Begin arrives in U.S., discusses package

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and his top Cabinet ministers arrived yesterday for talks with President Reagan that could seal the fate of the administration's embattled $8.5 billion arms package for Saudi Arabia.

Reagan, who will be meeting Begin for the first time, apparently is prepared to offer the Israeli leader closer military links with the United States, possibly including access to intelligence information gathered by American reconnaissance satellites.

Administration officials hope Begin will muffle his opposition to the Saudi arms sale, which faces a close vote next month in Congress.

"This could be a milestone in strengthening our relationship," a senior official told reporters yesterday. He said that while Reagan will not offer a defense alliance — which Begin has long wanted — other measures are being considered. These include storing equipment in Israel for American forces to use in an emergency.

"We both agree on the Soviet threat, directly and indirectly," said the official, who refused to be identified by name or job.

Begin, who is on his 12th visit to the United States, has criticized the Saudi arms sale as "endangering very seriously the security of Israel." He is expected to reiterate this position when he sees Reagan today.

But an Israeli official, who insisted on anonymity, said Begin does not plan to mount a full-scale public attack on the sale while he is in the United States. "It will be a low-key approach," he said.

Other top issues on the agenda include the resumption in two weeks of Israeli-Egyptian negotiations on Palestinian autonomy and the outlook for the current ceasefire in Lebanon. The Israeli government has voiced concern about the rearming of Palestinian guerrillas in the south by Libya and other Arab supporters of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Reagan called in Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger for lunch yesterday to prepare for his meetings with Begin.

The Israeli leader, meanwhile, planned a quiet day at Blair House, the presidential guest quarters across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

He was cheered on his arrival from New York by hundreds of supporters of Israel who gathered on a street corner carrying friendly signs and singing songs. Eleanor Parness, a music teacher, played an accordion to lead her 6th grade students from the Charles E. Smith Jewish Day School in Rockville, Md.

The five Airborne Warning and Cotel System planes Reagan wants to sell Saudi Arabia are able to scan air operations for 200 miles. The arms deal also would include equipment to enhance the range and firepower of the 62 F-15 jet fighters the United States will sell the Saudis beginning in 1983. That equipment would make the Saudi fighters capable of reaching Israeli territory.

Football weekends

ID's needed to enter ND halls

By BOB VONDERHEIDE
News Staff

In an attempt to reduce theft and vandalism on home football weekends, Notre Dame hall staffs will only allow Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students and their registered guests to enter residence halls on those nights, as mandated by a recent directive from the Dean of Students Office.

The directive, effective 7 p.m. Friday, dictates that only one door of each hall will be open and that a member of the hall staff will be stationed at the door making sure that only ND-SMC students and their registered guests enter.

Any ND-SMC student unknown to the hall staff member on duty will have to show an ID card in order to enter the hall.

The new policy will be in effect for all future home football weekend (both Friday and Saturday) nights.

The purpose of the directive is to stop outsiders from stealing students' property and money and to prevent future hall vandalism.

Although Dean of Students James Roemer and Vice-President for Student Affairs Father John Van Wolvlear signed the directive, the rectors themselves suggested that the policy be drafted.

"It stems from the concern of the rectors that on home football weekends a lot of vandalism was occurring," said the chairperson of the Rectors Committee, Brother Pete Mahoney. "It's not a sort of gестапо approach. We just thought we needed some way of keeping the outsiders out."

The rectors cited three major reasons for the new directive, according to Zaum Rector Father Thomas King. In addition to stolen property and vandalism, the rectors were concerned about the legal problems stemming from underage high school students crashing parties.

"Anybody has been able to walk into those halls," said Dean of Students James Roemer. "(The new directive) will give the hall residents the assurance that there aren't stran-

Angel Island

Chinese recall ugly past

By FRANCES d'EMILIO
Associated Press Writer

ANGEL ISLAND STATE PARK, Calif. (AP) — "Angel Island. Shhh!" I heard that so much from my father, it's almost like one word. "AngellandShhh!"

Paul Chow vividly recalls his father's admonition. Between 1910 and 1940, some 75,000 Chinese came to the United States. Most, including the elder Chow, awaited entry to Gam Saan — the Golden Mountain, as they called California — at the U.S. Immigration Station on Angel Island.

Like better-known Ellis Island in New York Harbor, where legions of Europeans first saw their promised land, Angel Island was the first stop for Asian immigrants.

But many recall their stay with only bitterness.

They were locked up like criminals. They slept stacked on steel bunks six high. The reward for rebellion was a bare windowless closet.

For decades this shabby chapter in American history lay virtually unexamined. Humiliated Chinese-Americans — nearly all of those who entered at Angel Island were Chinese — would not speak of it.

Besides, many had entered with false papers, "paper sons" whose documents made them sons of merchants, teachers and U.S. citizens. Those were the privileged, exempted under the Chinese Exclusion Act of 1882, the first U.S. law to deny entry to a specific ethnic group.

Now the unpleasant story is being told — by Chow, whose Angel Island Immigration Station Historical Advisory Committee wants a museum created in the decaying barracks, last used in 1940.

And told by Felicia Lowe, a Chinese-American filmmaker from San Francisco who is interviewing detainees for a television documentary.

Chow, a state transportation engineer, stands in what was the men's dormitory on an island whose hilly paths and secluded coves in the middle of San Francisco Bay now draw cyclists, hikers and boaters.

On the peeling walls of the dormitory are poems in Chinese, written by immigrants to express outrage and anguish.

The immigrants called this place "The Island." "Angel" seems to mock memories like those held vividly by Howard Tom.

Tom was a bewildered 14 year-old when he arrived on Angel Island in 1922. His father was a naturalized U.S. citizen who returned to China to get his wife, Howard and a baby son.

His family was "separated within two hours. We didn't have a chance to say goodbye." Tom recalls lying on his bunk in the locked dormitory, day-dreaming of pals in China.

Through an interpreter, an immigration official separately grilled him and his parents, seeking to determine if they were, indeed, a family.

"How far from your house to your neighbor's?" they each were asked.

"The three of us all gave the wrong answer. I stretched my hand out to represent so many feet. I didn't tell the interpreter how many feet each arm (length) represented," he said.

The family was detained for two weeks and released only when a Chinese minister in San Francisco vouched for them.

"After 40 some odd years," Tom visited the island as part of a special tour. "I was really upset."

There are some Chinese who say the period is too painful to relive. Genny Lim, who wrote a history of the era, says a "prominent, older" Chinese-American

NAACP's Wilkins dies at age 80

NEW YORK (AP) — Roy Wilkins, who helped lead the civil rights movement to its great legal and legislative victories of the 1950s and 1960s as head of the NAACP, died yesterday of kidney failure. He was 80.

Wilkins entered New York University Hospital on Aug. 18 with cardiac problems and had been in and out of intensive care. Two and a half years earlier at the same hospital, he had a pacemaker implanted to correct an irregular heartbeat.

A funeral service will be held Friday at 11 a.m. in the Community Church of New York, said the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Wilkins was NAACP executive director for the last 22 of his 46 years with the 450,000 member, integrated civil rights organization. He retired in July 1977.

From the White House, President

Reagan led the tributes, declaring:

"Roy Wilkins worked for equality, spoke for freedom and marched for justice. His quiet and unassuming manner masked his tremendous passion for civil and human rights."

The Rev. Joseph Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, lauded Wilkins as "a statesman, scholar and servant in the area of civil rights."

Wilkins' assets — a cool, low key and scholarly manner and his open lines of communication with the nation's power centers — also brought him and the NAACP criticism from firebrand activists in the latter years. They called the association irrelevant and Wilkins an establishment tool.

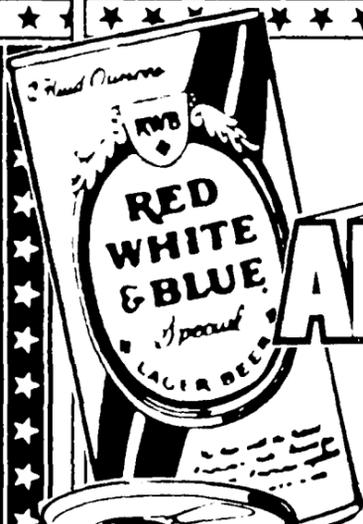

Wilkins had always been willing to be arrested to change a law, but he opposed lawless disorder, black separatism and black power as gers wandering around the halls. The impression we have is that the students are in favor of it. They're the ones especially concerned about it (theft and vandalism)."

"We're not trying to prohibit students from having social events," said Father King. "It's to prevent outsiders from giving the social aspect of Notre Dame a black eye."

Dean Roemer expects that the new policy will inconvenience some students who will forget their ID's. "But I'm hoping it won't be a serious problem."

The rectors plan to evaluate the new policy at a meeting next Monday according to Brother Mahoney.

Presently the responsibility of enforcing the new policy lies with the rectors and the resident assistants. Obviously, some halls, especially the larger ones, will not be able to check every student for an ID.

At Flanner Tower, Resident Assistant (RA) Bob Ritger sees the policy as "damn near impossible to implement." Flanner will just check those people who look suspicious.

"It might be a bit of a pain right now," said Pangborn RA Mike O'Sullivan. "But in the long run, it will cut down on vandalism. Most guys, though, don't know about it and it'll hit them in the face come Friday."

"Right now it's on a trial basis," said Farley RA Sue O'Loughlin, "so I definitely think it's worth a try. But I'm not sure it is as important in the girls' dorms as it is in the guys'."

"I know Morrisey has gotten hit kind of hard," said Morrisey RA Rob Suttman. "I'm glad they're doing something to protect us."

But some RA's aren't so glad. They feel that giving up a football weekend night to watch a door is asking a bit much. The Cavanaugh Hall staff, for example, still has not decided how it will implement the policy.

Despite the problems, Father Richard Conyers of Keenan Hall thinks the policy is needed "before something serious occurs."

woman was horrified by the idea of tourists, calling it "exploitation."

The story is ugly. Detainees recount suicides not mentioned in official records. Modest Chinese women, shocked by lack of privacy in toilets, covered their heads with bags.

This history began to unfold in 1970, thanks to Alan Weiss, then a ranger on the island. Weiss noticed characters carved on the walls and showed them to superiors.

"No one was interested," said Weiss during a recent tour with Chow's group. So he invited a scholar who determined that they were the poems of Chinese immigrants. Enthusiastic Asian-American college students then began to pry loose the island's history.

Restoration work goes slowly. A state grant of $322,000 is exhausted, and $1 million more is needed.

Chow doesn't want to rush the project. Yet, "Patience grows thin when I see people dying" before they can visit the island. He wants survivors of the detention to be purged emotionally, as his father was when he returned in 1956.

"He stood before his bunk and cried. Today I can walk in and forgive America," Chow recalls him saying. "He walked home with me and he was free."

Legal battle continues; states strive for river

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Indiana Attorney General Linley E. Pearson said yesterday the dispute over who owns the Ohio River is "a political matter," as far as Kentucky is concerned.

Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio have been locked in a legal battle for years over ownership of the river which separates the three states.

The United States Supreme Court supposedly settled the matter in 1980 when it ruled that the boundary was the low water mark of the river as it stood in 1792, the year Kentucky became a state.

But that decision just started a new round of court battles to determine where the river ran nearly 200 years ago.

At stake in the dispute, Pearson said, are rights of ownership including the ability to grant construction and dredging permits, land use control and collection of money from fishing licenses and boating permits.

"This is very serious to us," Pearson said yesterday at the first of five public hearings on the issue. "But for Kentucky, it is more of a political matter."

Pearson said the hearings, which will be held this week and next in Cannelton, New Albany, Lawrenceburg and Madison, are to gather information from landowners along the river and explain the state's position.

"The whole point of the NAACP was to establish the Negro as a legal entity with the rights and privileges of a citizen," he said.

It was characteristic that he continued to say "Negro" for a long time after the term "black," which had once been an epithet, was adopted by others of his race.

Everyone's jumping on conservative bandwagon ... now

The best lack all conviction, while the worst are full of passionate intensity.

— W.B. Yeats

That opening epigram aptly describes the current political climate in America. It has been interesting to watch the developing Reagan administration as it assumes control of the federal government and implements its policies. I have very mixed feelings about the first eight months of Reagan as president, but I must say that I'm pleasantly surprised by some of his results, and basically satisfied that the government is in competent, if not capable, hands.

In fact, Reagan has exhibited a stunning mastery of certain aspects of government, these being, among others, brilliant manipulation of the media, solid PR among his constituents, control of the 'hostile' legislature, and, in some respects, needed foreign policy toughness that even opponents must admire and learn from. But on the home front, Reagan policies have left something to be desired. And while this comes as no surprise, there are other more disturbing aspects of the country's shift to the right.

What bothers me the most is the way that most of the politicians have rolled over and played dead, allowing Reagan to impose or eliminate virtually any program that he wishes. Whatever happened to bipartisan exchange, debate, and compromise? A good example of this is the tax weapon, telephone call-in campaign, and utilized Reagan's talents as a persuasive television personality to scare southern Democrats into voting for the Republican plan.

It's obvious that the Republicans mean business, and they are very vocal about it. When this is all over and done with, no one will be able to say that they're surprised. That's one thing I do admire about this administration; they're honest. They are pro-rich and pro-corporation and they make no bones about it. They also want to change (in most cases set the clock back) the social fabric of the country. Blacks? Work hard, shut up, and wait your turn. Women? Stay home and raise your family like a real woman. But none of this is any big secret. And most people are either scared or selfish enough to let them get away with it.

I don't blame the Republicans for their use of the media and their main copy of the New York Times and say "Now I have in my hand over 27 pages of want ads. I ask you, how can there be unemployment in this country?"

Is America as mean-spirited as it now seems? Consider the new personal property limits given to recipients of public aid: the Reagan administration has just decided that $1000 is the limit. Personal property includes appliances, clothes, and personal effects. I can think of several friends of mine who have $1000 in their stereos. The purpose of this property limit is to encourage

But I would also say that the ladder of opportunity has not been fully extended to all Americans (blacks, Hispanics, women, etc.) and that pulling it up now is an act of hypocrisy. Of the many conservatives (and liberals) who claim to be 'self-made' men, 90 percent would have to admit that Democratic policies got them where they are. If weapon, Reagan, in order to get their tax plan passed. What I'm wondering is where was the opposition? Where were the 'liberals' who should have been standing up for their ideals and programs? Most of them were hiding under rocks trying to save their political hides. And so, while liberals lament the coming of the New Right, they also stand by without putting up any kind of opposition. It's funny, because a solid majority of registered voters (50 percent to 35 percent) consider themselves Democrats.

But, as it is becoming more evident everyday, labels no longer describe anything in politics. What we are seeing is a reassessment of social priorities and goals on the part of both liberals and conservatives: in times of economic hardship, everyone becomes a right-winger. And the most vocal of the right-wing become the policy makers. The same thing happened in the 60's, only on Ronald Reagan was really as poor as he would like to make us think, where would he be now without policies such as the New Deal? How many Republicans that are now screaming for the dismantling of government got their educations through the GI Bill, bought their first homes (which probably quintupled in value) with the aid of Federal Housing Authority loans, drive to their exclusive suburbs on federally constructed interstates and expressways, and enjoy vacations at federal water projects and the like? How many rich tobacco farmers are kept that way by federal price supports? The list is endless.

What it comes down to is this: it is time for Democrats and liberal Republicans to stand up and be counted. The alternative is to endure public policy as it is envisioned by men like Jerry Falwell and Richard Viguerie. One of Falwell's favorite tricks is to get on television with a copy of the New York Times and say "Now I have in my hand over 27 pages of want ads. I ask you, how can there be unemployment in this country?"

Is America as mean-spirited as it now seems? Consider the new personal property limits given to recipients of public aid: the Reagan administration has just decided that $1000 is the limit. Personal property includes appliances, clothes, and personal effects. I can think of several friends of mine who have $1000 in their stereos. The purpose of this property limit is to encourage

Reagan in for rough autumn

It is always salutary to see arrogance and power taking a nose dive. But the Reagan people seem to be overdoing it. The moral they point is so apt as to look contrived. Their downfall comes — as in the legendary Chinese curse — from getting what they wanted. The spring triumphs have turned by their own energies into autumn humiliations.

President Reagan was able to power through his tax reductions and budget slashes. Within months of his inauguration, all three of his economic measures were in place: supply-side largesse, fiscal restraint and monetary stinginess. The crowing could be heard throughout the land. Tip O'Neill was prostrate in the dust, and Republicans lined up to give him another kick.

Even at that moment there were ironies. Reagan's power was being celebrated. The weak presidency was re-imperialized. Laments over congressional uppityness turned to concern over its impotence. The man who promised to get government off our back became a Ron on our back, overriding the representatives of the people with his triumphant new vision.

But it often happens that, just when a president feels he is asserting power, he is losing control. President Nixon came to office determined to show his toughness in Vietnam, and before long Henry Kissinger was chasing around Europe, sneaking in at garden doorways, trying to find some Vietnamese he could negotiate with. In the same way, Reagan's people must now pick Tip O'Neill up out of the dirt, dust him off, sweet-talk him, and ask him to bail them out of the mess they got into by succeeding.

As luck would have it, the Reagan disaster is taking shape just as a book written to celebrate the Reagan triumph comes into the bookstores. Rowland Evans and Robert Novak wrote The Reagan Revolution to celebrate supply-side economics and a renewed Cold War. In the book, the old economics is said to have failed by the "rational barometer" of the stock market — this appears just as Reagan's moves have led to a market mini-crash.

Evans and Novak deride the caution of old economists who asked for hard estimates of the probable consequences of Reagan's plan. David Stockman at OMB is praised because he "quickly dislodged the OMB bureaucrats and brought in outside economists who forecast greater revenue." Stockman threw out the econometric models and relied on "a scenario of the therapeutic effects from supply-side cuts." Old fogeys were dismissed because they could not see "how merely the announcement of tax reduction can cause expansionary business currents."

Garry Wills

Well, tax cuts are not only announced, now, but mandated — and the expansion is not coming. The old fogeys said it would not, and they were right. The rosy scenario was always an attempt to have everything at once — expansion without inflation, cuts without recession, a runaway defense budget without stimulation of prices, productivity in a tight-money situation.

Lovers of the non-existent "free market" have always been deniers of original sin. They think greed is beneficent, and all will turn out well if all are turned free to scramble for themselves. As Murray Kempton just wrote of such market idolators: "Hayek and Von Mises owe the immutability of their economic principles to the luck that these principles exist in an uncluttered world where no one lives."

That unreality always gives market people their excuse. When their programs fail (as in England), they say they did not really fail; because they were not fully tried. An intransigent situation made it impossible to get back to a "pure" market — something that always happens. But a program always too pure for the messy particulars of the real is a program for disaster. Rather than recognize this, market people slog along like Margaret Thatcher, trying "more of the same" to correct the disaster caused by their medicine in the first place.

The consequence would be satisfying to the moralist but for the fact that so many people suffer the consequences of the purists' arrogance. David Stockman came to office with the aura of a wizard, just like Robert McNamara with his slide-rule whiz kids in 1960. The Stockman of the Evans and Novak book — brashly deriding the cautious forecasters, bringing in his own whiz kids — is already on his way to becoming the broken and defeated McNamara of 1967. The faster the rocket goes up, the sooner it begins to fall.

WHC appeals for fasters

By most estimates, more than 500 million people — roughly one out of every nine — suffer from serious malnutrition today, compared with 100 million to 200 million — one out of 14-25 people in the 1950s.

The New York Times, Aug. 16, 1981.

At the outset of every semester, the World Hunger Coalition appeals to the students of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's to sacrifice their Wednesday lunches. The dining halls in return will donate money ($.75 per faster per meal at ND and $.45 at SMC) to the World Hunger Coalition. All of the funds the Coalition obtains through the fasting program are directly contributed to numerous hunger relief projects from Bangladesh to Chile to the Southeast Neighborhood Center in South Bend. The Hunger Coalition corresponds frequently with many of the most heavily supported programs and are, therefore, ensured of their validity.

Throughout the year the World Hunger Coalition will sponsor several speakers, conferences, and other educational programs. A debate has been tentatively scheduled for early next semester pitting the Nestle Corporation against INFACT (Infant Formula Action Coalition). The subject matter will focus on the ethics of Nestle's marketing tactics of their infant milk formula in the Third World.

Today and tomorrow of this week, ND and SMC students will have the opportunity to sign up for the fast. Tables will be set up in all of the dorms and dining halls for this purpose. The purpose of this fasting program is not only to raise money, but also to raise campus awareness of world hunger through our own slight suffering on Wednesday afternoons.

This program has been successful in the past, but the Hunger Coalition would like to make this semester the most productive ever.

Holy Cross Brothers name Baltrinic head

The Provincial of the Brothers of Holy Cross recently announced the appointment of Brother David Baltrinic as director of Vocations for the Midwest Province of Brothers.

Brother David will serve the Notre Dame community by conducting a weekly discussion group on spirituality and ministry, serving as spiritual director and providing vocational counseling for students considering the vowed life of a Brother.

In commenting on the life of Brothers in the Church today and on his role as Director of Vocations, Brother said:

"Brotherhood, as a way of life, is very much in tune with the concerns of our day and the movement of the Spirit in the Church and in the lives of young people. There are among students today, more than ever before, a real hunger for God, a longing to be part of a caring community, and a desire to be of service to others. This same hunger, longing, and desire are at the root of the Brothers' vocation, for our calling is one of living the Gospel through a life of prayer, community sharing, and service to others.

As Brothers we are probably the freest people in the Church today. We do not have the sacramental responsibilities of priesthood, nor do we have to fight for our place in the Church and society as women must, nor do we have the responsibilities of married life. No, we are free to assess the needs of our day and to respond accordingly.

"There is today a new sensitivity to the cries of the poor, the oppressed, the hungry and marginalized peoples of our society and world. As Brothers we have the freedom to respond wholeheartedly to these cries. There is also today a great desire among Christians to commit themselves to Jesus through prayer, community sharing and service to others. The Brothers' vocation is a timely and vital calling, one that vibrates with the movement of the Spirit in today's world."

Brother Baltrinic joined the Brothers of Holy Cross in 1958 and made perpetual profession of vows in 1963. From 1963 to 1978 he was at Gilmour Academy in Gates Mills, Ohio where he served as principal, teacher, resident counselor and campus minister in the area of student retreats. He was a member of the Gilmour Board of Trustees and the Director of the Brothers' community for nine years.

During the past two years he has been involved with student groups at Notre Dame — CILA, FLOC, Right to Life, World Hunger Coalition, prayer groups — and served as a member of the Campus Renewal Team for the colleges in Indiana. He received his B.A. degree from the University of Notre Dame in 1963, a M.A. degree in Administration and Supervision from Loyola University in 1969 and a M.A. degree in Theology from the University of Notre Dame in 1979. He also did graduate work in spirituality, group dynamics and American literature.

Brother David's residence and office are at Columbia Hall. He may be reached at 3215 or 6284.

Espionage charges

Cooke wins opening test

ANDREWS AIR FORCE BASE, Md. (AP) — A pale and tight-lipped 2nd Lt. Christopher M. Cooke won a key opening test in his espionage trial yesterday as an Air Force tribunal agreed to hear a defense claim that the military owes him immunity for having spelled out his dealings with the Soviets.

Cooke, former deputy commander of a Titan II missile launch crew at McConnell AFB, Kan., has been charged with 11 counts of failing to report Soviet contacts and three of conveying defense information. If convicted on all charges, he could be sentenced to up to 50 years at hard labor.

But famed criminal attorney F. Lee Bailey told the tribunal Air Force authorities had conspired "to walk away from" a promise to drop the case against his client in exchange for his account to investigators of his contacts with Soviet officials.

On that issue, Lt. Col. David Orser, the presiding military judge, awarded Cooke the right to call as a witness his first military attorney, Capt. Francis Predrotty, who was assigned to represent him four days after his arrest May 5.

Normally, a person may not act as counsel and witness at a military trial. But Orser agreed to make an exception because of the importance of Predrotty's testimony to Cooke's contention that the charges against him should be dismissed immediately.

Cooke himself said little more than "Yes Sir," in the preliminary proceedings, which dwelt principally on whether he fully understood his rights.

Pedrotty is one of three people who were involved in a key telephone conversation on May 9, during Cooke's interrogation. The defense contends the Air Force made an offer of immunity which should now protect Cooke from prosecution.

The other parties were Lt. Col. Jerome Hoffmann, the Air Force investigator conducting the investigation, and Brig. Gen. Claude Teagarden, the staff judge advocate, or chief counsel, for the Strategic Air Command.

The conversation occurred after Cooke had made an initial statement acknowledging contacts with Soviet officials but denying any major wrongdoing. At the time, Cooke was resisting taking a lie detector test to verify his statement.

Orser made no ruling on whether Cooke is entitled to immunity. He ordered the court room closed to the public shortly after the court-martial began so that he could consider another preliminary matter, a request by the government that portions of the court-martial be closed to prevent disclosure of classified data about the Titan II nuclear missile.

Cooke, in his initial statement in May, subsequently made public, said that he made contact with the Soviets in hopes that they would help him write an academic paper on U.S.-Soviet relations that would propel him into an analyst's job with the State Department or the Central Intelligence Agency.

doesn't, I have to call an audible that suits the formations. I have a lot of responsibility and flexibility."

Sophomore Stacey Toran returns to man the weakside cornerback position this year after starting nine games there last season. Toran hails from nearby Indianapolis, and at 6-4 and 195-pounds, boasts excellent size and speed.

"Inexperience hurt Stacey a little last year," notes Johnson, "but he has returned with a lot of confidence in himself this year, and we have every bit of confidence that he can do the job."

Rod Bone will assume the free safety spot this season and, although he can claim starting experience, this will be his first full season as a starter. A 6-2, 200-pound junior who calls Las Cruces, N.M., home, Bone may be the fastest member of the defensive backfield.

Says Johnson, "Rod is the person who really has to come through for us. The only thing he lacks, really, is experience in a starting role. He's got everything else."

On obvious passing downs, Notre Dame fans should look for either sophomore Chris Brown or senior Steve Cichy to put in an appearance.

Brown is a 6-1, 195-pound native of Owensboro, Ky., who played substantially as a freshman last year. "Chris is definitely not a newcomer to our secondary," points out Duer-son.

Johnson adds that, "Chris is almost like one of our starters. It's going to be hard to keep him out of the starting lineup."

Steve Cichy's name should be familiar to most Irish followers. A 6-2, 210-pound resident of Fargo, N.D., Cichy started at strong safety his sophomore season but sustained a neck injury against Purdue last year that threatened his football career and ended the season for him.

"Steve has been a starter for us and is coming back," comments Johnson. "Right now we are trying to get him a little more confidence because of the neck injury."

Top backups in the secondary this season look to be senior Mike Masini and sophomore Daane Spielmaker. "Both have done a good job and will see some playing time," mentioned Johnson.

Freshmen Joe Johnson and Kevin Sherman also will provide depth in the backfield, as both have proved to Johnson that they can play at Notre Dame.

Overall, things are looking up in the Notre Dame secondary and if Jim Johnson's crew looks as good on the field Saturday as it does on paper, it might just start proving all those preseason experts correct.

reported to practice out of shape. "To be quite honest, I was a bit disappointed in the condition of some of our players as we began practicing," says Hunter. "However, we've had a strong three weeks of practice and everyone has worked hard. I feel we're ready for the opener."

BEGINNER'S LUCK — For those who believe in tradition, Saturday's football opener can be nothing other than a win for the Irish. Twenty-one of Gerry Faust's 23 head-coaching predecessors won the first games of their careers at Notre Dame. Only Frank Hering (1896) and Elmer Layden (1934) failed in their opening bids as Irish mentors.

As a team, Notre Dame owns an overwhelming 79-8-5 record in season openers, including a 58-7-3 success rate at home. The Irish opened the 1980 season with a 31-10 win over Purdue here and posted a 12-10 win at Michigan in 1979. A 3-0 setback to Missouri in 1978 was the last opening day blemish on the Irish books.

TIGER TAMERS — Notre Dame and LSU, who square off for only the third time this weekend, split their previous pair of grid encounters. A 24-yard Scott Hempel field goal with 2:54 left in the game gave the Irish a 3-0 victory in 1970, while the Tigers avenged that loss the following season with a 28-8 win in Baton Rouge.

The Irish and the Tigers are slated to meet three more times this decade, in 1984 and 1986 at Baton Rouge and 1985 back here in South Bend.

GET YOUR SPIRIT UP — Notre Dame officials are expecting as many as 10,000 people to attend Gerry Faust's first Irish pep rally on Friday evening. The rally, which is scheduled to start at 7 p.m., has thus been wisely moved from Stepan Oven to the basketball courts behind Flanner.

FURTHER FAUST FOLKLORE — This month's issue of Inside Sports features 20 questions and answers about college football. The answer to question 7 ("How many stories will we read about new Notre Dame coach Gerry Faust?") supplies some more fuel for the Notre Dame legend machine.

Along with visiting a nursing home in the South Bend area and giving Notre Dame coffee mugs to each of the residents, Faust was also the auctioneer at a charity event in Cincinnati this summer. Running short of items to sell, Faust removed his shirt and started taking offers. It sold for $65.

According to the magazine account, a man in the back of the room shouted, "Hey, Gerry, I'll give you $30 for your pants." Faust hesitated, then slipped off his slacks and raised $230 more.

And who said Gerry Faust wouldn't give you the shirt off his back?

THESE BOOTS ARE MADE FOR WALKER — Inside Sports also has great expectations for Irish freshman Mark Brooks. In question 18 ("Who is the next Herschel Walker?"), the magazine looks to the 6-3, 225-pound Brooks to follow in the quick footsteps of Georgia's franchise-builder.

BOOK REPORT — Faust's story was so interesting that over a year ago Danny Dressman, the sport editor of the Cincinnati Enquirer, decided to write a book about Moeller High School's phenom coach. When Faust was named head coach at Notre Dame, it added an entirely new chapter to the book. In fact, the book was rearranged so that the press conference introducing Faust at Notre Dame became the lead story.

The final product, entitled Gerry Faust: Notre Dame's Man in Motion, is now available in the bookstore for $12.95.

A DOUBLE SHOT — NCAA statisticians annually rate each college's football schedule in terms of the records of the teams each school plays. Notre Dame's schedule, which features six 1980 bowl teams (Michigan, Purdue, Florida State, Navy, Penn State and Miami), is rated fifth toughest in the country heading into 1981.

The four teams ranked above the Irish in schedule difficulty are Florida State, Penn State, Miami and Georgia Tech. All four are opponents of the Irish this year.

Last year, Notre Dame's slate was rated ninth by pre-season statistics and was ranked 13th at season's end.

PIGSKIN PENTATHLON — Over the last five years, Notre Dame ranks as the 15th winningest team among Division I-A schools during the regular season. The Irish sport a 42-12-1 five-year mark, while Alabama stands atop the quintennial performance ratings with a 48-7-0 mark.

Irish booters kick off campaign at Grace

The Notre Dame soccer team begins its fifth varsity season this afternoon when it travels to Winona Lake, Ind., to take on Grace College. A pre-season match-up between the two teams saw Notre Dame walk away with an 8-0 victory. After that, the Irish return home to face Loyola on Friday and St. Louis in a key match-up on Sunday.

Along with St. Louis, Notre Dame will face Top 10 powerhouses Indiana and Akron this season as part of a schedule which should give the Irish a chance for national recognition.

"This year's schedule is, without question, our toughest yet," says Coach Rich Hunter. The caliber of the team's opponents this season is evidence of how far Notre Dame's soccer program has come since it earned varsity status in 1977. The Irish have compiled a 77-21-3 record, all under the guidance of Hunter. Last year, they finished 20-7, their third straight 20-win season.

The team will play 22 games in all this year, including 12 at home. Of these, half will be played on Cartier Field and the other the newly sodded and fenced-in Alumni Field, located just west of Cartier.

Returning to the squad this season will be 15 lettermen, and although Notre Dame's all-time leading scorer Kevin Lovejoy (67 goals, 19 assists) will not be among them, Hunter is confident that this year's forward line will feature a more balanced and consequently, more effective scoring attack.

Leading the Irish on the field will be co-captains Sami Kahali at center forward and Jim Stein at center fullback. Kahali shared top scoring honors last year (11 goals, eight assists) with Lovejoy. Stein is considered by Hunter as "one of the finest defenders in the midwest." He will anchor what should be a strong defense this season.

The team has anxiously been preparing for today's opener and Hunter is satisfied with the way his troops have performed in practice. He admits, however, that he was concerned when some of his players

Boasts experience

Deep secondary big plus

By MIKE MCMANUS
Sports Writer

Optimism abounds on the Notre Dame campus this week as the long-awaited opener against the Louisiana St. Tigers is finally only a few days away. A new coach combined with old hands at nearly every position points toward a deep and talented 1981 Irish squad. And with the possible exception of the linebacking corps, the Notre Dame secondary appears to be the deepest spot of all on the roster.

The defensive backfield that many pre-season prognosticators have proclaimed best in the nation is headed by senior John Krimm. The "old man" of the secondary, Krimm is a 6-2, 190-pound resident of Columbus, Ohio, who is entering his third season as a starter for the Irish. Krimm has been named a pre-season all-American by The Sporting News. Jim Johnson, who is doubling as secondary coach and defensive coordinator this season, feels, "John's biggest assets are his great speed and intelligence. We play him on the wide side because of his speed and he has become our big-play man in returning interceptions and punts."

Few Notre Dame fans will forget his 49-yard interception return for a touchdown against Michigan last year.

Handling the strong safety spot this season will be another hardy veteran, junior Dave Duerson. Duerson, a 6-2, 200-pound native of Muncie, Ind., has been a starter since his freshman year and comes equipped with outstanding speed and strength, which combine to make him a ferocious tackler. In addition, this season Johnson is looking to Duerson to assume the leadership role vacated by the graduated Tom Gibbons.

"Dave really understands the game of football, and we have a lot of confidence in him. We look for Dave to be our quarterback out there."

Duerson is looking forward to the responsibilities that are being thrust upon him this year.

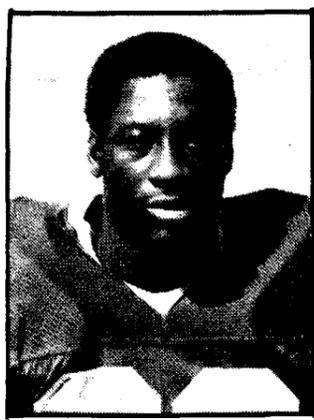

"I like the responsibility. Once Crable makes the initial call that comes in from the sidelines it's my job to check the formations and determine if the original call suits the particular formations. If it
