Hesburgh remains at helm

By KELLI FLINT

Rev. Theodore Hesburgh accepted an offer from the Board of Trustees to remain in the position of University President for another five years.

According to Edmund A. Stephan, chairman of the Board of Trustees, the decision to retain Hesburgh came from an ad hoc Trustees' committee on succession after it had received recommendations from numerous sources, including a faculty committee.

"The decision resulted mainly from the Trustees' conviction that we have at this University great leadership and have had for 30 years," Stephan said.

"We have in Fr. Hesburgh a man who is in rigorously good health and as intellectually alive as I have ever seen him.

"The conviction finally came to us that we should not change the leadership when we have such a winning situation," he added.

Stephan also noted that Hesburgh was asked to remain for five years to convey the point that 'this is not going to be an annual decision that keeps the campus, the Trustees, and friends of the University stirred up and uneasy'.

"It may not be five years, but we hope it will," Stephan said. "We just want to put speculation to rest".

Fr. Hesburgh commented that he is not 'jumping for joy' over the Trustees' decision because he felt that now would be a good time to 'get out'.

"I had pretty much psychologically prepared myself to be Chancellor and someone else President," he said. "When you get a call from the people you're working with, however, you plan to go along with them."

Hesburgh added that he has no immediate plans for the next five years.

"I tend to live day by day," he said. "This place is on a constant upward beat, and we take our projects one at a time".

Stephan explained that the Trustees did not name a new President because although the Chancellor/President formula was appealing as an abstract way to 'get at the problem', when the Trustees took a 'good hard look' at the situation they thought it was best to continue with Fr. Hesburgh.

University Provost Timothy O'Meara added that the faculty considered the Chancellor/President formula 'too complicated'.

Trustees, Reps discuss student problems

By KELLI FLINT

Student housing and social space were the central issues student representatives discussed with the Student Affairs Committee of the Board of Trustees during a meeting last Thursday.

Students who attended the meeting include Student Body President Don Murday, Student Body Vice President Tara Kenney, Graduate Student Union President Catherine Tkacz, Graduate Student Union Representative Dennis Staffebach, Housing Cabinet Head Patrick Borchers, and Off-Campus Commissioner Kathy Jurado.

Staffebach introduced the housing issue by noting a problem with housing for male graduate students.

"Each year we have between 700 and 800 new graduate students," Staffebach said. Presently, to house these students we have St. Joseph's hall and Brownson hall.

"St. Joseph's houses about 74 male students, and Brownson houses five to ten male students each year. The remaining space is reserved for priests, which leaves us with 500 students each year who are forced to seek housing off-campus."

Staffebach added that Grace-

O'Hara towers, which currently houses 146 female graduate students, has the underground utilities to facilitate 500 students.

He proposed that the University use available money to continue building on the Grace-O'Hara site. "This would allow room for 350 more graduate students," he said.

Jurado stressed the need for a new housing director and additional off-campus housing.

Jurado added that the Campus Life Council Task Force is promoting a full-time off-campus housing director.

We have presented this idea to the Student Senate, and now will present it to the CLC as a whole, she said.

Jurado also noted that the current off-campus housing director is also the rector of Morrissey hall.

"He is the only University representative responsible for off-campus housing, and he already has a full-time job," she said. "He himself agrees that he does not have the time and energy to put into all of the problems that come under the position of housing director."

Jurado added that the CLC task force hopes the new Housing director will work with the off-campus

Refugees die in shipwreck

HILLSBORO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Thirty-three Haitian refugees drowned early yesterday after their leaky, 25-foot wooden sailboat broke up in rough surf less than a half-mile from shore, the U.S. Coast Guard said. The 34 others aboard the boat survived.

It was the worst such accident since heavy influxes of Caribbean refugees began arriving by boat more than three years ago.

Petty Officer Daryl Gale said all the bodies washed ashore, and a search by helicopters and boats was suspended shortly before noon.

"You come so close. Half of them made it, half of them didn't. It's so sad," said Dan Hynes, a police sergeant in this town 35 miles north of Miami.

By midmorning, the dead — their near-naked bodies twisted into odd positions by the fierce waves that dumped them ashore — littered the beach along with ship debris, including the broken mast. The partially submerged ship's frame washed to within 50 feet of shore.

"It looked like a combat zone. There were bodies everywhere," said police patrolman Joe Dente.

The dead included 19 men and 14 women, including three who were pregnant. All were described as "young adults" by authorities at the Broward County morgue.

Thirty Haitians, aided by strong tides, swam safely to shore, Gale said. Survivors told authorities that the four missing Haitians, identified as boat captain Charles Joseph and his three mates, also made it safely and then fled the scene on foot.

The survivors seemed to be in good shape, police said. They were treated for exposure and saltwater inhalation by police and paramedics, then put on a bus for the Krome Avenue refugee detention center southwest of Miami.

The survivors said they left Haiti on Aug. 26, spent a month in the Bahamas, then departed five to seven days ago. They claimed no

'Adventure travel' on the rise

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Houser was a Manhattan public relations executive, successful and "surrounded by concrete and glass and the natty problems of corporate politics."

Except on vacation. Then he would fly, ride, hike, raft and canoe. Each year, he went deeper and deeper into the American wilderness. Then he took on the jungles and mountains and tundras flung around the world.

And each year, he went deeper and deeper into the phenomenon of "adventure travel." Houser eventually quit his job and New York City. He now lives in Connecticut and works as a freelance photojournalist specializing in adventure travel.

In the past few years, he has retraced Darwin's scientific explorations in the Galapagos Islands. He has steered a six-foot dinghy close enough to touch a 60-foot whale. He has conquered the white water of Maine's Allagash River and jounced a four-wheel drive vehicle through Iceland's jagged lava fields.

Travel industry spokesmen estimate Houser is one of 23 million Americans who take adventure vacations, climbing frozen rugged summits with the minimum of equipment, scuba diving among razor-sharp coral reefs, hacking through jungles to observe the ceremonial dances of headhunting Stone Age tribes and soaring hang gliders through narrow, rocky chasms.

They take treks, not vacations. They are travelers, not tourists.

"They are looking for better ways to spend their vacation time," says Bob Citron of Seattle, who runs an international adventure travel consulting business. "They are looking for intellectual challenge and personal satisfaction."

Citron — who says guided adventure trips range from hiking and camping in the Cascades for $55 a weekend to a nine-day journey to the North Pole for $7,000 — believes adventure travel appeals to people with time, money and interest in strange, strenuous adventure.

"They want to see for themselves what they've seen on television in National Geographic or Jacques Cousteau specials," he said.

Indeed, for the money, a modern traveler can follow the footsteps of many explorers.

ND junior dies in hometown car crash

Notre Dame junior Anthony Murphy, 20, was killed in an automobile accident Friday Oct. 16 shortly after midnight in his hometown of Montgomery, Ind. A memorial service will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. in Sacred Heart church with Fr. Theodore Hesburgh presiding and Fr. John Fitzgerald delivering the homily.

Murphy, an electrical engineering major was the only passenger in the car at the time of the accident.

Murphy lived in Stanford and Zahr halls his first two years at Notre Dame and had been living at 901 Notre Dame Avenue with Notre Dame students Steve Sierawski, Rich Turgeon, Dan Barron and John Tusky. Murphy had been Student Coordinator in charge of student workers at North Dining Hall since the second semester of his sophomore year.

Surviving family members include his parents Mr. and Mrs. James Murphy and his two sisters Anita, 21, and Jamie, 18. Murphy's family will attend the memorial service. All ND-SMC students, faculty and administration are also invited to attend.

Donald P. Kelly, president and chief executive officer of Esmark, Inc., the diversified Chicago-based holding company with interests in consumer products and industrial chemicals, has accepted the position of chairman of the Edward Frederick Sorin Society at the University of Notre Dame. The announcement was made by Fr. Theodore M. Hesburgh, president of the University. "Don Kelly will give the Sorin Society the dynamic leadership it needs to become an integral part of the advancement program of the University," commented Fr. Hesburgh. The Sorin Society, inaugurated in 1976, is named for the founder of the University of Notre Dame and recognizes individuals who have demonstrated a tangible interest in supporting the University as well as those who wish to become more closely associated with its purposes, plans and programs. Membership in the Sorin Society is offered to friends of Notre Dame willing to make an unrestricted annual gift of $1,000 or more. — The Observer

The Juggler, a University of Notre Dame literary magazine, has been awarded second place in a national competition for student publications from 132 colleges or universities in 35 states. Published once each semester, the magazine contains prose, poetry photographs and illustrations. Editor of last semester's award-winning issue was Lawrence J. Siems, a senior in the college of Arts and Letters and a resident of New Hope, Minn. Fr. Mario Padi of the Office of Student Activities serves as moderator for the magazine. A cash award of $200 accompanies the second place trophy. Dr. George Pimentel, chemistry professor at the University of California at Berkeley, will spend two weeks from Oct. 26 to Nov. 6 at the University of Notre Dame to deliver a series of Distinguished Scholar Lectures funded by the Camille and Henry Dreyfus Foundation. In addition to discussions with faculty and students on research topics, Dr. Pimentel will give two public lectures on "Science and Public Policy" on Oct. 28 and "What is a Chemical Laser?" on Nov. 4. Both will be at 8 p.m. in the Memorial Library auditorium. Dr. Pimentel has served on national committees concerned with science and public policy, and with his research group discovered the first chemically pumped laser. His work in rapid scan techniques led to the design of a unique infrared spectrometer for the 1969 Mariner interplanetary spacecraft to determine the composition of the atmosphere of Mars. Coauthor of seven books, he helped compose a chemistry textbook used in high schools across the country. — The Observer

"Best Legs on Campus" belong to a dog? Folks at the University of Washington will answer that question this week in a contest sponsored by campus fraternities and other groups. Among the 10 candidates for the title is Denali, a male Malamute who is mascot for the UW huskies. Also in the running are male and female students, administrators and staff members. To vote, campus community members will place 25 cents in one of 10 jars bearing a photo of a nominee's legs. The winner of the "Best Legs on Campus" contest will be the person — or dog — whose jar contains the most money when the voting ends. Ballot box stuffing has been encouraged since the money will go to United Way of King County. — AP

A 28-year-old man has been charged with possession of a controlled substance after police in Ogden, Utah found 160 LSD-saturated stamps bearing the image of the cartoon character Snoopy, in his Ogden home. James Elmer Maes was arrested Thursday after police raided his house. Police Lt. William Stettler said the stamps apparently are being printed in Colorado and distributed through western states. He said the Salt Lake City authorities suspect the stamps are being sold there, also. None, however, have been seen, he said. — AP

The leader of a 14-member French expedition that scaled Kanchenjunga, the world's third highest peak, died in a fall as he was descending the 28,146 foot summit, Nepal's Ministry of Tourism said yesterday. The ministry identified the dead man as Jean Jacques Ricouard, 29, of Paris. A spokesman said he was killed Oct. 15 after he slipped and fell nearly 1,000 feet down the mountain 350 miles northeast of here. Ricouard and another member of the expedition had climbed the southwest face of the Himalayan peak without using oxygen, a ministry spokesman said. Ricouard's body was left behind when the expedition left base camp Wednesday for Katmandu, the spokesman said. — AP

Italian firefighters went on strike yesterday to back demands for more men and more meat in a protest that forced the nation's airports to shut down, officials said. Unions accused the government of failing to pay each firefighter a promised monthly hazard bonus equivalent to $52 and did not implement agreed upon dietary regulations to provide more meat and less pasta in firehouse meals. A union statement also accused Parliament of dragging its feet on legislation to increase the fire corps to 21,000 men. The Interior Ministry scheduled meetings with the unions to discuss the demands. — AP

Senate discusses Trustee meeting

By JIM PLAMONDON
News Staff

The Student Senate met last night to discuss the meeting of the Board of Trustees, held Oct. 22. Student Body President Donald Murday gave a detailed account of the meeting's topics of discussion.

Off-campus housing dominated most of the discussion last Tuesday. Catherine Tkacz and Kathy Jurado described the problems faced by both the graduate students and seniors while they searched for affordable living quarters.

Tkacz suggested that many graduate students were interested in living on-campus for economic reasons. She also asked the Trustees to consider a commitment to on-campus housing by building an addition to the Grace-O'Hare townhouses.

Jurado asked for and received a $10,000 grant for the dorms in order to improve the social space and party rooms.

A survey will be distributed later in the year to fully understand student's desires and ideas for next year's off-campus housing.

Student Body Vice President Tara Kenney also discussed the Coeducational social life at Notre Dame and possible methods to improve it. Her goal is more social integration between men and women and the improvement of social space.

Murday offered suggestions for the improvement of Chautauqua, the coffeehouse in LaFortune. He described the frustrations the Senate is experiencing with their attempts to make it a student "hang-out".

Murday concluded the meeting with the Trustees by requesting and receiving permission to form a group of people to study the quality of life at other universities so that ideas may be used to improve various aspects of the Notre Dame community.

Murday felt that overall the meeting was "very constructive" and the relationship between the Student Senate and the Board of Trustees was "looking good".

In Brinks robbery

Slain convict provides link

NEW YORK (AP) — A convict slain in a gunbattle with police was linked yesterday to the earlier $1.6 million Brink's heist in which members of the Weather Underground allegedly killed two policemen and a guard.

Police sources said a .38-caliber slug found in the pocket of the convict, Sam Smith, came from the gun of Nyack Police Sgt. Edward O'Grady Jr., one of those killed.

Smith was killed and Nathaniel Burns, a former Black Panther, was arrested following the Friday shootout in Queens. Both men were wearing bulletproof vests and Smith had a bandaged chest wound consistent with having a slug stopped by his vest.

O'Grady, another police officer, and a Brink's guard were killed last Tuesday during the ambush of a Brink's armored car and subsequent shootout in suburban Nyack that led to the arrest of the Weather Underground's Katherine Boudin.

The ballistics test provided the first definite link between the two incidents, the police source said.

Smith and Burns were spotted in Queens last Friday in a car with a license plate matching one seen on a car connected by police to the Brinks case.

The ballistics results came as a grand jury sitting in a Queens courthouse began hearing evidence stemming from the Queens shootout.

Smith's police record, extending back to 1963, included charges of attempted murder and robbery. He was imprisoned in 1971 for an armed robbery in which he shot and wounded two officers but jumped parole two years later.

But police said Smith had no known connections with any radical or terrorist group.

In other developments:

The arraignment of Burns was postponed until today at which time court will convene in Kings County Hospital, officials said. Prison officials acknowledged that Burns was hospitalized after sustaining "blunt abdominal trauma" of undisclosed origin.

Documents found in a raided East Orange, N.J., terrorist safe house showed that the merged Black Liberation Army and Weather Underground had planned to kidnap executives of major corporations for ransom, according to a published report.

A hearing was postponed for five people charged in connection with a violent demonstration last month against a South African rugby team in which acid was thrown at a police officer. A car registered to one of the defendants was used in the Brinks shootout.

Two Weather Underground fugitives arrested Friday night in the Bronx waived extradition to New Jersey before a U.S. magistrate in Manhattan.

West Bank controversy

Egypt, Israel seek agreement

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel and Egypt shifted strategy yesterday in negotiations on Palestinian self-rule, seeking swift agreement on an elected council to govern Israeli-occupied territories, Prime Minister Menachem Begin said.

Begin said after a 90-minute meeting with Egyptian Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Aly that future talks would concentrate on the size, functions and powers of the council for the 1.3 million Arabs of the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

The issues of water rights, control of state land and internal security apparently will be dropped from the agenda until an agreement on the council is reached.

Until now the two sides had sought a broad agreement on the principles of autonomy, and the shift to setting up the council appeared designed to achieve a speedy accord on at least one major point.

To underscore the desire for quick agreement, Begin announced that the next round of talks was moved up five days and would open in Cairo on Nov. 4. He pledged "every effort" to wrap up an autonomy agreement by the end of the year.

The Cairo meeting will be the first ministerial-level talk in eight weeks. Low-level technical teams began meeting in Tel Aviv last week and will work through Thursday on the autonomy issue.

If the council is agreed upon, Begin said, "this will be a real breakthrough and a real change." He said a resolution of differences over the council was "the key" to the whole autonomy issue.

The United States has been calling for an extra effort to break the stalemate and strengthen Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak's position as successor to slain President Anwar Sadat.

A major question is whether the Palestinians will accept the proposals and vote for the council. They say they want full statehood and have so far refused to participate in the talks arising from the Camp David accords.

Asked what would happen if the Palestinians boycotted the election, Begin quoted Sadat as having said that in that case "we have done our duty."

The implication was that Egypt and Israel would wash their hands of autonomy and the Israeli occupation would continue.

50-70 billion

Republicans seek tax increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans intend to seek between $50 billion and $70 billion in tax increases over the next three years as part of their attempt to cut budget deficits by $115 billion, sources said yesterday.

The sources disclosed the tentative target as Senate Finance Chairman Bob Dole, R-Kan., confirmed that his panel would begin drafting a bill to raise taxes early next year.

Dole predicted that Congress would enact the increases, but he spelled out few details, and did not mention how much the committee's Republican majority hoped to raise with its legislation.

But sources have reported that administration and congressional officials have drawn up a lengthy list of options, including higher excise taxes on alcohol, tobacco and gasoline, an import fee on crude oil and disallowing tax deductions on consumer debt interest, except for home mortgages and car loans.

"The Finance Committee is studying a number of tax increase options, including the loophole-closing proposals advanced by the administration and excise tax increases," he said.

Dole said he hoped hearings would start on the bill before Congress adjourns for the year.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee and others said, however, that most of the effect would be felt in the 1983 and 1984 fiscal years.

Sources said Baker has spoken with President Reagan to discuss the GOP plan, although there has been no official White House reaction. Baker and other key Republicans in Congress are expected to meet with the president later this week to discuss his economic program.

Dole's statement followed a day of confusion over Senate Republican plans after Baker said on Sunday there would be no tax increases for the 1982 fiscal year.

He corrected himself yesterday, saying that because it would be relatively late in the fiscal year before the measure could be passed, any tax increase in 1982 would be modest.

Sources said that no consensus has been reached among Senate Republicans on which proposals to advance, although one official said the least desirable option was to backtrack on the three-year, income-tax cut that passed earlier this year.

These sources also said that while there was no final agreement on exactly how much should be raised in higher taxes, Senate Republicans who met privately for several days last week decided the $50 billion to $70 billion was the range needed to meet their overall goal.

Against PATCO

Judge refuses contempt dismissal

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Judge Cale Holder of U.S. District Court turned down a request yesterday to dismiss contempt proceedings against striking members of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization.

After Holder's ruling, defense attorneys for two PATCO locals and 19 PATCO members or sympathizers began introducing evidence in the defense portion of the case.

The defendants are charged with violating an injunction issued by Holder on Aug. 3 prohibiting strike activities in connection with the nationwide air traffic controllers strike.

The government alleges the defendants violated the court order in a series of actions by allegedly threatening or harming traffic controllers who remained on the job.

Government attorneys ended their case with a video tape of a demonstration outside the Federal Court Building on the first night of the contempt proceedings trial Oct. 16.

Defense attorneys objected to the showing of the tape, which was made by an FBI agent, on the grounds that it was unrelated to the allegations in the government's complaint.

Holder, however, ruled it could corroborate conduct charged by the government.

Also yesterday, defense attorneys called to the witness stand Keith Schupp, one of the defendants, who denied government testimony that he was involved in an incident Oct. 3 when acid was thrown at a controller leaving his job.

Schupp said that at the time of the incident he was at least a quarter mile away having lunch with his wife and another PATCO member.

He also presented a different version of an incident Sept. 5 when he was struck while riding a bicycle by Clifford Armstrong, a working controller.

Armstrong previously had testified that Schupp tried to impede his travel as he was leaving the air traffic control center and swerved his bicycle into the path of the car.

Schupp, however, said Armstrong only blew his horn once and struck him from the rear as he looked over his shoulder to see the car.

For Mid East

Administration seeks defense monies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration says it will ask Congress next year for money to strengthen the armed forces to meet the threat of a full-scale Soviet attack in the Middle East.

"We intend to tailor our forces, using those forces in the region plus reinforcement units from the U.S., to meet an evolving threat," the State and Defense departments have told the congressional Joint Economic Committee.

The officials said a Soviet attack was "the most dangerous potential threat" to U.S. interests in the Middle East, and added that the United States is working toward an ability "to meet the most demanding threat" in the region.

Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of the committee, released the administration's statements yesterday, describing them as "important and disturbing."

"Those who believed that the Reagan administration had already proposed a dramatic buildup in our military forces may have a surprise coming," Reuss said. "How many billions more will be required in the Persian Gulf?"

The committee had asked officials of the two departments a series of questions about the administration's military plans and its commitments in the Middle East.

In their joint response, the two departments said that "the most dangerous potential threat to U.S. interests in the region would be a Soviet attack, perhaps at the invitation of some faction in a regional state or on a pretext designed to exploit regional instability."

"We are on a path towards development of a capability to meet the most demanding threat in the region which, inherently, will also provide the concepts and tailored forces necessary to cope with many lesser threats," they added.

"Since the Soviets would need time to build up their forces for a major incursion in the area, we could use that time to deploy forces to meet that challenge should it become necessary. We are in the process of expanding our capabilities to deploy forces and to sustain them."

"The Soviets have distinct advantages in terms of projecting power into the region given their close proximity to the area," they said. "Consequently, there is a need for progressive military development to deal with...possible Soviet incursion scenarios."

No monetary figures were mentioned yesterday. The officials said the requirements are being studied and will be presented to Congress when the administration presents its budget for the 1983 fiscal year. This is due in January.

SMC Board discusses participation

By MARY MCINERNEY

Saint Mary's Board of Governance met last night to discuss the lack of student participation in Campus Ministry and the Board of Regents.

Sr. Veronica Fisher from the Saint Mary's Campus Ministry Team addressed the Board concerning further cooperation from the members of student government in educating the Saint Mary's Community about the liturgical celebrations taking place on campus. Fisher distributed a booklet explaining the guidelines for liturgical scheduling, planning and participation. The Board will encourage and educate the student body to take part as often as possible in campus-wide liturgical celebrations.

Eileen Murphy, student body president informed the Board about the Board of Regents meetings which took place during break. The meetings were attended by student government representatives, Eileen Murphy, Emmy Lopez, and Donna Perreault. Murphy informed the Board of Regents about current student government projects, including the parietals issue and the need for a Student Union, as well as some of the current problems of communication between the Board of Regents and Student Government.

Other issues discussed at the meeting were the Newsletter, which will be distributed next week, and the meeting with section leaders planned for this Thursday.

commissioner and the students, improve relations with landlords, and expand the off-campus housing list.

Borchers proposed a $10,000 fund to improve social space in the dormitories.

In addition, Borchers proposed that Fr. Heppen be responsible for directing the expenditures.

"I don't want this money to go for privileged uses such as replacing perfectly good furniture," he said. "I think that by having Fr. Heppen in control of who gets what amounts, we can prevent this kind of thing."

"I think that if $10,000 is set aside in the form of matching funds, we can do a lot of good for the social atmosphere on campus without just making it a handout to the dorms."

Murday concluded the presentations by reiterating his proposal for a new student center.

"I have grown weary of pounding on doors for a student center," he said. "Administrators agree that students need something, yet nothing concrete ever happens."

Director of Student Activities James McDonnell added that LaFortune Student Center does not adequately serve the social needs of students.

"I really believe that for Notre Dame, LaFortune is the worst facility we have. In the area of social facilities, we are really behind."

Murday proposed that a group be charged by the trustees to study other universities similar to Notre Dame in size and residentiality.

money or smuggling was involved in the voyage, police said.

The overcrowded boat buffeted by five-foot waves, began leaking late Sunday, survivors said. A large swell roared over the boat early yesterday and swamped it, survivors told police.

A resident of a beachfront condominium called police at 5:30 a.m. to report groups of Haitians walking along the beach. Within minutes, the first bodies began washing ashore along a 10-mile strip of private beach below posh high-rises in the town of 2,400 people.

Among the bodies was that of an obviously pregnant woman, her arms stiffly reaching out over her swollen stomach. The youngest appeared to be an adolescent with a stubble of beard on his chin. His hand had clawed deep into the sand.

Nearly 50,000 Haitians and, in the 1980 Cuban boatlift, nearly 125,000 Cubans have come to this country by boat in recent years.

In May 1980, 14 Cubans drowned when their boat capsized. There were several incidents of Haitian drowning involving two to four people, but no accidents comparable to the yesterday's sinking.

Police investigate sisters' strange deaths

JESUP, Georgia (AP) — Four-year-old Olympia Kenish Reddish was the first to die. Three younger girls followed — all daughters of the same man — and authorities say they are baffled.

The girls, three sisters and their half-sister, died under similar circumstances between June 28, 1980, and October 13, 1981.

Medical investigators and police are unable to determine the cause of their deaths and are not sure if they are dealing with a string of homicides or some rare disease. They are hoping more tests will solve the mystery.

"We have no idea what killed them," said Joel Smith, police detective in this southeast Georgia town. "We just know things like this don't happen every day."

"It's hard not to think there's some foul play in it, but we have no proof," he said yesterday.

The father, whose name was not released, did not live with any of the children but visited them on occasion, police said. He will undergo further questioning and medical tests, but said that he "doesn't have any idea" what caused the deaths. A fifth daughter, 2, by a third woman, will also be tested, he said.

Olympia Reddish died after she went back to bed after playing in her yard. Her mother, Phyllis Denise Worley, said she checked on her daughter later and found the girl had stopped breathing. She was pronounced dead a few hours later.

Tiffany Marsunh Reddish, Olympia's 9-month-old sister, was in her crib July 14, 1981, when her mother found that she had stopped breathing.

She died three days later in the intensive care unit at Wayne Memorial Hospital.

On the same day Tiffany died, 19-month-old April Thakira Gaston, daughter of Ola May Gaston, refused to eat breakfast and went back to bed at midmorning. Her mother checked on her later, but could not awaken the child.

"I thought she was asleep, but she was dead," Ms. Gaston said.

On Oct. 13, Ms. Worley's third daughter, 2-year-old Latoia Monich Reddish, refused to eat breakfast. She complained about pain in her stomach and head, and Ms. Worley put her back to bed.

Ms. Worley found her dead less than an hour later.

Smith said autopsies were performed on all four children, but "all the autopsies have been negative, completely negative."

and books many groups on horseback trips on the prairie and mountain trails of the Old West, outfitted with equipment and supplies similar to that of trailblazers such as Jim Bridger.

The people who pay up to $2,000 for her trips — including one on which the travelers participate in a real cattle drive — scrounge for their own firewood, saddle their own horses and catch their own cutthroat trout.

"They want to participate," she said. "They want something of a challenge. They want to experience something different. They want action and they want a chance to learn something."

Dr. David Shainberg, a Park Avenue psychiatrist who encourages some patients to go on adventure vacations, says "There's a direct contact with the world where you yourself perceive the experience. You actually learn for yourself."

Some 1,200 travel companies and outfitters offer adventure travel vacations.

An outfitter who had 200 passengers on runs down the Cheat and New Rivers in West Virginia in 1972 now has more than 15,000 river runners a year.

Up to 200,000 Americans go on scuba diving trips each year, while 140,000 go on wildlife safaris in Africa and 70,000 take treks through the mountains of Nepal.

Adventure Travel magazine's 100,000 readers are typically 34-year-old single men from the Northeast or the West Coast who have attended college and now work as professionals or managers and earn $41,000 a year, Edward Sheffe, the editor, said. However, he added, more and more families and older people are being attracted by vacations such as archeological digs, which are neither as strenuous nor as dangerous as mountaineering or diving.

"They're urban bound, looking for something not only to get out of the city but that provides some excitement, too," Sheffe said. "A lot of it has to do with self-fulfillment. Many of us who grew up in the '60s are still searching for that."

Many of the new breed of traveler also seek out nature as part of their interest in the environment.

Arnold Mitchell, a Manhattan psychiatrist, says this about a month-long trek through Nepal to the base of Mount Everest:

"You start to gain a different perspective of your life in the world, the feeling that you're small, the feeling of the vastness of the world and your little place in it."

Houser said few adventure trips are really dangerous, but some risk is always involved in strenuous travel through unfamiliar terrain.

"It's a nice respite from normal sedentary life," Houser said. "There's no great risk in most of our lives...The danger and the risk is part of the attraction, like the thrill rides in an amusement park. For anyone trying to get the most out of their time on this planet, risk is an important part of it."

Philly labor leaders back striking teachers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia's labor leaders voted yesterday for a general strike and mass demonstration Wednesday in support of a 49-day teachers walkout that has kept more than 200,000 children out of public school.

"The work stoppage is on, and I say it will be very successful," said Edward Toohey, president of the Philadelphia AFL-CIO council which represents 350 local unions with some 250,000 members.

Toohey, following three meetings with labor leaders, said the vote was unanimous to support the teachers and "bring about a contract that is just and equitable."

The teachers struck Sept. 8 after the school board, faced with a $223 million deficit, laid off 3,511 employees, canceled a 10 percent pay hike, and made other cutbacks to balance the 1981-82 budget.

So far, the school board has managed to open classes for fourth graders, some in junior and senior high, and for retarded and blind pupils in about 200 of the city's 268 schools.

Kills policeman IRA bomb explodes in London

LONDON (AP) — A Scotland Yard explosives expert was killed yesterday while trying to defuse a bomb planted by IRA guerrillas in a fast-food restaurant on London's crowded Oxford Street, police said.

Another bomb was discovered in a nearby department store and defused, police said. The Irish Republican Army issued a statement in Belfast claiming responsibility for the bombs.

The blast shattered the front of Wimpy's hamburger bar and caused panic among hundreds of people on the street, London's most popular shopping district. Police sealed off the area.

Earlier yesterday, police in Pontypriid, Wales discovered and defused a fire bomb planted in a British army recruitment office. The office is only a few hundred yards from the route Prince Charles and Princess Diana will take Thursday during their three-day tour of Wales.

Police said they suspected Welsh nationalist extremists of planting the device, and had increased security around the the royal newlyweds.

The second Oxford Street bomb was discovered by police dogs in Debenhams' department store 400 yards down the street from the Wimpy restaurant, but was defused, police said.

Police cleared the restaurant of 175 customers and staff after a man with an Irish accent gave telephone warning of the bomb. But the explosives expert, Kenneth Robert Howorth, 49, was killed when the device exploded in a basement toilet.

Scotland Yard said Howorth who was married and joined the police in 1974 after serving 23 years in the Royal Army Ordnance Corps, was wearing a helmet and padded fiberglass vest.

"It was terrifying," said Susan Crossley, a secretary who saw the explosion. "Concrete and glass seemed to fly everywhere."

A waitress evacuated from the restaurant said of Howorth: "I will never get over this. To think that man died for us. If it wasn't for the bravery of people like this I could be dead."

The outlawed Irish Republican Army's "Provisional" wing claimed responsibility for the Oxford Street bombs in a statement issued through the Republic Press Center in Belfast, capital of Northern Ireland. "The British people should press their government to withdraw from our country," the statement said. "Then there will be no bombs in London and there can be peace in Ireland."

"Let the British people take note that Irish children, the victims of plastic bullets fired by their soldiers, do not have the luxury of receiving warnings. In future when we give warnings, respect them."

This indicated the guerrillas plan more attacks in London. Yesterday's bombing was the third IRA strike in the British capital since Oct. 10.

Cut proposed for OPEC

(AP) — A report by a Kuwaiti newspaper yesterday that Venezuela is resisting a proposed cut to $34 a barrel in OPEC's base price for oil has raised new doubts about the outcome of a special meeting of the cartel this week in Geneva, Switzerland.

The session was called on expectations that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries was ready to end its divisiveness and establish a benchmark price of $34 a barrel.

But Venezuela is seen by industry analysts as a key to OPEC's lengthy struggle to unify prices, and the Kuwaiti report, quoting a top OPEC official, has raised new doubts about whether the cartel will reach agreement at Thursday's meeting, analysts said.

Venezuela opposed a base price of $34 a barrel at OPEC's last meeting in August. But Calderon Berti, Venezuela's energy minister, had indicated recently he would compromise on Venezuela's $36-a-barrel price if an agreement was near.

"It would be extremely complicated for Venezuela to remain isolated from the other countries," Berti had said two weeks ago. "We want to contribute to OPEC's unity."

But Marc Nan Nguema, the cartel's secretary general, was quoted by the Kuwaiti newspaper Al-Siyassa yesterday as saying Venezuela was holding out for a base price of $36 a barrel.

The newspaper reported that the OPEC secretary general held lengthy discussions with Kuwaiti Oil Minister, Sheik Ali Khalifa Al-Sabah during a one-day visit this past weekend.

"Saudi Arabia still insists on unifying oil prices at $34 a barrel, while Venezuela's latest proposal suggested $36," said Nan Nguema. "Each side has its prices."

U.S. committed fully to improving relations

MOSCOW (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Arthur A. Hartman pledged yesterday the United States is "fully committed" to improving relations with Moscow, but said the Soviet Union won't show "restraint" in its policies and actions.

He also said the United States has no choice but to respond to "a major and unprovoked" Soviet military buildup.

Hartman, presenting his credentials to Soviet First Vice President

Vasily Kuznetsov, also denounced terrorism and subversion and urged Moscow to stop supporting Cuban actions against "sovereign governments." He said Afghanistan should be "non-aligned, secure and free of outside interference."

Hartman's statement at the ceremony was released by the U.S. Embassy. In accordance with tradition, Hartman read some of the statement aloud and gave Kuznetsov the text.

Europeans contribute to Middle East

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — Britain, France, Italy and the Netherlands have agreed in principle to contribute troops to a peacekeeping force that will oversee Israel's final pullout from the Sinai desert next year, French Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson said yesterday.

Other ministers declined to confirm the decision.

However, a Common Market source said a formal agreement and a joint declaration by the 10 Common Market countries would be issued as soon as details of the force are worked out.

Nationwide contest open to all students

A nationwide contest is open for student papers on international business subjects. The contest is open to all U.S. and foreign, graduate and undergraduate students. Entrants do not have to be business majors.

A preliminary draft of a proposed paper, in accord with contest guidelines, is due December 1, 1981, at the Institute of International Education, sponsor of this competition, as part of its 7th Student Conference on International Business, March 15-16, 1982. The Student Conference 'is an official adjunct of the 45th Chicago World Trade Conference.

The first-place winner must be able to present paper in Chicago at the World Trade Conference/Student Conference, and will receive a $500 prize, travel expenses to Chicago from within the Continental U.S., and the Chicago World Trade Conference Award.

First runner-up will receive a $250 prize; all other finalists will receive $75. Winning papers are usually published.

OPENS OCTOBER 30th AT A THEATRE NEAR YOU!

Israeli opposition leader Shimon Peres recently met with Egyptian president Hosni Mubarak to express condolences over Anwar Sadat's death and extend his good wishes for Mubarak's term.

Reagan launches blitz to get AWACS sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a climactic Senate vote just two days away, President Reagan launched an all-out blitz on the opposition yesterday in a bid to rescue his $8.5-billion arms sale to Saudi Arabia.

Before the day was over, he had picked up one vote and the opposition had gained one.

Reagan called seven senators to his office yesterday — five declared opponents and two who were undecided — and aides said he might talk to a dozen other Senators before the showdown tomorrow afternoon.

He is trying to overcome opposition to the sale of AWACS radar planes and F-15 jet fighter weaponry, a plan already rejected by the House by a 301 to 111 vote.

Sen. William L. Armstrong, R-Colo., left the White House yesterday saying he was still undecided, but announced a few hours later that he will vote for the sale.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., who also had been uncommitted, took to the Senate floor even as the White House meetings were in progress to say he will vote against the sale.

Leahy said the sale would "start an avalanche" of arms requests from other Arab countries and said the administration has no underlying Middle East policy to justify such sales.

'We've still got a way to go'

Yesterday's announcements by Armstrong and Leahy raised the Senate line-up to 55-38 against the sale according to the latest Associated Press count.

The opposition includes 53 senators who have announced they oppose the sale plus two who say they are leaning against the deal.

Opponents must win a majority of the senators present and voting, 51 if all senators vote, to win approval of a veto resolution against the sale.

At the White House, spokesman Larry Speakes said, "We've still got a way to go."

"We're concentrating on a group of senators who are undecided" or who have expressed an interest in talking to the president, he said.

Speakes said Reagan may see as many as a dozen more senators today and tomorrow but refused to identify them.

It was errorless play a lot of the time. "Except for the thing that's plagued us all year long," added Crable. "A little breakdown here and there."

The breakdowns in the kicking game had a lot to do with Notre Dame's fate. Punter Dave Pryor bottled the Irish up at their own 2 yard line in the fourth quarter, and that set up the field position for USC's winning score. "It's funny," noted Pryor, "when it was 0-0 at the half, the coaches told me it might come down to kicking it inside the 20."

Added to that were 22 and 24 yard misses by Harry Oliver that would have given Notre Dame the lead on both occasions. "Everything was fine," said Harry about the first kick. "I just missed it. The left hash mark in that close is my toughest kick because I have to come across my body, but that's no excuse."

Faust took a delay-of-game penalty on the second try to give Oliver a better angle, but Southern Cal refused it.

"I don't know if that really distracted me," Oliver remarked. "I figured if we got it, that it would be a little better angle — but still you've got to put the ball through the goalposts. That's what it comes down to, and I just didn't do it. The snap was high and Tim (Koegel) still had his hand in front of the ball when I kicked it. I should have waited."

Notre Dame will have to wait until next year to stop USC's streak of four straight wins over the Irish, a first in the history of the series. But the seniors came up short on their last chance Saturday.

"I feel very sorry for them," offered Kiel. "It's been four years and they've never beaten Southern Cal."

"We played our guts out and didn't come out on top," Crable added. "It makes it hurt that much more."

And Faust is sympathetic to their pain. "What can you say to kids when they play that well? But we'll be alright. This may not have been a win, but it was still a great game for us."

IRISH ITEMS — an already depleted receiving corp suffered another setback when tight end Dean Masztak suffered a knee injury Saturday....the senior underwent knee surgery Sunday, and joins split ends Mike Boushka and Dave Condeni on the list of players lost for the season....representatives from the Sugar, Cotton, Bluebonnet and Holiday bowls were in attendance for the USC game....Gerry Faust was limping off the field after the game because Trojan linebacker Chip Banks ran into Faust on the sidelines during the game...."I'm going to have trouble running out of the tunnel from now on," he laughed.

Bradshaw, Steelers defeat Oilers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Terry Bradshaw drilled a tie-breaking six-yard touchdown pass to John Stallworth with 3:41 left to play to spark the Pittsburgh Steelers a 26-13 victory over the Houston Oilers in a National Football League game played in a steady drizzle last night.

The victory boosted Pittsburgh, 5-3, back into a first-place tie in the American Football Conference Central Division with the Cincinnati Bengals, upset Sunday by New Orleans.

The Oilers, who had tied the game 13-13 with a 10-point fourth-quarter surge, fell to 4-4 on the season. That ties them with Cleveland for second place in the tight AFC central.

Though minus injured defensive starters Joe Greene, L.C. Greenwood and Don Shell, the Steelers limited Earl Campbell to 56 yards on 23 carries. In addition, Campbell lost two fumbles in Steeler territory as Pittsburgh halted a string of eight consecutive Monday night victories by Houston.

Trailing 13-10 midway in the final quarter, the Oilers used a 31-yard fake-punt pass from Cliff Parsley to Adger Armstrong to keep alive a drive that ended with Toni Fritsch's 44-yard field goal with 5:53 to play.

Earlier in the fourth quarter, Oiler quarterback Ken Stabler combined with tight end Dave Casper on a 52-yard touchdown pass play. Casper caught the pass at the Pittsburgh 35 and broke tackles by Jack Ham and Jack Lambert on his way to the end zone to cut the Pittsburgh lead to 13-10.

After Fritsch's game-tying field goal, Steeler fullback Franco Harris broke loose on a 35-yard run, and an out-of-bounds hit by Oiler linebacker Ted Washington drew a 15-yard penalty that moved Pittsburgh to the Houston 19.

With 3:59 remaining, Bradshaw threw an apparent 14-yard touchdown pass to Jim Smith, who had caught a 46-yard touchdown bomb in the first period. But the play was nullified by offsetting penalties.

On the next play, Bradshaw scrambled eight yards to the Houston six. He rifled a pass to Stallworth between a pair of defenders on the next play for the winning score.

Dave Trout, who kicked two first-half field goals for Pittsburgh, missed the extra point after Stallworth's score.

The Oilers' ensuing drive was halted by a pass interception by Steeler safety Ron Johnson, who returned the ball eight yards to the visitor's 12-yard line. Four plays later, Franco Harris plunged one yard for a touchdown with two minutes to play for the Steelers' final score.

John, Hooton square off in 6

NEW YORK (AP) — A well-rested Burt Hooton will try to clinch the World Series for the Los Angeles Dodgers, who have the comeback habit, when they play the fighting New York Yankees tonight in the sixth game at Yankee Stadium.

The Dodgers took a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven Series with their third straight victory Sunday, leaving George Steinbrenner, the Yankees' principal owner, to sound the battle cry — "we're going to come back in New York — just wait."

Another battle cry sounded after Sunday's game was by a man who said, according to Steinbrenner, that New York fans are animals and that his players choked. The man and another man confronted Steinbrenner in a Los Angeles hotel elevator, where the owner said he knocked them both down after being hit by a beer bottle and punched. He said he suffered a possible broken left hand.

Tommy John, the ex-Dodger who beat his former team in the second game, will try to even the Series for the Yankees just three days after pitching two innings of relief in the Yankees' Saturday loss. John beat Hooton to give the Yankees a 2-0 Series lead.

"...we'll have our work cut out for us Tuesday."

The Dodgers got a boost Monday when officials at a Los Angeles hospital reported that third baseman Ron Cey did not suffer a concussion and was fine. Cey was hospitalized after being hit on the head by fastball from Yankee reliever Goose Gossage in the eighth inning Sunday.

Cey was to be examined again later Monday before a decision on whether he could go to New York for the sixth game.

A victory Tuesday night would enable the Dodgers to duplicate New York's 1978 World Series victory in which the Yankees lost the first two games, then won four straight.

"It's a helluva thing to do, beating the Yankees three straight, and we'll have our work cut out for us Tuesday," Hooton said.

On Sunday, the Dodgers won their third straight over the Yankees at Dodger Stadium after losing the first two at New York. Jerry Reuss, the loser in the first game, pitched a five-hitter, and Pedro Guerrero and Steve Yeager connected on consecutive home runs off Ron Guidry in the seventh inning for the 2-1 victory.

In his previous start at Yankee Stadium, Hooton worked six innings and gave up one unearned run on three hits as the Dodgers lost 3-0. It was his third straight start with only three days' rest between each one. But for Tuesday night's game, Hooton will have rested for five days.

"I've advocated pitching on three days' rest all along," Hooton said, "but not doing it during the season, then trying to do it in the playoffs and World Series is no easy matter."

"I felt really good the last time out, but there was just no zip on the ball," Hooton said.

crowd proves that soccer has a bright future at Notre Dame," Hunter said.

Notre Dame's two other losses came last week. The Irish travelled to Western Michigan on Saturday, Oct. 17, and outshot their opponent 27-4, only to lose by a score of 2-0. The loss was obviously a disappointing one, and could hurt Notre Dame's chance for a playoff bid.

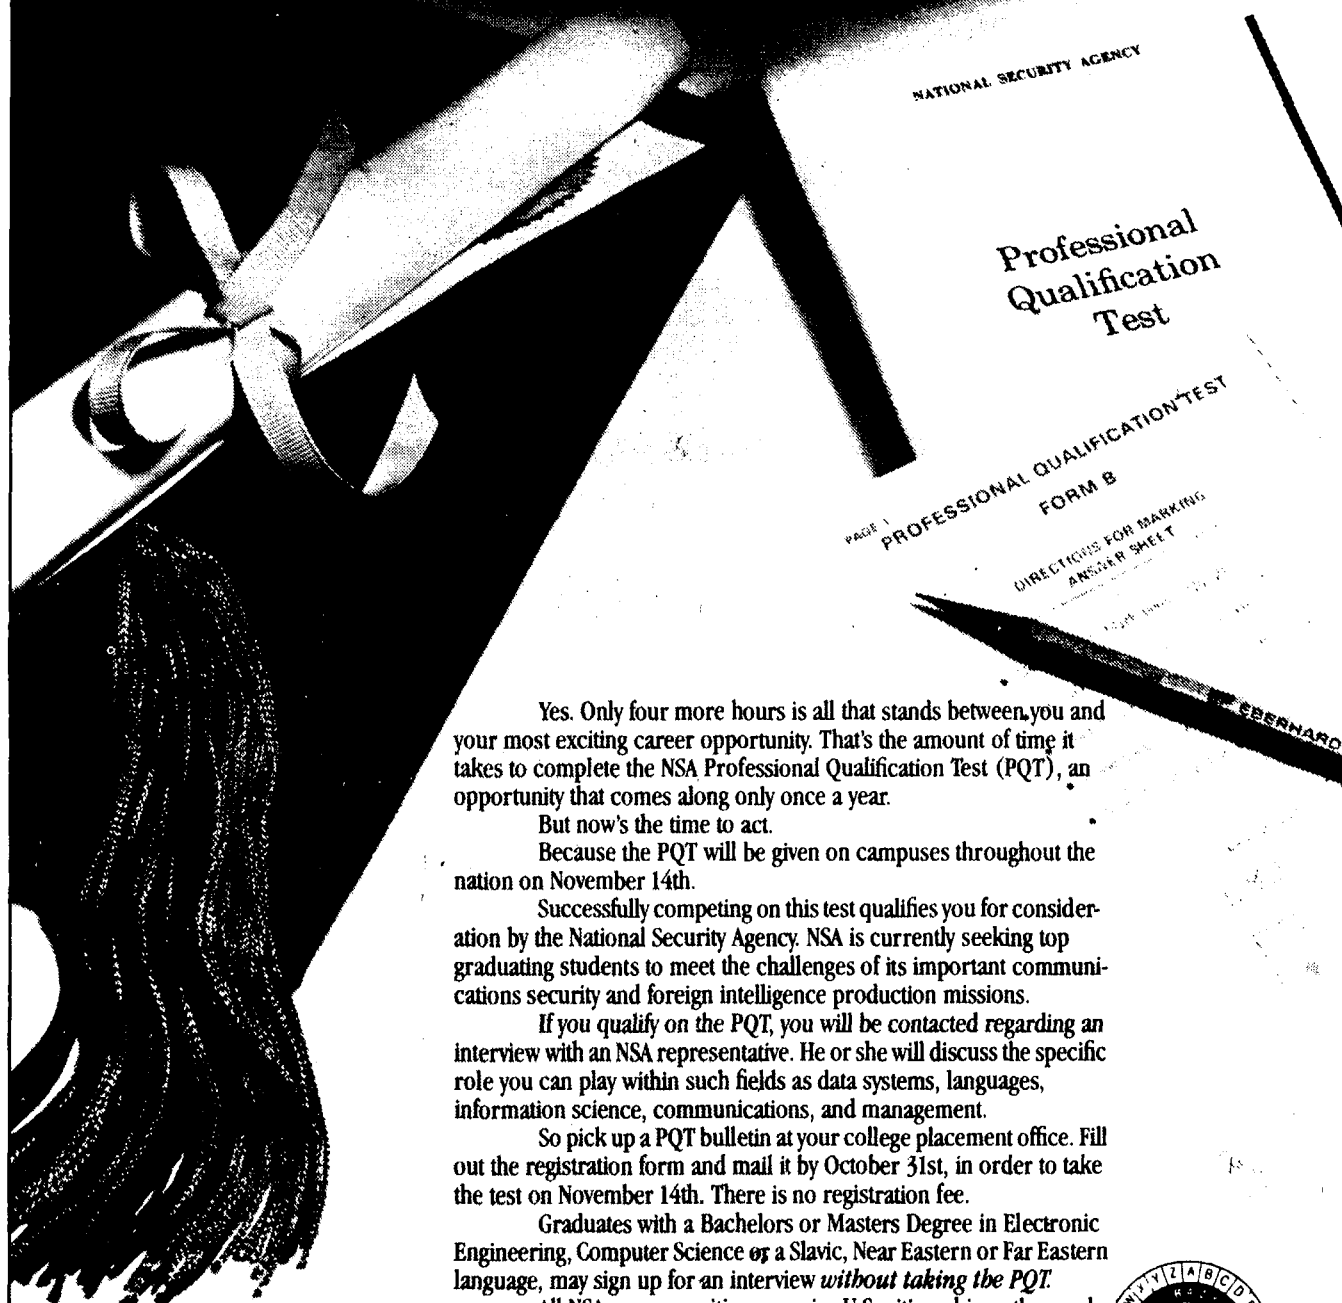

The team's other loss came at the hands of Akron University, rated second only to Indiana in the Great Lakes division. The game was played at Akron last Thursday, and the Irish fell by a score of 2-0.

Notre Dame is still ranked eighth in the Great Lakes division, but their hopes for a playoff bid are fading. It is by no means impossible, but it won't be easy.

CORNER KICKS — The Irish have four games remaining....they travel to Valparaiso tomorrow and return for their final home game Sunday against Wright State (2 p.m., Cartier field)....then it's back on the road for games against Bowling Green and Louisville to close out the season.

Your degree represents an investment of 5000 hours...

4 more can turn it into an exciting career.

Yes. Only four more hours is all that stands between you and your most exciting career opportunity. That's the amount of time it takes to complete the NSA Professional Qualification Test (PQT), an opportunity that comes along only once a year.

But now's the time to act.

Because the PQT will be given on campuses throughout the nation on November 14th.

Successfully competing on this test qualifies you for consideration by the National Security Agency. NSA is currently seeking top graduating students to meet the challenges of its important communications security and foreign intelligence production missions.

If you qualify on the PQT, you will be contacted regarding an interview with an NSA representative. He or she will discuss the specific role you can play within such fields as data systems, languages, information science, communications, and management.

So pick up a PQT bulletin at your college placement office. Fill out the registration form and mail it by October 31st, in order to take the test on November 14th. There is no registration fee.

Graduates with a Bachelors or Masters Degree in Electronic Engineering, Computer Science or a Slavic, Near Eastern or Far Eastern language, may sign up for an interview without taking the PQT.

All NSA career positions require U.S. citizenship, a thorough background investigation, and a medical examination.

TENNIS — In the finals of the men's novice tournament, Barry Fay defeated Pat Toole. Though hampered with a broken thumb during half of the tournament, Fay held on to win the championship, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4.

In the men's open division, the semi-final pairings are as follows: Marshall v. Zalazny, and O'Brien v. Walcott. The winners of these matches will play for the championship.

In the women's division, Louise Demello defeated Sue Gordon for the championship.

In semi-final action in the undergrad mixed doubles division, the team of Clark-Demello defeated Williams-Ford and will go on to play the winner of the Runger-Schmidt v. Straub-Swieciak match for the title.

WATERPOLO — In the final series, "Moby Dick" defeated the "Lust Bombs" by a score of 2-1. Because the tournament is double-elimination, the two teams must play once more to determine the champion.

NOTICES — The football equipment exchange for men's football, normally held each week, will be by appointment only this week. Call 6100 or check in at the NVA office (C-2 in the ACC).

and Bjork subsequently sealed the victory with an empty-net goal with nine ticks left on the clock.

Freshmen Brent Chapman and Sean Regan provided the impetus in Saturday's tie by each scoring a goal to bring the Irish back from a 3-1 deficit. Bjork finished all the scoring when found the net only 27 seconds after Ohio State had taken a 4-3 lead, both goals coming in the last two minutes of play.

A major question concerning the strength of the Irish defense was adequately answered by the play of the blueliners, as all played solid hockey despite having little overall experience. Dave Laurion also performed up to his old standards throughout the series, as he repeatedly came up with big saves in crucial situations.

It was, all in all, a good weekend for the Irish as they now find themselves off to the best start of any team in the sport's history at Notre Dame. An early season test will be provided this weekend by Northern Michigan when they invade the ACC. The Irish will be out to establish themselves as league title contenders and to erase the home jinx they suffered through last season.

ICE CHIPS — The Observer will publish a hockey supplement in Thursday's paper to provide all the information needed for what will hopefully be an enthusiastic hockey following from the student body ... faceoff for this weekend's games will 8 p.m. and tickets are still available at the ACC ticket office.

Robinson compliments Irish

By KELLY SULLIVAN
Sports Writer

Like most Notre Dame-Southern Cal clashes, Saturday's game ranks as another in the long list of classics between the inter-sectional rivals.

"It was a great game," noted USC linebacker Chip Banks. "There is no other game like it. It's simply one of a kind. Our coaches really get into it because it is so special. It's certainly a bigger game than UCLA because there is so much tradition involved."

Tradition and emotion again had a big hand in the caliber of competition. Though, the fifth-ranked Trojans brought a 5-1 ledger to town, both squads knew the records wouldn't mean a thing on the field.

"I told our players all week that this game was like a heavyweight championship fight that might not be decided until the 12th or 13th round," predicted USC coach John Robinson. "And that's just what happened."

"We knew we had to play every play," offered linebacker Neil Hope, "and that there wouldn't be a big difference until late in the game. It's like a street fight, and the more physical team won out."

But tailback Marcus Allen thinks the Irish are pretty physical themselves. "Looks can be very deceiving," he said after the game. "I may look fine now, but I'm pretty bruised up and I'm hurting. ND-USC is one of the most physical and intense games in football, and this was no exception. We were fortunate to come out on top; the yards came really tough."

Yards were hard to come by for Allen. He came into the game averaging 215 yards an outing, but the Irish held him to a season-low 147 yards. But passing yardage came even tougher to quarterback John Mazur.

"Notre Dame's secondary gave him very little," agreed Robinson. "We've raised John to be very selective and cautious, though, and he did a fine job of leading the team."

"I had a sore thumb all week," explained the sophomore, 7-14 for 46 yards, "and it acted up in the cold weather. I was a little afraid to throw the ball."

Robinson insisted his players are never afraid of Notre Dame's crowd — "They're just thrilled to be playing here," — but the fans really picked on two particular Trojans.

"The crowd booed Joey and I everytime our names came over the speakers," said safety Keith Browner. "I guess they don't like us because we don't play here like Jim and Ross did. We talk about it a lot at home, and Jim and Ross have always said they were 100 percent behind us."

Notre Dame, trailing 14-7, looked like they weren't going to stay behind very long when freshman Joe Howard reeled off a 56-yard kickoff return following USC's last score. But Browner was there to make the big play. "It was a great return. I knew I was the last guy back there, and I tried to get the ball out of his hands, but he held on tight."

"They have very capable backs, and they all hold onto the ball," agreed linebacker Hope. "Phil Carter impressed me. I've never played against a quicker player."

Robinson was very impressed with Gerry Faust. "Things aren't going very well for him right now, but he'll get it turned around. There was something about the look in his eye after the game that impressed the hell out of me."

... Violation

there will be no official inquiry. Col. Jack Stephens, Associate Athletic Director, said that because of the newspaper reports and apparent concern, Notre Dame will, in a sense, report itself. A written report will be filed today with the NCAA explaining exactly what happened.

Surely the whole matter will blow over quickly. The NCAA infractions committee will discuss it at its November meeting, and that will be that. But for the real Irish-haters, there's nothing like dragging Notre Dame and anyone associated with it, though the mud at every possible opportunity.

Remember the last two times Notre Dame was singled out by the NCAA? Basketball walk-on Marc Kelly was forced to return the money he received for appearing in the movie Fast Break. You see, that money classified Kelly as a "professional."

The same year, the NCAA announced that any varsity basketball player participating in Bookstore Basketball would have his eligibility terminated. Participation was deemed "extra practice," another regulatory no no.

Meanwhile, recruits at some other schools are driving Trans Ams and holding down lucrative summer jobs, and their parents appreciate the blocks of season tickets and under-the-table money.

Fortunately for his sanity, Faust is able to take all this in stride during an emotionally difficult season. Whereas losing is something quite new to him, life under a microscope is not. "We had the same problem at Moeller," he said. "When your program's successful, there are going to be people watching every move you make. They take the things you do and twist them in a negative way. Some people will even make things up that just aren't true."

ANOTHER STUDENT UNION PRODUCTION

Irish are optimistic after loss to USC

By KELLY SULLIVAN
Sports Writer

"Every game with Notre Dame is a fight," said USC fullback Todd Spencer. "Eventually one team will fall. We knew when we were going in that it was going to be a war."

A war was going to be a war. Numerous battles. Notre Dame came out on top after most of those bouts, winning almost every statistic — rushing, passing, time of possession, first downs, and Phil Carter even won the battle of the tailbacks.

But when the struggle was over, the Irish had lost the war, and the Trojan player most responsible was not Heisman-bound Marcus Allen, who was held to "just" 147 yards and one touchdown. It was the touchdown by Spencer, who had tallied only 48 yards all season prior to Saturday's contest, that broke Notre Dame's back late in the fourth quarter.

"When a defense keys on Allen, you've got to go to someone else," USC coach Robinson explained. "We always knew Todd was a good runner. He broke through to the secondary, and the tailback in him came out."

"We only give him the ball about once a month," he quipped, "so he's already got this month's quota."

Spencer's 26-yard gallop never should have happened, according to linebacker Bob Crable, who felt the play coming and issued a warning.

"The last thing I said in the huddle was 'Watch the fullback on the trap.' With the defense we were in he shouldn't have gotten an inch."

The inch, the yards, the score got USC the win but the Irish picked up some solace even in defeat as Gerry Faust's team played its best ball of the season.

"Our players really came of age today," he agreed. "They played like we've wanted them to play all year."

Notre Dame's "coming of age" perhaps can be credited to an offense that returned to its old form for a number of reasons:

- a healthy guard Randy Ellis and consistent play from the entire offensive line allowed Phil Carter to regain his all-America look, as he totaled 161 yards and accounted for

Notre Dame's lone score. "The line did a tremendous job of coming off the ball," Faust acknowledged. "They're starting to gel."

- rejoining Carter in the backfield, quarterback Blair Kiel benefitted from the line's efforts, going 12-23 for 115 yards and becoming the first signal caller to play the entire game this season. "It made me feel a lot better to go out and be able to set my own tempo," said the sophomore. "It helped my confidence all the way around. I knew I was going to play the whole game."

- back at split end, Tony Hunter snared 5 tosses for 76 yards, his best day in a long while, and the offense threw a balanced attack USC's way. "They had a great mixture of plays," complimented Robinson. "They called the right things strategically against the type of defense we run."

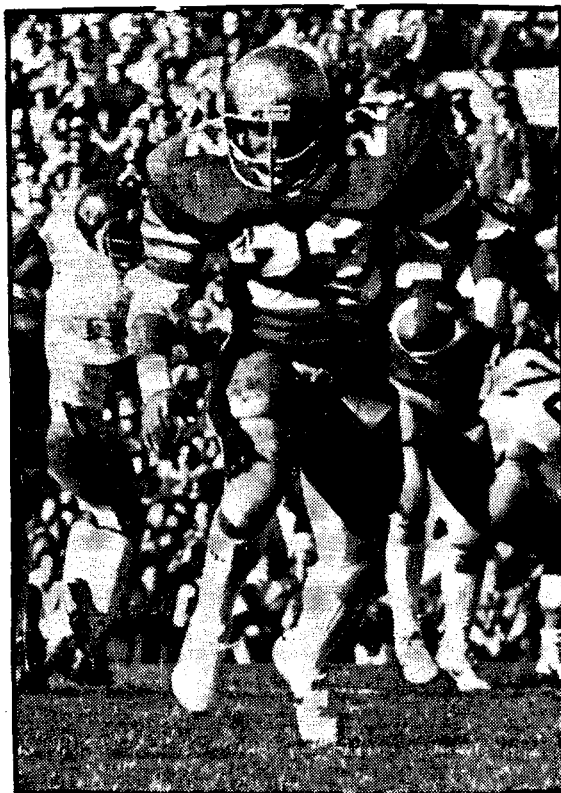

The Irish defense countered with an equally encouraging performance (Allen had just 58 yards at the half), allowing Trojan quarterback John Mazur only 46 yards in the air. "Their defense is among the tops we've faced," he admitted. "They pretty much stopped us on key plays."

Defensive line coach Bill Meyers thinks the offense deserves much of the credit for the way his front four played. "Our offense did a great job controlling the football; when they control the football, they make it easy on us. We didn't have to spend so much time on the field, and we didn't get tired, so we were able to come back and knock the hell out of them."

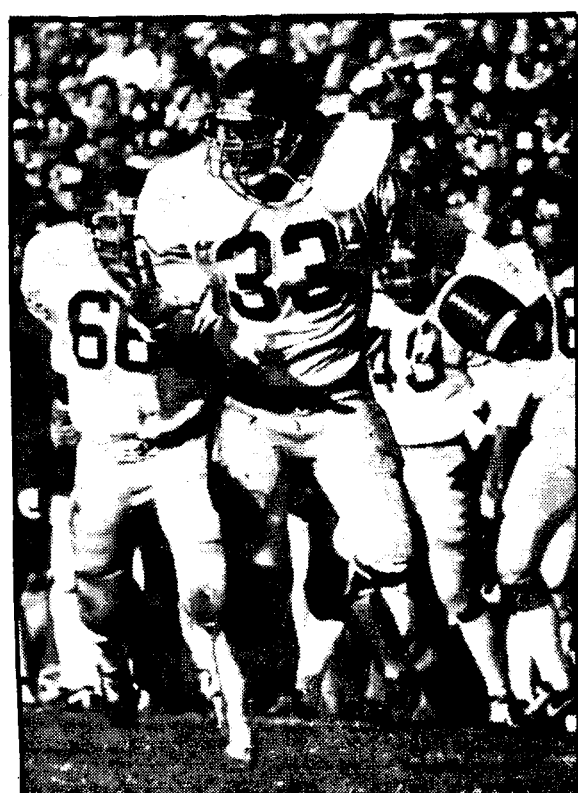

Crable led the assault with 15 tackles, and he had strong support from Joe Rudzinski's 10 stops. Up front, the Irish did a good job of stringing out the USC rush. Tim Marshall and Kevin Griffith were in quarterback Mazur's face all afternoon. End Jon Autry dropped a Trojan for a loss on three occasions.

"Rather than worrying about Allen so much, we worried more about their offensive line," said Crable. "We were just planning on beating them up front, you know, beating them to the crack — and we did it a lot of the time."

Notre Dame opens league play

By MICHAEL OLENIK
Sports Writer

Notre Dame's hockey team enjoyed a successful Central Collegiate Hockey Association debut this past weekend by notching a victory and a tie against Ohio State in Columbus. Irish coach Lefty Smith saw his squad pull off a series of comebacks in both games to secure three points and a fourth-place position in the league standings, just one point behind Michigan, Michigan St. and next week's opponent Northern Michigan.

Led by wingers Jeff Perry and Kirt Bjork, the Notre Dame offense played consistently aggressive hockey by recording scores of 7-5 and 4-4, rebounding in both games from two goal deficits. Smith was appropriately pleased with his team's performance, as he showed after the game.

"I was extremely proud of the way our squad battled back. We faced a great deal of adversity over the weekend, and we responded to the pressure as I hoped we would. Naturally, we would have liked to sweep the series, but any time you can go on the road in this league and pick up three points, you've done a good job."

Especially impressive was the play of the Irish specialty teams, as the power-play units and penalty-killing squads both executed with high efficiency. The Irish connected on 41 percent of their power-play opportunities while shutting the door on Ohio State 91 percent of the time in man-short situations.

Individual standout performances were turned in by Perry and Bjork, who scored two and three goals respectively to lead the Irish on their come-back trail. It was defenseman John Schmidt, however, who put in the game-winner Friday night when he beat Buckeye goalie John Dougan with only 2:17 remaining.

Hunter satisfied despite recent loss

By RICK KRIST
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame soccer team saw its record drop to 14-3-2 as it lost a hard-fought battle to the number-one ranked Indiana Hoosiers Sunday. The game was exciting and aggressive, and the Hoosiers came out on top, 2-0. Despite the loss, coach Rich Hunter and his players were not disappointed with their performance.

"I was pleased with the way we played," comments Hunter. "Indiana is simply a better team than we are, and I feel that even though we lost, we played up to our potential. Any time you play at your best, you have to be satisfied."

The first half ended in a scoreless tie and the Irish were only outshot by three, 11-8. Notre Dame did well in containing the Hoosiers, namely forward Armando Betancourt, who is considered by many the best player in the NCAA right now.

Betancourt was constantly hounded by Notre Dame defenseman and co-captain Jim Stein. Stein was assigned to cover the star forward in hopes of keeping him off the scoreboard. Stein played a tough aggressive game and did a fine job in containing Betancourt.

"I think Jim Stein played the best game of his four-year career here," praises Hunter.

The entire Notre Dame defense did an excellent job in stopping the powerful Hoosier attack for more than 66 minutes. They were aggressive and covered their men closely, getting rid of the ball when they had to. One could even see a hint of frustration on some of the Hoosiers' faces as the Irish defense clamped down.

The teams played scoreless soccer until the 66:42 mark when Hoosier Pat McGauley scored on a low shot into the corner of the net. The ball was just out of reach for Irish goalkeeper John Milligan, who turned in a fine game in the nets. McGauley, like Betancourt, is considered a premiere forward in the NCAA.

Less than four minutes later, Betancourt finally broke through for a goal on a rebound in front of the net. The score came at the 70:11 mark and gave Indiana a 2-0 lead.

Basically, the Notre Dame game plan was to contain the Hoosiers by marking their men closely. "We played a more defensive game than usual," explains Hunter. "Playing against a team like Indiana, we had to change our game plan. Indiana is just too good a team to play on an even level. We worked on marking men in practice and our first concern was in containing their attack."

The crowd for the game was impressive. It was by far the largest crowd ever to see a Notre Dame soccer game at home. "The size of the

The watchful eyes

Oh, the trials and tribulations of being the most loved and most hated school in the world! And now the ND-haters are trying their best to drag Gerry Faust down the tubes.

The rookie football coach barely had time to reflect on his team's fourth loss but best performance of the season, when The Cincinnati Enquirer reported that Faust may have committed an NCAA recruiting violation when he talked to the Moeller Crusaders before their 37-3 win over league rival St. Xavier. Gimme a break!

While most Notre Dame students were heading home October 16, Faust also was going home in a sense. "I just took my family to Cincinnati to watch the game," he said yesterday. "This was my former team, and I was very close to them."

Early that evening, Ted Bacigalupo, Faust's successor at Moeller, informed him that the players were dedicating that night's game to the long time Moeller mentor. "He asked me to come talk to the kids before the game," Faust said. "What am I supposed to do when they want to dedicate the game to me?"

So Faust addressed the team and made a point not to talk to any individual players. "Going into a locker room is not an NCAA violation," said Hale McMenamin, assistant director of the NCAA's enforcement division. "But doing that would probably be a contact with an athlete." Recruiting rules for this point in the season prohibit college coaches, no matter who they are, from contacting high school players.

"I just thanked them for inviting me in and dedicating

Michael Ortman
Sports Editor

the game to me," Faust said yesterday of his locker room visit. "I told them I loved Notre Dame, that I was proud of Moeller. I wished them the best of luck and told them to play well."

"I don't see that being any different than speaking at banquets," he added.

Two of Notre Dame's major competitors in the market for Moeller players were calling the charges absurd. "It's ridiculous to raise questions about a thing like that," said Don Canham, athletic director at Michigan. "It's silly."

"I could care less if he speaks to the team," said University of Cincinnati Coach Mike Gottfried. "I have no problems with that."

Yet there's always some joker in every crowd who feels compelled to make a fuss over nothing. Apparently charges were brought to the NCAA by Ohio State about Faust's alleged recruiting violation.

Although the NCAA cannot divulge whether or not it is investigating the matter, Notre Dame Sports Information Director Roger Valdiserri indicated that
