Around Falklands

Britain declares 'total war zone'

(AP) — Britain yesterday declared a "total" war zone 200 miles around the Falkland Islands, Argentina's navy was reported in the zone ready to fight and the United States warned the situation had reached a critical point.

The Defense Ministry in London said the "total exclusion zone" would take effect at 7 a.m. EDT tomorrow, and the British Broadcasting Corp. said there was a strong possibility of a British attack Friday night or Saturday morning.

It said Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has "taken her gloves off."

British defense sources said weather conditions in the South Atlantic were "deteriorating rapidly, with 70 mile-an-hour winds on the way," heightening speculation that Britain's armada would act quickly.

Argentina, while saying it was studying a U.S. peace plan relayed by Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., put its forces on "maximum alert" and predicted a British attack on the Falklands in 24 to 48 hours.

Argentine naval sources in Buenos Aires said the nation's fleet was deployed in the South Atlantic, including the announced "total exclusion zone."

"We're doing all we can through diplomatic channels to avoid a war, but if they (the British) want war, they will have it because we will have no alternative but to defend ourselves against an attack," said one of the sources, who requested anonymity.

In Washington, a senior State Department official who declined to be identified said, "We are now at a point where it is almost imperative that the two sides agree" to U.S. proposals to end the conflict.

Regarding the British war zone announcement, Dean Fischer, the State Department spokesman, said, "It is quite clear in light of this announcement that the crisis has reached a critical point."

He also said consideration was being given to another meeting between Haig and Argentine Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez, who was in Washington for a meeting of the Organization of American States.

Fischer said Haig has submitted proposals to resolve the crisis to both London and Buenos Aires "and we are awaiting a response."

However, the senior U.S. official said Haig believes "time is getting very, very short" because of "the movement of military forces."

The war zone announced by the British Defense Ministry extended the maritime blockade of April 12 that was designed to prevent Argentina from reinforcing the Falklands by sea. Argentine planes have continued to fly in troops but large ships have kept out.

The announcement bolstered speculation that Mrs. Thatcher, her patience exhausted with Argentina's failure to withdraw its troops after seizing the islands on April 2, is now ready to order the British armada to recapture the Falklands in an all-out assault.

British government sources reported a Cabinet meeting held shortly before the war zone announcement produced "no fresh optimism" that a negotiated settlement can be reached.

"The situation is extremely tense," one British defense source in

O'Meara defends ND's retirement policy

By MARK WORSCHER
News Editor

When faculty members reach age 65 the University feels "no moral obligation to keep them on," said Provost Timothy O'Meara.

O'Meara, in an interview yesterday, outlined Notre Dame's policy on retirement in light of President Carter's Age Discrimination in Employment Act. The 1977 act raised the retirement age to 70; however, the law excluded universities until July 1982.

He said the major impact of the new law would be on the "young coming in" to the faculty. With more professors working longer, fewer positions will be available for these younger instructors.

O'Meara also defended the University's general policy on retirement, saying, "sure it's fair."

This policy, as outlined in the faculty handbook, requires a faculty member to retire and become emeritus on the first day of July following his or her 65th birthday (70th after July). Members can work past retirement age, but only on a year-to-year appointment basis.

O'Meara commented that these appointments are separate from retirement, and thus are not really continuations of employment.

Professor Emeritus James Danehy called this appointment system "exploitation" in an interview last November, saying that Notre Dame takes advantage of emeriti simply because they reach a certain age.

Danehy unsuccessfully sued the university in 1976, charging that the retirement policy contradicted the idea of tenure, "permanence of appointment."

O'Meara responded, "The basic reason for permanence is for

500 GSL's involved

Student loan applications held up

By KATHLEEN DOYLE
Staff Reporter

About 500 unprocessed Guaranteed Student Loan applications lie idly in the office of Joseph Russo, director of financial aid. By next week there will be 1000 such applications.

"The hold-up is due to the federal government's delay in issuing next year's regulations on processing. At a meeting held earlier this week I was told that we probably won't receive them until the first week of June," Russo said. "About one-third of the states have contacted us and asked us not to process any loans until the government comes up with these regulations. The new regulations might go into effect immediately or they might be delayed."

The Guaranteed Student Loan program is the most commonly used federal aid program at Notre Dame. Of the $16 million of federal funds utilized by Notre Dame, $13 million is used in the GSL program. The nationwide cost of the program to the federal government is $3 billion in interest on the subsidized loans.

The cost of the program is so great because the government also pays a "special allowance" which is driven by the prime interest rate.

"Use of the GSL program has doubled and doubled again in the past few years," Russo said. "That's because of the 1978 Middle Income Bill, which removed the income ceiling on the program. It was a political compromise made by Carter to stop a tax credit bill.

"The Middle Income Bill was changed by the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1981. Now those families with an annual income over $30,000 must prove their need."

Under the new legislation, applicants would have to fill out a Simple Needs Test, developed by the federal government. It would be much like the present Financial Aid Form and would ask questions about income, family size, social security students. Also included in the proposals is a suggestion to allow the interest rate of the loan to float to the prime rate after two years of repayment by the student.

"With this proposal Reagan may be suggesting that his recovery program will work and the interest rate won't be all that bad."

The status of the Pell Grant (Basic Educational Opportunity Grant) is still unknown. Russo anticipates a small reduction in this area with the amount of each grant being reduced by approximately $250.

"The problem with the Pell Grant is that it has not been updated in the past two years. Its criteria fails to take into account the rate of inflation," Russo stated.

The federal government has made tentative allocations for each of Notre Dame's university-based federal aid programs (Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant, Work Study, and National Direct Student Loans). The funds for each program have been reduced.

"If you add the reductions from last year and this year, the total reduction amounts to about $500,000," Russo said.

This leaves Russo with less than $2 million to allocate. This is a great reduction from 1980-81, a peak year for funds, when the Financial Aid Office had $2.5 million to work with.

The reduction in aid comes at a time when tuition, room, and board costs at Notre Dame are expected to

New faculty building design unveiled

The University of Notre Dame's new faculty office building is depicted in this artist's sketch. Built in three four-story sections, with lobby entrances to the southeast and northwest, it will occupy a site behind O'Shaughnessy Hall, where the bulk of classes in the college of Arts and Letters are taught. Its future occupants have been housed in the basement of the Memorial Library since its construction in 1963. The structure will have about 250 offices, a faculty lounge, a conference room, some small seminar rooms, and a secretarial pool. The site will be cleared this summer, with bids expected to be awarded in October and completion set for May, 1984. Project cost is estimated at $7.2 million. Architects are Ellerbe Associates, Inc., Bloomington, Minn.

An outdoor cooler behind Senior Bar was broken into and a number of beer taps were stolen early yesterday morning, according to Manager Tom Brouillard. Nothing else was reported missing. Brouillard said the vandals broke the lock and stole the taps at approximately 2 or 3 a.m. Another cooler was left untouched. The cost of the robbery has not been estimated. — The Observer

Notre Dame's Department of Sociology and Anthropology will become two separate departments, of sociology and of anthropology. A request to separate the disciplines was made by both sociologists and anthropologists before the University's Academic Council April 19 and was approved unanimously. The recommendation had the support of the Acting Dean of the College of Arts and Letters, Robert E. Burns, who said the division is expected to be accomplished by the opening of the 1982-83 academic year. Spokesmen for the move said it was a natural evolution within the department and followed a national pattern of distinct departments for the disciplines. For some years, there has been an undergraduate major in anthropology within the existing department, whose records show the first graduate in anthropology in 1970. There are no current plans for advanced study in anthropology. There are seven anthropologists currently on the faculty and 20 sociologists. The chairman for the Department of Anthropology will be named at a later date. — The Observer

The Campus Ministry office of Notre Dame recently announced the establishment of a draft counselling service for University students. Although current federal law requires only draft registration, an act of Congress could reactivate military conscription, in which case there would be no college deferments. Any claim of conscientious objection, under the current law, must be filed within ten days of the induction notice. "The ten days offered are woefully inadequate for the development of such a sensitive and far-reaching decision of the conscience," according to Br. Joe McTaggart, associate director of Campus Ministry. "This is not a position which can be decided overnight. While we draft counselors from Campus Ministry and the faculty and staff working with us do not, as a group, advocate any particular position on the draft, we will offer our service to all Notre Dame students who would wrestle with these sensitive issues. We aren't in this arena to increase the number of conscientious objectors, but to help those students who approach us to determine their position in light of their consciences, as the American bishops have called upon religious educators to do." — The Observer

A husband and wife accused of being part of a ring that smuggled up to 4,000 illegal Mexican aliens to Chicago have been convicted of conspiracy. Nicholas Gudino, 28, and his wife Maria, 27, were convicted Tuesday after a jury trial in U.S. District Court. Sentencing was set for June 17. Evidence in the case was gathered by an undercover agent who went to Tijuana, Mexico, and posed as an illegal alien to learn how the pipeline to Chicago worked. The aliens were brought across the border and moved through the Camp Pendleton, Calif., Marine Base by a Marine and a woman friend, the Chicago Sun-Times said. A federal judge in Baltimore has denied a request from a Hare Krishna sect for a temporary ban on enforcement of new regulations aimed at protecting visitors to Baltimore's renovated Inner Harbor from public nuisances. The sect's attorney, C. Christopher Brown, contended that a ban against "public assembly" or solicitation around the National Aquarium meant there "can be no free speech activities" in the area, and argued that a provision requiring a five-day wait for a permit to engage in "speechmaking" and "marching" amounted to a "five-day moratorium on free speech." U.S. District Judge Norman Ramsey said another federal judge already had agreed to expedite trial of a pending Hare Krishna suit seeking to set aside the new park regulations permanently on constitutional grounds. — AP

The nose of an empty United Airlines DC-10 tipped down onto the runway at Newark International Airport yesterday after landing. Gear malfunctioning occurred during routine maintenance, authorities said. No one was aboard and there were no injuries when the mishap occurred about 2:15 a.m., officials said. "The gear retracted as mechanics were checking on the hydraulics and slowly the plane went down," said Charles Novak, a spokesman for United in Chicago. He said the plane suffered slight damage to the nose. The cause of the accident was "under investigation." The landing gear raises and lowers a wheel from the nose during takeoff and landing. The plane was being readied for an 8 a.m. flight to Chicago, and the passengers were put on another plane, Novak said. — AP

An 18-year-old youth suffered a heart attack and died while playing a video game in a Calumet City, Ill., arcade, but coroner's office officials would not blame stress for the attack. Mark Allen, deputy coroner for Lake County, Ind., said Peter Bukowski, 18, of South Holland, Mich. died after playing the video game "Berserk" at Friar Tuck's Game Room in Calumet City. He was taken to an Indiana hospital after he was stricken. Allen said the youth apparently had heart problems prior to the April 3 incident and the death could not be blamed on stress brought on by playing the video game. He said Bukowski's death could have been triggered by a task as easy as walking up a flight of stairs. — AP

A Study of Absurdity

The arrest of eight Farley women last Friday night at Rocco's called to mind some disturbing questions concerning the priorities and methods of investigation of the South Bend Police Department.

Why, for example, does the police department waste limited manpower by having two undercover officers sneak around a quiet, family restaurant on a Friday evening to look for underage drinkers? If the department is so concerned with this problem (which is a question in itself), why aren't the obvious hangouts — Corby's, Bridget's, etc. — targets for the plainclothesmen instead?

Why is a quiet section dinner among friends disturbed — and the evenings of several girls ruined — simply because the students wanted some beer with their pizza? I could perhaps use this column to question the rationale behind a law requiring Hoosier beer drinkers to be 21, but that subject has been explored on these pages before, and the state representatives in Indianapolis don't seem too concerned with these arguments.

What is important, however, is the enforcement of this law here in Michiana. According to Captain Walter Benninghoff of the South Bend Police Department, the Special Operations Unit has a vice detail that deals specifically with prostitution and liquor violations. On any given weekend evening, the unit employs "enough plainclothesmen to cover the city."

Assuming this distribution of manpower is reasonable — an assumption which may be questioned in view of South Bend's average of 20 murders and 80 rapes a year — why must these undercover officers stake out a quiet family restaurant like Rocco's?

The officers' report of "Friday night's arrests indicates that the officers went to Rocco's on an anonymous tip."

Whew! Does this mean that Rocco's isn't one of the squad's regular targets? Regardless, this still does not justify their treatment of the Farley "villains."

Perhaps I should describe Friday's incident: two groups from Farley were at Rocco's for section dinners. Several of the students ordered beer with their pizza, and because the restaurant was quite busy at the time, were not asked to show identification. At no time did the groups become excessively loud.

Minutes later, a man and woman in street clothes approached the tables, flashed their police badges, and asked to see some identification. When eight of the girls could not produce any, they were arrested, frisked, and sent to the police station.

Curiously, five other Notre Dame students who were sitting right next to the two tables of Farley girls were not asked to produce any identification at all. I guess the anonymous tipster failed to warn the officers about this group.

The story does not end here. The eight girls spent over four hours being "processed." In police jargon, this means the officers took mug shots and fingerprinted the women. But this process took four hours. Although my experience with the police is limited to watching Hill Street Blues, I can only hope that other police departments show a little more efficiency.

What may be most disturbing of all is the attitude of these officers toward the group of students. The officers observed the group for several minutes like a bunch of "snakes," according to Rocco Ameduri, the owner of Rocco's.

They were evidently waiting to make sure they caught all the girls with beer, because they even arrested one of the girls who had been drinking water.

"We saw you take a sip of beer," they told the villain.

Discounting the humiliation endured by the eight students, perhaps Friday's incident harmed the South Bend Police Department most.

How can one seriously respect a department that enforces laws in such a manner?

This lack of respect might just be mutual, however. As an officer was leading one of the girls to the squad car, he commented: "This wouldn't happen if you people would stay on your campus."

Thanks a lot, officer.

Pope postpones return to Poland indefinitely

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II's plans to visit Poland in August have been postponed indefinitely, three years after his return home fanned nationalist and religious fervor, Poland's Roman Catholic primate said yesterday.

"I believe the pope's trip must be postponed for a little while," Archbishop Jozef Glemp said in an unusual session with reporters in St. Peter's Square. Despite Glemp's cautious remarks, Polish sources at the Vatican said the primate clearly meant the visit was off.

Just a few weeks before the Dec. 13 martial law crackdown on Poland's church-backed Solidarity labor movement, John Paul had accepted an invitation from the Communist government and Polish bishops to make the trip.

Asked if the pope would visit Poland next year, Glemp replied, "No, unless the situation (in Poland) calms down."

The archbishop arrived in Rome on Monday to coordinate church strategy under military rule in Poland, where more than 90 percent of the nation's 36 million people are devout Catholics.

Glemp would not say whether it was the pope who decided to cancel the trip. But he implied that the Warsaw government may have pressured him to discourage the pope from coming for fear of fanning anti-state feeling.

The archbishop said there are "objective reasons" for Warsaw to want to see the trip postponed. "Not everything is easy for the government," he said.

The 61-year-old pope as repeatedly called on Warsaw to rescind martial law, release political prisoners and restore rights gained by Solidarity, the first independent labor union in the Soviet bloc.

Vatican sources had said earlier the pope might cancel the trip since he feared giving any impression he accepts military rule.

In Warsaw, a Polish government official said authorities had no objections to a papal visit, but he refused to elaborate or be quoted by name.

John Paul's trip was planned for the 600th anniversary celebration of the Aug. 26 arrival of Our Lady of Czestochowa, Poland's most sacred and patriotic symbol. The "Black Madonna," as it is popularly known, was brought to the Jasna Gora monastery in the southern Polish city of Czestochowa from the Ukraine.

Pope names Andre 'blessed'

Brother Andre, a member of the Congregation of Holy Cross, will be declared "blessed" by Pope John Paul II on May 23, 1982.

A man "who has a warm place in the heart of many here at Notre Dame," according to Fr. Leonard Banas, Brother Andre died Jan. 6, 1937, at the age of 91.

An uneducated orphan, Brother Andre spent much of his life in Canada. Invoking the help of St. Joseph, husband of Mary, he gained a reputation among the poor, the sick, and the maimed as a source of inspiration. He was about 30 years old when extraordinary cures occurred, and he soon became known as the "Miracle Man of Montreal."

Three brothers and two priests from the Indiana province will attend the beatification in Rome, according to Banas, and a group of 20 will go to Montreal on the weekend of June 19 for a celebration in Olympic Stadium.

A committee is studying the possibility of a celebration here in the fall.

Born Alfred Bessette, Brother Andre was the eighth child in a family of 12. Born August 9, 1845, at St. Gregoire, a village 30 miles south east of Montreal, he emigrated to New England to work in textile mills before returning to Canada in 1867.

In his later life, Brother Andre obtained permission to build a wooden chapel on Mount Royal. Aided by laymen, he replaced the chapel with a stone crypt in 1917. Construction of the great basilica, started in 1924, was completed in 1967.

Brother Andre was declared "venerable" by Pope Paul VI on June 12, 1978.

Saint Mary's holds "Fireside Chats" today

By ANNE MIKOS
News Staff

Finding summer jobs and learning how to join one of Saint Mary's 60 alumnae clubs are among the topics of discussion at "Fireside Chats" with students and members of the Alumnae Association Board of Directors tonight in some Saint Mary's dorms.

The Fireside Chats are an event of this spring's semi-annual meeting of the board, according to Alumnae Director Leslie Wilson. This is the first year the discussions have been planned and, if successful, the Chats will become an annual event, said Wilson.

The Fireside Chats are scheduled for 9:30 p.m. tonight in the lounges of LeMans, Holy Cross, McCandless, and Regina Halls. There will be three or four alumnae present at each meeting.

Wilson said the discussions are designed as an outreach from the members of the board to the Student Alumnae Committee and any interested students.

Services provided by the Alumnae Association, such as providing housing for students who are traveling to interviews, will also be discussed.

academic freedom and not for job security."

"I am in favor of tenure," said O'Meara, who feels tenure encourages faculty to speak out freely without worry of repression.

"Tenure," he said, "is here to stay." Although there are imperfections, O'Meara said, "Faculty members at least have assurances until age 65." O'Meara noted that in most other professions, termination can occur at any age.

"Almost invariably in the past, this thing (retirement) has been handled amicably," he said.

Reagan meets O'Neill over budget disputes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan met with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. and other congressional leaders for "make or break" budget negotiations yesterday, but officials on both sides said they saw scant hope for salvaging a grand budget compromise.

Reagan, arriving at an ornate room off the Senate floor for the session, said he was "always ready" to compromise on his budget.

O'Neill quipped, "We're in Ronald Reagan's stockade."

Reagan, O'Neill, Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker, Jr. and others met after more than a month of private talks among White House aides and members of Congress yielded disagreement on the key issues of tax increases and cuts in Social Security and the president's defense budget.

Also invited were Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., a close friend of the president; Reps. Jim Wright, D-Texas and Richard Bolling, D-Mo.; White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III and Edwin Meese III, White House counselor.

Laxalt, Bolling and James Baker were involved in the secret negotiations.

The private talks were aimed at producing agreement on a plan to reduce Reagan's own unpopular budget and bring the federal deficit below $100 billion next year. Without action by Congress, officials say the deficit will be $182 billion in 1983 and $233 billion in 1985.

As the negotiations progressed, officials abandoned hopes of agreeing on a specific, detailed compromise, and turned their efforts to producing a blueprint with targets for tax increases and spending cuts.

That effort faltered on disagreements over taxes and Social Security.

From the beginning, White House negotiators have been receptive to more than $100 billion in higher taxes over three years, but have demanded that the 10 percent personal income tax cut scheduled for July 1983 be declared off limits.

House Democrats have said a change in the tax cut is an essential element of any compromise. Only if Reagan would agree would they discuss cuts in Social Security, they said.

UN adopts resolution for Palestinian statehood

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Over bitter American protest, the General Assembly yesterday adopted a resolution for Palestinian statehood that condemned the United States' support for Israel, including a series of U.S. vetoes in the Security Council.

The resolution, sponsored by 26 Third World and communist countries, was approved by a vote of 86-20 with 36 abstentions.

It climaxed an emergency special session on "the question of Palestine" that the 157-nation assembly began April 20 at the request of 32 member nations of the non-aligned movement.

The tally was almost identical to the 86-21 vote, with 34 abstentions, by which the assembly adopted a similar but stronger resolution last Feb. 5 at a special session on the situation in Israeli-occupied Arab territories.

The new resolution urges the Security Council to endorse the Palestinian statehood plan devised by the U.N. Palestinian Rights Committee in 1976 but killed by U.S. veto in the Security Council. That plan would have Israel transfer the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip through the United Nations to the Palestine Liberation Organization to form the territory of a Palestinian state.

The resolution also calls on U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to make contact with the parties in the Arab-Israeli dispute, including the PLO, in an effort to find "a just, comprehensive and lasting solution" to the conflict.

Ambassador William C. Sherman, a U.S. deputy chief delegate, called the resolution "an ill-inspired, offensive document that will reinforce an attitude of cynicism toward the General Assembly and thus toward the United Nations itself among people of good will."

Despite opposition

Government auctions coal rights

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Bidders offered almost $55 million yesterday to lease 21,000 acres of federal land in the largest coal auction in U.S. history.

The leases on the sage-dotted plains and rangeland have been challenged in a lawsuit by three environmental groups in Washington, D.C.

Interior Secretary James Watt has estimated the new leases would nearly double current coal production at the Powder River Basin of northern Wyoming and southeast Montana by 1990.

The auction of mining rights to 1.5 billion tons of coal netted the government nearly $55 million, plus a share of the value of any coal produced.

They claim the sale would have "potentially devastating" effects on people and wildlife. The Northern Cheyenne Indian Tribe also unsuccessfully tried to block the sale last week.

The previous record for a coal lease, set in the Powder River country in 1971 just before a 10-year federal leasing moratorium, involved about 500 million tons of coal, according to the federal Bureau of Land Management, which conducted both sales.

In yesterday's sale, only two of the 13 tracts attracted more than one bidder. There were no bids on two tracts in Montana.

"I think generally we're pleased," said Wyoming BLM Director Max

Lieurance. "We always like to have a little more competition, but we received at least the minimum bid on each parcel."

Lieurance and Sandra Blackstone, BLM deputy director for energy and mineral resources, blamed the lack of competition on an uncertain coal market.

The competition came over the Keeline tract in Wyoming's Campbell County — where a group of Gillette-area ranchers outbid a subsidiary of Peter Kiewit Sons Inc. of Omaha — and Montana's Coal Creek tract, specifically set aside for bids by small businesses.

Auction-style bidding over those tracts escalated prices from $25 per acre to as high as $500 per acre.

Israeli dedicates West Bank town

NAHAL TELEM, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Israeli peace demonstrators scuffled with Jewish settlers yesterday while Defense Minister Ariel Sharon dedicated a new settlement in the occupied West Bank.

Nine Arabs were shot and wounded in clashes earlier in the day with Israeli troops in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. The military command said five Israeli soldiers were hurt in the clashes with Palestinian demonstrators.

Israel's 34th Independence Day brought anti-Israel demonstrations by Palestinians in the occupied territories and the Israelis themselves used the occasion for nationalist outpourings.

This year marked the centennial of Jewish settlement in the Holy Land, and the dedication of new settlements set the theme.

Sharon came to Nahal Telem, a six-month-old cluster of concrete prefabricated buildings on a rocky hillside overlooking the coastal plain seven miles west of Hebron. But his speech was disrupted by shouts and chants from about 50 Peace Now movement activists who had slipped into the crowd of 1,000 despite police barricades set up to keep them away.

Sharon had barely started to enumerate the settlements being dedicated — eight in the West Bank, one in Gaza, one in the recently annexed Golan Heights and one in the Negev desert — when the shouts erupted.

The demonstrators yelled: "Annexation no. Peace yes!" Scuffles broke out as people in the crowd tried to push the protesters away or wrest flags from them.

There were no injuries, and Sharon did not skip a beat in his speech. But Israel radio reported that some of the Peace Now people were tear-gassed when they tried to walk around barricades on the highways.

The defense minister said there was no connection between the new settlements and Israel's withdrawal from Sinai.

Gunmen hijack plane, take 35 hostages

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Gunmen hijacked a Honduran airliner on a domestic flight yesterday, released 14 people after landing here but kept 35 on board, police said. The hijackers' demands were not known.

Police and army officials began negotiating by radio with the hijackers after they complied with a request by officials to free all women, children and elderly passengers from the Honduran Air Service airliner.

Thirteen women and a child left the four-engine plane at noon — 2 p.m. EDT, 80 minutes after it landed on the main runway of Toncontin International Airport. They were bused to an air force installation at the airport for questioning by authorities.

The four engines of the Canadian-built Dash 7 aircraft kept running while more than 100 policemen and army troops stood at distance. A crew of four was aboard.

Police said the hijackers boarded the plane at La Ceiba, 115 miles north of Tegucigalpa. While the plane was en route to nearby San Pedro Sula, they turned guns on the pilot and forced him to fly directly to Tegucigalpa, the plane's eventual destination, officers said.

London said. "The government is now turning the thumbscrew and applying psychological and political pressure on Buenos Aires," a reference to the total war zone that makes any unauthorized ship or plane in the zone subject to attack.

The source, who asked not to be identified, said that a squadron of between six and nine long-range Vulcan bombers has been positioned on Ascension Island, 3,500 miles north of the Falklands.

British defense officials said last week that some of the Vulcans have been adapted to carry 21 conventional 1,000-pound bombs.

British press reports speculated that the Vulcans will be used to bomb mainland Argentine air bases before any assault on the Falklands, to reduce Argentina's 12-1 air superiority over the British armada.

"The Vulcans have been undergoing intense training in using conventional bomb loads and mid-air refueling," the source said. The bombers would need to refuel in flight on any missions from Ascension.

The Argentines have an estimated 10,000 troops on the Falklands. The British task force carries some 1,500 marine commandos, but the requisitioned liner Canberra, carrying another 2,000 marines and paratroopers, is expected to rendezvous with the armada before the weekend.

British defense analysts forecast the task force may launch two or three coordinated attacks, including jet attacks on the airstrip at Stanley, the Falklands' capital.

British forces recaptured South Georgia, 800 miles east of the Falklands, on Sunday and Monday. The British Defense Ministry said an Argentine prisoner on South Georgia died Monday in a "serious incident."

It gave no other details. The British took 156 Argentine military personnel and 38 civilians prisoner in the attack, including the Argentine submarine Sante Fe crippled in the attack.

The Ministry said Monday the only casualty was one of the sub's crewmen who later had a leg amputated. It was not disclosed whether he was the prisoner who died.

Economic Update

Bowing to competition from Individual Retirement Accounts at private financial institutions, the Treasury Department will soon stop offering its own individual retirement bonds, officials said yesterday. "Sales of these bonds in recent months have been negligible because of the availability of a wide range of private Keogh and I.R.A. investments at higher rates," the department said in a statement. Tax law changes approved by Congress last year made many more Americans eligible to invest in I.R.A.'s at banks, savings and loans and other financial institutions. Anyone eligible for a private I.R.A. also was eligible for United States Retirement Plan bonds and United States Individual Retirement bonds, but few bought them because the rates were usually lower. — AP

The president of Ford Motor Company, Donald E. Petersen, said that he expected a gradual recovery in auto sales during the second half of 1982. Speaking Monday, he said there was a pent-up demand for autos in the United States and he predicted that more consumers would come back into the market after the mid-year Federal tax cut. He predicted annual car sales could reach 9.5 million this year, but he said that much of the industry improvement that he expected hinged on resolving the budget dispute between President Reagan and Congress. Ford's second-quarter output figures were up "considerably" from the first quarter, he said. — AP

Stock prices fell Wednesday, extending Tuesday's retreat, amid concern over budget talks in Washington and a military buildup in the South Atlantic. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which fell 8.08 points Tuesday, shed another 4.86 to close at 852.64. Prior to Tuesday's slide, the blue-chip average had climbed 70.11 points from its two-year low of 795.47 on March 8. About four stocks fell in price for every three that rose on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume was 50.53 million shares, down from 56.48 million Tuesday and 60.50 million Monday.

Scientists study body's resistance to disease

By ROGER WILKE
News Staff

Dr. Ruth Neta, of the Department of Microbiology, is currently conducting research in an effort to understand variations in the immunity systems of individuals. For the past four years, she has engaged in experimentation with animals to determine why some individuals are more resistant to disease than others. According to Neta, "We do not understand what causes the differences in resistance of individuals, but by experimenting with inbred strains of mice we can study the relation between their genetic makeup and their immunity system."

Neta uses strains of mice in her experiments because "It would be impossible to study single individuals and get accurate, meaningful results." Using large numbers of identical mice, she is able to detect the abnormalities in their immunity systems and get accurate data related to these abnormalities. Neta notices that "some strains of mice will accept a type of treatment for a disease such as cancer or infection, and be affected by it, while others are not helped by the same treatment. This is also the case for humans."

The intent of Neta's studies is to find a way to correct the immunity system of an individual susceptible to infection or cancer. Her basic work centers around the thymus gland, situated in the thorax. Biologists are certain that in some way, lymphocytes are processed through the thymus to become im-munologically competent. The thymus is known to release peptides known as thymic hormones.

It seems that some individuals lack immunity because of a difference in their thymic hormones. "Many clinicians will treat patients without knowing for certain if the medicine will work," says Neta. "We want to pick out which patients will respond to treatment and tell why."

Another substance which works on some individuals is interferon. Interferon is a protein which seems to combat certain types of infections and cancers. According to Neta, the amount of interferon a strain of mice may produce correlates with their resistance to infection. If a strain can produce large quantities of interferon, it is fairly resistant to infection compared to one which does not.

Neta also notes that susceptible strains tend to produce an inhibitor to interferon; that is, they produce a substance which neutralizes the effect of interferon. She says that injection of thymic hormones into mice have different effects depending on the strain. Some strains become resistant to infection, while some do not.

Neta collaborates with Dr. B. L. Horecker, a biochemist from Roche Institute of Molecular Biology in New Jersey, and Dr. Don Shreffler, a geneticist from Washington University in St. Louis. She hopes the work they are doing will provide clinicians with a better understanding of immunity systems so they can make better decisions in the treatment of individuals with infections or other diseases.

Monopole: "find of the century?"

By ROBERT LOCKE
AP Science Writer

A Stanford scientist says he may have ended a long, frustrating search by spotting a curious particle called a monopole—the basic unit of magnetism and a key to theories that would draw together the forces in the universe.

If the apparent discovery by physicist Blas Cabrera is confirmed, it would "rank as one of the finds of the century . . . and that's a lower limit of how important it might be," W. Peter Trower of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University said Wednesday.

The existence of monopoles — subatomic particles with only a single magnetic pole rather than the north and south poles of all other known magnets — would reverberate through many areas of theoretic physics, the field that tries to explain the essence of existence.

The apparent discovery was based on a single event, and Cabrera was cautious in his description of it. He said what seems to have been a monopole passed through an experimental detector on Feb. 14.

Cabrera could not be reached for comment Wednesday, but Stanford outlined his research and Trower, who is familiar with it, described the work in a telephone interview.

"We've seen only one event in 185 days running time. That makes it extremely difficult to do the kind of checks that one can do in a typical low-temperature experiment," the university quoted Cabrera as saying.

Trower said Cabrera "has gone to every possible length . . . to discredit that event, to find some other explanation for it. He has failed to do so."

With no other likely explanation for the event, which changed the detector's current in exactly the way a monopole should, the most logical interpretation is that a monopole was spotted.

Every magnetic particle known has both a north and south pole and the magnetism is a result of electrically charged particles moving through them. The monopole, however, would have only a single pole, either north or south. Current theories suspect all the monopoles in the universe were created in the first instant of the Big Bang that is believed to have created the universe in a cataclysm of unimaginable heat.

"This is a beautiful, elegant experiment . . . that indicates there is one of these kinds of creatures around," Trower said. "If the find is what it appears to be," he said, "then it's something enormously heavy; it's a whole new kind of matter."

Gasoline prices seen rising

Several major oil companies posted increases this week in the price they charge wholesale distributors, and analysts say the added cost will show up at the retail pump before the start of the summer driving season.

Although demand for gasoline remains generally weak, the oil companies are raising prices to distributors in reaction to a recent firming of crude oil prices. That turnaround for crude oil is linked mainly to the success of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in limiting its production and thereby eating away at the oversupply on world markets.

Thoughts about the draft, 60's, 70's, and 80's

Why is there such a repulsion toward the draft, to serving our country in its time of need? All this week, The Observer has run editorials on this topic, with several students giving their viewpoints.

Edward Konrady and Randy Fahs

In this week's column, we would like to examine the background of what has formed our generation's outlook on the draft and war.

The last conflicts involving large numbers of drafted Americans were located in Korea and Vietnam.

Before this, the American public considered our efforts to be those of a great protector, helping the underdog who was being ravaged by the communists, shifty-eyed pinkos who had to be flushed out and exterminated like rats before they conquered America.

But with Korea and Vietnam, the mood changed. Suddenly we were not so sure who we were protecting, and who we were flushing out like rats.

We were fighting in a distant land for questionable interests, for reasons that appeared hazy at best.

With the sixties came the questioning of the government. Youth lost their trust of the government and the government's competency to choose when to fight and when not to.

Youth wanted reasons why they should fight, what would be gained by the fighting, and the right to choose not to fight if they felt the war was unjust.

The sixties' youth gained an understanding of war's devastation that may not have been ever fully realized before.

Their view of the military changed from U.S. as the benevolent protector to the world's weak to that of expensive toy of politicians to be used at will.

Peace was the goal of America, and youth could not see how the military could achieve it.

The military became a restriction to life, rather than a protector of it.

This feeling led into the seventies, accurately known as the "Me" decade. The seventies youth began a swing away from altruism and toward self-fulfillment.

They became apathetic toward world events, caring only about events that directly affected the American public, the economy and personal success in particular.

The theme of the seventies swung from serving the country to how the country could serve us.

What could the military do for us? There were no commies invading our hometowns, so why should we enlist?

The military is now advertising for recruits using a new approach. The Marines have kept the traditional, "We need a few good men," while the Army, Navy and Air Force are emphasizing what they can do for you. Our previously vital interests have become more skeptically viewed. In earlier wars, (World Wars I and II, for example) people would enlist before their draft notices would reach them, because the legitimacy of the wars was evident.

Now the importance of American involvement in other countries has become paramount in any foreign affairs discussion.

No longer do we take for granted that "America knows best." Should America supply arms to El Salvador?

Is it worth sending American men to set up a government?

What about Afghanistan, Poland, the rest of the world?

In the eighties, people are drifting back toward a more world-oriented outlook. No longer is the United States the only important country on the globe.

The presence of nuclear arms, and their possible proliferation of the U.S., the U.S.S.R., and other countries, has shown us that an isolationist position toward world affairs is foolish, if not impossible.

Perhaps we have realized that skirmishes in Afghanistan, El Salvador, and even the Falkland Islands, affect us greatly.

Today's youth will fight when it becomes evident that world peace, if not our survival, is threatened. However, this fact will have to be proved to us; no longer can the government expect blind followship.

Editor's Note

Today continues the week-long series of editorials devoted to the historical, personal, and community approaches to service. Whether in the military, U.S. government, religious, or private sector, volunteer and mandatory service becomes a prominent concern of students entering the outside world. Today and tomorrow, students and faculty members examine various service-related options and discern a meaningful outlook of the world of helping others.

Rights, duties, and obligations

There has been a great deal of discussion lately in the Observer and in public about rights.

These arguments usually center around the proposition that each and every moral decision is the individual's alone to make.

Rick Lechowich

Voice from within

This is more pronounced in the area of military service.

"No one has the right to make me kill, to take away 'God's most precious gift,' and so on.

Besides containing large errors, (God's most precious gift to you is your soul, not your body; and our leaders' first desire is assumed to be intentional violence) several areas of morality and reason are ignored. Among these are obligations and duties.

Before I go on, several unpleasant realities must be dealt with.

First, we live in a modern nation-state, based on the philosophy of John Locke, Hobbes, and others. Under this theory, nations are composed of individuals who come together out of need for mutual protection.

The main purposes of such a society are self-enrichment and protection from others.

The nature of modern war has led to the manufacture of conventional weapons which are roughly ten times more effective than the weapons used in WWII.

Studies of the 1973 Arab-Israeli war have shown that units in combat for approximately two weeks suffered approximately 70 percent casualties. This generalization is assumed to be for a conventional war in Europe.

Thirdly, the size of the Soviet army.

The Soviets possess over 160 divisions, a two-ocean navy, and thousands of first-line aircraft.

Communists believe the social system we live in is corrupt and must be destroyed. Any and all means to this end are moral.

Lastly, the size and doctrine of the U.S. armed forces. The U.S. Army consists of 16 divisions (not all at full strength), which are heavily dependant upon hideously expensive technology to make up for its lack of numbers.

The U.S. Navy and Air Force rely upon the same technology. Also, the Secretary of State recently confirmed the U.S. doctrine of first use of nuclear weapons in the event of a battlefield attack upon U.S. forces.

All these facts come together in an unpleasant pattern. The Soviets and their allies are committed to destroying the capitalist system of which the U.S. is the leader.

They possess armed forces which are three to four times larger than ours to accomplish this.

The Soviet view of war is a super blitzkrieg which will swamp NATO beneath waves of tanks, aircraft, artillery.

To prevent this, the U.S. relies upon expensive technology and the possibility of first use of nuclear weapons.

Obviously, this trend is dangerous at best, and suicidal at worst, considering how difficult a "controlled" nuclear exchange would be to orchestrate.

To improve the situation, I suggest a universal draft (with alternatives for conscientious objectors).

This would alleviate the economically dangerous dependence upon technology, and would give the U.S. Armed Forces the numbers needed to fight a modern battle of massively concentrated forces, while ending the dependence upon nuclear weaponry to stabilize the numerical disadvantage on the battlefield.

This would reduce the necessity for nuclear weapons, both battlefield and strategic. The increased numbers of U.S. troops would decrease the Soviet incentive to strike, and increased stability would hopefully permit negotiations to reduce force levels of nuclear weapons.

People are born free, but they do not remain so. Freedom is a gift, which must be constantly earned.

Violence is wrong; however, one has a right to defend oneself.

No one possesses rights in a vacuum, and these rights are protected by the state. Citizens of a state exercise their rights under its protection. Citizens of a state, therefore, have the duty to protect the state in the event it has been attacked.

No one can claim rights which he is not prepared to defend.

Today, freedom in the U.S. stands at a crossroads. The general trend that there is "nothing worth fighting for" is wrong.

Freedom is worth fighting for. There are many things worse than a painful death: torture, injustice, and concentration camps, to name a few.

In the face of constant challenges and threats, it takes courage to resist.

It is much easier to roll over and ignore the challenge until we are directly threatened, but it is necessary to make a stand today. Tomorrow may be too late.

A universal draft, though morally and physically unpleasant, would increase the security of the whole U.S.

"Greater love hath no man than to lay down his life for his friends." Isn't that what being a Christian is all about?

Richard Lechowich is a government/history double major in his third year of Army ROTC.

Summerfund misrepresented

Dear Editor:

I feel compelled to correct some misinformation which appeared in yesterday's front page story on WSND's Summerfund written by one of your staff reporters.

The Summerfund drive does not finance repair and maintenance of equipment, nor capital improvements, nor executive salaries, nor taped shows, nor live hook ups.

All of these items are covered in the University budget.

Summerfund finances only the hourly minimum wage payments to broadcasters during the summer, Christmas, Fall and Spring Breaks, Thanksgiving and Easter.

I should add another couple hundred dollars for printing and mailing costs.

I hope your article has not damaged WSND-FM's Summerfund drive. They truthfully tell their listeners where the money goes.

After reading your second paragraph, listeners may wonder.

For WSND-FM listeners let me assure you of the accuracy of the information in this letter.

I respect Professor Danahy's views on the University's responsibility for financing the station throughout the year.

He has donated countless hours to WSND-FM. In fact, he was very prominent in bringing about some of the improvements at WSND.

This past year, we had WSND evaluated by a team of engineers and experts in the broadcast industry.

Many of their written recommendations are presently being implemented, most notably a hefty budget increase for capital improvements, and repair and maintenance of equipment.

Pending budgetary approval, the University will fund over $10,000 to WSND-AM and over $28,000 to WSND-FM during the 82-83 school year.

I should add that the Summerfund drive was initiated before I came to Notre Dame in 1979. If the drive ever failed, I would urge additional University funding to support the station.

At present, however, the drive seems to serve as a gauge of community interest and support during times when our students are on vacation.

Sincerely,
James M. McDonnell

Crable moves on to glamour of Big Apple

By KELLY SULLIVAN
Sports Writer

Notre Dame's defense will have to adjust to life without their all-time tackling leader, Bob Crable. But Crable has some adjusting to do, too.

The two-time co-captain and Irish MVP became the New York Jets' first round pick in the NFL draft Tuesday. Soon, Bob and his wife Lisa must cope with life in a city over 100 times the size of South Bend.

"I've never lived in a really big city before," said the Cincinnati, Ohio, native, "but I'm really looking forward to life in New York. I won't get bored, that's for sure," he grinned. "I've heard a lot of good things about that city."

Name: Bob Crable
Position: Linebacker
Height: 6-3
Weight: 220
Home: Cincinnati, Ohio
Major: Marketing
Drafted by: New York Jets
Round/Pick: 1st/24th

The Jets, who last year earned a berth in the AFC playoffs as a wildcard team, had obviously heard lots of good things about the 6-3, 220-lb. ex-Moeller star, too.

"Bob Crable is obviously a quality athlete, but we'd heard a lot about his intangible qualities, also," confirmed Mike Hickey, spokesman for the Jets. "He has that quality of rising to any challenge. He's a great leader."

"The thing that stood out in our minds was his undying competitive fire. When the going got tough toward the end of Notre Dame's season, in games like Penn State and Miami, he had every opportunity to lay down and accept defeat, to quit. Instead, he came back for more."

Now Crable, the 24th pick overall, will be playing in back of the NFL's most aggressive front four. The Jets' defensive line — Mark Gastineau, Marty Lyons, Abdul Salaam and Joe Klecko — was tagged the "New York Sack Exchange" last season after leading the league with 66 sacks.

"You've got to have the horses up front, and they have," said Crable. "The Jets have one of the best front fours in the business, and just to have the opportunity to play behind those guys is an honor."

Crable, who recorded a Notre Dame record 521 tackles in his four years with the Irish, has work to do before he can step in and start compiling statistics in a New York uniform.

Right now, the Jets are utilizing two people at the middle linebacker spot. "From what I understand, they switched a couple of guys back and forth last season," explained Crable. "One was good in running situations, and the other was better in passing situations."

"But I feel confident that I have the skills necessary to work with the team," he added.

Though Crable prefers and feels most comfortable in the middle, New York's coaches say he has the potential to play any of the three linebacker posts.

"We'll bring him to training camp and see where he fits in best," Hickey said.

Crable, who earned a reputation for emitting enthusiasm during his college days, says carrying that fervor over to the professional leagues is easy.

"I'm really excited. Doing something I've enjoyed all my life and finally getting paid for it — it's strange. But it's a very, very pleasurable feeling."

Besides possessing the obvious talents that go with being a consensus All-America pick, Crable's intensity is part of what caught the eye of Walt Michaels, the Jets' coach.

"He should fit into the enthusiastic style of our defense," said Michaels, a former linebacker.

"It's a special kind of team that has that sort of enthusiasm," offered Crable. "And the Jets have it. You have to be emotional enough to knock a guy backwards. Yet you have to be able to think, too."

And New York's head man has no doubts about Crable's ability in that department.

"Bob has good intelligence," praised Michaels. "I can see him helping us. He's a very consistent football player, and a very instinctive linebacker. He knows how to get to the football."

"Bob is a hitter and a winner, and we're very happy to have him."

Krimm shuns law school, i

By CHRIS NEEDLES
Sports Editor

Last month, Notre Dame Academic All-America cornerback John Krimm, he of the 3.70 GPA, was the proud recipient of an NCAA graduate scholarship, which he planned to use to help pay for law school.

Well, those plans will have to wait a little while.

On Tuesday, Krimm was chosen in the third round of the NFL Draft by the New Orleans Saints, who made him the 77th pick overall. The Columbus, Ohio, native was the seventh defensive back taken, following Bob Watkins of Southwest Texas State, Vernon Dean of San Diego State, Jim Burroughs of Michigan State, Rodney Lewis of Nebraska, Vann McElroy of Baylor and Vinny Perrin of Alabama.

Entering Tuesday's opening round, the 6-2, 183-pounder had been considered one of the top prospects available at his position. So why was he only the seventh defensive back chosen?

Saints officials hinted that the major reason was Krimm's speed, or lack thereof. Although he usually is described as being "quick,"

Name: John Krimm
Position: Defensive Back
Height: 6-2
Weight: 183
Home: Columbus, Ohio
Major: Philosophy
Drafted by: New Orleans
Round/Pick: 3rd/21st

Defensive back John Krimm will probably play safety rather than cornerback for the New Orleans Saints. The Saints are concerned about Krimm's

Offensive tackle Phil Pozderac may be tried on defense with his new team, the Dallas Cowboys. According to the Cowboys, Pozderac was selected for his size and potential. (Photo by Tonia Hap)

Pozderac's potential lands him with Dallas

By CHRIS NEEDLES
Sports Editor

The city of Dallas, Texas, which once was "The Land of Too Tall," can now be referred to as "The Land of Two Tall."

In a classic example of "Can You Top This?" the Dallas Cowboys, who already possess the National Football League's tallest player in 6-9 defensive end Ed "Too Tall" Jones, drafted Notre Dame's 6-9 offensive tackle Phil Pozderac as the 26th player in the fifth round on Tuesday.

Pozderac, who was Notre Dame's offensive MVP last season, will go into training camp as an offensive lineman. But, according to Cowboy officials, he may have to undergo a position change — to the defensive line.

"He'll be looked at as a possible convert to the defensive line," said a Cowboy spokesman. "Our offensive line is young, but our defensive line is older and there's not much depth there."

Admittedly, Pozderac would have a great deal of trouble breaking into the Cowboy offensive line, which is considered the finest in all of pro football — including two consensus All-Pros in Herbert Scott and Pat Donovan.

So, why did the Cowboys draft someone in their strong suit?

"We drafted him solely on potential," the spokesman marvelled. "He's huge. We don't have anyone (on the offensive line) that big on the roster. There's nobody that big on the team except for 'Too Tall' Jones."

Pozderac was unavailable for comment.

Although Pozderac didn't go until the fifth round, the Cowboy spokesman seemed to feel that Dallas had found itself a real steal.

"Obviously, we think enough of his potential," the spokesman said, "either offensively or defensively, or we wouldn't have drafted him."

Pozderac was a steady, if unspectacular, performer in his four years at Notre Dame. But Dallas Cowboy officials think the best is yet to come.

1982 NFL Draft

Sports Special

headed for Bourbon Street

Krimm only can boast a time of 4.6 in the 40-yard dash, which is slower than most NFL performers at the cornerback position.

As a result, the Saints plan to shift Krimm to the safety position, where they have been noticeably weak in recent years.

Not surprisingly, Krimm is happy to be going to a team where he has a good chance of cracking the lineup right away. Of course, the scenery doesn't hurt, either.

"I'm pretty excited to be going to New Orleans," said Krimm. "I was just down there this morning for a press conference, and it seems like a real nice town. The Saints are a good organization and they're building for the future well."

Krimm doesn't see any difficulty making the transition from the cornerback position to safety. "I'll just have to go down there and see how it goes," he said. "They'll put me at free safety and see how I like it there. I don't foresee any problems."

When he officially joins New Orleans for its summer workouts, Krimm will be reunited with an old Notre Dame teammate — former cornerback Dave Waymer, who has been with the Saints for two seasons. "I played behind him my freshman year," Krimm said. "He's a fun guy to be around. I'm looking forward to being with him down there."

As for choosing between pro football and law school, there is no question in Krimm's mind which takes precedence. "Law school will have to go on the back burner for a while," he said. "I'll wait until I'm finished my career and then I'll go. Right now my No. 1 priority is football."

Krimm already had been accepted to Virginia, Duke, Notre Dame and Ohio State law schools, but will ask for a "deferred acceptance" to his final choice in order to give pro football a crack.

When the final rounds of the NFL Draft were completed yesterday, a few Irish standouts still hadn't received that long-awaited phone call. Among the seniors not tapped in the draft were Dean Masztak, Tim Koegel, Harry Oliver and Bernie Adell. However, none of them has ruled out the prospect of playing pro football.

Tight end Dean Masztak, an All-America prospect at the beginning of the 1982 season, found first his college career and then his draft hopes upset by injuries. His junior campaign was interrupted by a severe ankle sprain, and his senior year ended with knee surgery after only six games.

Nevertheless, the talented receiver can expect to hear from pro teams soon. He led the Irish in receptions in an impressive sophomore campaign, and continued to earn praise as a healthy upperclassman.

"I'll probably be signing with somebody within the next week," says the Toledo, Ohio, native. "I'll try to get tryouts as a free agent, and if things don't work out in the NFL, I can go to Canada."

When football drops out of the picture, the finance major will seek a job with an insurance company.

Tim Koegel, who shared the quarterbacking duties with Blair Kiel last season, has been talking to a couple of pro teams. "Naturally, I'd like to go someplace where I'd have a shot at making the team," explains the Cincinnati Moeller product. "If a team has three established quarterbacks, then I don't have much of a chance. So I've been talking to teams that lack depth at that position — they might use me."

In the event that football doesn't work out, the American Studies graduate will return to Notre Dame to attend law school in the fall.

"I'd like to combine football and law school," says Koegel, "so I could attend school wherever I happen to be living. If I don't play football, then I'll just get started on my law degree."

Placekicker Harry Oliver has worked out with the New England Patriots, but expects to hear more news within the next few days. The 5-11, 185-pound kicker has led the Irish in scoring for the past two years, and he kicked a Notre Dame-record 18 field goals in his junior year. He finished his college career with 24 FGs, second only to Dave Reeve on the career charts.

Oliver explains that relatively few kickers get called in the draft selections. "The top kicker this year — Morton Anderson — went in the fourth round, but most I think most kickers go as free agents."

Oliver also has options in case pro football doesn't figure in his future. A mechanical engineering major, he plans to return to Notre Dame in the fall to complete degree requirements.

Tailback Bernie Adell seems comfortable about what the future holds for him. "I plan to try out as a free agent," offers the 5-10, 205-pounder. "I've worked out for Cincinnati, Los Angeles, Dallas and Denver. I'd like to go where the opportunity is — obviously I don't want to go to a team loaded with running backs."

If he doesn't get picked up by a pro club, the economics major is prepared for Plan B. "I have an interview coming up with Merrill Lynch in New York, so hopefully something will come of that. If not, I can work for our cable TV station back home (Ipswich, Mass.)."

Football or no football, these senior grid-ers who were left out of the draft derby are ready to step out into the world.

There's a young lady from Decader, Alabama who you might call a little spacey who lives at Lewis Hall, U of ND. I've given her the nickname: "Air-Head" for two reasons. One cause she's on the women's basketball team, but especially cause she can't remember things for there is nothing in that round thing between her shoulders. So if you see a UFO floating around, please pull it down for I don't want her to float away. She means alot to me and I love her.

Watson favored in Dallas tournament

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Watson, who has dominated this tournament in a fashion unequalled in pro golf in recent years, is an overwhelming choice to win the $350,000 Byron Nelson Classic.

Almost every sign points to Watson as the most likely to succeed in the 72-hole chase that begins today on the 6,993-yard Preston Trail Go Club course.

He's won it four times, including three in a row beginning in 1978. That string was snapped last season — by the margin of one shot. He lost a title playoff to Bruce Lietzke.

He has close ties to the tournament, the club and the man whose name is honored here. Watson acquired membership in the exclusive men's club several years ago in order to have a practice facility on his frequent trips to Dallas. Many of those trips are to visit Nelson, a Hall of Fame player and Watson's long-time friend and mentor, the man he seeks when he needs some fine-tuning on his game.

He's playing very well. In his last four starts, Watson scored his second victory of the season in the Heritage Classic, was fifth in the Masters, sixth in the Tournament of Champions and a fast-closing second in the rain-shortened New Orleans Open that ended Monday.

Watson, eagerly and aggressively seeking a return to his four-year reign as golf's outstanding performer, had a no-bogey, 5-under-par 67 in his last competitive round.

He has an excellent opportunity of regaining the No. 1 money winning spot, a position he held for four years before Tom Kite broke the streak last season. Watson comes into this chase for a $63,000 first prize with $199,446 in season's winnings, second only to the $237,719 compiled by Masters champion Craig Stadler. Stadler is not playing.

In addition to defending champion Lietzke, U.S. Open titleholder David Graham and Lanny Wadkins, a two-time winner this year, are among the chief challengers. Both now live in Dallas and, like Watson, are members of the host club.

Other standouts in the 156 man field include Lee Trevino, Andy Bean, Ray Floyd and Australian Bob Shearer, who has finished 1-2 in his last two starts.

Cincinnati second baseman Ron Oester bobbles the ball and Chicago's Steve Henderson is safe yesterday. The Cubs' Dickie Noles one-hit the

The team won both the heavyweight and lightweight classes in the varsity division over teams from Grand Valley State, Chicago University, Lincoln Park and Culver Military Academy. The novice 'A' squad for the women lost to Grand Valley State but defeated Chicago, while the novice 'B' group defeated all four teams in the 2000 meter races. "The women this year have been doing very well," praises president Bob Bennett. "Jill DeLucia (the women's coach) has really improved the women's program quite a bit. This year's group of novices was also one of the better ones for both men and women. They show a lot of promise for the future of the team if they continue to work hard." For the men last Saturday, the varsity heavyweights lost to Chicago, but defeated Grand Valley State. The novice squad defeated Grand Valley State and Chicago, but lost to Culver.

Madison, Wisconsin is the destination this Saturday for the club as it takes part in the 12-team "Midwest Sprints." Seniors competing in their final regatta include captain Ed Dailey and Bennett for the heavyweight men. Women's captain and stroke Vreni Hommes, along with Jane Wagner, Joan McGowan, Rita Harrington and Kellee Asch will also compete in their final varsity regatta for the club.

osing streak for the Braves.

Hornor started the winning rally with a two-out walk, and moved to third on Chris Chambliss' double off Rod Scurry (1-1) before Kent Tekulve came into the game to face Watson, who was hitting for Bruce Benedict.

Rick Camp, 4-1, was the winner.

The Pirates had tied the game 6-6 with a run in the ninth. Omar Moreno opened with an infield single and stole second. After Johnny Ray's infield out advanced Moreno to third, Dave Parker's single brought him home with the Pirates' tying run.

Mil. 2 Chi. 1

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jim Gantner singled home the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning, and Milwaukee relief ace Rollie Fingers tamed Chicago in the late innings yesterday as the Brewers defeated the Chicago White Sox 2-1.

Fingers checked the White Sox on one hit in the final 2 2/3 innings to earn his second victory in four decisions.

Gorman Thomas drew a walk leading off the Brewers seventh against loser Britt Burns, 2-1, and took second on a sacrifice. Burns retired Mark Brouhard on a fly to center for the second out, but Gantner punched a ground single up the middle to score Thomas and snap a 1-1 tie.

The Brewers broke a scoreless tie with one out in the fourth when Ben Oglivie lined a 2-2 pitch from Burns into the right field bleachers for his fifth homer of the year. It was Oglivie's first hit in his 20 times at bat and the first homer off Burns in 24 innings this season.

BOSTON (AP) — Designated hitter Hal McRae drove in five runs with a homer and a double last night as the Kansas City Royals packed all their scoring into the first two innings en route to an 8-5 victory over the Red Sox, snapping Boston's eight-game winning streak.

McRae belted a check-swing, three-run homer off the right field foul pole just 302 feet down the line, his fourth this season. He doubled home two more runs in the second.

The Royals, who had a three-game winning streak ended by Boston Tuesday night, jumped on starter John Tudor for 10 hits and eight runs, six earned, in 1 2/3 innings, handing the southpaw his first loss in four decisions. Kansas City had 17 hits.

Kansas City right-hander Dennis Leonard, 2-1, was tagged for seven hits and five runs in the first three innings but settled down to earn the victory.

Phila. 9 L.A. 3

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pete Rose tied a National League record with his ninth career five-hit game, and Philadelphia scored all their runs in the last two innings, including a six-run ninth, as the Phillies came from behind to defeat the Dodgers 9-3 last night.

Luis Aguayo led off the Philadelphia ninth with a double off loser Steve Howe, 1-1. Greg Gross sacrificed Aguayo to second and was safe at first on a throwing error by first baseman Steve Garvey.

Bob Dernier then sent a line drive double into the left-field corner that scored Aguayo with the tie-breaking run and chased Howe.

Ivan DeJesus then greeted Dave Stewart, the fourth Los Angeles pitcher, with a two-run single. Rose followed with his fifth hit, a single, and one out later, Bo Diaz singled home DeJesus to make it 7-3 before Julio Franco doubled home two more runs to complete the ninth-inning onslaught.

Ed Farmer, 1-1, who pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the eighth, got the win. He was the fourth Philadelphia pitcher.

Oak. 6-1, Balt. 2-5

BALTIMORE (AP) — John Lowenstein and Eddie Murray hit home runs and Scott McGregor limited Oakland to five hits to lead Baltimore to a 5-1 victory and give the Orioles a split of a doubleheader last night.

The A's defeated the Orioles, 6-2 in the first game as Dwayne Murphy drove in three runs with a homer and a two-run single, and Cliff Johnson slammed a two-run homer.

Lowenstein gave the Orioles a 2-0 lead in the first inning of the nightcap, when he hit his first homer of the season with Al Bumbry on base via a single.

After the A's scored in the top of the third when Murphy drove in Jeff Newman on a squeeze play, Murray increased the Orioles' lead to two runs with a solo homer, his fifth of the season.

The Orioles scored again in the fourth, when Len Sakata drove in Ken Singleton from second with a two-out single. Singleton had opened the inning with a walk and advanced to second on Rick Dempsey's sacrifice.

The Orioles added their final run in the sixth on Sakata's bases-loaded sacrifice fly off Oakland starter Matt Keough, 2-2.

McGregor struck out six and walked just one in his route-going performance.

In the opener, Johnson hit a towering blast just inside the left field foul pole with one out in the fifth off Baltimore starter Mike Flanagan, 0-3, with Tony Armas on first.

Murphy provided an insurance run and chased Flanagan with his homer over the center field fence in the seventh. In the eighth, the A's scored their final run on Rob Picciolo's suicide-squeeze bunt with the bases loaded.

The Orioles took a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Al Bumbry led off with a single and Rich Dauer reached on Picciolo's error at short. Singleton followed with an RBI single before Oakland starter Mike Norris, 1-2, retired Murray. Dan Ford then singled to load the bases and Norris walked Gary Roenicke to force in another run.

The A's tied the score in the second. Joe Rudi started the rally with a single, Mike Heath walked and, after popped to second, Rickey Henderson walked to load the bases. Murphy then lined a two-run single off Murray's glove for two runs.

Norris, earned his first win of the season after two losses, scattering five hits and striking out six and walking four. In the process, he halted Murray's 18-game hitting streak, dating back to last season.

San Fran. 7 Mont. 0

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rookie right hander Bill Laskey fired a three-hitter and rapped an RBI single in his first major league start to lead the San Francisco Giants to a 7-0 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Laskey, called up last week from Phoenix where he had a 1.29 earned run average, pitched no-hit ball for 3 2/3 innings before yielding a double to Al Oliver. The 24-year-old Laskey gave up a pair of singles in the fifth, then retired the final 14 hitters he faced.

The Giants raked four Montreal pitchers for a season-high 14 hits, all singles.

They took a 3-0 lead in the fourth on five singles. Champ Summers led off with a hit and Darrell Evans followed with another hit. Jack Clark drove in Summers with a single to right, Jeff Ransom's sacrifice fly drove in Evans and Johnny LeMaster singled. The third run of the inning came home when Laskey's first major league hit, a hard grounder between first and second, scored Clark.

Ransom scored in the sixth. He led off with a single, took third on a hit by LeMaster and came home on a sacrifice fly by Chili Davis.

Bill Gullickson, 1-1, took the loss.

Wrestling banquet

Freshman Baty wins two awards

By BRIAN REIMER
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame wrestling team held its annual post-season banquet last Tuesday night at "Parisi's" restaurant. Seven individuals garnered trophies and the 1982-83 team captain was named.

To the surprise of nobody, 167-pounder Phil Baty was voted by his teammates as the "Most Outstanding Freshman". In spite of a mid-season injury that kept him out of action for six weeks, Phil managed a 33-11 won-lost mark. The 33 wins eclipsed three-time NCAA qualifier Dave DiSabato's previous school record of 31.

Senior 158-pounder Brian Erard won the award for "Most Takedowns" by setting another

Notre Dame record. Erard's total of 129 takedowns was 42 higher than the second place teammate, and broke DiSabato's old record by four.

Freshman 126-pounder Joe Andreetti claimed the "Most Pins" trophy with six. Joe won 30 of 47 matches in his initial college wrestling campaign.

Senior co-captain Curt Rood was named "Most Improved Wrestler" by his teammates. Last season, Rood finished with an 11-17-1 record. This year, despite some mid-season injuries, he improved his mark to 26-11, wrestling at 150-pounds.

A new honor was initiated this year, the "F. Patrick O'Conner Memorial Award," given to the Notre Dame wrestler with the best character and personality. Freshman 134-pounder Don Heintzelman was the initial recipient of the award, named for a wrestler from the early 1970's who recently died in an accident.

The Notre Dame Monogram Club's trophy for the "Most Valuable Wrestler" went to Phil Baty for his record-breaking year.

Junior 142-pounder Pete Agostino received two honors. The St. Joseph Valley Chapter of the Notre Dame Alumni Association named him the top student-athlete on the team. Pete was also named captain for next season.

Notre Dame set two important team records in the 1981-82 season: most wins (15) and highest winning percentage (.882). Next year's freshman class will include a few state champions and the 118- to 142-pound weight classes will be very deep.

Major League scoreboard

St. Louis 5 Houston 4

ST. LOUIS (AP) — David Green's seeing-eye hit through the infield drove in two runs to cap a four-run sixth inning that rallied the St. Louis Cardinals to a 5-4 triumph yesterday over the Houston Astros.

St. Louis, which had lost three in a row, trailed 3-1 at the start of the inning against Houston knuckleballer Joe Niekro. Lonnie Smith's grounder up the middle bruised the index finger on Niekro's right hand, however, forcing Dave Smith, 0-2, to take over two batters later. Smith eventually absorbed the setback as the Cards batted around in the inning.

Tommy Herr's single off Niekro started the St. Louis rally. After Niekro threw a wild pitch, Keith Hernandez walked.

Smith took over to face Darrell Porter, walking the Cards' catcher on five pitches and loading the bases. Smith then walked Dane Iorg to force home Herr and also walked Ken Oberkfell to create a 3-3 tie before Green singled through the right side off Dave LaCorte.

Bob Forsch, 4-0, held the Astros to eight hits in seven innings. He walked six and hit a batter.

Chi. 6 Cinn. 0

CHICAGO (AP) — Dickie Noles fired a one-hitter, and Steve Henderson and Jerry Morales each belted two-run triples to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 6-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Noles, 3-2, struck out seven and walked two in the first complete game of his career. Tom Seaver, 0-3, was the loser.

Noles didn't allow a Cincinnati baserunner until the fourth when Eddie Milner's line drive fell in front of Henderson in left field for a single. Milner moved to third on a sacrifice and a deep fly to center, but Bench ended the inning by flying to left.

Noles opened the Chicago third with a single to left. Bump Wills followed with a single to right, moving Noles to second. Ryne Sandberg's bunt single loaded the bases, and Noles scored on Bill Buckner's broken-bat grounder to second.

Wills was nabbed in a run-down after Keith Moreland grounded to third. Seaver then walked Leon Durham intentionally before striking out Henderson to end the inning.

Clev. 6 Seattle 1

CLEVELAND (AP) — Len Barker and Tom Brennan combined on a four-hitter, and the Cleveland Indians erupted for six first-inning runs to snap a four-game losing streak, beating the Seattle Mariners 6-1 last night.

Barker, 3-1, struck out six and walked four, while holding the Mariners to three singles through seven innings. Brennan pitched two scoreless innings in relief.

The only Seattle run came in the sixth on a walk to Julio Cruz, a single by Manny Castillo and an RBI-groundout by Bruce Bochte.

Seattle rookie Mike Moore, 1-3, lasted just one-third of an inning as six of the seven hitters he faced scored.

Alan Bannister led off the Cleveland first with a walk and stole second. After Toby Harrah grounded out, Mike Hargrove singled in Bannister.

Atlanta 7 Pitts. 6

ATLANTA (AP) — Shortstop Dale Berra's error on a two-out bouncer by pinch-hitter Bob Watson brought home Bob Horner from third with the winning run in the 10th inning to give the Atlanta Braves a 7-6 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates last night.

The victory snapped a five-game losing streak.

RUGBY — After coming off an impressive performance last Saturday at Bowling Green, the Irish squad will close out its season this Saturday against Michigan State. The matches will begin at 1 p.m. on the fields behind Stepan Center. The 'A' match especially will have two significant events. First, it will decide whether the team will finish with a winning or losing season by virtue of the club's current 2-2 mark. Second, it will mark the final game for 12 seniors who, as one club member put it, "Have been through the good and very difficult times of the club over the years." The seniors include Dan Pearl, Glen Kurtchief, Nick Colarelli, Mark Deflin, Scot O'Brien, John Price, Mike McMahon, Joe Timmins, Jay Traverse, Tom Mazzeli, and Gerry O'Regan.

The 'A' club dropped to the .500 mark despite a top performance against the undefeated (7-0) Mid-American Conference champions from Bowling Green. The team lost a 19-15 decision to the Ohio representative in the regionals despite an early 6-0 lead. Kurtchief and Brian Moynihan each tallied a four-point score for the Irish, while Deflin kicked home both two-point conversions as well as a three-point penalty kick. Dan Pearl had a fine game as the running back as did club president Sean Sullivan for the scrums. The 'B' squad also lost a close match by a 6-4 count. Tom Falon had the score for the Irish, who were led by outstanding individual performances from fullback Steve Schneider and scrum Jeff Branigan. Despite a fine individual performance by scrum-captain "Big Bob" Kaulbach, the 'C' squad also suffered a close defeat, 4-0.

WOMEN'S SOFTBALL — The softball club closed out its regular season last Sunday with a 21-16, 16-0 doubleheader sweep over Grace College. The wins give the team an 8-9 record as it heads into tomorrow's seven-team state tournament. The meet begins at 9 a.m. at Saint Mary's. In Monday's opener with Grace, Karen Alig won the mtry optometry award for good eyes as she reached base all six times at bat on six walks. Mary Ann and Alyson Hritz went 3-for-6 and 2-for-4, respectively, to pace the hitting, while Lisa Erhardt and Val Harris each had two RBIs to lead the run production for the squad. Harris and Linda Kelleher combined on the shutout in the second game. Jill Strenzel was 2-for-2, and Alig (who had four RBIs), Chris Callahan, Erhardt, and Harris each had two hits in three at bats. Harris' double and triple in the second game raised her final regular season average to a scorching .517. Other top averages include Strenzel's .364, Arn's .357 and Alig's .344. Alig also has a .638 on-base percentage. The team has an overall batting average of .305.

The bats were not booming on Sunday, though, against a varsity and scholarship team from Lake Michigan College. Molly Ryan had the only two hits in the opening 7-0 loss by the Irish, and Terri Bogucki had the lone run batted in for the afternoon in the 12-1 second-game defeat. The squad split two games on Saturday as it first lost by a 7-1 count to Anderson College before defeating Bethel College in the second game 14-2. Harris was 3-for-3 in the loss to Anderson. Alig had the only RBI. Hritz earned the decision in the Bethel game. Strenzel led the hitting in that game with a 3-for-4 effort. Ryan, Harris and Callahan, meanwhile, had two hits apiece in four trips to the plate.

CREW — In last weekend's five-team rowing regatta held at Mishawaka, the women's varsity and novice squads dominated the meet.

Rookie's bomb defeats Celtics

Bullets over Celtics

BOSTON (AP) — Rookie Frank Johnson's three-point field goal with three seconds left climaxed a 26-point performance and gave the Washington Bullets a 103-102 victory over Boston last night, evening their National Basketball Association playoff series at one game each.

Johnson scored 24 of his points in the second half, including 13 in the final period in which the Celtics led most of the way.

Boston wiped out an 84-80 deficit with 10 straight points to take a 90-84 lead with 5:16 remaining in the game.

The Celtics led by from one to five points but couldn't shake the Bullets in the second game of the best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal series.

The Celtics went ahead 101-98 with 1:06 to play when Nate Archibald made one of two free throws.

Greg Ballard's two foul shots with 40 seconds to go cut the lead to one before Robert Parish made one of two free throws for Boston with 33 seconds left.

But with 10 seconds remaining, Parish was called for an offensive foul. The Bullets worked the ball to Johnson, who launched a .30-footer that swished through for the winning points.

M.L. Carr missed a desperation jumper at the buzzer for Boston.

Sixers win again

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Andrew Toney scored 31 points and Julius Erving had 24 points and seven assists as the Philadelphia 76ers beat the Milwaukee Bucks 120-108 last night to take a 2-0 lead in their National Basketball Association Eastern Conference semifinal playoff.

The best-of-seven series now moves to Milwaukee for the third and fourth games Saturday and Sunday afternoon. It would return here Wednesday if a fifth game is necessary.

The 76ers took the lead at 5-3 on a 12-foot bank shot by Darryl Dawkins and led the rest of the game.

Brian Winters topped the Bucks with 21 points, while Marques Johnson contributed 19 and Mickey Johnson 18 for the Central Division champion Bucks.

Philadelphia led four times by 10 points in the first quarter, the last time at 23-13. Dawkins and Toney each scored eight in the period as the 76ers led 31-22 at the end of the opening period.

Blatt, Paxson--1981-82 Athletes of the Year

By MICHAEL ORTMAN
Sports Editor Emeritus

Notre Dame swimmer Jeanine Blatt and Irish basketball star John Paxson will be honored as The Observer's 1981-82 Athletes of the Year. The two finished well ahead of the field in voting yesterday by a panel of 20 Observer sports writers.

John Paxson

The two will be presented with the Edward W. Krause Awards as the female and male athletes of the year, respectively, at halftime of Saturday's Blue-Gold game in the stadium.

Blatt, a three-time Division III All-America distance freestylist, competed on Notre Dame's men's team her first two years since there was no separate varsity team for women. But after her sophomore season, she opted to sacrifice her chance at a varsity monogram and compete on the non-varsity club.

"She gave them a much-needed shot in the arm," said Dennis Stark, coach of both the Notre Dame men and women. "It's because of people like Jeanine that we now have varsity swimming for women."

Blatt was voted MVP by her teammates after their first varsity season and her third successful trip to the nationals. The Lewis Hall Resident Assistant also was the team's recipient of the St. Joseph Valley Club Scholar-Athlete Award this spring.

Paxson, who was recently elected captain of next year's team, was perhaps the only saving grace in an otherwise dismal basketball season. A first team all-America choice of the nation's coaches, Paxson led the Irish in scoring, assists, minutes played, and was near the top in almost every other category. His teammates unanimously voted him the 10-17 season's MVP.

Both winners finished well ahead of their competition. Blatt's name appeared on all 20 ballots. She collected 238 points out of a possible 400 including nine first place votes. Saint Mary's senior Mary Beth Hosinski, a standout in both volleyball and softball, finished second for the second year in a row with 210 points and five first place votes.

Notre Dame freshman Mary Beth Schueth, the only other woman to appear on all 20 ballots, finished third with 169 points and three first place votes. Schueth led Mary Distanslao's much-improved basketball team in scoring, rebounding, minutes played and blocked shots.

Paxson garnered 227 points and 10 first place votes, easily out-distancing decathlete Paul Doyle. Doyle shattered a 50-year-old school record in the decathlon earlier this spring with 7,774 points which currently ranks second best in the nation. He also won school bests in the pole vault (both indoor and outdoor).

Paxson and Doyle were the only ones whose names appeared on all 20 ballots. Doyle finished with 198 points and six first place votes. Hockey co-captain Dave Poulin was next with 149 and one first place vote.

A first team All-CCHA selection, Poulin was one of 10 finalists for this past season's Hobie Baker Award, college hockey's Heisman Trophy. Poulin rebounded after a life-threatening bout with meningitis his sophomore year to become the all-time leading scorer among Irish centers.

This is the second year the awards have been presented. Last year Notre Dame tennis player Mary Legeay and swimmer Mike Shepardson, both juniors, took the honors.

The voters were asked to consider not only an individual's performance, but his or her value to their team. In other words, if a nominee was removed from the team roster, what would be the effect on team effectiveness? Other factors, such as dedication and involvement in non-sports activities, were considered.
