Student disturbances cause policy change at Bendix Woods park

By MARY HEILMANN
News Staff

A series of disturbances at Bendix Woods involving Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students have necessitated several changes in the park's policy toward student groups, according to Nancy MacCartney, superintendent of recreation for St. Joseph County Parks.

Non-faculty supervised groups will now be charged an extra $10 per hour for a uniformed county police officer to be in attendance.

The change in policy occurred as a result of a Feb. 4 incident involving students and park employees. According to MacCartney, the behavior of students on the Student Union-sponsored trip "reached the point of violence and total disrespect for the park staff and other park patrons. Alcohol appeared to be the catalyst on this evening and other evenings that students have disrupted the normal park operation."

The disturbance began when park employees tried to restrain students at the top of the tubing hill until the run was clear. Christopher Nye, director of the Bendix Woods Ski Patrol, reported in a letter to Dean of Students James Roemer that "three park employees had physically stationed themselves in the center of the tube run to keep people from going too soon. A group of five or six students formed a line about ten feet back and then the group ran over the attendants, who were fortunately not injured."

Other students ignored orders prohibiting tubing on the ski slopes. When park employees tried to stop them, the students attempted to knock them over by sliding down on the tubes. Several employees, including Mark Mowery, the park's Winter Program Director, sustained minor injuries.

"I was informed that at one point in the evening, a student also punched a tube hill attendant in the face several times and then ran to avoid apprehension. Had Mr. Mowery or myself been present, that student would have gone to jail for assault," Nye wrote to Roemer.

In a return letter, Roemer assured Nye that the administration regrets the incidents which, according to MacCartney, have been occurring throughout the season.

"We will cooperate with you and all park personnel... and we apologise for the serious discourtesies of our students," Roemer said. He maintained, however, that the issue lies with Bendix Woods administrators and the Student Union Social Commission, which has been asked to pay for damages, including broken eyeglasses and torn clothing.

Asked what action the Student Union plans to take, Laurene Powers, director of the Social Commission, replied, "Right now, I'm not sure what we're going to do. When I left Bendix Woods, they had told me that everything was fine. Chances are that not all the employees were down from the slope yet."

"It's not an isolated incident — there have been problems like this for a while. I guess they felt that the Student Union is a key group at Notre Dame and a good place to start to address the issue. I really regret that it happened and was very surprised," said Powers.

MacCartney said that she hopes the preventative measures will be temporary, adding that "when respect for the rules and personnel is evident, this extra precaution will not be necessary. It's very unfortunate that a dozen or so students out of such a large group caused the problems which will now affect everyone."

Investigation fails to discover how Reagan obtained Carter papers

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department said yesterday it had been unable to discover in an eight-month investigation how Ronald Reagan's presidential campaign obtained former President Jimmy Carter's briefing papers in 1980, but said it "uncovered no credible evidence that the transfer violated any criminal law."

The department also said it had found no evidence of "any plan or conspiracy by Reagan election officials to obtain the Carter briefing materials or any other confidential, internal Carter documents."

The department concluded there were no government documents among the briefing materials and that the Reagan camp never had the final version of Carter's briefing materials for his crucial Oct. 28, 1980 debate with Reagan.

But FBI agents reviewing thousands of documents in the files of Reagan campaign officials did find other documents "identified as internal documents of the Carter White House or the Carter campaign."

But the FBI found no evidence of theft or criminal misappropriation of these documents. "In most instances the material in question had been widely disseminated to the press or others and were obtained through wholly proper channels," the department said.

In other cases, it was impossible to determine how these documents were obtained "due to the professed lack of memory or knowledge on the part of those in possession of the documents," the department said.

In neither these documents nor in the briefing materials was there any classified information, the department said.

The department said the FBI interviewed more than 220 people, including President Reagan and high officials of both campaigns. About 1,000 boxes of documents, audio and video tapes were reviewed by the FBI including videotapes of the Reagan debate preparations. Laboratory examinations were conducted on some documents, the department said.

But spokesman Tom DeCair said no polygraph examinations were given, because the investigation never reached that stage. "We closed it down when we determined there was no credible evidence of a crime," he said.

Chileans speak out on oppression

By BARBARA HARDIN
News Staff

"Imagine, tomorrow, not being able to say what you want as a student or teacher," said Professor Jaime Bellalta, a native of Chile, of the oppression in his country.

Bellalta, an architecture professor at Notre Dame, spoke along with another Chilean, Isabel Donoso of Santiago, at a Human Rights lecture last night at Saint Mary's.

The Human Rights lecture series was developed by the Saint Mary's Justice Education Department. According to Esmee Bellalta, coordinator of the department, the lectures are designed to inform teachers and students of the current conditions in oppressed countries.

Donoso, the coordinator of a human rights group in Chile, said that presently the people of Chile are under the rule of a dictator who has taken away the rights they once had under democracy. When the Chileans partake in their non-violent protest of banging pots and pans together in the streets, said Donoso, many are detained by the police, some tortured and some killed.

According to Donoso, "30 percent of the people in Chile receive a salary of $20 a month, and 30 percent are unemployed." Families live together in one house and "most Chileans don't know what it's like to sleep in a bed alone," said Donoso.

Donoso said the Catholic Church has taken an active role in aiding the "oppressed, repressed people of Chile." She explained that lawyers gather with communities to explain their legal rights, prisoners are visited, health problems are dealt with, and an awareness of the suffering that occurs is spread through literature and word of mouth.

Bellalta agreed that the Chilean conditions are "totally inhuman. ... any type of parliament or Congress has been eliminated." Presently, the only type of decision-making party is chosen directly by the government.

Bellalta said Chile is definitely a Catholic country, as 85 to 95 percent of the Chileans are Catholic. He said the government has not been able to break up or take control of the Catholic church, though they have made many efforts to do so. Bellalta, like Donoso, spoke of the Church's major role in aiding citizens whose rights have been taken away.

Benefit show to preview latest in summer fashions

By MIKE KRISKO
Staff Reporter

Student fashion experts, spectators, and critics will have a chance to preview the latest in summer apparel, at a benefit fashion show to be held by the sophomore class the week after spring break. Proceeds for the show will be donated to the Special Olympics.

Brian Welsey, public relations chairman for the show, said "this is the first time that anything like this has been done. We would like to have a big turnout to make this event successful."

Financial success is likely since most of the materials are being donated, said Welsey. "Hudson's, Milady Shop, The Limited, Rich Man, Gilbert's, Redwood and Ross, Brown's Sporting Goods and L.S. Ayres are all donating the use of some of their fashions. There will be no charge for the use of the building.

Merle Norman's is even donating the makeup for the models. We will be charging two dollars per person, so we hope to raise between $300 and $400 from the event."

Welsey credited Fashion Show Chairman Jenny Stepan with the idea for the event. "Jenny said she had been involved in fundraisers of this type before and they were quite successful. The rest of the advisory council liked the idea and decided to support the event."

The council chose "Quest for Gold" as the theme because of the show's beneficiary, the summer Special Olympics.

The models for the show, according to Welsey, are Kathy Murdock, Carolyn Hagan, Susan Curry, Chris Degraff, Anne DuCharme, Terry Kirschman, Julie Dunn, Jeanie Poole, Kevin Moser, Jim Rudser, Mike Roberts and John Coyne.

The exact date and location of the show have not yet been decided.

In Brief

Saint Mary's Little Sib's Weekend will be held April 6-7, according to a decision reached at Wednesday night's meeting of the Programming Board. Detailed plans for the event are not yet final. In addition, a bicycle workshop will be offered to Saint Mary's students on Saturday, Mar. 31, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Students may bring their bicycles to Angela Athletic Facility for servicing and conditioning. "Both parts and maintenance will be offered at a discount," said Lee Ann Franks. Franks also announced that a vending machine committee will be formed to discuss the quality of food offered in the machines. One representative from each dorm will serve on the committee. — The Observer

The sophomore ski trip has been cancelled. Rick Ruehlmann, social commissioner for the class, said that "a lack of interest and bad ski weather" were the reasons for the cancellation. Ruehlmann said he planned to call the 40 students who registered for the trip to give them details about refunds. — The Observer

Negotiators from the White House and Congress resumed talks yesterday on reducing federal budget deficits with no agreement in sight, but plenty of partisan bickering over what to do and who is to blame for the red ink. Meanwhile, the tax-writing committees in the House and Senate began work on their own deficit-reduction packages. In his nationally broadcast news conference Wednesday night, President Reagan — who called for the talks to find a $100 billion "down payment" on eliminating deficits — urged the bargainers to "get down to business." The president also said he does not favor tax increases or military spending reductions as a method of trimming deficits, projected at $180.4 billion in the fiscal 1985 budget Reagan submitted to Congress earlier this month. — AP

Poverty grew sharply between 1979 and 1982, but official estimates may exaggerate the number of poor Americans because the figures ignore such benefits as food stamps and Medicare, according to a Census Bureau study. The nation's poverty rate — the share of people below the official poverty level — could be up to one-third smaller if non-cash benefits for food, housing and medical care were considered income, the report says. But by any calculation, poverty has grown. For 1982, the latest figures available, the bureau estimates that 34.4 million Americans, about 15 percent of the population, lived in poverty. That's up from 11.7 percent in 1979. — AP

A toast to freedom of information

Confused about next year's alcohol policy?

That's not surprising; after all, the alcohol committee has not released any information about what they are considering for next year, nor have they released the information they have collected about Notre Dame drinking habits.

All this year, the Alcohol Committee has been gathering information to determine the extent of the "alcohol problem" on campus and a possible solution to it. While the members of the committee claim that the information they've gathered is very convincing, they will not release it to the students.

I, for one, am tired of hearing "You mean you don't think there's any alcohol problem on campus?" as the committee members' response when the extent of the problem is questioned. The existence of students on this campus who have a drinking problem is not in question. There are. Rather, the question is whether or not the number of students involved is large enough to merit the solutions being considered.

After the extent of the problem is determined, the possible responses must be weighed. Here again, Committee Chairman Father William Beauchamp, as well as other members of the committee, will not reveal any of the options under consideration. The justification for this is that they do not wish to fuel rumors and speculation.

This is a fallacy, however. Rumors are already rampant on campus; the committee would stop these if they said which options were seriously being considered. Reports have circulated several times that the Alcohol Committee had already decided what to do, that the Board of Trustees had approved the decision, and that the report would be made public later that day. As far as anyone on the committee will admit, none of the reports are true.

At the risk of fueling speculation, but with the hope that this will limit the rumors, here are some of the changes that the committee may recommend. There will be some kind of change from the present status quo. And the campus will probably not go completely dry.

Viable options they may be considering include enforcing the state drinking age of 21; banning all hall parties which serve alcohol, but allowing drinking in the rooms; banning all hall parties except in-hall SYRs and formals; strongly enforcing the current rules; and leaving things as they are but having a mandatory counseling program for problem drinkers.

Which of these, if any, the committee will recommend no one can say. In any case, the committee does not make the final decision. They report to the Board of Trustees, who could force some kind of change, throw out the report, or leave the matter up to the administration. The administration also can act against the committee's recommendations, if they see fit to do so.

Students deserve to know what the committee is considering because only students will be affected by its decision. Seven members of the committee are administrators — six are priests or sisters — and one is a faculty member. The two students on the committee, are both seniors, so they will not see the changes that will happen.

No one even knows how the Alcohol Committee will go about making their decision. It may be by consensus, or by majority vote. If the former, the students on the committee can have a large voice in what happens, and at the same time could be held partially responsible.

If only a majority of the commissioners need to agree, Student Body President Brian Callaghan and Hall Presidents' Council Chairman Mike Carlin can suggest policy, but not necessarily have any effect on it. Their hands may be tied.

In the meantime, the students are not able to make plans for next year. Housing contracts have already come due. RA selections will be made before the report is issued. While the committee members hope that some report will be made before the end of the school year, they have not set a deadline on themselves. So it is possible that we may all get a letter this summer...

Dear Student,

The alcohol policy for the 1984-85 school year will be...

Chairman Beth Lavezzorio and her committee have planned a full schedule of events for the weekend, including Saturday's Sports Festivity Day, in which sophomores and their parents can participate in tennis, racquetball, running, or aerobic dance at Angela from 9 a.m. to noon. The Faculty Open House will also be held in Angela from 12:30 p.m.-2:30 p.m.

The Class Mass for sophomores and their parents will be celebrated at 4 p.m. in the Church of Loretto.

Saturday evening there will be a dinner dance at the Century Center. Cocktails will begin at 6 p.m., followed by welcomes from Lavezzorio and College President John Duggan. Dinner and dancing will last from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Sunday morning, a Class Brunch, held in the Saint Mary's cafeteria from 9:30-10:30, will close the festivities.

Lavezzorio said sophomores and their parents are responding to this year's weekend with great enthusiasm. She estimated that over 900 people will attend the dinner dance, which means that over half the class will be participating with their parents.

Most of the parents will travel to Saint Mary's from parts of the Midwest and the eastern seaboard, although some will make the trip from Hawaii, Texas, and California.

Lavezzorio is anticipating a successful weekend and is pleased with the efforts of her co-workers. "Considering the amount of time and work we've put in, I think it'll run smoothly. It should be a memorable occasion for everyone," said Lavezzorio.

Special to The Observer

Twenty percent more Saint Mary's students remain at the College through graduation than the national average for private four-year colleges, according to a study published by the Cooperative Institutional Research Program and the American Council on Education.

Of the freshmen who entered Saint Mary's in 1978, 70.6 percent received a bachelor's degree within four years. At private four-year colleges, 50.5 percent of the freshman class completed requirements for a bachelor's degree on schedule, while the figure for private universities was 48.7 percent. Public four-year colleges had a retention rate of 31.1 percent, and public universities graduated 47.5 percent of the freshman class of 1978 on time.

"We've had remarkable success in keeping our students here," says Saint Mary's College President John M. Duggan. "Our student body is carefully selected through the admission process. Saint Mary's is usually the student's first choice. Our students want to be here."

"Our faculty members work closely with our students and care what happens to them. We work hard to prevent the students from getting into academic trouble. We have a number of checkpoints to catch students when they slip and help them back up again."

The retention rate study was a follow-up of a sample of students who took the ACE Freshman Survey in 1978.

In another portion of the study, the researchers defined selectivity levels by mean Scholastic Aptitude Test composite score ranges. Colleges were divided into four categories: nonselective (less than 950 SAT score), moderately selective (950-1024 SAT score), selective (1025-1074 SAT score) and highly selective (1075 and up). Researchers place Saint Mary's in the selective category, and again the College's retention rate compares favorably.

The national figure for colleges in the selective category was 58.4 percent, 12 points lower than Saint Mary's rate.

The researchers also studied which variables contributed most to retention prediction. Positive factors included high school grades, living on campus as a freshman, self-estimate of obtaining a degree in four years, highest degree planned, adequate preparation in science and estimated parental income.

Max Lerner to discuss presidents

Special to The Observer

Max Lerner, holder of the Welch Chair in American Studies at Notre Dame, will lead a series of discussions on American presidents beginning Feb. 28 in the Center for Continuing Education.

Titled "Wounded Titans: American Presidents — Character and Decisions (1933-1983)," the five-part series opens with a discussion of Franklin D. Roosevelt on Feb. 28. Other programs, all on Tuesday evenings from 7:30 to 10, are: "Truman and Eisenhower," March 13; "John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson," March 27; "Richard Nixon," April 10, and "Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan," April 24.

Lerner, for several years editor of The Nation and currently writing for the Los Angeles Times Syndicate and the New York Post, has known each of the presidents personally. His talks will analyze flaws in their character and leadership.

Lerner is the author of two major books, America as a Civilization and Values in Education.

The series is sponsored by Continuing Education and is intended as an opportunity faculty members and students to study an issue or idea outside their special field of interest.

Shultz worried policy in Lebanon could harm US interests in Mideast

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State George P. Shultz was described yesterday as worried that the failure of U.S. policy in Lebanon could cause considerable harm to American interests throughout the Middle East, and busy developing a strategy to reassert U.S. influence in the region.

One key Shultz aide said he was willing to accept the blame for that failure — if someone has to take the blame — even though President Reagan declared that Shultz "has not failed" in Lebanon.

But this official said the Lebanon situation "is infinitely more complicated than that" and that "all along the way, there have been only limited options we could take."

This aide and other senior State Department officials spoke of Shultz's views on Lebanon and the Middle East only on the condition they not be identified.

Events in Lebanon have fueled speculation that Shultz might not stay at the State Department beyond this year.

At his news conference Wednesday night, the president dismissed as "disgraceful" a suggestion by Rep. Bill Alexander of Arkansas, the deputy Democratic House leader, that Shultz should resign.

Reagan said Shultz was not to blame for events in Lebanon, and declared he would not accept his resignation if Shultz submitted one.

Aides to Shultz said he won't resign now but they are uncertain about his plans if Reagan is re-elected. Shultz has not signaled his intentions, even to his closest advisers, one of them said.

The near-collapse of the U.S.-backed government of President Amin Gemayel has been a "personal disappointment" to Shultz, one official said, adding that Shultz is more concerned about broader issues in the Middle East.

"He thinks the stakes are much greater than people generally appreciate," said the aide, adding that the question now being asked is, "Forget Lebanon, how will it play out in Jordan?"

Shultz is described as particularly worried that American credibility might be eroded throughout the Middle East, with events in Lebanon undermining the confidence of moderate Arab nations in Washington's ability to follow through on its commitments.

One official said Shultz's concern centers on Gemayel's plan to abrogate the May 17, 1983, troop withdrawal agreement which Shultz helped negotiate between Lebanon and Israel. Shultz, he said, is worried "over the impact of the failure of a negotiation, a negotiation that was a success, and is now a victim" of the unraveling of U.S. policy in Lebanon.

Shultz is said to believe that abrogation of the agreement would make a solution that much more difficult to achieve in Lebanon.

Although it is unclear whether Shultz will stay as secretary of state in any second Reagan term, several high officials at the department have made plans to quit this year.

Freshman engineers face impossible schedule

It's never been so little fun to be a freshman engineer than it is in 1984 at Notre Dame. In the name of saving the country from scientific illiteracy, blue-ribbon panelists — calling themselves educators — have convinced the nation that American schools sure don't build 'em like they used to, that Johnny will never be able to read, write or run a computer quite like Ivan, his eastern counterpart.

Here at Notre Dame, the College of Engineering has responded to this pressure with a tougher, more comprehensive curriculum effective for this year's freshmen. While the intention to beef-up the curriculum is admirable, freshmen engineers who are serious about their work are finding themselves overworked, over-tested, overquizzed and sleepy.

First-semester grades for freshmen engineers took a nose dive compared to other years, one rector said, and 58 students (out of 561) had dropped out of the college by February — three times as many as this time last year.

The freshman engineer is treated to two semesters each of physics, calculus and chemistry. Chemistry lab is taken second semester, and an introductory engineering course is taken during one of the semesters. In addition, two semesters are required in English composition and in physical education. Only one class is reserved for a history or social science.

That adds up to 34 credit hours, one more than the old curriculum. On paper, however, the numbers are deceiving. Physics, an addition to freshman year that replaced a social science elective, had once been reserved for sophomore year when students are better able to handle the calculus involved. It was a four-credit class with weekly tutorials; now it is somehow considered a 3.5-credit course even though the tutorial has expanded to a full-blown lab.

With the new curriculum, freshmen indicating an interest in engineering are pushed head first into the technical world. For some freshmen, it has been a nightmare. Calculus requires daily homework and three semester exams; chemistry includes weekly quizzes; physics has four tests and weekly quizzes; physics lab requires six lab reports; Engineering Concepts requires weekly homework, quizzes, three tests and computer projects that keep freshmen in the computer lab at all hours of the day. There are books to read and papers to write in the composition courses, and as a final blow, attendance in physical education is mandatory even though the class is worth no credit.

Things won't get any easier when these freshmen become upperclassmen. Physics was tossed into freshman year to make room for more requirements in the engineering curriculum. On the average, the five engineering departments now require six more credit hours with civil and chemical engineering hit the hardest. In many cases, engineering students will take six technical courses in the same semester, up to 18.5 credits during some semesters.

It's time to say enough is enough. In the race to make engineers know more about engineering, electives in the liberal arts and business have been forgotten. Engineers are allowed two free electives in all their four years here. One can certainly question whether engineers — especially freshmen — will have the time or energy to meet the new requirements. But more fundamental, one has to wonder where Notre Dame's pledge to liberal education has gone.

We sympathize with the College of Engineering's yearning to make the curriculum more demanding and comprehensive. The battery of changes, such as requiring aerospace engineers to take Heat Transfer or adding one more semester each of organic and physical chemistry to the load of chemical engineers, together add up to one way of making the Notre Dame engineer more competitive in industry.

But before jumping on the bandwagon of cramming more into a curriculum than can fit into four years, it must be remembered that engineering is more than just crunching equations and staying up past 2 a.m. The Notre Dame engineer has always been competitive because of the special dimension of education subtly offered here.

We are afraid the new curriculum will keep engineers too busy to realize that.

Alcohol ban cannot solve problem

It is called the Committee on the Responsible Use of Alcohol. Its name may sound harmless, but this organization is presently debating changes in policy which could dramatically alter Notre Dame life. If this does indeed become a dry campus, there will be many repercussions and it may not even make a dent in the alcohol abuse problem. In some instances, campus prohibition may actually exacerbate the situation.

Randy Fahs

The thing I find most appalling is that the committee is debating under a veil of secrecy. At the first lecture in the Accent Series, the committee chairman, Father William Beauchamp, wouldn't even allow an open forum for discussion. He arrogantly replied that there would be "at least a question period, I don't know if we'll give answers or not."

America prides itself on being a nation which encourages frank and open exchanges between the government and the governed. The University's leadership prefers to ignore these time honored practices. The Administration continues to make campus policy in the secrecy of their ivory tower (or should I say Golden Domed Cloister?).

It is irresponsible to make such decisions without a deep study of the problem. Such a study should involve campus surveys to find the nature of the alcohol problem, its extent, and what might be done to curb its ill effects without spawning new and unwanted consequences.

The people conducting and analyzing this study should come from a cross section of administrators, faculty members and students. In addition, this panel should be heavily laden with people trained in addressing alcohol-related problems.

The mere fact that someone is an administrator, a student body president, or a priest, does not make them qualified to be an expert on problems of alcohol abuse. Also, one wonders what this committee is trying to hide behind their wall of secrecy.

It wouldn't surprise me a bit if the committee came to a decision and sprung it on the campus at a time when students would be unable to respond effectively. Notre Dame does not like public outcry or demonstrations against official University policy.

The decision probably will be made public immediately prior to break or exam week. At these times the students would be paralyzed by other concerns and unable to mount a unified and credible protest.

The time for action is now, not after a decision has been reached. While debate is still going on, the minds of the people on the committee can be swayed, but after a public statement has been released, the policy will become frozen in the minds of the administration and change will become nearly impossible.

Our student leadership is partially paralyzed with Brian Callaghan being given a gag rule by the committee. His co-optation is not his own fault. It is better that he be in on the meetings to communicate his personal views as a student, than to have no student representative at all.

We need a unified voice and I suggest that it come from the residence halls by way of Hall Presidents' Council. This group can coordinate and articulate what the student want.

To ease the problem of alcohol abuse we need a three-pronged approach: 1) There has to be an increased awareness of alcohol and the effects of its abuse. 2) Encourage the responsible use of alcohol in social settings. 3) Identify and help those people who have alcohol-related problems. A dry campus will accomplish none of these things.

WHAT TIME IS IT, BOYS AND GIRLS?

P.O. Box Q

Dear Editor:

Presently I am shocked over the rumor that the University of Notre Dame is going to become a 21 campus. I grieve for the ND/SMC students, who are likely to be killed or seriously injured because of this decision.

Surely the committee does not expect students under 21 years of age to sit in their rooms on a Saturday night sipping soda and watching the ever-stimulating Dukes of Hazard.

In making their decision they were obviously concerned with both the alcoholic and the abusive drinker. However, with the new policy, I sincerely believe that the number of these will not diminish. Instead of confining themselves to their dorm and room, these people will climb into their cars and take to the streets, creating a far more dangerous situation for a far greater number of people, including the innocent.

The University may become indirectly the butchers of its own ND family. I regret that I cannot offer any solution to the alcohol abuse problem, however, I know that a 21 campus is a step in the wrong direction.

I know that next year I will certainly join the mobs of students heading off-campus to get to the social life. (Which is not, contrary to the committee's conception of student social life, synonymous with excessive drinking.)

All I can say is that I hope to God that it will not be my parents who are awakened at 4:30 in the morning by a phone call informing them that their son has been killed by a drunken motorist.

Letters to a Lonely God

The Christian soldier

by Rev. Robert Griffin
features columnist

During Vietnam, I did my share of protesting, beating the drum for peace, passing out roses at Mass. I was supporting young people whose anger with the war was greater than my own. I was also a campus minister answerable to ROTC cadets who had consciences too. I didn't want them to feel rejected because of their opinions of a controversial war.

Steve, who had lost a brother in Vietnam, belonged to Army ROTC in the years after the war. He loved to write articles defending the "just war" theory, the idea of the "Christian soldier," and the appropriateness of having ROTC at Notre Dame; unfortunately, he did it badly, because he was a long-winded bore. I hated being lectured on how an officer looks after the welfare of his men. A twenty-year old has no right to be so pompous.

Steve, after a tour of duty in Korea, left the army, convinced that when war came, we would lose to the Russians. Lately, in reading, I've run across ideas that remind me of Steve. I'm ready with the topics for a conversation with Steve, if he lets me get in a word edgewise.

World War I, which killed 17 million people, divided the world into "before" and "after," converting the spiritual landscape into Eliot's Wasteland. At the Battle of the Somme, the British walked upright toward the German line, each man carrying 66 pounds of equipment. The enemy cut them down with machine guns. A German eye witness said: "The British came walking, as though they were going to the theater. We felt they were mad." It was simply a massacre. The battle was costly in illusions too. The cream of British manhood was shattered in less than six hours. A foot soldier said: "From that moment all my religion died."

Faulkner, accepting the Nobel Prize, said: "Man must teach himself that the basest of all things is to be afraid; and, teaching himself that, forget it forever, leaving no room in his workshop for anything but the old verities of the heart: love, honor, pity, pride, compassion, sacrifice..."

Freeman Dyson, writing in last week's "New Yorker," notes: pacifist movements flourished after WWI; disarmament programs enjoyed wide support. The fear of a repetition of WWI was almost universal. But, human beings are not willing to let their lives be ruled very long by fear. Pride, anger, and impatience are stronger passions than fear. A deep force in the human spirit drives us to fight for our freedom and hang the consequences. Even the fear of nuclear holocaust is not strong enough to prevail against this force.

If we want to save the world from nuclear war, we must begin winning over the soldiers. It is not enough to organize scientists, physicians, clergymen, or even mothers. We need to persuade the soldiers in all countries that they cannot fight decently with nuclear weapons. The elimination of nukes must be presented as a response to the demands of military honor and self respect, not fear. If soldiers can be turned against nuclear weapons, then civilians and politicians will be able to campaign for disarmament without being considered cowardly or unpatriotic.

Warriors have a tradition of marching into battle to defend the honor of the tribe. Pacifism is another tradition with a long, honorable history. The Quakers, allowing no authority to come between the conscience and God, refuse to bear arms. The great achievement of the Quakers was the abolition of slavery. It was not the work of Quakers alone, but the earliest agitators were mostly Quakers.

A recently published book tells the story of a French village that chose the path of nonviolent resistance against Hitler. A German major, who happened to be a Catholic, spared the village, afterwards saying: "This kind of resistance had nothing to do with violence, nothing to do with anything we could destroy with violence." You die for your beliefs, apparently uselessly, but your death reaches out and touches your enemies, so that they begin to behave like human beings. Some of your enemies are converted into friends. Finally even the most hardened of your enemies are persuaded to stop their killing. It happened like that, once upon a time in a French village. George Bernard Shaw put the question at the end of his play "Saint Joan": "O God that madst this beautiful earth, when will it be ready to receive Thy saints? How long, O Lord, how long?"

If we have to fight wars and muster armies, I would prefer officers who had the advantages of a Christian education. I always agreed with Steve that ROTC rightfully belongs at Notre Dame.

A festival of

by Doug Murphy
features staff writer

In what should be the dead of winter, comes a week as revitalizing as the first day over 30 degrees — the Sophomore Literary Festival!

Starting this Sunday and continuing through Saturday March 3, Notre Dame will play host to six figures of the literary world: John Engels, Leon Forrest, Mary Howard, Joel Oppenheimer, Chaim Potok and Ntozake Shange. These authors will read from their works, hold informal workshops with students, and mingle with students and others at receptions held in their honor. The entire University community is invited to these events. This year's guests will join such hallowed names as Norman Mailer, Kurt Vonnegut, William Buckley, and George Plimpton. There is no admission charge at any of the events.

As the name may signify, the Sophomore Literary Festival is organized entirely by sophomores. Planning begins almost a year in advance. The students contact the authors, set up transportation, accommodations, meals and receptions; they are responsible for the whole show. This year, the planning committee is composed of a core of eight sophomores, who direct approximately 30 other students in planning the festival.

Christine Harrington and Patrick Manson typify the enthusiasm on the committee. One of Harrington and Manson's goals for the 1984 festival is to make the show more accessible to the student body at large.

"We're having the receptions on campus in the halls this year. In the past they were held off-campus. This way, students will be encouraged to attend," Harrington said.

"We would like to play up the idea of the 'festival,' with plenty of excitement and spirit," added Manson.

Many different things will be attempted at this year's Festival. Heather O'Shea, chairwoman of the planning committee, will oversee special publicity projects aimed at gaining a greater awareness of the event among students.

"The basic drawing classes of Professors Moira Geoffion and Dale Malner were especially helpful to us. We can't wait to reveal their work," Harrington reported.

Now in its seventeenth year, the festival began in 1967 as the result of one sophomore's interest in William Faulkner. The student organized faculty presentations on Faulkner that year. The next year, actual literary figures were invited to share their works, and each year since then, the Festival has grown in size and sophistication. If the enthusiasm and dedication of the sophomore planning committee is any indication, this year's festival should be one of the best yet.

A host of new ideas and presentations have been added to the schedule. Saturday, March 3, for example, will feature students reading from their own works, chosen through a campus-wide contest in the fall. The various evening receptions after each author's reading, will be held in dorms, affording students the opportunity to talk to the authors in a more informal setting. The different workshops, as well, will be a chance to question the

Leon Forrest

Leon Forrest is not one to limit himself. He can describe himself as playwright, and a novelist. Presently at Rice University, Forrest comes from the Rice school of writers and frequently employs a consciousness style of prose. His major works are More Ancient Than Eden and The Black Man's Burden. His latest publication is titled Two Wings.

Joel Oppenheimer

Although Joel Lester Oppenheimer admits that he has been influenced by Olson Creeley and Alan Ginsberg, both who have appeared at previous Sophomore Literary Festivals, he claims that William Carlos Williams has been his main mentor. Oppenheimer was born in Yonkers, N.Y. and attended Cornell University, the University of Chicago and Black Mountain College. Since 1969 he has been a poet-in-residence at the City College of New York. He was formerly the editor of Kulccher and contributes regularly to The Village Voice. Oppenheimer is probably best known for his poetry in which he often employs a dialogue or monologue scheme featuring the vernacular. To his credit are several collections of poetry: The Love Bit and Other Poems, Sirventes on a Sad Occurrence, The Woman Poems and Names, Dates, and Places. He has written a play, "The Great American Desert," and a short story, "Pan's Eyes."

Ntozake Shange

A native of New Jersey, Ntozake Shange and received a Masters of Arts degree from Southern California. She has taught at Rice University. Presently she is teaching at the University of California. Shange broke into the literary scene with a collection of poems titled For Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide/When the Rainbow is Enchanted. Her play Sassafras, Cypress, and Indigo performed the everyday trials of black women in a local theater. It has been adapted for Broadway.

The son of Notre Dame graduate Norbert Engels, John Engels also attended ND. Having earned a Masters of Fine Arts degree from the University of Iowa in writing, the younger Engels now teaches at Saint Michael's College in Burlington, Vt. Recently he was awarded the New England Review and Bread Loaf Quarterly 1983 Narrative Poetry Prize, and a National Endorsement for the Arts Fellowship for 1984. Engels' major works include: The Homer Mitchell Place, Signals From the Safety Coffin, Blood Mountain, and Vivaldi in Early Fall.

Chaim Potok

Raised as an Orthodox Jew, Chaim Potok draws from his ancestry for his writing. In The Chosen and The Promise he relates the tribulations of a young Jewish boy. His strength lies in the universality of his message; however, he does not restrict the reader to a closed world. Potok earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in English at Yeshiva University and studied at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America. He has served as national director of the Leaders Training Fellowship and was awarded a Ph.D. in philosophy from the University of Pennsylvania. Besides The Chosen and The Promise, Potok has also written My Name is Asber Lev, In the Beginning and The Book of Lights.

Mary Howard

Mary Howard is a short story writer. Her most well-known work is a short story titled "Father Me, Father Me Not." A collection of short stories published under the same title is also to her credit. Howard is a professor at Iowa State University.

Warriors

success during the second half of the season, adding 7.3 points per game.

Leading Marquette's attack from the backcourt is 6-6 sophomore Kerry Trotter. Trotter, who also sees some playing time as a forward, is the team's second-leading scorer, with an 11.4 average. He also has helped out the Warriors from the line, hitting 74 percent of his free throws.

Trotter's mate at the guard position is Mandy Johnson. The six-foot junior, who is not related to Dwayne, has added 8.3 points per game to the Warriors' scoring.

The first players off the bench for Marquette probably will be 6-5 Terry Reason (6.7 ppg), who plays both guard and forward, and 6-8 front-line player Vic Lazzaretti (5.2 ppg).

The Irish probably will match up to the Warriors with what has become the regular starting lineup since the loss of Kempton and Jojo Buchanan to injuries. That lineup has Jim Dolan and Donald Royal at the forward positions, Ken Barlow at center, and Joe Howard and Tom Sluby in the backcourt.

Sluby, the senior captain who will be playing his last regular-season home game tomorrow, is scoring at a clip of 17.5 points per game.

Other Irish players to watch are subs Joseph Price, Scott Hicks, and Cecil Rucker. Phelps says that he will be counting on good games from these bench players tomorrow.

"Hicks and Price have got to be factors," the Notre Dame coach says, "especially if Marquette zones us."

Phelps says that his injury-plagued team is finally beginning to play well with the healthy players available.

"We're just playing with nine guys," Phelps says, "so we don't worry about Kempton or Buchanan anymore. They (the players) are starting to believe in themselves. They're playing their roles and doing the things they can do."

"It's our last home game," Phelps continues. "Obviously, we want to play well — especially the seniors, Rucker and Sluby."

Phelps adds a plea to the students to help make tomorrow's game a good one for the Irish. The Notre Dame coach asks that all of the fans refrain from throwing anything onto the court during the game.

"Please don't throw anything on the court," Phelps asks. "Someone could get hurt, we could get a technical, and we should show more class."

Tomorrow's game very well could be one of those games in which anything can happen, but one thing is almost certain — it will be exciting.

Today and tomorrow

Wrestlers at NCAA Regionals

By JOE BRUNETTI
Sports Writer

With the regular season over, the Notre Dame wrestling team will compete at the NCAA Regionals in Terre Haute today and Saturday. The top three finishers in each weight class plus four wild cards will advance to the NCAA Finals March 8-10 in New Jersey.

The Irish are pinning their hopes on captain Phil Baty, Mark Fisher, John Krug, and Mike Golic to make the Nationals.

But, the Irish compete in the West Region, which contains top wrestling schools like Arizona State and Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo. It is often tougher to make it to the Nationals than it is to do well at the Nationals.

Irish coach Tihamer Toth-Fejel is going into the meet cool, calm, and collected.

"I like not to have expectations," says Toth-Fejel. "If you don't win, then you're disappointed. If you do, then it's no big deal. I don't like to put pressure on my guys."

Fisher, a senior, will hold Notre Dame's hopes at 126. Once again, Fisher will have to deal with rival Tom Pecora of Marquette. Fisher beat Pecora last weekend, 8-4, in a tri-meet at the ACC to give Fisher a 2-1 career mark against his Marquette foe. The win should seed Fisher ahead of Pecora, which would give him an advantage to make Nationals.

"If he doesn't get hurt and wrestles hard," says Toth-Fejel of Fisher, "he should do well."

A lack of adequate practice time because of late afternoon classes could hinder Fisher's performance.

"He's been missing out on a lot of drilling," Toth-Fejel says. "That's bad because then he can't work on his mistakes."

Krug has just come off an impressive win against Purdue last weekend. The 167-pound sophomore has been a mainstay for the Irish all year long, and, after a good week of practice, he should do well.

"This week he has looked really skilled," praised Toth-Fejel. "If he doesn't worry about anything and just wrestles, something good should happen."

Heavyweight Mike Golic is a strong contender to make the Finals after being seeded second in last year's meet as a sophomore. However, he couldn't compete last year because of a concussion. This year the heavyweight division contains many of the same wrestlers as last year, so Golic's chances look even better.

"He's healthy," says Toth-Fejel. "But, he needs to set up better. I also wish that he would have wrestled more matches this year."

Golic has only wrestled twelve times this year, so fatigue could be a factor.

Baty would have an excellent shot at Nationals if it weren't for a knee injury. The knee kept him out of last weekend's tri-meet, and he couldn't practice Wednesday. For this reason, he is a big question mark for the Irish.

Toth-Fejel is going to have the trainers at Indiana State do a special wrap on Baty's knee that will allow him to wrestle. If he can't wrestle, though, senior Matt Brown will take his place at 177.

Toth-Fejel will have a surprise for the other schools at the meet: Scott Biasetti. The 142-pound freshman probably won't get to the Finals, but he should create some noise.

"Biasetti is going to surprise some people," says Toth-Fejel. "And he may get a pin or two."

The Irish may not win their region, but, with the talent they have, they should at least stir things up.

Excels in two sports

Golic a winner in wrestling also

By JOE BRUNETTI
Sports Writer

The two-sport athlete is a rare commodity in college athletics. The high level of competition makes it difficult for an athlete to excel in one sport, let alone two. But, junior Mike Golic has excelled both on the football field and the wrestling mat.

Often athletes excel at two sports in high school, but are unable to compete in both at the college level. That hasn't stopped Golic.

"When I came here, Coach Faust said that if I wanted to wrestle, I could," says Golic. "I'm happy I did because of how well it ties in with football."

Golic likes the way that football and wrestling complement each other.

"Wrestling and football are like one," Golic says. "But I think that wrestling helps football more than football helps wrestling."

"Wrestling helps your endurance, quickness, foot speed, balance, and leverage. There are a number of things that you can do on the mat which you can incorporate on the field in a one-on-one situation."

Although he says he likes football more, Golic admits that he really enjoys wrestling.

"I love it and I want to do it for as long as I can," says the Dillon Hall junior. "I like the one-on-one competition with another person. In football if you make a mistake it may go unnoticed, but in wrestling it's you against another guy. You either win or lose because of something you do."

Golic's interest in wrestling started by watching his brother Bob wrestle. Bob both wrestled and played football for Notre Dame, and he now plays football for the Cleveland Browns in the NFL.

"My brother Bobby started me in grade school," says the Irish heavyweight. "Then I started watching him in high school. I started watching him when I was in the eighth grade just to see if I'd like it, and it turned out that I loved it."

As a high school wrestler, Golic posted an incredible 74-14 record at St. Joseph High School in Willowick, Ohio. He also placed third in the state wrestling tournament.

After being recruited by such top football schools as Penn State, UCLA, Alabama, and USC, Notre Dame remained his first choice.

"I was exposed to it through Bobby and Greg (a brother who also plays football for Notre Dame)," says Golic. "I came here to watch Bobby and Greg (play football). They introduced me to people here, and I really liked the people and the school."

Golic didn't wrestle his freshman year at Notre Dame so that he could take some time off after football. Wrestling for his first time on the college level last year, Golic posted a shining 24-2-1 mark for the Irish as the lone Notre Dame heavyweight.

"I really had no idea what to expect in college wrestling," comments Golic. "Even after watching Bobby I still didn't know what to expect. I wasn't sure what was going to happen."

Golic opened his collegiate career last year against Valparaiso. Not only did he win his match, but Golic broke the school record for the fastest pin with a pin just 14 seconds into the match. The old record of 19 seconds had been set in the 1971-72 season by Mike Fanning.

"Bobby helps my moves," Golic says. "Greg gets my head going and gets me a little mean. Before the match (against Valparaiso), Greg got me going real good. I used a move Booby taught me, and the guy just fell right. It was a lot of luck, too."

Golic's size, 6-5 and 250-pounds, provide him with an advantage on the mat. It also complements his unique style.

"I think being taller is an advantage because it allows you to use your leverage a little better," says Golic. "I like to shoot, and most heavyweights aren't used to that. So I try to use shooting and quickness in my style instead of going upper body and using strength on these guys."

This year Golic has only wrestled in twelve matches because of a shoulder injury from football and the Liberty Bowl. But he has been superb when he has wrestled, posting an 8-0 record in dual meets and a 11-1 mark overall. His one loss came in the National Catholic Collegiate Tournament.

"The one loss is something not to be happy about," says Golic. "Losing just doesn't sit well with me because of the way I was brought up. My father taught me that when you do something you do it to be the best at it. When you lose, you fail somewhere."

Having only wrestled twelve matches this year has hurt Golic's conditioning, and his performance at Regionals this weekend may be hampered by fatigue.

"I have to try and get through them (the Regionals), and not make myself get tired, if that's possible," Golic says. "It's a mind game now. I'm not in the shape I should be in, so the mental aspects are going to come into it now."

Last year Golic was seeded second at the Regionals, but he could not compete because of a concussion he suffered only a few days before the meet. He would like to make it to the Nationals, but, in order to do that, he must finish in the top three in the heavyweight division.

"I'm going for that (Nationals)," says Golic. "That's the goal I'm setting for myself. I have a positive attitude that I'll do well and go to Nationals."

Golic's attitude on burn-out, a problem that most athletes suffer from, is unique.

"Sometimes I get worn-out, but then I try to realize that I'm not here for that long of a time," comments Golic. "Four years is a shot in the dark compared to the rest of your life, so I'm trying to do as much as I can before I graduate."

Golic would like a football career in the future, but he is not counting on it, as indicated by his serious approach to academics.

"If the opportunity comes up to keep playing football, I'd like to do that," says the management major. "If not, I'll use the degree I'll get from here and find a job in the business world."

"Academics is always first," Golic says. "You have to put time into it academically. That's always been something my father's reminded me about."

Two similarly inconsistent teams collide as Marquette invades ACC

By PHIL WOLF
Sports Writer

When some basketball teams get together, almost anything can happen.

Tomorrow's game between Notre Dame and Marquette at the ACC appears to be one of those matchups. The two teams have similar records and both have shown some inconsistency this season.

The Irish, 16-10, certainly have seen some good times and some bad times this season. After upsetting fifth-ranked Maryland, Notre Dame dropped five of its next seven games, including a streak of four in a row.

The Warriors, now 15-9, went 7-8 before turning their season around.

That turnaround came with a 74-69 victory over South Carolina that started a streak in which Marquette won eight of nine games, including a five-point decision over Louisville.

"Please don't throw anything on the court. Someone could get hurt, we could get a technical, and we should show more class."

— Digger Phelps

Wednesday night, the Irish squeaked by Manhattan to break their four-game losing slump, while the Warriors dropped one in overtime to Xavier by 14 points to halt a four-game winning streak.

Notre Dame coach Digger Phelps says that Marquette's loss last night is not indicative of what the Warriors are able to do.

"Marquette is a very unpredictable basketball team," Phelps says. "They can beat Louisville, then turn around and lose to Xavier. I think you'll see the team that beat Louisville here Saturday."

Phelps said yesterday that the Xavier loss may even help the Warriors.

"That (loss) is only going to inspire them coming in here," he said. "They'll play with a lot of emotion."

In addition to that emotion, the Warriors have a large store of talent. Coach Rick Majerus has three players with scoring averages in the double digits and a couple of others who are not far behind.

The Warriors' leading scorer is forward Dwayne "DJ" Johnson. The 6-6 junior is averaging 14.1 points per game on 53 percent shooting from the floor. In addition, Johnson pulls down an average of 6.7 rebounds per game for Marquette.

Joining Johnson on the front line is 6-7 forward Marc Marotta. Marotta, a two-time Academic All-American, has been contributing an average of 10 points and 6.5 rebounds in each Marquette outing.

Rounding out the big men is the biggest of the Warriors. At 6-10, 245-pounds, center Tom Copa resembles Notre Dame's injured "rock" in the middle, Tim Kempton. Copa, who is only a freshman, has been instrumental in Marquette's

Women close at home

Tomorrow night's women's basketball game between Notre Dame and Xavier will be the last opportunity to see Mary DiStanislaio's team in action in the ACC this season. The Irish, who will finish the season with four consecutive road games, must pick up a win over the Musketeers of Coach Laurie Massa if they hope to have any chance of finishing over .500 for the season. They presently have a 10-13 record.

The game will also mark the final ACC performance for co-captain Theresa Mullins and Jenny Klauke. The two seniors were members of DiStanislaio's first team at Notre Dame, and Klauke also has the claim of being the first woman to receive an athletic grant-in-aid to attend Notre Dame.

As far as Xavier is concerned, the Irish must stop the Musketeers' high-scoring front line of Jo Ann Osterkamp, Judy Smith, and Stacey Land. The trio is combining for an average of almost 43 points and 16 rebounds a game. Osterkamp leads the scoring with her 16.8 average, while Smith is Massa's leading rebounder, pulling down more than eight rebounds a game.

The Xavier backcourt is filled by seniors Chris Hart and Ann Clarke, with freshman Shannon Sowers coming off the bench. Hart's specialty is passing to her teammates inside (five assists per game), but she is also the biggest offensive threat of the three as she averages about seven points a game.

Story of a season gone awry

With a relatively poor 16-10 record and hopes for an NCAA Tournament bid long gone, one would expect life to be miserable for Digger Phelps' basketball team.

Just think. Only three weeks ago, things were going great for the team as it was riding a five-game winning streak, including a big upset of then-No. 5 Maryland, and had boosted its record to an impressive 14-5.

Then the season blew up. Tim Kempton developed severe leg problems and Jim Dolan was forced to play with painful bursitis in his toe. Even the outstanding play of Tom Sluby has not been enough to keep the Irish from dropping five of the last seven games.

However, life is anything but miserable in the basketball office these days. In fact, Phelps is probably more relaxed than he has been in a good while. Maybe he has mellowed after 13 years at Notre Dame, but he also realizes that he has no control over the team's two major problems — injuries and awful foul shooting. He also knows that two years from now, he should have one of the top teams in the country.

It is hard to say that this Notre Dame team is "star-crossed," but there always seems to be something to keep the young team from putting everything together. Early in the season, it was a lack of confidence and a lack of a court leader like John Paxson. The team seemed to come apart at the worst times, usually at the foul line. Finally, over the semester break, Sluby took over as the person to turn to when the team needed a basket, and Joe Howard came off the bench to act as a spark plug. After losing to Washington at the foul line, the team took off, with the win over Maryland showing the Irish at their best.

After the Maryland game, a tournament bid looked like a good bet. But that quickly changed when Kempton, Jojo Buchanan, and Dolan all became hobbled with injuries. Kempton's injury was the most damaging, however. He may not have the best hands in the world, but, as Phelps said after the DePaul game, he is the "rock" of the team. His incredibly physical play under the basket was making rebounding easier for players like Dolan and Ken Barlow. He would take two opponents out of each play and was the major reason that Notre Dame had one of the highest rebounding margins in the country.

With Kempton's 6-9, 240-pound body out of the lineup, the Irish have been unable to play the tough, physical game that had carried them to the 14-5 record. Quickly, all the momentum that the team had gained was lost. Notre Dame is now a team of lean front-line players trying to play the same type of game that it played with a bulkier front line. As the second half of the DePaul game showed, the Irish do not have the ability to dominate the boards anymore — at least not against a decent team.

With such problems like injuries and poor foul shooting, it would be easy just to say that it wasn't Notre Dame's year. But you still can't help but wonder what the team could have done with a more rapid style of play. After all, most of the current players seem better suited for a quick transition game. Sluby, Cecil Rucker, and Howard all came from the run-and-gun high school leagues around Washington, D.C. Scott Hicks, Donald Royal, and Barlow also are used to a quick pace. Even Dolan, who is not known for his speed and agility, could fit in because he is an excellent passer for a big man.

If there is one major criticism of Phelps, it is that he takes players out of their style of play and makes them play the slower, defense-oriented game which is Notre Dame's trademark. If the team was winning consistently, nobody would complain, but this year will be the third in a row that the team doesn't go to the NCAA Tournament.

This is not to say that a faster pace would produce any better success, but, at this point of the season, it might not hurt to see what would happen. Notre Dame undoubtedly will be offered a spot in the NIT even if it finishes 16-12. Chances are that the Irish will even get to play a round or two at home, especially since the student body will be here for the first round. And, with speedster Dave Rivers expected to play a major role next season, it appears that the Irish are destined to speed things up in the upcoming years.

After these last three seasons, it can't hurt to try.

Hockey team takes to home ice for final time

By ED DOMANSKY

When the Notre Dame hockey team takes the ice tonight and Saturday at the ACC for its non-league series with the University of Michigan-Dearborn, it will mark the final regular-season homestand for 1983-84.

Only the Central States Collegiate Hockey League playoffs remain. But this series will have special meaning for the Notre Dame players as they welcome their mothers and fathers for the traditional "Parent's Weekend," which honors the parents for the support and guidance they have provided over the years. Both the players and their parents will be introduced in a red-carpet ceremony prior to Saturday's contest.

Notre Dame seniors Tony Bonadio, Joe Bowie, Mike Metzler, and Adam Parsons will be making their last appearances in regular-season action. Head manager Mike Keenan also will be recognized for his services to the team.

Both games begin at 7:30 p.m.

The Irish come into the series with a 21-3-1 record. The Wolves are 16-18. Both teams are trying to get back on the winning track. Notre Dame is coming off a pair of losses, 6-5 and 6-4, at the hands of Alabama-Huntsville, while Dearborn was crushed by Central Collegiate Hockey Association power Bowling Green by scores of 11-3 and 10-2.

"They are definitely one of the better teams we face," says Irish head coach Lefty Smith. "Based on our loss of key people to injuries and ineligibility, I think we go in as the underdog this time."

The two teams last met over Thanksgiving in Dearborn, and Notre Dame swept the Wolves by scores of 6-4 and 4-3. Tim Reilly scored two goals in the Friday encounter and co-captain Brent Chapman added the hat trick on Saturday to pace the Irish attack.

Since November, Dearborn has faced stiff competition from many of the CCHA teams. Notre Dame, on the other hand, has had little trouble breezing through its CSCHL schedule and in knocking off varsity opponent Lake Forest three out of four times.

"Playing the whole year at the club level hasn't really challenged us," says Notre Dame sophomore Gary Becker. "Playing against teams with abilities less than your own can bring your own skills down. Huntsville caught us a little off guard, so it will be a real test to see if we can bring out the talent we had earlier in the season. We'll really be up for (Dearborn)."

Seven of Dearborn's 18 losses have been by one goal, a good indication that it is capable of playing a fast, aggressive style of hockey.

"We will have to play a lot closer checking game," says Tom Parent. "We'll also have to take advantage of all our scoring opportunities."

As far as Notre Dame scoring is concerned, Chapman continues to lead the team with 25 goals and 35 assists. His linemate, Parsons, is next with 26 goals and 31 assists. Bob Thebeau is third with 42 points on 16 goals and 26 assists.

Missing from the Irish lineup because of injuries will be Steve Whitmore, who is still nursing a thigh contusion suffered at Penn State. He may be ready next weekend for the CSCHL playoffs. Defenseman Rob Ricci re-dislocated his right shoulder last weekend and will be out for the rest of the season.

Tim Lukenda will start in the Notre Dame goal tonight. He has a 11-3 record and a 3.20 goals against average. Smith has yet to name a starter for tomorrow.
