Former ND professor designed 'bubble boy's' germ isolation system

By MARK POTTER
Staff Reporter

The isolation system for David, the famous "bubble boy," was designed by a former Notre Dame professor, Dr. Raphael Wilson. Another former faculty member, Patricia Belmear, was a member of the medical team that treated David.

David, whose last name is withheld to protect the privacy of his family, died Wednesday, Feb. 22, from complications resulting from a bone marrow transplant. He was born in 1971 with immune deficiency syndrome, and had to be confined to a sterile room for most of his life. Last October, David was given a bone marrow transplant using marrow from his sister Katherine.

For unknown reasons, however, his body rejected the transplant and David became ill. "The decision to release him from the isolation system was made under duress. He had to be removed to be treated," said Wilson. The transplant caused David's cells to mutate, giving rise to the tumors which caused his death.

"The technology and equipment for David's isolation system came from the research here at Lobund," said Morris Pollard, director of Notre Dame's Lobund Laboratory. "David's initial system was a modification of the isolation systems that were being used at Notre Dame at the time."

The bubble David first used had originally been designed by Wilson for a boy born in Alabama who was suspected to have immune deficiency syndrome, but who was later found to not have the disease.

Wilson and Belmear were both personally involved in David's case. Wilson, a Holy Cross brother, was present at David's birth and baptized him. Belmear is David's godmother and Wilson is his godfather. They joined the medical team that worked on David because both had done extensive research on germ-free environments at Notre Dame.

"Belmear took care of David very carefully," according to Pollard.

"I got personally involved with David because his parents lived 40 miles away and couldn't always come in to see him, so I was sort of his temporary mother when his real one couldn't be there," commented Belmear. She was also involved with his education. She recalled, "He was an exceptional and very bright child."

Wilson and Belmear both did research in microbiology at Lobund. "The work at Lobund on bone marrow transplants was unique," said Wilson.

Wilson joined Notre Dame's faculty in 1959. He taught physiology, microbiology and immunology, doing extensive research in microbiology and germ-free environments. He was also the director of admissions and scholarships from 1965 until he left the University in 1969. According to Fr. James Burtchaell, a professor of theology at Notre Dame, Wilson "took an interest in individual students, especially biology students."

After leaving Notre Dame, Wilson went to Germany and worked at the University of Ulm with twins who had been born with immune deficiency syndrome.

"That work went so well that I wanted to continue to work with patients," Wilson said, "which wasn't possible so I accepted a professorship at the Baylor College of Medicine." Because of the position at Baylor he was not able to stay on David's case.

Wilson was president of the University of Portland, Oregon from 1978 to 1981, and is now a microbiology professor at Kings College in Pennsylvania.

Right to Life to open care center

By MARY HEILMANN
News Staff

The Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Right to Life group has designated early April for the opening of a Women's Care Center in South Bend, according to John May, vice president of the organization.

The Center, a project initiated by Right to Life, is the culmination of months of fundraising activity, during which $2,600 was raised from student donations.

May, a senior preprofessional major, considers the amount "a very generous gift. We approached each dorm differently—through dorm masses, door-to-door collecting and informational pamphlets. We're very grateful for the large student response."

The Women's Care Center, as described in the pamphlets, is "a pregnancy help center which will provide women with the care they need to carry their pregnancies to term." Its services will include free pregnancy testing, help in finding financial aid, medical care and housing, and 24-hour phone counseling.

"We've done sidewalk counseling but this is the most ambitious, positive step we've taken so far," May said. "Since Birthright, a national counseling organization, closed their South Bend facilities last summer, there is really nothing right now in the way of help for unwed mothers."

Although the center was the idea of Professor Janet Smith, faculty coordinator for the Right to Life organization, May stresses that the center will be completely independent of the campus group. "We're in the process of interviewing and hiring a director — a professional counselor who will coordinate a staff of about ten volunteers."

"They'll begin moving into the building on March 15, and will administer all its activities from that date on."

Fundraising for the center will continue, with a phone-a-thon scheduled for next month. Gerry Faust has been named honorary chairman of the phone-a-thon committee, which plans to contact 600 South Bend families to solicit funds. In addition, donations are still being accepted at the Women's Care Center, P.O. Box 664, South Bend.

"We're really excited about this project," May said. "As a result of it, we will be able to embrace these needy women and give them the necessary direction to care for their unborn children."

Freshman class active in election campaigns

By THOMAS LAMB
News Staff

With the approach of class officer elections, buildings and halls have become littered with campaign posters and platforms.

Many promises have been made by each of the nine tickets running for the offices of president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer for the class of '87, each fairly similar to the others.

The largest concern of the candidates is focused on class unity and making the upcoming sophomore class more aware of events taking place on campus. Class trips, dinners, and masses are a constant among the candidates' promises, but there are also many interesting activities that will set each ticket apart.

On the whole, the posters express an attitude of hope for success to come, and each ticket asks to become a vital part of the Notre Dame community.

Elections will be held on March 5 in each of the halls on campus, and run-off elections will take place on March 7 between the two top tickets.

Candidates running for the sophomore class offices are as follows, listed in the order: president, vice president, secretary, treasurer.

James Domagalski, Anne Jennings, Mark Foley, Davod Miklos.

Michael Elliot, Edward Lewis, Francis Zacherl, Jane Bailey.

Bryan P. Fenton, Brian K. Faulkner, Karen Phelps, Kelly Graham.

Patrick McCauley, Therese Kraemer, Lisa Meehan, Fritz Duda.

Michael McNamee, Christopher McLean, Christopher Guarnotta, Francis Malone.

Thomas Powers, Thomas Sweeney, Mary Carol Creadon, Leah Beth Weis.

Michael Rensch, Gina Lee, Ignacio de la Piedra, William Nolan.

Observer/Mock Convention poll

Special to The Observer

Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students tend toward conservatism in the issues relevant to the Mock Convention platforms, according to this week's survey by The Observer and the Mock Convention Committee. A majority were against abortion and favored a national drinking age, although only 39 percent favored capital punishment.

Of the 120 students interviewed, 70 percent were on-campus Notre Dame students, 20 percent were Saint Mary's students and 10 percent were off-campus students from both schools.

The questions and results were as follows:

On the issue of abortion, are you pro-life or pro-choice?

Pro-life . . . 70 percent
Pro-choice . . . 27.5 percent
Undecided . . . 2.5 percent

Of pro-lifers: Are you in favor of a constitutional amendment making abortion illegal?

Yes . . . 66 percent
No . . . 32 percent

Of those who were pro-choice: Are you in favor of legalized abortion?

Yes . . . 68 percent
No . . . 32 percent

Are you for or against a national drinking age?

For . . . 56 percent
Against . . . 44 percent

Of those in favor: What age should the minimum drinking age be?

20 . . . 4 percent
21 . . . 51 percent

Are you for or against capital punishment?

For . . . 39 percent
Against . . . 56 percent
Unsure . . . 5 percent

This is the second in a series of polls on student opinion conducted by The Observer and the Mock Convention.

The Mock Convention will be held April 4-7 and will parallel the nominating convention of the Democratic party.

In Brief

Forty-three percent of University of Pennsylvania students say they are still virgins, but only 11 percent say they plan to remain a virgin until marriage. Forty-one percent say they had sex before coming to college. About ninety percent plan to get married and have children, but most say they will wait at least three years after graduation. Those were the results of a telephone poll by the student newspaper. — The Observer

To enlist student help in a letter-writing campaign against a raised drinking age, New York taverns recently offered State University of New York students free beers in return for writing letters to their legislators. The legislative sponsor of the bill to raise the drinking age called that gimmick "an indication of the immaturity on the part of some students." — The Observer

Two Democrats drop out of race after severe New Hampshire losses

Associated Press

Democratic presidential candidates invaded the South yesterday with John Glenn proclaiming himself the "new underdog" and Gary Hart saying he would fight for votes in the region. At the same time, two southern contenders were forced out of the race by dismal finishes in New Hampshire.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina and former Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida became the second and third victims of New Hampshire voters.

Hollings, who received four percent of Tuesday's primary vote, told a Washington news conference the results "got me back to a hard reality."

Askew got only one percent in New Hampshire and told a Miami news conference, "I tried to be true to myself and my deepest convictions."

Glenn spoke to the Alabama Legislature at the state Capitol in Montgomery, while Hart stopped at the city's airport for a news conference at which he said, "I don't expect to be rejected in the South."

Glenn told the Legislature, "I guess I'm what you would call the new underdog today." The Ohio senator finished a distant third in New Hampshire after winding up fifth in the Iowa caucuses.

Hart was the surprise winner of the New Hampshire primary, and the Colorado senator quickly was challenged by Walter F. Mondale to compete for support throughout the South.

"Well, Fritz, here I am," Hart said on his arrival in Alabama.

"I think the voters of Alabama just like the voters of New Hampshire will send a message to the Washington establishment and the special interests and will not submit to insider control of the Democratic Party," he added.

Mondale was in Washington yesterday and planned to campaign in Maine and Georgia today.

Bowing out of the race, Hollings said, "I announce today that I will be stepping aside as an active candidate in this presidential contest."

"It was one of the best educations I've ever had," he added.

Hollings said he wasn't certain which of the remaining contenders he might support for the nomination. "I won't be bashful," he said, adding that he would announce his choice at the time of the March 17 South Carolina caucuses.

"The usual statement is 'a funny thing happened to me on the way to the White House,'" said Hollings. "Nothing happened to me on the way to the White House."

Askew told reporters in Miami that "I believe I succeeded in meeting all my goals, yet I've not succeeded in winning any votes." The former governor said lack of money was the big reason forcing him out of the race before his home state primary March 13.

"I think I could carry Florida, but it would also require substantial expenditures," he said. "It would put me into substantial debt and I'm not ready to do that."

Askew sought support in Iowa and New Hampshire by campaigning as "the different Democrat." On most issues, he and Hollings were the two most conservative candidates in the race.

Belmar received her Ph.D. in microbiology from Notre Dame in 1965. She was an associate faculty fellow until she left Notre Dame in 1971. Most of her research was in bone marrow transplants.

"Dr. Belmar actually did most of the work with David," said Pollard. She stayed with him until he was almost five years old. Currently a biology professor at Roswell Park Memorial Institute, she was also for a time at Baylor, where she did research in experimental biology.

Neither Wilson nor Belmar were in the movie, "The Bubble Boy," which starred John Travolta and was about a child with immune deficiency syndrome. Belmar said, "David never saw the movie because we didn't think it would have been good for him." She thought that the movie had some "parts that were well done." But she also felt that some of the movie was "a little far out, because it showed things that just aren't possible."

Belmar said, "We taught David to love Notre Dame; he had Notre Dame sweatshirts and if he had lived we were going to send him to Notre Dame."

"Chapman probably is as good an individual player as we've seen all year," says Irish coach Digger Phelps. "He scores, he rebounds, and he makes them go. They're all a tough, hard-nosed group of kids, and they don't ever quit. DePaul found that out the hard way two weeks ago."

Sedric Toney, a 6-2 junior out of Dayton, adds 10.8 points from the backcourt to go along with the 6.6 of fellow junior Larry Schellenberg. The 6-3 Schellenberg is known for his drive and reckless abandon when out on the court.

The other Dayton starter is 6-6 Damon Goodwin. The versatile sophomore contributes 10.4 points to the Dayton cause per game.

As for the Irish, Tom Sluby continues to be the man Notre Dame looks to for the bulk of its scoring. The senior captain is now averaging almost 18 points a game (17.9) after his 30 point showing last Saturday against Marquette.

"Sluby probably played his finest game for us (last Saturday)," says Phelps. "He reminded a lot of people of Adrian Dantley."

Tomorrow, it will be to a high degree, a battle between two exciting offensive stars in Sluby and Chapman, but there will, of course, be much at stake for the two teams involved.

Before this season started, Dayton coach Don Donoher asked Phelps to design new uniforms for his team, which the Irish coach agreed to do. "I hope they get uniform of the year," Phelps cracks. "It's probably the only award I'll get this year."

Now, near the end of this season, if Notre Dame has any hope of getting the award of making the NCAA tournament, it must design tomorrow's game to be a win.

Some desk jobs are more exciting than others.

As a Navy pilot or flight officer, your desk can be a sophisticated combination of supersonic jet aircraft and advanced electronic equipment. But you can handle it. Because Navy flight training gives you the navigation, aerodynamics and other technical know-how you need.

In return, Navy aviation demands something of you as an officer: Leadership.

Your path to leadership starts with officer training that's among the most demanding in the military. It's intensive leadership and professional schooling combined with rigorous Navy flight training. And it's all geared to prepare you and other college graduates for the unique challenge of Navy aviation. The program is tough but rewarding.

One important reward for Navy officers is decision-making authority. In the air, and on the ground, you have management responsibility from the beginning. And your responsibility grows as you gain experience.

No company can give you this kind of leadership responsibility this fast. And nothing beats the sheer excitement of Navy flying.

The salary is exciting, too. Right away, you'll earn about $18,300 a year. That's better than the average corporation will pay you just out of college. And with regular Navy promotions and other pay increases, your annual salary will soar to $31,100 after four years. That's on top of a full package of benefits and privileges.

to ten while the Irish have captured five of these tournaments.

In the sabre, the Irish will be represented by three fencers with outstanding records. Leading the way is junior captain Mike Janis (40-3 on the year) along with sophomore Don Johnson at 35-6. Sophomore John Edwards, who has been out of action for the past two weekends due to an ankle injury, will complete the trio with his 27-1 record.

The epeeists will be led by junior captain Andy Quaroni who went 34-3 in the regular season. The lineup will also include sophomore Brian St. Clair (31-9) and freshman John Haugh at 29-8.

Among the competing Irish foilers will be two U.S. Junior Olympians — sophomore Mike VanderVelden and freshman Charles Higgs-Couthard.

VanderVelden (32-8) won the gold medal in foil at the Junior Olympics in Portland two weeks ago while Higgs-Couthard led the Irish fencers in wins with a 43-6 record. Senior captain Chris Grady who has been truly impressive lately, will anchor the squad with his 29-12 mark.

According to DeCicco, the tournament will be dominated by Wayne State and Notre Dame; however, "a fencer here or there will be competitive."

"In this particular tournament

it's going to be a total, consolidated team effort," said DeCicco. "If anyone has a bad day for either Wayne State or Notre Dame, then the upper team will seek the advantage."

"We match too closely (and) we can't afford the luxury of having one guy slip."

Besides the men, the lady Irish will also be competing for NCAA bids. The Irish, who ended the season with a 13-5 team record will be represented by three underclassmen.

Freshman Pia Albertson (37-2) and Cindy Weeks (20-13) along with sophomores Janet Sullivan (21-12) will be trying to overcome an equally strong women's Wayne State team.

Those who fail to qualify for the NCAA tomorrow will be in action again on Sunday at Northwestern where the final bids for the national tournaments will be announced.

Pete Culhane, the Bengal boxer who collapsed shortly after a sparring session, will be released from St. Joseph's hospital today, according to one of the Boxing Club's officers, Angelo Perino.

Culhane, an MBA student from Seabrook, Tex., suffered a minor concussion Monday, passing out about five minutes after finishing a sparring session with a friend. After finishing the fight and taking off his equipment, Culhane had talked to some of the other fighters before complaining of dizziness. He was on his way to the trainer's room when he passed out.

He was immediately taken to the hospital where he regained consciousness. His injury was not as serious as had been feared and, according to Perino, was never seriously in trouble.

"One of the first things he said to me in the hospital was, 'Can I still box?'" said Perino. "He was really disappointed he couldn't fight. He really looked forward to the Bouts."

"It's really a shame because he was one of our more talented 160-pounders and he was evenly matched with the guy he was sparring with. He just got hit by a good punch."

IC4A Championships

Track team travels to big meet

By JERRY MELIA
Sports Writer

"It's a great meet, probably the best the kids will ever run in."

This is how Irish Track Coach Joe Piane describes the ICAAAA (Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America) Championship, to be held this weekend at Princeton University in New Jersey.

The IC4A is the oldest conference in the country. The Irish will be facing the best competition from 121 schools that will be participating in this prestigious meet. Unlike the previous meets that the Irish have been a part of this season, an individual athlete must qualify by meeting some very difficult standards set by the conference. Qualification is done to increase the level of competition.

Piane shows pride in his team by noting that sixteen Notre Dame athletes will be making the trip to Princeton. Most of the schools participating in the meet rarely send half of the Irish total. The number of Irish athletes going to Princeton is a credit to both the coaching staff and the team members themselves.

Representing Notre Dame in the sprints are Alvin Miller, 55-meter high hurdles, with Allen Pinkett and Phil Gilmore in the 55-meter dash. Mitch Van Eyken (400-meter run), Jim Moyer (1000-meter run), and Jeff Van wie (1000-meter run) will be competing in the middle distance events.

The distance events will see Ralph Caron and Ed Juba in the 1000-meter run, and Andy Dillon in the mile run. James Patterson will be participating in both the triple jump and long jump events.

Two Irish relay teams also qualified for a trip to the IC4A's. Van Percy, Dan Shannon, Milt Jackson, and Van Eyken comprise the mile relay team. The members of the distance medley relay team are John McNelis, Tim Cannon, Jim Tyler, and Miller.

Piane feels his team is about as ready as they will be this season for the championships. As in all sports, a team is geared to peak toward the end of the season when playoffs or tournaments take place.

The IC4A and NCAA championships are the two most competitive meets means that the athlete earns the respect of both the coaches and fellow competitors as well. This is because of the high quality of the competition within these championships.

Irish travel to Dayton hoping to help their post-season chances

By JEFF BLUMB
Assistant Sports Editor

DAYTON, Ohio — It might be said by some that tomorrow's game with the Dayton Flyers doesn't mean a whole lot to the Notre Dame men's basketball team. It surely has an NIT bid sewn up and the NCAA Tournament is all but out of the question.

But try and tell that to the team. The Irish certainly must realize the intensity of this annual battle, especially the significance it takes on when the game is played here at the UD Arena. And don't count Notre Dame out of the NCAA's just yet.

Should the Irish win tomorrow, impressively or otherwise, it would give them an 18-10 record on the season. Although that record would be worse than the 19-9 mark of a year ago, which failed to get Notre Dame into the NCAA's, things are not the same in college basketball this year.

Tomorrow's task at hand for Notre Dame is Dayton, and that is all the team can really concern itself with for now. The Flyers and their fans, but especially their fans,

The Notre Dame women's basketball team will be playing a Division II opponent tomorrow afternoon, but that does not mean that it will be an easy game for the Division I Irish. In fact, Mary DiStanislaw's squad will be decided underdogs against its opponent, Dayton, the second-ranked Division II team in the country. The Flyers, who will be moving up to Division I next year, are now 24-2 on the season and represent a massive barrier to Notre Dame's hopes for a .500 record.

always get pumped up for a Notre Dame game, and the rich history of games between the two teams leaves no question as to why that is the case.

The Flyers' biggest coup this year, of course, is their stunning 72-71 upset of then number three DePaul two weeks ago. Although DePaul may have convincingly avenged that loss four days later, Dayton's win over the Blue Demons leaves no doubt that it is a pretty good team.

The man who beat DePaul with his twisting jumper with one second left is 6-7 forward-center Ed Young. The Flyer sophomore, who averaged 14.6 points per game going into Dayton's 72-61 loss to Xavier Wednesday night, is best remembered for his saying after the DePaul upset that he had imagined it all in a dream two weeks before.

Dayton's big gun is senior swingman Roosevelt Chapman. The Brooklyn, N.Y., native is Dayton's all-time leading scorer and is the first Flyer player to score over 2,000 points in his career.

Chapman was averaging 21.6 points going into the Xavier game, a game in which he pulled down 17 rebounds, eight better than his 9.2 average.

The fact that Chapman's nickname is "velvet" ought to say something about the way he plays. The fact that he has often been compared to former Georgia star and slam dunk artist extraordinaire Dominique Wilkins ought to say a whole lot more.

Ed Young of the Dayton Flyers, who dreamed of last-second Dayton victory over DePaul, and then made the dream come true with a desperation shot, will be trying for an even bigger desperation shot — getting Dayton into the NCAA tournament — by beating the Irish tomorrow. Hockey team to play host to CSCHL finals

By ED DOMANSKY
Sports Writer

The Central States Collegiate Hockey League playoffs will be held tonight and tomorrow at the ACC. Second seeded Marquette will take on third seeded Iowa State at 6 p.m. The tourney's top seed Notre Dame will then meet fourth seeded Illinois State at 8:30 p.m.

Tomorrow, the consolation game will get under way at 5 p.m., with the championship contest slated for 7:30 p.m. Student tickets will cost $1.50 and adult admission is $3.00. The tickets are good for both games each night.

Notre Dame—The top-seeded Irish come into the weekend's action with a 22-4-1 overall mark and a 13-2-0 record in CSCHL play.

Head coach Lefty Smith, now in his 16th year at the Irish helm, is glad to have the tournament at Notre Dame, and is anticipating interesting competition.

"We're looking forward to the chance to host a championship playoff here at Notre Dame," he said. "It will be the first time we've had such a tournament."

Notre Dame is 5-0 against tournament opposition. It has outscored the three opponents by a 38-13 margin.

"This weekend we can't just go through the motions," said Notre Dame co-captain Joe Bowie. "The other teams will be ready for us. We'll have to play like we have been. We'll have to take our shots, skate and do what we do best."

Right wing Steve Whitmore will return to the lineup after missing five games with a severe thigh contusion. "His return will help solidify the third line again," said Smith. "He gives us more size, speed, and experience that has been missing the last several weeks."

In the scoring department co-captain Brent Chapman leads the team with 16 goals and 21 assists in CSCHL play. Linemate Adam Parsons is next with 16 goals and 20 assists.

Al Haverkamp will start in the Irish goal tonight. He is 4-0-0 and holds a 1.92 goals against average in CSCHL competition. Tomorrow it will be Tim Lukenda or Marc Guay in the Notre Dame goal.

Seniors Bowie, Tony Bonadio,

Mike Metzler, and Adam Parsons will be making their final appearances in Notre Dame uniforms.

Marquette—The Warriors reign as last season's regular-season and playoff champions and enter 1983-84 playoff competition standing 14-12-0 overall and 12-9-0 in the CSCHL.

Marquette is 2-4 against tournament teams. Its only victories coming by virtue of 6-3 and 7-6 triumphs over Illinois State.

No scoring totals are available, but sophomore right wing Dan O'Grady is listed as the team's leading scorer. He tallied two of his team's six goals in its series with Notre Dame Feb. 2 and 3.

Senior goaltender Ken Maziarek has been the Warriors strong man between the pipes.

Iowa State—Behind head coach Jim Kirwan in his first year, the Cyclones will arrive at Notre Dame with an 8-12-0 overall mark and an 8-8-0 record in CSCHL play.

Dan Bullard leads the Iowa State scoring attack with 39 points on 15 goals and 24 assists.

Holding a 4-3 edge on tournament teams, two of the Cyclone losses came from 4-3 and 6-4 setbacks against Notre Dame. Illinois State's 7-6 victory on Feb. 10 accounts for the third loss.

Mike White is the leading Iowa State goaltender. He has given up 12 goals in four games and sports a 3.0 goals against average.

Illinois State—Seeded fourth in the year's playoffs, the Red Birds from Normal, Illinois will be looking to improve upon their 14-13-4 overall total and 10-12-1 record in the CSCHL. Illinois State has won six of its last eight games and may very well be viewed as the tournament darkhorse.

Although the Red Birds finished fifth in the league, they are participating in the playoffs because first place finisher Alabama-Huntsville chose to host the U.S. National Club Hockey Championship rather than come to this year's playoffs.

All four teams in this year's field are capable of playing good hockey and with a championship on the line, the action should be fast and exciting all throughout the weekend.

Raising money for missions

54th Bengal Bouts set to open

By MIKE SULLIVAN
Sports Editor

Beginning Sunday afternoon and ending Friday night, there will be plenty of boxing action in Stepan Center. No world championship will be on the line, Howard Cosell definitely will not be ringside, and there will be no jackpot for the winner. However, the effects of the Bengal Bouts will be felt as far away as Bangladesh.

Fifty-four years ago, Dominic "Nappy" Napolitano introduced boxing to Notre Dame and program that he started has grown into an annual event which support the Bengal missions in Bangladesh. The boxing tournament, like Bookstore Basketball, is a tradition that is unique to Notre Dame. While the military schools have tournaments of their own, they do not have the type of participation that the Notre Dame Boxing Club gets each year.

In fact, the Bengal Bouts' reputation is so great that NBC has televised the event in past years and visitors to the bouts have included limonaries such as heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano. This year's event will not be televised and Sugar Ray Leonard will not be present, but the competition should prove to be the best in a number of years.

"The quality of fighters is really up this year," says one of the Boxing Club presidents, Angelo Perino. "There will be no uneven matches this year."

This year's tournament will include 60 fighters in 10 weight divisions, a big increase over last year when only 46 boxers competed. Three champions return to defend their titles, but they could be in for a tough battle in order to attempt to help the Bouts regain some of the popularity they enjoyed in the late 1970's.

Foremost among the returning fighters is Perino, a senior who is looking to win his third consecutive championship at 165 pounds. Only three boxers have ever won four times, and Perino will be attempting to join several other fighters as a three-time champ. However, Perino himself admits that the quality of his competition could make things tough for him.

The other two fighters who will be defending their titles are Dave Packo and Mike Cray. Packo, a junior, will once again be competing in the 175-pound class, while the senior Cray will be back at 185.

The rest of the field should also be very tough. Names to watch include Beresford Clarke, the 150-pound champ from two years ago, Mike Latz, runner-up two years ago at 145, Joe Beatty, runner-up last year at 155, John Gurganus, a talented law student from Villanova who will fight at 175, and Larry Andreini, a superheavyweight who won two years ago and finished second last year.

The winner of each weight class will receive an award, but, of course, the real winners will be the missions. Ticket sales are much better than last year, but there are still plenty of tickets remaining. Sunday's bouts will begin at 1:30 in the afternoon, while Wednesday's and Friday's fights will start at 7:30 p.m.

Fencers look to qualify for NCAA tourney

By MICHAEL J. CHMIEL
Sports Writer

Nine Irish fencers will be vying for berths in the NCAA Championship tournament when Notre Dame hosts the 1984 Great Lakes Championships tomorrow at 9 a.m. in the ACC.

The Irish, who ended their regular season over the weekend in Illinois at 19-1, will be facing some of the best collegiate fencers from across the Midwest tomorrow. Fourteen schools will be sending representatives to fence in each weapon in hopes of gaining automatic berths in the 1984 NCAA Championship tournament to be held March 20-21 in Princeton, N.J.

The next eleven finishers in each weapon along with five representatives from the Big Ten Tourney will meet Sunday, March 4, at Northwestern where they will be competing for the six remaining spots in the foil, epee, and sabre competition.

Among the fourteen teams represented in the field tomorrow, the two premiere collegiate fencing teams, Notre Dame and Wayne State, will be jockeying for position in the national meet. Wayne State, last year's national champion, has won the last six Great Lakes Championships moving their overall total
