Reagan cuts back urban spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Big city mayors said President Reagan told them yesterday that his drive to prune federal spending means sharp cuts in urban aid and major changes in a program that provides money for cities hard hit by recession.

"These people are serious about cutting and we have to be serious about reducing our expectations from government and accepting and absorbing our share of the cuts," said Indianapolis Mayor William H. Hudnut III, president of the National League of Cities.

Mayor Edward Koch of New York said Reagan promised, however, that "those who are truly in need will not be asked to suffer, but all others hopefully will suffer equally."

Hudnut and others said they were alarmed by plans for changes in the urban development action grant program begun by the Carter administration to help revitalize distressed urban areas.

Reagan also met with black congressmen who are worried that his budget cuts will hurt the poor.

"Black people are disproportionately represented in the ranks of those hardest hit by inflation," said Rep. Walter Fauntroy, D-D.C., chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus. "We told the president that we are gravely concerned that policies devised to reign in inflation do not disproportionately burden the poor, the elderly and moderate income people."

Such a change "would be a devastating effect on us," said Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles. Hudnut, who like Reagan is a Republican, said a block-grant system would not work and would gut the program.

Thirteen mayors met over lunch with Reagan and his economic advisers, as well as Samuel Pierce, secretary of housing and urban development.

Reagan will make a televised speech tomorrow to spell out a general view of the nation's economic problems and his proposed solutions. He plans to submit a package of tax cuts and spending reductions to Congress on Feb. 18.

The president also will visit Capitol Hill today to talk with members of Congress. White House Press Secretary James S. Brady called the session "the resurrection of the practice of having office hours on the hill."

ND prof reflects on Committee

By MIKE O'BRIEN
Staff Reporter

Reflecting on the recently concluded Jerusalem Committee meeting held at Notre Dame, government Prof. Alan Dowty expressed optimism concerning an eventual solution to Middle East problems and described last week's meeting as a contributing mechanism to Arab-Israeli peace.

Dowty indicated that his optimism is based on continuing trends of "mutual acceptance and compromise" in the area. He called these trends "more positive in perspective" than in past years.

The professor called the Jerusalem Committee's Notre Dame Statement important because it highlighted the positive aspects of "a working city" and identified many intellectual leaders with the framework of continued Israeli sovereignty over Jerusalem. Dowty added that this framework is basically the "only viable solution" to the city's problems.

The Committee also received praise from Dowty for giving publicity to the everyday problem of the uniquely international city. He called Jerusalem a successful "laboratory for Arab-Jewish cooperation."

Dowty characterized Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kollek as born to be the city's leader. He said that the mayor is a talented administrator and mediator who enjoys the widespread support of Jews and Arabs alike.

However, Dowty cautioned that the political issues of Jerusalem cannot be solved outside of an overall Arab-Israeli peace settlement.

The prime issue in any overall settlement is, according to Dowty, the establishment of "some form of political self-determination for Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza."

Dowty stressed that much more negotiation is necessary to resolve this issue, which is further complicated by Israeli security interests, the wishes of the inhabitants and of Jordan, which is tied both economically and geographically to the Palestinian people.

Dowty said he believed the chief impasse in current negotiations to be the lack of a community-supported Palestinian leadership which is willing to accept co-existence with Israel. The Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) has publicly committed itself to the destruction of the Jewish state.

U.S. industrialist predicts South African revolution

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Industrialist Harry Oppenheimer, chairman of the giant Anglo American Corp., has warned of possible revolution in South Africa in five years unless blacks get major concessions.

Whites must "adapt or die"

Oppenheimer's remarks, delivered in the 72-year-old industrialist's typical low-key style at a luncheon with foreign journalists on Monday, were in line with a long-held political philosophy he terms "radical conservatism."

But with a national election scheduled for April 29, Oppenheimer's warning was considered the clearest so far to Prime Minister P.W. Botha that the new five-year mandate he sees could be the most important in South African history.

As chairman of Anglo American, Oppenheimer's remarks carry some weight.

The South African-based multinational corporation produces some 40 percent of the country's gold, about a third of its coal and a like amount of its uranium.

Oppenheimer told the journalists that Botha and previous National party governments, following the official policy of apartheid or racial segregation, have squandered too much time in trying to reach an accommodation between South Africa's 4.5 million whites and 20 million blacks.

He said that during his two years as prime minister, Botha had raised the hopes of blacks with promises of a new deal, at the same time telling whites they must "adapt or die."

Most South African blacks view the upcoming election as irrelevant because they don't have the right to vote. They tend to see Botha's reforms as window-dressing for the outside world and say they won't be satisfied until the entire apartheid system is dismantled.

Oppenheimer said time is running out and unless "substantive changes" are made by the mid-1980s, South Africa could face violent revolution.

"We've got to see whether this rhetoric will be turned into action," Oppenheimer said.

Oppenheimer has long been an advocate of peaceful reform of South Africa's racial segregation system for sound economic reasons.

South Africa is currently riding the crest of an unprecedented economic boom led by such companies as Anglo American. Total gold production for the country as a whole was worth about $13.5 billion in 1980.

In building up long-term international markets for its strategic minerals and industrial equipment, South Africa has placed great store in the reliability of its deliveries — and a stable political system.

Failure to deal with black grievances, industrialists argue, could set off a chain of disruptive labor troubles among the blacks, who perform the vast majority of menial jobs in the South African economy.

On bribery charges

Israeli Minister pleads innocent

JERUSALEM (AP) — Religious Affairs Minister Aharon Abu-Hatzeira pleaded innocent to bribery charges yesterday at the opening of a trial that could become a political campaign issue in Israel's June election.

It was the first time in Israel's 32-year history that a Cabinet minister had gone on trial. Coming at the outset of what promises to be a bitterly fought election campaign, the trial could further damage Prime Minister Menachem Begin's coalition government.

Abu-Hatzeira belongs to the National Religious Party, a small but powerful party that has been the key partner in almost every coalition government to rule Israel. It is likely to continue to play that role after the election but there is no telling how seriously the Abu-Hatzeira trial may weaken the party's electoral appeal.

Outside the Jerusalem District Court building Abu-Hatzeira's supporters, many from the Moroccan Jewish community in which he is a leading figure, demonstrated noisily, chanting his name.

Meanwhile, the Law Committee of Parliament set June 30 as the date for national elections, a week earlier than the government had originally proposed. The change, a compromise between Begin and the opposition Labor Party, which wanted an earlier date, was expected to be ratified this week or next by Parliament.

The government has been eager to get Abu-Hatzeira's trial finished as fast as possible, partly to spare him a lengthy ordeal and partly to prevent the scandal from turning into a major campaign issue.

Abu-Hatzeira also served notice that he wanted a quick trial. At the opening session his lawyer quickly blocked an attempt by the attorney

Sweden called on the Reagan administration yesterday to drop objections to the SALT II arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union, saying the alternative would be a "futile", stepped-up arms race between the superpowers. Without mentioning the United States by name, Swedish delegate Inga Thorsson told the 40-nation Geneva disarmament conference, opening a 12-week round of talks, that "strong voices" favored shelving eight years of arms limitation talks "in another vain attempt at achieving that ... impossible nuclear superiority." She said the U.S. and Soviet governments should "find a way to finally complete the laboriously negotiated SALT II agreement ..." — AP

Premier Arnaldo Forlani of Italy told the Chamber of Deputies yesterday that evidence gathered by Italy's secret services raised the possibility that Italian terrorist groups "may be fed or exploited by other countries." But he said the Italian government lacked "absolute certainty" that any particular foreign government was linked to terrorist groups, including the Red Brigades. — AP

Michael McAliskey, the husband of Belfast's Roman Catholic civil rights advocate Bernadette Devlin McAliskey, moved to a secret hideaway yesterday after being released from a hospital for treatment of wounds suffered in an assassination attempt against the couple, friends reported. McAliskey moved to the secret address with the couple's three children, who were not injured when gunmen burst into their rural home west of Belfast on Jan. 16. Mrs. McAliskey was still hospitalized but making a "steady recovery," the couple's friends said. Three Protestants await trial on charges of attempted murder in connection with the case. — AP

Pleading for the freedom of Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood, who is accused of collaborating with the Vietnamese communists, defense lawyers yesterday argued the case is "one of a kind" and will not create any precedents for the Marine Corps. That assertion came as the final arguments concluded. The jury of five Vietnam veterans then decided to wait until today to begin deliberations. The presiding military judge said he will give his final instructions to the jury at 8 a.m. In closing arguments in the court-martial, which has been a year in the making, chief defense counsel John C. Lowe characterized Garwood as a victim of systematic intimidation that drove him insane during 14 years of captivity in Vietnam. Defense lawyers have managed to whittle the charges against Garwood from four to two. But he still faces possible life imprisonment if convicted on either charge of collaboration with the enemy or maltreatment of a fellow American. The court-martial of Garwood, 34, of Adams, Ind., who was captured by the Viet Cong in 1965 and returned home voluntarily in 1979, is seen by many as a test of the U.S. military's code of conduct that requires captives to resist. — AP

The major U.S. airlines are requesting emergency fare increases because of higher fuel prices, including those expected from President Reagan's order lifting the remaining price controls on domestic oil. The Civil Aeronautics Board is expected to review the request quickly, CAB spokesman Ted Lopatkiewicz said Monday. The Air Transportation Association, which represents the nation's major airlines and other carriers, asked the CAB to increase the standard fare level to reflect the higher fuel costs the airlines must pay, said Bill Jackmar, spokesman for the association. The association's petition does not ask for an increase of a specific size. — AP

Five people were killed in a fire that ripped through a two-story wood-frame house yesterday in Milltown, Ind. Bobby Dean Nesmith, 31, his three children — Shirley, 7; Frank, 4; and Marc, 23 months, and a nephew, Randall Manus, 15, were killed in the 30-minute blaze. "I don't know why it happened, but I know my children are in heaven," said Agnes Nesmith, 27, the mother of the family. "It will be tough living without them. The preacher came over and we talked and prayed." Mrs. Nesmith and her brother, Elliot, also staying in the house at the time, escaped the blaze unharmed. "I woke up coughing," said Mrs. Nesmith. "I saw flames and smoke." She said she opened a window, kicked out a screen and jumped. On the ground, "I told him (her husband) to throw the kids, and that's the last I heard of him." Jerry Mackey, fire chief in this community of 800 people, said it was "the worst thing that has ever happened in the 27 years I've lived here ... We've never had anything like this." — AP

Save Our Schools!

Save Our Schools. This statement simply reflects what has preoccupied the minds of parents of South Bend school children for the past two years. Slapped with an ultimatum from the federal government to desegregate its school system by the fall of 1981, the city of South Bend is up in arms about how to decide what integration plan will be the least detrimental to the community.

On Monday evening the South Bend School Board conducted a public hearing to debate some of the key issues of its proposed desegregation plan. Some of the issues include: the establishment of an alternative elementary school program (open classrooms, self-study class sessions etc.), the adoption of a middle school grade structure and most importantly whether schools in the area will have to be closed in order to successfully implement desegregation.

The meeting started off with a 30-minute "visitors hearing", during which South Bend residents had the opportunity to air their concerns and complaints regarding the plan. The first speaker was a woman whose son attends kindergarten in the Mapleton-Tarkington area, the schools first designated to be shut down if the plan is approved. If approved, the five-year-old will have to walk one mile, crossing seven intersections to get to school. If denied, the little boy will just have to walk across the street, just as he does now. Is desegregation justified?

Those in favor of the Board's plan, however, did not remain quiet. Helen Arms, principal of the Whitney Alternative School, sermonized that a systemic race system has been the cause of segregation and that it is the responsibility of the American people to eradicate this evil. She emphasized that although some people will invariably experience some discomfort, the end result — integration — will outweigh any difficulties.

The NAACP also offered its two cents. The vice-president of the South Bend chapter of the Association said it was pleased with the Board's attempts at composing a desegregation plan, and stated that this concept, alone, can provide an "equality education" for all Americans. However, as are the majority opinions of most South Bend residents, the NAACP does not support alternative school program, since this would inevitably result in a "separation" among students and does not advocate any school closings because that would result in an overcrowding situation.

Perhaps the most effective argument of the evening was that if the Board can not economically justify school closings then it can not justify desegregation. According to recent budget figures, it appears that it is actually cheaper to keep the designated schools open than to have to pay exorbitant busing fees. As one concerned parent pointed out, school budgets are statistics, not children.

Inside Wednesday

So what, right? What if a few schools get shut down? So what if children are bused 8 blocks or 8 miles to get to their school? So what if South Bend property taxes are jacked up again? So what if this desegregation plan, as it stands now, disrupts the community and bitterness, distrust and fear become a way of life in South Bend? So what, right?

The stark reality of this situation is that the South Bend residents, whether they are parents or not, care about the future of this city, its people and more importantly, its children. They care that this city, which is already in the throes of trying to get back on its feet again, economically and socially, will, eventually self-destruct, if the plan is approved. They care that their children might be forced to walk blocks and blocks out of their way, out on the streets where it is not safe. Or that their children will have to get up at 6 a.m. to catch a bus for a destination that is clear across town. They care that taxes will be raised for extra buses and alternative school programs — projects that seem illogical, unreasonable and downright socially unacceptable.

Take for example, a small committee of parents who are collecting money door-to-door to hire a lawyer. These concerned parents hope to gain an injunction that will delay the final voting on the plan, presently scheduled for Feb. 26. Although they believe the principle of integration is morally and socially "right", they emphatically believe that there must be a better way. And so the search goes on.

Whether this concerned committee, which is only one of many, is granted an injunction, will depend on whether the entire South Bend community throws differences and arguments aside and rallies together to prevent this particular plan from being approved.

Saint Mary's counselor plans Couples Exploration Groups

By KATHRYN DALE
News Staff

The fact that over one-third of all marriages end in divorce is an all too familiar statistic. An increase in economic pressures as well as societal demands may account for a portion of the problem, but according to Tony Campbell, assistant director of Saint Mary's Counseling and Career development, lack of communication between couples is a primary impetus in marital disputes.

While at the University of Georgia Campbell developed a program geared toward increasing communication between engaged couples and people thinking seriously about marriage. Beginning Feb. 17, Campbell and his wife Melissa will begin eight weekly meetings of the Couples Exploration Group held on Saint Mary's campus. Campbell emphasized that the sessions are separate from Pre-Cana and are not marriage therapy sessions. "Its main purpose is to explore issues that are typically left unexplored until after marriage," Campbell said. The eight weekly sessions revolve around the formation of a marriage contract which is used only as a "catalyst" for discussion and not legally binding.

Discussion is geared toward making the couple aware of each partner's expectations. Raising children, privacy rights, dealing with relatives and role expectations are only a few of the topics dealt with in the formation of the contract. The marriage contract is meant to be revised and reviewed in order to maintain communication between the couple after marriage. The Couples Exploration Group is limited to five couples, interviewed and selected by Campbell. Members of the group will be encouraged to take a careful look at their decision as well as their marital expectations.

"You can break up and it could be a success for the group," Campbell said. "A failure would be making a decision without really thinking about it."

For more information about the group, contact Tony Campbell at Saint Mary's Counseling and Career Development Center, LeMans Hall, or call him at 4437.

Communist Party accuses Poland's unions of anarchy

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's Communist Party leader, in his strongest denunciation of the independent trade union movement, accused Solidarity yesterday of seeking to become a "political opposition party" and of spreading anarchy.

Stanislaw Kania affirmed the government's opposition to a union of private farmers and said Poland was faced with "manifestations of anarchy" and with transformation of Solidarity into an organization "far removed from what is laid down in its statutes."

Kania's speech, made public yesterday, was given Saturday to a closed-door meeting of a committee preparing for next month's party congress and excerpts were broadcast by Polish state radio yesterday.

It came at a time of new charges from the Soviet Union and its allies that independent labor leaders were hostile to Communist Party rule and exploiting the crisis for their political ends. The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia charged yesterday that the Voice of America and Radio Free Europe were broadcasting "coded instructions" to anti-socialist forces in Poland.

Meanwhile, Solidarity leader Lech Walesa went to the southern town of Bielsko Biala to join talks between government negotiators and workers to end a general strike that was in its eighth day.

Kania, who took over leadership of Poland's beleaguered Communist Party and agreed to formation of the first independent labor unions in the Soviet bloc, said the government "cannot ignore, let alone accept" that "Solidarity is being steered in the direction of a political opposition party playing with the workers' trust."

He said that while the government recognized a right to strike, it "is a weapon of last resort ... many of our strikes are clearly political in character." Kania also warned party members that they should not take part in strikes.

On the issue of Rural Solidarity — an organization of Poland's private farmers — Kania said it comes down to one question: "Is the countryside to be a scene of cooperation between the people's regime and peasant-farmers or is it to be the scene of political struggle?"

Reagan comments on hostages

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an interview on Monday with reporters from five publications, President Reagan answered questions concerning the returned hostages, the economy, relations with the Soviet Union, the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks and the Mideast.

Reagan said the Iranians were "kidnappers."

"They were the ones who broke international law, who committed, actually, an act of war," Reagan said.

The president said the United States should have issued its own demands and told the Iranians, "here's the price that we put on your keeping them."

Commenting on his review of the agreement that resulted in the hostages' release, he said, "There were some executive orders applying to our own people and so forth that I want checked out with regard to not only international law, but our own law ... How do we give up the right of an individual to sue for damages?"

He was referring to one facet of the agreement, in which former hostages were barred from pursuing legal claims against Iran involving their capture.

Reagan reiterated that he favors resuming SALT talks with the Soviet Union "any time they want to sit down and discuss a legitimate reduction of nuclear weapons."

But he cautioned that the Soviets "should be under no illusions" about America's resolve to maintain a strong defense.

Reagan made it clear he stood by his recent sharp attacks on Soviet policy, in which he said the Soviets were bent on world domination.

The Soviets have "come back snarling at me and charged me with lies and everything else. But I haven't heard them refute what I said," Reagan said.

Reagan said Israel's combat-ready military "is a force in the Middle East that actually is of benefit to us."

Reagan said he did not regard Israeli settlements on the West Bank of the Jordan River as illegal. But he said that Israel's "rush" was perhaps "ill-advised" and "unnecessarily provocative."

The president said he favors a U.S. military presence in the Middle East, including ground troops, to help maintain peace and discourage any Soviet incursions the Persian Gulf.

Gas prices rise

NEW YORK (AP) — Several of the nation's largest refiners boosted wholesale prices of gasoline, home heating oil and diesel fuel as much as five cents a gallon yesterday as the lifting of federal petroleum price controls continued to drive fuel prices higher.

"The hikes could be felt shortly by consumers, although one industry source said gasoline dealers in some regions "are going to have to eat a lot" of the wholesale increases because demand for the fuel has been weak following earlier price hikes.

The source, who asked not to be identified, said heating oil users probably would see the full effect of the wholesale increase because "they've got to have" the fuel.

Mobil Corp. said it raised gasoline, diesel fuel and home heating oil prices a nickel a gallon nationwide to reflect "increased crude oil prices" here and abroad. The nation's second-largest oil company said the domestic crude oil price hikes came "as a result of decontrol."

Standard Oil Co. (Indiana), the No. 6 oil company, said its wholesale prices for Amoco gasoline rose four cents a gallon while those for its heating oil and diesel fuel climbed two to four cents a gallon, depending on region.

"Amoco still is attempting to recover the increases in crude oil costs that were incurred prior to last week's total decontrol of domestic crude oil prices," the company said in a prepared statement. A spokesman, who asked not to be quoted by name, refused to comment when asked if further product-price increases were planned.

Among others, Marathon Oil Co., ranked 17th in the industry, said it raised wholesale prices for gasoline, heating oil and diesel fuel three cents a gallon.

After their session with Reagan, the mayors said the president left no doubt that urban programs will be cut, but they said there were no specifics other than the change for the urban development action grants.

"The message we got loud and clear is that the country's economy is in deep trouble," said Mayor Pete Wilson of San Diego. "Everybody's got to make some sacrifice," Bradley added.

Kania claimed that the strike in Bielsko Biala, to back worker demands for firing local officials, had cost the economy the equivalent of $70 million over eight days.

Labor unrest continued in the towns of Bielsko Biala, Rzeszow, Ustrzyki Dolne and Jelenia Gora.

The issue of registration of Rural Solidarity was to be discussed again today by a government group headed by Agriculture Minister Andrzej Kacala. Some observers predicted that continued refusal by the government to register Rural Solidarity might result in a general warning strike.

A nationwide warning strike scheduled for yesterday was dropped by Solidarity after a compromise with the government over the weekend on a 42-hour work week and greater union access to the mass media.

of a co-defendant to postpone proceedings on a technicality. Judge Asher Landau, president of the three-judge court, ordered morning sessions five days a week with afternoon sessions added on three days a week.

Testimony will be heard beginning Feb. 15, as yesterday's session was only to read the charges and enter pleas.

Abu-Hatzeira and his aide, Moshe Gabbai, are accused of taking about $19,000 in bribes on three different occasions in 1979 in return for approving loans and grants of public money for Jewish religious institutions.

Also on trial are diamond dealer Shmuel Daskel and Rabbi Amram Korach, who are alleged to have paid the bribes.

The 42-year-old minister, dressed in an elegant gray suit and wearing a purple skullcap, maintained the pose of indifference he has displayed ever since the bribery investigation began a year ago.

Abu-Hatzeira insists he is innocent, a victim of what he calls "a political libel."

The judge asked each defendant whether he admitted or denied the content of the charge sheet. Each replied that he denied the charges.

Dowry also criticized the "rigid positions" of other Middle East countries, saying the Israeli Labor party of Shimon Peres, which opposes current Prime Minister Menachem Begin, might be more "amenable" to some of the issues.

The professor said that Egypt has accepted the need to co-exist with Israel, but that Jordan is still too weak to follow that lead. He added that Saudi Arabia, a key to the situation, is "cagey" in supposedly supporting United Nations Resolution 242 (which established Israel) but failing to support Egypt in its quests for peace.

Dowry predicted that the new Reagan administration will probably undertake diplomatic initiatives in the area of Palestinian autonomy after the Israeli elections this summer, but that until then, the world will just be "marking time."

Finally, Dowry outlined the methodology of any Middle East peace settlement as moderate and dealing with workable issues in a "step by step" fashion. He concluded, "I'm an optimist...but it's still a rocky road."

ND houses Chemical Reviews

By LAURA LARIMORE
Senior Staff Reporter

A small suite of rooms in the old Chemistry building is the home of the pre-eminent journal of chemical reviews in the world, unknown to most students. According to Anthony M. Trozzolo, editor of Chemical Reviews, the publication features "authoritative, critical, and comprehensive reviews of recent research in the various fields of chemistry".

The bimonthly journal of the American Chemical Society came to Notre Dame in 1977, when Trozzolo assumed the editorship. Articles come from around the world, and are primarily from invitation. These invitations are extended in response to suggestions received from the Editorial Advisory Board or elsewhere, Trozzolo said.

Other sources include unsolicited articles, where authors contact the editor and express the desire to prepare a review, and manuscripts originally written for another journal and then referred to Chemical Reviews.

Regardless of the source, a review article generally takes 18 months from its beginning to actual publication. Writing takes approximately one year, and then is submitted to the editor. He in turn distributes the manuscript to two reviewers, authorities in the field, who judge it and suggest appropriate revisions, a process which takes three weeks to a month.

When approved, the article is typically published in three to four months, Trozzolo commented. "The review article takes much more time to write than a usual journal article; the author discusses not only his own work, but rather is comprehensive," he added.

A special feature of Chemical Reviews is the inclusion of a biography and picture of the contributing author. The author receives a token honorarium for his work, Trozzolo noted.

Each year about six hundred pages, roughly 30 articles, are published. The journal has a subscription list of over 6,000. It was begun in April, 1924, as a special journal for review articles in chemistry.

Trozzolo, Charles L. Huisking professor of chemistry at Notre Dame, is the publication's sixth editor. He is assisted by Jay A. Labinger, assistant professor of chemistry. The Editorial Advisory Board is a nationwide group of respected chemists, whose function is to furnish article suggestions and to aid in the reviewing process.

Chemical Reviews is printed by Mack Publishing Co., of Easton, PA.

Senate approves Donovan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Raymond J. Donovan was approved as labor secretary by the Senate yesterday, overcoming persistent, unverified allegations of ties to organized crime.

The vote was 80-17 to confirm Donovan's nomination. He was the last member of President Reagan's Cabinet to win approval.

All the "no" votes were cast by Democrats concerned about the alleged links between Donovan and labor racketeers, despite Donovan's own denials and the FBI's failure to corroborate a single charge.

Republicans said fairness required a vote to confirm Donovan, especially since an extensive FBI investigation turned up nothing.

Harp player performs

The University of Notre Dame Department of Music will present harpsichordist, Darlene Catello, in a Departmental Recital, Sunday, February 15, at 4:00 p.m. The recital will take place in the Notre Dame Library Auditorium.

Ms. Catello will be performing on a French Double Harpsichord made by Willard Martin for St. Mary's Faculty member, Bruce Gustafson. Sunday's program will include Ordre II in d minor, (Pieces de Clavecin, 1717), by Francois Couperin, Toccata by Girolamo Frescobaldi, Tombeau de Mr. de Chambonnières, by Jean-Henri d'Anglebert, and Sonatas K 430, in D major, 426 in d minor, and 450 in g minor.

The program open to the public without charge.

The national average price for gasoline was about $1.27 a gallon before President Reagan announced Jan. 28 he had lifted the oil price controls, eight months before they had been due to expire.

Analysts have said the President's move could boost U.S. fuel prices about 10 cents a gallon, and several refiners subsequently announced wholesale price increases of one to six cents a gallon.

On Monday, No. 11 Sun Co., Inc. said it increased wholesale gasoline and home heating oil prices by two to three cents a gallon in the East, Midwest and Southwest following an increase of as much as 2.5 cents a gallon in several regions late last week.

HOW TO FOIL A CAR THIEF

A FEW SIMPLE PRECAUTIONS CAN REDUCE THE RISK OF THEFT

The numbers are staggering. Every 37 seconds or so a car is stolen somewhere in the U.S. That adds up to almost 800,000 cars a year. But you can do something to keep your car from becoming a statistic. Start by avoiding these four common parking mistakes.

The "Just for a Minute" Syndrome. When you leave your car, even if it's "just for a minute," lock all of the doors and take your keys. In fact, about one of every five cars stolen was left unattended with keys in the ignition. Keep driver's license and vehicle registration cards in your wallet or purse. If a car thief finds these documents in the vehicle's glove box, he can impersonate you if stopped by the police.

The Isolated Location. It's safest to park in a locked garage, but if you can't, don't leave your car in a dark, out-of-the-way spot. Instead, try to park on a busy, well-lighted street. Thieves shy away from tampering with a car if there's a high risk of being spotted.

The Display Case. There's nothing more inviting to a thief than expensive items lying in your car, in plain sight. If you lock these items in the trunk or glove box, there's less incentive for a thief to break in. Also, when you park in a commercial lot or garage, be cautious. Lock your valuables in the trunk, and, if you must leave a key with the attendant, leave only the ignition key.

The Space at the End of the Block. In recent years, professional car-theft operations have become an increasing problem. Unlike amateurs, the professionals are not easily deterred. Cars parked at the end of a block are easy targets for the professional thief with a tow truck. So, it's best to park in the middle of the block. Be sure to turn your steering wheel sharply to one side or the other. That will lock the steering column and prevent the car from being towed from the rear.

Unfortunately, there's no such thing as a "theft-proof" car. But at General Motors, we're equipping every car we build with anti-theft features. We want to help you make it as difficult as possible for any thief—amateur or professional—to steal your car.

This advertisement is part of our continuing effort to give customers useful information about their cars and trucks and the company that builds them.

Who needs gun control?

Anthony Walton

I've been reading and thinking a lot about guns and gun control and now I've seen the light; I agree with Ronald Reagan and all his cronies in the National Rifle Association. Who needs gun control? If guns are outlawed then only outlaws will have guns. It's true. Just look at the newspaper. Here are a few clippings that I've been saving the last few months.

Dec. 14, 1980 — Chicago. An IBM salesman is killed as he struggles with four teenage hitchhikers, the oldest of whom is 18, who allegedly robbed him of $17 and took the keys to his van. The trigger man, a 15-year-old girl, says, "We were looking for a sucker to rip off, that was the plan. The gun wasn't supposed to go off."

Jan. 10, 1981 — Chicago. A man is shot and killed during a quarrel with an acquaintance in a bar. Detectives said both men had been drinking.

March 10, 1980 — Purchase, New York. Dr. Herman Tarnower, nationally known developer of the Scarsdale Diet, is shot to death by his former lover, the headmistress of the exclusive Madeira School for Girls. She says, "I was trying to kill myself and he was trying to stop me. I thought I shot him in the hand."

Jan. 19, 1981 — Liberty, Texas. Price Daniel Jr., former speaker of the Texas House, is shot to death by his wife during a quarrel in their home. Mrs. Daniels reportedly fired "a warning shot," and "didn't mean to kill him."

Dec. 8, 1980 — New York City. Former Beatle John Lennon is gunned down by Mark Chapman in front of his apartment building. Chapman says, "I couldn't help myself."

I could go on and on and on, but there is neither space nor need. What these five clippings illustrate and what they have in common is that they are handgun murders, committed not by career criminals or even people with criminal records, but by people who were caught in the heat of a moment and who made a very tragic mistake that might have been avoided had a handgun been unavailable.

These people weren't protecting themselves, they weren't stopping a crime, they weren't doing anything except killing. Even in the case of Chapman murdering Lennon, which was a premeditated assault, the fatality might have been avoided if handguns weren't so easily available in Chapman's home state of Hawaii. I say that it might have been avoided because if Chapman was going to attack Lennon and did not have a gun, Lennon would have stood a much better chance of survival, and could have possibly avoided the assault.

I'd like to quote Jack Mabley, a columnist for the Chicago Tribune, from 1963: "I have long campaigned for this. Guns are for killing. They have no other purpose. Target shooting is to sharpen the skill for killing. If there are fewer guns there will be less killing. If there had been more restrictions on possessing guns, the president might be alive today." Guess which president he is talking about? Yep, John F. Kennedy. And in the seventeen years since, 150,000 people, (three times the number slain in Viet Nam), have died by guns in this country.

This is without even mentioning the shooting deaths of men like Martin Luther King and Robert Kennedy. Just page through any big-city newspaper and note the carnage that goes on daily. It is even more incredible when you multiply it by all the cities and towns in America.

We read so much about people being shot that it numbs us to what is going on. For every Lyman Bostock or Michael Halberstam, there are 1000 anonymous people who happened to be in the wrong place at the wrong time or were the victim of someone's temper, or were plain unlucky. How many times have we read that so-and-so shot himself by accident while cleaning or playing with his gun, or that a six-year-old child who found his father's gun in a drawer, shot and killed himself when the gun discharged?

I'm not saying that gun control will stop the violence that has become epidemic in this nation. It will, however, slow it down. And it will protect some people from themselves. That's why the NRA and the gun manufacturing lobby are so disgusting to me. These two special interest groups keep pressuring Congress not to pass any gun control legislation. And millions of people are affected in the meantime.

Though I'm personally opposed to hunting, I do respect the rights of hunters. I also respect the constitutional right of a citizen to bear arms. But handguns are not used for hunting, so something should be done to restrict them.

I would immediately restrict the manufacture and sale of handguns to law enforcement officers and those who are in real personal danger, such as couriers. This would slow the flow of handguns into society. Then, I would propose a crackdown on gun violators using the existing laws, which are actually adequate, before imposing any new laws. The problem with the current gun laws is that they are not enforced. If there is a need for new laws, they would probably fall into the category of automatic harsh penalties for gun crimes, such as 15 years for a crime committed with a gun, and five years for anyone possessing a gun without a permit, no exceptions, no early parole.

This would encourage the public to give up their guns. Gradually, guns would become less prevalent. It will take a while, but there has to be some start or it will only get worse.

Much of the rhetoric concerning gun control emanates from the American tradition of bearing arms. This tradition grew out of the frontier experience, with the need for protection from wild animals and to obtain food. But this tradition does not apply to modern society. Guns, as Jack Mabley said, merely kill people. That's what they are for. It's a known fact that a gun purchased for protection has a much better chance of harming the owner or his family than any intruder or attacker.

The most depressing thing about this is that the current president seems to have no interest at all in gun control. I guess he doesn't want to take away Nancy's "teeny little gun." Perhaps if he runs into a Sara Jane Moore or a Squeaky Fromme he will change his mind.

Forum holds talk

The American Political Forum will be holding its first discussion of the semester tonight at 7 p.m. in room 108 O'Shaughnessy. The title of tonight's discussion will be "Education and the Inequality of Public Schools." All interested individuals are invited to attend.
Copies of the text of tonight's presentation will be available on the bulletin board of room 108 O'Shaughnessy until the time of the discussion. For further information, please contact either Rob Gould or Dan Gonzales at 277-0651.

ND offers English class

A course in English as a second language will be taught from 6:30 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. on Monday and Thursday in Room 107, O'Shaughnessy Hall. There is no charge for this course. Foreign students and their spouses are invited to attend this class which will enable them to improve their English and increase their understanding of their courses and they will feel less constrained speaking to fellow students. Mrs. Sandra Hayes is the teacher.

Donovan, a 50-year-old New Jersey construction executive who served as a campaign fund-raiser for Reagan, initially indicated he expected to be sworn in formally late yesterday at the White House. But a spokesman at the White House said the ceremony would probably be held today.

"I have a large responsibility to the president and the American people," he told reporters. "I now intend to get on with that job and to meet that responsibility."

Several sources have alleged that both Donovan and his construction company have ties to labor racketeers and organized crime figures. The nomination was held up for more than two weeks for an FBI probe, which failed to provide confirmation of any of the charges.

UCLA must wait

Digger eyes Explorers

Across the Notre Dame campus, talk is slowly but surely turning to one subject. The last stories about Christmas break have been told, some for the hundredth time. Spring break is still six weeks away and it is too early to make plans for then.

Juniors are undertaking mass clean-up efforts in anticipation of invading parents. It would never do for Mom and Dad to see that half-empty bottle of Ol' Grandd on the shelf or November's underwear under the couch. Moms always look under the couch.

But as the weekend approaches, thoughts turn to THE GAME. Some of us discuss strategy. Some of us discuss the rivalry. All of us are looking for tickets.

"The hell with UCLA," growls Irish coach Digger Phelps. "We've still got LaSalle to play."

Phelps is clearly worried about the Explorers, despite the absence of Kodak Player of the Year for 1979-80, Michael Brooks.

"I'm not worried about the student body coming through for us on Sunday for UCLA," says Phelps. "They are always there for the big games. I just hope that they don't overlook this game tonight."

"We need a UCLA-game crowd for the first six minutes of each half against LaSalle. We can't let them get control of the game like they did in Philadelphia last year."

Students do seem to be overlooking, or at least disregarding, the Explorers potential.

"Their 12-7 record is deceiving," says Phelps. "They were 14-11 when they beat us at the Palestra."

"Brooks graduated, and a lot of people picked LaSalle to finish last in their conference. But they've beaten Villanova, St. John's, and some real quality teams. Now they are up at the top of Philadelphia's 'Big Five.'"

Phelps is looking for a big boost from the crowd tonight, but he wants the enthusiasm focused in the right direction.

"I think it's great that the students have taken to Cecil Rucker so well," he says. "But they aren't being fair to him right now."

"Someday, CJ is going to be another Toby Knight for us. Toby only played 87 minutes his freshman year, and he has gone on to be one of the top players in the NBA."

Skip Desjardin Sports Writer

"We all saw what can happen when a team is up by twenty points with six minutes to go in a game last Saturday. South Carolina cut our lead in half in a couple of minutes. You can't assume that a game is over at that point."

"Cecil knows his role here, and he is playing it well. He is going to grow and develop into a solid ballplayer. I remember how Orlando Woolridge was built when he was a freshman. Now Cecil is on a similar weight program. He is already broader in the shoulders than Orlando."

"I don't think that the extra pressure is going to bother Cecil that much, he can handle it. But I don't think he should have to be forced to handle it right now. He doesn't need it, or deserve it."

The Explorers played an impressive game against DePaul in the Palestra a week and a half ago. That, along with their win over the Irish last year, is going to give them a big confidence boost as they come into the ACC tonight.

This is the kind of team that Notre Dame has to do well against in order to prepare for the NCAA tournament.

"We don't worry about the Louisvilles and the LSUs when the tournament rolls around," says Phelps. "Our main concerns are the Missouris, who catch you looking ahead. They shoot 70 percent from the floor, and before you know it, it's overtime and your season is over."

The Irish are in that same situation tonight. Sure, the UCLA game is a big one. But for the next few hours, all thoughts should be on the Explorers.

Who knows — you may meet someone at the game tonight who wants to sell you two UCLA tickets. At cost.

Freshman forward Cecil Rucker has become a student body favorite.

who placed for us in the tourney even though we didn't accomplish our goal of winning a couple of firsts.

"I was especially pleased with Steele Mehl (167) and Carl Dahlhauser (177). I thought both wrestled very well, especially considering they wrestled one weight class above normal."

The problem plaguing the Irish coaching staff may be the lack of a 'set' lineup card.

"Although our people wrestled fine, it doesn't mean that we won't juggle our lineup more," reminds Bruno. "We have a lot of people in the same weight classes and the roster can always change after our challenge matches in practice."

Irish prove inhospitable at home

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

The two milk-white domes of the Athletic and Convocation Center at Notre Dame were covered with snow. A storm had moved in from Lake Michigan, bringing with it a bitter cold shroud of pristine white that somehow seemed befitting of the campus.

The Fighting Irish were playing a basketball game that night at the center, a small gymnasium by comparison with many other major college facilities. And that night, with the temperature dropping below 10 degrees, far fewer than the capacity 11,345 would attend.

Hours before the game, the halls of the building rang empty. Those ticket holders who decided to attend came late. The 14 rostered players from Saint Mary's (Cal.) College arrived before most of the fans. They took their warmup shots with out the din, the hoots, and hollers of the Notre Dame fans.

"Still, it's pretty hard to shoot a jump shot with the ghost of George Gipp looking over your shoulder," one courtside veteran observed.

There is no tougher place in the country to play basketball than at Notre Dame.

In his 10th season as coach of the Fighting Irish, Digger Phelps has established a home winning mark of nearly 86 percent.

als. (Aragon has already met the NCAA qualifying standards in the 880-yard run and Macauley was .6 shy of the magic 1:52.2 numbers in the early going.)

"The middle distance guys are all kind of off the wall," says Macauley. "But we get along well. We push each other every day. Kids are just very competitive around here."

Now, with the possibility of his already shortened Irish career coming to an end, Macauley has begun to extol the virtues of his Notre Dame experience.

"I spent my first semester here off-campus," he says, "and I really didn't get into the Notre Dame thing until the end of my sophomore year and the beginning of junior year. After this semester it may be over, though."

"I've gotten a solid, all-around undergrad education here," says Macauley. "And I've been able to run. There have been a lot of good times, so I really can't complain."

Nobody will be complaining if Tim Macauley gets the chance to return to Notre Dame one more time.

other. If we fenced regularly, in competition, we'd be at each other's throats."

The future of the Saint Mary's fencing squad is in doubt, however. The team consists of just five members. With two fencers due to graduate, recruiting replacements is a top priority. The club has set up a novice program to get new recruits.

Any Saint Mary's woman who has an interest in the sport is welcome to stop by Angela Athletic Facility weeknights at 7:30 for introductory instruction. Otherwise, feel free to contact any team member. Four-year fencer, three-year captain, and two-time national competitor Sharon Moore is quick to notify those interested that "No experience is necessary!" Grapplers go west to face Stanford

By LOUIE SOMOGYI
Sports Writer

The sunny shores of California rather than the snow drifts of South Bend marks the calendar this weekend for the Notre Dame wrestling squad.

Sporting a 6-7 dual meet ledger, the Irish grapplers will face the Stanford Cardinals in Palo Alto, Cal. Friday night before wrestling the Air Force Falcons in Colorado Springs, Col. Monday afternoon before returning home Tuesday morning.

The West Coast trip marks a homecoming of sorts for Brother Joseph Bruno, the first-year Irish coach who is completing a four-year program toward his doctorate degree from Stanford in interdisciplinary-humanistic studies. Bruno, a former Stanford coach, is credited with bringing the Cardinal wrestling program from club to varsity status.

"This trip to the coast is one of the bright spots for our team this season," says Bruno. "It gives us the opportunity to travel and get away from 'Alaska'.

"We'll be pretty even with Stanford," he continues. "They've had problems similar to ours and we'll be facing them on a match-to-match basis without including forfeits.

"Against Air Force," predicts

Bruno, "we'll be stronger in the lower weights while they'll be stronger in the upper weights, so the outcome ought to be interesting. In spite of our injuries and illnesses, I think we have a good chance of winning the meet."

A number of positions in the Irish ranks remain up for grabs, but some question marks were cleared up in last week's National Catholic Invitational. Notre Dame took fifth place in the nine-team affair and was led by junior John Campana's runnerup performance in the 150-pound class. Campana's dual meet record is now 16-6-1.

Other scorers for Notre Dame in the Invitational included junior Mark Fisher (13-8-2), freshman Joe Agostino (9-4), and junior Brian Erard (7-13), who all placed fourth at 126, 142, and 158 pounds, respectively, for a team total of 27 points — well behind John Carroll University's 108-point first place total.

Nevertheless, Bruno remains optimistic about his young and inexperienced squad.

"I don't like talking about the low points we've had," emphasizes Bruno. "I know that I was happy with the performance of the guys

Mary Pat Sitlington scored 14 points and pulled down 13 rebounds as the St. Mary's basketball team downed Goshen, 46-39, in Goshen. Cheryl Magt paced the losers with 12 points. The win hikes the Belles record to 8-7. The women next take to the court in the St. Mary's Tournament this Friday night at 9 p.m. against Findlay College at the Angela Athletic Facility.

A pre-UCLA pep rally will be held Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the ACC Pit. Featured speakers include Coach Digger Phelps and tri-captains Kelly Tripucka, Orlando Woolridge, and Tracy Jackson. Also on hand as guest speaker will be the new Fighting Irish head football coach, Gerry Faust. Students are asked to enter and exit the ACC through Gate 1 only.

Speed skater Eric Heiden, who set five Olympic records while winning five gold medals in the 1980 Winter Olympics, received the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union's prestigious Sullivan Award Monday night as the nation's outstanding amateur athlete.

SMC fencers split triangular meet

By DEIRDRE GRANT
Sports Writer

The Saint Mary's fencing team suffered its first defeat of the season Saturday, in a highly competitive triangular battle against Ohio State and Case Western. The Belles record now stands at 4-1 overall.

In their first match of the day, the fencers were easily conquered by the Buckeyes, 14-2. Twila Kitchin and Sharon Moore were 1-3, while Eileen Mendez and Ann Hendrick were 0-4. Michele Strohmman was unable to participate in the tournament because of a conflict with her Senior Comprehensive Exams.

The girls quickly regained their composure and defeated their second opponent of the day, Case Western, 14-2. Moore, captain of the team, noted that it was not a lack of ability on the Saint Mary's squad, but rather the completely superior talent of the Ohio State fencers. "Ohio State is very competitive. The girls have a great deal of experience and the coach has his eye on the Nationals each year. We gave it our best, but they're an extremely difficult team to meet. The Notre Dame women had as tough a time as we did."

The parallel that Moore draws between the teams from neighboring campuses is a legitimate one. Both teams practice and enter tournament play together. The interplay between the two teams is so strong that the only times they raise a foil against each other in competition are the Great Lakes Tournament and the Nationals. Moore commented that because of the closeness of the teams, it would be difficult to compete against each other. "We help each other every day and know each

Against LaSalle

Irish seek revenge

By TIM LARKIN
Sports Writer

The Fighting Irish will be out for revenge tonight when they host the LaSalle Explorers at 8:00 at the ACC. Last season, the Explorers upset Notre Dame 62-60 at the Palestra in Philadelphia.

In last year's game, LaSalle played a very controlled game and dictated the tempo. "I over coached in that game," said Digger Phelps. "We had just come off a great win against Maryland and we were flat. It was a two-point game and we didn't go after them, but you have to give them credit."

This year's LaSalle team is without Michael Brooks, who led all scorers a year ago at the Palestra with 29 points. Stanley Williams, a 6-8, 215-pound senior forward leads LaSalle in scoring (16.9 ppg.) and rebounding (9.2 rp) this year. The other forward is 6-5 senior Donald Word (8.6 ppg. and 4.9 rpg.). The Explorers have two excellent players in the backcourt with Kevin Lyman, second on the team in scoring with a 16.2 average, and Greg Webster, who has 114 assists. The center spot will be handled by Tom Piotrowsky, a 7-1, 240-pound sophomore.

The Explorers coach, 'Lefty' Ervin, is in his second year at LaSalle. Last season, LaSalle finished with a 22-9 record. The Explorers went on to win the East Coast Conference championship and received a berth in the NCAA tournament. La Salle has a 12-7 record thus far in 1980-81.

Against No. 3 DePaul, the Explorers gave Ray Meyer's Blue Demons a real battle before falling 69-62.

Although they are missing Brooks for last year's team, the Explorers are going to give the Irish a game tonight.

"They'll be very confident because they beat us last year," said Digger. "The way they played against DePaul, a few weeks ago, shows they are a good ball team. They had a good chance to beat them."

LaSalle will try to keep the tempo down like they did last year against the Irish and two weeks ago against DePaul. Phelps plans to run and open up the game. Digger also expressed the desire that Notre Dame must come out ready to play, because the Explorers won't roll over tonight.

Notre Dame will be looking for its eighth straight victory tonight after two road losses to Marquette and San Francisco. After their impressive win at Maryland, the Irish have scored easy victories against Cornell, South Carolina and St. Mary's (Calif.). In these games, Digger has been able to rest the regulars and give the reserves some playing time.

With the balanced scoring of Kelly Tripucka, Orlando Woolridge, Tracy Jackson, and John Paxson, along with some help from subs Bill Varner and Tom Sluby, the Fighting Irish are getting in tune for remainder of their tough schedule. "Once we get past LaSalle, we have five big games before the tourney," said Phelps. "But we're not looking past LaSalle."

IRISH ITEMS — Notre Dame's next contest is against UCLA on Sunday at 2:00 at the ACC. The six game home stand concludes next Tuesday against Boston.

Tracy Jackson will get a chance to show his defensive skills against LaSalle's powerful backcourt tonight at the ACC, as the Irish try to avenge last season's loss to the Explorers in Philadelphia.

Macauley not 'cool' to return

By GARY GRASSEY
Assistant Sports Editor

Tim Macauley likes to joke about Notre Dame.

After three long winters, as he's wont to expound on, Macauley, a senior and all-American member of the Irish track team, has come to believe there's more to Notre Dame than just frostbite and earmuffs.

"I complain a lot about the weather," says the Sherman Oaks, Cal., native. "Especially when it's 80 degrees in Los Angeles and 20 here, but I'm happy I decided to enroll."

"I have another year of eligibility here," he continues. "And if I get into MBA school, it's a tough decision, but there's a 90 percent chance I'll come back."

Nothing would please Irish track coach Joe Piane more.

"Tim is a very good runner," says the sixth-year coach. "This year, he's started out well. He's been using his head and he's stayed in command of all his races. He makes a lot of jokes about the weather here, and now he's thinking about coming back."

There was a time, however, when Macauley wasn't so sure he'd ever make it to Notre Dame.

"I come from a strong Notre Dame family," says the half-miler. "My father is a subway alumnus and my brother (Bill '76) went here. I didn't know if I'd make it, though, because I didn't get in the first time around."

Macauley, an all-state performer at Notre Dame High School in Sherman Oaks and unrecruited by Piane in 1977, was the one who brought his credentials to the Irish coach on the advice of his father. But the University admissions procedure had already run its course and refused Macauley's application.

On the suggestion of Piane, Macauley decided to attend Loyola-Marymount, a small private school in the Los Angeles area with no track program.

"I still planned to come to Notre Dame," recalls Macauley. "So I went to Loyola to pick up my grades a little and since they didn't have a program, I wouldn't have to sit out a year here."

Obviously, Macauley has made it and contributed to much of what Notre Dame track calls success since 1979. As a member of the two-mile relay team that reached the 1979 NCAA indoor finals in Detroit, (where it was disqualified after a showing incident provoked by the University of Texas-El Paso's Jan Buggmann dropped Irish runner Chuck Aragon out of contention) Macauley gained national recognition as a sophomore.

Since then, the red-haired government major has built a reputation on the individual level as a consistent 800-meter specialist, while continuing his relay chores.

"Tim has sort of been in the shadow of Chuck Aragon since he's been here," says Piane. "They run head-to-head all the time and Chuck has just been a half-step better. But this year, Tim is looking strong and he'll probably qualify for the nation-

Irish Items

EXPLORING THE EXPLORERS — The Irish hold an 8-1 edge in their all-time series with LaSalle. The only blemish on the otherwise perfect Irish ledger was a 62-60 loss in the Palestra last season. In that 1980 contest, Tracy Jackson poured in a team high 22 points and Orlando Woolridge pumped in 10.

The Irish boast a 12-game home court winning streak and sport an impressive 159-27 all-time record in the ACC.

STRAIGHT SHOOTERS — The Irish hoopsters have hit better than 50 percent of their field goals in all but two of 18 games this season. Their 55.2 percent efficiency (boosted by a 62.1 mark against St. Mary's) is well ahead of the Irish season record of 53.0 percent set during the 1973-74 campaign.

The Irish have also out-boarded every foe except Kentucky this season. Notre Dame has a 32.2 rebounds-per-game average to a 25.9 mark for opposition bounders — a 6.3 carom (love that word) differential.

PEACOCK INVASION — This weekend's semi-seasonal tipoff with the UCLA Bruins is slated for national broadcast by NBC-TV. After "being joined by the entire NBC network" and applauding as we are dutifully told (with signs in hand), the game will start a few minutes after 2 p.m. The peacock network is sending their heavy hitters to South Bend this weekend, namely Dick Enberg, Billy (the ACC is college basketball) Packer, and Al (Billy counts the top six teams in the country on one hand) McGuire. Notre Dame's season-opening 94-81 loss to UCLA was the worst defeat the Irish have suffered in the series since 1975. Yet Notre Dame usurped the UCLAs twice last season and has held the Bruins' number on seven of the last ten occasions.

IF DIGGER CAN TALK AT FOOTBALL RALLIES... — The pep rally for the UCLA game will be held in the pit at the ACC on Saturday night at 7:30 p.m. Irish coach Digger Phelps, the Irish players, the cheerleaders and the pep band will be featured, along with special guest speaker Gerry Faust.

YES, VIRGINIA, THERE IS A SELLOUT — Notre Dame's intersectional showdown with Ralph Sampson and his Virginia Cavalier teammates at the Rosemont Horizon arena is officially a sellout. Starting time for the Feb. 22 affair is 2 p.m. EST or 1 p.m. Chicago time, not 2 p.m. CST as listed on the tickets.

DISTANISLAO WAGERS TWO BLUE CHIPPERS — Notre Dame women's basketball coach Mary DiStanislao has announced that two of the country's premier prep players have agreed to enroll here next fall.

Carrie Bates, an All-American center-forward from Kansas City, Mo., has led Hickman Mills High School to two consecutive state championships. Averaging 20 points and 10 rebounds per game during her career, the 6-0, 167-pound Bates was a Scholastic magazine All-America choice as a junior. She is also ranked 38th in her graduating class of 400 students.

"Carrie is destined to leave her mark on Notre Dame basketball," offered DiStanislao. "She is an excellent offensive rebounder who will dive to the floor for a loose ball or shoot from 17 feet equally well."

DiStanislao's other prize is Laura Dougherty, a 5-10 guard from Pascack Valley High School in Hillsdale, N.J. She has averaged 22 points, six assists and six steals per game while leading her team to a 14-0 record this year and a number-three rating in New Jersey (the home of Bruce Springsteen).

Boasting 1,942 career points, Laura soon will become only the sixth girl in New Jersey state history to eclipse the 2,000 point mark. A pre-season all-American selection by Street and Smith magazine, Dougherty earned all-state honors while leading her Pascack Valley squad to a 27-1 ledger. This year, she is hitting a blistering 62 percent from the floor and 78 percent from the line.

"Laura is a great shooter, the kind of player who can put the ball in the basket from anywhere on the floor," said DiStanislao. "She's a scrappy player with a lot of court savvy."

She is also ranked eighth in a graduating class of 360 with a 3.9 GPA.

CAN YOU TOP THIS? — The 124 points scored by South Carolina's Lady Gamecocks on Saturday were not an ACC record. The Irish men scored 135 points against St. Peter's (the Pope should have stopped that one) in 1970. The Gamecock total was the largest score for an Irish opponent, since Indiana's 106-point outburst during the 1970 men's season (pretty consistent year for the Irish) became the high for men's opponents.

FROM OUR OBSCURE AND LITTLE KNOWN FACTS DEPARTMENT — Did you know that Frank E. Hering, Notre Dame's first basketball coach back in 1898 and a former Notre Dame student, is known as the "Father of Mother's Day?" Hering, who also coached baseball (1896-99) and track (1897-98), delivered over one hundred speeches around the country by 1909 in favor of making the second Monday in May some sort of "Mother's Day."

By 1909, the governors of many states proclaimed it as a holiday and even pardoned some prisoners in commemoration. U.S. President Woodrow Wilson made the date official in 1914, and in 1925 the American War Mothers proclaimed Hering as the "Father of Mother's Day."

The question still remains, who is the "Mother of Father's Day?"
