New Indiana drunk driving laws could spell trouble for students

By JEFFREY CHOPPIN
Assistant News Editor

With tailgaters and parties galore planned for the first football weekend, this fall's tougher drunk driving law in Indiana may hit home.

The law, which went into effect Sept. 1, makes it easier for the Indiana police departments to find someone guilty of driving under the influence.

The law removes the burden of impairment by making a breathalyzer reading of .10 percent or greater an automatic Class C misdemeanor. Even if the police are unable to prove that a driver was impaired, that person faces at least a thirty-day suspension of his license if he fails the breathalyzer test.

If a driver refuses to take breathalyzer test, his license is automatically suspended for a year in the state of Indiana. Indiana has reciprocal agreements with many states regarding suspended licenses which would mean that a person's license is suspended in those states as well.

Under the old drunk driving law, the state had the burden of showing that a driver was impaired, even if the breathalyzer reading was .10 percent or more. The defendant had the right to produce evidence that he was not impaired.

The state also had to prove that there was a "good stop," that the defendant was behind the wheel when the car was being driven, and that the driver was impaired by alcohol with a breathalyzer reading of greater than .10 percent.

The new law still requires a that the police show there was a "good stop" and that the driver was behind the wheel, but the requirements for a "good stop" have been altered.

There must be "articulable suspicion," which is a lesser requirement than "probable cause" for stopping an automobile. This new requirement calls for a suspicion to which "you can give words to," according to the law.

Reasons for a stop include any violation of normal traffic laws, any malfunctioning of the car's lights or turn signals, or other suspicious

If a driver is found guilty of driving under the influence, the presiding judge can require the defendant to attend an alcohol program set up by the court system. The defendant still has his license suspended for thirty days.

The suspension can be for a longer period of time and may be accompanied by a fine and attorney's fees.

If a person is caught driving during the period in which his license is suspended, there is a mandatory jail term of at least thirty days.

A second conviction of drunk driving carries a minimum jail term of five days in addition to a possible felony charge, at the discretion of the County prosecutor.

Saint Joseph County Prosecutor Michael Barnes "reserves the right to make final decisions" regarding drunk drivers.

Barnes stated that the South Bend, St. Joseph County, and Indiana state police departments "have made enforcement (of the new law) a priority item."

He added that the South Bend and St. Joseph County departments have received federal funds to aid their effort.

Captain Thomas Gargis of the Traffic Bureau said that extra police patrols will be in the area around the campus tonight and tomorrow night.

Gargis advised students: "Use discretion if you're planning to go to drink. The best idea is not to drive if you've been drinking, especially if you think you'll fail the drinking tests."

Barnes said that there will be more cars on the street in the general area of the Five Corners, partly due to incidents which occurred last year on days of Notre Dame football games.

Barnes commented that there will be "a step-up in visibility" intended to be a deterrent. "The object is not to arrest everybody."

One of the means by which the departments intend to enforce the law is the use of roadblocks.

These roadblocks have faced a rough time in the court system.

"Given certain prerequisites, (the roadblocks) do pass constitutional muster," Barnes commented. "Around the state we are being challenged in court. We'll know the

Students moved from lounges

By MICHELE MARCHAND
News Staff

As dormitory space has become available, all but three of 41 students temporarily housed in study lounges have been moved to their permanent rooms. Transfer residents say that they now have more room to study, and dorm life in general is returning to normal.

During the first two weeks of school all the men on waiting lists were moved out of the Grace and Flanner tower lounges and the transfer list was started. As of yesterday, all but two of the women were moved out of the Pasquerillas. Many characterized the final move as a relief — a feeling of finally belonging, although there was difficulty in leaving new friends behind.

When asked to comment two days ago on the housing problem at Notre Dame, Father Michael J. Heppen, Director of Student Housing replied, "What housing problem?" He noted that there were only two girls left unhoused; most of the study lounges were cleared out. He asserted that there is no problem at this time.

Heppen stated that students should be able to adjust to any emotional difficulties caused by the temporary housing if they wish to attend Notre Dame. As far as the Department of Student Housing is concerned, they have no say in the enrollment number, according to Heppen, and until more housing is built on campus, more students may have to put up with temporary housing next year.

It all began with an apologetic letter from the housing department in late July. Due to an unusually large Defense bill passes in house

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, casting aside pleas by nerve-gas opponents that it rise above "emotions of the moment" caused by the Soviets' destruction of an unarmed jetliner, sent President Reagan a record, $187.5 billion defense bill on Thursday that authorizes U.S. production of chemical weapons for the first time in 14 years.

While the nerve-gas provision amounts to a relatively tiny $114.6 million portion of the bill, opponents sought to make the final congressional approval a referendum on the weapons.

But the House at large disagreed, voting 266-152 to approve the measure and send it to the White House. Although the bill is $10.5 billion smaller than Reagan had requested, his signature is expected. The Senate passed the compromise bill, 83-8, on Tuesday.

Supporters referred frequently to the House's 416-0 approval Wednesday of a resolution harshly condemning the Soviets for shooting down Korean Air Lines Flight 007 with 269 people Sept. 1.

"The referendum today is whether we really meant what we said yesterday," said Rep. Ike Skelton, D-Mo. Similarly, Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., said, "the best way to express your feelings about the Russians shooting down the airliner is to vote for this defense conference report."

Rep. Ed Bethune, R-Ark., a leader of the anti-nerve-gas forces, said that while "astute observers know that Congress does not respond to logic and reason ... I hope members will rise above the emotion of the moment and reject this conference report."

Bethune's allies also argued that the moral high ground the United States holds because of its unilateral decision in 1969 to end chemical weapons production could be lost at a time when the Soviets are being castigated around the world for the airliner attack.

"Of course, chemical weapons are horrible," Rep. Marvin Leath, D-Texas, said. But, he said, "While we stand on high ground with our backs turned and our heads bowed, the Soviet butchers are gassing hundreds of thousands of people" in Afghanistan and Southeast Asia.

The provision in the bill permits the Pentagon to obtain facilities and components for artillery shells and Bigeye bombs, although final assembly of the weapons will not be allowed to take place until October 1985. The weapons would be "binary," meaning they consist of two compounds not dangerous in themselves but which combine into a deadly agent after the shell is fired or the bomb is dropped.

The bill authorizes money for all defense activities except pay, military construction and nuclear warheads and reactors, which are handled in separate legislation.

number of acceptances this year, there were not enough rooms to house all the incoming freshmen. So, on August 26, fourteen women and twenty-four men found themselves living in study lounges in Flanner, Grace, and the two Pasquerillas.

Kim Kohlhaas, a freshman from St. Paul, Minn., explained that when she first got the letter from Father Heppen, she pictured a huge, uncarpeted room with forty girls and a draft. Actually the administration went out of its way to provide the study lounges with all the comforts of a permanent room. Each lounge had three beds, three new wardrobes, and two desks.

The only complaint about the actual lounges was the fact that for a week there were no locks on the doors. Other than that, the rooms were described as being very comfortable.

The emotional aspect of living in the lounges was much more difficult to adjust to. Pasquerilla freshman Julie Pietras explained that "It was just like being a visitor. For the first week we were still living out of our suitcases."

More than 100 full fellowships to the graduate school of the winners' choice will be given this year in a national competition sponsored by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation. These fellowships are called the Mellon Fellowships and are for graduate study in any of the traditional humanities disciplines including history. Last year was the first year Mellon Fellowships were awarded, and Notre Dame had one winner in the "recent graduate" category. Philip Hicks, a 1980 Notre Dame graduate from St. Petersburg, Fla., is now pursuing a doctorate in British history at John Hopkins University. Mellon candidates must be nominated by a faculty member before November 4. Professor Walter Nicgorski is Notre Dame's campus representative for the Mellon Fellowships. — The Observer

Joseph Sandman, director of foundation and corporate relations at Notre Dame, has been named the University's director of development by William Sexton, vice president for public relations, alumni affairs and development. Sandman, whose appointment was effective September 15, succeeds Michael Manusco, Jr., who resigned recently to become vice president for university relations at Marquette University. A native of Cincinnati, Sandman has his undergraduate degree from The Athenaeum of Ohio and an M.A. in English from Xavier University. He did graduate work at Notre Dame in English and taught freshman composition in 1973-74. Between 1974 and 1979 he was director of career planning and placement and, subsequently, director of foundation and government relations at Xavier. In loco parentis baby-sit vb: to care for children usually during a short absence of parents.

baccalaureate: the degree of bachelor conferred by colleges and universities.

These definitions, strangely lumped together on a page in Webster's dictionary, seem appropriate for the Notre Dame student reading through his or her copy of Du Lac. It is unfortunate that, in certain ways, Notre Dame assumes the role of a twenty-four thousand dollar baby-sitting service.

Du Lac claims to "describe minimally what behavior cannot be tolerated" on the path toward the baccalaureate degree but minimal is not necessarily the way that discipline is administered at Notre Dame.

Our University serves us as a parental unit. It has the final say concerning classes. It provides us with three "nutritious" meals a day, as well as washing our clothes for us. We are told when we can and cannot visit members of the opposite sex. These are not conditions which better prepare us for life. They are simply a continuation of high school life.

Fortunately for most students, there are rectors and resident assistants who enforce the rules of this university with grace and tact. To them, if we act like adults, despite the fact that we might be bending the rules of Du Lac, we will be treated like adults. The compassion and understanding of the occasional hall staff does not, however, justify the rules as stated in Du Lac.

Some rules, such as those dealing with injury, psychological well-being, theft, forgery, disturbances and property damage are laws which we all must live with as a society in order to avoid anarchy.

Du Lac states the Indiana codes on alcohol consumption but avoids making a stand as a university on the issue of under-age drinking. It is ironic that an administration which will not allow kegs on campus refuses to come to terms with the fact that minors drink at Notre Dame in direct violation of Indiana State law.

Du Lac then describes the "possession or use of any narcotic or hallucinogenic as a serious violation." The rule is simple so why then does it add "Although there is some uncertainty about the use of marijuana, the University does not consider its use acceptable." This comes across as more of an apology than the assertion of a rule.

Next comes the ever popular topic of sex at Notre Dame. The University believes that sexual union should occur only in marriage. Why does the University believe this? Once again Du Lac has left a rule sounding more like a vague apology than a doctrine of the Catholic Church.

The clincher is the description of parietals: "Coeducation allows men and women to contribute to one another's education and to form genuine friendships. It is for these reasons that the program of limited parietal visitation in dormitory student rooms is supported by the University." This simply defies any train of rational thought and is totally unsupported. If men and women are friends and equals, why should we be locked away from each other, placed on symbolic pedestals, and discriminated against as separate entities? Du Lac simply fails to justify its stance on parietals; if two consenting adults want to engage in sex they will do so during visiting hours.

Off-campus life is a case in point. Du Lac states that "these rules and regulations apply to all students on campus and off campus." But off-campus residence is not effectively regulated by the University. So what happens? Anarchy? Social decay? Would you believe maturity, growth and responsibility? It's true. Students still respect each others rights, liberties and property while making adult decisions based on their own moral values instilled in them by their family, church and university. Perhaps the reason off-campus living is so appealing to so many seniors is that it allows them to escape the baby-sitting of the residence halls and to prepare for the responsibilities of the real world.

The rules and regulations in Du Lac would have us believe that morality is something that must be legislated. I would like to appeal to the administration for a little faith in the students of Notre Dame. Treat us like adults and let us make adult decisions based on our own morality. Let Our Lady be an educator instead of a baby-sitter.

Room deposits given as gifts

By GRETCHEN PICHLER

Staff Reporter

More than $13,000 has been collected from the class of 1983 in response to Student Body President Brian Callaghan's proposal last spring that seniors donate their $50 room deposits as their first alumni contribution.

"The money will be used for scholarships for needy undergraduate students," said Joseph Russo, Director of Financial Aid. He added, "We'll probably be looking at seniors first."

After Callaghan submitted the idea at the closing Senate meeting last spring, he sent out letters to all graduating seniors, informing them of the proposal. "The turnout was incredible. Everyone in student government and in the administration is really pleased," he said.

The $50 room deposit collected from students during freshman year is intended to cover any damage that might occur to their room. "Actually, they are charged by the year (for room damage) and the $50 is kept on for the last semester of senior year," said Fr. Micheal J. Hep-pen, Director of Student Residences. The $50 goes into the University's general fund until the student graduates, when any damages are then subtracted from the initial $50 deposit, and "the excess of what is spent is returned to the student," said Heppen.

Although a final agreement has not been reached for the distribution of the funds, tentative plans have been made to spend $3,000 this year and invest the remaining $10,000 in endowments, with the interest being used to aid future classes.

Russo said the seniors would probably have first priority for the funds, adding that "usually a number of seniors have unforeseen financial difficulties, and need funds to get them through their last semester or year. I'm not worried about not having enough applicants," he said.

Callaghan said he will "be pushing it again... making it as easy as possible" for seniors to give. He noted that many students receive some kind of financial aid from the University, and said, "It's their way of saying thanks."

Fighting continues in troubled Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Druse militiamen made repeated attacks for the fifth day Thursday on Souk el-Gharb, but the Lebanese army held the strategic hilltop town overlooking the U.S. Marines at the Beirut airport. Fighting continued through the night.

Police said the Lebanese casualty toll rose to 653 dead and 1,484 wounded in the 12th day of the renewed civil war.

The army said its troops drove off repeated Druse assaults on Souk el-Gharb, and army artillery silenced batteries pounding the garrison's supply route.

But late Thursday, government and private radio stations reported the army was engaged in fierce battles with Druse militiamen who made a two-prong attack from the neighboring villages of Kaifoun and Baisour.

Two soldiers were killed and three were wounded mopping up infiltrators, the broadcast reports said.

Earlier in the day, Lebanese jets roared over the Druse positions in a noisy show of force, a grenade attack wounded two French peacekeeping troops in west Beirut, and bazooka shells killed one Israeli soldier and wounded seven in southern Lebanon.

All six Hawker Hunter jets that make up Lebanon's operational air force took off from Beirut's shell-ravaged airport at dawn and buzzed insurgent Druse positions on the hills surrounding the capital.

The thunderous low passes that lasted 30 minutes involved no bombing sorties, although Druse gunners shelled army positions in Souk el-Gharb and at the Khalde highway intersection on Beirut's southern outskirts heavily overnight.

It was the first time Lebanese warplanes scrambled since battles broke out between Druse and Christian militiamen in the Aley and Chouf Mountains after Israel withdrew to more defensible lines in southern Lebanon 12 days ago. They had flown training missions in the months of relative peace before the new fighting broke out.

It could not be determined whether the six jets returned to Beirut airport or a newly built airfield in the Christian hinterland near Byblos, 19 miles north of Beirut, beyond the range of Druse guns.

Four hours after the Lebanese sorties, a pair of Israeli warplanes streaked over Beirut on a reconnaissance mission. The flight followed reports that the Israeli army was sending daily patrols north of its new lines to guard against Palestinian guerrilla re-infiltration into the central mountains.

Shortly before noon, an assailant tossed a hand grenade from a speeding motorcycle at a French checkpoint on west Beirut's Corniche Mazraa thoroughfare. Two French peacekeepers were sprayed with shrapnel and were flown to the French carrier Foch, where one was in critical condition, a spokesman for the French contingent reported.

Investigation launched into student slaying

BLOOMINGTON (AP) — Mayor Tomi Allison and police officials said Thursday there was no initial indication of police wrongdoing in the police shooting that killed former Indiana University (IU) football player Denver Smith.

However, the four officers involved would not return to work until after a police advisory board panel met, Police Chief Phil Riley said.

Smith, 24, of Dayton, Ohio, was killed Monday by police responding to a report of a disturbance.

Based on an initial investigation, Deputy Police Chief Gary Clendening said he thought officers handled the situation properly.

"At this point, I see no other way for them to have handled the situation," he told a news conference yesterday morning. Clendening said a police advisory board would hear testimony Thursday night from citizens and officers involved with and concerned about the fatal shooting.

"We will review the actions of our officers to see if they stayed within their guidelines," he said.

Riley said in an interview he thought "at this time" police officers acted correctly.

Riley said the four officers involved wouldn't be put back on duty before the advisory board met. The board is composed of Clendening, Riley and the three shift captains who oversee the force, Riley said.

"This has never happened to us before, and we are trying to follow all the rules and regulations," Riley said.

A break from war

Lebanese troops from the American-trained Eighth Brigade enjoy a rest from fighting in the Chouf mountain town of Souk El-Gharb.

Lebanese troops and Druse militiamen have been fighting for five days over the strategic area. The brigade has been together for the past six years and trained together with American advisors.

Psych Services to begin program to aid campus bulimia victims

By JOHN AMORES

News Staff

In response to an increased student caseload, the Notre Dame Counseling and Psychological Services Center is organizing a therapy group for the third consecutive year to help students who fear they are suffering from the eating disorder bulimia.

The group will meet for a ten-week period beginning September 27, and the deadline for the limited enrollment is September 22.

Bulimia is an eating disorder that is characterized by the binge-purge syndrome, a habit in which the victim goes through alternate periods of overeating and then self-induced vomiting. As a result of this purging, the bulimic literally starves herself by not allowing food to stay in her system long enough for the nutrients to be stored. Many physical problems can occur, and in extreme cases, death can result.

The profile of the typical bulimic is a young man or woman (the disease is more prevalent among women) from a middle or upper class home, who is achievement-orientated and also a perfectionist, much like the typical Notre Dame student. Combine this with the intense academic pressures on campus, there is a potentially dangerous environment for the would-be bulimic.

Bulimia, along with other eating disorders like anorexia nervosa, has become the focus of national concern in the last few years, and counseling has become a crucial part of treatment for the bulimic.

The Notre Dame counseling program is headed by Dr. Daniel J. Rybicki, a certified clinical psychologist who specializes in eating disorders. Rybicki is concerned about the devastating effects of bulimia and its high incidence in the Notre Dame-St. Mary's community. He is offering the counseling program as a way of allowing bulimics to share their experiences and also receive professional advice and treatment.

"Because of the nature of the disease, many bulimics become socially isolated," says Rybicki. "The bulimic is ashamed of her condition, so her binges and purges are usually done in private. The counseling group allows the bulimic to come out in the open and receive support from other bulimics in a kind of 'buddy system'."

The sessions are divided into three parts. The first part is a dinner, which, as the sessions continue, becomes a comforting and positive experience. "In these dinners, the person can relax, and she does not have to worry about bingeing or purging," says Rybicki.

The second part is a structured discussion group, in which the participants receive professional advice and counseling.

The third part of the session is an unstructured, more relaxed discussion group in which the members are allowed to share their own feelings. Personal experiences are also shared.

With these discussion periods, the eventual goal is to get to the underlying factors of the bulimic's problem and to help her control the causes that drive her to bingeing and purging.

A major problem in dealing with the bulimic, Rybicki says, is denial. The person will not admit that she has a problem, and as a result, she will not come to grips with the situation nor can she receive help. In many cases, it is up to a concerned friend to help the bulimic see her condition.

There are many warning signals that can identify someone as a bulimic. The bulimic eats small meals and often picks at her food. She is obsessed with food and with the idea of being thin. She has a distorted body image, so even if she is thin, she sees herself as fat.

In women, menstruation is irregular or even absent. Other important clues are late-night binges. A bingeing episode can last anywhere from fifteen minutes to eight hours. Also, the abuse of laxatives, diuretics, or diet pills is a habit of the bulimic.

Sometimes a bulimic will even have different sizes of clothes in her closet to deal with her rapid weight fluctuations. If a roommate or friend notices someone with these symptoms they can contact Rybicki at Psych Services for advice.

Chinese stiffen criminal penalties

PEKING (AP) — In a couple of hours last month, 30 criminals were killed at the Peking execution grounds near the Marco Polo Bridge. More than 30 died in Shanghai, 40 in Tianjin, 30 in Harbin, 40 in Dalian, 43 in Xiam, 22 in Datong and 12 at beautiful Beidahe by the sea.

The deaths were proclaimed with red checkmarks on execution posters in major cities to show that "the people's enemies" had been liquidated.

They are part of a new crackdown on crime in China where authorities no longer talk of reforming serious criminals and say they have been too lenient in the past.

Since August, hundreds and probably more than 1,000 people have died, according to foreign diplomatic sources, travelers and an occasional local radio broadcast.

China has set a quota of 5,000 executions by the end of October to culminate the three-month crusade against crime, foreign diplomats say.

These reports could not be confirmed with Chinese officials, and a news blackout has been imposed on all large-scale liquidations. But Chinese travelers report the death quota for the wide-open city of Canton is 500.

Police and courts have been given new powers and are urged to "resolutely attack the enemy so as to protect the people." The maximum penalties specified by law already have been waived by the parliament for a vague array of "serious" offenses.

The official press is filled with reports of scattered executions for rape, robbery, embezzlement and theft of cultural relics. In the past those crimes often drew prison terms.

Criminals are banished to forced labor camps in desolate Qinghai, famous for its salt mines. Less serious offenders are stripped of city residence and shipped off to the countryside.

China still claims it has one of the world's lowest crime rates — 7 to 9 incidents per 10,000. But China never publishes crime statistics, and although opens trials are demanded by law, foreign journalists never have been permitted to attend any trials, except pre-arranged, model proceedings that are complete with confessions.

Makeshift detention centers have been set up outside Peking. The city's extensive air raid shelter system, hospitals and schools have been used as detention centers, according to unconfirmed reports.

Even the repudiated language of "class struggle," so popular during the Cultural Revolution, has been resurrected, so the battle against crime has become a political struggle.

China now says the days of dunce caps are long gone.

Ailing Begin officially resigns Israeli Prime Minister post

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin, whose peace with Egypt changed the course of Middle East history, formally resigned Thursday after six turbulent years as leader of Israel. The ailing and dispirited Begin stepped down 15 months after he led the Jewish state into a divisive invasion of Lebanon.

The 70-year-old Begin remained secluded at his residence and his resignation letter was delivered to President Chaim Herzog, clearing the way for Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir's probable takeover as Israel's next prime minister.

The resignation ended 18 days of uncertainty and set machinery in motion for the transition from Begin, a guerrilla fighter who rose to Israel's highest office in 1977 and changed the course of Middle East history by making peace with Israel's largest Arab neighbor in 1979.

But his glory days faded with a Lebanese invasion that left the Israeli army bogged down. The death of his wife last year and continuing Israeli casualties in Lebanon left him despondent. He was no longer able to carry on in the face of the worsening economic situation, political bickering in his coalition government and his persistent health problems.

His departure was a melancholy affair dogged by reports that he was ill and unable to function as leader of the government. Departing from custom, Begin declined to deliver his resignation himself, and sent Cabinet Secretary Dan Meridor to deliver the two-line typewritten letter to President Chaim Herzog.

Herzog said he would open consultations soon to choose the man "who enjoys the support of the majority in the Knesset (Parliament) and to authorize him to form a

After consulting with political parties starting next week, Herzog was seen almost certain to choose Shamir, a 68-year-old comrade of Begin from the days when they fought together for independence.

Shamir was elected by his party after Begin announced Aug. 28 that he was resigning. Shamir has since won the backing of the six parties in the outgoing coalition.

The official reason given for Begin's seclusion was a skin ailment which prevented him from shaving. His aides strongly denied he was seriously ill, and Meridor said he remains prime minister until a new government takes over.

By law, Begin is now caretaker premier with full policy-making powers. Confusion arose when Deputy Premier David Levy said in a television interview Wednesday that Begin's absence meant the powers of prime minister had been transferred to him.

But Justice Minister Moshe Nissim denied this. The law states that a prime minister remains in office unless he delegates his powers to a replacement. If he is incapacitated, the Cabinet can choose a temporary replacement. Nissim said neither case applied.

Study shows American academics "surviving but not thriving"

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carnegie Foundation called Thursday for a major restructuring of American high schools, with emphasis on English and writing. It also urged putting more power in the hands of demoralized principals and teachers.

The $1 million, three-year study concluded that most public high schools are "surviving, but not thriving." But it found bright spots as well as bleak ones on the academic horizon.

It delivered a far less dire judgment on the quality of American schools than that reached last April by the National Commission on Excellence in Education.

Several panels — including a National Science Foundation board last Tuesday — have urged top priority for math and science. But the Carnegie study declared, "The mastery of English is the first and most essential goal of education."

"Writing is the most important and most neglected skill in school. It is through clear writing that clear thinking can be developed," said Ernest L. Boer, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching who wrote the report, "High School: a report on Secondary Education in America."

"Writing should be taught in every class," said the report.

It called for dismantling the current system that shunts students into academic, vocational or general tracks.

Instead, it urged a mandatory core curriculum for all students that would include three years of history and studies of other cultures, two years of foreign language, and three years of literature, writing and arts, as well as two years each of math and science.

The National Commission on Excellence in Education warned in its report, "A Nation At Risk," last April that "a rising tide of mediocrity" in the schools "threatens our very future as a nation."

But Boyer, who was U.S. commissioner of education from 1977 to 1979, told a news conference, "We conclude that the conditions in the schools are mixed, that there are A's as well as F's, that, in fact, there's been a rising tide toward school improvement."

"Our best secondary schools in America are the best in the world," he declared.

The Carnegie report estimated 10 to 15 percent of the more than 13 million public high school students attending 16,000 public high schools get an outstanding education. At the opposite extreme, the schools are an academic failure for 20 to 30 percent who "mark time or drop out."

The report said most schools are somewhere in between, "surviving but not thriving." It emphasized: "a report card on public education is a report card on the nation. Schools can rise no higher than the communities that support them."

World Bank's report not good news for developing countries

WASHINGTON (AP) — The severe recession abruptly interrupted the push by poorer nations to improve their living standards and inflicted "a tragedy of no small proportion" on many communities, an international report released Thursday said.

Even with the economic comeback under way in some industrialized countries, the recovery for many developing countries will be a slow process, the World Bank said in its 1983 annual report.

As a result, it said, "the next few years will be both difficult and painful."

The bank, which channels money from the richer nations to the poorer ones for development projects, urged that its lending pool for the world's poorest countries be put on a "secure and sustainable footing" so it can help more.

The Reagan administration and Congress have been reluctant to increase U.S. contributions to the lending pool.

The Carter administration agreed to give this fund, the International Development Association, $3.2 billion over three years, a sum that President Reagan wants stretched out to cover four years instead. To meet that commitment, Reagan has asked Congress for $245 million in fiscal year 1983, which ends Sept. 30, and $1.1 billion in 1984. Congress has yet to approve the request.

In making its case for more help, the bank said the developing world "suffered severely from the prolonged recession" that ended in the United States late last year but still lingers elsewhere.

"The impetus toward development" in many nations "was more sharply broken than at any time since the founding of the institution, as the impact of the deepest recession since the 1930s continued to be felt in all parts of the world," it said. The World Bank, which counts 144 nations as members, began operations in 1946.

With the slowdown, industrialized countries reduced their demand for goods from the developing world. Prices for basic commodities including oil dropped, and interest rates rose, making it more costly for poorer countries to borrow.

"The combination of these factors forced developing countries to lower their imports, and hence their growth rates," it said.

Moreover, many countries were unable to repay their debts to foreign governments and commercial banks and were forced to reschedule, or stretch out, their loans to avoid defaults.

"Overall, almost as many developing countries have had to reschedule loans in the last two years as in the previous 25 years," the report said.

some of the freshmen was adjusting to the change once they were finally moved out of the lounges. Having made friends in their temporary dorms, it was twice as hard to move. The longer they stayed in their temporary homes, the harder it was to leave, especially during the first weeks of school.

Another difficulty the students had with their temporary housing was their feeling victimized by a cold, impersonal computer. Pietras stated that one of the reasons she chose Notre Dame was because of its personal warmth . . . the fact that students aren't just characterized by their I.D. numbers.

Ironically, all the study lounge students were numbered on a placement list according to when their acceptances were received. Until she got a permanent room, Pietras said she felt "like number eleven on the waiting list."

But now, as the housing problem seems to be at an end, at least for this year, most of the students have adjusted well. Most are happy with their decision to attend Notre Dame, despite the difficulties they had this year. Their only hope, in the light of their experience, is that the administration realizes that the system is hard on students, and that next year it will be different.

Search continues for debris of jet

(AP) — Soviet fleet searching for the wreckage of the downed South Korean jetliner sent down a mini-submarine Thursday as U.S. Navy ships several miles away sounded the depths of the Sea of Japan for the flight recorders of the jumbo jet.

There was no word anyone found anything significant in the waters west of Sakhalin Island, where the Boeing 747 with 269 people aboard was believed to have crashed after it was hit by Soviet missiles.

But a Japanese patrol boat recovered another decomposed part of a human torso off the north-east coast of Hokkaido Island, the fifth such find believed to have come from the lost airliner.

Japan's Maritime Safety Agency said the 24 Soviet ships were doing most of their work at night, making it difficult to determine what operations were being carried out.

In much of Western Europe, a two-week ban took effect against Aeroflot, the Soviet airline, and weary travelers were scrambling for flights out of Moscow. Aeroflot retaliated by refusing to accept tickets written by American airlines and was reported refusing to honor tickets from several West European lines also.

The war of words over the downing of the plane moved to Montreal, where the 33-nation governing council of the International Civil Aviation Organization opened an emergency meeting. U.S.

officials predicted the council would condemn the Soviet Union and launch an investigation of the attack on the plane.

In Washington, the U.S. Senate began debate on a resolution of condemnation identical to one passed by the House of Representatives Wednesday. But Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and 10 other conservative senators demanded that "we put some teeth in this resolution" by calling for specific sanctions against the Soviets.

As the search off Sakhalin continued for the 15th day, Rear Adm. Masayoshi Kato of the Maritime Safety Agency said the 12,000-ton Soviet rescue ship Georgi Kozumin was seen retrieving a small submarine about 20 miles north of the Soviet island of Moneron.

Maritime agency vessels then observed two orange and red striped buoys bobbing nearby, he said.

Kato said the agency's boats spotted the U.S. destroyer Elliot, the frigate Badger and the 2,000-ton ocean tug Narragansett, and a U.S. Navy spokesman said the coast guard cutter Munro and the Navy research ship Conover were also taking part in the search.

Another spokesman for the Japanese agency said the American ships were about 18 miles northeast of Moneron and got within a mile of the Soviet fleet at times.

Last Plane to Moscow

Passengers board the last Soviet Aeroflot plane which left Frankfurt airport Wednesday before the start of a two-week ban on flights of the Soviet carrier and other airlines scheduled for Moscow. The West German government imposed the suspension of flights to protest the Soviet's aerial attack on a Korean Airlines civil airliner Sept. 1.

Senate condemns Soviet action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate yesterday easily brushed aside a conservative drive to pressure President Reagan into tougher sanctions against the Soviet Union and joined the House in unanimously condemning the destruction of Korean Air Lines Flight 007.

The vote was 95-0 for the resolution, which now goes to the White House for Reagan's signature.

"The world will have heard this nation speaking with one voice," said Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y.

Reagan praised Congress for the bipartisan support given the resolution.

"The Kremlin is on notice," the president said in a statement. "When it comes to responding to its aggression, there are no Republicans or Democrats — only Americans, united and determined to protect our freedom and secure the peace."

The president said the victims of the plane's destruction "must never be forgotten; nor must we rest until the world can prevent such a crime against humanity from ever happening again."

Earlier, the Republican-controlled Senate rejected eight separate proposals for sanctions ranging from reducing the number of Soviet diplomats in the United States to linking the plane incident with strategic arms negotiations.

By easily defeating all eight amendments, the Senate gave Reagan a solid endorsement of his response so far to the shooting down of the jumbo jet Sept. 1 with 269 persons, including 61 Americans, aboard.

Most of the proposed amendments were urged by conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who said he wanted Congress and Reagan to go beyond the "rhetorical tongue-lashing" in the resolution.

"Unless we put some teeth in it, it is going to be shrugged off in the Kremlin," Helms said before the vote. "The fact is we must take real action."

As debate began on the resolution, Charles Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said, "Soviet behavior is simply beyond the comprehension of the civilized world."

Percy, Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. and some Democrats like Moynihan said strong language contained in the resolution would have an impact in deterring further attacks on planes which stray over Soviet territory.

"This is not a small thing," said Moynihan. "Never before in the history of U.S.-Soviet relations have we declared an act of that nation to be a crime."

Baker had hoped for a quick, unanimous vote on the resolution, which condemns the Soviet Union for "criminal destruction" of the South Korean airliner, calls for an international investigation into the incident and a "full and frank explanation from the Soviet Union for this brutal massacre."

But eight senators, including Helms, proposed amendments calling on President Reagan to impose sanctions against the Soviets beyond the limited measures taken so far.

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A judge lifted an order Thursday that had prohibited Associated Press photographers from covering the rape and burglary trial of Dr. Edward Franklin Jackson Jr.

Jackson is being tried for 22 rapes and 58 related crimes that occurred in Columbus, Ohio, and in several other Ohio cities.

Jackson's attorney, John J. Beck, said that his client, who was arrested in 1977, had been in custody for several years before being charged with the crimes. Indiana resident recollects drunk driving nightmare

KOKOMO, Ind. (AP) — Jose Gomez of Anderson says his life changed forever when three police officers informed him he killed a college student in a drunken driving accident.

Gomez told a meeting of the Howard County Mothers Against Drunk Drivers that he doesn't remember driving home July 11, 1982, or running his van into two college students as they walked along the highway.

Rebecca Shrout, a senior at Anderson College, was killed. Alice Sebring was injured in the accident.

Gomez' wife awakened him about 11:30 p.m., when officers arrived to tell him he had been in an accident.

"At the worst I thought I hit a fence ... and then he told me I killed someone," Gomez said Monday during his first court-ordered speech on drunken driving. "It probably would have been better if I died that day. I'll never be the same. It will be years before I get over it — if ever."

Gomez pleaded guilty to the charge of causing a death while intoxicated and last April was sentenced in Madison Superior Court to spend six months of weekends in Madon County Jail, perform 100 hours of community justice work, help start Students Against Drunk Drivers chapters in Anderson, give 10 percent of his weekly wages, or $33, to that cause for the next two years and accept public speaking engagements.

In addition, his license was suspended for one year but reinstated on a limited basis so that he can drive to and from work and lectures. He also was placed on probation for five years.

Gomez said that on the night of the accident he placed second in a racquetball tournament and a friend placed first. The two decided to celebrate, but he said he arrived at the party late and began drinking a lot of beer to catch up.

"I got so drunk so fast, I didn't even realize it," said Gomez. "Athletes think they can drink so much."

Gomez said the accident hastened the failure of his marriage and made him want to commit suicide. But after completing an alcohol abuse program, he said he realized his problems stemmed from drinking.

"It's amazing how a person gets so weak and so blind," said Gomez, who added that he drank because he believed it was the only way to cope with his problems.

His sister had died in a car crash in the months before the accident, and his marriage was falling apart, he said.

"By the time of the accident, I was probably drinking 25 to 30 beers a day," said Gomez.

Gomez admitted there had been times he'd wondered how he had driven the 13 miles to and from his job at the General Motors Guide Division, but until the accident he thought the only person he could kill on the way home was himself.

Gomez said the sentence he received was good for him because he now can prove he can "fulfill a function in society rather than be a prisoner."

courts' answer soon. The Supreme Court (in deliberation of the state of Delaware vs. Prouse) has suggested ways in which the roadblocks could be legal."

Barnes added that there have been six roadblocks already this year.

During a roadblock, the police will pull over ten vehicles in succession. This is designed to be an indiscriminate fashion in order to avoid charges of discrimination. The officer then asks for license and registration and performs a short safety inspection of the car. The officer will check the lights, turn signals, tire baldness and other items.

If during the course of the presentation of the necessary documents, the officer has a basis to believe that a driver has been drinking, he administers a field test.

If the officer deems it necessary he can take the driver to the St. Joseph County jail to administer a breathalyzer test. The officer will secure the car and if the driver fails the breathalyzer test then the driver is given an opportunity to contact relatives and friends so that the car will be taken care of.

"We shouldn't punish people further. Every effort will be made to secure the car," Barnes said. He added that the roadblocks are situated in locations where parking lots are usually nearby.

Barnes added that "students are members of the community and as members of the community they should be responsible and abide (by the laws).

"They(the students) have a responsibility to the community. We try and alleviate problems they have (concerning student housing and off-camps crime)".

The law stems from the Governors Task Force on Drunk Driving. The Task Force received inputs from the Public Defender's Office, the medical community and state legislatures.

Children in camp to be returned

ALLEGAN, Mich. (AP) — Some of the 66 children who were taken away from the House of Judah religious camp after a child was beaten to death may be returned to their parents within two weeks under a custody settlement announced today.

But Probate Judge C. Ralph Kohn of Adrian ordered a court task force to investigate living conditions at the encampment of "black Hebrew Israelite Jews" before any children are returned.

"We're not at any time desirous of taking your children away from you," Kohn said.

The children are currently wards of the court and in foster homes in eight counties.

Fallout of the Shootout

There are contradictions in history we cannot measure ahead of time. Thus for Ronald Reagan and the West, the murderous shooting down of the Korean passenger plane has had a benign political fallout.

Max Lerner

The Max Lerner Column

There will continue to be a debate on the sources of the action. By a single fateful decision in the skies over Sakhalin the Soviets have brought down a shower of grief for themselves. Was it by accident or design? Was it (more likely) by the working of the Soviet military mentality and the Soviet system of force and fear?

Whatever the source, however, note the dimensions of the political fallout. The Geneva arms control talks will go on and President Reagan was right in insisting that they should. But in the bargaining, the Soviet negotiators will now be on the defensive.

Even more will this be true of the deeply flawed "peace movement" which has been the chief tributary and ally of the Soviets in fighting the impalement of Western missiles in Europe to match the Soviet missiles. Symbolically the sound of the shooting down of the Korean jet now drowns out the sound of the German anti-American demonstrators. The Left in Germany has taken the place of the Right as the chief problem of German democracy.

The fallout also strengthens Ronald Reagan's hand in dealing with his Congressional Critics on his missile-building and arms-control program. Already some of his chief opponents — Democratic Sens. Christopher Dodd (Conn.), Patrick Leahy (Vt.) and Paul Sarbanes (Md.), all of them of the "soft Left" — have attacked the Soviet mentality behind the shootdown and noted the harm it threatens to the Geneva talks.

I have several times commented on Reagan's luck as president. What Machiavelli called Fortuna — the fortunate if blind accidents of leadership — had been granted thus far to Reagan in extraordinary measure.

The decline of interest rates, and the upsurge of the economy have formed one instance. Now, exactly when Reagan faces a formidable voter alliance of blacks, trade unions, women and anti-nuclear groups, the plane-downing incident gives him the political edge again.

The always voluble Democratic presidential candidates are for the moment strangely mute, as if a sudden cold wave had frozen them and their speechwriters into an unseemly catatonic state.

The plane tragedy is no less tragic for having had such a fallout, nor are President Reagan's anger and grief any less authentic.

Yet, the contradictions of history are just as real.

Students of history will recognize the dramatic parallels on this score between Reagan and Margaret Thatcher.

It isn't a tidy parallel. British national anger and national pride were more deeply involved than in the American case. Mrs. Thatcher started in more dismal political doldrums than Reagan's, and rode a wave of patriotic feeling to greater heights of popularity than Reagan is likely to reach. Also, the suicidal splits in the British Labor Party crippled the Opposition beyond anything that the pretty uninspiring Democratic candidates are likely to do in the coming election.

Yet the parallel persists — mainly in the luck which has brought the two leaders, in however different ways, out of the political quagmire to a more confident position. Can it be possible, as some Tory and Republican preachers hint, that God is a conservative?

P. O. Box Q

Draft

Dear Editor,

This letter is in response to the editorial, "Drafting an Alternative," by Keith Picher. The purpose of this letter is twofold.

First, I would like to thank Mr. Picher for surfacing an issue which should be at the forefront of national attention. As Mr. Picher implied, a young man who wishes to honor his conscience and defy unjustified conformity is truly trapped in a Catch-22. The options for such brave, young men are made infinitely smaller by the evident absence of a conscientious objector status. I believe that it is quite ironic that a nation, which so desperately desires peace, punishes peacemakers and rewards mindless conformity. It has become apparent that our discriminating government will not permit free will, evidently harming those who really desire a peaceful society. This leads to my letter's second purpose.

As Mr. Picher pointed out, certain institutions of higher learning are rewarding types of financial aid despite draft registration status. There exists no question that the University of Notre Dame should also reward such funds. Notre Dame, a University based predominantly on Catholic doctrine should regard overwhelmingly the conscience of students who wish to defy an unjustified federal regulation. In a society threatened by the ominous presence of a possible nuclear holocaust, a Catholic institution such as Notre Dame should set an example. Neglecting to implement such a fund indicates that Notre Dame's ties with peaceful Catholic doctrine are weak.

In these horrifying times I believe that society in general, and Catholics in particular, should seek solace and faith in God's love. I believe that the words of Thoreau best substantiate my point:

"...Is there not a sort of blood shed when conscience is wounded? Through this wound, a man's real manhood and immortality flow out, and he bleeds to an everlasting death."

William A. Krats

Get tough

Dear Editor:

The Soviet destruction of the South Korean passenger jet has held the attention of the world for nearly two weeks, and I cannot remember a single event since Nixon's resignation which has commanded so much anxious and widespread conversation.

Virtually all of us feel united in our disgust with the Soviet Union, for its mingled callousness and incompetence, its truculent self-justifications, its lies and belligerent posturing in the wake of such an atrocity. Our revulsion is compounded by the ease with which we can imagine the helplessness of imperiled airline passengers. It is sometimes hard to empathize with beleaguered Afghans or frustrated Poles, but most of us can put ourselves more readily into the skins of doomed air travelers.

Moreover, many of us feel angry because the Soviets have shattered our illusions about the supposed moral perimeters of their own conduct when cornered. It is a little like rediscovering the wheel. We may never know whether the Russian pilot realized the innocence of his target; but those taped conversations between the airman and base commander — though we hear only the former — suggest that no one cared so much about the inhabitants of the plane as about preventing it from leaving Soviet air space.

Whether or not the Soviets understood the nature of their target, the brutality of their ultimate decision would be hard to exaggerate. We should be glad that President Reagan is riding the Soviets hard (at least verbally) on this one, and exacting what mileage he can on behalf of civilized behavior in the skies.

Rev. Isaac McDaniel, O.S.B.

Priorities

Dear Editor:

After picking up a copy of The Observer on Thursday, September 15, 1983, I was pleased to see that you chose to give top priority to such a world-shattering event as, "Annual panty raid still a tradition at Saint Mary's and Notre Dame," (main headline, page one), whereas you had the common sense to keep such a trivial event as, "Crowding around," (picture, not an article, on page three, showing the Pope holding hands of Korean pilgrims, who came to see him during his traditional Wednesday audience in St. Peter's Square) inside the newspaper. I heartily agree,

Mr. Editor, that the Pope deserves only a picture, not an article. And I respect your forethought in putting his picture on page three, lest someone complain that his picture crowds page one, where we need more room for the real news... like panty raids. Now that we understand your priorities, Mr. Editor, we may be able to understand our own a little better.

Gary Kopycinski

Trying to sack the Spartans

Irish need to be wary of new MSU attitude

By LOUIE SOMOGYI
Sports Writer

Fired up from a successful debut last week under new head coach George Perles, the Michigan Spartans will enter tomorrow's game against Notre Dame with an enthusiastic and confident outlook.

"Anytime a new coach comes into a program there's a lot of enthusiasm generated, and I don't think there's any question George Perles has done that at Michigan State," says Perles' Irish counterpart Gerry Faust. "An opening day win like that (a 23-17 comeback against Colorado) can do wonders for the confidence of your players. So I'm sure they'll come down here Saturday and feel like they can play with anybody."

The fiery Perles is a sharp contrast to the grandfatherly image that Muddy Waters seemed to portray for the Spartans the last three years. A superb leader, Perles served as the Pittsburgh Steelers defensive coordinator through their glory years in the 1970's before resigning the post last year in order to fill the vacancy left by Waters.

Within one year he has already outrecruited Bo Schembechler in the state of Michigan, conducted the most intense and grueling practice sessions at Michigan State in years, and instilled a confident attitude within the team that it lacked during last year's woeful 2-9 campaign.

"Notre Dame and Michigan are the games I'm paid to win," says Perles. "I don't intend to see us lay down and die just because we see blue and gold."

While Perles doesn't feel intimidated by the Notre Dame mystique, he is very aware of its talent.

A rough reunion

Summer acquaintances, Bell and Banks, meet again

One game concluded. One game won. And at least one thing is certain with regard to the Notre Dame football team — Greg Bell is back.

The question whether he would be back or not was answered when Bell took a pass from Blair Kiel in the first period last Saturday, then faked right, sidestepped left, and scampered into the endzone. The one-year wait to return was over. A lot must have been going through Bell's mind as the referee raised his arms signifying Notre Dame 6, Purdue 0.

"Mainly what was running through my head was that it had been a long time since I got the chance to cross the goal line," recalls Bell. "It was a feeling like, 'I'm back. I'm healthy. And against the people who last year stopped what I considered could have possibly been one of my better years. This (the touchdown) is one of a lot to come.'"

"I wanted to go across that end zone a lot that day," smiles Bell, "and I eventually did. It was real sweet."

These are happier days for Greg Bell, a native of Columbus, Ohio. Last season he suffered what doctors termed "a serious injury," a broken fibula in his right leg. Finished for the season, Greg sat and watched his teammates — something that was more painful to him than the break itself.

"Anytime you're hurt, you are going to be upset," says Bell, "especially since we weren't doing so great in the won-loss column. I'm happier now. I'm back in action and have a chance to have some fun and play a little football."

He has a chance to have some fun because his rehabilitation of the leg went very well. Forced to sit out spring drills in order to give his leg extra time to heal, Bell contemplated his role on the team in wake of Allen Pinkett's emergence at tailback. He came back to Notre Dame this summer with a lot to prove — to himself.

"I really did not have much to prove to Coach Faust," says Bell. "I think he knows what I can do. I just had something to prove to myself. I had an ankle injury which was considered a bad injury. I wanted to prove to myself that I could come back from it and be just as good as I was before."

It is still too early in the season to predict, but it would appear that Greg may have come back better. Last Saturday in Ross-Ade Stadium, Bell weaved, slashed, leaped, and barreled into the end zone — not once, but four times.

Bell erased any doubt anyone had concerning his recovery on his first score, and proved that he may be better than ever on his last.

On the play, he took a pitchout from Kiel on the 5-yard line, and started left towards the flag. After breaking free from defensive tackle Chris Scott's grasp, Bell used second and third effort to muscle through the Boilermaker pursuit to score.

Rebuilding a tradition: George Perles comes from the pros to get MSU football back on track

George Perles
Spartan Coach

He looms over Spartan Stadium, looking professorial in tweed, his relentless face softened by a "say cheese" smile. Just as the camera clicks, the wind turns his hair into renegade, fluttering strands. It's a rare glimpse of George Perles, who seldom lets his hair down these days.

Michigan State's new football coach has hit the ground sprinting since his arrival in December. His watch always set five minutes fast, a habit that thwarts even punctual associates, Perles has thrust the rebuilding timetable into overdrive.

"I want to turn things around immediately," he explains. "By the time next season begins, I want to go into every game feeling we can win."

Is instant success realistic? "It's realistic to me," he snaps.

He sinks into a chair in his office, after several hours in meetings, glancing ever so slightly towards the clock. He sits erect, exuding confidence. Behind his cavalier optimism lie hours upon hours of groundwork he and his staff have expended.

In just three months they have imposed order, discipline, and organization on a program that was reeling from three straight ignominious years. Initial controversy over MSU's $175,000 settlement with the Philadelphia Stars, a payment made from athletic revenues and not tax dollars, has not prevented them from making concrete progress on three crucial fronts — recruiting, conditioning, and strategy.

In just five weekends, MSU recruited a class that raised as many hopes in East Lansing as eyebrows in Ann Arbor. It includes 7 of the 15 Michigan players on the Detroit News "Blue Chip" list.

"Michigan State sells itself," explains Perles, who himself took a $70,000 a year pay cut to work at MSU.

The administration helped mightily. President Cecil Mackey, or Vice-President Kenneth Thompson, or a senior University officer personally met every single recruit visiting campus. When taken to Spartan Stadium, each recruit saw his name flash across the scoreboard. They also likely did not miss Perles's diamond Super Bowl ring — one of four he won with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

You can't win without great players, but you can lose with them.

- Perles

Recruiting alone, however, is not enough. "You can't win without great players," says Perles, "but you can lose with them." Players need training and experience. And conditioning.

Assistant coach Carl "Buck" Nystrom, All-American MSU guard in 1955, devised a physical preparation program "as tough and demanding as I've seen," according to Perles. Agrees senior offensive tackle Jim Lamb: "It's triple what we ever did before." Adds co-captain and All-American candidate Carl Banks, "It's really tough, but it's positive. Everything goes according to schedule. There's much more discipline."

The rigorous workouts, it is hoped, will sustain MSU performance in the fourth quarter, a period that sealed seven heartbreaking losses in 1982.

Strategy changes will give MSU football what Perles calls "the Pittsburgh look" — a lot of trapping and drop-back passing on offense, with heavy use of double-wing formation which can send up to five receivers crisscrossing upfield.

Defense will rely on the 4-3 formation. "It'll be tough, aggressive, with lots of blitzing," notes Perles. "We'll pressure the other team's quarterback."

The strategy conferences unfold over long sessions that sound like pig Latin.

"We have to establish a common terminology," explains Perles, as he glances towards the clock, anxious to return to a meeting with some strategists on loan from the Steelers.

While Perles rewrites the MSU playbook, many observers have begun to rewrite the book on Perles.

Those who have long known him marvel at the way he has overcome his youth in a "tough, melting-pot neighborhood near Tiger Stadium," as administrative aide Ed Rutherford, his high school coach, puts it. "Rough around the edges" is a common description of the old Perles. One sportswriter called him "an open-collar guy" whose "idea of a good time is six beers and six hours of telling football stories."

Perles's character, however, has always been rock solid. He is intensely loyal, hard working, genuinely concerned about athletes and their education, with superb leadership and organizational talents. "A lot of plain vanilla," says Buck Nystrom. "He's an endless worker and never feels the job can't be done."

Duffy Daugherty, who coached Perles and then hired him as an assistant in 1967, recalls him as "a tireless worker with great knowledge who knows how to impart it on the field." Predicts Duffy, "We'll be ready in the fall, just watch."

Perles's good qualities remain intact. But, with his wife Sally's advice, his rough edges have been dramatically smoothed out. He works in coat and unloosened tie in a profession dominated by sweat suits. The silhouette that earned him the nickname "Georgie Porgie" has been trimmed by ridding red meats from his diet and by jogging three miles a day — rain, hail or snow. And no more six-beer bull sessions.

His idea of relaxation? To Sally's delight, it's cooking (and cleaning up afterwards). "Cooking is a form of love," says Perles, who briefly owned a restaurant in Pittsburgh. "I love feeding my friends, feeding my wife, feeding my kids."

What does he cook? "Anything and everything," he says.

Quiche? "No," he laughs. "What I cook depends on who I'm cooking for."

Next fall the gridiron chef may find reason to serve crow in Ann Arbor and South Bend.

If things work out the dish should arrive exactly five minutes past the fourth quarter — Perles's time.

... Spartans

country and has as much talent as any college team," says Perles. "On paper, I call them tops in the nation."

Like last year's 11-3 Notre Dame victory at East Lansing, Notre Dame-Michigan State games have traditionally been hard-hitting defensive battles. Senior Carl Banks, an all-America candidate at linebacker, will lead another strong Spartan defensive unit that has not let Notre Dame into the Michigan State endzone since the first quarter of the 1981 game.

While Michigan State's linebacking and secondary corps are well-stocked with talent, its defensive line is suspect because of a lack of game experience among the starters as well as a lack of great size. The line averages out to 6-2, 243 pounds, small by collegiate standards, but Perles says that his team can and will compensate for its lack of size by using technique and leverage.

Undersized or not, Faust singled out the quickness of Michigan State's offensive and defensive line as the most impressive attribute of the team.

"I'm very impressed with their down people on the defense," praises Faust. "Our offensive linemen are going to have to be more proficient with their blocking because of their quickness."

Because quickness is the biggest asset for the Spartans this year, Perles has promised that a lot of blitzing will be used by the Spartans in order to pressure the opposing quarterback.

The offensive line for the Spartans, though bigger than their defensive teammates, impressed Faust even more with its quickness.

The much improved Michigan State offense will be even more effective since tailback Aaron Roberts is expected to see a lot of action after having sat out most of last Saturday's game against Colorado with an ankle injury. Roberts, a junior, was regarded as the top prep running back in the nation three years ago and was heavily recruited by Notre Dame. After a fine freshman season in which he led the team in rushing and averaged five yards a carry, Roberts had a bitter and frustrating sophomore campaign in which he openly disagreed with coaching philosophies on the team and sat on the bench for most of the year. Spartan fans are still waiting for Roberts to live up to his tremendous potential.

Freshman Bobby Morse, son of 1956 Notre Dame captain Jim Morse, will probably get the starting nod at tailback. Morse, like his coach, made a dazzling debut last week by scoring both Michigan State touchdowns.

The offense hardly revolves around the tailback, though. Because the offensive line does come off the ball so quickly, the Spartans like to run a lot of quick trap plays with junior fullback Carl Butler. Butler led Spartan rushers last week, gaining 80 yards on 21 carries.

The passing attack appears to be pretty solid too with sophomore quarterback Dave Yarema. Yarema, one of the most sought after quarterbacks in the nation two years ago, took over as the starter last year in the eighth game and went on to lead the Spartans to their only two victories. Yarema completed an impressive 15-of-23 passes for 179 yards last week against Colorado.

Michigan State's passing attack consists of a straight dropback style that, at times, sends out as many as five receivers. The best of them is senior split end Daryl Turner who caught six passes for 128 yards against Colorado. An honorable-mention Big-Ten selection as a sophomore, Turner is a constant deep threat with his great speed. He scored the Spartans lone touchdown two years ago against Notre Dame on a 63-yard pass play. Ever since his arrival as a freshman, Spartan coaches have said that Turner is destined to become an All-American and one of Michigan State's all-time great receivers.

Junior punter and placekicker Ralf Mojsiejenko, meanwhile, will probably have a lot to say about Notre Dame's field position. Faust listed good field position against Purdue as one of the keys to Notre Dame's rout of Purdue last Saturday. Mojsiejenko, however, is one of the premier punters in the nation and hopes to keep the Irish pinned deep in their territory. He averaged 44.6 yards per punt last year, and is also an outstanding placekicker as evidenced by the 50-yard field goal he kicked against the Irish last year.

"I've always liked Michigan State's skill position people," says Faust. "If they continue to play with confidence, they'll do a lot of damage. They only won two games last fall, but both of them came after Yarema moved in at quarterback late in the year."

As for the Irish, Faust simply concludes that the team has to play errorless football in order to win.

"We didn't play poorly for an opener, but we've got a long way to go and a lot of things to improve," says Faust. "I think we found out that we weren't in as good shape as we thought we were, and that's going to be crucial in these warm-weather games."

Notre Dame will not play at home again until October 22 when they entertain Southern Cal. Miami and South Carolina are just two of the warm-weather sites Notre Dame will play at after the Michigan State game. He'll see just what kind of shape the team is in.

But nothing would compare to the heat the team might feel if it overlooks a confident and enthusiastic Michigan State football team tomorrow.

Rick Naylor

Linebacker's quiet play gets no respect, just results

By ED DOMANSKY

When defensive positions are considered, probably one of the toughest to master is that of outside linebacker. "To play the position, the player has got to be the most poised, disciplined player we've got on our defense," says Notre Dame's second-year outside linebacker coach Greg Blache. "He's responsible for so many things — both the run game and the pass game. He must be one of the most flexible athletes on the team."

This year's Notre Dame squad is fortunate to have this crucial spot filled by veteran Rick Naylor. Naylor, the 6-3, 227-pound senior from Cincinnati, Ohio, is starting his second season at the outside linebacker slot.

Naylor made eight starts there during his junior campaign before suffering a hip pointer against Penn State which forced him to miss the Air Force and USC contests.

He made nine tackles in last year's season opener against Michigan and added eight against Oregon before concluding the 1982 season with 45.

Naylor made starts against Purdue, Michigan State, Florida State and Air Force in 1981 as well as seeing action in all 12 games in 1980, his freshman year.

So far this season, Naylor is off to a good start, contributing 10 tackles in last Saturday's 1983 opener against Purdue, tying him with freshman Mike Kovalski for high on the team.

The loss of Mike Larkin for the entire season, combined with the fact that many young players are now seeing starting assignments for the first time, should certainly add to the supportive role of the veteran Naylor.

With the dawning of this new season, Naylor put most personal goals aside, instead centering his efforts on what he hoped for the team. "Going into this season, I'd like the team to do well," he says. "Since the trip to the Sugar Bowl my freshman year, we've had two rough seasons. It's my senior year, so I hope that this year we can really turn things around and bring respect back to the team."

Although he expressed the desire for the team to do well, Naylor has also been working hard to improve his own play as well.

"Over the summer I worked a lot with weights," says the senior marketing major. "Although I didn't put on a lot of weight, I feel my strength did increase. I've also done more running to get my body in better shape."

Naylor also feels that he has improved on his understanding of the game, and his coach agrees. "Rick has improved on his general awareness of the opponent," says Blache. "He's become more of a student of the game as far as knowing who he's going up against and what they're likely to do."

Along with his improved skills, Naylor also has certain other attributes that he feels are key at his position.

"I'm tall and have long arms," he says, "and this is really important when it comes to playing off blocks, especially from opposing tight ends."

"His experience is very important," adds Blache. "He's been there before and he's just got an awareness that helps him on the football field."

Naylor's abilities are looked upon highly by his coach, but Blache notes one thing that could make him even better.

"The only criticism I can find in Rick is that at times he's lacked consistency," says Blache, "and that's only because he's not that physical, nasty, looking-to-hit-somebody-every-play player. He's more of a finesse player. If he were a little nastier, he'd make a phenomenal football player. He has a lot of innate abilities that you just can't teach."

Head coach Gerry Faust, for whom Naylor played at Cincinnati Moeller, also recognizes Naylor's abilities as well as a new preparedness.

"He's really come to play this year," says Faust. "I think he had a conflict within himself that he wasn't intense enough all the time, but he's made up his mind that he's going to be intense all the time. He's worked very hard and is really a silent leader on the field."

When reflecting on his leadership abilities, Naylor tends to agree with his coach.

"I am pretty quiet," he admits. "I try to lead by example, but if I do see something as the game goes on, I'll say what I have to say."

"He's not the kind that's going to go out and make a lot of noise," continues Faust. "He's very quiet and very steady. If he can keep up the steadiness and consistency he's shown this fall, he'll be a great leader as far as influence and getting the job done."

Getting the job done is very important to the success of a team. Over the years, however, Naylor's successes have often been overshadowed by the likes of Bob Crable, Mark Zavagnin, or Mike Larkin. Naylor doesn't see it as overshadowing, though.

"Bob (Crable), Z (Zavagnin), and Larkin deserved everything they got," he says. "It really doesn't bother me, as long as I think the coaches respect what I do on the field."

"Rick's got a thankless job," says Blache. "He's at a position where he's got to be disciplined. He can't just fly to the football, because if he does, we'll be giving up big plays. We all like to be recognized when we do something good, and I'm sure Rick's no exception."

"I liken him to Rodney Dangerfield," continues Blache, "because he gets no respect for the job he does. He's solid, he's sound, and he's not flashy. He just gets the job done."

When Naylor completes this final season at Notre Dame, he'll be looking to get the job done elsewhere.

What does the future hold for Rick Naylor?

"I'd like to play pro football," he says. "If not drafted, I'd like to go free agent and hopefully be given a chance to make it."

For the time being, however, the 1983 schedule must still be completed, and Naylor's presence will certainly be appreciated.

"I think it's our advantage that we have Rick Naylor," says Blache. "He's going to be a tough guy to replace when he's gone. He adds a dimension to our defense. He adds a stability that I think we really need."

... Bell

"When I ran (on the play), it was funny," laughs Bell, "because after a while I didn't know where I was going. Then I saw the line and I figured I had to get there."

This week however, there will be a much tougher defense trying to prevent Bell from scoring. The Michigan State Spartans are coached by a man in George Perles who prides himself on defense.

And the pride of his defense is 6-6, 235-lb. senior linebacker, Carl Banks.

Bell has already been introduced to Banks, both on and off the field.

"This summer I worked at the Jack Lambert Football Camp," says Bell in explaining how he got to know Banks off the field. "Carl was one of the guys there. We spent a lot of time together and we had a lot of fun working with the kids at the camp. Carl is a great human being and a nice guy."

However, once Carl Banks buttons his chin strap, it is no more Mr. Nice Guy. His ferocity on the football field has earned him first-team All-Big Ten honors as a sophomore and as a junior. His coaches think he is the most dominant defensive player at MSU since George Webster wore the green and white 14 seasons ago.

Bell has played across the line of scrimmage from Banks only once, but what an afternoon he had. On that day two seasons ago, Bell had runs of 11, 11, 22, 26, and 32 yards, scored two touchdowns, and had a 75-yard touchdown run called back because of a penalty. For the day, he carried 20 times for 165 yards.

"We tried while we were at the camp not to talk about the Notre Dame-Michigan State rivalry," says Bell. "We just more or less tried to avoid it as much as possible."

Tomorrow, Bell will be trying to avoid Banks, for he knows just how well the Flint, Mich. native plays football.

"He's a hard hitter and great football player," comments Bell. "He's playing the outside linebacker position, which is a good spot for him, because, in the middle, there's less area to cover. On the outside, he gets into a lot of plays and makes some great tackles."

Tomorrow afternoon, Bell and Banks will be reacquainted. At least one of them, Bell, is looking forward to the confrontation.

"When it was time to part," remembers Greg, "all I could say to him was, 'Hey, see you in September.'"

September is here and so are the Spartans. Both Bell and Banks are ready. The subject they so carefully avoided talking about must now be dealt with. Tomorrow each man will let his play do the talking. Don't expect either to be at a loss for words.

letters to a lonely god

Russian Roulette

by Rev. Robert Griffin

I used to make it a practice to get invited to supper at the houses of off-campus students. I made a project of writing letters asking to be invited for a meal or a cup of coffee. I became very familiar with the neighborhoods that had become student ghettos. I can still point out porches where beer was flowing like a river on weekends. Inside, the living room couches were broken down; there were bars in the dining room with lighted beer signs over them. The bedroom furniture was often one mattress piled on top of another resting on the floor. In winter, thermostats were tuned low to save oil. I bundled up good if I was visiting in January, or I might come back to campus with a frozen rump.

The food was consistently good, and occasionally, it was wonderful. Mothers, I used to think, would be proud of their children so careful to include vegetables and green things in their meals. Spaghetti was often served, or chicken, and once a week or so, I was sure to be treated to beef. I dreaded being served tacos, burritos, or tortillas, because I have no appetite for South-of-the-Border stuff. Students living off campus were proud of living well, thriftily. The savings they told me about did seem impressive, until I learned many households ate dinner together only four nights a week. Nobody ate breakfast, lunch was on campus, and munchies were not stocked for the evening snacks. It was no mystery to me why it would have been more expensive for them to eat at the dining hall.

Off-campus students were impressive in the ways they took care of themselves. They wouldn't hide the fact they had spiffed up the joint for the benefit of the visitor. The neatness was impressive; anyway, I hadn't come for an inspection tour. I heard stories of an ill-kept house on Notre Dame Avenue, where, in April, they still hadn't washed the Thanksgiving dishes. They stored plates, pans, and silverware in boxes under the sink, and waited, I guess, for the locusts to come. As far as I know, I was never invited to eat at that house, at least, not until May, when the dishes were done in time for graduation.

For the information of off-campus students, or on-campus ones, Griffin is still available, just for the sake of friendship. If you can't invite me, allow me to invite you. When Griffin is available, social occasions can be arranged, if you will be my guest.

Occasionally, on my off-campus visits, I came in handy as a savior figure. However, I don't accept invitations planning to serve as the evening's missionary, convert-maker, or confessor. Our Catholic faith is tentative in its hold on us; it easily gets lost among the confusions of life. The flow of grace becomes interrupted through carelessness as a young Christian moves geographically away from the celebration of Mass and the sacraments. I am concerned about bringing the strayed sheep home, but only with the strayed sheep's encouragement. I once inquired about obtaining the former Goose's Nest restaurant, at the corner of Notre Dame and Howard, as a student center where Mass could be said, at least on Sunday's. The price asked was outrageous. I have been known to offer liturgies in students' backyards in seasons when the weather is good.

So I don't go out to dinner on a pastoral investigation, though I don't think it hurts a Catholic to talk to a priest. I don't sniff around, looking for lapses in faith and morals, though I'm old enough to ask a question without feeling embarrassed, if I think it would be helpful. I hope I am a witness to the truth about Christ, but young men and women are also witnesses to me, so we should be respectful of the other's worth.

I discourage off-campus students getting dogs. Their getting dogs is my greatest hangup. Students can't afford to keep dogs. Table scraps are not good enough for a dog's health; regular visits to the vet's for shots are expensive. Students don't have time to house-train a puppy, or keep him company. The dog grows up wild and untamed; when he's six months old, nobody wants him (or even more sadly, her, for an obvious reason). The animal has become a nuisance; its transgressions are no longer forgiven because the poor thing is cute. The dog is put to sleep, or sent off to roam by itself. The same script gets reenacted a dozen times a year. Students want to be greeted by a pet when they come home from class. They don't realize that a household will be blessed from entertaining the clergy at dinner. Both the entertainers and the guest play a form of Russian roulette when a stranger comes to take tea. I try not to be a bore or overstay my welcome. My manners are good, and I flush after using the bathroom. I do polite things to show my gratitude. An Irish legend says that an angel is sent to guard forever the place where a priest has said Mass. Surely to heaven, a leprechaun at least is sent to the house where the padre has supped well, and engaged in holy conversation.

Darby O'Gill II, my cocker spaniel, says, if asked, he will come with me. If necessary, he says, he will accept the scraps from the table.

Par 3 swings into the spotlight

by Pat Beaudine

Par 3 is not just an ordinary band content with playing an endless string of shows, hoping that one day a record company might notice them. Instead, their approach is a bit different and more involved. Actually, mere involvement is a gross understatement in light of the fact that they recently recorded, pressed, and are working on a distribution deal for their first single, "Let it Go"/"Daddy's Little Girl." However, producing a single is not the only thing on their minds, and it has been like this from the beginning.

Presently composed of lead singer and bassist J.P. Keyes, keyboardist Tim Keyes, guitarist Scott O'Grady, and drummer Rob Bayne, this Notre Dame band began playing out by filling a few slots in the Nazz's schedule. From there, they began securing shows at such campus musts as Senior Bar and Corby's. Yet, after a few shows, they soon realized that the management end of being a band was taking too much time. After all, they had to think about the quality of their music, and then maybe devote some time to school work. That's where Robin Brown stepped in. After assuming the task of representing the band, Brown contracted gigs at The Music Box, The Alternative, and elsewhere, enabling the band to concentrate on its music.

Par 3's music is as hard to categorize as The Police's early efforts, but several characteristics are easily recognized. The most predominant one, at least on their single, is the reggae beat supplied from guitarist O'Grady. Other elements also emerge, like rock, new wave, and a dance orientated rhythm, but that is where all comparisons to The Police stop. Even though Par 3 does have its share of "I want you--do you want to see my loft?" fun loving songs, their roots are more embedded in Bob Marley and Jimmy Cliff posturings, which lends a definite seriousness to some of their music. "People are starving out there," J.P. notes, "and Marley never hid that reality." Keyes also feels that when millions of people don't have the means to eat, it's sometimes hard to play good time, dance music.

Par 3's future is not entirely focused, and as drummer Rob Bayne said, "We're taking it one day at a time." However, some plans are currently set. For instance, they are working toward their first album which will, of course, be self-mastered. Yet, the readiness of necessary finances makes its release date tentative. Also, they would like to improve the quality of their recordings, seeing how their first disc, like early Beatles material was ultimately mastered on two channels. Another future goal, one that Par 3 is very excited about, is to produce a low scale video which might one day be seen on MTV, either on regular programming, or on a special segment like "The Best Unsigned Bands." Scott Bower has control over its direction, and might choose to film "Daddy's Little Girl," yet, plans for this are still undecided. The future also includes a trip to the Houston/Austin area, playing as much as possible, and, more immediately, doing shows at The Nazz tonight, and performing at a victory celebration Saturday at The Ramada Inn. (Somehow, the Ramada seems to be assuming something.)

Their single does back up that they want to say something relevant. The A side, "Let It Go," is a somewhat eerie song about isolation with images of daylight being far away, deserted faces staring in the line, and spirits sinking low. Written by J.P. Keyes, the song does have lyrical power, and is competently played, but lacks a little commercial appeal to make the cut truly come alive. However, with access to a state-of-the-art recording process, the record's potential could be reached. That goes double for the flip side, "Daddy's Little Girl." A more commercial tune, the song is about a girl who's got everything, except a strong one-to-one relationship because she lets her new car and other materialistic pleasures get in the way. However, she ultimately loses in the end when her daddy becomes unemployed, an event which the writer, Tim Keyes, regards with little pity.

Even though the sound quality of the recordings is somewhat comparable to those in today's market, great improvements can be made in that department, and therein lies Par 3's potential. They are also a relatively young band with time to do anything they please. In other words, even though you won't see Par 3 in the Top Ten next week beside The Police, a feat which they probably haven't thought or cared about, they'll be lurking somewhere taking things one day at a time.

A special NCAA committee has recommended the basketball tournament committee consider expanding the tournament field from 53 to 64 teams, an NCAA official said yesterday. NCAA officials stressed the recommendation actions Tuesday were only recommendations. The recommendations by the special committee on Division I criteria must be approved by the basketball tournament committee, the executive committee, and the NCAA convention. The earliest the tournament field could be expanded from 53 teams would be 1985, said Ted Tow, an assistant NCAA executive director who serves as liaison to the special committee. Mancini successfully defends boxing title

The left-handed Romero had opened a cut under Mancini's right eye in the seventh round and cut the champion over the left in the eighth. The challenger from Peru was giving as well as he got.

Suddenly it was over.

Mancini landed a good double left hook to the jaw that shook Romero early in the ninth round. Then, after missing a wild right, Mancini whipped a left hook to the jaw that dropped Romero on his back. It was obvious to ringsiders that Romero was not going to beat referee Tony Perez' 10-count, and he didn't.

The time of the knockout was 1:56.

It was the 22-year-old Mancini's first title defense since Duk Koo Kim was knocked out in the 14th round and fatally injured last Nov. 13 at Las Vegas, Nev. Mancini had fought a 10-round non-title fight last Feb. 6, outpointing George Feeney, and the ring rustiness was apparent in the champion's performance last night before a crowd of 10,900.

Mancini, who weighed the class limit 135, opened well although he established no clear domination through the first four rounds. Then Romero began coming on and it looked like Mancini's Garden debut might turn out to be more than he bargained for.

Judge Wiso Fernandez of Puerto Rico had it 77-76 for Romero after nine rounds. Judge Yusaku Yoshida of Japan had it 79-77 for Mancini and Judge Ecasio Drake of Panama had it 77-77.

At ringside was Mancini's father, Lenny, who was a lightweight contender in the early 1940's. It was the elder Mancini's first Garden visit since he lost an eight-round decision to Rocky Castellani as an aging middleweight Sept. 19, 1947.

"It will be an emotional night for him," the champion said of his father before the fight. He also made it a dramatic one.

The victory set up a defense by Mancini against Bobby Chacon, the former World Boxing Council super featherweight and featherweight champion, in November or December. Dave Wolf, Mancini's manager, said an agreement had been reached on the fight and a contract will be signed if Mancini won.

In the first four rounds the fighters concentrated on hand feints and upper body movement, but Mancini got in some good body punches and ripped a cut under Romero's left eye in the third round.

In the fifth round, the challenger, who weighed 134 1-2, scored with a couple of good lefts to the head and several right jabs.

After the sixth round, Mancini's trainer, Murphy Griffith, told the champion, "You're not doing anything."

Romero had a good round in the seventh when he landed a couple of straight lefts and a pair of right-lefts to the head in the first half of the round. He also cut Mancini under the right eye and in the next round cut the champion over the left eye as he scored with several good lefts to the head.

Then came the sudden ending in the ninth and Romero, who might have been envisioning leaving the ring as a champion, left it as a loser for the first time in his career. The 23-year-old, who had never before fought outside his native land, is now 30-1-1 with 12 knockouts.

Mancini, making the third defense of the title he won on a one-round knockout over Art Frias on May 8, 1982, in Las Vegas, now is 27-1 with 21 knockouts.

Pirates tie Phils in NL East

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Terry Francona hit a home run, two singles, and drove in two runs as the Montreal Expos beat the Philadelphia Phillies 4-1 last night to salvage the final game of a three-game series.

Bill Gullickson, 15-11, struck out six and walked none and gave up six hits before yielding to Bob James with the bases loaded in the eighth. James struck out Len Matuszek and finished up with three strikeouts against the four batters he faced to earn his fourth save. Kevin Gross, 4-6, took the loss.

Gullickson, 8-1 since the All-Star break, has won four straight decisions. Montreal moved within one-half game of Philadelphia in the National League East. The Phillies began the night in first place, a game in front of Pittsburgh.

Red Sox 7, Orioles 1

BOSTON (AP) — Wade Boggs, the major-league batting leader, featured a 15-hit attack with a double and two singles last night as the Boston Red Sox defeated division-leading Baltimore, 7-1, snapping the Orioles' six-game winning streak.

The loss trimmed Baltimore's American League East lead over Detroit to five games, but the Orioles still have a seven-game advantage in the loss column. The Tigers were idle last night.

Southpaw Bruce Hurst, 12-10, became Boston's winningest pitcher with relief help from Bob Stanley as the Red Sox handed the Orioles only their second loss in the last 10 starts, and fourth in the last 23.

Hurst allowed seven hits, including Cal Ripken, Jr.'s 24th homer, in seven innings before Stanley finished up.

With three hits in five times at bat, Boggs raised his average to .361 in his 61st multiple-hit game of the season. He has had three or more hits 22 times.

Pirates 8, Cubs 4

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dave Parker had three hits while Richie Hebner drilled a pinch-hit grand-slam home run to back Larry McWilliams' route-going performance as the Pittsburgh Pirates moved into a tie for the National League East lead with an 8-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs yesterday.

The victory, the Pirates' fourth in a row, gained them a share of the lead with Philadelphia, which lost to Montreal 4-1. The Expos are a half-game back.

McWilliams, 14-6, struck out nine and walked one and didn't allow the Cubs a hit after Ron Cey's solo homer with one out in the sixth.

The Pirates took a 2-0 lead off

Chuck Rainey, 14-11, in the first when Marvell Wynne walked, Johnny Ray lined an RBI double and Jason Thompson hit a sacrifice fly.

The Pirates made it 3-0 in the third when Parker led off with a single and came around to score when first baseman Carmelo Martinez was charged with an error on an attempted pickoff play.

Dodgers 6, Astros 0

HOUSTON (AP) — Los Angeles pitcher Alejandro Pena scattered five hits and the Dodgers took advantage of a wild performance by Houston pitcher Nolan Ryan en route to a 6-0 victory last night.

Pena, 12-6, completed his fourth game of the year as the the Dodgers extended their National League West lead to four-and-a-half games over Atlanta and eight-and-a-half games over the Astros. He leads the National League in earned run average at 2.18.

Ryan, 13-8, walked six batters, allowed one run to score on a wild pitch, and hit two batters in the Dodgers' three-run fifth inning. Ryan departed after 4 1-3 innings for reliever Mike LaCoss.

Mike Marshall singled, stole second, went to third on Pedro Guerrero's infield hit off Ryan's glove, and scored the first Dodger run on Ryan's wild pitch.

Twins 6, Blue Jays 2

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Ken Schrom beat his former teammates for the third time this season and Dave Engle and Mickey Hatcher both homered to boost the Minnesota Twins to a 6-2 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays last night.

Schrom, 13-7, who was released by Toronto last year, pitched his third complete game to beat Dave Stieb, 15-12, for the third consecutive time. Schrom gave up six hits, walked five and struck out three.

With the score tied 2-2, Engle drove in what proved to be the winning run with a two-out solo homer in the fourth, his eighth of the year.

The Twins added two more runs in the sixth when Hatcher extended his hitting streak to 10 games with a double to center and scored on Engle's single. Engle moved to second on a sacrifice and scored on Houston Jimenez's single.

Mets 6, Cards 4

NEW YORK (AP) — George Foster hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning to snap a tie and give the New York Mets a 6-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals last night.

Foster's 25th homer of the season made a winner of right-hander Ed Lynch, 10-9, who yielded homers to Lonnie Smith and Darrell Porter before leaving in the eighth inning in favor of Jesse Orosco, who earned his 17th save.

With one out in the seventh, Keith Hernandez singled and Foster hit a 1-0 pitch from left-handed reliever Dave LaPoint, 12-9, deep into the left-field bullpen.

Rangers 6, A's 5

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — George Wright clubbed his 18th homer and capped a four-run seventh inning with a two-run double yesterday to pace the Texas Rangers to a 6-5 victory over the Oakland A's.

Wright homered in the first and Bucky Dent hit his first home run of the season in the second to give Texas a 2-0 lead.

But the A's tied it in the fourth. Dwayne Murphy walked and went to second on Davey Lopes' single. Murphy took third on Mike Davis' grounder that forced Lopes at second and Donnie Hill scored Murphy with a sacrifice fly. Garry Hancock followed with a bloop single to shallow left, and Davis scored from first as left fielder Billy Sample tossed the ball lazily to second.

Lopes' two-run single gave the A's a 4-2 lead in the fifth.

After the Rangers' four-run seventh, sparked by Wright's hit, the A's scored a run in the bottom of the frame to close out the scoring.

Dave Schmidt, 3-3, picked up the victory in relief while A's starter Tim Lincecum, 6-9, took the loss. Dave Tobik picked up his eighth save.

Dan Quisenberry lets a pitch fly as he aims for the major league record for saves in a year. He broke the record on Tuesday. (AP Photo)

Liberty and Australia II compete in the America's Cup finals. Liberty holds a 2-0 lead in the best of seven series. (AP Photo)

Liberty takes strong 2-0 lead

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Liberty skipper Dennis Conner caught Australia II on one wind shift and blew it away on another to catapult into a commanding 2-0 lead yesterday in the 25th defense of the America's Cup.

Australia II, however, protested the race, contending that Conner impeded the challenger's progress by illegally crossing its path on the fourth leg of the six-leg course.

The Americans now have turned back Aussie helmsman John Bertrand's innovative 12-meter, one of the most formidable challengers in Cup history, in different conditions on consecutive days.

And for the second day in a row, a close race turned into a rout on the final leg as the Australians, who lost just six of 54 races in summer trials, ran into trouble.

Liberty won yesterday by 1 minute, 33 seconds in calm seas and diminishing but shifting winds that were supposed to be ideal for the Australians' revolutionary winged keel. It won Wednesday by 1 minute, 10 seconds in choppy seas and gusty winds.

Liberty, which crossed the finish line in 3:48:06, now needs just two more victories in the best-of-seven series to keep yachting's most prized trophy in the United States, where it's been since it was first won 132 years ago.

The third race was postponed until Saturday on Rhode Island Sound, after the Australians requested a day to regroup.

Yesterday, the Aussies had to send a man aloft for more than 10 minutes for a mid-race mast correction, and they were slowed at one turn when their adjustable mast appeared to be too straight.

Nevertheless, the challengers still seemed in command in the second race, leading by 21 seconds going into the second upwind leg — supposedly their strength with the winds down to the 10-knot range.

But if Australia II was in control of the race, it wasn't in control of the tricky wind.

The wily Conner, who defended the Cup aboard Freedom against Australia in 1980, switched to a bigger foresail and sailed to the right side of the course, closer to land.

The tactic worked as Liberty picked up an off-shore breeze from the mouth of the Sakonnet River and passed the Aussies.

"They tacked in our water on the second work (windward leg)," said Australian syndicate head Alan Bond.

By the time the boats turned for the fifth leg, downwind to Liberty's favor, Conner had stretched the lead to 48 seconds.

Australia II had been forced to sail at a more perpendicular angle as its bending mast seemed to be standing too straight to expose enough sail for maximum speed.

Liberty held a seemingly safe 31-second lead going to the last leg, 4.5 miles upwind, but the Aussies weren't through.

The wind was changing almost constantly, and Bertrand caught one of the shifts himself to pull almost even. The two boats tacked and tacked, zig-zagging for position, and the Aussies appeared to have the weather edge.

Then the wind changed again, a sudden shift to the east that pushed Liberty to more than a 300-yard lead, and Bertrand was unable to find one last gust that might have pushed the Aussies back into the race.

Sipe leads Browns over hapless Bengals

CLEVELAND (AP) — Brian Sipe, passing for 201 yards, threw his eighth touchdown pass of the year and Mike Pruitt bulled over from one yard out for another score as the Cleveland Browns defeated the winless Cincinnati Bengals 17-7 last night.

Sipe completed 21 of 31 passes and hit on his first nine attempts in the National Football League game, including a 19-yard touchdown pass to Ozzie Newsome that put Cleveland ahead 7-0 in the first quarter.

A pair of Cincinnati mistakes led to two of the Browns' scores as Cleveland opened divisional play. Chip Banks intercepted a pass by Ken Anderson at midfield to start the first Cleveland touchdown drive, and Cincinnati defensive back Ken Riley interfered with receiver Dave Logan on a third-quarter pass to put the Browns inside the Cincinnati 5.

Anderson, playing despite a neck injury aggravated in last Sunday's loss to Buffalo, started slow, but then heated up to direct the Bengals' only scoring drive early in the second quarter.

Anderson hit six-of-six passes for 42 yards on a 71-yard drive climaxed by rookie Larry Kinnebrew's touchdown. The one-yard run came on his first career carry.

Anderson again had the Bengals on the move late in the fourth quarter, marching them from their own 20-yard line to the Cleveland nine before throwing an interception to Clarence Scott in the end zone with 1:33 left in the game.

Anderson finished with 26 completions in 40 attempts for 207 yards with two interceptions. Sipe also was intercepted twice.

The Browns improved to 2-1, while Cincinnati, the defending champion in the American Football Conference Central Division, fell to 0-3.

(approximately five miles) at Ohio State.

According to Collins, there is a definite strategy for today's race.

"The top six or seven runners will stay with the Ohio State leaders until the two-mile mark — at that point our entire pack will attempt to pull away and finish as a group."

In any case, this Ohio State race is viewed as a preparation for next Saturday's home meet with a tougher challenge, Northwestern.

What the results of today's meet will indicate is the potential of this year's team and this year's freshmen, while giving some indication of who will round out the top five behind Cannon, Dillon, and Caron. At this point, Juba and Collins hope to secure the fourth and fifth positions, but Willenbrink, Tyler, Adams, and Maxfield should provide them with a fight to the finish.

No matter who fills the top five positions, however, this year's squad could be Piante's best ever. Maybe then, a few wins might give away the best kept secret in South Bend.

Cross country team ready to start season

By DAVID ROOP
Sports Writer

"Notre Dame track is the best kept secret in South Bend." — Joe Piane.

Rumor has it that this year's Notre Dame cross country team is going to prove that one of Coach Joe Piane's favorite sayings is a mere description of the past.

Fortunately, this year's team has added some new names to this year's already lengthy list of freshman sensations. Led by Mike Collins, a native of Ireland, and Craig Maxfield, a resident of Belville, Ontario, this freshman contingent is prepared to make an immediate impact on this year's team. They will push Tim Cannon, Andy Dillon, Ralph Caron, and Ed Juba for positions among the top five Irish runners.

Rob Durkee, the 1982 Oregon State high school champ, John Furno, and Jeff Van Wie, a top-ranked middle distance man, should also make a valuable contribution to this year's team.

Even with the loss of 1982 co-captains Marc Wozniak and Tim Bartrand, Piane feels that this squad is more solid than last year's group.

"The team came back much fitter than it had in previous years," states Piane. "I'm confident going into Ohio State (today) and I think we have a shot at qualifying for this year's NCAA Championships."

Cannon, last year's top runner, shares captain's honors with Dillon, a senior RA from Morrissey Hall. These two, along with senior pre-med major Caron, should compete for the top spot on the team this year. Juba, Ed Willenbrink, Collins, Jim Tyler, and John Adams will battle for the fourth and fifth point scoring positions.

For those who are unfamiliar with cross country, the lowest team score wins. The score is computed by totaling the place numbers of each team's top five runners.

The cross country team faces some very serious challenges this year. It is a member of the NCAA District 4, which Piane calls "the toughest division in the United States." This district boasts defending national champs Wisconsin, Michigan, the fifth best team in the nation, and the fifteenth-best squads, Purdue and Miami of Ohio.

Basically, the season is comprised of three sections: a "pre-season" composed of dual meets with Ohio State and Northwestern, a regular season with five successive larger meets, and a post-season which includes the NCAA District 4 Championship as well as the NCAA Championships.

Although the pre-season is really an essential part of the season, these two dual meets serve as a good preparation for the more important larger races.

"The key to our season is consistency," concludes Piane. "We have to run solid in a group at the front of the pack in every race. That's what Wisconsin did last year and they crushed everyone they ran against."

Recently, the team has practiced by running about nine miles during the course of their workout each day. Since the Notre Dame campus is not blessed with the cross country runner's delight — hills — the team must drive to a hilly location near Marion High School. Last Friday's workout included a two-mile warm-up and a two-mile "warm down," with the top seven runners completing a four-mile run at a 5:20 mile clip.

Piane reveals, "The pack was talking throughout the workout, not folding underneath the pressure of the heat and the fast pace."

"It is mental toughness that separates the top runners from the rest of the pack."

Thus, it is the coach's responsibility to instill this toughness while the runners log countless miles. Collins cites Piane's positive attitude and encouraging manner as his best coaching tools. However, Piane is quick to mention that it is the team's determination which accounts for their improvement.

This team points to an extremely successful season with this blend of confidence and humility. The first hurdle is today's 8000-meter race

The Notre Dame volleyball team, shown here in action last week, is beginning to overcome the injuries that have plagued the team so far this year. On Wednesday, the

Irish starts to beat injuries

By MIKE SULLIVAN
Sports Editor

The list of injuries read as follows: stress fracture of leg, dislocated shoulder, jammed thumb, tender ankle, and partially dislocated shoulder. There are also a number of assorted minor injuries. In all, three starters are out indefinitely and another is playing wounded.

The football team, right? Wrong. It's the Notre Dame volleyball team.

These injuries have plagued the team for the first two weeks of the 1983 season, sending the team to ten consecutive losses, more than the total number of losses all last year.

However, it appears that the team is settling down finally. By winning two of its last three games, including a split of its first two conference matches, Sandy Vanslager's squad has begun playing as well as it should.

Wednesday's matches against North Star Conference foes Butler and Dayton in Indianapolis were the best efforts that the Irish have made this season. After beating Butler, 15-8, 10-15, 15-3, 7-15, 15-12, the tired team lost to a rested Dayton, 15-8, 12-15, 11-15, 15-11, 15-12.

"The players' performance level has gone up," said Vanslager. "The practices have been a major factor in contributing to their improvement."

"Their transition from offense to defense was very good. Offensively, we hit the ball well. Although, at times, we held back offensively, it wasn't as much as in the past."

Another problem that had been nagging the team was its erratic play. Vanslager had attributed this to a lack of concentration. Despite the distraction of losing so many players to injuries, though, the players seem to be overcoming this problem as well.

"There was very little erratic play this time," Vanslager said. "There were a few times, but not many."

"The concentration level is also getting much better. It's one of the things we've been working on in practice and it shows."

The matches on Wednesday were probably the most important so far this year. Dayton is probably the strongest team in the conference at this point in the season (although, when fully healthy, Notre Dame is stronger). Butler is also a tough team.

The match against Butler lasted for almost two hours as neither side could take two games in a row. The Irish finally put the match away by winning a close fifth game.

After getting a short rest period, Notre Dame found itself back out on the court to take on a Dayton team that had sat and watched the marathon match.

Despite losing the first game, the Irish fought back and came within one game of taking the match. However, the fatigue began to show as the Flyers were able to outlast Notre Dame in the last two games for the win.

The match was so tiring for both sides that Dayton promptly dropped behind Butler, who had time to rest, in the final match of the evening.

For the Irish, the match provided a chance for some of the players who had not received a great deal of playing time. Tracy Bennington started in the place of Kathy McKeown who did not make the trip, and Terese Henken made her second start in a row in place of Mary McLaughlin.

Last year's Most Valuable Player Karen Batters remains out of the lineup and probably will not return until late in the season. She is suffering from a dislocated shoulder and a stress fracture of her leg.

Vanslager was eager to point out how important last week's large home crowds were to her team's performance.

"The fact that there have been large, vocal crowds at our games helped the players adjust to the distractions," she said. "There were some real noisy people at Butler, but we were able to ignore them."

IRISH ITEMS — The split in Indianapolis gives the team a 3-3 dual meet record as Lake Michigan, who was to visit the ACC next Wednesday forfeited. The overall record, including tournaments, is 3-11. . . . The Irish women will try to continue their improvement tomorrow morning against Southwestern Michigan. The match will begin at 10 a.m.

Saint Mary's volleyball wins opener

By KATHY MURPHY
Sports Writer

The Saint Mary's volleyball team captured its first victory in a quick contest against IUSB last night. It was the Belles' season opener, and their first game under new head coach Brian Goralski.

Coach Goralski was pleased with his team's first effort which it won in three straight games, 15-4, 15-4, 15-2.

Goralski commented, "Although this is a young squad, comprised of one senior, four juniors, one sophomore, and seven freshmen, I feel that this will be a promising season for them."

After only two weeks of practice, the Belles were able to dominate IUSB in all aspects of the game. Led by veterans Loret Haney, Miki Maternowski, and Anne Boutton, the Belles passed and served well. However, Goralski was quick to point out that he hoped to improve in each game.

The Belles' next home match is Wednesday, September 21, against Grace College. The game will start at 6 p.m. in Angela.
