Filming concluded on rosary

By DAVID RICKABAUGH
Senior Staff Reporter

Filming concluded yesterday afternoon in the Annenberg Auditorium of the Snite Museum on a Thanksgiving television special on the rosary.

Yesterday's interview segment between the program's narrator Bob Newhart and Notre Dame Head Football Coach Gerry Faust completed two days of filming on the ND campus.

The program, part of "The Family Theater" series, features the work of Mother Teresa with the underprivileged. The filming of the segments on the Albanian nun took place in Washington D.C.

Along with Coach Faust, Newhart interviewed Notre Dame President Fr. Theodore Hesburgh C.S.C. and introduced the Notre Dame Glee Club's performance of the Notre Dame Victory March and alma mater.

Saint Mary's Lake served as the setting for the Glee Club segment, while the interviews took place in the Annenberg Auditorium. The program also includes shots of various campus landmarks.

Rev. Patrick Peyton, the "rosary priest," created the idea for the show and supervised yesterday's events. Recently he provided an Easter special featuring Princess Grace Kelly of Monaco as narrator.

During the interview yesterday when asked to comment on the statement that the position of head coach at Notre Dame is the second hardest job next to the President of the United States Faust said, "I don't know about the presidency but I like the job at Notre Dame. Reagan played here, maybe he could answer the question better than I could."

Faust, on the subject of the film, stated that he joined the Legion of Mary twelve years ago and for the last twelve years he has not missed a day.

Newhart, the star of the Saturday comedy "The Bob Newhart Show," acted as the host and narrator of the program.

According to the program staff the project will air over 200 stations and reach every major market.

Brady seeks education about rape, incest, abuse

"Nobody's angry here. How come I'm the only one angry?" asked Katherine Brady in the library auditorium last night.

By the end of the evening there were some angry people in the crowd of more than eighty listening to Brady, author of Father's Days her own story of incest.

Brady is not her real name but her story is a true one.

The feminist is angry about the way women are treated in this country and wants education about rape, child abuse and incest.

Murder or accident?

Mysterious death prompts FBI investigation

By BOB DVORCHAK
Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The crumpled body of Chen Wenchen will be buried tomorrow in Taiwan, but no graveyard ceremony can lay to rest the suspicions and mysteries concerning the circumstances of his death in a five-story fall.

Chen, a 31-year-old native of Taipei, taught statistics at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh. He was also a supporter of a Taiwanese independence movement.

Because of that activity, his death in Taipei on July 3 — while officially ruled an accident or a suicide — is thought by some to be a political assassination. And that belief has sent a chill through many Taiwanese in the United States.

Students who attended a July memorial service for Chen at Carnegie-Mellon wore masks or covered their heads with paper bags. The mourners said they feared that other students were spies for the Taiwanese government.

"Professor Chen's death has left every Taiwanese who believes in democracy and freedom terrified," said CMU President Richard Cyert, an outspoken critic of Taiwan's handling of the death.

"If a professor from a prestigious American university can meet a mysterious death without the cause of death being made clear, no student is safe. Each one who has spoken against the (Taiwanese government) may become a 'suicide' or the 'victim of an accidental death.' ... My own opinion is that he was murdered by the secret police."

In the United States, Chen's death has prompted an FBI investigation and congressional hearings in Washington.

Chen's future seemed bright May 20 when he returned to his homeland for the first time in six years. He had just been appointed to a new three-year term at CMU, and he and his wife, Su-jen, had planned their vacation to show off their year-

Construction on SMC library continues right on schedule

By MARY O'KEEFE

Construction of Saint Mary's new library continues on schedule, according to Sister Bernice Hollenhorst, Library Director, while plans for the inside of the library near completion.

Current plans call for three floors plus first and second mezzanine levels. The lower level of the building will serve primarily for library services with an Instructional Material Center.

The curriculum lab presently located in the education department in Madaleva Hall will move to the center providing textbooks and audio visual materials for student teachers. The center will house an audio visual area with a preview room, a work room, an equipment room and a control room for use on an individual basis.

A Special Collections Center containing all the materials in the Archives and Rare Book room now, located in Regina Hall, will relocate on the lower level of the new building. An exhibit room displaying memorabilia collected over the years will connect with this area.

Students who want to continue studying after the library closes will be allowed to stay in an all-night study area open 24 hours and directly connected with an underground tunnel leading to Lemans Hall.

The main floor of the library combines the circulation and reserve books desk, a microfilm area, a reference and periodical room, card catalogs and duplicating machines.

An administrative wing, on the main floor provides a reception area, administrative offices, a staff lounge and a conference room for use by the library's staff and administration.

All floors of the library will contain bookshelves located in the center of the floor and will provide a variety of seating including study carrels, tables and lounge areas.

"Study areas will be dispersed throughout the library," according to Sister Bernice. "The second floor mezzanine will provide a sitting deck for students to study outside when the weather is nice."

Group study rooms for students will be on the second floor and second floor mezzanine level. One of these rooms will be used as a typing room. The plans call for 12 faculty research centers on the first floor mezzanine and also a group study room on the second floor large enough to seat 16 to 32 students.

The Library Dedication Committee plans to finalize the details of the dedication ceremony at their meeting this Thursday.

TUESDAY FOCUS

Taiwan has been ruled by martial law ever since Mao Tse-tung's Communists drove Chiang Kai-shek and his Nationalists off the mainland. Chiang's Kuomintang government has ruled Taiwan since 1949, a year before Chen was born.

But Chen supported an independence movement that advocates more democracy for Taiwan by breaking with both the Communists and the Nationalists.

Such talk is considered seditious in Taiwan. On the basis of his first interrogation, Chen was denied an exit visa and told he had to be questioned further by the Taiwan Garrison Command, the nation's top security force.

Security police picked Chen up at 8:30 a.m. July 2. Officers said they released him after questioning him for 13 hours. He never made it home.

Instead, he went to the home of Teng Wei-hsiang, who had studied with Chen in the United States. Teng said Chen told him he feared he was being followed by government agents. Chen left at 12:30 a.m., Teng said.

About 4 a.m., Chen's body thudded to the lawn of the National Taiwan University. The autopsy report listed 13 broken ribs, three broken bones in his back, a cracked hip and extensive internal injuries.

Wang Chin-hsi, chief of the Garrison Command, said Chen "probably committed suicide because he feared being arrested for his crimes."

But in a 7,000-word final report issued July 20, the district attorney's office in Taipei cleared Chen of any alleged crimes. It concluded he "could have committed suicide or died in an accidental fall."

On July 31, the parliament released results of its investigation, concluding he died in an accident caused by dizziness or "mental disturbance" after the interrogation. Doubtful Chen killed himself.

In a news conference held in Pittsburgh last Friday, Mrs. Chen said she doesn't accept either official ruling.

"My husband's death was not a suicide or an accident. It was a murder," she said.

"Suicide was not his way. He had a future full of potential. Nor was his death an accident," she continued, saying that certain cuts and bruises went unexplained in the Taiwanese government's autopsy report.

"From the minute that I saw his body ... I knew it was not an accident. There were just too many unexplainable external wounds."

Government continues car tests

The government said yesterday, it will continue auto crash tests, but no longer will assign pass or fail grades to particular models and will reassess whether a single test is enough to make an accurate judgement. Raymond Peck, head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, said the old practice of giving cars a pass or fail grade may have misled the public at times and been unfair to manufacturers. But he said the agency will continue the tests and will release numerical results, leaving it to the public to judge a car's crash worthiness. Peck said in an interview that labeling a car as having passed or failed the tests—a practice strongly criticized by the auto industry—may exaggerate the danger of some autos while conveying "a false sense of security" about others. The crash rating began two years ago and became a central part of the agency's consumer information program under former President Carter's NHTSA administrator, Joan Claybrook. AP

Entrants' fees go to hospital

Entrants in a $1 million fish derby misunderstood if they thought all their entry fees would go to Children's Orthopedic Hospital, say hospital and derby officials. Schuck's Auto Supply, the sponsor, was to give the hospital just over $10,000 yesterday but of $124,000 the derby raised, said spokesman Dan McConnell, Schuck's planned all along to deduct expenses. "It was not made clear," said Beverly Lambert, president of the hospital board of trustees. "Maybe when people thought they bought their entry fee that the whole $10 would go to us." Entrants each paid $10 to try to win $1 million on Sept. 6 by catching a tagged salmon. No one caught the fish, but Schuck's will pay $10,000 to anyone who nabs it by Nov. 1; other donors added another $3,000. AP

Soviet workers invited to Poland

Solidarity members issued an open letter yesterday inviting critical Soviet workers to Poland to see first-hand how the independent labor federation operates. "We hope that when we meet, we will explain many problems and maybe your attitude toward Solidarity and all its members will obtain proper judgment," the letter from the union presidium of Warsaw's PZL aircraft factory told Soviet workers in a daily Solidarity news bulletin.

While not mentioning the letter, the official Soviet news agency Tass accused "extremist leaders" in Solidarity of stepping up efforts to overthrow the socialist system. The attack was the latest in a torrent of sharp criticism unleashed by the union's first congress.

In a dispatch from Warsaw, Tass said Solidarity leaders "strive to heighten the atmosphere of an anti-socialist and anti-Soviet psychosis...to further pursue their attack on socialism with a view to taking over power in Poland." AP

God violates U.S. Constitution

Madalyn Murray O'Hair told a federal appeals court yesterday the Texas Constitution's requirement that public officers recognize God violates the U.S. Constitution. Mrs. O'Hair and her atheist group, the Society of Separationists, were challenging a Texas provision as a violation of the constitutional separation of church and state. A similar provision in Maryland was struck down by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1961, Mrs. O'Hair told the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals. Susan Bradshaw, of the state attorney general's office, said the suit was pointless because the 105-year-old constitutional section is not used. AP

Burglarized family prays

A family of Christian Scientists terrorized by three bandits prayed for two hours before they called police, authorities said. Bruce Suthergreen, 62, his wife and daughter told police they prayed for the return of their property—about $200 and some jewelry—rather than call for help after the thieves left their home early Sunday. Three ski-masked men entered the house before dawn Sunday, ransacked the home and left the family bound up. When the family freed themselves, they prayed. AP

*Third encyclicalPope supports worker's rights

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II has written the third encyclical of his papacy, a major document summarizing his views on the rights of workers and their position in modern society.

The encyclical, a letter addressed by the pope to patriarchs, archbishops and other church leaders, will be released by the Vatican today.

The leading Milan newspaper Corriere della Sera said the document will stress the importance of labor unions, the dignity of farm work, the particular problems of the handicapped and emigrant workers and the impact of technological developments.

In announcing the encyclical during his noon message Sunday, the pope said the document was "dedicated to human labor and to workers themselves," a theme he has taken up often since his election as pope in October 1978.

In his travel the pope has often underlined the rights of the working man and has welcomed the development of the independent union Solidarity in his native Poland.

Donning a hard hat in a steel mill in Terni, Italy, in March, the pope declared that workers had a right to struggle for "a just salary and a certain participation in management." During a visit to a sugar plantation in the Philippines, he strongly defended workers' rights to organize into unions.

The pontiff has given his endorsement to the efforts by the independent Solidarity union movement to represent workers in Poland. But in a meeting with Solidarity leader Lech Walsea at the Vatican in January the pope urged that the union exercise prudence and moderation in its dealings with the government for the good of the entire country.

The Soviet Union and other East bloc neighbors have been increasingly critical of the series of labor reforms that have occurred in Poland since Solidarity's formation during a wave of strikes a year ago.

The new encyclical was delayed by the shooting of the pope May 13, and John Paul said he put the finishing touches to it during his convalescence at the papal summer palace in Castel Gandolfo.

He said he wrote it for 90th anniversary of Pope Leo XIII's Rerum Novarum — the first major papal encyclical on social issues. That document maintained the priority of man and his filly over the state and affirmed man's right to possess property and earn a living wage.

An encyclical is one of the most important ways that a pope expresses his thoughts on specific matters.

In his first encyclical, issued in March 1979, Pope John Paul II criticized the materialism of Communist and capitalist countries and warned that the arms race threatens destruction of mankind. In the second, issued last December, he said the church must speak out for mercy.

Social Concerns film series increases student awareness

By ROBERT MAROVICH
News Staff

The Notre Dame Social Concerns Organization, in conjunction with the Center for Experiential Learning, is sponsoring a Social Concerns film series, which begins tonight.

The Student Government-based organization will pre-sent "To Kill a Mockingbird" tonight, Wednesday, and Thursday in the Engineering Auditorium. There will be no admission charge.

"Hospital", starring George C. Scott, will be shown September 18 and 19 in Washington Hall. Admission will be fifty cents.

The film "Breaker Morant" will be shown at the Engineering Auditorium September 22, 23, and 24, and at the Annenberg Auditorium in the Snite Museum of Art September 25 and 26.

All presentations will run at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

"The film series is designed to draw students out of their everyday atmosphere and increase their awareness of outside events," explained Jim Wolfe, Student Government commissioner of the Social Concerns Organization. "The series is the main program for the group and has been for several years."

Wolfe said that the group is also planning a Neighborhood Roots program, designed to orient ND/SMC students to the South Bend Community and encourage their evaluation of the problems the areas are facing. The group is tentatively planning to fund seminars sponsored by the Center for Experiential Learning. Last year's seminar was held in Washington, D.C.

'Drastic action'

Reagan proposes more cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Having already scaled down his planned increases for defense, President Reagan eyed further cuts in domestic spending yesterday on grounds that "we face the choice of taking drastic action or inviting economic calamity."

Even so, he said, the reductions can be achieved "without any damage to any of government's vital services."

The president's deputy press secretary, Larry Speakes, declined to rule out Social Security as one of the areas where additional cuts would be made. He said the total reductions in the upcoming fiscal 1982 budget would be less than $18 billion.

From a meeting with conservative congressional Democrats to a lunch with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and the House Republican leader, the president paid heed to budgetary matters, even as he presided at a ceremony officially proclaiming the bicentennial celebration of the revolutionary victory at Yorktown.

"At home, our enemy is no longer redcoats but red ink," Reagan said.

"After 19 deficits in the last 20 years and a national debt of nearly a trillion dollars, we face the choice of taking drastic action or inviting economic calamity," Reagan said. "Our administration and I think the American people have the resolve to do what we know is right and what we know must be done. Make no mistake. We will."

"I believe the spirit of Yorktown and the spirit of our revolution is still alive and well in America. I'm confident that if we work together and reason together and stick together, then just like our forefathers, we'll be all right," he said.

Speakes said "right now there are no plans for further cuts in entitlements in '82." Entitlements are the federal programs including Social Security and food stamps, for which spending is governed by law.

At the same time, Speakes pointed out that "there are problems with Social Security." The administration has said the Social Security System faces a shortfall by late next year unless its income or allocations are changed.

Asked whether the administration was going to leave to the Democratic majority in the House the task of proposing Social Security spending cuts or higher contributions from wage earners, the spokesman replied with a grin: "I've said all I'm going to say."

Asked whether Reagan would cut $18 billion from the 1982 budget, for which he asked $695 billion last spring, Speakes said that figure was "a little high."

With the presidential decision Saturday that the planned increase in military spending would be cut by $13 billion over the next three fiscal years, Reagan and his advisers turned their attention yesterday to domestic spending reductions as they seek to keep the fiscal 1982 budget deficit at $42.5 billion, despite continuing record-high interest rates, and balance the budget by fiscal 1984.

Off-campus townhouses proposed by Murday

By BILL KOLB
News Staff

Student Body President Don Murday presented to the Student Senate last night a South Bend real estate broker's proposal for building off-campus student townhouses three blocks south of University property.

Robert Hoover, broker for Gallery of Homes real estate agency, presented the proposal to a Campus Life Council Task Force last Thursday. He seeks a loan from the University at 7 percent interest for the $7 million, 300-unit condominium complex. Although Murday expressed doubts about the University's willingness to fund the project, he admitted that alumnae have expressed interest in funding a townhouse development.

Hoover sought funding from banks and private lending institutions, but high interest rates rendered the project infeasible. If the University does not come through, he says, "I don't know what I'll do."

A survey conducted last spring of students living off-campus revealed a well-defined need exists for low-cost student housing. Married and graduate students prefer to live alone in efficiencies while undergraduates prefer two-bedroom apartments that can accommodate three or four people. The study showed that students want to live securely and within walking distance of campus, a grocery store and a laundromat. Hoover says his plan meets the students' needs.

The plan calls for Hoover to manage the apartments jointly with Gayle Warner, former manager of Campus View apartments. John Leader, a South Bend architect, owns the proposed site, a triangular parcel of land bounded by South Bend Avenue, Twickenham and Howard.

Murday says he plans to gather more information about the project and will voice the Senate's concerns about off-campus housing at the University Trustees' meeting on October 22.

In other business, the Senate passed a final version of a resolution that recommends the University adopt a two-day registration policy for the fall semester. Murday will present the resolution this week to Dean of Administration Leo Corbaci and Provost Timothy O'Meara.

Michigan tops Bottom Ten

Upsets scrambled the Bottom Ten this week. Three teams from last week's poll suffered stunning victories in their season openers.

Second-ranked Georgia Tech was confident as it traveled to Birmingham. The Wreck felt a rout at the hands of Bear Bryant and the Tide was assured. However, they surprised themselves in a 24-21 victory.

The game was also marked by classic Bottom Ten post-game quotes. Bryant: "This was no upset." (Even though Tech hadn't won an opener since the 60's.) Yellow Jacket Coach Bill Curry: "We have a bunch of skinny-necked youngsters who refuse to be beaten." (The former Packer may have to beat a few of them if he wants to climb back into the rankings.)

In the Bottom Ten Hall of Fame game, Gloria "you'll love my stretch" Vanderbilt University downed the University of Lefty "We'll boycott the NCAA tournament" Driesell, 23-17. Vandy had been ranked 7th, but was surprised by the Terps slow-moving offense.

In a daring move, Kansas State red-shirted its eight best seniors this season. The Wildcats thought they were on their way to Bottom Ten supremacy, but the plan went awry. Last week's ninth-ranked team won a disappointing 31-10 game with the Wiley Coyotes of South Dakota.

As per Bottom Ten regulations, these teams have been banned from the poll for one week.

Last week's number one team had a scare as well. After wisely using all their time-outs early in the second half, Northwestern found itself down 21-20 to Indiana with the clock running out. Feeling that a kick would be too risky, the Wildcats went for a two-point conversion. The strategy worked. The attempt failed and Northwestern's losing streak was extended to 21.

The first coaching casualty of the season is UTEP's Bill Michaels. He was fired after the Miners dropped their season opener to Texas A & I. A better man the Bottom Ten had never seen.

Here, then, are the rankings:

- 1] Michigan [0-1]--said Schembechler: "The offense wasn't any good, the defense wasn't any good, the kicking wasn't any good, and the coaching was poor."
- 2] tie Alabraska [1-1] and Nebama [0-1]--twin

...Number One

Wolverines will be looking up at the Irish in the polls, something that traditionally has been thought of as a boost for the "underdog." But Faust insists that the latest rankings don't change things.

"It's going to be a tough game, no matter who's ranked where," he insists. "Sure, it's probably easier to get emotionally ready when you're the underdog, but being number one doesn't change much from our standpoint."

Two ironies of Saturday afternoon also come to mind. With a half a minute to go, Faust answered the students' chants of "Ger-RY, Ger-RY," with a simple wave. But that was the only instant from the opening kickoff until the final gun that the coach took his mind from the field. And it was on the very next play that the Tigers scored their lone touchdown. Not that there was a cause-effect relationship, but it is interesting to think about.

The more ironic event happened moments later. After LSU Coach Jerry Stovall congratulated his winning coach, and Faust had kissed his wife Gerry sprinted toward the locker room. And as he passed the student section, he hoisted his index finger into the sky.

A premonition, no doubt.

This day in history

Today's highlight in history: In 1917, the Russian Republic was proclaimed under Alexander Kerensky.

On this date:

In 1777, Polish Count Casimir Pulaski was commissioned a major general in the American Revolutionary Army.

In 1935, a banner with a swastika on it was proclaimed the official flag of Germany.

One year ago: president Carter criticized his Republican challenger, Ronald Reagan, for commenting publicly about the Iran hostage negotiations during the presidential campaign.

Those who are familiar with his antics weren't the least bit surprised Friday evening when Gerry Faust was leading cheers into the microphone. "We are (clap,clap), ND" and "We're Number One."

On Friday evening everyone thought that it would be impossible for the Irish to be ranked No. 1 in the nation until later in the season, or at least until after beating Michigan (knock on wood). But after the top-ranked Wolverines lost to Wisconsin, second-ranked Oklahoma struggled early with Wyoming before prevailing, 37-20, and No. 3 Alabama was upset by Georgia Tech, the possibility emerged.

After beating Louisiana State Saturday, Tony Hunter said of the man who had coached him for five of the last seven years, "He's living out a dream."

But the events of yesterday afternoon were simply too much. A dream team led by a man with one game of college coaching experience was voted No. 1 in the nation not only by the media, but by Faust's fellow coaches.

"I think I'll retire now," said a surprisingly jubilant Faust. "Yeah, this is a good time to retire."

"You might have thought he'd view the recognition as a jinx of sorts; 'a monkey on my back,'" as DePaul basketball coach Ray Meyer

Michael Ortman
Sports Editor

once called it. Yet it didn't seem to phase Faust in the slightest.

He's used to being the best at what he does, and the accompanying pressure. His Moeller teams were often the best in the city, the state and the country. "I'm happy with being number one any time," he smiled. "The one (ranking) at the end of the season is the one that counts, but we'll take it when we can get it."

Faust was careful, however. He did refuse to pose for one Observer photographer who asked him to point his first finger skyward. "We can't take a chance of it getting out to Michigan," he said with a grin.

The obvious role reversal comes to mind. For weeks, people have been anticipating Saturday's clash between "top-ranked Michigan" and "highly-rated Notre Dame." Now the

Defensive end

Griffith rebounds from injuries

By MIKE McMANUS
Sports Writer

Saturday's opening game victory over LSU was accomplished by many of the same names that opened the 1980 season with a resounding victory over Purdue. No less than seventeen of last year's starters have returned to the college football wars this season.

To some fans the only recognizable differences between Gerry Faust's first Notre Dame squad and Dan Devine's last one are the sophisticated offense and the new blue and gold uniforms. A few new names do dot the starting lineup, however, and defensive lineman Kevin Griffith is one of them, at least this season.

While many Notre Dame fans probably won't recognize Griffith's name, rest assured that a number of doctors would recognize both his name and his knees. Kevin, a 6-3, 240-pound senior from Kettering, Ohio, missed half of his freshman season with an injured left knee, then bounced back to see extensive action during his sophomore year, including starting assignments against Michigan, Purdue, South Carolina and Navy. He was a defensive tackle and noseguard back then, and both positions imperil a player with a history of knee troubles.

"I missed two games that year because of an injury to my right knee. I missed the next spring and all of last season with another injury to my right knee. This past spring was pretty much the same thing and this summer it just came around. I wear a brace for my right knee now, and it swells up after games, but I just ice it down and it doesn't bother me."

Griffith has arisen like a phoenix from the ashes this year to take over the starting assignment at defensive end, a position he enjoys more than his previous ones. "I like the end position," he notes. "When I played noseguard I weighed about 230 pounds and I was getting bounced around a lot, plus I got cut all the time by the offensive linemen. You don't last long there unless you have strong legs. I like end because you have to be able to run and you have to be able to take it on sometimes depending on the defense."

Defensive line coach Bill Meyers, with a lot of talented linemen at his disposal, has decided to go with two completely different four-man lines that alternate during the game and Kevin Griffith is pleased with the results thus far.

"The platooning system keeps us fresh. For example, on Saturday it was very hot and after the first two series the guys on the line were sucking air and were able to get a rest. We have nine or ten guys who can play and it gives everyone a chance to play. Coach Meyers has done an outstanding job with all of us."

Saturday's victory represented a personal triumph for Kevin, who celebrated his return by smothering an Alan Risher fumble only three minutes into the game. The Irish converted the fumble into their first touchdown of the year and were off and running to a 27-9 victory and the number one rating in the country.

Kevin, whose friends refer to him as "Griff," smiles when he looks back on the LSU game. "I really enjoyed that game. I had a great time because our whole team was ready to go. LSU was coming off of Alabama and then had to face us. We really took it to them and I had a lot of fun just watching us move the ball up the field and playing great defense."

Griff realizes, of course, that this week's battle with Michigan will be nowhere near as easy as the LSU contest. "Michigan will be a lot more physical than LSU was. They've got a lot of speed and they have a huge line that is really strong. They're going to try and take it to us. They're still a great team, even though they lost. I imagine they'll have a tough week so they'll be really fired up for us."

The scope of Saturday's war is not lost on Griff either. "I think that playing in a game like this is an honor. I played in it when I was a sophomore and playing up there in front of one-hundred and five thousand people is just crazy. I'm really excited about this game. At this kind of level, playing against a super line like they've got is something you really get up for. It's a great challenge."

Like a career soldier, Kevin Griffith keeps coming back to resume hostilities with the enemy. He's overcome a number of crippling injuries and fought his way up the depth chart to get where he is. Hopefully, Saturday's challenge will end like all the rest Kevin has encountered.

IRISH ITEMS — Starting fullback Larry Moriarty, who left the LSU game on a golf cart, suffered a bruised leg and will miss a couple of days of practice. He will, however, be fit to play Saturday afternoon.

Well-roundedness

Interhall provides escape

EDITOR'S NOTE--"Inside ND Interhall" will be a regular weekly feature in "The Observer". Its aim is to keep the students informed about upcoming events throughout the 1981-82 academic year in "intra"-collegiate athletics. This week, a brief explanation of what NVA are all about.

Granted, with school just starting most of us have "a million and one things going at once." But it is to one's advantage to take time to reflect upon the meaning of his or her education. If the extra effort is made to further one's education, it is important to make it a well-rounded one.

"Well-rounded" means filling in the other half of the education, specifically the social and athletic activities that are made available to us. The importance of involvement can be quite far reaching in its benefits. The activities sponsored by the office of Non-Varsity Athletics would help yourself and others physically and mentally in acting as an aid in learning to cope with others and life in general. This knowledge, in turn, can readily be extended into the area of academics. This should help us to gain a broader sense in our respective fields of study.

There is a good cross-section of activities offered through NVA from individual events such as tennis, golf and track, to team sports like volleyball, softball, and of course football, for men and women alike. Getting involved in these programs is as easy as making a phone call to the NVA office (6100) or by dropping by (C-2 in the ACC) and asking for more information about a specific interest. For those of you who are more money conscious, you can think of it this way: you're paying for it whether you take advantage of it or not.
