gift of Love

Stacey Hennessey

If you are a returning student of either Notre Dame or Saint Mary's, you may recall seeing or visiting a sale at Christmas last year sponsored by the St. Francis Shoppes on the first floor of the Library and at LaFortune Student Center. But even if you don't fall into that category, you shouldn't miss the local St. Francis Shoppe.

The St. Francis shoppes are an ecumenical non-profit marketing program based in the United States and created to help third world artisans earn some much-needed revenue by providing adequate sales outlets for their high quality handicrafts.

One such shop has been in operation in South Bend for two years, and has recently moved to the Notre Dame campus. It was begun by Fr. Ken Malley who, over the past several years has spent many months in Mexico working with the missions reaching out to impoverished communities there.

It was from this experience that the idea of establishing an outlet for the handicrafts of the Third World originated: Fr. Ken began to bring back various articles and sell them in the South Bend community. People responded favorably and the project grew from there.

Once located in a one-room mobile compartment behind Hank's Friendly Super Market on U.S. 31, the St. Francis Shoppe is now located in a three-room mobile home parked in a lot just off the road between Notre Dame and Saint Mary's. It's a short walk from either campus.

Each room of the shop is filled with the folk art of thirty Third World countries, including Mexico, Pakistan, Nigeria, Israel, Tanzania, Kenya, and some regions of the United States. Many of the items have a special and personal story behind them. Each article from Bangladesh that is sold, for example, saves 16 people from starvation.

The St. Francis Shoppes encourage the production of handicrafts that reflect the skills and life of the artisan, or the artistic tradition of the area or country.

As a rule, the St. Francis Shoppes try to deal with the craftsmen or reliable liaison persons in order to avoid possible exploitation by middlemen. In some cases, especially in Mexico, the Shoppes can negotiate directly with the artisan or his cooperative. There is substantial evidence from overseas indicating that the payment to the producers does, in fact, represent a significant earning.

Though the St. Francis Shoppes have a relatively small impact on the worldwide cycle of poverty, the sale of these handicrafts has become an important means of insuring a more dignified-hopeful survival for the artists involved.

Do visit the shop, if not to buy, then to browse. It's open six days a week, Monday through Saturday from 10-6 and there's always someone there willing to share a story or two with you. For those with a special interest in the Third World, Fr. Ken is looking for volunteers to work either in the Shoppe or at the Christmas sale at La Fortune and in the Library this year. Furthermore, if you know of any poor or Third World communities which produce salable handicrafts that might interest Fr. Ken, please contact him at the St. Francis Shoppe.

St. Francis Shoppe really is an amazing place. Before leaving, I picked up a copy of the "Eight Steps of Charity," the last of which is particularly applicable:

Lastly, the eighth, and the most meritorious of all, is to anticipate charity, by preventing poverty; namely, to assist the reduced fellow-man, either by a considerable gift, or a loan of money, or by teaching him a trade, or by putting him in the way of business, so that he may earn an honest livelihood; and not be forced to the dreadful alternatives of holding out his hand for charity. To this Scripture alludes when it says: And if thy brother be waxen poor, and fallen in decay with thee, then thou shalt relieve him; yea, though he be a stranger or a sojourner; that he may live with thee. This is the highest step and the summit of charity's golden ladder."

The Company's Men

Paul Lauer and Tim Beaty

"They own the land. They own the plant. They own the machinery, and they own the jobs. All we have is our labor which they may buy if the price is right."

In a small auditorium in a small town in Massachusetts, workers from the local factory and townspeople meet to decide their fate. Ingersoll-Rand, a multinational corporation recently acquired their plant and though it has always turned a profit, has issued them an ultimatum: the town is to build them a new factory and the workers to accept a pay cut or the factory will be moved to South Carolina. "Half a loaf is better than none, but is a quarter or an eighth?" There are limits, aren't there?

In Brazil, a three year old girl is chronically undernourished. Even if she survives, her brain will be permanently damaged. The diet of her family is primarily black beans, but local agricultural lands have been acquired by foreign multinationals who have switched production from the native foodstuff to more profitable cash crops for export.

Controlling Interst, The World of Multinational Corporations, the first in a series of films on Social Concerns sponsored by the Student Government and the Center for Experiential Learning, raises very basic questions about the effects of multinational corporations on the world's people.

One ought not to find it surprising that a corporation has the power to impoverish a region through transforming its agriculture or to bring about the collapse of a small town if we consider the enormous economic and political power in their hands. Almost a third of the top 90 nations and corporations measured by annual product are corporations. The 500 largest industrial corporations in the U. S. control 65% of sales, 75% of profits, and 75% of industrial employment. Corporate economic activity has been concentrating in the hands of a very few people. General conference consisted of 92 nations which have no formal alliance, but which seem to identify in ideology with Russian and Cuban causes.

"I am profoundly concerned with the conduct of the 92 nations at the conference," Kissinger said. "The whole idea of the only moderate nation - Egypt - being put on probation solely because they are interested in achieving peace in the Middle East..." Kissinger trailed off.

Just that afternoon, Kissinger said, he had spoken with senior newsmen covering the conference. He reported that the newsmen were "shocked at the uninterrupted assault on American motives and values," made by the "non-aligned" nations during the Cuban conference.

"I must say that it is strange for a group of non-aligned nations to be so totally directed. Just by accident we (the U.S.) must do something right," he said. "We must strengthen the moderate elements in the world and penalize those elements who assault the U.S. in every international forum. This kind of activity cannot go on."

"Our national masochism must not take the form of assuming that, when criticized, we must have done something wrong," he concluded.

"Alone among the nations of the world we can say that the kind of future we are going to have depends essentially on ourselves," Kissinger said, emphasizing that the time is not too late to act.

Much of what Kissinger had to say on the SALT treaty was a reiteration of a position he expressed to the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee in late August. At that time, Kissinger said that the U.S. should link ratification of the treaty to Soviet conduct around the world.

Kissinger's lecture represented the first of the Eldon Lundquist series at IUSB. The lecture series is named after a former state senator and president of IUSB.

... Soviet presence

"It seems to me that the minimum condition that should be met for inclusion in peace talks should be that one party should recognize the existence of the other party with whom it is supposed to be negotiating peace," he stated.

The PLO has traditionally sworn not to recognize the state of Israel.

"Until the PLO recognizes Israel, I see no point in including them in peace negotiations," he added.

Kissinger was also careful to make the distinction between so-called "moderate" Arab states and "radical" Arab states. "Any progress that is made in this area should be made... with the moderate Arabs. We should work with those Arab states who have befriended us, and not those states who continually castigate us."

"The issue is with whom can we best negotiate," he said. After these negotiations are completed, "a framework in which other states may participate in negotiations can be drawn up."

Regarding SALT Kissinger

said he does not believe that "strategic arms limitation can be separated from a nation's conduct internationally."

"It makes no sense to talk about the limitation of arms without putting restraints on international conduct. It seems to me that the conduct of the Soviet Union, with respect to Cuba is unacceptable to the United States." He cited over 50,000 Cuban troops abroad and the erection of a Soviet naval base in Cuba as examples of Soviet conduct abroad.

When questioned about the CIA, Kissinger noted this intelligence organization has been "weakened" in recent years.

"The result of this has been unfortunate for the U.S. in so far as it has led to a predisposition by the Administration to play it safe in matters of intelligence."

He added that the Carter

Administration has also been hindered in the field of intelligence "by its own preconceptions."

As for his political future, Kissinger made no comments on rumours that he plans to run for the U.S. Senate. He said he intends to support the Republican presidential nominee in 1980.

radical than many of the people who brought him into power in April 1978 in a coup that toppled President Mohammed Daoud. Radio Kabul said the Afghan Revolutionary Council met in Kabul yesterday and considered Taraki's resignation for four hours, finally relieving him of all of his posts and duties.

The diplomatic sources in Kabul, who asked not to be identified, said troops in the mile high capital were quickly mobilized when gunfire began Friday.

It was the first report of widespread gunfire in the capital since Aug. 5, when loyal troops, backed by tanks and helicopter gunships, put down a mutiny by the crack 444 Commando Regiment at Kabul's Bala Hissar fort.

EDUCATION
STOP

Your education doesn't stop with a baccalaureate degree. It begins there. Once you enter the world of work, you will gain valuable experience and really discover what it's all about to use what you learned in college.

Take the Air Force for example. As a commissioned officer you'll be handed executive responsibility on your very first job. You'll manage people and complex systems. You'll be expected to perform well, and you'll be paid well, too. It's worth working for.

You can get there through the Air Force ROTC program. In fact, we have a scholarship plan that will net you $100 a month tax free and pay for all tuition, books and lab fees. And that will free you to concentrate on your studies so you can get well prepared for where you're headed.

Check it out. Find out how you can get into a "graduate" program like the Air Force. It's a great way to serve your country, and possibly find your formal education extended at Air Force expense as well.

his offense for failing to put a point on the board in the second half.

"We didn't make any adjustments," he said. "Our offense is weak. The defense has got to have some help. In the third quarter we just had poor field position, and Notre Dame just got juiced.

"We never felt dominant. We never felt comfortable offensively. I'm very disappointed because I thought we were going to win."

Unfortunately for Schembechler, the Irish defense thought likewise.

would rather we win the game than have them lose it."

After Crable tackled tailback Stan Edwards for a five-yard loss at the ND 25-yard line, Michigan called time out to set up the possible winning field goal. The Irish set up to try and block it.

"We sent in everyone except one," Crable said, "and tried to open a hole over the center. He stayed down and I just went up on his back. The ball hit me in the left hip."

Crable's block of Virgil's attempted 42-yarder gave the Irish the ball, and Tim Koegel fell on the ball to run out the final second.

"It (the blocked kick) was a fitting climax," Devine said. "I

IRISH NOTES: With his 118-yard performance, Vagas Ferguson passed Neil Worden to move into fourth place on Notre Dame's all-time rushing list with 2153 yards. Ferguson, who was named by ABC as Notre Dame's most valuable player, needs 529 yards to tie Jerome Heavens for first place. Ferguson now has seven 100-yard games in regular season play...Chuck Male's four field goals set a single game record for Notre Dame. Male held the old record of three with several other players. Dave Reeve holds the single-season record of 12.

various dorms on campus, who work to provide additional activities for the freshmen.
"The types of activities planned depends upon the character of the Council," said Hofman. The FAC activities will be announced later.
Freshman Year offers activities for two reasons, said Hofman. "Primarily, these activities provide freshmen with the opportunity to meet other freshmen in addition to those already met in dorms and classes." Second, these parties provide freshmen with a non-drinking social option. "I have nothing against drinking," said Hofman, "as long as it is not abused or forced upon people."

Bruins shock Purdue

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The weather was awful, but Purdue Coach Jim Young and Mark Herrmann, the Boilermakers' outstanding quarterback, didn't use the conditions as an alibi.

The Boilermakers, ranked fifth in the country, were a solid favorite over UCLA at the Coliseum Saturday night, but the Bruins were clearly the better team in a 31-21 shocker.

The temperature at kickoff time was 93 degrees and the thick smog was reported to be the worst here in 25 years.

"The weather didn't bother us and we didn't take UCLA lightly," said Herrmann, considered one of the best backs in the country. "We'd seen the film against Houston and knew they were a good team."

"UCLA played a very good game and we turned the ball over a lot. I wasn't pleased at all with my performance and I didn't throw the ball well at all."

By the time the Boilermakers had run their ninth play from scrimmage before a stunned crowd of 44,174, UCLA had a 21-0 lead. Purdue made it interesting, to be sure, but the Bruins know all about comebacks and they weren't about to be the ones to come back as many as they did.

"The weather didn't bother UCLA," said Young. "We didn't play well the first quarter, for some reason, but we got beat pretty good. We were outplayed and out-hit."

"As far as our high rating going into the game, we were definitely overrated based on tonight's performance."

The Bruins scored the first three times they had possession, on a 13-yard pass from Rick Bashore to Michael Brant, a 23-yard scoring throw from Bashore to Willie Curran and a 1-yard quarterback sneak by Bashore. The Bruins led 14-0 at the end of the first half. The game was over, said UCLA coach Terry Donahue. "We regrouped in the second half. Both teams fought hard and I'm proud that we didn't quit after our second quarter let-down. Our team grew up some tonight."

Herrmann, who was intercepted twice in his first four passing attempts, got it together in the second quarter, engineering a couple of touchdown drives as the Boilermakers narrowed the gap to 21-14 at the intermission.

Irish open with another thriller

by Mark Perry
Sports Editor

Notre Dame Head Coach Dan Devine called Saturday's win over Michigan "the greatest thrill of my life." But for the Irish coach, games like the 1979 season opener are starting to become a way of life.

The Irish, who finished last season with thrillers against Southern California and Houston, came through with another historical effort, as their defense and the magic leg of Chuck Male produced a 12-10 win over the Wolverines before 105,111 fans at Michigan Stadium in Ann Arbor.

"I'm very proud of our football team," Devine said. "This is a team win, and they weren't to be denied. It was an emotional game, the type of game that you can remember the rest of your life."

The game was especially memorable for Male, who was awarded the game ball for his four field goals (40, 44, 22, and 39 yards) and his booming kickoffs which kept Michigan in the hole for much of the game.

"The first kick is the most important," Male commented, "because it gets you back in the groove. The rest were easy. You just have to think about what you do in practice."

Male's first two three-pointers, both set up by Michigan fumbles, were the only highlights for Notre Dame in the first half, as the Wolverine offense rolled to 212 total yards against a young Irish defense and went into the locker room with a 10-6 lead.

The second half was a totally different story, as ND limited Michigan to 96 total yards, set up the winning score, and blocked a field goal attempt by Michigan with six seconds left in the game.

"Our defense rose to the occasion," Devine noted. "We just asked our players to give us a little more and dig down deep, and we asked Our Lady to help us."

Aided by the return of Scott Zetek and Mark Czaja, the defense stifled the Michigan blocking that was so effective in the first half.

After the defense stopped the Wolverines on four plays to start the second half, Rusty Lisch and company put together their longest drive of the game, taking the ball down to the Michigan five-yard line.

Halfback Vagas Ferguson, who was the Irish workhorse with 118 yards on 35 carries, led the way with six straight carries to put the ball on the Michigan nine. Four plays later Male connected on his third field goal.

After an exchange of interceptions left Michigan at their own two-yard line, linebacker Bob Crable stopped Wolverine runners three straight times inside the five. Bryan Virgil, who had connected on a 30-yard field goal in the first half for Michigan, punted the ball straight up, and his 24-yarder put the Irish in field goal range.

Three more carries by Ferguson set up Male's 39-yard winner with 3:46 left in the third quarter.

Michigan was stifled for most of the fourth quarter, but second-string quarterback John Wangler put the Wolverines within scoring range with three straight pass completions with less than two minutes left in the game.

Returns from injury

Zetek helps ND defensive growth

by Paul Mullaney
Assistant sports Editor

Scott Zetek had no idea prior to Saturday's game at Michigan Stadium whether or not he would see action against the sixth-ranked Wolverines.

"I didn't know if I was going to play," he smiled following Notre Dame's 12-10 stifling of Michigan. "They just told me to be ready. I could have played ten downs, could've played all of them, or could've played none."

Fortunately for the Irish of coach Dan Devine, Zetek was ready. Knee surgery in the spring forced Zetek to miss all of Notre Dame's pre-season fall contact drills. But it didn't take long for the Elk Grove Village, Ill., native to warm up for the season.

"Zetek and (Mark) Czaja got their group work in the first half," Devine said. "That was their pre-season. It took them a little while to get the hang of things."

But once they got the hang of things, and after the entire Irish defense appeared to be in mid-season form, Notre Dame's point-prevention squad was determined to turn the Maize and Blue into black and blue.

After giving up 212 total yards and a 10-6 lead to Michigan, in the first two stanzas, the Irish defense stiffened in the final 30 minutes, holding the Wolverines scoreless on 94 yards. In fact, the Wolverines were held without any second-half first downs until the fourth quarter.

"I was concerned with their quarterback option," Joe Yonto, Notre Dame defensive coordinator, said. "In the first half our back side wasn't closing. You've got to cut 'em off all over."

Devine added that it seemed to be just a matter of time until the Irish defense became accustomed to defending the option offense of quarterback B. J. Dickey.

"When we went in at half-time," he said, "we felt really good about the score. Even though we were behind, we knew that Michigan had played a game and that we were without our original starting guards (Ted Horansky and Tim Huffman).

"Our defense rose to the occasion. As far as I'm concerned, it was a fitting climax having the defense actually come up with the final big play (blocked field goal)."

"We changed up our defense a little," Devine added. "We put on a little more pressure in the second half, did a little more blitzing, and contained much better. We didn't really make that many changes. We just played better."

While many Irish defenders could be singled out for their performances, Zetek's showing was the most inspiring for Notre Dame fans. Although officially credited with only four tackles (one sack for a nine-yard loss), Zetek was in on many more key defensive plays.

"I'm playing with a big brace on my knee," said Zetek, who has been moved from end to tackle in order to eliminate significant lateral movement. "But you don't think about it when you're playing a team like Michigan."

"Hey, Notre Dame doesn't like being an underdog," he continued. "It takes the pressure off of you and puts more pressure on them, but pressure doesn't bother Notre Dame."

Pressure didn't bother sophomore defensive stalwarts Steve Cichy and Bob Crable. Cichy, strong safety, led the squad with 13 tackles and broke up a key Michigan pass attempt with only two minutes remaining.

Crable, in addition to blocking UM's last-ditch field goal attempt, took part in 12 tackles, including three for negative yardage. Among his key hits was a blitzing stop of Michigan's Stan Edwards for a five-yard loss one play prior to the blocked field goal attempt.

Despite Notre Dame's superior defensive effort, Michigan coach Bo Schembechler faulted

Munson caused plane crash

NEW YORK (AP)--A federal investigator has determined that the jet plane crash in which New York Yankees catcher Thurman Munson was killed resulted from several mistakes made by Munson while he was flying the aircraft.

Edward J. McAvoy of the National Transportation Safety Board told the New York Times of his findings, which he will include in a report to the board "in about two weeks." The newspaper reported in a front page story in its Monday editions.

McAvoy said the probable cause of the accident was "improper use of throttles and flight controls" by Munson, whose $1.4 million Cessna Citation crashed and burned as he attempted to land the jet at Akron-Canton Airport on Aug. 2.

McAvoy told the Times he made it clear in his report that Munson was at fault and that he was surprised the All-Star ballplayer had received a jet pilot license from the Federal Aviation Administration in just 14 months. He noted that Munson had flown just 41 hours in the cockpit of his jet when it crashed and only six of those hours were as pilot in command.

JV team falls to Wisconsin

Notre Dame's junior varsity football team lost its first game of the 1979 season yesterday afternoon at Cartier Field, falling 10-6 to Wisconsin. Two Harry Oliver field goals provided the only scoring for the Irish. Phil Carter, a freshman running back from Tacoma, Wash., was the offensive star with 130 yards on 24 carries.
