A new directive

Roemer clarifies keg policy

By Mary Fran Callaban
Senior Staff Reporter

The Security Department's action last Friday of confiscating two students' kegs on Green Field and overlooking the discovery of a non-student keg on White Field has led Dean of Students James Roemer to issue a statement clarifying University position on this matter.

In a letter released yesterday to The Observer and hall rectors, Roemer laid ground rules for tailgaters on football weekends:

When a small group meets in the Green Field with their parents and hometown friends, we have not requested Security to confiscate the alcohol. However, if these tailgaters are advertised in any form, by ad, poster, news story, or otherwise, then staff personnel will bring these situations to the attention of this office and Security.

He said his statement applies solely to home football Saturdays.

Director of Security Glenn Terry yesterday acknowledged that two kegs had been confiscated last Friday. He added that the discovery of a third keg was overlooked because the people involved "were not necessarily people presently affiliated with the University."

Terry then justified the seizure of the students' kegs, however, when he commented, "My assistant made a quick decision to let them (non-students) have their keg due to the extenuating circumstances."

He provided an explanation of the "circumstances."

"They were not aware of the regulation against kegs. They were just entertaining and trying to show guests a good time. We told them to get the keg off of Notre Dame property quickly," Terry said.

"Security should not have done that," Roemer commented after being informed of Friday's action. "As far as I'm concerned, there is no difference between students and guests," he added.

Cavanaugh Hall residents were playing softball Friday afternoon when they had their keg confiscated.

"Security told us Saturday was the exception for kegs, and

Campus organizations sponsor mock election

In cooperation with student political organizations, The Observer will sponsor a campus-wide mock presidential election on October 2. All undergraduate and graduate students are eligible to vote at both Notre Dame and Saint Mary's.

Balloting will take place at central locations on both campuses, at sites to be announced at a future date. Students must present their IDs to vote, and may only vote at their respective schools.

The ballot, in addition to the presidential race, will also include the political contests in Indiana. Choices on the ballot will appear, in alphabetical order, as follows:

President: John Anderson-Patrick Lucey (I) vs. Jimmy Carter-Walter Mondale (D) vs. Ronald Reagan-George Bush (R).

Governor: John Hillenbrand (D) vs. Robert Orr (R).

US Senate: Birch Bayh (D) vs. Danforth Quayle (R).

US House of Representatives: John Brademas (D) vs. John Hiler (R).

Also on the ballot will be a question inquiring whether or not the voter is registered in this state. Students are not required to cast votes in the Indiana elections.

Balloting places will be open from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., manned by poll watchers from Ombudsmen, College Republicans, Young Democrats, and The Observer.

Results will be published in the October 3 edition of The Observer.

Pugilistic escalation

Iran, Iraq claim victories

(AP) — Iran claimed it destroyed 11 Iraqi fighters and four gunboats, and Iraq launched surprise air attacks on at least seven Iranian air installations, including Tehran's international airport, as a border dispute between the two nations flared yesterday.

Iraq said it shot down six Iranian jet fighters, and President Saddam Hussein issued a statement that Iranian threats to ships in the Strait of Hormuz, meeting point of the Persian and Oman gulfs, constituted a declaration of war.

Hussein's statement came after Iran declared its coast on the Persian Gulf a war zone and warned ships against carrying supplies to Iraqi ports. British officials said a British merchantman was fired on, with no casualties reported, and other British vessels were believed trapped at the Iraqi port of Basra.

Tehran Radio reported tanks battling in Khuzestan province, north of the disputed Shatt al-Arab waterway, where it claimed Iranian artillery fire destroyed Iraqi oil installations and a gas refinery at al-Faw.

Months of border skirmishes exploded into large-scale fighting last week when Iraq cancelled a 1975 treaty that ran 60 miles of the the Iran/Iraq border down the middle of Shatt al-Arab, which provides both nations access to the Persian Gulf. Iraq now claims sovereignty over the eastern, or Iranian shore of the passage.

Top Iranian leaders, including Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr claimed Iraq was "incited" by the United States and acting as an American "mercenary."

Iraq said its warplanes struck 11 Iranian airstrips with a loss of two Soviet-made MiG jets. A top Iranian military official said "several" air bases were attacked, and a revolutionary guard commander said six MiGs hit seven installations.

Although reports conflicted, both sides said air bases in Tehran, Ahvaz, Hamadan, Tabriz and Boushehr were attacked. Iranian officials added Dezful and Tolumbeh Sabz to the list, and an Iraqi spokesman added Shiraz and Isfahan.

Iran's Foreign Minister said Iraqi attacks on "airports and residential areas" killed "innocent people." Thick smoke rose over the airport and the thunder of the midday attack shook the capital.

Student activities awards money to organizations

The newly-formed Student Activity Fee Subcommittee yesterday awarded $28,113 in student activity fees to 54 campus organizations, Subcommittee Chairman James McDonnell announced.

The allocations represent close to a 500 percent increase over last year's initial outlay of $5000. McDonnell cited the higher student activity fees — up $8, to $25 — that are automatically included in the tuition charge, as the reason for the increase.

Last year, he said, all the funding was handled through the Student Union. This system forced clubs to compete for funds with student government groups. Now, McDonnell explained, $5 out of each $25 is set aside for University clubs and is distributed through the subcommittee.

McDonnell listed the criteria used in determining the allocations as: the club's membership, the club's influence on campus and the group's effort to attempt to raise funds on its own.

As a rule, he said, religious and political organizations were denied funding. ND-SMC Right to Life received $500 exclusively for the purpose of attracting "worthwhile, educational speakers," he added.

This year, for the first time, the individual classes were awarded $750 each. Before,

A nuclear warhead was apparently loaded onto a flatbed truck inside two canisters labeled "Do Not Drop" and removed from a devastated Titan II missile silo site yesterday to Little Rock Air Force Base. As usual, the Air Force refused even to acknowledge that a nuclear warhead had been involved in the fuel explosion at the silo Friday. Two large canisters — one blue, the other silver and green and each labeled "Do Not Drop" — were anchored by chains to the bed of a flatbed tractor-trailer in the convoy of eight military vehicles. Two helicopters accompanied the procession. State police and local law enforcement officers also followed the convoy on the 90-minute trip south on U.S. 65 and Interstate 40 to the base near Jacksonville, about 12 miles northeast of Little Rock. It has been a long-standing Air Force policy to neither confirm nor deny the existence of nuclear warheads at the silos. The Air Force also refused to confirm numerous reports that the warhead was blown hundreds of feet from the launch hole when the silo blew up about 3 a.m. Friday. — AP

The nine-digit zip code should be delayed, according to Rep. Dave Evans of Indiana, who says he will ask his Government Operations Committee to seek a delay in the imposition of the code by the U.S. Postal Service. Evans cited huge capital costs for the Postal Service and unestimated compliance costs for private industry. He said imposition of the proposal should be delayed at least until an appropriate cost-benefit analysis can be performed. The Postal Service first announced its intention to expand the current five-digit zip code to nine digits in September, 1978. It would become effective early next year. Postal officials said the elongated zip would enable it to sort mail to the individual carrier route and even to a specific floor of a large business. — AP

Sen. Birch Bayh, chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, has agreed to investigate allegations of a possible "major intelligence" failure by U.S. officials, sources said Monday night. The probe was requested on Sept. 10 by Senators Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., and Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., two members of the committee who voiced concern over reports that U.S. errors may have cost the life of a Soviet official who worked as a spy for the United States in Moscow. Bayh and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., the ranking Republican, agreed to the probe in a written response to the request by Wallop and Moynihan, the sources said. The sources, who asked not to be identified, said the letter agreeing to undertake the investigation was classified shortly after it was received by Wallop and Moynihan. — AP

Calling for prompt release of the American hostages, Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie offered respect but no apology to Iran yesterday saying its own security and Persian Gulf stability depend on a settlement. "We are prepared to do our part in resolving fairly the issues between us," Muskie said in a speech to the U.N. General Assembly. He said Iran could end its isolation "from those nations that live in accordance with international law" and have world sanctions ended by freeing the 52 Americans held for the past 10 1/2 months. While promising not to intervene in Iranian affairs, he did not recant past U.S. support for the late pro-U.S. Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. And yet, Muskie emphasized that the Carter administration recognizes the reality of the Iranian revolution that deposed the ruler. — AP

A Portage man was transferred to the Porter County Jail at Valparaiso yesterday after being charged with reckless homicide, resisting arrest and possession of a stolen vehicle in the death of a LaPorte County deputy sheriff, authorities said. LaPorte County Court Judge Paul Baldoni set bond at $13,500 at a probable cause hearing for Sherman V. Kaechle, 38. He was taken from LaPorte to the Porter County Jail while arrangements for the bond were being made, a sheriff's spokesman said. Kaechle was charged in the death of Deputy Neil Thompson, 30, New Carlisle, who died shortly after being involved in a head-on crash Sunday with an ambulance stolen from Nappanee, state police said.

A recession-induced slump in the demand for fuel has combined with the prospect of a mild Indiana winter to yield an energy forecast that "is the most positive outlook in nearly a decade," according to a state report issued yesterday. William J. Watt, executive assistant to Gov. Otis R. Bowen, and Clarence Broadus, director of the Energy Group in the state Department of Commerce, concluded in their report that the fuel picture in Indiana for the next six months is favorable. The report began with the weather outlook, since fuel consumption rises and falls according to the winter temperatures. "Although the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration will not publish its long-range winter outlook until late November, other weather stations are predicting much fairer conditions than in recent years, and so we expect a really great winter." — AP

Inside Tuesday

Rumor mill holds no water

Notre Dame has always been, and will probably always be, the rumor capital of the world — especially when it pertains to the University's athletic department.

And now, Notre Dame's athletic department is once again the center of controversy. The most recent of rumors, however, has erupted across the street at Saint Mary's.

Everyone who claims to have the inside story at Saint Mary's — from security officers to section leaders — insists that they know it to be a fact that the Notre Dame athletic department is planning to gradually phase Saint Mary's students out of the student football ticket picture.

As the story goes, Saint Mary's students will be required to enter a lottery to secure season football tickets to Notre Dame games next year.

And, as the story continues, this is just an initial step in the eventual termination of the entire ticket supply to Saint Mary's students. The story says that the Notre Dame athletic department badly wants to make as many tickets as possible available to alumni, for much more revenue can be generated in this manner.

This story, however, is nothing more than that. While most of those "sources" we spoke with insisted that "I know it's a fact because she told me it was true," none of them even offered the slightest support to the rumor. Enough said.

Notre Dame's ticket manager for athletics, Michael Busick, helped to refute any rumors regarding the Saint Mary's student ticket situation.

"I don't know where the rumor started," said Busick. "It certainly didn't come from this office. As far as Saint Mary's students being phased out of receiving student tickets, it is totally untrue."

"In fact, there will be no lottery. That thought has never even surfaced."

Busick offered that the rumor may have started because the junior and senior classes at Notre Dame were granted their request to receive blocks of tickets for the Notre Dame-Michigan State game at East Lansing on October 4. There has been some question, Busick said, pertaining to whether or not Saint Mary's juniors and seniors could enter the lotteries at Notre Dame.

"Maybe that's where these rumors started — with a word here and there about lotteries and Saint Mary's students' role in them," said Busick. "The junior and senior classes requested blocks for this game at the end of last school year, and however they chose to lottery the tickets was up to them."

Paul Mullaney
Editor-in-Chief

"Maybe that is or isn't how the rumors started. But wherever they started, it's not true."

Busick indicated that circumstances required his office to lottery basketball tickets to Saint Mary's students four years ago, but no other talk of any Saint Mary's ticket lotteries has come from his office since that time.

"There are no plans on phasing Saint Mary's out of tickets in football, basketball, or hockey," said Busick.

Rest easy, girls.

A few additional thoughts on this, the second day of autumn, A.D. 1980:

● Speaking of rumors, many are flying around regarding the naming of the two new women's dormitories. While many names have been suggested, it appears that the official announcement will be made in mid-October, when University administrators meet with Frank Pasquerilla, the man who donated $7 million for the construction of the two new structures.

This journalist would like to refute any rumors that one of the new structures will be named after Harry Oliver, the Notre Dame place-kicker who single-footedly beat Michigan on Saturday.

● On today's front page are details regarding the mock student election, which The Observer will sponsor on October 2 at Notre Dame and Saint Mary's.

The most interesting election return may just be how many students take to the polls.

A real troublemaker

Iran drives wedge into OPEC

By Robert McCartney: Associated Press
Writer: VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Iran, spearheading an alliance of oil cartel militants, drove a wedge in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' facade of unity by leading the hardliners in blocking agreement on a long-term oil-pricing plan.

Iran, Algeria and Libya, the 13-nation cartel's chief proponents of higher prices, got together last week to torpedo a plan that would have increased oil prices by small amounts every three months by linking them to world inflation rates, currency fluctuations and economic growth rates.

The militants demanded steeper price increases as well as cuts in OPEC production to dry up the world glut that is making it hard for them to sell their high-priced oil.

Ministers representing the 10 nations who support the long-range plan said they might adopt it by themselves, despite the hawks' objections, when it comes up for consideration again in early November, just before the summit of OPEC heads of state.

The current meeting of OPEC oil, finance and foreign ministers in Vienna was extended by one day today so that the delegates could discuss proposals to increase OPEC aid to developing nations hard hit by rising oil prices.

But ministers said there would be no further discussion of the long-term pricing plan.

"We agreed to disagree," a Venezuelan delegate said.

OPEC delegates and oil industry observers said political tensions between Iran and other OPEC members surfaced repeatedly during the Vienna meeting.

The conference opened an hour late when Iran, which has been fighting an increasingly heated border war with Iraq, threatened to overturn the agenda if an Iraqi delegate was allowed to chair the meeting. An Algerian was named to preside instead and the Iraqi was appointed alternate chairman.

then they said we were going to get the keg and tap back," Bob Murphy, a Cavanaugh resident, explained.

"When we went down there later, they said we couldn't have it," he added. Murphy said the keg and tap cost $95.

"We send the kegs back to the distributors and get money for them," Terry explained. He added that the revenue obtained is channelled back into University funds.

Bernie Segatto, Morrissey

Hall president, said that the keg confiscated from his hall's happy hour was also not returned.

"They (Security) said kegs are illegal on Green Field, but Saturday home football games are the exception," Segatto explained. "As of right now we're assuming the loss, but we want to talk to Dean Roemer," he commented.

Roemer explained the rationale behind his latest statement by saying, "Alumni, visitors and families are not subject to University jurisdiction."

In the text of his letter, however, he emphasized:

Alcohol cannot be sold. Alcohol cannot be served, sold or provided to people under the age of 21.

Violation of the keg policy carries a $50 fine.

Since Roemer did not issue a statement until yesterday, the question arises why Security cracked down on kegs Friday but did not follow suit on Saturday. "We were looking the other way because we're just too darn busy," Terry concluded.

Directive questions maturity by Anthony Walton

Here we go again. Time for another of the "when is the university going to treat us like grown-ups" debates. What brings it on this time is the latest university directive, that all hotel rooms at this year's Senior Formal be "single sex." I would rather stay out of a protracted discussion about the specific decision and rule itself, because it is a situation in which both sides have justification for their positions, and the university being the university, is going to have the final say in any discussion. At least for now, but I will deal with that later. But at this point, there is not much point in screaming about parietals, kegs, coed dorms, off-campus crime, social space, or single sex hotel rooms.

What is needed right now is a major reassessment on the part of the student body as to how much of a say that students are going to have in determining their university experience.

This is why there is no need (at this moment) to rail against specific issues, because the administration does not listen:

they don't have to. Students, through apathy and disorganization, have allowed the university administration to become the final arbiter in all situations, without holding the administrators the least bit accountable. This is where the old "There's no reason for it, it's just our policy" joke comes in. Why is the university so high-handed and off-the-cuff in its relationship with its students? Because we have let them be.

As an example, consider this latest directive concerning the Senior Formal. As I said before, the university position is understandable, perhaps even commendable in view of the university's role in student life. But it is a bit offensive to me to think that I will be (or have to be) told where to sleep and with whom at age 21. There is no need to bring personal sexual opinions into this, as they are subjective and thus irrelevant. What bothers me is that the university decides to hand down its rule, threatens not to help fund the formal, and it goes through without so much as a whimper from the student body. Perhaps I am misinterpreting the situation and N.D. students really don't mind the university declaring that the Palmer House or whatever hotel the formal is held at will be the Notre Dame Chicago Extension campus for the week end.

How far does university jurisdiction reach, and how far should it? I am by no means a proponent of the parietals situation, but I can understand the university reserving the right to legislate such a code. If students are really and truthfully opposed to policies like parietals, it is up to them to organize and try to achieve some sort of reform through the proper channels. But I am now inclined to question whether or not the channels have been closed, by either the university or student apathy. The question is this: whose university is it? I have never seen or heard an official university opinion on this subject. I would say the university belongs to the students. But it seems that through a combination of "in loco parentis" and student disinterest that the university in reality belongs to a group of well-intentioned Holy Cross priests who feel that most of what the students do (and ultimately think) must be decided for them. If this is indeed the case, then students have cause for alarm, because we are missing out on a crucial part of the college experience. Don't get me wrong, I am in no way condemning the administration, because that institution exists to help determine what is right for the student body. I just think students ought to get a little more involved in determining what is best for them, rather than accepting what is handed down. College is supposedly one of the major shaping factors in what kind of adults we are. The administration exists to provide guidance, but not absolute authority. In cases such as the Senior Formal room issue, I would think that if the administration has not transmitted the values it wishes its students to hold, then rules like these constitute closing the barn door after the horses are gone. There comes a time when you have to decide something for yourself, and there comes a time when you have to stand up for yourself. There is no need to be dramatic and accuse the administration of treating us like 12 year olds; in many cases they do. But until we decide to act like 21 year olds and stand up for desired changes, we probably deserve it.

Ailey Troupe Performs Tonight

Ellen Gorman

Tonight one of America's most exciting young dance companies, the Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble, will perform in O'Laughlin Auditorium, at Saint Mary's. The evening of dance will begin at 8 p.m.

This superb group of young dancers has developed under the sponsorship of the famed Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater and many of the dancers in the ensemble will go on to join the first company. The group is composed mainly of students from the Ailey school and come from varied backgrounds and locations. The members are "total dancers" — ones who can perform ballet, and jazz and modern dancing.

The Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble made its debut on a television special, "Ailey Celebrates 25th Anniversary." Since then the Repertory Ensemble has been drawing critical and audience acclaim for performances throughout the United States and for appearances during the regular Ailey sessions in New York. Dance Magazine hails the company as "exciting," and goes on to declare, "It whips the audience into an enthusiastic frenzy the way the first company does."

The first Ailey school began in Brooklyn in 1969 and was intended as a resource for the company. It was never Ailey's intention to create a carbon copy of the senior company. Rather, he wanted to establish an ensemble which would be a creative place for young dancers to work, as well as a fine performing group.

Through the years, the school has "fed" the primary company, and is now the major source for the Repertory Ensemble. The school moved to Manhattan five years ago and currently has approximately 2800 students. Alvin Ailey now wants to expand the center to make it a total dance environment — a place where design, disco dancing, etc., are added to the standard curriculum of ballet, modern, and jazz.

The dance center is a special school for dance in that it places enormous emphasis on scholarships. Each spring several hundred young dancers audition for 100 scholarships, and those who win are expected to take ten or twelve classes in modern, jazz, and ballet a week.

The company is under the artistic direction of Sylvia Waters, a Julliard graduate who studied with Martha Graham. Ms. Waters danced for four years with the Bejart Company before joining the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater in 1968. A lead dancer with the company, she retired from dancing in 1975 to devote her time and energies to the formation and development of the Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble.

The ensemble has a unique and exciting repertoire of ballets by new young choreographers as well as works by such famed choreographers as Donald McKayle, Talley Beatty, Dianne McIntyre and Ailey himself. The result is a company which leaves audiences begging for more.

Admission is $4 for the general public, and $2 for students.

College To Career Days, '80

You've come a long way, baby. A woman today can be a sportswriter, chemist, midwife...the list goes on. To help women reach decisions about their careers, St. Mary's is offering "College to Career days, '80." Speakers from the listed careers, and others, will present information on their jobs to interested students.

"College to Career Days" is jointly sponsored by the Counseling and Career Development Center, the Student Government and the Office of Alumnae Relations at Saint Mary's College. The program offers students a chance to speak in small groups with Saint Mary's College alumnae and professional women from the South Bend community representing many different career options. The presentors will discuss the ways in which their college education relates to their occupation, how the demands of their job affect their leisure time activities and their home life, as well as the pros and cons of their chosen occupation.

Paula Lawton Bevington gave the keynote address on Sunday night in the Carrol Hall Auditorium. Ms.

Bevington, who graduated from Saint Mary's College in 1959 and received her law degree from the Yale School of Law, addressed the students with a speech entitled "Women, Work, and the Liberal Arts."

The highlight of this year's program is a panel discussion on Tuesday evening entitled "The Many Roles of Today's Women." The panel will meet at 7 p.m. in Stapleton Lounge. Sister Karol Jackowski will represent women who choose to enter a religious community, Dean Kathleen Rice will represent the single professional woman, Dr. Mary Elizabeth DePauw will represent women who have a career marriage and raise children, and Mrs. Nancy Foldesi will represent choice to be a professional homemaker and mother.

The College to Career Days '80 program will take place in Stapleton Lounge from September 22 through September 24. Each presentation will last approximately one hour and are scheduled in accordance with the class schedule. Schedules are posted throughout the campus. Everyone is welcome to attend.

AI: Freeing 'Prisoners of Conscience'

Sandy Peterson & Jim Gates

Situated on the southern fringes of Buenos Aires lies an empty lot. Once the sight of the infamous "Club Atletico," the now forgotten city block serves as a symbolic memorial to over 15,000 Argentinians who have disappeared since 1976.

The following is an eyewitness account of the conditions and practices within this government-operated concentration camp:

Club Atletico operated as a sort of prisoner depot where the only law was terror. It was an underground, unventilated place, without any natural light, and was very damp and very hot. The cells, called "tubos" (pipes), were very small. Discipline was very strict and we were shackled, which prevented us from moving more than 40 centimeters and hurt our ankles. We had tight cloth blindfolds over our eyes. At first, we suffered from infections, since the cloth was dirty. The infection made our eyes swell, but after a time we became immune and the swelling did not recur. We could neither talk nor move and were always sitting or lying down; when two prisoners were together in one cell, they could not talk. If there was just one noise, all the section was punished.

There were two sections. The guards wore soft footwear and opened the doors suddenly to see if we were standing up or not, wearing the blindfolds — for we were blindfolded even in the cells. If they saw us move our hands, even if it was not to touch the blindfold, they beat us until we lost consciousness.

Daniel Dinella (Prisoner)

In late December of 1977, "Club Atletico" was closed and later demolished. However, the systematic disruption of human rights did not cease in Argentina due to the existence of an archipelago of such concentration camps. "Club Atletico" is only a small sample, not the exception.

Most of the prisoners in this system are illegally abducted by government hit squads. Once kidnapped the prisoner is "tamed" via some method of brutal torture. Most of the 15,000 are known as "desaparecidos," the disappeared ones. The majority of the prisoners are eventually "transferred" to a point of final destination. The term "transferred" is merely a prison euphemism for execution.

There are many methods of "transferring" a prisoner. For example, a method favored by the Air Force is to heavily sedate a group of transferees who are loaded onto a cargo plane and dumped out over the Atlantic Ocean.

Amnesty International has led a world-wide campaign against the brutal practices of the Argentinian military dictatorship. This campaign is still in progress and will not be given up until all illegally held citizens of that nation are released.

Amnesty International, as its name implies, is an international organization working for the amnesty of human beings detained worldwide for their beliefs, race, color, or religion, provided they neither used nor advocated violence. Such persons are termed "prisoners of conscience."

Amnesty International's most effective tool is that of international public opinion and the publicity it creates. Even the most repressive governments are sensitive and responsive to this public pressure.

First, Amnesty investigates the case of a prisoner of conscience. When it is determined that he or she is being detained in violation of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UN, 1948), A.I. "adopts" the prisoner. A complete information packet on this POC is then passed on to one or several "Adoption Groups" which exist worldwide. These groups begin a major letter-writing/publicity campaign on behalf of their adopted prisoner. They contact government officials, appropriate embassies, prison officials; if possible they write to the prisoner or his or her family. Often the adoption groups will participate in "special country campaigns" to alert the international public to the alarming human rights situation of a particular country.

Since its inception in 1961, Amnesty International has secured the release of over 13,000 prisoners of conscience. That's a lot; but not enough. Hundreds of thousands more remain in prisons, concentration camps, psychiatric hospitals.

Amnesty's ongoing battle against tyranny and repression of human rights is being supported by AIUSA Adoption Group 43 here at Notre Dame. Since its formation in 1977, five of our adopted prisoners have been released — in the Philippines, Rhodesia (Zimbabwe), Argentina, Cameroun, and just recently, in Pakistan. We have continued to support our Rhodesian prisoner financially, so that he may receive a high school education and provide for his family.

Working with Amnesty International is enlightening and gratifying, often frustrating, but always important. If you are interested in working with AI or finding out more about it, come to the organizational meeting on Thursday, September 25, 1980 at 4:15 p.m. in La Fortune or contact Sandy Peterson at 283-7863 or Jim Gates at 272-7051.

The Florida Gators, the defending national champions, have been banned from the poll for the remainder of the season. Florida beat California in their opener, and destroyed Georgia Tech this week. In the course of those two games, the Gators scored 86 points, warranting Bottom Ten exile.

The long awaited season openers were played in the Izod...ahh, Ivy League. The boys from the East have dominated the Bottom Ten for years, and last year's league loss leaders, Penn and Columbia, have returned to the poll this week.

So, here are the rankings for this week:

- Vanderbilt (0-2)
 clinging to the top spot after a 24-14 loss to Ol' Ms. State
 2) California (0-2)
 surrendered to Army 26-19
 3) Penn (0-1)
 the Quakers displayed non-violence against Dartmouth
 4) Air Force (0-3)
 the junior Birdmen were shot down once again

- 5) Georgia Tech (0-2)

 6) Columbia (0-1)

 7) Northwestern (0-3)

 8) Rice (0-2)

 9) Purdue (1-2)

 10) 1980 Woodward Stakes (0-1)

Spectacular Bid walked away with a victory in a one horse field. Pre-race instructions to jockey Willie Shoemaker? "Hold on."

Also receiving votes: Arkansas Titan Missiles (0-1) the U.S. government does another bang-up job. Stanford (2-1) lost to Boston College. Pittsburgh (2-0) almost lost to Boston College.

Quote of the week:

Arizona defensive tackle Mike Robinson, on his sophomore year at Oklahoma State, before he transferred: "We won seven games, knowed we was goin' to a bowl, and didn't nobody go to class no more."

NCAA Director of Enforcement told me yesterday, "so we've increased to this degree in nine years. For us it's almost a luxury to have this many people."

I questioned some of the publicly obvious violations, like North Carolina State basketball player Clyde Austin's two cars that his girl friend is paying for on her bank teller's salary, or the Pac 10 (or 5) academic fiasco currently under NCAA investigation.

"The general public never really crosses the threshold on what really is wrong," he responded. "To read that a person has two automobiles isn't enough. The inclination is to jump to the conclusion that something's wrong; that obviously NCAA rules have been violated; and why doesn't someone ban them from the athletic program."

...NCAA

"But when you get involved, it certainly is more difficult than that in actually determining whether or not that's the case."

Say what?

"There are a number of impressions gained by reading articles that just can't stand up in a hearing room," he continued. "We have to have all the facts in order to prosecute, and if those facts aren't supported, we can't go any further."

Any committee of athletic directors can sit down and make the game rules for collegiate athletics or sponsor a championship tournament. The duties of the NCAA go beyond that. But if the honchos at Mission Control in Shawnee Mission, Kansas, don't get their act together pretty soon and clean up the real dirty dealers instead of picking on the good guys, collegiate athletics are going to be right back where they were 75 years ago.

some excellent court coverage, spelled the end for what seemed like an Irish comeback. Coash's quickness astounded even her partner, senior Maureen "Blonde Mo" O'Brien, who asked in disbelief afterwards "How did you get to those?"

The end came for this traditional rivalry shortly after 8 p.m., some five hours after it began.

Army tickets ready

Student tickets for the October 18 Army football game may be picked up beginning tomorrow at the second floor ticket windows in the ACC according to the following schedule: seniors tomorrow, juniors and graduate students on Thursday, sophomores on Friday and freshmen on Monday, September 29. Those who cannot make their scheduled pickup date may do so on Tuesday, September 30.

Students may pick up as many as four tickets each, as long as they have one classmate's I.D. card per ticket. Students who have not yet purchased tickets for the Army game may still do so. A limited number of tickets remain available for students only.

The ticket windows will be open from 8:00 a.m. through 5:00 p.m. on each of the pick-up dates listed above.

COSMIC COALESCENCE

Where does science fiction end and reality begin? It's all in the mind's eye. Be it the creative imagination used to produce Star Wars, The Black Hole, and The Empire Strikes Back, or the more scientific approach of hypothesis testing and experimentation, the distant galaxies of science fiction coalesce into reality with the advanced technology now being developed at a company called TRW.

It was the Defense and Space Systems Group of TRW who made possible the Viking Lander biological experiment which looked for life on Mars and the High Energy Astronomical Observatory which looks for quasars, pulsars and black holes in deep space. Professionals at TRW-DSSG are now involved in such impressive technologies as high energy lasers, communications systems, plus other future projects still considered science fiction.

A company called TRW will be on campus...

'Thumbs Down'

NCAA, Get your act together

Many, many young men were suffering crippling injuries and even death in college football games as formations like the flying wedge and the V-formation were taking their toll. The casualty rate was so high and the concern so widespread, that the president summoned college officials to the White House and told them to do something about it.

Almost sounds impossible, doesn't it? But unfortunately, this was the case in 1905 when President Theodore Roosevelt initiated a loose-knit, 38-member group which gradually expanded its authority into what we know today as the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA).

The principals on which the organization began were admirable ones. The NCAA was to serve as the governing body for most collegiate athletics, with its main concerns being directed towards its member schools and the student athletes.

That was 75 years ago.

Today, the NCAA gets the "Thumbs Down," for becoming so bogged down in bureaucratic red tape and organizational inefficiency, characteristic of another governing body, the big one in Washington, D.C.

Notre Dame football fans can easily remember the recent fiasco regarding the televising of Irish football contests on WNDU-TV. The underlying principle on which the NCAA based its decision not to allow the games on the air, was that since roughly 40 cable television companies within 100 miles or so of South Bend were picking up WNDU for their subscribers, other NCAA-member schools were being hurt at the box office.

Hogwash.

Do you expect me to believe that Joe Joe the Dog-Face Boy is going to attend a game at St. Joseph's College just because Notre Dame is not on the tube?

That particular decision also lacked consistency. Did you happen to notice how it was just the local stations that were affected and not the "Big Momma," ABC. The dollar can be heard singing in the distance.

The mess was finally cleared up after the folks at Channel 16 secured a letter from each of the cable outlets, promising that their subscribers would not receive the game telecast. That way, only those in the immediate WNDU viewing audience could watch.

Yet the NCAA's logic can be even more far-fetched. Remember the spring of 1979 when that marvelous governing body barred Notre Dame's varsity basketball players from participating in the campus-wide Bookstore Basketball tournament. Extra practice, they said, which would give Digger Phelps' men an unfair advantage over their regular season rivals.

Wait, there's more.

Does the name Marc Kelly ring a bell? He's the walk-on Notre Dame basketball player who filled a minor role in the movie "Fast Break," for which he received about $650. Now Marc will be the first to tell you that he poses no potential threat to UCLA, Indiana, DePaul or Maryland. Nonetheless, the NCAA told Kelly that if he did not return the money, he would lose his amateur status and thus, be barred from NCAA basketball competition.

Marc, as you may remember, returned the money.

I guess that means Burt Reynolds is a pro football player.

Meanwhile, the NCAA is failing miserably to perform the vital functions that it must, if collegiate athletics are going to survive in our somewhat corrupt environment. Things like recruiting violations and the fixing of academic transcripts are becoming common-place on many college campuses. And what is the NCAA doing about it?

How much can it do with an enforcement department made up of 17 people?

That's right, 17 people. The more astounding fact is that only eight of them are full-time investigators! Yep, eight people to keep track of the violations at over 800 member institutions.

"We had two people in 1971," David Berst,

Coash stars, but unbeaten Irish dump Belles, 6-3

By Mark Hannuksela

Patsy Coash put on a show last night at Saint Mary's Angela Athletic Facility. Unfortunately for her Belle teammates, she was one of the few bright spots in an otherwise dismal 6-3 loss to Notre Dame in women's tennis action yesterday.

Coash, playing in both the number-one singles and doubles positions, failed to lose a single game, and one wouldn't need a calculator totally up the total number of points she lost. The sophomore native of Kalamazoo, Mich., was in danger only once, that coming during the doubles competition.

Notre Dame junior Tina Stephan was serving, and along with partner Linda Hoyer led 3-1 in a game they needed to even the second set at one-all. But a missed put-away and a double fault, sandwiched around a point in which Coash displayed

On the gridiron this year, Dan Devine [above] and his troops have opened many eyes. But could complacency become a problem between now and the November 15 showdown at Alabama. See Frank LaGrotta's column [right].

Complacency a problem?

OK, first question:

Everyone who thought the football team would be 2-0 at this point, stand up and yell, "I did!"

Liar.

But have no fear, because you were most certainly not alone in your skeptical pre-season appraisal of the 1980 Fighting Irish. 2-0?!!

No doubt the smart money would have laughed uproariously at such a suggestion right up until kickoff on opening day. But, then again, quite a few gamblers spend a lot of their time in bread lines, don't they?

In any case, here stand the Irish, undefeated, with two of the season's most challenging opponents buried beneath the grass of Notre Dame Stadium.

Which brings me to my next question:

Where do they go from here?

I guess being undefeated after two tough games is a lot like getting a date with the best looking person in your class. At first you feel great —

But then what do you do?

Fortunately, Dan Devine is not without an answer to that question. (The one about the football team, that is.)

"Why, we get ready to play Michigan State," he said — which is pretty much what you would expect him, or any coach in his position, to say.

"I think the players and coaches deserve a little time to savor this one, but on Monday the only thing we'll be thinking about is Michigan State."

"The worst thing that can happen to a football team is to start living on past laurels. We certainly have a right to be proud of what we've accomplished, but we're not going to beat Michigan State or anyone else by showing them our newspaper clippings."

Wait a minute, Dan; we're not talking about complacency here, are we?

"I don't think complacency will be a problem with this team," he smiled when asked that question. "All we have to do is keep looking at our schedule. That should keep us humble."

How true. Nevertheless, it is a fact of football that teams do not get as motivated to play schools like Michigan State and Miami as they do Alabama or U.S.C.

And therein, I think, lies the immediate task facing the Irish. There is no good reason why they cannot fly down to Birmingham on November 14 with this same goose-egg in the loss column. However, in order to do that, the real opponent they must guard against is complacency.

"A team that thinks it has arrived usually ends up on the bottom," pointed out Pittsburgh Steeler head coach, Chuck Noll, in a recent New York Times Magazine feature. Words from a man who knows perhaps more than anyone should about winning and losing.

"Any team is capable of defeating any other team," Noll cautioned. "Upsets happen all the time."

Ok, last question: Anyone who thinks the Irish will finish this season, 11-0, stand up and yell "I do!"

Well? We're waiting. . .
