

The Observer

VOL. XVII, NO. 74

the independent student newspaper serving notre dame and saint mary's

FRIDAY, JANUARY 14, 1983

Officer slain

Police kill seven religious fanatics

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Police stormed a house and killed seven religious zealots yesterday in a futile attempt to save a fellow officer who had been taken hostage and tortured before he was slain, authorities said.

A police assault team lobbed tear gas into the modest residence of a former mental patient, opened fire with automatic weapons, and burst into the house shortly after 3 a.m.

Killed in the shootout was Lindburg Sanders, 49, an unemployed construction worker who the mayor said described himself as "the black Jesus," and six other members of a religious group that believed the world was coming to an end. Authorities said the group also thought of police as "anti-Christ" agents of the devil.

Also found dead was patrolman R.S. Hester 34, who had been taken captive by Sanders on Tuesday.

Police Director John D. Holt said the decision to assault the house came after police with electronic eavesdropping devices heard someone inside the house say, "The devil is dead."

Police said they were met by gunfire from at least two rooms of the three-bedroom house whose windows had been nailed shut with the doors barricaded with furniture.

Authorities believe Hester, who was married but had no children, had been killed several hours earlier.

"The battered body of the police officer was found just inside the front door," Holt told reporters. "His hands were cuffed behind his back."

A patrolman, who asked not to be identified, said, "I've known Hester for years. After what they did to him I couldn't recognize him ... We waited too long."

Holt said Hester suffered numerous injuries, and police sources said the patrolman could be heard screaming for help after he was seized. Authorities declined to be specific about the injuries or the cause of death.

Mayor Dick Hackett said officials were afraid dynamite was in the house because the occupants threatened "a surprise" if police stormed the house. No dynamite was found.

"We knew they had food stored inside," he said. "It was there because they expected the world to end and had it there for their ritual. You had this man calling himself the black Jesus and the people in the house with him who thought they were his disciples."

Police said they had been able to provide a definite identity only for Sanders, a psychiatric patient since 1973. Police said they learned of Sanders' activities and those of his followers from friends, neighbors and relatives.

Sanders' wife, Dorothy, had left her husband last Friday and said he believed the world was going to end Monday. His psychiatrist said Sanders drank no water because he believed it was forbidden in the Bible, and neighbors said a hand-painted sign bearing the head of a pig in his front yard may have been a reference to his abstention from pork.

Administration considers higher taxes on energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is considering a broad-based tax on energy consumption as an option for raising $40 billion or more in fiscal 1986 if it is needed to reduce the government's swollen deficits, administration sources said yesterday.

The sources said energy taxes are high on Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan's list of possible revenue sources that would "trigger in" after Oct. 1, 1985, if required to keep the government's red ink below $100 billion.

Regan disclosed Wednesday that he had proposed several contingency tax options to the president, including an income tax surcharge, but he refused to identify any of the other proposals, saying the president had not yet made any final decisions.

A decision may come soon. Reagan must submit his budget for fiscal 1984, which begins next fall, to Congress by the end of January.

The sources, who requested anonymity, said Regan had several variations of energy taxes and income tax surcharges in mind.

The energy options include a fee on imported oil; a tax that could be extended to domestic oil as well as imports; a so-called BTU (British thermal unit) tax that sets levies based on the heat content of coal, hydroelectric and nuclear power, natural gas and petroleum; and a "windfall profits" tax or a severance tax on natural gas that would be tied to removal of federal price controls in 1985.

See TAXES, page 6

Ab! The rigors of academia! With classes not in full-swing yet, many students are enjoying the free time before it disappears. Hal Von Wyl enjoyed some pool yesterday in the basement of La Fortune. (Photo by Melinda Hopkins)

McCandless, Holy Cross

Students relocated to new housing

By SANDY VALENZUELA
Staff Reporter

Social space is now available in McCandless and Holy Cross halls as a result of the relocation of students who were temporarily housed there.

The admissions department usually accepts a few more students than they can actually provide housing for, anticipating that some of the students will choose to attend another college. According to Sister Karol Jackowski, director of residence life, however, this year's dropout rate was even lower than the usually low dropout rate. The students temporarily housed in the Holy Cross parlor were relocated to a quint. The students in McCandless temporary housing chose rooms that were vacated in LeMans, Regina, and McCandless.

"They knew that they would have to move so they didn't expect to stay there," said Jackowski. At the beginning of the semester, the students had signed release forms which stated they would move when space was made available. "These areas are fairly isolated and they appreciated being placed with other students, especially in McCandless," she added.

According to Jackowski, off-campus students wishing a room on campus have had the opportunity. "There are three or four spaces on campus. If they were off campus and wanted to be on, they'd already be here."

Relocated students "were given a choice of what we have available," and we know where each other said Minnie Owens, housing coordinator.

There was a priority system, even though they were in temporary housing. Earlier applicants were allowed to choose their rooms first. "The areas they are in are where they wanted to be," said Owens.

According to Michelle Valley, McCandless hall director, there were no complaints from McCandless residents about the lack of social space. Since there is no chapel in McCandless, the masses have been held in the piano room. "At this point," said Valley, "there has been no space asked for that we couldn't provide."

One of the students living in temporary housing in McCandless and now living in a triple in the same hall said, "I like it. As far as I can see right now, we're going to get along ... I'm making new friends while keeping my old friends."

"It might be a little easier to meet people because I'm on the floor and always seeing people," she said. "There's really not that great of a difference."

In choosing her present room she said, "I didn't want a single. I was given a fair number of choices. I was familiar with the hall and how it ran. I knew people in the hall and wanted to get to know them better."

She showed some regret at leaving her friends from temporary housing. "We were all really close and we got along really well. I see them in the cafeteria and I visit them live."

Holy Cross has had some complaints, admits Hall Director Lisa Schulte, but not nearly as many as she expected. "When we had both parlors with students, we had basically no social space ... We had one of the parlors back early in the semester."

The student opinion of the parlor used as temporary housing varies. Said one student, "It didn't inconvenience me at all. In fact, I felt bad that they were thrown into that situation." Some agreed with her opinion.

Another student stated that it was quite an inconvenience. "If you had anybody over you really couldn't sit anywhere. If you did, they'd say, 'You're talking too loud!'" Other students agreed. "You couldn't play ping-pong or pool. While watching TV they'd be making noise — a little — and the phone would ring."

The students that lived in the Holy Cross parlor noticed the resentment of the other residents while they were in the parlor. "They wanted us out," said one student. Another added, "One girl yelled, 'We can't wait until you get out of there!'"

In moving, they wanted to stay together. One of the women said, "She (Owens) was really nice. She helped us out a lot and tried to keep us all together." When a quint was vacated, with Owens' help, the women moved in.

Weigert resigns post, accepts new appointment

By MIKE LEPRE
Senior Staff Reporter

Kathleen Weigert, assistant dean in the College of Arts and Letters, has resigned her post after 3 1/2 years in order to accept an appointment as assistant director for social analysis in the Center for Social Concerns.

"Although I have thoroughly enjoyed being an assistant dean," said Weigert, "I am certainly looking forward to the challenges involved in my new position."

The recent merger of the Center for Experiential Learning and the Volunteer Services Office created the need for an administrator who could help to coordinate these two programs.

According to Weigert, she has accepted "a brand new position which was a direct result of the coming together of these offices."

Weigert calls her resignation "technically a lateral move from one position as an assistant into another," and she believes that by "working with both faculty members and students we will be able to help to develop many educational opportunities in the area of social concerns."

Weigert's office will operate in the former WNDU building. The refurbished structure now houses the newly established Center for Social Concerns. She will assume her role as assistant director Monday, and hopes to help create a "central place for students to go in order to help serve their various needs."

Because of the newness of her job, Weigert says that her opportunities "are wide open, and therefore they can be used to create many new programs."

Weigert's vacated position will be filled by Father Robert Austgen.

By The Observer and The Associated Press

The papers of the late Father John Cavanaugh, president of Notre Dame from 1946 to 1952, will be catalogued with the support of a $25,000 gift from Charles M. Reagan of New York City, a close friend and 1917 alumnus. Cavanaugh died on December 28, 1979, at the age of 80. Prior to becoming Notre Dame's 14th president, Cavanaugh had served as vice president and chairman of the Faculty Board in Control of Athletics, as campus prefect of religion, and as assistant provincial superior of the Congregation of Holy Cross. Father Theodore Hesburgh, University president, who succeeded Cavanaugh as Notre Dame's president 30 years ago, paid tribute to him as "my mentor as well as a distinguished predecessor. Charlie Reagan's gift," he said, "betokens the great affection and admiration which we shared for a splendid priest and great university president. The University and I are grateful to him." — The Observer

The number of Catholics in the nation's House of Representatives is up, but the number of Notre Dame alumni is down by one. According to a survey by Americans United for Separation of Church and State, 124 of 435 representatives are Catholic, up from the 118 in the 97th Congress two years ago. With the defeat of Ronald Mottl (D-Ohio), however, there are five instead of six Notre Dame alumni in the House. They are Thomas Corcoran (R-Ill.), Joseph Gaydos (D-Pa.), Daniel Lundgren (R-Calif.), Roman Mazzoli (D-Ky.) and Joseph McDade (R-Pa.). The number of Catholics in the Senate — 17 — remains unchanged. None are Notre Dame graduates. The next largest faith groups in the new Congress are the United Methodists with 73 members and the Episcopalians with 61. — The Observer

The American Red Cross is offering courses in water safety and first aid. The Water Safety Instructors class will begin tomorrow at 9 a.m. in Rockne Memorial. Prerequisites for this class are a current life saving card and swimmer level certificate or ability. The Standard First Aid class will be held on Jan. 18 and Jan. 20 from 6 to 10 p.m. in Room 218 Rockne Memorial. The Advanced First Aid course will also be in 218 Rockne Memorial. The prerequisites for this class are standard first aid and CPR. For more information or to register, leave name with Brother Louis Hurcuk in Room 215 Rockne or call 239-5043 or 239-6321. — The Observer

The parents of a 3-year-old rural DeMotte, Indiana boy who was fatally beaten in August were each sentenced to 10 years in prison yesterday. Judge Duane Daugherty of Jasper Circuit Court sentenced Larry and Lucy Lonadier in connection with the death of their son Bradley. Lucy Lonadier was given the 10-year sentence, with nine years suspended. With good behavior, she will be out of Jasper County Jail on Feb. 25, authorities said.

Larry Lonadier was given the 10-year sentence, but with seven years suspended. With good behavior, he will be released from the jail Feb. 5, 1984. Bradley died Aug. 6 following a beating Aug. 2 by his father, court records show. The Lonadiers testified earlier that Steve Jackson, leader of a religious cult at their home, had urged them to beat the child as a way of disciplining him. The Lonadiers testified that Jackson controlled the members of the Community Covenant Fellowship. Daugherty sentenced Jackson on Jan. 5 to 20 years in prison for his part in the death. He is being held in the Lake County Jail pending an appeal. — AP

The Kremlin said today that the resignation of U.S. nuclear arms control chief Eugene V. Rostow was another sign of the "serious differences now reigning" the Reagan administration. "The most reactionary American circles who oppose any agreements with the U.S.S.R. pressed for Mr. Rostow's resignation," Radio Moscow said. The official Tass news agency said Rostow quit because of "serious differences with Reagan's people concerning the problems of arms control, the tactics" of the Americans at nuclear missile reduction talks in Geneva. In resigning Wednesday, Rostow said, "In recent days it has become clear that the president wished to make changes. In response to his request, I have tendered my resignation." He submitted his resignation apparently after losing a battle with Senate hardliners who were displeased with his assistants and with his handling of arms control negotiations. — AP

Several environmental groups say they are filing a lawsuit against Interior Secretary James Watt to overturn his decision removing wilderness protection from thousands of acres in 10 Western states. The suit was to be filed today in federal district court in Sacramento, Calif. Terry Sopher, a spokesman for the Wilderness Society, said California was chosen because it is one of the states most affected by Watt's decision. The environmental groups are contending among other things that Watt violated requirements that he prepare an environmental impact statement on his action. Watt provoked a storm of protest two weeks ago when he announced he was removing 805,000 acres of land from further study as candidates to be included in the 80-million-acre wilderness protection system. Watt contended that the land had been improperly included along with 24 million acres of Interior Department land which is being surveyed for possible inclusion in the wilderness system. — AP

A 60 percent chance of rain today with some freezing possibly occurring in the morning. The highs will be in the mid 30s. Rain changing to snow later in the afternoon. A 70 percent chance of snow tonight with the low in the low to mid 20s. Snow flurries and cold tomorrow with the high in the mid 20s. — AP

A nation of nudnicks?

America, land of the free, land of liberty, land of the brave, but a land of the nudnicks? I'm beginning to think so.

While the world continues down the road to economic ruin, most people in this country have some sense of hope for the future because they are "Americans." They labor under the delusion that "here in the United States things are always better."

Unfortunately, this probably isn't true. All around us are signs of a national stasis. On the great track field of civilization, our once great country seems bound and determined to pass the baton of progress to someone else.

Take a look on the funnies pages of our newspapers. Back when this country was growing by leaps and bounds and proving the viability of democracy, the most popular comic strips were Superman and Popeye. Together the Man of Steel and the Man of Spinach protected the weak and promoted "Truth, Justice, and the American Way." The heroes displayed qualities of honor and modesty.

Now look what is the most popular comic strip in the country. It is about a lazy, fat, ill-tempered cat. Each day a record number of Americans eagerly turn to the latest episode of Garfield, a repulsive, bug-eyed creature that embodies so much of what is wrong with this country. And what wit! "I hate Mondays" and "I hate to diet" are the clever premises day after day.

Recently while in a bookstore I overheard a customer telling the clerk as she bought the latest collection of this drivel, "I just love Garfield because I can understand him. All those other comics try to be clever and I hate to think." There you have it, humor reduced to the level of the illiterate. Garfield is more than just an exercise in inanity, it is a good example of the faddish plagues that routinely sweep across the land.

Walk into any store this Christmas, and you could buy Garfield cups, napkins, posters, binders, pens, cookies, calendars, candy, and loads of other useless items to satisfy a nation too loose with its wallet. And there is more to come. The popularity of Garfield has not inspired other cartoonists to come up with clever strips to put that feline inanity in its place. No, instead, in the past year the comic pages of America are suddenly littered with ill-tempered babies, children, dogs, and assorted other vermin "entertaining" us with their selfish complaints.

One local paper has filled the spot sadly left open by Doonesbury's hiatus with a bubble-headed bimbo

Ryan Ver Berkmoes
Managing Editor

Inside Friday

named Cathy. Each day, she cries on about her own neuroses, stupidity, men, and food. This strip is an affront to all women. Worse yet, a recent issue of USA Today reports that by Valentine's Day, our nations stores will teaming with Cathy candy, clothes, oven mitts, diaries, lip gloss, and more.

What ever happened to individuality? We as a people are informed what we must have to make us happy and then blindly march to the store like so many drones.

This year's Garfield calendar is next year's component of a New Jersey landfill, this year's Cathy underwear is next year's dustrag.

Americans no longer seem compelled to pursue quality or individual thought. Our society is celebrating selfishness and arrogance. The pursuit of knowledge is no longer a virtue. The same bookstores that peddle Garfield and related ilk are well stocked with books on self-help. A reader who is "bummed out," "a victim of non-cheery vibes," or just not sure they are satisfied with "their life-space," can find a book that not only encourages such neurosis but urges the reader to live life awash in self-feeding mental masturbation.

Rather than deducing a problem and taking action, we ponder it. Rather than pursuing progress and a better life for all, we pursue ourselves. Are we to become a nation of Garfields and Cathys?

DENNIS RYAN

The views expressed in the Inside column are the views of the author, and do not necessarily represent the views of The Observer or its editorial board.

The Observer

Design Editor..... Kay Holland

Design Assistants Reggie Daniel "Yes it's over!" Tom Small "This is it!"

Typesetters Toni and Reggie
News Editor Vic Scullini
Copy Editor..... Tim Neely
Features Layout..... Joe Musumeci
Editorials Layout..... Tari Brown
Sports Copy Editor..... Rich O'Connor
Typist..... Mary Beth Porter
Monica Gugle
ND Day Editor..... Tim Petters
SMC Day Editor..... Bruce Oakley
Ad Design..... Bob Slota
Photographer..... Melinda Hopkins

Guest Appearances WSND's Sting and his Magic Music Machine, Cathy says No!, A few strange people, and Griff

"To bell with this music!"

The Observer (USPS 598 920) is published Monday through Friday and on home football Saturdays except during exam and vacation periods. The Observer is published by the students of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's College. Subscriptions may be purchased for $25 per year ($15 per semester) by writing The Observer, P.O. Box Q, Notre Dame, Indiana 46556. The Observer is a member of The Associated Press. All reproduction rights are reserved. Second class postage paid at Notre Dame, Indiana 46556.

Spring Break
Social Concerns Seminar in WASHINGTON D.C.

INFORMATION NIGHT
Library Lounge 7pm Mon., Jan. 17

Corby's

"Weekend Special"

Fri Introducing Budweiser

Draft

Happy Hour 4-8 Pitchers $2.⁹⁵

(FREE SNACK TRAYS)

Sat Margaritas Liters $5.⁹⁵

(all night)

FREE HOT CHEESE NACHOS

Go ND, Beat Marquette!!

Dance marathon to highlight Mardi Gras

By CATHY PAX
Staff Reporter

This year's Notre Dame Mardi Gras may not outshine the gala festival in New Orleans, but the many exciting events planned will liven up the first week of February.

A snow sculpture contest is scheduled to kick off the festivities "provided we have snow by then," said Karen Klocke, Mardi Gras chairman. Students are encouraged to sign up in groups from their hall to compete. DJ services for a party will be awarded to the two dorms with the best creations.

On Thursday, Feb. 3, Shenanigans and a student jazz band will perform Dixieland and ragtime selections in the Nazz to help create the spirit of the New Orleans celebration.

A talent show will be held in the Nazz the following night.

The "biggest event" according to Klocke will be a twelve-hour marathon dance contest in the South Dining Hall on Saturday, Feb. 5. It is scheduled to last from 1 p.m. to 1 a.m. with music provided by WSND disc jockeys for the first eight hours. There are tentative plans for a band to entertain the closing four hours.

Dancers are encouraged to come in costume. Prizes will be awarded for the best dressed couple as well as for their dancing ability. Couples can sign up through their Mardi Gras hall representatives or in the dining halls as soon as possible.

Dancers must sell 10 tickets at $2 each as sponsorship in order to participate. Students who sponsor a couple are admitted to the dance between 9 p.m. and 1 a.m. and will receive a coupon for Barnaby's pizza. Other students will be able to pay at the door.

Dancers who sell 20 tickets, students who sponsor a couple and those who attend the dance are eligible for a variety of door prizes.

The grand prize will be a trip to the Mardi Gras in New Orleans. Additional prizes will be awarded to couples who sell the most tickets and turn their tickets in the earliest.

Gerry Faust and other Notre Dame celebrities are expected to attend.

All money raised by the Mardi Gras will benefit Notre Dame and South Bend charities, including Big Brothers and Sisters, Logan Center, CILA, and the World Hunger Coalition.

A new aspect of the Mardi Gras this year allows participating students to designate which charity will benefit from their efforts. In dorm contests, the Social Concerns chairman will select the charity.

Funds can also be directed to a general charity fund to be administered by the Mardi Gras committee. This change will hopefully emphasize the charity aspect of the Mardi Gras.

Members of charity organizations are encouraged to participate in the planned events and "support something that supports themselves."

This is the second year of a non-gambling Mardi Gras, the result of a 1981 ruling by Bishop William McManus of the South Bend-Fort Wayne diocese, which prohibited gambling in the diocese. The 1981 festival, the last before the ruling, was a 10-day carnival consisting primarily of games of chance that took place in dorm-sponsored booths in Stepan Center. This was a very successful means of raising money for charity.

Last year's total earnings, estimated at between $6,000 and $10,000, was much lower than figures from previous years. Klocke hopes to raise $16,000 this year. "Hopefully, since this is the second year of the new Mardi Gras, it will be more popular with students," said Klocke.

Patty McElroy, Sue Faccenda and Patricia Purcell returned from London this semester and now face the unenjoyable task of unpacking and moving back to campus. (Photo by Melinda Hopkins)

Pressure from Reagan

Israel, Lebanon to resume talks

KIRYAT SHMONA, Israel (AP) — Pressure from President Reagan broke a three-week deadlock yesterday as Israel and Lebanon agreed to negotiate simultaneously on the withdrawal of Israeli and other foreign troops from Lebanon and on future relations between Israel and Lebanon.

Despite agreement on a compromise agenda giving priority to neither issue, the two governments made clear that in the negotiations each would put its primary concern first.

Lebanese officials in Beirut said when the Israeli, Lebanese and American negotiators get down to business at their next meeting Monday, their delegation would propose a comprehensive plan for withdrawal of all Israeli troops from Lebanon.

Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon said he was sure the negotiators "will arrive at security arrangements and normalization as the first stage to peace between Israel and Lebanon."

Through four semi-weekly meetings in this northern Israeli town and the south Beirut suburb of Khalde, the Israelis insisted that the negotiators first agree on normalization of relations between the two nations, while the Lebanese demanded priority for withdrawal of the estimated 60,000 Israeli, Syrian and Palestinian troops.

At the fifth meeting Monday in Khalde, both Lebanon and Israel accepted special U.S. envoy Morris Draper's proposal for concurrent negotiations on all the issues, but each demanded changes. Agreement finally came at the sixth meeting after Philip C. Habib, Reagan's chief Middle East envoy, arrived from Washington with word that the president was growing impatient and wanted an end to the deadlock.

The Lebanese concessions included agreeing to negotiate a formal end to the state of war between Israel and Lebanon. Previously Lebanon argued that no state of war existed, and that the armistice machinery dating back to the 1948 Arab-Israeli war could handle border problems.

Another Lebanese concession was agreement to the inclusion of such peace-inducing elements as trade, open borders and an end to hostile propaganda.

Israel compromised by dropping its demand that "normalization of relations" be included in the agenda. Lebanon rejected the word

"normalization" because it feared this would alienate the Arab oil countries from which it wants reconstruction money.

They said the withdrawal plan the Lebanese would propose at the negotiating session Monday in Khalde would include a timetable and would declare Lebanon ready to negotiate security arrangements to facilitate the pullout of the estimated 25,000 Israeli soldiers in central and southern Lebanon.

They said Lebanon would also pledge to negotiate withdrawal of the estimated 6,000 to 10,000 Palestinian guerrillas in northern and eastern Lebanon before the Israeli pullout and to negotiate withdrawal of the estimated 30,000 Syrian troops in eastern and northern Lebanon simultaneously with the Israeli withdrawal.

British Prime Minister returns from Falklands

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher returned home today from a surprise five-day tour of the Falkland Islands, the South Atlantic archipelago over which Britain and Argentina fought an undeclared war last year.

The prime minister's Royal Air Force VC-10 jet touched down at Brize Norton Royal Air Force base near Oxford at 9 a.m. (4 a.m. EST) after a 23-hour, 8,000-mile journey.

Thatcher, accompanied by her husband, Denis, and her aides, was driven immediately to London.

The prime minister left the Falklands Wednesday morning aboard an RAF Hercules cargo plane after touring abandoned Argentine positions on Tumbledown Mountain, scene of heavy fighting during the 74-day conflict.

Before leaving, she said the tour was a "personal pilgrimage" to thank the British troops who ousted Argentine invasion forces from the British colony last June 14 and to reassure the islanders of Britain's commitment to defend the islands indefinitely.

Two fully armed Phantom fighter jets escorted the Hercules across the British-imposed 200-mile South Atlantic exclusion zone on the first leg of its 13-hour flight to the mid-Atlantic staging post of Ascension Island.

After a brief stopover, the prime minister's party transferred to the VC-10 transport jet for the final leg of the trip.

Thatcher made no comment to reporters waiting at Brize Norton.

During her surprise tour of the Falklands, Thatcher visited British military installations and spoke individually with half of the 1,800 British-descended islanders.

Argentina invaded the Falklands last April 2 to assert its claim to the islands, 250 miles off its southern coast.

Eating Disorders

- Anorexia Nervosa
- Bulimia

An illness that makes people starve, vomit or purge because they think they are fat

A 10-week structured therapy group every Monday evening, beginning January 31 on the Notre Dame campus

Limited Enrollment

For further information

Contact:
Dan Rybicki, PSY.D.
Susan Steibe, PH.D.
239-7336
Mary Theis, M.A.
284-4565

Buy
Observer
Classifieds

Live for God and His People as a ...

Capuchin a what?

Capuchin Franciscans are a religious fraternity of men trying to live the Gospel in the Spirit of Francis of Assisi in today's world.

Join us in promoting peace, education, and justice— in ghettos... in jails... in soup kitchens... in parishes... in halfway houses... on radio and TV.

Join us in working with and for the advancement of blacks, whites, Hispanics, native Americans and people of the Third World in Central America.

Check out whether being a Capuchin, committed to living for God and his people, in the spirit of Francis, is for you. No obligation. Write today for more information.

Clip and Mail Today!

Father John Holly, OFM Capuchin, 1820 Mt. Elliott Avenue, Detroit, MI 48207

Yes, send me information about the Capuchin way of life.

Name _____ Age _____

College _____ Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Some students like Philo major John Breslin think that it's never too early to start studying for finals. (Photo by Melinda Hopkins)

Thanks to decision

Natural gas prices to rise again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Natural gas customers, already struggling with price increases of 25 percent this winter, could see their monthly bills go up by as much as 2.5 percent on top of that this spring under a federal agency's decision yesterday.

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission said its decision could mean a price increase of $12 a year for the average residential customer, whose bills for 1983 are expected to total about $637.

The action, approved in a 5-0 vote, comes in settlement of a lengthy dispute over what prices producers should be allowed to recover for the cost of gathering and compressing natural gas for shipment on pipelines to local distribution companies.

The 1978 law decontrolling natural gas prices in step through 1985, the reason of this winter's 25 percent increase, also provided for extra charges for the cost of preparing gas for transmission. The commission's action yesterday settles what those charges will be.

The full 2.5 percent would apply if gas producers will be able to pass on all extra charges permitted by the commission's decision in a slack market. However, commission official said they thought competition would hold down the increase.

The ruling will allow for increases from all consumers, residential, commercial and industrial, of $3 billion a year until 1985, when the annual figure will drop to $1.8 billion. The higher charges in the early years permit the producers to recover preparation costs since 1980, when the case first came before the commission.

While commission officials said they were just carrying out the law, consumer groups blasted the decision as totally unjustified in light of the 150 percent price increases natural gas customers have had to shoulder since Congress began the decontrol of gas in 1978.

Commission General Counsel Charles Moore said consumers would not begin seeing the increases in their bills until May because of the time it will take to implement the decision.

U.S. refuses to return Chinese tennis player

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is preparing to inform Peking it cannot return a star Chinese tennis player who defected last July and has spent "months of sleepless nights" worrying about her fate, sources said yesterday.

China has been demanding the return of Hu Na, 19, apparently on grounds that a U.S. decision to grant her political asylum could touch off a wave of similar requests from other Chinese visitors, mostly students, who number in the thousands.

But "we would never send her back," a top U.S. official said. "We would never clamp her in irons and send her back to the mainland."

He and other officials, who asked not to be identified, said a State Department advisory opinion was sent recently to the Immigration and Naturalization Service, which has ultimate responsibility in the case. The decisions of the immigration service normally reflect the views of the State Department.

Meanwhile, the months of uncertainty have left their mark on Hu, who left her team during a tournament in Santa Clara, Calif., last July and has been in hiding since.

"I've talked to Hu Na and I know she's frustrated over the very long waiting," said her attorney, Edward C.Y. Lau. "I also know that the uncertainty over whether she'll be able to stay or if she'll get deported out of the country has been the source of months of sleepless nights for her."

Hu has been living with various Mandarin-speaking families in California and now is in the northern part of the state, Lau said. When she came here, she had the equivalent of a grammar school education and spoke no English.

"She's studying English and trying to do her best to keep herself in some decent condition," Lau said.

China has reacted strongly to her defection, threatening to curtail cultural exchanges with the United States, curbing the travel of other athletes and canceling participation in several events, including a tennis tournament in Florida last month.

There have been unconfirmed reports that China has threatened to shut down its consulate in San Francisco if Hu is granted political asylum.

The State Department is eager for the Immigration Service to move quickly in the case. An early decision would limit the impact of the issue on the scheduled visit to Peking by Secretary of State George P. Shultz early next month, officials said.

★ CINE/MA ★

monday night film series II

An excellent collection of German films both classic and recent and both silent and sound. To be held in conjunction with COTH 320—Aspects of Film: German Cinema and MLGR 350—German Cinema and sponsored by the Department of Communication and Theatre

All showings at the Annenberg Auditorium, The Sniite Museum of Art, Notre Dame Campus at 9:00 p.m.

Individual Admissions $2.00 Series Ticket Any 25 films from three series $30.00 Any 15 films from three series $22.00

January 17

Cabinet of Dr. Caligari (1919)

Robert Wiene. B/W. 50 min. silent. Wiene's silent classic has exercised a considerable and lasting influence. It remains to this day a striking cinematic experiment in expressionism.

January 24

Nosferatu (1922)

F.W. Murnau. B/W. 90 min. silent. Along with Cabinet and one or two others, Murnau's 1921 film became the progenitor of a brood of horror movies, but nowhere has the creative potential of the genre been better explored than in this film.

January 31

M (1931)

Fritz Lang. B/W. 99 min. Considered Lang's greatest film, this was the movie which introduced Peter Lorre to audiences as a psychopathic child murderer.

February 7

Blue Angel (1930)

Josef von Sternberg. B/W. 94 min. Sternberg's 1930 film is a classic portrayal of an older professor who is brought down by his confrontation with Eros, in the form of Mariene Dietrich.

February 14

Triumph of the Will (1934)

Leni Riefenstahl. B/W. 80 min. Hitler commissioned the talented Leni Riefenstahl to do this film, one of the most polished propaganda documentaries ever made.

February 21

Hitlerjunge Quex (1933)

Hans Steinhilff. B/W. 92 min. Steinhilff's 1933 film is an example of cinematic propaganda at its ideological worst and technical best.

February 28

The Fraulein of Barnhelm (1940)

Hans Siewk. B/W. 92 min. Hans Siewk's 1940 adaptation of Lessing's comedy is a subtle but unmistakable product of the Nazi era.

March 7

Young Torless (1966)

Volker Schlöndorff. B/W. 87 min. The international acclaim of the "New German Cinema" can be dated to this 1966 film of Schlöndorff, an adaptation of the Musil novel.

March 21

Marriage of Maria Braun (1978)

Hainer Werner Fassbinder. color. 120 min. Fassbinder's most spectacular and successful film mixes social satire, sexual comedy and period piece as it chronicles the story of Maria Braun. Hanna Schygulla is a stunning metaphor of postwar Germany in her role as Maria.

March 28

Aguirre, Wrath of God (1973)

Werner Herzog. color. 94 min. Herzog's 1973 masterpiece is a visually gripping examination of imperialism gone mad as it traces the expedition of a Spanish conquistador in search of El Dorado. Klaus Kinski as Aguirre turns in one of the best performances of his career.

April 11

Nosferatu (1979)

Werner Herzog. color. 106 min. Herzog's interpretation of the Dracula story is a remake of and tribute to the Murnau classic.

April 18

Sisters or: The Balance of Happiness (1981)

Margarethe von Trotta. color. 95 min. Margarethe von Trotta's 1981 film focuses on the conflict between two sisters and the difference of sensibilities between the two.

April 25

Tales from the Vienna Woods (1981)

Max Schell. color. 110 min. Based on the 1931 play by Horvath, Max Schell's 1981 film is a perceptive exploration of common people and their values in a decaying Vienna of 1930, a city ripe for plucking by National Socialism.

AT THE ANNENBERG MUSEUM OF ART
COMMUNICATION
& THEATRE

★ AT THE MUSEUM ★

Attention All Those Interested In "AN TOSTAL"

Interviews for Executive Committee Positions are starting now.

See Margaret, the Student Government Secretary, on the second floor LaFortune, for an appointment, before Wednesday, Jan. 19, 1983.

Ant questions - call 239-7668

Bring in the New Year (a little late!) with:

JUGGULAR

AT CHAUTAUQUA

Sat., Jan. 15 - 9:30pm - 12:30am

$1 admission to door sponsored by SU Social Commission

A CHANCE TO DANCE

Sponsored by: Howard, Pangborn, Lyons, Fisher, LeMans, Alumni, and Badin

Open to all students
Friday Jan. 14th 9:30-1:30 Chautauqua Ballroom
D.J., Refreshments $1

Graduate with class

Grads invited to Commencement

By MIKE KRISKO
News Staff

Students graduating at mid-term are not "left out in the cold," as some people believe. All 155 graduates and undergraduates awarded degrees at the end of the fall semester were invited back to the official commencement exercises in May.

Father Robert Griffin, University Chaplain, observed that it was sad not to have a ceremony to mark the end of a college career. He indicated that around eight years ago, while he was the rector of Keenan Hall, he came up with the idea of holding a special Mass and dinner for early-graduating Keenan students.

When Griffin was named the University chaplain, he thought it would be a good idea to expand the program to include all mid-term graduates.

Griffin pointed out that the dinners were well attended. The administration and the student affairs committees encouraged the program. In recent years Griffin has had to discontinue his practice. There was a time, he said, when the senior class picked up part of the expenses for the meal. Now, without the support of the senior class and with rising prices, it would be difficult to sponsor such an event.

Even though many students received degrees at the end of the fall semester, not all of them can participate in the May 1983 graduation ceremony. Sullivan pointed out that students receiving degrees in seven semesters could return for the May 1983 commencement exercises. Students receiving degrees after nine semesters of study attended the May 1982 graduation ceremonies.

Sister John Jones, the assistant provost, described the policy on early graduation.

"Early graduation is self-selected," she said. "The university neither promotes nor discourages the practice." Jones also pointed out that the student who returns for the May commencement exercises is not deprived of anything. "(Those who come back) have the same privileges as the rest of their class. They receive the same number of guest tickets, are served the same meals, and have the same access to reduced rate housing for relatives and guests," she said.

Griffin added that finishing college early can be advantageous. "The student saves a semester's tuition, and has a head start on the job market," he said.

Drug enforcement

Cops go undercover in schools

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It took George Flores two weeks to find a drug supplier among his classmates at Franklin High School, a girl George recalls as a "punk rocker" who sat in front of him in English class.

"We just started talking about drugs. She knew her dealers and I asked if I could meet them. She never introduced me, but she'd buy for me."

Joe Bravo had a harder time making connections at Belmont High. "I wasn't from the neighborhood or Central America," where many of Belmont's students were born. "They're very tight - it took me a month to make my first buy."

'You try to refrain from making friends because you know you have to bust'em.'

Every time George and Joe bought drugs, the marijuana, hashish, PCP, psychedelic mushrooms or cocaine wound up in boxes at the Los Angeles Police Department's Juvenile Division. The two students are policemen, recruited right out of the Police Academy.

Their deceptively youthful looks and lack of street exposure made them perfect candidates for the LAPD's "School Buy Program," an 8-year-old effort to catch drug sellers at the city's 55 high schools. Users are not targeted.

Each fall and spring, undercover officers register at 10 high schools selected on a rotating basis. In blue jeans and sweatshirts, with no badges, guns or back-up officers to help, they spend 10 weeks pretending to have few other ambitions than scoring dope.

"The program provides a negative thing — 'don't sell on campus because there might be a narc around' — but it's about the only negative thing (teens) see," says Capt. Robert Taylor of the department's Juvenile Division. "Movies, rock stars, sometimes their parents — everything else encourages drug use."

Based on student-officers' reports, Taylor estimates as many as 50 to 60 percent of the city's high school seniors use drugs at least once a week.

Taylor concedes his figures are not scientific, "but I don't know anyone better qualified to make an estimate."

Student-narcotic agents spend a month in training before entering schools. "They all get a crash course in what it's like to be an undercover narc. Most of them have never purchased before so they don't know how," says Taylor.

George Flores, 17 — actually George Lopez, 22 — signed up for English, art, auto shop, math and a health class at Franklin. In real life a 1978 graduate of Los Angeles' Fairfax High, he claimed he was transferring from a high school in Texas.

"I thought it was a lot different than when I went through high school and it really wasn't that long ago," Lopez says. "A lot of the students I busted were 10th graders just coming into the school. They did drugs with the older kids just to get into the groups. And nobody seems to look down on it."

"One guy I busted was a straight-A student on the basketball team who sold me Hawaiian (pot). The principal was surprised at the people I got — they're not all low lifes."

Lopez made most of his buys on school grounds, but only 14 of the 21 people he arrested were students. His biggest purchase was two ounces of PCP from the 46-year-old father of a girl at school.

In a similar case, Bravo — actually Joe Zepeda, 22 going on 17 — got to the father of a girl who marketed cocaine for her parent.

Each day after class, the two policemen would tell their superiors whom they talked with and log what they bought. Taylor says that documentation is a key reason for the program's 95 percent conviction rate.

"Most often, officers made more than one purchase from the same person. It's all documented and we have evidence," he said. Of the 303 arrests last fall, 192 were repeat dealers.

No one was arrested until the 10 weeks were up. Then the "students" helped lead other police in a one-shot roundup.

Lopez expressed few doubts at arresting acquaintances.

"You try to refrain from making friends because you know you have to bust 'em," he said. "It plays with your mind a little bit, but you just have to look at it that it's your job."

Taylor conceded that emotions "periodically become a problem. An officer will develop some friendships, then realize he or she has to do what he was hired to do."

The program withstood a legal challenge in 1975, when a Los Angeles Superior Court judge ruled against a suit by the American Civil Liberties Union. Taylor maintains entrapment is not an issue because "we're just providing sellers with an opportunity to sell."

Still, ACLU legal director Fred Okrand insists, "Our position is it's a fundamental violation of academic freedom and students' right to privacy."

Only the principal knows an officer is at school, but not his or her identity.

Lopez said the hardest part of his assignment was buying drugs but never taking them. When asked to parties, football games or other situations where using drugs would be hard to avoid, he told other students he had to work.

"It gets hard leading two different lives," he conceded. "You can never act like a 17-year-old, especially with girls. They always seem to catch on right away."

State police begin to remove a woman sitting inside a paper bag symbolizing a nuclear cooling tower during a demonstration in Point Pleasant to protest the construction of a water pumping station on the Delaware River. Some of the water from the pumping station would be used to cool the Philadelphia Electric Co. nuclear plant now under construction. (AP Photo)

CATCH THE IRISH on WSND
AM 64

Saturday January 15

Notre Dame vs.  Marquette

Live from Milwaukee

All the play-by-play with Bill Lanese and Steve Cassi

SPRING BREAK —
MAZATLAN, MEXICO
March 11-18, 1983
FROM CHICAGO $425.00

PRICE INCLUDES:

- * Roundtrip air transportation via Mexicana and American from Chicago
- * Seven nights accommodations at one of the following: Playa Mazatlan, Costa de Oro, Oceano Palace, el Pescador
- * Round trip Airport/Hotel Transfers
- * 10 pct. Hotel Tax
- * Mexican Departure Tax
- * Tour Escort

NOTE: Prices are based on quad occupancy rates for single, double, triple or con-do units available on request

DEPOSIT: $50.00 per person deposit due by JANUARY 28, 1982
Rooms will be assigned by First Source Travel unless deposits are submitted together

FOR MORE INFO CALL:

Attr. Mary Riedle
Box 1602
100 North Michigan St.
South Bend, Indiana 46634

AUDITIONS AUDITIONS
AUDITIONS

for the ND Student Player's Spring Musical

Man of La Mancha

Sat Jan 15

Sun Jan 16

2:00 pm Washington Hall

After holding police and sheriff's deputies at bay for more than three hours, 24-year-old Chester Simpson put a shotgun to his chest and killed himself. The shotgun is seen recoiling in the middle photo. In the third photo, authorities check Simpson for signs of life. (AP Photo)

Soviet satellite Officials claim little chance of harm

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top Pentagon official said today "there is a very small chance" that hazardous nuclear fuel aboard a tumbling Soviet spy satellite "would survive intact to the surface" of the Earth.

Dr. Richard Wagner, special assistant to Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger on nuclear matters, said the "much more likely" prospect is that the nuclear fuel will, in effect, burn up in the atmosphere, as happened five years ago when a similar Soviet satellite broke apart and showered fragments on an area in northern Canada.

Wagner, who said he took part in the 1978 search for the satellite debris, told a briefing that the only nuclear material that fell to earth was "smaller than flakes of pepper."

This material dispersed and there was "little or no hazard" from the few small pieces he described as "somewhat radioactive."

Under questioning, Wagner said that it would be "life-threatening" at a distance of about 200 yards if the nuclear fuel, enriched uranium, came down to earth intact without shielding.

But, he stressed, he considers this "extremely unlikely."

Wagner said the United States has given the Soviet Union a detailed list of questions to determine, among other things, whether there have been any changes in the construction of the satellite and its reactor that would alter the degree of hazard from pieces raining down on Earth.

It is too early yet to expect replies, Wagner said.

He gave his opinion that "there is a very small chance that it will distribute its debris in a populated area."

He described as "unpredictable" the time and place where the remains of the satellite will reach earth. He held to a prediction made previously by the Defense Department that this will occur probably in the last days of the month.

Reagan proposal Commerce president replies to idea

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new chairman of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce brushed aside yesterday President Reagan's appeal for each business to hire one unemployed worker, saying, "It is probably a good idea, but nothing more than a good idea."

"I guess," said Robert T. Thompson, "the president made the proposal in good faith." But he dismissed any thought that his board would endorse such a program for the chamber's 250,000 member firms.

week what kind of response he was getting to his idea.

"I cannot say that I have suddenly received, well, it has not been long enough to receive mail — that I have received a flood," he replied. "I have had comments made to me by people who approved of that. And some of them from businessmen who have said that it has caused them to think, and that they are going to give that some thought."

Presidential counselor Edwin Meese III had said in December, when Reagan first broached the idea, that the hiring program was one begun by the Rev. Leon Sullivan, founder of a job training program called Opportunities Industrialization Center in Philadelphia.

"It's been a tremendous success (in Philadelphia), and it's now moving from city to city," Meese said at the time. "While I don't know that it would wipe out unemployment, it certainly would make a real dent and would provide a lot of jobs, and most companies could do that."

"This gives the press something to chortle about," Thompson said of the Reagan appeal. His remarks came in a get-acquainted session with reporters.

During a Dec. 23 press briefing at the White House, Reagan was asked what he planned to do about the post-Depression record 10.8 percent unemployment, which has left some 12 million Americans out of work.

He suggested that the business community could contribute mightily if only each firm would hire one unemployed person.

"I know that there are some businesses that, themselves, are faced with troubles and cannot do this," Reagan said. "But there must be others that could probably take even more than one."

Reagan was asked at his nationally broadcast news conference last

continued from page 1

Windfall profits refers to the excess profits that would result from decontrol. Such a tax was imposed on oil when prices were decontrolled several years ago. Severance refers to taxes imposed as gas is extracted from the ground. Some officials said they doubted the president would ever support a windfall profits tax on natural gas, but others refused to rule it out as an option.

Reagan is known to favor the elimination of all government price controls from natural gas, but it is widely believed he would never get Congress to go along without a windfall profits tax.

... Taxes

Another strong opponent of energy taxes is House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass. O'Neill and other New England lawmakers are loath to support taxes that add to the cost of heating fuels, on which the region is heavily dependent. However, congressional tax researchers have noted that a tax law could be written in a way to impose an oil levy on gasoline and exempt heating oil.

The congressional tax experts have estimated that an oil import fee of $5 a barrel, which translates into 12 cents per gallon of gasoline, would raise about $10 billion a year. The annual revenue increase would total $21 billion if the fee were to cover domestic oil supplies as well.

1983 Auditions CEDAR POINT

MUSICIANS * PERFORMERS
Registration 12:30 - 3:30, Auditions begin at 1 pm
All cities except Pittsburgh

- Columbus, OH - Mon., Jan. 17
Ohio State University, Drake Union
- Dayton, OH - Tues., Jan. 18
Ramada Inn North, 4079 Littleyork Rd.
- Indianapolis, IN - Wed., Jan. 19
Butler University, Atherton Center
- Pittsburgh, PA - Fri., Jan. 21
Ramada Inn Airport, 1412 Beers School Rd.
Reg. 9:30 am - 1 pm, Auditions at 10 am
- Ann Arbor, MI - Mon., Jan. 24
University of Michigan, Michigan Union
- Bowling Green, OH - Tues., Jan. 25
Bowling Green State University, University Union
- Akron, OH - Wed., Jan. 26
University of Akron, E.J. Thomas Hall

ALSO AT CEDAR POINT Jan. 22 & 29

TECHNICIANS
Interviews at Cedar Point Jan. 27 & 28
Call for Appointment

LIVE SHOW AUDITIONS
CEDAR POINT
Sandusky, OH 44870

For further information contact: 419/627-2388

The Observer

DELIVERY DRIVERS NEEDED

START IMMEDIATELY
3 HOURS ON WEEKDAYS PAID POSITION

CALL MARK AT 239-7471

Men's Hair Styling at its finest 'The Knights of the Castle'

For the total look on a styled Hair Cut :

Hair Cut Shampoo
Blow Dry & Condition
Reg. $15.00
Now $8.50 with coupon

The Queen's Castle

Hair Cut Only Now $6.00 with coupon
Hair must be Shampooed day of cut.

We are only minutes from campus

COUPON

Hrs. Tue, Wed, Sat 8:30-5:30
Thur, Fri 8:30-8:30
Closed Mon

272-0312
277-1619

54533 Terrace Lane
(St. Rd. 23)
Across from Martin's

New ACS report

Lung cancer to continue rise

NEW YORK (AP) — While death rates for most major cancers level off or decline, lung cancer is running "spectacularly counter to trend" and will kill 117,000 Americans this year, 6,000 more than last year, the American Cancer Society reported yesterday.

In its projections for 1983, the society said lung cancer's "relentless rise" would produce an estimated 135,000 new cases.

Cigarette smoking causes more than 75 percent of all lung cancer deaths, the report said, 83 percent among men and 43 percent among women. While the society noted the number of smokers is declining, it said government statistics show smokers are smoking more heavily.

Only 9 percent of all lung cancer patients live five years or more after the disease is discovered and diagnosed, the society said.

The society said only 14 of the 37 forms of cancer for which it makes annual forecasts are expected to result in more deaths this year than last.

The only other cancers with significant increases in the number of expected deaths are cancer of the large intestine, expected to rise by 1,000 deaths to 49,600, and prostate cancer, expected to rise by 800 deaths to 23,300.

Projected death rate increases for other cancers ranged from "small to negligible," according to a fact sheet accompanying the society's updated reference booklet "Cancer Facts and Figures."

Breast cancer, the leading cause of cancer death in women, was expected to result in 37,500 deaths in 1983, 200 more than in 1982.

For two forms of cancer — non-Hodgkin's lymphoma and invasive cancer of the cervix — the society anticipated fewer deaths than in 1982. For 21 other types, the projections remained the same as for 1982.

Information used to compile the latest booklet comes from the National Cancer Institute's gathering data program called SEER, standing for Surveillance, Epidemiology and End Results.

The society estimated that 855,000 Americans would learn this year that they have cancer, not counting 400,000 cases of superficial skin cancer which are "easy to detect and treat," the report said.

About 440,000 people will die of cancer, 9,000 more than last year.

But unlike the 1960s and '70s, when only one in every three survived five years or more after diagnosis, the society reported that the prospect now is that three patients in every eight will survive five years or more. An estimated 320,000 of this year's cancer patients are expected to survive that long, the report said.

Progress has been made in curing 14 cancers that a few decades ago had poor prognoses. "Today they are being cured in many cases, predominantly because of chemotherapy advances," the report said.

An "outstanding example of progress" is shown in Hodgkin's disease, a lymph gland cancer predominant in children, the society said.

Better use of new and improved X-ray therapy plus a combination of four cancer drugs "has resulted in remarkably improved survival," the booklet said.

Junior Brian Burt samples some of the many delights that were available at last night's Fondue Night in the Dining Halls. (Photo by Melinda Hopkins)

Treatment for hemophilia linked to new disease

BOSTON (AP) — Doctors should consider eliminating the most common and convenient treatment for the bleeding disease hemophilia because two new studies link it with a mysterious breakdown of the body's ability to fight illness, researchers say.

Because their blood does not clot properly, people with hemophilia risk prolonged internal bleeding, which can occur spontaneously or after an accident. Most of them take doses of a freeze-dried blood protein their bodies lack, a substance called Factor VIII.

However, studies published today show that some people who use this form of Factor VIII have an imbalance in their immune systems. It is similar to that seen in victims of acquired immune deficiency syndrome, or AIDS, a deadly, recently discovered disorder concentrated primarily among homosexual men.

AIDS causes an apparently irreversible breakdown of the body's ability to fight disease. This allows the development of strange illnesses, such as rare forms of cancer and pneumonia.

The studies said the link, if confirmed by more studies, may provide a dilemma for the nation's 15,000 hemophiliacs. A form of Factor VIII seems safe, but must be kept frozen in special refrigerators.

So far, eight cases of AIDS have been confirmed among hemophiliacs, and five of the victims have died. The national Centers for Disease Control say several other possible cases are being investigated.

The studies were published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Prisoner slashes arms, starts fire in jail cell

ROCHESTER, Ind. (AP) — An inmate cut his arms with a disposable razor blade and then started a fire in his Fulton County Jail cell yesterday, authorities report.

William E. Ritchie, 33, of Akron, Ind., was treated at the scene for smoke inhalation and cuts after the 8 a.m. incident, said Sheriff Rich McLochlin.

Jailer Paul Atchley was serving breakfast yesterday when he found Ritchie in the smoke-filled cell with his face to a hole in the steel wall.

Atchley chopped open the cell door lock, which Ritchie had plugged, to get into the cell, police said.

Police and firefighters said they did not believe Ritchie was trying to commit suicide. They said Ritchie had plugged several ventilation holes in the cell but had moved his personal belongings to a safe place in the cell block prior to the fire.

Ritchie has been in jail since his Aug. 23 arrest on charges of attempted rape, battery, burglary and criminal trespass, McLochlin said.

Ritchie is the second inmate to injure himself at the Fulton County Jail this week. Early Tuesday morning, Richard C. Rutledge, 21, of Rural Rochester, jabbed himself with a radio antenna.

Can't sleep at night?
Make $$ instead!

The Observer

needs layout people. No experience necessary. Late night job. Paid position if you're responsible. Leave your name and phone number at The Observer office on 3rd floor LaFortune.

US-USSR

UN offers facilities for summit

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United Nations would be happy to provide the necessary "shelter" for a U.S.-Soviet summit, Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said on the eve of his meeting with President Reagan today.

Perez de Cuellar said yesterday that he "would be quite ready to offer facilities" if Reagan raised the question of a summit during their White House session.

The secretary-general told The Associated Press in an interview Wednesday that the United Nations also would be "the ideal forum" for broadened Arab-Israeli talks, with his staff possibly acting as a catalyst to blend various peace plans already on the table.

Perez de Cuellar said he planned to discuss with Reagan or with Secretary of State George P. Shultz his proposal for a meeting of the 15-nation Security Council "at the highest possible level" to, among other things, give impetus to the grounds, well impetus to the development of public support for disarmament.

The U.N. chief said an introductory meeting between Reagan and Soviet Communist Party leader Yuri V. Andropov "would help at least to create a better atmosphere for the solution of so many international problems." He cited the Middle East, Afghanistan, Southeast Asia, South-West Africa and Cyprus as being among the most pressing.

Referring to his proposal for a high-level Security Council meeting, Perez de Cuellar spoke of "the necessity of achieving some improvement in the international atmosphere which would prepared the ground for further discussions on the main international problems."

Both Reagan and Andropov have raised the possibility of a summit meeting, provided it is well prepared.

Balloon Bouquets

FOR ALL OCCASSIONS

THE BLUE JAY'S NEST
UNIVERSITY CENTER, MISH.
271-6716

What's a Lackawana?

The most famous thing to be associated with Lackawana is Philadelphia quarterback Ron Jaworski. If you take a look at the way the Eagles played this season, though, he really isn't all that memorable. Another thing that one might equate with Lackawana are certain manhole covers that one might discover on this campus. The manhole covers are going to be collector's items soon because no more of them will be produced in Lackawana.

Randy Fahs

Friday Analysis

Lackawana was the home of a major Bethlehem Steel plant for over seventy years. On December 27, 1982, the corporate heads of the faltering steel company gave more than 7,000 workers the worst Christmas present that they could have dreamed of: the news of the plant's closing. The repercussions of the closing will mean the loss of an additional 5,000 jobs in industries which depend on Bethlehem Steel. Lackawana is more than the industrial community at the southern end of Buffalo, New York; it is an example of what is happening in hundreds of cities across the United States. Its scenario is one that finds a municipality and its residents hard pressed because of the closing of a major manufacturing facility.

Bethlehem Steel occupied most of the city of Lackawana's choicest waterfront lands and it paid $6 million in property taxes, almost half of the city's yearly operating budget. The plant was the city's industrial mainstay and it employed 20,000 people at its peak during the 1960s. Soon, all that will remain of the once thriving industry will be cold blast furnaces and the empty shell of a massive industrial complex. It will be a deserted and broken down memorial to a golden age passed.

Lackawana is similar to many other towns in that the loss of its steel plant is being blamed on high taxes, high labor costs, and cheaper prices of foreign imports. The fingers are being pointed in many directions by the corporate heads of Bethlehem Steel, but if they want to find the true scapegoat, all they have to do is look in the mirror.

Government is being blamed because of high taxes. It is true that $6 million in property taxes (and similar sums in other cities with major plants) does seem to be a large sum of money to pay out in one year. But when you consider the fact that Bethlehem lost more than $400 million in the last quarter alone, the property taxes are simply a drop in the bucket.

Labor unions are being blamed for high labor costs. The average steel worker does make a pretty fair wage. This wage is higher than the steel workers in other nations, but in recent years foreign wages have crept steadily upward. The difference is not enough to account for the fact that they can make steel abroad and ship it across the ocean at a lower price than that of domestic producers.

The effect of foreign competition is being cited as the main cause of the decline of domestic steel production (as well as the decline of many other American-based industries). Many foreign companies receive subsidies and other aids directly from their governments, but U.S. companies fail to mention their own tax and business incentives from the government.

The main difference between foreign and domestic steel manufacturers is production efficiency. West Germany and Japan are the leaders in this area. American steelmakers are quick to point out that we built their plants after World War II so they are newer and more efficient than ours. They are newer and more efficient than domestic plants, but if these two nations were making steel with these original factories, they would still be using machines and methods which are well over thirty years old. The fact is that they are right up to date because of the continued reinvestment of corporate profits to maximize production efficiency.

American steel plants, like Bethlehem in Lackawana, are using machines and methods, for the most part, which are about fifty years old. Indeed, parts of Bethlehem's Lackawana facility are nearly seventy years old. This state of affairs exists because the corporate heads bled off the profits from their plants for the better part of this century. The stockholders and the managers profited while we all paid the bill because many of these profits were taxed at a lower rate to encourage reinvestment. This never occurred and that is why American steelmakers made money for years and suddenly found themselves with plants so far out of date that they lost billions of dollars and a large share of the marketplace.

This whole explanation brings me back to my original question: What's a Lackawana? A Lackawana is a victim of many years of corporate greed and conscienceless business practices. Profits were maximized in the long run, but now the whole thing has come to a grinding halt. Don't worry about the corporate heads. They've made lots of money and they'll go into other managerial positions elsewhere. The problem is what to do with the unemployed steelworkers in Lackawana and other cities across the nation. Maybe we should ask how we can help a Lackawana and prevent a repeat of its plight in the future?

1983: TV news boom

There can be no doubt any longer. 1983 will be "The Year of the News." Everywhere television viewers tune in the new year, they will be treated to more news.

The news will be flashy, it will be in-depth, it will be on early and stay on late. The news will be everywhere from the networks to cable to (gasp!) ESPN.

Skip Desjardin

On the Media

The Entertainment and Sports Programming Network just announced that they will soon unveil a 90-minute business news program that will air twice every week-day morning.

Economist William Wolman, a former deputy editor at Business Week, will join editors from Forbes and Newsweek in bringing early-risers a show called "Business Times." ESPN executives say the new programming will generate higher advertising revenue for the network, which has lost money every year since its inception.

"Although we're losing money, I fully expect us to break even in 1984," says ESPN's senior vice-president, Roger Werner. "We're certain this will generate additional advertising revenue."

So much for "the total sports network." At both CBS and NBC, there are plans for new "news magazine" programs. After dismal failures with shows like "Weekend," "Prime Time Saturday/Sunday," and "NBC Magazine," the network will try again. This time, Lloyd Dobyns will get the assignment, with a program tentatively called "Monitor."

It was no surprise when NBC officials said they'd stick with the new show even if it got terrible ratings — we've all heard that before. But it did come as somewhat of a shock when Dobyns complained rather loudly that his show would not go head-to-head with powerful "60 Minutes." It will be aired on Saturday nights instead.

Dobyns was the driving force behind the success of "NBC News Overnight." He is a talented writer whose stint with "Weekend" convinced the network that he can succeed where Tom Snyder, David Brinkley, and Jack Perkins have already failed. I think they're right this time. If track record is any indication, "Monitor" will be, at the very least, refreshing.

Over at CBS, officials have apparently decided what to do with some of their spare talent. Bill Moyers and Charles Kuralt will team up in a prime-time show of their own. Actually, there will be two shows, shown back-to-back. Moyers will reportedly resurrect his popular "Journal," which won high praise at PBS, and Kuralt will expand his "On the Road" segments.

And there was word out of New York that another local boy has made good. We all know that sports announcers like NBC's Don Criqui and CBS's Tim Ryan got their start at our own WSND. The stations most famous alumnus is unquestionably Phil Donahue. But add another name to the list. NBC News' Boston-based correspondent, and a former WSND station manager, Lee McCarthy, has been promoted to national correspondent. He'll be, in the words of a network press release, covering "news developments throughout the United States."

So welcome to 1983, the year in which the news gets bigger and, hopefully, better.

P.O. Box Q

University Village tenant challenges notice

Dear Editor:

The following is an excerpt from a December 13 notice posted by Mr. and Mrs. John Burke, University Village managers. I feel compelled to voice my opinion against these mandates which Father Heppen would impose on the Villagers.

1. Several complaints have been made to the administrative offices of the University about the uncleanliness of the hallways in our buildings.

2. It is the responsibility of the tenants, not our maintenance team, to keep the halls looking neat.

3. We thank you for your cooperation in keeping the halls cleared and now ask that each of you try to make a regular habit of cleaning the hall outside your own door, at the very least, and make arrangements with your neighbors to alternate looking after the entire corridor and stairwell.

4. If there has been little or no improvement in the appearance of the halls by mid-January, we may have to assign tenants to hall-cleaning duties on an alternate basis. Please help us avoid taking such action!

5. Mitch and Bob have been told by Father Heppen as well as their own bosses in Building Services not to clean the halls unless there is absolutely nothing else for them to do at any given time, and as most of you know, they have quite enough to fill their schedules now making repairs, improving the appearance of the grounds and soon they'll be plowing snow.

6. The heat is now on in the corridors. Therefore, we ask you to keep all newspapers, Penny Savers, etc., away from large heating units just inside the front doors under the bulletin boards and to keep the back doors closed at all times.

N.B., the University does not provide janitorial services for the University Villages because they are trying to keep the rent affordable. If it becomes necessary to hire someone to clean the halls, a substantial rent increase will most likely follow. This word of caution comes to us via Fr. Heppen.

It is only with this most recent posting that hall maintenance is placed in the hands of the tenants. In past information booklets on the University Village, it was stated that the University cleaned the corridors and that the tenants kept them "clear" in accordance with fire regulations and for ease of cleaning by the maintenance crew. Their notice makes it seem as if we contracted to clean hallways — as if this policy has always been in effect. It has not. We did not sign a lease agreement upon occupancy stating any of these terms.

I realize that the Village maintenance crew is very busy. But why then make a putting green and prepare surrounding barren land for a soccer field if the Village proper cannot be maintained as it was originally planned. The above are strictly luxuries in comparison to maintenance of the corridors.

Rules should never be promulgated if they cannot be enforced. When I was manager, I observed that many Villagers did not maintain their living quarters. Do you really expect them to keep the halls cleaned when there is a constant battle to keep them clear? Most tenants will refuse to clean the halls. I, for one, will clean and scrub my area, as I have for the past two years, but I will not maintain common areas and regularly clean other's messes with no compensation. (And low rent is no compensation)

Father Heppen can threaten; a low tactic. The University's only concern is rental income, not the tenants themselves. Why is the Village falling apart? In the past five years, nominal funds have been put into this place. Father Heppen expects the Villagers to maintain the halls. As our stairs crumble and no replacements are provided, he expects us to clean them? Forget it! Last year he candidly suggested carpeting the halls — painting them even! It seems his priorities have changed. I guess they need the money to pay for athletic buses pounded by unruly students.

I am angry because of the notice. I think it very imprudent. I could write more, but it wouldn't matter. And I don't want to waste my time. I feel sorry for the Burkes because they must face the repercussions. I thank God that I am no longer Village Manager.

M. Natalie Halpin
former Village Manager

The Observer

Box Q, Notre Dame, IN 46556

The Observer is the independent newspaper published by the students of the University of Notre Dame du Lac and Saint Mary's College. It does not necessarily reflect the policies of the administration of either institution. The news is reported as accurately and as objectively as possible. Unsigned editorials represent the opinion of a majority of the Editorial Board. Commentaries, letters, and the Inside Column depict the views of their authors. Column space is available to all members of the community, and the free expression of varying opinions on campus, through letters, is encouraged.

(219) 239-5303

Editorial Board

Editor-in-Chief.....Michael Monk
Managing Editor.....Ryan Ver Berkmoes
Executive News Editor.....David Dzedzic
SMC Executive Editor.....Margaret Fosmoe
Sports Editor.....Chris Needles
Editorials Editor.....Paul McGinn
Features Editor.....Joseph Musumeci
Photo Editor.....Rachel Blount

Department Managers

Business Manager.....Tony Aiello
Controller.....Eric Schulz
Advertising Manager.....Chris Owen
Production Manager.....Maura Murphy
Circulation Manager.....Mark Miotto Systems Manager.....Bruce Oakley

Founded November 3, 1966

A one-shot deal

She had telephoned, asking to meet me, and I had no way of telling if she was disappointed. She had liked something I had written that made me, even as a stranger, seem very real to her, she said. Now we were having lunch at McBell's on Sixth Avenue. With the difference in our ages, I could easily have been her father. All the men she talked about in a loving way sounded like father figures. I was willing to talk to her like a father, if that was what she wanted. I could tease her as a father teases; I could flirt as a father flirts with his daughter. The wisest way of playing the father was to act like a fifty-seven year old being his age. Otherwise, I could appear to be auditioning for the role of silver-haired daddy. She wouldn't find much real about me as the silver-haired daddy-o.

Rev. Robert Griffin

letters to a lonely god

"Hungry for some lunch, I hope?" On the phone she had told me she was often depressed. I wondered if it affected her appetite.

"Oh, yes," she answered quickly. Her face looked older, and her hair had more gray than I would have expected in a thirty-one year old woman. The face confirmed the story that her life was full of pain.

After ordering cheeseburgers, neither of us spoke for an awkward moment or two. I felt that she was waiting for me to fulfill some expectation of hers.

"You're a teacher?" I said.

She nodded. "I teach kindergarten in a private school."

"You have a seven year old son?"

She nodded again. "His name is Peter," she said.

Her husband, who had left her, was three years younger. She still hadn't gotten over his decision to leave. She didn't understand the separation, the divorce, his re-marriage.

"You mentioned that you keep losing people?"

"My friends keep dying," she said in hurt tones. She named six people close to her who had died in recent months by accidents or suicide. "It's really spooky the way my friends leave me. I feel guilty, as though I were the cause, though I can't see how I'm to blame. I'm afraid to get close to people."

"You mentioned being afraid of your own death wish," I said.

She had been trying to die since she was nine, she said. She told me about the times and the ways. "The dead are better off than the living. It's better to be with God in heaven."

"I would be afraid of God's anger," I replied.

We talked about God's forgiveness, with her using simplistic logic to convince me God wouldn't mind her death. "We're not allowed to give life back," I said. "I would dread seeing the disappointment in His eyes. I can't imagine it, but I'd be afraid to find out."

She accepted my opinion as though I had won an argument. Maybe she's tired of shocking me, I thought. "You told me you have a counsellor, who is close to you," I said. "Do you see him often?"

She described David, a middle-aged Lutheran pastor, who, with his wife, had befriended her. David sounded like another father-figure, patient and generous with his time.

"David and Irene would like to meet you," she said. "Could you come to supper? They would like to invite you to supper."

It sounded to me like her own idea. "If they invite me, I'll try to come."

"I'm inviting you now," she said. "I know them well enough. My friends are dying to meet you."

"You should talk with them about a night," I said. "I would enjoy meeting David and Irene."

Our two hour talk was full of death. Her grandfather, who had left her a millionaire, killed himself with a shotgun. A man with whom she was planning a second marriage had died in a plane crash. She had been responsible as a child for her young cousin's death in an explosion.

"What happens now?" I wondered, as I paid the check. Being real meant being as faithful to her as David. Being real meant always having time to help, any day or night. It meant accepting her as an immediate dependent. Disappointing her would always be a risk. Her needs could be far greater than the strength I had to offer.

It was too soon to offer her the support of my friendship. She was still a stranger. I wasn't sure what part she wanted me to play in the soap opera she had described as her life. For now, I had to treat her as the survivor of a hundred tragedies, protecting her from the malignant starts that had shone on her birth. It was possible she was playing games with me, whether she knew it or not.

"I'll call you about supper at David's house," she said, as I hugged her goodbye at the subway. She hugged me back as though I still seemed real to her. Her face looked full of pleasure as though I had not disappointed her as father-figure or friend.

The next day she phoned. "Supper doesn't seem possible. My friends and I will come to see you on Friday. We'll let you know the time."

They never came. I'm still waiting to hear from her.

The other shoe is waiting to be dropped in this little drama. I keep listening for it to fall. I liked her very much. Maybe, feeling some reservations on my part, she didn't like me. Perhaps she knew, as I knew, I could never be another David. I should be relieved not to get involved in dark events happening to a troubled young woman, but I'd like to know I didn't hurt her. Not knowing hurts my self-image as a figure who likes to play father. How much of a father can you be in a one-shot deal? People, if they get you involved in their problems, owe you a better chance than a one-shot deal.

The VERDICT's in

The most refreshing thing about Sidney Lumet's The Verdict is the conscious aim of the production to make its hero, Frank Galvin, a man, not the two-dimensional superhero that seems to be wowing audiences lately. The film tells the story of a tragically reduced lawyer who has turned to frequenting funeral parlours in order to drum up business for himself. A retired lawyer pal

Dennis Chalifour

movie review

throws a sure-fire case his way in which a woman entering the hospital for a routine delivery falls into a coma, becoming a human vegetable. The result is a search for justice within the justice system, a system which seems to reward only the unethical and destroy those in the right.

One might think that this whole "what's wrong with the system" angle has already been done to death. In a way this is a correct assumption. The plotline is quite familiar and from square one the audience is able to do some guessing on how everything will work out. This film, however, succeeds in a frame outside of the narrative frenzy. Lumet and star, Paul Newman, are characterizing justice in this movie by bringing the theme down from the mountain and presenting the whole thing through the fresh eyes of a common man looking for a break.

Much of the satisfaction stems from the competent hands of director Sidney Lumet. Bouncing back from the dreadfully flawed depths of last season's Deathtrap, Lumet has returned to the pace we are most familiar with. The Verdict becomes the perfect centerpiece for the common-man theme through Newman's characterization of Frank Galvin. Working with noted cinematographer, Andrzej Bartkowiak, Lumet shrouds the fallen Galvin in the shadows which attempt to imprison him in his doom. The lofty baroque architecture that has become associated with courthouses also becomes a representation of a justice system gone awry. Form has entrapped the entire profession.

When it comes to this particular struggle, it is the handiwork of Paul Newman which shines forth (in a strangely ironic, unassuming way) to make this movie a definite must-see. Newman will knock your eyes out with just the fine-honed continuity he brings to the character.

The themes necessitate that Galvin be an extremely tough character for any actor to portray. He is only average in legal expertise and in terms of personal ethics, he is as flawed as any other man. Needless to say, he's no Butch Cassidy. He's a hodgepodge of all the human qualities and flaws that make up the folks who have taken up the legal (and medical) profession.

The only problem I had with the film was screenwriter David Mamet's refusal to give the Galvin character one moment of courtroom glory. I kept waiting for the big summation on the need for justice to be taken out of the baroque professionalism of the legal system and placed back into the hands of the commonfolks. Mamet hints at a desire to put this speech in his character's mouth but such attempts end up only as five or six line arguments that emerge from Galvin's lips whenever his blood runs high. Even the common man should be given a moment of glory.

One last note to anyone who has an inkling of and an appreciation for the art of motion picture acting — don't miss Newman's performance. It could easily be the best of his career and hopefully, a sign of the maturing performer we may well see get better and better.

What's happening...

One more theology to go... Okay, theology, page 22... Here it is. Right after sociology... I need a two- or three-hundred level course. And... they're all closed. Rats... Theology departmental office, 56/349... What's a 56?... Oh, O'Shaughnessy... What am I going to do if I can't get a class? It's my only university requirement left. I might not graduate! Oh, no!!!

The cries of a registering senior domer during the first week of spring '83 semester.

The time has come for 8 1/2 by 11 inch computer sheets to proliferate and find meaning in the little midwestern bastion of academia known as the University of Notre Dame and its better half, with half-size add-drop forms, Saint Mary's College. Officially, registration was Tuesday, January 11, 1983. Unofficially, today is "Should I keep Pre-Columbian Art or should I drop it for Conversational Arabic?" day. Of course, add and drop period goes on until... Oh, I have to drop Microbiology before a certain day if I want to add something in its place.

Funny. I didn't know that.

More worries.

Medical journals have devoted much research and print to the study of anxiety, tension, and stress. They recommend that various methods of relief be investigated and a few selected according to the individual's schedule, physical condition, and financial situation. If I'm worried, and that is definitely a form of anxiety, tension, and stress, then I better follow the doctors' orders.

That's what weekends are for.

And here to make its 1983 debut is Weekend. Strict attention should be paid to the more creative ideas listed.

•THEATRE

Okay, all of you closet thespians. Now is your chance to make your dreams come true. The Student Players will be having auditions tomorrow and Sunday at 2 p.m. in Washington Hall for Man of La Mancha. Take a chance and see your "impossible dream" come to life.

•ART

Prints from Poland and a variety of artworks from 26 other countries make up the international art exhibit on display in the Goshen College Art Gallery now through Jan. 23. Nine prints produced by Andrzej Pietsch, dean of the department of graphics at the Academy of Fine Arts, Krakow, Poland, and his students come from a larger collection brought together while professor of art Abner Hershberger was in Poland in the spring of 1981. Other pieces in the display will be textiles, jewelry, pottery, masks, watercolors, oil paintings, and wood sculpture from Africa Central America, Asia, the Middle East, Caribbean countries, and Eastern Europe. The gallery is located in the basement of the Good Library. Hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday; 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday; and until 10 p.m. on Tuesday. A public reception will be held in the gallery Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m.

•MUSIC

Reverend Charles Corso will be giving a voice recital in the Annenberg Auditorium Sunday at 2 p.m. Corso, a baritone, is pursuing his Masters in Music, Performance at Indiana University at Bloomington. He presently teaches in the Program of Liberal Studies at Notre Dame.

•CHAUATAUQUA

Chautauqua, or the LaFortune Ballroom as so many of us remember it, will be busy tonight and tomorrow night. Tonight, Howard, Alumni, Pangborn, Badin, Fisher, Lyons and Lemans (pant, pant!) halls are sponsoring a "Last Chance to Dance" mixer, complete with D.J. and refreshments. Admission is the usual one dollar, and for that price, anyone can afford to "trip the light fantastic." Tomorrow night, the Ballroom will bounce to the sounds of the jazz/fusion band Juggular. This performance should give new meaning to the phrase "follow the bouncing ball," for the band includes a real honest-to-goodness juggler. Admission is one dollar.

•MISCELLANEOUS

If you quickly glance around the campus, you will discover that all of the brick, paint and various wall decor is still visible. This, of course, means that there aren't any posters, which in turn means that not too much is going on. Times like these dictate that one use one's ingenuity. On a pint-sized campus like this, that can be difficult. I have put together a short list of activities (some more creative than others) from which the desperate or not so desperate weekender can choose.

Since it opened, I am sure everyone has been saying to themselves that I'll go when I have a chance. Well, the Snite Museum of Art is still glued to the side of our beloved O'Shag and doesn't appear to be going anywhere. The beginning of the semester looks like the perfect occasion to view the various permanent and traveling exhibits. Because Mother Nature has decided to postpone winter, the sculpture garden is approachable. (No avalanches to avoid.)

As we all know, the Fieldhouse will be torn down in a matter of weeks. This yellow brick building has seen much of Notre Dame athletic history made. For the past few years, it has been the home of perhaps much of the future of artistic history at Notre Dame. Before it becomes victim to the wrecking ball, wander through the studios and the Isis Gallery. It may be your last chance.

By The Observer and The Associated Press

The Notre Dame Boxing Club would like to announce that practice for the 1983 Bengal Bouts has started. Practice is from 3:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Anyone who is interested is welcome. No prior experience is required. — The Observer

The Saint Mary's intramural hoops league starts on January 31. Team rosters and an entry fee of $1 are due by 5 p.m. on Monday, January 17. The league is open to all Saint Mary's students, staff, faculty, and administrators. — The Observer

All students are invited to participate in an eight-week Winter Agility and Quickness Program starting this Monday. This rigorous workout will include quickness and agility drills, along with stretching exercises. Workouts will be held on Mondays, Thursdays, and Fridays from 4-6 during the eight-week session. If you plan on participating, please attend the first workout, Monday, January 17 at 3:45 in the ACC Pit. — The Observer

The NVA office has announced deadlines for entries for some spring semester sports. January 19 is the deadline for both men's and women's volleyball. The deadline for doubles racquetball and doubles handball is January 20. The office also made some more announcements. There will be a tennis clinic on January 16, 18, and 20 at 8:30-10:30 p.m. featuring Scott Ford. For more information call 239-6100. Cross-country ski rentals are available again this year. Call 239-6100 for more details. Finally, aerobic exercises will be held on Mondays and Wednesdays at 4:10 in the ACC beginning on January 17. — The Observer

The Irish fencers will wind up their Eastern trip this weekend as they face Penn State in University Park, Pa. this afternoon and travel to Philadelphia to battle Penn and Rutgers at The Palestra. — The Observer

Saint Mary's swimmers shuttle to the Rock tomorrow to swim against the Irish women. The meet kicks off the second semester for both the ND and SMC squads, coached by Dennis Stark and Scott Trees, respectively. — The Observer

Notre Dame's track team will be in action in West Lafayette, Ind. and Chicago at the Purdue Invitational and the Chicago Goodwill Games as the Irish athletes begin their indoor season. — The Observer

Mary Decker Tabb, the best woman's distance runner in American history, was named winner of The Associated Press' Female Athlete of the Year Award for 1982 yesterday.

The 24-year-old Tabb, the first woman track and field athlete to win the honor since Chi Cheng in 1970, received 29 votes in the annual balloting by sports writers and broadcasters.

Tennis player Martina Navratilova finished second with 21 votes and golfer JoAnne Carner was third with 9. The 1981 winner, tennis player Tracy Austin, failed to receive a vote this time.

NFL fix

NEW YORK (AP) — A public television documentary quotes a gambler as saying that he was involved in fixing a dozen National Football League games between 1968 and 1970 in which gamblers paid off a coach, a quarterback and the defensive captain of at least one unidentified team.

The documentary also suggests that Carroll Rosenbloom, owner of the Los Angeles Rams, who drowned in 1979, was murdered. Screened here Thursday for the press, it will be shown next Monday as the opening offering in PBS' "Frontline" series.

Neither the players, the coach, nor the team or teams involved in the alleged fixes are named. And the producers said they had paid an undisclosed sum to the family of John Piazza, the imprisoned gambler who made the allegations.

NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle is shown in the film responding to specific allegations in other areas, although he is not questioned about Piazza's charges. Mike Kirk, senior producer on the show, said Rozelle told moderator Jessica Savitch off the air that he had never heard of Piazza.

Don Weiss, the league's executive director, said yesterday that the league would have no further response until officials had an opportunity to see the film.

The gambler, interviewed in prison, said he was involved in fixing four NFL games each season in 1968, 1969 and 1970. He said the players involved were paid a flat fee of $300,000 plus 10 percent of what the gamblers made on the fixed game. He said the biggest payoff was $800,000 and said he actually saw players present when money changed hands.

... Hoops

continued from page 16

24 turnovers and 23 fouls. There were also many missed shots inside. A good effort could have made the game even more lopsided than it was.

"Poor decision-making" is the reason that DiStanislao gave for the lackluster play.

"When a person you're guarding gets the ball," she explained, "you have to make a split-second decision. It should be to attack the ball. But we were hanging back and allowing a much slower person to go past us."

"Offensively, poor choices were made. They were throwing into passing lanes that weren't open and passing into crowds."

"I think that the team underrated Augustana. They knew how to score and they were mostly juniors and seniors. I'd rather play a bad Division I team than a good Division III team (like Augustana). They know how to win."

DiStanislao had been concerned that Augustana might take advantage of her team's habit of getting off to a slow start, so she made some changes in the usual starting lineup in hopes that the team would come out gunning. She started freshman Lynn Ebben at guard for the first time and gave Keys and Bates their second starts at forward.

The strategy seemed to work as Notre Dame moved out to a 37-13 lead late in the first half and went into the locker room with a 43-27 lead. Ebben was especially effective, scoring 10 points and pulling down five rebounds in the half. DiStanislao was cautious, however, about saying whether she would keep the new lineup for the next game against Alabama.

"The jury's out until we see the game films," she said.

The Irish raise their sights a couple of notches Sunday when they face the Crimson Tide in an afternoon game at the ACC. The contest, set for 2, is the first of three Notre Dame women's games to be included in the men's season ticket package offered to the general public. The others are defending national champion Louisiana Tech (Feb. 11) and Indiana (Mar. 9).

Alabama is 7-6 will begin its Mid-west swing tonight against DePaul.

"They're a very 'new' team," says DiStanislao. "(Alabama coach Ken) Weeks has rebuilt his team with junior college transfers and freshmen." Only two players returned from last year's 17-11 Alabama squad, and Weeks brought in three juco players and four freshmen to give the team an entirely new look.

"They're a group of very good athletes, and he has them doing a great number of things."

Alabama's strength may be Notre Dame's Achilles' Heel — the Tide likes to play the type of fast-break offense and pressure defense game that has given DiStanislao's team trouble so far this season.

"They have been known to resort to a slow-down offense, however," warns DiStanislao, "so we don't really know what to expect from them."

"We're improving consistently in our ability to control the tempo of a ballgame. It'll be important not to let Alabama establish the pace."

One of Weeks' transfers, 5-11 forward Cassandra Crumpton, leads the Crimson Tide offense, scoring 19 points a game. Teaming up with Crumpton at forward is returnee Terri Hilliard. The 5-10 all-Southeastern Conference post player, who led Alabama in eight statistical categories last season, adds 15 points an outing.

"(Hilliard) runs the floor well, as well as any post player I've seen," says Weeks. "Along with Crumpton, they give us a very explosive frontcourt."

Lining up against Schueth will be 6-2 freshman Carol Smith, who has pulled down 10 rebounds a game as well as added 14 points.

Juco transfer Dottie Kelso is the off-guard, and 5-4 senior Lisa Leonard and 5-7 freshman Betty Bryant have split time at the point guard position.

Alabama has been hurt by poor shooting — their percentage from the field is .426 — and Notre Dame may be able to capitalize if it can force the Tide to shoot from outside.

Yesterday's Result

	Notre Dame women 87, Augustana women 66
	M	FG-A	FT-A	R	F	P
Eschoo	26	4-11	1-3	6	4	9
Garrison	30	1-5	3-5	2	1	5
Rogiers	26	3-7	0-0	5	4	6
Crosby	40	6-13	9-12	5	2	21
Tracey	34	6-17	5-5	2	2	17
Smitch	14	1-2	0-1	3	3	2
Nelson	2	1-3	0-0	0	0	2
Wiesbrook	11	0-1	0-0	3	1	0
Matson	17	1-3	2-2	0	1	4
200 23-62 20-27 26 18 66
FG Pct.	- 37.1	FT Pct.	- 74.1	Team
rebounds	- 4	Turnovers	- 10	Assists	- 6
(Garrison 2, Crosby 2). Technicals - None

Notre Dame (87)

	M	FG-A	FT-A	R	F	P
Keys	23	9-14	1-1	8	2	19
Bates	33	11-19	2-4	10	1	24
Scheuth	28	6-12	4-4	15	3	16
Hensley	21	0-3	0-0	0	4	0
Ebben	21	6-9	0-0	5	2	12
Matvey	7	0-2	0-0	0	1	0
Dougherty	18	4-8	2-4	0	1	10
Mullins	9	1-3	1-1	3	0	3
Kaiser	22	1-1	1-2	3	3	3
Basford	12	0-0	0-0	1	3	0
Klauke	6	0-1	0-0	2	2	0
200 38-72 11-16 47 22 87
FG Pct.	- 52.8	FT Pct.	- 68.8	Team
rebounds	- 7	Turnovers	- 24	Assists	- 17
(Kaiser 4, Dougherty 3, Scheuth 3) Technicals - None

Halftime - Notre Dame 43, Augustana 29

Classifieds

The Observer will accept classifieds Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. However, classifieds to appear in the next issue must be received by 3 p.m. the business day prior to insertion. All classifieds must be prepaid, either in person or through the mail.

NOTICES

TYPING: Jackie Boggs, 584-8793

LOST/FOUND

Can I PLEASE have my new black Calvin Klein down jacket back?—I'm freezing!! It was last seen at South Dining Hall last Thurs. (12/9). Please call x2858 if you have any knowledge of its whereabouts.

FOUND: One calculator in the language lab. See Mr. Abilli in Room 250 O'Shag.

FOUND: David Crockett High Ring - Class of 79. Call Matt 1244.

found: small cross in front of ACC on registration day. Call 2748 after 10.

FOR RENT

UGLY DUCKLING RENT-A-CAR, Friday noon til Monday noon $29.95 includes 150 free miles. Sales tax and insurance extra. Phone Rob for reservations 259-3459.

2 Graduate/Law students wanted to share 4-bedroom home with 2 other Law Students. Completely furnished $75/month. 288-3109

Room in 4 1/2 bath home in wooded area. Two miles from Notre Dame. Swimming pool, rec room with fireplace. Safe with plenty of off street parking. Washer and dryer. Call Mrs. Cooper 272-3004 after 12 noon.

Unfurnished 2 br. apt. near ND. Utilities pd, less gas, ph 272-0261

The house that Knute Rockne built needs a tenant. $7.50/mo. ask for Bob, Matt, or Mike at 289-3962.

Furn 4-bdrm. house for 83-84 school yr. Excel cond close to campus. Reasonable rent. Call 291-5687

4 room single, major utilities paid. Newly remodeled $160 mo 288-6721

3 Bdr 2 story, gas heat, & garage 260.00 286-6721

WANTED

HELPII NEED A RIDE TO PA FOR BREAK CAN LEAVE WED AFTER 4:00 CALL MEG 7628

Need nde to MARQUETTE, MILWAUKEE, this weekend for ND bball. Support the team and give my friends and I a ride to this 18 state UOE. x3471

FOR SALE

CASSETTES CASSETTES TDK SA-90 $2.70/each NO LIMIT CALL 289-7640

TICKETS

Help! I need some BBall Tix Help! Not just any Tix Help! need 3 GA's for the Feb 5 So Carolina game. Tom. 288-8004

PERSONALS

URBAN PLUNGERS - URBAN PLUNGE FOLLOW-UP SUNDAY, JANUARY 16 AT 7:15 PM IN LIBRARY AUDITORIUM.

California, what a great place for a vacation!

Ring in the new semester tonight with another blowout at Sodom and Gomorrah, ND's No. 1 party spot. 1406 South Bend Avenue. Be there!

For two hours we kept you waiting. For two hours we kept you waiting. How very sorry we are. We bought a pizza and a 6 of Mick. But lost the keys to the car. We'd like to make it up somehow. How angry you must be. At Corby's we'll watch Mary T. win. And your margaritas will be free. Mark & John seniors for 1983-84 volunteer work with holy cross associates in several ST uid cities. application due february 8th. call mary ann roemer, 7949.

Buy Observer classifieds at the Saint Mary's office, weekdays 12:30 to 3:00

START OFF YOUR WEEKEND RIGHT WITH THE EARLY MORNING SHOW!!! FRIDAY MORNINGS FROM 7AM TO 9AM ON WSNB AM64!!!!!!

ND grad Huffman gets start for Packers

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Green Bay's Tim Huffman, a native of Dallas and a second-year guard out of Notre Dame, spoke with gallows humor as he considered his matchup against Randy White of the Dallas Cowboys.

"At least they won't have to send the remains very far — 15 minutes from the stadium," Huffman said.

Huffman will make the third start of his National Football League career Sunday. His assignment is to contain White, one of the finest defensive tackles in the NFL, in an NFC playoff semifinal game at Arlington, Tex.

"Randy White is stronger, faster, quicker and more experienced, which doesn't look good for me. Does it?" said Huffman, who is to start in place of injured Derrel Gofourth, although Gofourth may be available as a reserve.

Huffman, however, merely was poking fun at himself. He and the rest of the Packers' offensive linemen didn't permit one quarterback sack in Green Bay's 41-16 rout of St. Louis last week.

The 6-foot-5, 265-pound Huffman is confident that the Packers' offensive line will do well again, even though Dallas' defensive line of ends Harvey Martin and "Too Tall" Jones and tackles John Dutton and White is considered one of the best in football. Dutton may not play because of a leg injury.

"I believe inwardly that I can do the job, but we won't know until Sunday," Huffman said.

"I can't afford to get uptight about facing someone of his (White's) caliber," he said. "I'm happy to be involved in a game like this. Win, lose or draw, I'll give it my best shot."

Huffman's biggest weakness is one-on-one pass blocking, but there are ways to help him. The Packers could keep a back or the tight end in to block on pass plays, or have the center help block White. They may have quarterback Lynn Dickey take a shorter drop than usual, and they could try to keep White off-balance with running plays at his side.

"He (Huffman) has a chance to prove he's a football player. That's how people are made," said Ernie McMillan, Green Bay offensive line coach.

"Most teams have to make adjustments when they play those people," he said. "What you want to do is stay out of situations where they are teeing off the ball. You want to move the ball on first down."

Bill Meyers, McMillan's assistant, said Huffman "is a competitor and I think he's looking forward to the opportunity."

"I'm sure Randy White will give him all he can handle," he said. "Tim will at least meet the challenge. He will not back down or go bonkers."

"People enjoy talking about matchups, and one of the reasons they receive so much attention is that we stress here that we have to give Lynn protection. But our offensive line has done an excellent job the last couple of weeks," Head Coach Bart Starr said.

The Packers yesterday listed placekicker Jan Stenerud as probable. Stenerud has been bothered by back spasms the last few weeks.

Tom Sluby appears to be back in top form after facing restricted action early in the season because of tendonitis and a possible stress fracture. Saturday Notre Dame faces Marquette hoping to win its first big game of the year. See Rich O'Connor's story on page 16. (Photo by Paul Cifarelli)

Bullock, Cross lead Purdue over Ohio St.

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Sophomore forward Jim Bullock scored a career-high 18 points and ailing center Russell Cross added 17 last night as Purdue, reeling off 13 straight points against foul-plagued Ohio State in the second half, beat the 20th-ranked Buckeyes 64-57 in a Big Ten Conference basketball game.

The Boilermakers, now 2-1 in the conference and 11-2 for the season, took control when Ohio State's big men got into foul trouble midway through the final period. The Buckeyes, who led by 10 points in the first half, still led by five when 6-10 freshman Keith Wesson picked up his fourth foul.

Steve Reid, who finished with 15 points, then started the Purdue rally with a three-point goal and Bullock hit two free throws to tie the game. Greg Eifert put Purdue ahead to stay, 40-38, with two free throws as Wesson fouled out with 8:47 to go.

Eifert added two more foul shots, Bullock scored on a lob pass from Reid and Reid scored again for a 46-38 Purdue lead.

Ron Stokes scored on a three-point play for Ohio State, but 6-11 Buckeye center Granville Waiters fouled out and Purdue scored six more in a row for a safe 11-point lead with four minutes to go.

Ohio State, falling to 1-1 in the Big Ten and 9-3 overall, came no closer than five points in the closing minutes. The Buckeyes were led by Troy Taylor with 20 points, including four three-point goals.

Purdue's only first-half lead was at 6-4 after two straight baskets by Bullock. Larry Huggins, who had Ohio State's first two baskets from two-point range, then hit a three-pointer to put the Buckeyes back on top 7-6 with 11:30 before halftime.

Tony Campbell then followed with a basket and two free throws, and the Bukeyes outscored Purdue 7-2 over the next two minutes for an 18-8 lead.

Cross, who missed two days of practice earlier in the week because of back spasms and did not start the game, scored nine of Purdue's next 11 points, and Greg Eifert added another basket to pull the Boilermakers within one point with under two minutes left in the half.

Taylor then scored for Ohio State, and a breakaway layup by Joe Concheck in the final seconds gave the Buckeyes a 26-21 lead at the intermission.

... Warriors

continued from page 16

its opponents into making offensive mistakes and running the fast break for the score.

"To beat Marquette we have to continue playing with intensity," says Irish coach Digger Phelps. "We have to take the ball to score against their pressure defense. We can't get involved in a running game with them. If we can control the tempo of the game we can win."

"This game will give us another chance to play a great team on the road in front of a hostile crowd. The last time we were up there Doc Rivers beat us on a bomb at the buzzer — and we know Marquette will be ready to play against us. They always are against Notre Dame. Rivers is a great talent at guard, and Marquette always has great quickness year in and year out.

"They've got experience year with Schlundt, Marotta and Dwayne Johnson up front," Phelps continues. "It's another big test for our younger players. This probably is Marquette's biggest home game of the season, and our freshmen have to realize that and be able to go in there and play with aggressiveness and composure."

Phelps admits that the Irish need to win a big game. So far, Notre Dame is 7-5, but is 0-4 in so-called

"big games."

Tomorrow, the Irish get still another chance to spring a needed upset, one that may help propel them to an NCAA Tournament bid.

Front line scores

Hoosiers outshoot Illini, 69-55

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Indiana's front line may have scored 60 of the Hoosiers' 69 points, but guard Winston Morgan got a lot of the credit from leading scorer Randy Wittman.

"He got me the ball, he got Ted (Kitchel) the ball, and he got Uwe (Blab) the ball," said Wittman, who scored 27 points to lead Indiana to a 69-55 victory over Illinois last night.

Morgan, making his first start of the season, got nine assists as the fourth-ranked Hoosiers boosted their record to 11-1. Wittman said Morgan's play was one of the key to victory.

Another, said Wittman, was Illinois mistakes in the second half.

"We stole the ball, forced them to make turnovers," said Wittman, who got 17 points in the second half. "It was our patience on offense and knocking the ball loose on defense."

Blab got all 13 of his points in the first half, and Kitchel finished the game with 20.

"We made some good moves to the basket in the second half," said Indiana Coach Bobby Knight. "But, our defense still has some cracks in it."

Wittman and Kitchel each got two three-point field goals — Indiana's first of the year. Knight said he did not think the three in the first half had much impact on the game, but the last one — by Kitchel — gave the Hoosiers a 10-point lead midway through the second half.

"I thought that was the biggest three-point basket," said Knight. "When we went from a five-point to a 10-point lead, that probably was the key point of the ballgame."

Illinois Coach Lou Henson said his young team made too many mistakes.

"They forced us into some big turnovers near the end of the first half, but the key to the game was that we had bad shot selection. We have to take better shots."

Not all of Indiana's points came from under the basket, however. The Hoosiers scored four three-point field goals. Wittman made two field goals from beyond the 19-foot perimeter while Kitchel had one in the first half and one in the second half.

The Hoosiers, whose biggest first half lead was six points, broke open the game early in the second half on Wittman's outside shooting. Indiana held a 44-35 lead with 16:54 to go. The Illini fought back to within three points, but Wittman and Kitchel resumed their shooting show, building the Hoosier advantage to double figures for the rest of the game.

Indiana shot 58 per cent from the floor for the game, compared with Illinois' 40 per cent field goal shooting. Wittman was 11 for 17 from the floor and Kitchel was 8 for 14.

EXPONENTIAL, MY DEAR WATSON

If you have at least two years of graduate or undergraduate education ahead, and you keep getting clues that your money is running short, then a two-year Air Force ROTC scholarship may be the solution.

Currently we're seeking young men and women who would like to serve their nation as Air Force Officers. Consequently, if you're majoring in a selected technical/non-technical scientific, nursing, or pre-medical field, or can qualify for pilot, navigator, or missile training, then you may be eligible for a two-year Air Force ROTC scholarship. The scholarship pays your tuition, lab fees, (plus incidental fees), books, and $100 per month tax free. And even if you don't qualify for the two-year scholarship, you still receive the $100 a month while enrolled in the Air Force ROTC two-year program.

What do we ask in return? That you serve America at least four years as an Air Force officer. Your Air Force ROTC counselor has the details and qualification requirements. Check it out. It might even make your education finances seem elementary.

AIR FORCE ROTC
Gateway to a great way of life.

Contact Capt. Gomez, (219) 239-6635, about AFROTC at Notre Dame. 35 years on campus!

YOU'RE WASTING YOUR MONEY BUYING ANYWHERE ELSE!

PRICES GOOD THRU
SATURDAY
JAN 15th

 SPECIAL OFFER * FOR EVERY 500 ML BOTTLE OF FRANGELICO YOU BUY AT 9.99, YOU GET ONE JIM BEAM BOURBON 1.75 LITER FOR 8.99. (LIMITED TIME ONLY)

 HAMM'S or Hammes Light 5.59 CASE South Bend Ave. Store Only 2/12 OZ. 12 CAN PKGS.	OLD MILWAUKEE REGULAR OR LIGHT 5.59 CASE OF 24 CANS 	Coors LIGHT 2.99 6 PACK CANS STROH LIGHT 6.99 CASE 24 CANS Labatt's 10.99 BEER AND ALE 24 12 OZ. BOTTLES
LIQUOR WINE		• South Bend Ave. Store Only
KINGS CELLAR VODKA AND GIN 3.99 YOUR CHOICE 7.99 750 ML 1.75 LITER KAMCHATKA VODKA 1.75 LITER 8.99 CALVERT GIN 1.75 LITER 8.99 GLENFIDDICH SCOTCH 1.75 LITER 10.99 WINDSOR CANADIAN 1.75 LITER 10.99 P.M. DELUXE BLEND 1.75 LITER 9.99 BOODLE'S GIN 750 ML 8.99 CANADIAN CLUB 750 ML 6.99		CHRISTIAN BROTHERS TABLE WINES 1.5 LITER 2.99 CARLO ROSSI <small>BIG</small> DINNER WINES 4 LITER 4.99 <small>—IMPORTED—</small> SORIA VERMOUTH 750 ML 1.99 LA VIELLE FERME 750 ML 3.99 LIEBFRAUMILCH 750 ML 2.99 ZELLER SCHWARTZ KATZ 750 ML 3.99	Special Export 24NR 8.99 Michelob Light 24NR 8.99 Fall City 24 cans 6.49 Lone Star 6.99
CHAMPAGNE		Strohs Grenades 8-7oz bottle reg. 2.29 1.99 case 32-7oz. reg. 8.99 7.59
CODORNIU 750 ML 5.99 REMY PANNIER 750 ML 4.99 CINZANO ASTI SPUMANTE 750 ML 6.99 HENKELL TROCK EXTRA DRY 750 ML 7.99		QUARTS Budweiser 8.99 Miller 8.99 Miller Lite 8.79
Budweiser 29.99 Miller or Lite 29.99		KEGS Budweiser29.99 Miller or Lite.....29.99

WE WILL BEAT ALL ADVERTISED PRICES!
YOU MUST BRING IN THEIR AD

Coaches agree

Many athletes fail new test

(AP) — Two football coaches maintained yesterday that up to a third of today's major college athletes, mostly blacks, could not have met new NCAA standards requiring minimum scores on college entrance exams.

And the testing organizations said no more than half of black high school students who take the exams make the minimum score needed for them to be able to compete in sports their freshman year.

The new regulations, which take effect in 1986, were approved by the NCAA convention in San Diego this week. They require that to be eligible to participate as freshmen, athletes must have a combined score of 700 on verbal and math Scholastic Aptitude Tests of 15 on the American College Testing Examination. A perfect score is 1,600 on the SATs, and 36 on the ACT test.

The rules also require that an incoming student have a C average in a core curriculum that includes three years of English, two of math, two of social sciences and two of natural sciences. Few coaches took exception to that.

But Coach Lou Holtz of Arkansas and Coach Tom Osborne of Nebraska both echoed coaches and administrators at black colleges — that the new requirements are culturally biased and will affect blacks far more than whites.

"I don't think there's a correlation between test scores and success in college. I think it's more important how many get out of college, not how they get in," said Holtz, who said somewhere between a quarter and a third of the athletes in the Southwest Conference would have been ineligible as freshman in the new rules.

"I feel it's discriminatory," said Osborne. He said as many as a third of the athletes in the Big Eight would not have met the standards.

"You might have two individuals with the same basic intelligence. If one had not been in a good school system, had not been in a home where there are books, where a certain kind of vocabulary is in use, that person will not do as well."

Another football coach, Leon Burnett of Purdue, said some of his players wouldn't have been eligible and estimated that a number of other Big Ten schools were in the same boat.

Gary Horton, director of player personnel at the University of Illinois, said that of the 65 to 70 prospective recruits the school is courting "probably several" would have to be scratched from the list under the new guidelines.

"The thing the SAT and the ACT tests won't tell you about is the kids' character. I think we often know better than the people who give the tests how well the kid will perform... and we recruit accordingly," Horton said.

Other college coaches and administrators said the new guidelines would have little effect on their programs.

Prentice Gautt, assistant commissioner and academic advisor to the Big Eight and the first black to play football at the University of Oklahoma, said: "I don't look at it as black-white. I think the chief executive officers of many schools thought something had to be done. And they said the buck stops here."

The Steelers Super Bowl dream ended Sunday, and maintenance crews this week went about the task of replacing the artificial surface to get ready for baseball and the Pirates. (AP Photo)

NCAA delegates set benefit game for Aug.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association approved Wednesday an annual pre-season college football game between two major teams to benefit the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame.

Delegates to the NCAA's annual convention also permitted Division I-A football teams to add a ninth full-time assistant coach, while eliminating two part-time assistants. However, they turned down a proposal to add a third full-time basketball assistant.

The delegates also attempted to cut down on recruiting violations by prohibiting off-campus recruiting by alumni and boosters and they adopted stringent ethical conduct rules which could result in athletes being declared ineligible, plus punitive action against staff members who violate NCAA regulations.

They passed a measure requiring schools to include in coaches' contracts a provision that the coach's employment may be suspended or terminated if he violates NCAA regulations.

The preseason football game, to be known as the Collegiate Kick-Off Classic, will be played at Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J. — this year's date will either be Aug. 27 or Aug. 29 — guarantees each team a minimum of $550,000.

The New Jersey Sports & Exposition Authority, which operates the stadium, has guaranteed $1.625 million a year for at least three years. The money will be divided among the participating teams, the Hall of Fame, the American Football Coaches Association and the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics. The Hall of Fame at Kings Island, Ohio, has a $3.5 million mortgage to pay off.

The game would not count against the NCAA's 11-game regular-season limit — a proposal for a 12-game season was rejected Wednesday — and is strictly voluntary.

Representatives of the National Football Foundation sought to alleviate fears of some postseason bowls by emphasizing that this would not be a bowl game or a national championship game, although such matchups as Penn State and Southern Methodist — the 1-2 teams from 1982 — would not be out of the question.

The teams will be chosen around March 1 and no team would be allowed to play in the game more than once in five years. In addition, over a seven-year period at least seven different conferences and two independents would be offered an appearance. No invited team has to participate.

There also would be no matchup of the previous year's bowl opponents, no pairing of a regular-season game to be played later that year and no match between the Big Ten and Pacific-10 Conferences, whose champions play in the Rose Bowl.

The $1.625 would be guaranteed regardless of any television contract. Participation in the preseason game would not count as a TV appearance.

X-LARGE 17 in Cheese Pizza

$6.79 extra ingredients 85¢

coupon exp 1/23/83

FREE DELIVERY

Polish Prince Pizzeria
18061 South Bend Ave.

272-8030

MEDIUM 14in Cheese Pizza

$4.71 extra ingredients 62¢

coupon exp 1/23/83

THE NROTC COLLEGE PROGRAM.

$2,000 EXPENSE MONEY AND A NAVY OFFICER COMMISSION.

The two-year NROTC College Program offers you two years of expense money that's worth up to $2,000, plus the challenge of becoming a Navy Officer with early responsibilities and decision-making authority. During your last two years in college the Navy pays for uniforms, NROTC textbooks and an allowance of $100 a month for up to 20 months.

NROTC $15,000 SCHOLARSHIPS:

The two-year NROTC Scholarship Program offers you a two-year college scholarship that's worth as much as $15,000 in tuition. During college, the Navy pays tuition, cost of textbooks, instructional fees, and an allowance of $100 a month for up to 20 months during your last two years of college. Upon graduation and completion of requirements, you are commissioned a Navy Officer.

If you have a C+ GPA or better, call us now as scholarship opportunities have never been better. Ask for LCDR Norrbom or LCDR Horstmann at 239-7274 or 239-6442.

NAVY OFFICERS GET RESPONSIBILITY FAST.

Attention Photographers

Observer openings for staff & alternate photographers.

35 mm equipment & good B & W darkroom skills a must.

To apply, contact Rachel Blount at 283-7959 or 239-5343

Irish take Western, N. Central Illinois

By JEFF BLUMB
Sports Writer

With today's Midwest Classic weighing heavily on their minds, the Notre Dame wrestlers beat Western Illinois 31-11 and North Central Illinois 49-3 last night in the ACC pit.

Throughout the night, the Irish wrestlers abstained from fluids in order to make an early morning weigh-in down in Indianapolis.

At one point, Notre Dame coach Brother Joseph Bruno, C.S.C., had to tell his team to focus its attention on the two meets going on and to forget about weight, as the effects of no fluids began to show.

Co-captain Don Heintzelman led the Irish last night with two impressive second round pins. At the time of both pins, Heintzelman held large leads.

Heintzelman remained one of the team's win leaders as he raised his season mark to 15-7.

Senior Mark Fisher in turn lifted his season record to 19-5 by winning with a first round pin and by forfeit at 126.

Sophomore Louis Carnesale won a heart-stopping 8-7 battle against his W.I. opponent in a match that remained undecided until the final seconds. Carnesale moved his season mark up to a lofty 19-8.

Versatile freshman John Krug, replacing injured co-captain John Carnesale at 177, continued to impress all, posting a pair of victories.

Krug, who had been wrestling earlier at 190, whipped his North Central opponent first, 16-4. Continuing to wrestle in his fierce style, Krug shut out his Western foe 7-0.

Now 15-9-1. Krug will continue to hold down the 177 weight class for the Irish until Carnesale returns from a broken bone in his hand in two weeks.

Last season's win leader Phil Baty lifted his season totals to 12-1-1 with narrow 4-2 and 5-3 victories.

Although rather disappointed with his team's start last night, Coach Bruno remained very pleased with his squad's performance in terms of the whole season.

"You have to remember that our team is mostly composed of freshmen and sophomores and that we're wrestling teams made-up of juniors and seniors," said Bruno. "I have to be impressed with the way that our young guys have come along, and at this point in the season would give them a grade of A or A on a scale of A to F."

Over the holidays the Irish gave Bruno plenty of reason to gloat. On January 3 the Notre Dame grapplers rolled over Carthage College 51-0 before beating the University of Chicago handily Jan. 5.

Last Saturday at the Olivet Invitational, a number of Irish wrestlers placed highly. Fisher took first at 126 and Louis Carnesale second at 158. In addition Eric Crown and Phil Baty's took thirds at 118 and 167 respectively.

The Notre Dame wrestlers now face two triangular meets at home before heading out to California the first week of February for a quadrangular and a tournament.

But first, the Irish must now refocus their attention on this weekend's Midwest Classic in Indianapolis.

Former Oriole third baseman Brooks Robinson and former Giant Juan Marichal were elected in- to baseball's Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y. Wednesday. (AP Photo)

CINEMA

monday night film series I

Thirteen important films that span American and world film history. Held in conjunction with COTH 140 (Basics of Film Studies) and COTH 461 (Collage: 20th-Century Art Form) and sponsored by the Department of Communication and Theatre.

All showings at the Annenberg Auditorium, The Smithe Museum of Art, Notre Dame campus at 7:00 p.m. (unless otherwise noted).

Individual Admissions: $2.00 Series Ticket: Any 25 films from three series: $30.00 Any 15 films from three series: $22.00

January 17

Cutter's Way (1981)

Ivar Passer USA color 109 min
Czech-born Ivan Passer directed this revisionist film noir set in deceptively sunny Santa Barbara. Crippled Vietnam vet John Heard and his gigolo friend Jeff Bridges take up the roles of detectives and avengers in a murder case. One of the most passionate and intelligent American films of recent years.

January 24

Citizen Kane (1941)

Orson Welles USA B/W 119 min
The young Orson Welles directed himself and a brilliant cast including Agnes Moorehead and Everett Sloane in the tale of the rise and fall of a newspaper mogul. With music by Bernard Herrmann and cinematography by Greg Toland.

January 31

Criss Cross (1949)

Robert Siodmak USA B/W 87 min
German emigre Robert Siodmak directed this quintessential film noir tale of duplicity and victimization with the young Burt Lancaster ensnared by femme fatale Yvonne De Carlo. With Dan Duryea.

February 7

The Navigator (1924)

Buster Keaton, Donald Crisp, B/W, 62 min
This inventive comedy, directed by Buster Keaton and veteran comic actor Donald Crisp, has Keaton and his girlfriend as upper-class twits cast adrift on a giant ocean liner.

February 14

Enthusiasm (1931)

Dziga Vertov, USSR, B/W, 90 min
Former Russian futurist Dziga Vertov made this, his first sound film, as both a documentary-collage of Soviet industry and delirious demonstration of the formal possibilities of editing and creative use of sound.

February 21

The Crime of M. Lange (1935)

Jean Renoir, France, B/W, 85 min
Jean Renoir was at the peak of his powers in this popular front comedy-allegory set within a single apartment building. Jules Barry plays an unscrupulous publisher and Rene Leveque the dreamy creator of pulp novel hero "Arizona Jim."

February 28

Lancelot of the Lake (1974)

Robert Bresson, France, color, 85 min
Arguably his last great film, director Robert Bresson treats the Arthurian legends and the decline of chivalry in a style at once concrete and metaphysical. "A film to see and see again." — Penelope Gilliat. The New Yorker

March 1

The Red Desert (1964)

Michelangelo Antonioni, Italy, color, 116 min
Michelangelo Antonioni directed Monica Vitti in this visually elegant, near-y, plotless mystery of a disappeared child. In cinemascope.

March 2

Vivre Sa Vie (1962)

Jean Luc Godard, France, B/W, 82 min
In his fourth feature, Jean Luc Godard directed Anna Karina as an enigmatically strong yet victimized prostitute. Godard's most Brechtian film. It had an enormous influence on other filmmakers.

March 28

Innocence Unprotected (1968)

Dusan Makaveyev, Yugoslavia, color, 75 min
Dusan (Montenegro) Makaveyev's witty meditation on nationhood and freedom. The film is a three-ring circus of old newsreels, contemporary material and footage from the first Croatian talkie. Introducing Innocence Unprotected are two recent American collage films, Mongoloid by Bruce Conner (with music by Devo) and Franklin by Frank Morris.

April 4

Shock Corridor (1963)

Samuel Fuller, USA, color & B/W, 101 min
Maverick director Samuel Fuller used Constance Powers and a B movie cast in this consistently frantic and overheated pulp allegory of America in/as an insane asylum. "Fuller is an authentic American primitive whose works have to be seen to be understood." — Andrew Sarris

April 11

The Atomic Cafe (1980)

Jayne Loader, Kevin and Pierce Rafferty, USA, color, 80 min
An hilarious and frightening look at America's Cold War and the cult of the atom. The Atomic Cafe is one of the most entertaining and disturbing documentaries in recent years. Directors Jayne Loader and Kevin and Pierce Rafferty have collected and juxtaposed government and commercial footage into an ironic, mordant and passionate polemic.

April 25

Mean Streets (1973)

Martin Scorsese, USA, color, 112 min
Martin Scorsese's first feature casts Harvey Keitel and Robert De Niro in New York's Little Italy in an explosive mixture of the Mafia, the Church and repressed violence. One of the most important and seminal films of the 1970s.

NOTRE DAME MUSEUM OF
COMMUNICATION
& THEATRE

AT THE

MUSEUM

SMC roller-coaster hoping to reach top

By DAVE IRWIN
Sports Writer

The Saint Mary's basketball team hopes its roller-coaster season is on the upswing as the Belles will play three games in the next five days before hosting a four-team tourney next weekend.

The Belles haven't played since dropping a 63-61 decision to Michigan-Dearborn on December 13 to snap a two-game winning streak. The Christmas lay-off is Head Coach Mike Rouse's biggest worry.

"They've been playing all along and not coming off a break. That's the only thing I am worried about," says Rouse of Southwestern Michigan College, the Belles' opponent tonight at the Angela Athletic Facility. Tip-off is scheduled for 7.

The Belles will travel tomorrow to Lake Forest College in suburban Chicago and head for Manchester College on Tuesday.

"Winning one or two of those games would be a good way to get back into the swing of things," says Rouse.

The Belles will have to do it without the services of Missy Van Ort, Saint Mary's leading rebounder and No. 2 scorer. Rouse hopes that Van Ort will be ready for Tuesday night's contest. Betsy Ebert will start in Van Ort's place.

"It hurts our depth," explains Rouse. "We'll rotate Chip (Ayotte), Trish (Nolan) and Betsy (Ebert) and we should be alright."

"We've really been working on our break. But you need rebounding. It really hurts without Missy being in there."

Ayotte has been slowed by a reoccurring knee injury and that hasn't helped the SMC depth picture.

"Never knowing her situation puts a strain on our depth," says Rouse.

Even with the injury to Van Ort, which Rouse feels cost SMC the Dearborn game, the Belles still figure prominently in the recently-released NAIA statistics.

Forward Elaine Sues ranks in the Top 20 nationally in individual scoring with an average close to 19 points a game. She also is fifth in free throw shooting, canning 83-percent of her shots. Despite coming off the bench, Theresa McQuinnis is among the top eight in field goal shooting, connecting on 64-percent of her attempts.

The Belles rank among the nation's leaders in scoring margin and points per game. With the aid of two 100-plus games, St. Mary's boasts a scoring average of over 80 while holding its opponents to just 55 points a game.

Despite the accolades, the Belles up-and-down season has resulted in a 3-4 record to date, but Rouse thinks the Belles are on the right track.

"I'm pleased with where we're at," says Rouse. "I judge our performance rather than record."

"You can be 7-0 or 0-7 depending on who you play. Our worst defeat was 10 points against Franklin and it was probably our best game."

Rouse also announced that Saint Mary's was invited to play in the National Catholic Basketball Tournament in Dubuque, Iowa next year. The tourney is a five-day affair run similarly to the NIT. The championship game will be broadcast nationally by ESPN.

Bloom County

Simon

Fate

Berke Breathed

Campus

- 3:15 p.m. — Workshop, "Aristotle: Moral Direction for Economic Alternatives," Prof. Stephen T. Worland, 331 O'Shauhnnessy
- 5:15 p.m. — Mass and Supper, Bulla Shed, Sponsored by Campus Ministry
- 7:30 p.m. — Basketball, ND Women vs. Georgia Tech., ACC Arena
- 7:30 p.m. — Hockey, ND vs. Miami (Ohio), Fieldhouse
- 8 p.m. — Lions Club Travelogue, "West of the Badlands: the Dakotas, Montana, and Wyoming," O'Laughlin Auditorium
- 9:30 p.m. — Dance, "Chance to Dance," LaFortune Ballroom, Sponsored by Chautauqua, $1

Saturday, Jan. 15

- 2 p.m. — Swimming, ND Women vs. St. Mary's, Rockne Memorial
- 7:30 p.m. — Hockey, ND vs. Miami, Fieldhouse

Sunday, Jan. 16

- 1 p.m. - 4 p.m. — Opening Art Exhibition, Biblical Narratives in Old Master Prints, Snie Musuem of Art
- 2 p.m. — Basketball, ND Women vs. Alabama, ACC Arena
- 2 p.m. — Voice Recital, by Rev. Charles Corso, C.S.C., Annenberg Auditorium
- 2:30 p.m. — Film, South Bend Audobon Society Wild Life Film Series, Carroll Hall
- 7 p.m. — Urban Plunge Workshop, Library Auditorium, Sponsored by Center for Eperiential Learning
- 7:15 p.m. — Urban Plunge Follow-up Meeting, Library Auditorium

T.V. Tonight

- | | | | | |
|------------|------------------------------|-----------------------------|-----------------------------|------------------------------|
| 6 p.m. | 16 NewsCenter 16 | 22 22 Eyewitness News | 28 Newswatch 28 | 34 3-2-1 Contact |
| 6:30 p.m. | 16 NBC Nightly News | 22 CBS News | 28 ABC's World News Tonight | 34 Over Easy |
| 7 p.m. | 16 M-A-S-H | 22 Laverne and Shirley | 28 Joker's Wild | 34 The MacNeil/Lehrer Report |
| 7:30 p.m. | 16 All in the Family | 22 Family Feud | 28 Tic Tac Dough | 34 Straight Talk |
| 8 p.m. | 16 The Powers of Mathew Star | 22 Dukes of Hazzard | 28 Benson | 34 Washington Week in Review |
| 8:30 p.m. | 28 The New Odd Couple | 34 Wall Street Week | 16 Knight Rider | 22 Dallas |
| 9 p.m. | 28 ABC Friday Night Movie | 34 Golden Age of Television | 16 Remington Steele | 22 Falcon Crest |
| 9:30 p.m. | 16 NewsCenter 16 | 22 22 Eyewitness News | 28 Newswatch 28 | 34 Indiana Lawmakers |
| 10 p.m. | 16 NewsCenter 16 | 22 22 Eyewitness News | 28 Newswatch 28 | 34 Indiana Lawmakers |
| 11 p.m. | 16 NewsCenter 16 | 22 22 Eyewitness News | 28 Newswatch 28 | 34 Indiana Lawmakers |
| 11:30 p.m. | 16 Tonight Show | 22 C.B.S. Late Movie | 28 ABC News Nightline | 16 SCTV Comedy Network |
| 12:30 p.m. | 16 NewsCenter 16 | 22 22 Eyewitness News | 28 Newswatch 28 | 34 Indiana Lawmakers |

The Daily Crossword

- | | | | |
|-------------------------|----------------------------------|------------------------|---------------------------------|
| ACROSS | 25 Commercials | 46 Otherwise | 13 Coaster |
| 1 Young oyster | 26 Singing brothers | 48 Harbor | 21 Gandhi's land |
| 5 German philosopher | 28 Surpass | 52 Amer.-Can. waterway | 22 Perform an action, old style |
| 9 Fleet elements | 31 Shinto temple gateway | 56 An Oscar year | 26 Believing |
| 14 Hope (for) | 34 QED word | 57 Kind of island | 27 Old title of respect |
| 15 To — (precisely) | 35 Contraction | 59 Coral | 29 Baking chamber |
| 16 Of punishment drug | 36 Virginia waterway | 60 Unclothed | 30 Saucy |
| 17 Bitter drug | 40 Assist | 61 Small case | 31 Autocrat |
| 18 Wheel hub | 41 Furniture designer | 62 Drying cloth | 32 Buckeye State |
| 19 Bandsman Shaw | 42 Concerning Rogers or Acuff | 63 Mimic | 33 Orange |
| 20 N.Y.-Conn. waterway | 43 Jewish month | 64 Fender mark | 34 Norse collection of poems |
| 23 Timeless | 44 Shingle letters for a dentist | | 37 Consumer advocate |
| 24 Atlanta sports arena | | | 38 Detecting instrument |

Thursday's Solution

© 1983 Tribune Company Syndicate, Inc. All Rights Reserved

1/14/83

1/14/83

Student Union Service Commission Sponsors

The Book Exchange

DROP OFFS: THUR JAN 13
2-6 pm

SALE: FRI JAN 14 2-6pm

2nd Floor La Fortune

Don't Miss the Bargains!

Senior Bar

Welcome Back
from Christmas Break

Enjoy our Specials Tonight open 9:30 - 2:00 am

Notre Dame looking for first big victory

By RICH O'CONNOR
Sports Writer

Tomorrow, a 7-5 Notre Dame basketball team will travel to Milwaukee to take on Marquette. With the Irish still in search of their first big win of the year, defeating the 11-2 Warriors will be no easy matter.

Missing from last year's Marquette team — a 70-62 winner in the ACC — are starters Dean Marquardt and Michael Wilson, and subs Brian Nyenhuis and Greg Shimon. But this Warrior team could be even better than last year's 23-9 squad that split two games in NCAA tournament play.

Leading the squad is all-America guard Glenn "Doc" Rivers. The junior co-captain is only the tenth Marquette player to break the 1,000-point plateau in less than three years of competition.

Rivers, averaging 14 points a game in his career, is the Warriors leader in assists and steals. It was his jumper at the buzzer that enabled Marquette to defeat Notre Dame 54-52 two years ago at the Milwaukee Arena.

Mandy Johnson holds down the other Marquette guard spot. Averaging over nine points and five assists a game, Johnson and his aggressive style of play complement Rivers' talents to give the Warriors an excellent backcourt tandem.

The frontline of Marquette returns two starters, Terrell Schlundt and Marc Marotta and last year's super sub Dwayne "DJ" Johnson.

Johnson is the Warriors' leading scorer, averaging 15 points a game. The sophomore combines with Marotta (10 points per game) and Schlundt (nine points a game despite splitting time with freshman Vic Lazzaretti) to give Marquette a balanced scoring attack.

Despite the balance, there are times when the Marquette offense sputters. At these times the Warriors have been calling on a little instant offense in the person of Terry Reason.

Reason came off the bench to score 32 points on 13-for-15 shooting from the field in Tuesday's victory over Iona. To go along with his scoring barrage (the sophomore's previous career best was 10 against Maine), Reason pulled down eight rebounds in his 34 minutes of action.

Also seeing considerable action for sixth-year head coach Hank Raymonds squad is freshman Kerry Trotter, a 6-6 forward averaging just over five points a game.

The Warriors have been successful in using their exceptional quickness to atone for their lack of height in the front court. A good transition team, Marquette looks to pressure

See WARRIORS, page 11

The Notre Dame hockey team hopes to improve its chances for a CCHA playoff spot by sweeping this weekend's series with Miami of Ohio at the

ACC. The Redskins, however, have other ideas. Action begins tonight at 7. See Jane Healey's preview below. (Photo by Paul Cifarelli)

Not pretty but,

Notre Dame women rout Augustana, 87-66

By MIKE SULLIVAN
Sports Writer

It was not one of the better performances of the year for the Notre Dame women's basketball team, but some excellent individual performances and superior depth allowed it to rout Augustana, 87-66, last night in the ACC.

The Irish, coming off a loss at Maryland Saturday which broke a nine-game winning streak, got back on the winning track on the strength of an offensive explosion by forwards Carrie Bates (24 points) and Trena Keys (19 points), and center Mary Beth Schueth (16 points). In all, five players scored in double figures for Notre Dame as it set a season mark for team scoring.

Bates was especially impressive as she set a career best with her 24 points. It was the highest single-game point production of the season for any Notre Dame player. The sophomore tossed in 11 out of 19 shots and was 2-of-4 from the foul line.

"Carrie Bates played her best game in a Notre Dame uniform tonight," said Irish coach Mary Di-stanislaw after the game.

The Irish front line continued its recent dominance of the boards by outrebounding Augustana by 24, 54-30. In the team's last-four games, Notre Dame has grabbed 58 more rebounds than its opponents.

Schueth once again led the team with 15 rebounds. She has now grabbed an impressive 45 rebounds in the last three games and leads the team with an average of better than nine-per-game. The six-tooter from Indianapolis has impressed many observers, especially her coach.

"I don't know if there is anybody in the country who is better at rebounding than Mary Beth," said DiStanislaw.

The team's offensive burst and rebounding edge more than compensated for an otherwise unimpressive performance, especially

See HOOPS, page 10

Right NCAA message

Athletes are students too

"I hope that black athletes across the United States got this message," said Grambling University President Joseph Johnson. "These institutions don't want you."

The institutions Johnson referred to are the NCAA schools that voted to raise academic requirements for incoming student-athletes. The new minimums will require scores of at least 700 on the SAT or 15 on the ACT, as well as a high school core curriculum of math, English and social and physical sciences.

Johnson and leaders from several other predominantly black schools across the country were outraged at the long-overdue step by the NCAA. Not surprisingly, their mud-slinging consisted largely of racial accusations. Such a reaction by Johnson and others leads to an ugly, yet inescapable conclusion — those doing the screaming don't feel that many blacks are capable of meeting the NCAA's new standards.

Penn State Athletic Director and Football Coach Joe Paterno politely touched on the subject when he responded to the charges of racism by saying, "I'm really surprised that so many black educators have gotten up and sold their students down the river. I think you're underestimating their pride and competitiveness."

It's true. Several close readings of the new guidelines astonishingly show that the standards are not limited just to incoming black student-athletes. So crying discrimination when none exists either in the language or in the intent of the requirements is a tacit admission that a large number of blacks can't or simply won't meet the standards.

Mind you, the NCAA, in laying down the law, is hardly closing the doors on all but potential Rhodes scholars. Many athletes who are able to attain what the NCAA now demands would still need tutoring, super-human effort and occasionally an act of God to get their degrees. And that is what we're all here for, isn't it?

Less idealistically, we must conclude that all but a handful of schools — Notre Dame, North Carolina, Penn State and a couple of others — emphasize athletics and academics in that order. And, at a lot of places, such a perversion of priorities will never change. But at every school in the country, academics should be at least a close second to athletics, which would still insure that the vast majority of student-athletes would still earn their diplomas.

Craig Chval

Admitting athletes who cannot or simply refuse to meet the NCAA minimums amounts to a concession that the school has no concern whatever that its athletes receive an education. From the very moment such an athlete signs a letter of intent, that institution's president, its director of admissions and its coach know full well that the athlete has about as much of a chance to leave with a degree as the 10-year-old kids on the playgrounds of Chicago's West Side have of reaching the NBA.

It is much easier to sympathize with an athlete who, through no fault of his own, simply can't obtain even the lenient minimum scores set by the NCAA. And possibly, if such an athlete has made an honest and consistent effort to learn and improve during high school, an exception could be made. But then again, any other high school student who can't earn those scores and doesn't happen to be gifted enough to run a 4.4 40-yard dash or score 30 points a game in basketball would more than likely be left out in the cold by college admissions offices as well.

Certainly, many of the nation's inner-city school systems are in shambles, but the new standards don't take effect until August 1986. So potential student-athletes, their parents, coaches and teachers have plenty of opportunity to clean up their acts where appropriate.

No, it's not the NCAA institutions that don't want the black athletes, instead it's schools like Grambling that don't want them. Sure, Grambling wants their scoring averages, the people they put in the stands and the money they put in its bank account.

But I defy Joseph Johnson to tell me he wants those kids as students and as people.

By JANE HEALEY
Sports Writer

Irish open weekend series with Redskins

Practice and preparation are the main concerns of Coach Lefty Smith as he gets the Notre Dame hockey team ready to face Miami of Ohio tonight in the north dome of the ACC. The game will start at 7 pm.

The Redskins enter this weekend series with a 9-10-1 record and seventh place in the CCHA.

Miami is an experienced team comprised mostly of upperclassmen. They play a conservative, basic game, setting up and waiting cautiously for a break or a mistake by their opponent.

The strongest position in the Redskin line-up is that of goaltender. Junior Alain Chevrier ranked sixth in the nation among goalies until a 13-2 defeat at Michigan Tech ballooned his goals against average to a still low 3.0.

"We are going to have to compensate for the strong, conservative game of Miami by using a dump-and-run type of strategy," commented Smith. "We have to concentrate and react closely to what is happening while always being prepared for any breaks."

In practice, Smith has been focusing on four areas he feels the Irish have been weak this season. First, the Irish are not taking advantage of their power play situations. They have only scored on 19 percent of their chances.

Second, Notre Dame's opponents connect on 35 percent of their power play situations. Far too many penalties leave the Irish short-handed and vulnerable too often.

The last two problem areas have been the defensive coverage and the forechecking.

"We've been a little weak there," explains Smith. "We're not sticking close enough to our opponents and have gotten ourselves in some undesirable situations."

"We've been particularly working on improving our skills in those areas, but our injuries are really killing us."

Injuries continue to be a problem for the Irish this weekend. Defenseman Joe Bowie, out with a strained knee won't suit up tonight and is doubtful tomorrow. Sophomore Tim Reilly, also plagued by a battered knee will not see any action. The bruised ribs of freshman Greg Hudak makes the injury count complete at three.

Three other players, Rob Ricci, Tadd Tuomie, and Adam Parsons will not suit up because of academic problems.

Short these six players, the Irish will do battle on their home ice, usually a comfort in bad times.

But home hasn't been a friendly place this season for Notre Dame with only one win in eight games at the ACC.

"There is a certain tenseness about playing at home," reasons Smith. "There's a lot more pressure playing in front of your own fans."

These home fans, or the lack of them — average attendance is only 1500 — is another concern for Smith.

"I think having a large crowd making a lot of noise would really help the team," says Smith. "Especially when they are having hard times and need the support more now than at any other time."