Cardinals defend, define Catholic social teaching

By THERESA GUARINO
Saint Mary's Executive Editor

The ongoing defense of human dignity through the social teachings of the Church was the central theme of a discussion yesterday in Washington Hall by Joseph Cardinal Bernardin of Chicago, and John Cardinal O'Connor of New York.

"The Pastoral Constitution (of the Second Vatican Council)... ties the entire Catholic tradition's defense of the human person directly to the very center of the Church's life," said Bernardin, commenting on the effect of Vatican II 20 years after its conclusion.

The cardinals' lecture centered on the constitution (the Gaudium et Spes) written five years after the 1965 Second Vatican Council, and the upcoming Extraordinary Synod of bishops which convenes Nov. 25 in Rome. The synod, called by Pope John Paul II, will assess the effects of Vatican II on the modern Church.

Bernardin and O'Connor, perhaps the two most prominent Churchmen in America, were invited to Notre Dame by the Law School's Thomas J. and Alberta White Center on Law and Government. Douglas Kmiec, director of the center, moderated a panel discussion which followed the cardinals' presentations.

The cardinals were introduced by Father Theodore Hesburgh, University president, who called Vatican II "a milestone," and "an attempt to understand the problems of the modern world."

Bernardin began the program by discussing Vatican II and the Pastoral Constitution in length, particularly its role in the social ministry of the Church. Bernardin focused on three themes while speaking: Vatican II as the source of the constitution, the content and style of the document, and the consequences of the constitution in the ministry of the U.S. bishops, including their recent pastoral letters on peace and the economy.

Bernardin pointed out a pattern inherent in the council which he said adds to its significance. "It (Vatican II) took ideas from the edge of the Church's life and located them in the center," he said. "It gave new legitimacy to the growing edge of Catholic tradition and also added its own content to the ideas and movements."

"Vatican II was an event which summarized a previous process of development, becoming... the starting point for a new process of growth."

Bernardin called the Pastoral Constitution "one of the key texts of the Council" and said its contribution to the Church has been threefold: "in theological style, ecclesiological substance and pastoral spirit."

In explaining the methodology of the constitution, Bernardin said that all theological assessments of the past and present "should begin with an evaluation of empirical data."

"When the empirical challenge has been honestly evaluated, it should then be interpreted in the light of the Gospel," he continued.

Bernardin cited the drafting of the pastoral "The Challenge of Peace," as an example of gathering information before addressing the moral meaning of an issue.

The Church is a major force of social teachings in the world, according to Bernardin, and should avoid "retreating from engaged public ministry."

U.S. bishops have adopted a theme of dialogue with the world which operates on two levels, said Bernardin. "First, the bishops take positions on a wide range of social issues," he said. "Second, this method of dialogue has been at the core of both pastoral letters... with distinctions... between the moral authority of Catholic social and moral teaching and the less authoritative policy conclusions we draw."

Bernardin said he does not believe the method of the pastorals would have developed if Vatican II and the constitution had not oc-

Security boss leaves post; Rakow starts October 11

By BILL HARLAN JR.

Notre Dame Security Director Glenn Terry resigned recently for "personal reasons" following a meeting with Father David Tyson, vice president for student affairs.

The resignation is effective Oct. 10. Rex Rakow, assistant director of security, will take over the vacated position.

Terry served six years as security director and worked previously in the bacteriology lab. He was a member of the South Bend Police when George Wallace, Martin Luther King Jr. and Robert Kennedy visited the campus.

Terry has many memories of his service at Notre Dame. "The special ones are all the people, each in his own way. Some of them will carry a long way," he said.

In social and religious circles, Terry has developed meaningful relationships with many of the Holy Cross priests.

"We have developed fine relationships with other agencies in South Bend," he added.

Terry's plans for the future include opening "an investigative agency to provide service to the community in areas of background checks, common detective work, and spinoffs of this work," he said. These spinoffs include insurance investigations and some criminal work, he said.

"Discussion has already been initiated. My last day here is the 10th, but on the 11th I'll be working," he said.

Rakow was hired in December 1979 as assistant director of Notre Dame security and later became associate director of security. His prior experience includes two years on the police force at Indiana University at Bloomington, where he graduated with a bachelor's degree in police administration in 1973.

HPC discusses campus leader conference; alumni to help student leaders work better

By SCOTT BEARBY
Assistant News Editor

Approximately 30 alumni will return to Notre Dame this weekend in order to help student leaders obtain a better view of what their roles should be, according to Student Body Vice President Duane Lawrence at last night's Hall Presidents' Council meeting.

Included as a part of the weekend discussions will be an address by University President Father Theodore Hesburgh, who will give his views on student leadership on Sunday morning.

Open meetings and round table discussions will be held in order to open up areas of concern, according to Lawrence, also co-chairperson for the event.

He added that the discussions will help current leaders, alumni, and the administration get a better feel for the responsibilities a campus leader should have.

Co-Chairperson Bruce Lohman is enthusiastic about the event because it will offer the opportunity to have "open dialogue with groups which do not get together very often." Lawrence added that, to his knowledge, "this is the first time this type of gathering has taken place on this campus."

Meetings will be taking place throughout the campus on Saturday for any interested students. Hall Presidents' Council Chairman Kevin Howard encouraged hall presidents to bring as many potential leaders as they could to the sessions. Lohman said meetings can help solve continuity, the main problem of student government.

In other business, the council discussed whether the alcohol policy permits open beer and wine bars at off-campus hall formals. Some presidents said rectors are interpreting the policy so that it prohibits having legal beer and wine bars for those under the age of 21.

Howard suggested that each president ask their individual rector if the bars are against university policy or if it is just a matter of their interpretation.

An update was given on the status of extra fees which some rectors are charging for lost keys and D-tex cards. Howard said he will be meeting tomorrow with university officials in order to determine whether the extra fees should be allowed, since fines for lost keys are specifically stated in du Lac. He added that extra fees for D-tex cards may technically be allowed, since fines for them are not mentioned in du Lac.

Badin President Judith Windhorst said the main issue is whether a rector can create funds and spend them at will. Howard will tell HPC the results of his meeting next week.

Jim Crandall, Stanford hall president, told HPC that the University will not allow a campus 21-Club which would allow all eligible students to attend parties in hall social spaces. He did encourage halls to get together in smaller clusters for mixers among 21-years-old students.

Lyons President Joanie Cahill suggested getting students to interact better by having more events among hall sections. The HPC concurred to developing a list of all hall section leaders at Notre Dame and Saint Mary's, so groups of students from different dorms can get together.

Upcoming events related to alcohol awareness were given to the council by Alcohol Awareness Commissioner Fifi Paras. According to her, a lecture on alcohol awareness will be given by Father Joe Martin at the Marriott tonight at 7:30. He will

In Brief

"The Bomb" is a fake hand grenade handed out for the worst question asked in a Harvard Business School class. Police who evacuated the building yesterday and called in the bomb squad after "The Bomb" was found in a student's mailbox had some questions of their own. David Moyer, the winner of the weekly award, said he put the phony grenade in his mailbox because he had lost his room key playing soccer and needed to buy a new one. The bomb squad loaded "The Bomb" into an armored trailer and towed it away. Things were straightened out within an hour, Moyer said. - AP

Cable television at Notre Dame: Cause for a TV party tonight?

*TV party tonight!
 TV party tonight!
 We've got nothing better to do than watch TV and have a couple of brews.*
 - Black Flag

Keith Harrison

News Editor

It is a typical Wednesday night at Notre Dame. All across campus, students are slamming their books closed, turning their calculators off and pulling the plug on their electric typewriters. They have logged a couple of hours of homework and now it is time for a study break.

Some grab a pair of stereo headphones and some reach for a slice of pepperoni pizza, but many others pop down in front of the boob tube to put their minds on hold for an hour or so. But instead of "Dynasty" or "Highway to Heaven," these scholars-turned-television-addicts are greeted by a heavy metal rock video. A spin of the dial reveals a professional hockey game. Fifteen minutes later Arnold Schwarzenegger fills the screen in "The Terminator."

Cable television at Notre Dame.

Only a fantasy last week, the idea of cable television at Notre Dame has at least reached the talking stage. At a meeting last Wednesday, sophomore Vince Willis announced plans to form a committee to look into the possibility of getting cable television in student dorm rooms within the next three years. Willis is planning another meeting tomorrow at 6 p.m. in the student government office.

Few students would claim that cable television would be a poor addition to campus life. As nice as the major networks are, the similar programming of ABC, CBS and NBC can get a little monotonous at times. After all, there is more being offered on television today than silly sitcoms and over-sexed soaps. Cable channels offer an alternative.

But just how much of an alternative will students receive?

There are literally hundreds of cable channels available for interested subscribers. Most channels, like ESPN, the Cable News Network and the USA Network, feature popular and basically unobjectionable material. But what about networks which offer more controversial programs? What about Cinemax and Showtime, which mix soft-core pornography and violent films with their usual fare of major movies? And what about the Playboy channel? These may be the channels that students want, but will these be the channels they get?

Another issue which must be considered is the impact that cable television could have on social life at Notre Dame. Willis was quoted as saying the addition of cable would be "an alternative to the alcohol policy." He later said it could be "the greatest thing to happen to this campus in a long time."

This is just not true. Willis' comments probably were made as a result of his enthusiasm for his project, and it would certainly be a mistake to criticize him for them. It is important, however, for students to make it perfectly clear that while cable would be a welcomed addition to this campus, it certainly is not the miracle cure to the social life problem.

Spending the weekend in front of the idiot box with a six-pack of beer would not be a viable alternative to the alcohol policy, and it certainly would not constitute a radically improved social life.

What cable television on campus would mean, however, is a definite addition to dorm life, like a nice stereo or a personal computer system. Life in the dorms is not impossible without these items, but they certainly make things more enjoyable.

The mere fact that a student has taken the initiative to look into this issue is cause for enthusiasm. Additionally, the administration seems to be keeping an open mind with regard to cable. Vice President for Student Affairs Father David Tyson has hesitations but offered support for the idea, Willis said.

All in all, it is an exciting proposition. So if Notre Dame ever does get cable television, the first TV party on campus will be in my room.

Thanks to you...
 it works...

Study Help Program gives friendship, too

By JOHN FUSSA
News Staff

The Neighborhood Study Help Program returned this year stronger than ever, with 250 to 300 Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students contributing to the academic and social development of local children.

According to the program's co-presidents Debbie Doherty and Tom Pigott, campus awareness of the program is a result of the strong commitment to the program by those involved.

In order to solve the problems of tutor absence and program disorganization that occurred so frequently last year, Secretary Martha Massman, Doherty and Pigott spent the summer reorganizing the program. They said they considered this year crucial for the program. The program's staff determined that commitment should be their most important priority.

All volunteers are aware of this emphasis and most share the dedication, said Pigott.

Most problems stem from occasional absences by the children, Doherty said. The program has been very successful thus far, and tutor response has been overwhelmingly positive, she said.

The 12 tutoring centers throughout South Bend are filled to capacity with both students and tutors, Doherty said, and with more volunteers and successful fundraisers the program will expand.

The program often goes beyond its one-hour tutoring sessions, the co-presidents said. They said students and tutors often participate in skating parties, picnics, and movies.

Sometimes personal relationships evolve. Doherty, while tutoring as a junior, developed a close personal relationship with the 16-year-old student she had been assigned. They grew very close, and the girl often phoned and visited Doherty at Notre Dame.

When the student became involved in a complicated and confusing personal situation, she turned to Doherty for advice and comfort. The situation was resolved in what the student and Doherty consider the best possible way.

According to Doherty and Pigott, with continued dedication and hard work the program will touch even more local children in the future.

Safety Week at SMC October 3-9

Special to The Observer

The week of Oct. 3-9 has been designated Safety Week at Saint Mary's in order to address issues of safety and security at the College.

Directors in the departments of residence life and security have planned programs which will be offered in the residence halls dealing with tornado safety, crime prevention, fire safety, sexual assault, and personal protection.

The programs will consist of films and/or lectures which will take place in the evenings. The schedule is as follows:

- Tornado safety - A short film and discussion on what to do when the tornado siren sounds. Thursday, Oct. 3, Holy Cross Hall, 9 p.m.; Wednesday, Oct. 9, LeMans Hall, 7 p.m.
- Crime Prevention - Learn how to keep the things that belong to you. Tips on anti-theft and security. Thursday, Oct. 3, LeMans Hall, 7 p.m.
- Fire Safety - A view of the film "Getting out Alive" with a discussion of safety procedures and evacuation. Monday, Oct. 7, Holy Cross Hall, 7 p.m.; Tuesday, Oct. 8, Regina Hall, 9 p.m.

•Sexual assault - Speakers from Sexual Offense Service will show slides and facilitate a short discussion. Monday, Oct. 7, McCandless, 9 p.m.; Wednesday, Oct. 9, Regina, 7 p.m.

•Personal Protection - Learn basic safety tips and ways to avoid dangerous situations. Tuesday, Oct. 8, Augusta, 7 p.m.; Wednesday, Oct. 9, McCandless, 9 p.m.

Followers of Indian guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh place books written by Rajneesh and the robes of his former personal secretary on a stack of wood in a communal crematorium. Approximately 5,000 books written by the Oregon guru were burned after he proclaimed that Rajneeshism in its present form is over. Story below.

Rajneesh's followers burn books

Associated Press

RAJNEESH PURAM, Ore. - Followers of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh sang and danced around a bonfire Monday night as they burned approximately 5,000 copies of the "Book of Rajneeshism" and the robes of the guru's former secretary.

The books and the flowing red robes of Ma Anand Sheela, who abruptly left the commune approximately two weeks ago, were heaped onto four wooden pallets covered with flowers and juniper branches.

The ceremony in the community's crematorium was part of Rajneesh's announced intention to repudiate ideas and projects that he says were conceived by Sheela, who left with approximately 10 other top officials.

Rajneesh, 53, has accused Sheela and her "gang" of crimes ranging from attempted murder to arson. Disciples in the cult say they have dismantled an elaborate electronic eavesdropping network that included bugs in the guru's bedroom.

At Monday's fire, Rajneesh's new secretary, Ma Prem Hasya, proclaimed Rajneeshism dead, and then used a torch to light juniper logs.

"Stepping through the holy fire, stepping through the holy flame," approximately 2,000 disciples sang, clapping their hands to music by a 10-piece band.

In the 78-page "Book of Rajneeshism," the guru defines Rajneeshism as "a religionless religion." The book describes the beliefs and religious practices of the sect.

Sheela, who reportedly is traveling in Europe, has denied any wrongdoing while she was with the cult, which first became known for advocating free love, gambling and Rolls-Royces.

Federal, state and local officials have set up a command post in the commune of approximately 2,000 residents to investigate the allegations.

PLO says 60 killed in Israeli raid which retaliated for holiday deaths

Associated Press

HAMAM PLAGE, Tunisia - Streaking 1,500 miles across the Mediterranean Sea, Israeli warplanes bombed Palestine Liberation Organization headquarters in a Tunis suburb yesterday and the PLO said as many as 60 people were killed.

The jets swept low over the coast to strike Yasser Arafat's headquarters only 12 miles south of the Tunisian capital. Although Arafat escaped the devastating attack, the Israeli bombs destroyed his political headquarters, his residence and the homes of several PLO officials.

Dressed in military fatigues and appearing distressed, Arafat and an aide inspected the damage and talked with the wounded. Arafat has made his main headquarters in Tunisia since he was driven out of Beirut by the Israelis in 1982.

In Tel Aviv, Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin told a briefing the raid was to retaliate for the Yom Kippur slayings of three Israelis aboard a yacht in Cyprus. He called it a warning to terrorists "that the long arm of the Israel Defense Forces will reach them wherever they are."

Although a caller claiming to represent the PLO group "Force 17" claimed responsibility for the attack in Cyprus, the PLO has denied involvement.

Lt. Gen. Moshe Levy, Israel's chief of staff, told a briefing in Tel Aviv that as many as 50 people were killed in Tuesday's raid. Medical sources in Tunis put the death toll at about 30 and said about 100 were injured.

Israel has bombed guerrilla bases in neighboring Lebanon 13 times this year, but it was the first time Israel has struck any other country since June 7, 1981, when Israeli war planes bombed an Iraqi nuclear reactor near Baghdad. Israel also mounted the airborne mission in 1976 and rescued hostages held at Entebbe airport in Uganda.

Tuesday's raid provoked expressions of anger from other Arab countries and Tunisia called for action by the U.N. Security Council.

In Washington, the Reagan administration suggested it considered the raid an act of self-defense.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman said, "As a matter of principle, it is our view that it is legitimate self defense to respond appropriately to acts of terrorism." But he said the administration did not have all the facts.

Redman denied a report by Libyan radio that the Israeli planes were launched from an American aircraft carrier and said the United States was not informed before the raid.

Israeli officials would not say how many or what kind of planes were involved in the raid, but Israeli military sources said the aircraft were refueled over the Mediterranean during their 3,000-mile mission.

Witnesses in Hamam Plage said they saw four jets conduct bombing runs. One PLO spokesman said six Phantom jets were involved while another PLO spokesman mentioned eight jets. The Israeli arsenal contains Phantom jets, but also more modern F-16 and D-15 warplanes.

The only target missed in the raid was the PLO's communications center, but there was a large bomb crater nearby.

Worry follows farmers to farm 'World's Fair'

Associated Press

KNIGHTSTOWN, Ind. - Farmer Tony Cain attended yesterday's opening of the 1985 Farm Progress Show, but he was shopping for information that will help keep him afloat another year rather than a shiny red new combine.

"I don't have any money to make any purchases," said Cain, 30, who with his brother farms 900 acres of corn and soybeans near Brookston in White County. "We just have to make do with what we got."

The Farm Progress Show has often been billed as the "World's Fair of Agriculture," and the director of this year's event, Kevin Wheeler, describes it as "a selling atmosphere, not a fair."

Farmers and exhibitors, though, talk with uncertainty about what the future holds for them, and for many, making new investments isn't possible or wise.

"Our bank and several banks in our area are very nervous, not just about our farm, but other farms as well," Cain said. "This year we had to break even or show some profit or they were going to think about closing us up."

Cain said he and his brother probably will show a small profit when 1985 is over, but he worries about 1986 and the years after. They rent their land, so they don't have to worry about mortgages, but the debt from their equipment and other borrowing has built steadily for two or three years, he said. Combine that with a surplus of crops and declining prices, and he wonders what field he'll be in five or 10 years from now, he said.

"The small farmer won't be around someday," Cain said. "Sometimes you can't get to sleep at night because you're thinking about it."

Jim Lacina, Massey-Ferguson Inc.'s product marketing manager for tractors, was more upbeat about the crowd's attitude as curious farmers examined the company's new rotary combine, which lists for more than $118,000 and costs another $30,000 to outfit for the farm fields.

"It's not a negative attitude, and that's a positive development in itself," Lacina said. "I guess they're shopping and looking for something to break here (for the better) in the future."

"There are some very interested people. The majority of shoppers just are seeing what's out there so they can keep up with the industry," Lacina said.

The show, whose site alternates between Illinois, Indiana and Iowa, is being held on two farms just west of Knightstown and north of U.S. 40. It drew an estimated 70,000 people yesterday, and organizers have predicted a total attendance near 300,000 before its end tomorrow.

Planes still 'safest way'

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - While acknowledging problems in air safety, the chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board said yesterday that airliners are still "the safest way to travel" and the public should not be unduly alarmed by the rash of aviation accidents this year.

But NTSB chairman Jim Burnett told the Senate Commerce aviation subcommittee that the Federal Aviation Administration has failed to respond to changes brought on by airline deregulation, including the rapid increase in the number of small airlines and increased air traffic.

He said FAA inspectors are not only too few in number but often have "a very gentlemanly" relationship with the airlines they are supposed to monitor. Breakdowns in communications and coordination among air traffic controllers, especially in towers of busy airports, also remain "very disturbing," he said.

The hearing was called to examine a variety of air safety issues against a backdrop of an unprecedented string of airline accidents worldwide that has claimed more than 1,600 lives this year.

Asked whether air travel was safe, Burnett, whose agency investigates airline accidents, replied: "I don't think there's any basis for the aviation consumer to be alarmed over a degradation of safety."

curred. "I am convinced that we express our gratitude for both by continuing the dialogue with the world, solidifying the social ministry in the Church, and stating publicly... on a range of social issues which bear upon the human dignity of the person."

Bernardin turned the discussion over to O'Connor, who built on the topic of pastoral letter methodology by speaking on and from the development of the second draft of the pastoral on the economy.

O'Connor began by telling the audience about his recent visits to poverty-stricken Ethiopia, Nicaragua, and the Dominican Republic, which led to a passage in the bishops' letter: "the tenets of Church teaching take on new morality when we see poverty in our world."

A precipitating factor of the pastoral on the economy was a sermon by the pope in Yankee Stadium in 1979, when he said, "riches and freedom create a special obligation and a special dignity of every human person."

"We're not trying to indict the wealthy for being wealthy," he said. "Christ demands attention to the poor that is more than token."

O'Connor explained the development of the first draft of the letter, saying that the model for the pastoral on peace was used. Interviews were conducted with experts, and "we produced an imperfect document... and pleaded for honest responses to it."

The bishops received 10,000 pages of response, "generally most supportive, and recognizing the need for something to be done."

The second draft of the letter will not be released until Oct. 7, but O'Connor quoted parts of it, saying it "looked at the broadest spectrum of proposals."

O'Connor said the best moral judgments of the bishops said that the positions of the letter "deserve deference, sincere study, contributions by readers, and perhaps rejection..."

"But they plead for a hearing, a reading and praying," he continued.

There are five chapters to the second draft of the letter, with topics including: The Church and the future of the U.S. economy, Christian vocation in the world today, right to life, labor unions, unemployment, minorities and poverty.

O'Connor ended by stressing the importance of the Church teachings in the world. "The ministry of the Church has given firsthand knowledge of hopes and struggles of all in the world," he said.

"It is our commitment, our hope, and our dream to do what we possibly can do to bring about for all people what we call the American dream," he continued, calling for a "plea for love" to bring this about.

People should consider the implication of labels

The latest movement in Washington has set its sights on rating rock music lyrics. I do not think this is right and I felt compelled to urge all open-minded persons to seriously consider the implications of this new movement to "control" rock lyrics.

Tim Adams

guest column

First, what the Parent's Music Resource Center is asking the record industry to do is akin to asking it to cut off its own right arm. The Resource Center demands that all records contain some sort universal ratings code. Okay so who is going to rate the records? There are approximately 2,500 albums released a year with an average of say, nine or ten on each one. That works out to about 25,000 songs a year which need to be judged as "X," "R," "PG," or whatever; and the judging process can be nothing but completely subjective when it comes to songs with innuendos. Mandyck compared this system to that used by the Motion Picture Association of America. There are only about 325 films rated each year. The Resource Center wants this system to be performed voluntarily by the recording industry, which is an expensive and time consuming process in itself.

Second, the Resource Center also demands that lyrics be printed on the outside jacket of a record, so that parents can "approve" of what their child buys. This is ridiculous. Record labels do not have control over lyrics and whether or not they can be printed; the publishing companies do. Just look on any old record with lyrics included and see where it reads, "All lyrics reprinted with permission." Just getting lyrics printed is a logistical mess of red tape.

Third, the Resource Center want record labels to make lyrics available to radio stations, so that they can decide whether or not to play the songs. Again, another costly and ineffective move; the FCC already regulates what can and cannot be said over the airwaves. If your child can detect innuendos in Sheena Easton's "Sugar Walls," then he or she is past being affected by such lyrics. Unless, of course, you have neglected to instill in your child a sense of what is right or wrong, normal or perverse. If a child has been taught these things at an early age, then he or she should not be swayed by cuss words or whatever. The same thing applies to Prince's much cited "Darling Nikki." If a child knows what "masturbating" means, then he or she should recognize that it is something normal. The more you hide things from children, the more they are going to want to find out about them.

Last, and most importantly, I think what the Resource Center wants is censorship, and that scares the hell out of me. If a record is given an "R" rating, for example, radio stations might make it a policy never to play anything from it.

Big record chain stores like Musicland might refuse to stock records with "bad" ratings. That is censorship. Okay so you say, "Well, the artists just have to learn not to put any offensive material on an album." What happens to freedom of expression, or artistic integrity? They are thrown out the window, just because a group of well-connected Washington women decide they do not like what Judas Priest said or what Prince did on stage.

It is interesting to note that the Resource Center does have some power to force the Recording Association of America to bend, simply because the husbands of the Resource Center members, some of whom are congressmen, can veto the Recording Association's proposed law to issue a tax on blank tape sales if they do not conform. The Recording Association is damned if they do, and damned if they don't.

Ah, ain't that America.

Faulty analysis made in Safranek's column

Dear Editor:

I lament with Stephen Safranek's view in his column on Sept.30, that the Sacrament of Penance is a neglected celebration in this time of the Church's life, but I lament even more his mistaken theology about the sacrament and his half-hearted analysis of its demise.

Among his mistakes are the following. First, Lent is not "the time of fasting and preparation in anticipation of Christ Jesus's resurrection;" it is a season of baptismal renewal for the Christian people in light of the resurrection of Christ which has already occurred.

Further, we cannot "make sacrifices to God in reparation" for our sins, because nothing we do can influence God's intention of salvation for us; we can only accept and rejoice in his gracious gift of mercy. Christ gave the Church no "explicit admonition" to institute Penance; the Church has simply extended Christ's mercy and forgiveness in its mission and sacramental practice.

Finally, Penance is not the "Sacrament of Reconciliation;" it is one of at least three such sacraments, joined with Baptism and yes, the Eucharist.

These mistakes of the first two paragraphs aside, Safranek's hope in the future of Penance would have been better served if he had spoken with Stacy Bonanni, whose column followed his, rather than reflecting on the half-hour confessions of nuns. (Did he ever consider that the priest may have been brow-beating the woman?) Bonanni's call to justice, that is, the restoration of right relationships in Christ, is the key to the revitalization of Penance in the Church's life.

The core of the celebration of Penance is that our commitment to right our wrong relationships with our sisters and brothers in the Church, in the world, with nature and with God, is met with God's gifts of mercy and forgiveness. It is a celebration of God's everlasting love and the beginning of our renewed life in Christ. Penance is nothing more - and nothing less - than recommitting ourselves to the life and responsibilities of our baptism into Christ.

The renewal of Penance, then, will depend less on meditating about the confessions of nuns, and more on meditating about the Gospel of Christ which points us in the ways of justice and peace with our sisters and brothers, and thus with our God.

Separate schools enjoy unique opportunities

Dear Editor:

In light of recent discussion of who's who, and what's what, we decided to write a letter. To begin, we must say that Notre Dame students are Notre Dame students, and Saint Mary's students are Saint Mary's students. We have a lot to be proud of as individual schools and as a community. We all should be thankful that we have advantages of both a small college and a large university.

We are one community of two schools which has clubs, plays, workshops, fundraisers, masses, classes, choirs and social events together. While we are not one school, we have unique opportunities of being able to share these strengths and capabilities together and grow with them.

There always will be disagreements over who's who and what's what, but we think it is best to remember that we are very lucky to have the benefits of each school.

What more can we say?

Ann Pettifer thanked for expression of views

Dear Editor:

Thank you, Ann Pettifer, once again for a fine letter to the editor. I am glad to see that The Observer continues to provide a place for people to express issues of injustice. Your revelatory denouncement of patriarchy and sexism is one that is most welcome and must be heard by all.

Although your critique may be uncomfortable for some to hear, for many more it is refreshing and inspiring. I believe that you, as the first woman student here at Notre Dame, have been a good role model for other women here. I hope University members can recognize your leadership and respond to your challenge to speak out against injustice.

Help Mexico City begin to pick up the pieces

Dear Editor:

Mexico City is a city of hope, brotherhood and solidarity. Every citizen is giving his/her best to help save lives, give shelter, feed and clothe those that were hurt by the earthquakes.

The downtown area of the city was very badly hurt (less than one-sixth of the metropolitan area). The majority of the buildings that collapsed were offices, and because of the hour, many people were in them.

The proportion of deaths is very small, less than 5,000 lost lives in a city of 17 million inhabitants.

I am sure that if you had been close by, you would be giving us aid.

Because of the distance, all you can do is help collect funds to help reconstruct our city, our hospitals, our schools, our homes. Maybe the International Student Organization, together with some of the other clubs, could coordinate the fund raising. They can contact the Mexican Consulate in Chicago to receive instructions as to how to send the money to the fund for reconstruction.

In name of my city, I thank you in advance for your help.

Century Center shows South Bend not a cultural void, as some think

Marilyn Benchik
features writer

Congratulations!
You did it!
Your mommy and daddy told you that if you worked real hard some day you'd be able to attend a good, competitive college like Notre Dame.

And you were a good little boy or girl. So now you find yourself wrapped in the arms of what many consider to be the most boring place on earth, namely, South Bend, Ind.

But take heart, and take it from a townie. This town isn't that bad.

Michiana may not be the cultural and social center of the universe, but it is holding its own for a metropolitan area of its size. All one needs is to know where to find the action.

A very good place to start is the Century Center, located in downtown South Bend. The Century Center was the joint effort of two architects: the famed Philip Johnson, and Notre Dame graduate John Burgee.

When it opened on Nov. 1, 1977, the novel center had five separate buildings under one roof. These sections include the Convention Room, the Industrial Museum, the Bendix Theatre, the art gallery, and the Great Hall.

"What was really needed was to have five separate buildings in one building in order to keep the different areas of culture in one area," said Brian Hedman, the Century Center's executive director.

The center has acted as a catalyst for many other architectural developments in downtown South Bend as well, according to director Hedman. Examples include the First Source Bank/Marriot Hotel building and the East Race Rapids.

The Century Center was also built to rejuvenate the core of South Bend, a city which needed to attract more conventions. The city has a historic Studebaker collection that was in "virtual mothballs," said Hedman. There was also the need to attract visual arts to the area.

The Notre Dame and Saint Mary's community often deals with the Century Center for both social and cultural events. In the spring of 1984, the combined Notre upon. As Hedman said, "Together we help to keep business alive in this city."

Another joint cultural event between Notre Dame/Saint Mary's and Century Center was the production of "Under Milkwood" four years ago. This experience gave the students the unique experience of performing for the general public as well as the academic community. The event was, however, a financial failure because, according to Hedman, it was a more serious production than the public demanded. The actors also had the opportunity of performing on Bendix Theatre's Thrust Stage, which provided them with a change from the usual setting.

Future events planned at Century Center include J. Hartley Manners' "Peg O' My Heart," to be presented by the Acting Ensemble Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Also this weekend a Sportsmed 10-K Health Fair will be held in Convention Hall, and a Running & Aerobics Lecture will be sponsored by the Saint Joseph Medical Center in the Bendix Theatre. The Chamber of Commerce will be conducting a "Shaping Our Destiny" Seminar in the River Level Suites 1-3 on Oct. 17. The South Bend Civic Theatre will be performing in Recital Hall from Oct. 17 to 19 and from Oct. 20 to 26. The Midwest Pops Orchestra will be playing in Convention Hall for a "Pops Laugh-In" concert Nov. 3.

In addition to these special engagements, the Century Center sponsors a weekly White Water Series which is held every Wednesday at noon on the Island Park. Different bands play and you can buy lunch or bag your own.

Although it may not be Chicago or New York, or even Mishawaka, South Bend still offers many sophisticated, professional and interesting social and cultural events.

When there are conventions held in South Bend that require a facility for elegance and variety, Century Center usually fills the bill.

Dame/Saint Mary's production of "Camelot" was performed in the Bendix Theatre. Some event for Saint Mary's Sophomore Parent's Weekend were held there last year, and numerous SYR dances are to be held there this fall.

"We work with the Notre Dame community," said Hedman. When there are conventions held in South Bend that require a facility for elegance and variety, Century Center usually fills the bill. But when the convention requires a building or area to accommodate a larger capacity, the Notre Dame ACC and its grounds are called

From Oreo cookies to India Club

Sacred cows, rajahs and white elephants may be light years away from life on campus, but they aren't as distant for everyone, especially for the members of the Notre Dame India Association.

The club provides the needed opportunity for Indians and non-Indians alike to experience this exotic culture.

The club was founded in 1966 to help the Indian students at Notre Dame adjust to life in American society, a life that is as widely different from theirs as our Oreo cookies are from the Indian delicacy, gulab jaman.

This year's club is actively involved in sharing the unique Indian experience with Americans. Thirty of the approximately 80 members of the club are not native Indians. The club hopes to attract as many non-Indians as possible so that it has the opportunity to show the Indian culture to those who otherwise would have no exposure to it. The

Among upcoming activities are a celebration of former Indian peace activist Mahatma Gandhi's birthday featuring local speakers for non-violence. Other activities include a Indian cultural music program sometime in October, and some speakers from India in November.

According to Varma, holidays on the Indian calendar are too numerous to celebrate them all, so they just celebrate the major ones. Aug. 15 is the day India attained independence from the British in 1947 and the celebration is comparable the Fourth of July in the United States. Jan. 26, the other big holiday, is called Republic Day, as the Indian formal code of law was Indian members also hope to learn about other cultures.

Succeeding Hemant Tiwari, last year's president, is graduate student Pushar Varma. Varma, who specializes in genetics, is attending Notre Dame on fellowship from his home university.

The club was started by graduate students and is still largely made up of them, although there are also quite a few undergraduates, as well as local Indian families, in the club. The families give an authentic flavor to the meetings, with their native dress of saris and Nehru jackets.

The most exciting events for non-Indians, however, are the general meetings of the club, where delectable native fare is provided by the families and hilarious Indian movies are shown, usually in Hindi. These evenings are designed so that persons of all cultures can get the taste of India so often missing from the wintery Midwest.

The club will have another organizational meeting in November to discuss future activities. Those interested should contact Varma for further information.

Angels 4, Royals 2

KANSAS CITY - Mike Witt and Donnie Moore combined on a six-hitter as the California Angels regained their one-game lead over Kansas City in the American League West with a 4-2 victory last night over the Royals.

Witt, 14-9, worked 7 2-3 innings before Moore came on to get his 30th save. Witt gave up six hits, walked one and struck out five.

The Angels scored three runs in the fifth and chased Kansas City left-hander Charlie Leibrandt, 17-9, who had won four of his previous five decisions.

Yankees 6, Brewers 1

NEW YORK - Joe Niekro teamed up with Dave Righetti on a five-hitter last night to give the New York Yankees their sixth straight victory, a 6-1 triumph over the Milwaukee Brewers.

It was the 40-year-old Niekro's second straight victory against one loss since joining the Yankees Sept. 15. He allowed three hits and one run over 5 2-3 innings before giving way to Righetti, who picked up his 28th save.

The victory, coupled with Toronto's loss to Detroit, kept at three the Blue Jays' magic number for eliminating the Yankees from the American League East race.

Jamie Cocanower, 5-8, took the loss.

Tigers 6, Blue Jays 1

DETROIT - Darrell Evans hit two home runs to regain the American League lead as the Detroit Tigers beat Toronto 6-1 last night, slowing down the Blue Jays' championship express.

The Blue Jays, whose magic number for winning the American League East was three, started play with a five-game lead over the second-place New York Yankees. The Blue Jays host the Yankees in a season-ending three-game series this weekend.

Frank Tanana, 11-14, scattered nine hits, struck out seven and walked one in notching his third complete game.

Evans' first homer, a solo shot in the first inning, was his 38th of the season.

Lou Whitaker singled off Doyle Alexander, 16-10, to start the Detroit third and rode home on Evans' 39th homer of the year.

Red Sox 10, Orioles 3

BALTIMORE - Bill Buckner, who drove in five runs, and Dwight Evans hit three-run homers last night to lead the Boston Red Sox to a 10-3 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Buckner, who also had two run-scoring doubles, gave the Red Sox a 4-3 lead with his 14th homer in the fifth inning. Buckner paced Boston's 13-hit attack with four hits. He now has 104 RBI and a career high 43 doubles.

Evans' 28th homer of the season keyed Boston's five-run sixth. Buckner and Tony Armas had RBI doubles in the inning.

Both home runs came off Baltimore starter Dennis Martinez, 13-10, who pitched 5 2-3 innings.

Bruce Hurst, 11-12, gave up eight hits, walked three and struck out five in eight innings.

Indians 9, Mariners 3

CLEVELAND - Andre Thornton snapped a sixth-inning tie with a two-run homer, and Don Schulze ended a personal nine-game losing streak with seven innings of three-hit pitching, as the Cleveland Indians defeated the Seattle Mariners 9-3 last night.

Thornton gave the Indians a 4-2 lead in the sixth by hitting his 21st home run after Julio Franco's leadoff double off Frank Wills, 5-10.

Schulze, 4-9, had been winless after posting victories in his first three decisions. He struck out five, walked two and allowed only one hit after the fourth. Jerry Reed got his eighth save.

White Sox 12, Twins 6

MINNEAPOLIS - A pair of two-run homers by Ron Kittle and a three-run blow by Harold Baines powered a 15-hit attack last night to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 12-6 trashing of the Minnesota Twins.

Floyd Bannister, 9-14, allowed six hits and five runs over 6 1-3 innings to earn the victory before reliever Dan Spillner came on to finish.

Kittle's 23rd homer, coming after a leadoff walk to Carlton Fisk in the fifth, gave Chicago a 3-2 lead and sparked a seven-run outburst. Kittle added a homer in the seventh to cap a three-run Chicago inning.

The loss went to Mike Smithson, 14-14.

Rangers 4, A's 2

ARLINGTON, Texas - Jose Guzman pitched eight strong innings and Don Slaught had three hits and drove in two runs last night to lead the Texas Rangers to a 4-2 victory over the Oakland A's.

Guzman, 3-2, gave up seven hits, walked four and struck out a career-high six batters. He left in the ninth in favor of Rich Surhoff, who got his second save. Guzman had not allowed an earned run in 22 1/3 innings before Dave Kingman hit his 29th homer for Oakland in the eighth.

Chris Codiroli, 13-14, pitched the first five innings to take the loss.

Cubs 4, Pirates 3

CHICAGO - Leon Durham's tie-breaking home run in the second inning and Jody Davis' two-run shot in the fourth powered Reggie Patterson and the Chicago Cubs to a 4-3 victory yesterday over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Patterson, 2-0, scattered eight hits, allowed two runs, walked three batters and struck out two in 6 2-3 innings. Jay Baller surrendered Mike Brown's leadoff homer in the eighth, then Lee Smith took over and earned his 33rd save. Rick Reuschel, who had won four in a row, gave up three hits, walked one and struck out six in seven innings and fell to 14-8.

Reds 7, Giants 6

SAN FRANCISCO - Eric Davis looped a two-run single to center field in the eighth inning to put Cincinnati ahead as the Reds beat the San Francisco Giants 7-6 yesterday to remain mathematically alive in the National League West pennant race.

The first-place Los Angeles Dodgers, who lead the Reds by five games, had an opportunity to clinch at least a tie for the division title by beating San Diego last night.

Davis had three hits, including the game-winner off reliever Scott Garrelts, 9-5, and drove in four runs. The Reds loaded the bases in the eighth on Dave Concepcion's single, a walk to Bo Diaz and a bunt single by Ron Oester.

Tom Hume, 3-4, was the winning pitcher and John Franco earned his 11th save.

Senior walk-on

Hard work pays off for Monahan

By MARTY STRASEN
Sports Writer

As far as raw talent is concerned, Notre Dame fullback Tom Monahan is not among the nation's best. But weakness in the ability category is not about to stop this senior from succeeding.

In short, he's a winner. "Judging Tom on his ability alone, you might not expect him to play college football," says Irish assistant head coach Mal Moore, "but that's before you take a look at how hard he works and his dedication to the game."

During his senior year at Arcola High School in Arcola, Ill., Monahan did not appear destined to wear the blue and gold of Notre Dame. Although he rushed for better than 1,300 yards and earned all-league status, he was not recruited by the Irish.

"I was looked at by a few Division II schools," Monahan says, "but the offers stopped coming when I told them I was going to Notre Dame. I wanted to walk on. I wanted to see if I could play big-time college football."

The choice was a natural one for the 5-10, 210-pounder. His father Tim is a former Irish football player, and his uncle Jim was captain of the basketball team in 1967. Playing football for Notre Dame was something he wanted to do, and that's exactly what he did.

"I was invited to join the prep team as soon as practice started," he says. "They already had looked at some films of me and had decided to keep me around. (The prep team) wasn't too bad. I hoped to get my chance to move up when (Mark) Brooks and (Chris) Smith left. I knew I couldn't beat them out."

Monahan was given his chance earlier, however, carrying the ball twice for 17 yards in Notre Dame's 55-14 thrashing of Colorado last season. With the graduation of Brooks and Smith last spring, Monahan is behind only sophomore Frank Stams on the depth chart this fall.

Moore can only praise the efforts of his fullback.

"Most walk-ons don't get the same work that the regulars get," he says. "When his opportunity came along, he made the most of it. He made himself into a good, sound football player."

Monahan has carried the ball three times this season for a total of 11 yards. He's a quiet person, both on and off the field. When given the chance, he gets the job done. These qualities earned him the number-two fullback position, along with a scholarship last spring.

"You have to like to hit," he says. "You have to abuse your body. If you want to make it, you can't think about it. You just have to go out and do it. I don't have any special talents. I just go out there and do whatever I can."

Irish fans can look forward to watching more hardnose football from Monahan for the remainder of this season, and probably in 1986 as well. He has one year of eligibility remaining, and plans to make the most of it.

"They've asked me to come back next year," he explains. "Right now, I plan to stay here as long as they want me."

Moore realizes the value of Monahan perhaps better than anyone.

"He's not gifted with natural ability," says the Irish coach, "but he's up there with the best of them in heart. You have to tip your hat to him."

Consider it done.

Irish hope to rebound today against Falcons

By PHIL WOLF
Assistant Sports Editor

The Notre Dame soccer team will play host to Bowling Green on Alumni Field this afternoon at 4 in an attempt to continue the rescue of its 2-7-1 season.

The 2-5-2 Falcons are coming off a tie last weekend with national powerhouse Akron, so they are expected to be flying high.

The Irish are coming off a weekend which saw an overtime victory at Wisconsin-Green Bay and a narrow loss at Northwestern. Today's meeting with the Falcons will be the fourth for the two teams. Bowling Green leads the series, 2-1, with Notre Dame owning the most recent victory, 2-1 in 1980.

Overcoming the negative feelings from the disappointing game at Northwestern probably will be the biggest task for the Irish today. Notre Dame Head Coach Dennis Grace says his players are up to the challenge.

"I'm convinced that this team has always risen to the occasion," Grace said Monday. "They've risen to the challenges and the obstacles in front of them before, and I'll be extremely disappointed if they don't do the same thing against Bowling Green."

"The thing to do is not to dwell on the loss at this point."

Grace was having trouble getting Sunday's loss out of his mind on Monday, though.

The contest was played on what the Irish coach called "one of the worst fields I have seen in years." The playing surface was marred by rocks and clumps of dirt, and the field was particularly narrow. "The field was the great equalizer" that made the matchup between the Irish and the Wildcats close, Grace said.

Not wishing to use the field as an excuse, however, Grace offered his team's overconfidence as a possible reason for the 1-0 loss.

"At no time did we feel a sense of urgency," he said. "I really don't think those kids (the Irish) thought they could lose that game. We played hard and did what we could on a rotten field."

The difference in the score came from Northwestern freshman Jimmy Muldoon, who scored with only two minutes remaining in the match. Muldoon was one of the high school seniors whom Grace recruited most heavily last year.

His goal came on a breakaway which provided the Wildcats with one of their only scoring opportunities in an Irish-dominated second half. Notre Dame had numerous chances at goalkeeper Bill Evans, but could not get the ball in the net.

"It seems like every time we make a mistake, we pay big dividends, we pay a big price," Grace said, as he has many times this season. "But when the other teams make mistakes, we don't capitalize."

The Irish were able to capitalize on their own good play Saturday, when they beat Wisconsin-Green Bay, 3-2, in overtime.

Notre Dame got goals from Marvin Lett, Bill Gross and Martin Mangalardi to notch the victory. Tom Gerlach and Joe Sternberg contributed one assist each.

Approximately 1500 spectators were in attendance at the homecoming game for the Phoenix. The Irish also were up against a referee whom Grace said was biased to the home team, and several Notre Dame players still were recovering from the flu which swept through the team last week. In short, the Irish faced "a tremendous battle," as the visiting coach called it.

Grace said the adverse conditions that the Irish had faced previously this season tuned them up for that battle, however.

"We fought like heck. We did the things we had to do," he said. "We played a great second half, we really put it to them, and we beat a heckuva team at their homecoming. Everything was in their favor. Everything was going their way, but we just beat them with a great effort."

Another great effort will be required today against Bowling Green if the Irish hope to improve their record.

Farley beats Lyons, Lewis; P.E. also remains unbeaten

By KEVIN HERBERT
Sports Writer

The mighty Farley flag football team returned to its championship form last week by picking up two big wins while outscoring its opponents 42-0.

At the midway point of this season, there are only two undefeated teams remaining. One is the defending champ, Farley, and the other is last year's runner-up, Pasquerilla East.

There were three games last Thursday. Farley, after a last second 14-12 win over Lyons, continued its winning ways by trouncing Lewis, 26-0.

Pasquerilla East opened up a potent offense to defeat its counterpart, Paquerilla West, 31-13.

In the other game Thursday, the dark horse of this year's flag football field, Lyons, downed the always gritty Breen-Phillips, 14-6.

"Last season, we did not have a single senior so we did not lose anyone. We have a great freshman crop that adds talent to our team while allowing the entire squad to stay fresh," commented Lyons' coach Jeanne Luther.

Lyons thrashed Badin 26-6 last night to up its record to 2-1. Lyons' only defeat occurred at the hands of Farley in a game that is still under protest.

In Sunday's action, Pasquerilla West rebounded from its defeat to blank Walsh, 22-0. Meanwhile in a close affair, Pasquerilla East defeated the struggling Lewis Chickens 8-6.

In the other game Sunday, Farley continued its Interhall flag football dominance by defeating rival Breen Phillips, 16-0.

"Their offensive pass attack was awesome. It broke our pass defense. We contained Farley's running game and option, but their passing was great," said BP coach Ann Schwartz.

The victory leaves Farley at 3-0 while lowering BP's ledger to 1-2. Despite the slow start, Schwartz is still optimistic.

"We will bounce back and see them again in the playoffs."

Pasquerilla East upped their season record to 4-0 last night by defeating Walsh, 14-0. Just how good PE is remains to be seen, but the light will begin to be shone Sunday. Thus far, PE's defeated opponents combined record is 3-10.

Sunday, however, PE will play the talented team from Lyons in a game which may prove to be a good indicator of who will challenge Farley for the title.

Before Lyons plays PE, they will have to square off against PW in a 7 p.m. start on Cartier field this evening. Following this contest, Farley will be pitted against hapless Badin (0-3).

The final game tonight will commence at 9 p.m., featuring Lewis (0-3) versus BP (1-2).

Two other games, aside from PE vs. Lyons, will be played Sunday. At 8 p.m. Badin and Lewis will tangle while at 9 p.m. PW and Farley will match up for battle.

Belles beat Irish

The Saint Mary's soccer team defeated the Notre Dame Women's Soccer Club yesterday afternoon at Stepan Field by a score of 2-0.

The win was the first of the season for the Belles, whose record now stands at 1-6.

With a minute left in the first half of the game, junior Mary Anne Perri scored the first goal for Saint Mary's off a throw in by sophomore teammate Landry Clement.

Senior Sue Schierl scored the second goal for the Belles three minutes into the second half. Schierl was assisted on the play by freshman Sarah Creech.

Saint Mary's coach John Akers was quite pleased with the team's performance and noted that the Belles' defense particularly contributed to the win.

"I really thought our defense came together today. We played with intensity for a full 90 minutes," he said. "I thought Gloria Eleuteri, Anne Pechous, Mary Beth Proost, Ann-Nora Ehret and Maureen Murphy all contributed to our strong defensive play. Our goalie, Patty Hatfield, did an excellent job also.

"Sarah Creech started at midfield for the first time today, and she, too, played well."

The Belles' next game is against Wheaton College Saturday at 1 p.m. on Angela Field.

"I'm hoping we can play with the same determined defense and keep working the ball at midfield," Akers said.

Mets tip Cardinals in 11 innings

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS - Darryl Strawberry hit a two-out home run in the 11th inning and Ron Darling combined with Jesse Orosco on a four-hitter last night, keeping the New York Mets alive in the National League East with dramatic 1-0 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Strawberry's 28th homer, which came after reliever Ken Dayley struck out the first two batters he faced, capped a game otherwise dominated by Darling and St. Louis starter John Tudor. Neither Darling nor Tudor, however, got a decision.

The victory in the opener of the three-game series pulled the Mets within two games of first-place St. Louis and kept the Cardinals' magic number for clinching the division at four.

Tudor, who leads the major leagues with 10 shutouts, blanked the Mets for 10 innings on six hits. Darling shut out New York on four hits for nine innings.

Dayley, 4-4, replaced Tudor to start the 11th and struck out Keith Hernandez and Gary Carter. But Strawberry hit a 1-1 pitch into the right-field bleachers for the game's only run.

Orosco, 8-6, pitched out of trouble in both the 10th and 11th innings. In the 10th, the Cardinals had runners on first and second with two outs before pinch-hitter Jack Clark fled out.

In the 11th, center fielder Mookie Wilson dropped Tommy Herr's shallow fly for a two-base error, and Herr took third on a groundout by pinch-hitter Brian Harper. Orosco ended the game by retiring pinch-hitter Ivan DeJesus on a fly ball to Wilson.

A crowd of 46,026, the largest at Busch Stadium since a June 30 game against New York, watched the game on a brisk night.

The Mets had mounted scoring threats in the seventh and again in the ninth, and both times Tudor was equal to the challenge.

Life is more than volleyball for Belles' Reidy

Transferring from a state university of 33,000 students to a small women's college can be quite a culture shock as far as the people, the classes and the way of life are concerned. But Mary Reidy, a junior member of the Saint Mary's volleyball team, has made quite a habit of experiencing different ways of living. Not only did she make the big move from Bloomington, Ind., after her freshman year at Indiana, but she also has taken the Urban Plunge in the housing projects on Chicago's South Side, as well as spending four weeks as a camp counselor in upper Wisconsin's wilderness.

An economics major who "never, never" wants to work in a bank like everyone else in her field, would someday like to help the type of people she visited in Chicago's projects.

"I talked to people in the housing projects just to see what was happening in their lives. I talked about what the government was and wasn't doing. I also talked to high school kids about their expectations and aspirations.

"There's so much that can be done if someone is willing to organize it. I want to put my economics major toward developing areas of this kind."

For Reidy, a native of Lake Bluff, Ill., one of Chicago's wealthier northern suburbs, the Urban Plunge experience last year really opened her eyes to the way people live right in her own hometown.

Last summer proved to be another learning experience for the 20-year-old LeMans resident. Instead of heading to the big city, however, she went back to nature.

After lifeguarding at a private club for the first two months last summer, Reidy set out for Boulder Junction, Wis., for another eye-opening experience as a camp counselor for 13-year old girls in the middle of the wilderness.

"I had nine girls in my cabin and I took half of them at a time on five-day canoe trips. It was a really good experience and a definite challenge. It was also nice to just leave everything. It was a big culture shock coming back to school and smelling ethanol when you're used to waking up to loons and bald eagles."

On her second canoe trip, it rained the whole time, and in order to eat, they had to build a fire which consisted of burning birch bark under a tarp. According to Reidy, there were none of the modern conveniences of home available.

"It shows you what's real in life. Going to these two schools, you sometimes forget about what really matters," she says.

"The kids were really depending on you, not only to lead on the trips but they also asked your advice on everything."

With only a map to guide her on the canoe trips, she admitted it was quite scary at times.

"The big joke was 'Don't give Mary the map, or we'll get lost.'"

Although no official captain has been elected for the volleyball team this year, the Belles will be well guided by Reidy.

Being the only upper classman on this year's nine-member team has put the 5-9 hitter in a position to take on some leadership responsibilities.

"I'm very pleased with the leadership role she has just naturally taken over," says Head Coach Mary Jo Lambert.

"Last year I didn't voice my opinions. I didn't take a stand as a leader," says Reidy, the team's middle blocker and last season's most-improved-player award winner.

"I have played just as long as the sophomores, but since I'm the oldest on the team I think more is expected of me."

Not only is three-fourths of this year's team composed of newcomers, but Reidy also had to adjust to the style of a new coach, an adjustment she gladly accepted.

"Mary Jo is a great coach. She gives her all and always has something positive to say. She's out to help everyone. She really cares about you as a person. And the morale of the team is much better this year," says Reidy.

The decision to go to Saint Mary's was based on several factors, none of which had to do with volleyball.

"When I was a senior in high school, I vowed never to go to Saint Mary's or Notre Dame. I had tons of relatives who went to both schools, and I was just applying to a lot of big schools in the Midwest to play volleyball," says Reidy. "I was going to walk on at Iowa, but then I decided to go to (Indiana) and just play intramurals. I had put too much emphasis on volleyball my senior year."

Reidy's athletic career at Lake Forest High School consisted of being a three-year letter winner on the school's volleyball team, receiving MVP honors her junior and senior years. She also ran varsity track all four years, qualifying for the state championships in the 800 medley relay.

In February of her freshman year at I.U., Reidy entertained thoughts of going to Saint Mary's, after all.

"It was a good decision. I liked I.U., but it was just too big and hard to make friends. You'd meet someone one semester then never see them again. I wanted to go to a place where you made good friends and kept them. I also didn't like the Greek system. Saint Mary's had a good atmosphere and good people," says Reidy, who was this year's transfer chairman on the orientation committee.

With her family moving to San Diego soon, Reidy will experience yet another way of life on the West Coast. And if past experiences are any indication, Mary Reidy will meet the challenge and make the most of her situation.
