Pathologists examine shuttle crew remains, sea search continues

Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. - Pathologists yesterday examined remains of Challenger's crew, sources reported, while high winds and seas hampered the ocean search for more body parts and debris such as data tapes that might provide clues to the disaster.

Some remains and crew cabin wreckage were brought ashore secretly Saturday night by the Navy salvage ship USS Preserver, which entered port without running lights, said the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

In announcing Sunday that the cabin debris and remains had been found on the ocean floor, NASA did not say whether anything had been recovered. The agency said it would respect family wishes and not comment again until the operation was completed.

NASA spokesman said nothing yesterday. The Navy, which is conducting the search, said the 213-foot Preserver was at the scene where the cabin debris was found but declined to say whether divers were on the ocean floor.

Recovering cabin wreckage and body remains depends on weather and sea conditions, NASA said, and could take days. The search was slowed yesterday by winds up to 20 mph and waves as high as eight feet.

Private boats were barred from an area two miles around the search site and private planes were kept five miles away. Sections of the cabin were found approximately 18 miles northeast of Cape Canaveral at a depth of 100 feet.

Five men and two women died in the fiery explosion 73 seconds after Challenger left its launch pad here Jan. 28.

Data tapes that were in the cabin could shed light on the cause of the explosion, but it was not known how well the tapes survived.

The sources did not know if remains of all seven had been located. They said recovered body parts had been taken to a hospital at Patrick Air Force Base, 25 miles south of here, where they were examined yesterday by forensic experts from the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology.

The condition of the bodies was not known by the sources, but they said "we're talking about remains, not bodies."

The examinations were not only for identification, but also could help determine whether the University's highest honor awarded to trustee, wife

Special to The Observer

Notre Dame Board of Trustees Chairman Thomas Carney and his wife, Mary Elizabeth of Lake Forest, Ill., have been awarded Notre Dame's 1986 Laetare Medal, University President Father Theodore Hesburgh announced recently.

The medal is the University's highest honor and the oldest award given to American Catholics.

In announcing the honor, Hesburgh noted that Carney, president of Metatech Corporation in Northbrook, Ill., has had almost every possible relationship with Notre Dame since he graduated from the University with a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering in 1937.

"As a student, an alumnus, a parent of students, a benefactor, a counselor, a lecturer, a trustee and finally as chairman of the board, Tom Carney has consistently exemplified the qualities and values Notre Dame holds dearest," Hesburgh said.

Following his graduation from Notre Dame, Carney earned master's and doctoral degrees in organic chemistry from Pennsylvania State University and did post-doctoral work in medicinal chemistry at the University of Wisconsin. Before forming Metatech Corporation in 1976, he had spent more than 35 years in the pharmaceutical industry's research, development, planning, operations and administration.

Carney's work at the Eli Lilly and G.D. Searle companies was instrumental in the development of many of the drugs which have affected 20th century life, including a wide variety of antibiotics, antihistamines, barbiturates, analgesics, cancer chemotherapies and anesthetics. At Metatech he is developing new instruments and devices for use in the medical field.

Test turns tables on 200,000 Texas teachers

Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas - Approximately 200,000 teachers, principals and other Texas educators faced their own no-pass no-play rule yesterday as they took a test to determine whether they read and write well enough to keep their jobs.

Texas approved a public school reform law in 1984, joining Arkansas and Georgia in requiring teachers and other school officials to take literacy tests.

The measure included a no-pass no-play rule that bars students from extracurricular activities if they fail any class.

Texas educators who don't pass the test by June 30 will lose their teaching certificates and jobs. A second test for those who failed the first exam will be given June 28.

National Computer Systems Inc., an Iowa testing company, will grade the exams and teachers will be told by May 1 only if they pass or fail.

State education officials predicted approximately 10,000 teachers would fail the first test. The commissioner of education may grant a one-year emergency waiver to teachers who fail both tests, but any other appeals would have to be made through the courts.

Most educators said the test - 55 multiple choice questions, 30 on writing skills, and a 150-word essay - was easy. The passing grade is 75 percent.

"Piece of cake," said fourth-grade teacher Patti Turman of Austin, the first to finish, "I feel a lot of my students could have answered a lot of those questions."

Students had the day off while their teachers were tested.

"Honestly, I don't see how a person who fails this test could have ever gotten a degree at any college," said Al Martin, a Texas Education Agency employee.

Many teachers were insulted at taking a test to keep their jobs.

State teaching certificates were issued for a lifetime before the 1984 law.

"After graduating from college and taking all those tests, why go back and take an eight-grade test?" asked Houston high school teacher Linda Savell.

Some teachers wore protest buttons or stickers yesterday, and special education teacher Judy Boston collected names on a protest petition outside Austin High School.

One teacher was exempted from the test Friday when State District Judge R.L. Eschenburg ruled she had earned her teaching certificate before the reform law was passed.

Author proposes plan for 'immoral' system's problems

By ANN MARIE DURNING

Stuart Speiser

Internationally-known author and lawyer Stuart Speiser, speaking at the Center for Social Concerns last night, presented a proposal to alleviate what he sees as the injustices of capitalism.

Speiser, the final speaker of the Lenten series, Living the Challenge of Peace, also invited students to compete in an essay contest to make his proposal more politically appealing.

His proposal, which he called the Universal Share Organization Plan (USOP), would make all citizens of the United States and Great Britain stock owners.

Therefore, he said, everyone would be capitalists instead of the present situation where only 6 percent of the nations' population owns the means of production.

Speiser, speaking before approximately 20 people, criticized contemporary economic policies. "The cruelest thing is that the Republicans and Democrats have the same method of fighting inflation - to cause recession. This is an immoral system when we need a moral system . . ."

To find a new route to social justice, according to the author, new methods of economic support must be made available to the citizens.

The current methods of support are wages and welfare, he said.

Because welfare is demoralizing and unemployment demonstrates that not enough jobs now exist, Speiser proposed universal citizen ownership of corporate stock.

According to Speiser, companies finance investments in equipment from their internal funds, loans and, to a lesser degree, by issuing more stock, he said.

Speiser's program proposed that legislation be passed to mandate that stock be sold to finance new investments in means of production.

These new shares would be made available to 50 million lower class families by the government guaranteeing their credit so they can purchase the stock, he said.

According to Speiser, over a period of 20 years this would result in each household receiving $100,000. This also would redistribute the nation's wealth, he said.

The plan still needs to have many details worked out to become attractive to corporations and legislatures, he said. For this reason, the Council on International and Public Affairs has announced a contest for essayists to address the topic, "Devise a plan for spreading ownership of America's productive assets broadly among the people, and reviving the economy, without confiscation or increased taxation."

The contest's prizes of $5,000, $2,500 and $1,000 are being donated by Speiser.

Root of marijuana problem stems from outlaw of forbidden weed

The recent raids on student dorm rooms by Notre Dame Security and subsequent Observer articles about drugs on campus have prompted dismay on the part of many students. "I didn't know that kind of stuff went on here," has been a typical comment.

But of course, "that kind of stuff" goes on here, and why shouldn't it? According to an August 1985 U.S. News and World Report article, the government estimates that more than one in 10 Americans use marijuana. Notre Dame and Saint Mary's are not quite so isolated as to be devoid of marijuana users. More serious drugs such as cocaine also can be found around campus, but marijuana probably is most prevalent.

But the recent investigations of student rooms for evidence of drug use or selling bring into question the same old debate over making the use of marijuana legal. Although legalizing marijuana would be the best method of decreasing drug use in America, our country's historically conservative mind-set, which seems determined to force human nature to change for the better, as usual is the main obstacle blocking any constructive advancements in the eradication of drug problems in the United States.

One obvious reason for legalizing marijuana, whose 1984 retail value as a homegrown crop the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws estimates at more than $16 billion, is the increased tax revenues. But in legalizing marijuana, the government would gain control over a much more crucial area than money in the fight against drug use. It would be in a position to influence drug users where it counts the most — in their very attitudes toward the use of drugs.

If marijuana were legal, then the government would be able to regulate its quality and sell it much like a prescription drug, thus requiring that people wishing to purchase marijuana attend drug education seminars before they were allowed to buy the drug. In this way, users would be presented with information with which they could decide for themselves whether the health hazards of marijuana were severe enough to give up the drug.

Last summer Attorney General Edwin Meese headed a nationwide raid on marijuana plantations, destroying less than one-fifth of the U.S. pot crop. With the great demand in this country, marijuana growers won't be idle long. They will find a way to supply the drug as long as there are profits to be made. Similarly, the United States has been putting pressure on Latin American countries to combat drug shipments from their countries to the U.S., but leaders of these countries rightly complain that the problem is rooted in Americans' desire to buy the drugs, not in the producers who are merely answering a demand.

Mary Jacoby

Assistant Accent Editor

That's why tactics like Meese's are wrong. Americans have shown a historical tendency in trying to force certain ways of acting on their countrymen without regard to the subtleties of human behavior. Prohibition didn't work; people are going to drink despite any arbitrary man-made constraint such as a law. Many people do not view abortion as murder; women have had abortions when it was illegal and they still continue to do so.

The point is that people are going to do what they're going to do. If someone is genuinely concerned with changing someone else's behavior for his betterment or the betterment of society, merely outlawing an action will only provoke stubborn resistance in those who feel that the right to make their own decisions is being taken away. Consequently, the best anyone can do to redirect someone else's habits is to make educational information available and let others make their own choices.

Current government policy of trying to clip the drug problem at the flower instead of the roots is typical of a more pervasive national attitude. Ultimately, a person is going to have to decide for himself how to conduct his life. In trying to eliminate marijuana crops, Meese is refusing to face the problem in a practical manner. When will Americans see that the long-term answer to curbing drug use lies not in the elimination of the means but in the non-forcible remodeling of the desire?

Tornadoes rake Midwest states, as many as five killed, 70 injured

Associated Press

Tornadoes and winds up to 87 mph raked Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio yesterday, killing at least five people and injuring as many as 70, while cutting electricity to thousands of people and destroying dozens of airplanes at Cincinnati's airport.

"The wind started blowing and I felt the barn start to breathe," said Jerry Cragen, who escaped injury when his main barn and five outbuildings were leveled near Martinsville, Ind. "It was pumping like a lung and I just got underneath the tractor and I stayed there."

Approximately 40 people were injured in Newport, Falmouth and Erlanger, Ky., said state Trooper Jim Dolwick. Eight to nine injuries were reported in Lexington and Bromley, Ky., 18 injuries were reported in southern Indiana, and four in Ohio.

Strong winds ripped through a 10- to 12-block section of Newport, Ky., causing heavy damage, said Gordon Nichols, a spokesman for the state disaster and emergency services office. Streets were blocked off and approximately 50 National Guard members were called in, he said.

Authorities in nearby Covington, Ky., which also is across the Ohio River from Cincinnati, declared a state of emergency and warned non-residents to keep out of the city after high winds knocked out power to most of the city and ripped the roofs from dozens of buildings.

High winds "just wiped out" a trailer park on the west side of Indianapolis and caused heavy damage to several businesses, said Marion County sheriff's dispatch Tom Booher.

In Hancock County, In., a man was crushed to death when the barn in which he and his brother sought refuge from a storm collapsed under high winds, said sheriff's Sgt. Rick Johnson.

Near Evansville, Ind., a man died when struck by a falling tree limb while working on a house, police said.

In Jasper Township, Ohio, a man was killed when a storm hit his trailer and three other family members were injured, said Fayette County Sheriff Robert McArthur.

A man using a chain to hold a barn roof down in McLean County in western Kentucky died when the roof blew off, dragging him approximately 80 feet, said County Coroner John Muster.

A woman was killed and her son injured when high winds, probably a tornado, flattened their house trailer near New Concord, Ohio, said a Muskingum County Sheriff Bernie Gibson.

In far southern Indiana, what apparently was one tornado hopped through Austin and Little York, said state police Sgt. Paul Hedge.

No abortions or no support for school, says Cardinal

Associated Press

NEW YORK - The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York has threatened to drop its support of the New York Medical College unless two city hospitals affiliated with the school stop performing abortions, according to reports published yesterday.

Cardinal John O'Connor, the archbishop of New York, said in an interview with The New York Times that if Lincoln and Metropolitan hospitals did not stop performing abortions, the Valhalla-based college either would have to give up its $24 million a year contract to supply them with medical services or drop its ties with the archdiocese.

The archdiocese saved the college from financial failure eight years ago.

With more than 700 students, New York Medical College is the third largest private medical school in the country. It provides medical services to more than 35 hospitals in the metropolitan area, many of them Catholic institutions, and was ranked as Westchester County's 24th largest employer in 1982.

The chairman of the college's board of trustees, John Castle, declined comment on the cardinal's statement.

Author claims feminism increases hardships for modern-day women

Associated Press

NEW YORK - Somewhere in the midst of marrying, having four children and a miscarriage, teaching college and working at a think tank, Sylvia Ann Hewlett decided feminism hadn't made life easier for the 1980s woman.

So she added to her workload. She wrote a book.

In "A Lesser Life: The Myth of Women's Liberation in America," Hewlett pleads the case of middle-aged women who are divorced and cast adrift without alimony, and of young women who are forced to juggle jobs and children.

She blames the American social system for these problems, but she also blames an unlikely villain: the feminist movement of the 1960s and 1970s, which she says wasted effort on the Equal Rights Amendment and radical causes while giving short shrift to day care and other family issues.

Hewlett claims to be a feminist, but acknowledges many women's leaders have been "quite hostile toward the book," published by William Morrow.

Ms. magazine editor Robin Morgan, for example, panned Hewlett's "tediously familiar right-wing anti-feminist accusations. . . . Hewlett's premise - that the U.S. movement is 'anti-motherhood' - is true in terms of fabricated media image but false in terms of reality."

But Hewlett notes the case of a California woman who tried unsuccessfully to return to her bank job 25 months after giving birth. The woman has sued; opposing her suit are the bank and the National Organization for Women, which argues that women should not receive special treatment.

"Does NOW realize that women are not men? It is true, only women can have babies; it is both the privilege and the responsibility of the female sex," Hewlett writes.

"To ignore this biological difference, as many American feminists chose to do, is to commit a double folly."

Children are victimized, she says. If a mother stays home because of a lack of affordable day care, the family's circumstances suffer; more often, both parents are forced to work, and the children are passed along a network of babysitters, friends and grandparents.

The livelihoods of women also suffer, according to Hewlett.

Ninety percent of women have children during their lifetimes, but more than 60 percent of those who work have no maternity leave; most have to leave the work force for some period after they give birth, often stunting careers that had just begun to flower, she says.

She cites statistics indicating the gap between the earnings of men and women can be pinned to family responsibilities.

She has been a member of the lake Forest Caucus and serves on the board of the Gorton Community Center. Mrs. Carney has, with her husband, served as hostess to a wide variety of official functions at the University over many years. "She has been Notre Dame's first lady for the past four years," said Hesburgh.

The Laetare Medal is so named because it recipient is announced each year on Laetare Sunday, the fourth Sunday of Lent in the Church calendar. Established in 1883, the medal was conceived as an American version of the "Golden Rose," an ancient papal honor.

Only three other couples are among the 108 men and women who have received the Laetare Medal.

astronauts were burned to death, poisoned by fumes, died from sudden loss cabin pressure, were killed by flying debris or by impact with the water, or drowned.

Exact cause of death might be difficult because the bodies have been in the water for six weeks and may have been the victims of sea scavengers.

Those killed in the accident were commander Richard Scobee, pilot Michael Smith, Judith Resnik, Ellison Onizuka, Ronald McNair, Gregory Jarvis and Christa McAuliffe, a New Hampshire schoolteacher who was flying as NASA's first "ordinary citizen" in space.

The sources also reported several of the crew members' private effects had been recovered, including personal tape recorders on which they had planned to record their impression of the flight.

The crew cabin is a 2,525-cubic-foot, three-level structure made of 2,219 aluminum alloy plates welded together to create a pressure-tight vessel. It has no special reinforcements to better withstand the force of an explosion, but it is stronger than much of the fuselage because it is a single welded unit.

ND alumnus to discuss minority issues today

By JOE MARKEY
Staff Reporter

Percy A. Pierre, 1961 graduate of Notre Dame and president of Prairie View A & M University since 1983, will discuss South African apartheid and minority issues on campus today.

Pierre, who will speak at 4 p.m. at the Hayes-Healy Auditorium, also will discuss his career in education, government, and engineering since his graduation from Notre Dame.

Pierre, whose presentation is titled "Issues in Higher Education," is speaking as part of the Distinguished Alumni Lecture Series.

With more than 20 years of experience in engineering education and research, university and government administration, and technical and policy administration, Pierre's lecture should prove to be interesting and thought provoking, according to Ed Lenard, Student-

Alumni Relations Group (SARG) member and organizer of the series.

According to Lenard, the idea for the Distinguished Alumni Lecture Series "developed last year when we were thinking of activities that SARG and student government could combine efforts in."

The lecture series was adopted with the intention of bringing noted alumni in contact with students, he said. "There are so many prominent alumni out there," said Lenard. "The alumni are very helpful and enthusiastic about the series, generally because they like to come back and share with the students," he added.

Dr. Pierre, who is known for his influence in shaping the future of engineering education, has kept in close contact with Notre Dame, Lenard said. Pierre is a former member of Notre Dame's faculty and serves on the Board of Trustees.

Make a new plan, Stan.

Last week you missed your Future Pancreas Specialists study group. Yesterday you missed the Easta Kraka Towa frat's annual "Java n' Suds Bash." And today you missed the deadline on your thesis, "Deaf Lemon Schwartzberg: The Man, The Myth, The Legend."

This is exactly why you should consider a Macintosh™.

With programs like MacProject™ you can keep track of all your school projects and activities. Because MacProject allows you to arrange and organize your life right on the Macintosh screen. And should you have to drop a class or miss a deadline, it'll help you reorganize by automatically recalculating your entire schedule.

Another example of how Macintosh helps students work smarter, quicker and more creatively. And the beauty of Macintosh is, you don't have to know diddley about computers to use one.

So get a Mac, Jack.

Accent Spring Break

SAB offers students an inexpensive way to enjoy spring break

features writer

Imagine a serene, tropical sunset, or gliding down a mountain full of fresh fallen snow. These visions of spring vacations offer a reprieve for students during the bleak Indiana winter.

There are three spring break trips that the Student Activities Board is planning right now. One excursion includes Breckenridge, Colo., which is currently filled with the maximum of 32 people, according to representative for the Services Commission, Don Dickinson.

The other two trips include Daytona Beach and Fort Lauderdale.

"The ski trip runs at $249 and this includes lodging and lift tickets to Copper Mountain, Arapahoe Basin, and Keystone," commented Dickinson. Each of these areas are at most 25 minutes from Vale, and the shuttle service is provided in the cost of the total ticket price.

The only major setback to think of is that transportation is not included in the package. "Really that's no problem because Greyhound is running a special for college students during their respective breaks. It only costs $99 to get there by bus," added Dickinson.

"As far as making a profit is concerned, we recouped our investments which means we broke even. That's no problem because we're a non-profit organization," Dickinson added.

At this time, the Daytona and Fort Lauderdale trips have 45 and 30 vacationers scheduled respectively. According to Dickinson about 100 people will ultimately go to Daytona while the total for Fort Lauderdale will reach approximately 180.

"It's such a headache for us because the majority of the people will wait until the last minute before deciding whether or not they want to go. This year the deadline for each of these trips is Feb. 28," said Dickinson.

The Daytona trip is $129 if the student drives, and $209 if he or she decided to take the round trip bus. The Fort Lauderdale trip is $225 without the bus and $309 with it.

"Personally I think that Fort Lauderdale is overrated. Daytona is more economical and in Daytona there is 23 miles of beach whereas in Fort Lauderdale there is only three miles," commented Dickinson.

Dickinson added that the Carriage House Hotel, where the Daytona tourists will be lodged, is right in the center of the 23 mile long strip. Every other day students have the opportunity to visit Disney World. Fishing excursions are also being planned in and around Orlando.

"We have the opportunity to run more activities with the Lauderdale group because the Alumni support is greater there," said Dickinson. This group will lodge at the Riviera, which is on the beach.

In addition to Easter Week services, there will be a bike tour of the Everglades, and a Notre Dame and Saint Mary's party on the hotel grounds or at Penrods. An Inter-Costal cruise is also scheduled, according to Dickinson.

"The advantages of the SAB trip as opposed to traveling through a travel agency are that the prices of these trips are cheaper than most agencies. You know what the hotel and the arrangements are months in advance, and you are with people from the same school," added Dickinson.

Gloria Eleuteri, a junior at Saint Mary's won a trip to Daytona last year. "I had a great time. I found everything to be really up to par as far as accommodations were concerned." Chris Fortin, another Saint Mary's junior summed up her sentiments with, "If I ever get the chance to go to Daytona again, baby I'm there!"

Steve Morita, a Notre Dame sophomore, who went on the Fort Lauderdale trip last year had this to say. "I really had a great time. The hotel wasn't the most luxurious in the world, but then I didn't go to Florida to sleep."

Ann DuCharme, a senior at Notre Dame offered an opposing view. "I didn't go to Lauderdale on the same trip as everyone else, but I visited the hotel where some of my friends were on the SAB trip. It was really gross; there was beer, it wasn't comfortable, and there were people all over the place."

New drinking age won't hinder fun in Florida

features writer

With spring break less than two weeks away, it's time to start packing those shorts and shades. But if you're going to Florida, don't forget your "21" ID.

In response to threats from the federal government to cut highway funds by 10 percent, Florida, like most other states, has raised its legal drinking age to 21. However, Florida is phasing in the law over a two-year span. In other words, if your 19th birthday was before July 1, 1985, you will not be subject to the law this spring break.

This exemption clause does not just apply to Florida residents; if you will be an out-of-state visitor to the Sunshine State's beaches and bars, you also qualify for the exemption.

For those not included in the "grandfather clause," don't despair. Daytona Beach has not forgotten you. This renowned spring break party city is hosting the first annual National Collegiate Sports Festival — four weeks of athletic competition involving students from the entire United States. According to NCSF's director of events, Mike May, this tournament is an important attempt to change the image of spring break in Daytona Beach.

The sports wants to capitalize on the national trend toward fitness, May said. "We're not purists," he added, "But there are other fun things to do in Daytona Beach besides the beach and the beer."

Non-alcohol and non-tobacco-related organizations will sponsor competition in nine sports: basketball, flag football, golf, rugby, running, sailing, softball, ultimate frisbee, and volleyball. All events will take place either on the beach or within a 10-minute car or public transportation ride from it.

"Daytona Beach is trying to establish itself as a 'sports capital,'" said May. "Here's a chance for the average student, who's a pretty good athlete, to challenge other universities in a national competition. Here's the one place —

Daytona Beach."

The NCSF will take place from March 10 to April 4, typically the most concentrated weeks of spring break. Since Notre Dame's break falls during the third week, Domers can challenge schools like Santa Clara (Calif.), the universities of Florida, Wisconsin and Tennessee, Virginia Tech, Brown, Cornell, Harvard, Kent State, Ohio State, Ohio University, Bowling Green, and even Slippery Rock State University (Penn.).

Winners of the weekly competitions will return to Florida for the NCSF Championships. The final contest will be held either April 5 and 6, early June or early September.

For all those Florida sun seekers and sports enthusiasts under 21 or over, Daytona Beach is providing an opportunity for fun in the sun and a chance to be a national sports champion. Those interested in competing in the NCSF should call 8-800-244-NCSF for more information.

Busch helps bring the snow to the sand

Special to The Observer

Spring Break vacationers who couldn't decide whether to go to a snow-covered mountain ski resort or to a sunny beach will have the opportunity to do both when Busch CitySki brings "snow" skiing to Miami Beach and Daytona Beach during the last two weeks of March.

They'll be able to experience the thrill of snow skiing without leaving the Sunshine State, or even straying far from the warm sand and surf, when areas in Daytona Beach and Miami Beach are transformed into "Busch Mountain" ski slopes for Busch CitySki.

Hundreds of tons of crushed ice will be used to build slopes in Miami Beach on March 18 and 19, and in Daytona Beach on March 25, 26, and 27.

Busch CitySki features open skiing for the public, the use of equipment and professional instruction—all provided free of charge compliments of Busch beer and the cities of Daytona Beach and Miami Beach.

Skiing equipment for both events will be provided by the Killington Mountain Ski Area in Vermont.

The Busch CitySki series was developed in 1984 by World Sports Promotions, Inc., based in Manchester Village, Vt. Busch CitySki began with events in downtown Boston and Albany, N.Y. Those successes inspired return engagements and an expanded 1985-86 tour with events in Atlanta, Chicago, Rochester, St. Louis, Columbus, and now Daytona Beach and Miami Beach.

The Busch CitySki slopes in Daytona Beach and Miami Beach will be constructed with shaved ice. The ice will be delivered in the form of 300-pound blocks and then shaved and crushed and turned into "Busch Mountain" by snowmaking experts from World Sports Promotions. The Miami Beach event will be held on the public beach near the intersection of Ocean Drive and 14th Court. In Daytona Beach, the event will be held on a site close to the beach near the 700 block of Atlantic Boulevard.

Florida isn't the only place to spend break

LISA YOUNG

Features senior staff

Aaaaah . . . Spring Break. Thoughts of Daytona Beach and Fort Lauderdale come to mind. Thousands of college students flock to Florida every year. But you want to be different don't you? You're not a crowd follower.

Can't imagine break without a beach? Try Myrtle Beach or the South Pares. Need to see a big city again? Boston could prove an exciting vacation. Some suggestions follow for planning a slightly out of the ordinary break. Whichever you chose, plan early. And of course, have fun.

South Padre Island, Tex.

Located just off the southeast coast of Texas, this 110 mile long island is the longest isle in the U.S. Stretching from Corpus Christi to Port Isabel, it is hailed by travel brochures as a "top coastal vacation spot." Spring temperatures are usually in the 70s-80s.

Miles of sunny beaches are the main attraction, but Padre offers much, much more. Options for daytime fun include deep sea fishing and excursions to Mexico.

Mexico is within an hour's drive. Here you'll find inexpensive liquor and other goods.

Remember, however, that it is illegal to transport alcohol across the border. Island Sailboat Rentals offer charters for $12-25 an hour. A beach travel tip: leave your metal detector at home. They became illegal after a team of treasure trackers discovered lost treasure worth $3 million. For those of you who are reptile fanatics, you might want to visit Port Isabel, home of a private collection of giant sea turtles.

Nighttime fun shouldn't be hard to find: the Texas drinking age is still 19. Students also find it amusing that alcoholic beverages are legal in moving automobiles.

Flights to the Padres are currently running about $200, depending on airline, time of departure, and time of reservation. Air time is approximately four hours. Airports are located in Brownsville and Corpus Christi, and limousine service runs to South Padre. If you choose to drive, it will probably take about a day.

Hotels, motels and condos are available in about every price range. Popular among ND students are the Yacht Club Hotel ($38-58 a night) and the Tiki Condominiums ($60-70 a night).

Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Myrtle Beach is the focal point of the Grand Strand, a 55-mile strip of beach. It is called both the "Sun Fun Capital" and the "Camping Capital of the World."

The average high temperatures for March to May are in the 70s, accompanied by plenty of sunshine.

The city is an endless strip of amusement parks, wild animal kingdoms, and miniature golf courses. There are also 26 prestigious golf courses within a half hour of the city.

Nightlife closely resembles the Lauderdale scene. Bars, nightclubs, and motel parties abound. The drinking age used to be 18 for beer and wine, but legislation has been pushing it back yearly until it reaches 21.

Flights to Myrtle Beach are approximately $158, again depending on various factors. South Bend to Myrtle Beach driving time is about 14 hours, considerably shorter than even Dayton.

Bring your tent and build campfires at one of the many campgrounds in the "Camping Capital of the World." If you're not quite so outdoorsy, lodgings range from the Econo Lodge ($16 a night) to the Arcadian Condos (2 bedroom, $480 a week).

Boston, Mass.

If a tan isn't your main concern, and you don't mind Haaahvaaad accents, spring break in Boston offers as much excitement as any tropical paradise. Boston has enough sights to keep vacationers busy for months.

Being college students on break, the first thing you'll want to do is visit other college campuses. Boston University, Boston College, Harvard, MIT, Stonehill College, and Holy Cross are among the many nearby colleges. Visit old friends, or make some new. Who knows, maybe you'll acquire some free accommodations.

Boston contains plenty of history, if you're so inclined to spend your break. Spring temps average in the 60s, perfect for sightseeing. Boston, as a cultural center, offers a Chinatown, museums, aquariums, theater, and music opportunities.

Shoppers should definitely visit Quincy Market, an 18th century dock building converted into a mall. It is also hailed as the center of the city's nightlife. (The Massachusetts drinking age is 21). Especially recommended is Houlihan's. Other recommendations include Jack's and the Oxford Ale House, for mingling with the Ivy League type. TV buffs might want to visit Cheers; it seems that the outside is much more authentic than the inside. No Names is a seafood restaurant with an unusual twist. You are requested to bring your own beverages. Understandably, there is often a wait to get it.

Tennis buffs may want to catch the Virginia Slims of Boston Tennis Championships held at Boston University near the end of March.

Flights to Boston are about $250 (a comparison price) and take under two hours. Driving time between the Dome and Boston is about 17 hours.

As these alternatives suggest, sometimes the most fun isn't found in following the crowd.

away any scoring opportunities.

Williams took a breakaway to the open net at 1:09 and recovered his own rebound to seal the victory for Grace, which was runner-up for the previous three years.

"We skated seven defensemen and all played well, most teams can only skate four," said Marino.

"Coming off of a history of close defeats, it felt good to go out knowing that we were best, and then proving it," said Elliott.

"We wanted it more, and the defense clicked," said McBride after playing his last and best game as a Grace player.

"It was a team effort, and everyone deserved it," said Dempsey. "The turning point for us was when Huberty got the third goal."

Men's tennis sweeps three matches

By PETE SKIKO
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men's tennis team tuned up for its spring trip to Texas by impressively disposing of three opponents this weekend at the ACC.

The Irish defeated Illinois-Chicago, 8-1; Wisconsin-Oshkosh, 9-0; and Ohio, 6-3. The victories bring the team's total record to 8-2, and both the meet and the team's progress thus far have Head Coach Tom Fallon smiling.

"I was quite pleased with the meet overall," said the veteran coach, "especially the win over Ohio. They play in a tough conference and are always near the top of it."

Fallon is getting good play from his young team so far, and he credits the freshmen for taking on a tough role and stepping into varsity positions.

"We're young, and that was a question mark early on," he said. "But our team, especially the freshmen, have proven that they can play with quality, division one teams. We're really looking forward to going down to San Antonio next week."

Notre Dame travels to Texas next week to take on nationally ranked teams, and Fallon is confident that the team's play of late is an indication of good things to come.

Number one singles player Dan Walsh had a successful meet, winning two singles matches and teaming with sophomore Paul Daggs to defeat an Oshkosh doubles team. In his singles match against Ohio, Walsh split the first two sets. Normally, a third set would be played to decide the outcome, but last weekend the four teams in the meet agreed to experiment with using a 12-point tiebreaker instead of a whole new set. Although he won his match, Walsh does not like the idea.

"No, I'm not thrilled with it," said the sophomore. "I don't think that the players will give it too much support; I think they'd want to see the match played out. But I guess it's up to the coaches whether it becomes permanent or not."

Currently, the idea is on a trial basis and its permanence is being considered by the NCAA. Fallon is in favor of the proposed ruling, mostly because of the amount of time that is saved when it is implemented.

"Our match against Indiana (earlier this year) took five hours to play," added Fallon. "This weekend, the meet averaged between three and three and a half hours. Playing in this climate, where it gets dark early, some of these matches have to be finished by the light of the cars' headlights. I think this idea is a step in the right direction of lessening the length of college meets."

The Irish took to the idea of playing a tiebreaker instead of a third set pretty well last weekend. Notre Dame players won four out of five of them against Ohio.

Women's tennis team wins Quadrangular

By KATHLEEN McKERNAN
Sports Writer

This weekend at the Notre Dame Quadrangular, the women's tennis team almost swept more than the matches. After losing the first singles match to Bradley, the women won the next 26 on their way to 8-1, 9-0, 9-0, defeats of Bradley, Akron and Saint Mary's.

Only Susie Panther's first-flight loss to Bradley's Joie Rolf (4-6, 6-1, 6-4) marred Notre Dame's near-perfect weekend on the Courtney Courts.

"We had a really good weekend," Head Coach Michele Gelfman said. "In the beginning we started off a little weak, but these matches really helped us prepare for our other spring matches."

Second-flight Mary Colligan raised her record to 5-2 with victories over Bradley's Lisa Pettit, Akron's Cara Mostardo, and Saint Mary's first-flight player, Ann Dimberio.

in the first set, but only lost two more sets the rest of the weekend on her way to improving her mark to 4-2.

Playing third flight against Bradley and Akron and second flight against Saint Mary's, Izzy O'Brien now stands at 6-1 on the year.

Junior Tammy Schmidt preserved her perfect 6-0 record in the sixth position. Against Saint Mary's, freshman walk-on Natlie Illig defeated Kim Drahota, 6-2, 6-1. Another freshman Julie Sullivan, also played a match, defeating the Belles' Shawn Boyd 6-2, 6-0.

Carol Rader, in the sixth spot against Saint Mary's and in her first singles competition this year, beat Sharlene Szako 6-3, 7-6. Notre Dame's number one doubles team of Panther and Dasso remain undefeated at 5-0, after losing only five sets over the three weekend matches.

This coming Saturday, the Irish travel to Ann Arbor, where they will take on Michigan.

Volleyball Club splits pair

The men's Volleyball Club pulled another Jekyll and Hyde routine last week, defeating Miami (Ohio) while losing to IUPUI-Fort Wayne.

On Wednesday the Irish traveled to Fort Wayne to take on the 12th-ranked Mastadons. It was a rough homecoming for Bill Anderson, Notre Dame's head coach, as his former team dumped the Irish in three straight games.

But the team regrouped on Friday against Miami, beating the Redskins 15-18, 15-6, 13-15, 15-3.

"When we play together we do alright," said Club President Ed Abt. "It's a question now of getting it together at the end of the season."

There is no better time than now for more consistent play from the team. The Irish are fighting to repeat as club-level champions of the Midwest Intercollegiate Volleyball Association. Early season losses to Wisconsin and Calvin College have hurt the team's chances, but it plans revenge in upcoming games this week.

The club was to travel to Grand Rapids, Mich. last night to take on Calvin College. On Saturday,

Pete Gegen

Club Corner

the Irish will take on the Badgers in Madison.

"There is nothing I would like better than to beat Wisconsin," said Abt. "Those earlier games (against Calvin and Wisconsin) should not have even been close."

Sandwiched between those two road contests is a match against Ball State at the ACC Pit. This is a prime opportunity to see the Irish face the Cardinals, who are ranked in the Top Twenty. The match begins at 7:30.

The only other club in action this week is the Gymnastics Club, which will be traveling to Eastern Michigan this week for a meet. Saturday's home meet against Miami was postponed.

Baseball team loses two to Indiana

By C.W. EHRMAN
Sports Writer

The bats were smoking as the Irish baseball team opened the 1986 season against Indiana in Bloomington. The two-game stint brought a 40-run offensive explosion. But the Irish came up on the wrong side of the fence, losing both games by scores of 10-9 and 11-10.

Notre Dame grabbed the early lead in the first game, but rookie pitcher Erik Madsen couldn't smoulder the bats of the Hoosiers as Indiana came back to edge the Irish.

"Indiana has an excellent ball club again this year," commended Irish Head Coach Larry Gallo. "Our pitching had to stay in front of their powerful batting, but we just couldn't match their six-run inning."

"It was our first day outside with the pitchers walking up to the mound for the first time and batters stepping into the box for the first time. However, I was very pleased with our hitting and our defense was very good. You always like to start the season on the right foot—it was a tough loss."

The luck of the Irish seemed to return in the nightcap of the doubleheader as the Irish jumped ahead 10-4 in the fifth inning. But the Hoosiers forced the game into an extra inning and thanks to the heroics of a bottom-of-the-inning homerun, took the game, 11-10.

Sophomore shortstop Steve Skupien went four-for-eight on the afternoon, as the Irish chalked up 19 runs on 21 hits. However, Notre Dame lost outfielder Scott Rogers to a hamstring pull in the first game, and co-captain Tom Shields may miss the rest of the season with a shoulder injury.

"With the injuries," said Gallo, "we have three infielders out of position and are juggling the outfield. With such weaknesses, the team is going to have to bounce back and adjust. They proved in Bloomington that they have a diehard work ethic and don't give up easily."

Next on the Irish schedule is a twinbill against DePauw at Greencastle, Ind., this Saturday. On Sunday, the Irish stay in Greencastle to play the Tigers in game three of the series.

Grace takes interhall hockey crown by defeating Howard/Cavanaugh

By MIKE SZYMANSKI
Sports Writer

In what was truly the test of the two best teams in interhall hockey for the championship last night, Grace remained unbeaten as it defeated Howard/Cavanaugh, 5-2, in front of many enthusiastic fans from both dorms.

"Cavanaugh played outstanding, they never let up and we never let up," said Grace player-coach Jim Rataczak. "Our defense was outstanding, and the forwards were in the offensive zone like they have been all year."

At the 16:21 mark, Grace defensive captain Mike Marino broke away and passed to Joe McBride for the first goal. Grace showed superior skating talent and speed as Steve Bishop passed to McBride at 11:05 for the second goal.

Howard/Cavanaugh came right back with a goal at 6:45 when Tim McClennan passed from the corner to Ray Cucinello, who put it in form the crease.

"This team has shown a lot of heart from the beginning," said Howard/Cavanaugh coach John Oteri. "We have come back in every one of our games, and this has been our best season in three long years."

With 2:30 remaining in the first half, center Drew "Slasher" Spesard won the face-off and passed to John Huberty who scored on a one-on-one breakaway. The Grace supporters continued to loudly encourage the very physical play of both teams.

Howard/Cavanaugh answered with a furious scoring attack at 1:32, as Chris Sullivan scored the goal with assists from Clay Hamlin and McClellan.

In the second half, Grace kept the zone in front of its net clear and backchecked well to take offensive control of the game. At 14:37, defenseman Tom Elliott shot from the blue line, McBride passed the rebound to Lance Williams, who buried the goal.

Left wing Sam Dempsey received a checking penalty at 6:29 which forced a Howard/Cavanaugh power play. Great saves by Elliott and goalie Phil Coghlan turned

Seniors remember past four years as Irish hold basketball banquet

By JEFF BLUMB
Sports Editor

It was an emotional evening last night for four seniors as Ken Barlow, Jim Dolan, Tim Kempton and Joseph Price said their goodbyes at the annual basketball banquet.

The team captain, Barlow earned the most awards, including the 1985-86 Most Valuable Player Award from the Notre Dame National Monogram Club, which he shared with guard David Rivers.

Barlow also received the Notre Dame Club of St. Joseph Valley Student-Athlete Award, membership in the 1,000-point club (he's presently 11th in all-time scoring with 1,332 points), the Father Tom Brennan Award for Free-Throw Percentage (his .887 percentage will set an all-time individual mark, topping Kelly Tripucka's .854 percentage set in the 1978-79 season) and the Rebounding Award.

In addition to sharing MVP honors with Barlow, Rivers also was honored with the Clutch Player of the Year Award and as the Assist Leader (he finished the regular season with 132). It was the second straight year the sophomore won the two awards.

Dolan won the Best Defensive Player Award for the third consecutive year, in addition to getting the Most Improved Player Award. Junior forward Donald Royal shared the Best Defensive Player Award with Dolan.

Kempton and Price each received one award at their final banquet. Kempton was given the Role Player of the Year Award, while Price shared the Fireman of the Year Award with junior Scott Hicks.

Freshman Mark Stevenson managed one award, as well. Stevenson received the Most Accurate Shooter Award. His current .593 shooting percentage ranks as the seventh best single-season mark in Notre Dame history.

Despite all the awards handed out, though, the best part of the evening was when the four seniors spoke about their careers and their coach, Digger Phelps.

Near the end of the banquet, Kempton held the microphone for close to 25 minutes, first kidding many of those at the table of honor, then becoming very serious.

"It's very hard to leave," said an emotion-choked Kempton. "It is hard to say goodbye. This is my home and I know I always can come back here."

"I really can't thank Coach Phelps enough for all he's done for me. He stuck by me when the going was tough. I learned a lot from him."

Price took things on a less serious note. In addition to mocking Phelps, he joked that Kempton had scored more touchdowns at Notre Dame than Irish tailback Allen Pinkett. "Whenever he mishandled the ball, you would see all those hands go up like this," said Price, thrusting his arms upward.

Barlow took time to reflect on the four years that the four had together.

"We had an awful lot of dreams when we came here as freshmen," he said. "We've been very successful in improving each year. We're not done, though. The road is still open before us."

Rivers stressed all that the four seniors had done to help him. "There really isn't a word to describe what they have done for me. I wish them well," he said.

Notre Dame finishes by losing two

By DENNIS CORRIGAN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame hockey team finished off the 1985-86 season in a disappointing manner, dropping two games in a tournament at Alabama-Huntsville. The Irish, who finished the season with a 12-21-1 mark, lost to the host Chargers, 5-4, Friday night and dropped their finale on Saturday to North Dakota State, 9-5.

The Irish had one of the best games of the year in losing to Huntsville Friday, according to Head Coach Lefty Smith.

"Both teams played well in all phases of the game," said Smith, who completed his 18th year behind the Notre Dame bench. "It was one of the best games of the year. Both teams were really playing inspired hockey. A couple of give-aways in our own zone cost us some key goals, and their goaltender really came up with some very big stops."

"On our side, Dave Waldbillig, Jeff Badalich and Bob Herber did great jobs for us."

But after giving it their all on Friday, the Irish were unable to muster up the strength and energy for the consolation game with N.D.

Swimming team finishes seventh

By BOB KEMPER
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men's swimming team concluded its season this past weekend at the Midwest Invitational in Chicago, where they placed seventh out of a field of 10. The Irish accumulated 175 points in the 18-event met. Western Illinois captured first place, followed by Western Kentucky, Southwestern Missouri State, Bradley, Eastern Kentucky, Illinois-Chicago, Notre Dame, Eastern Illinois, Evansville, and Northern Iowa.

The seventh place finish was a slight improvement over last year when the Irish placed eighth in a 12-team field. This is somewhat misleading though, because this year's field was faster and Notre Dame's performance was markedly better than last year's.

Notre Dame head coach Tim Welsh was very pleased with his team's performance.

"We looked forward to this meet all year with the objective of everyone swimming his personal fastest times," said Welsh. "We succeeded at this to the extent that we made it look easy."

In Friday's events, including both time trials and championship heats, the Irish recorded 13 personal best times in 16 races and were nearly perfect again on Saturday when they netted 19 best times in 21 events.

"We prepared very well for this meet and demonstrated a tremendous team effort," noted Welsh. "In all of the relay events, every person swam his fastest time of the year. Compared to ourself, the results were excellent. If we continue to improve at this pace, we will be in the hunt next year."

University records were set in four events. Freshman Charles Neidhoefer set breaststroke events with times of 59.62 and 2:11.20 respectively. Junior John Koselka set the Notre Dame mark in the 50-yard freestyle event with a time of 21.18. And in the 400-yard individual medley, senior Blaise Harding set a University record with a time of 4:13.52.

Coach Welsh was quick to praise the upperclassmen for Notre Dame's strong showing.

"During our dual meet season, the freshmen and sophomores did an extremely good job," Welsh said, "but at the championship meets, the juniors and seniors lead the way. This is to be expected, though, because experience is important in championship meets."

"One member of the team that deserves special recognition is senior Blaise Harding. He provided valuable leadership and was the only Notre Dame swimmer to score in all the events that he was entered in," said Welsh.

Harding placed eighth in the 500-yard freestyle event, seventh in the 400-yard individual medley and sixteenth in the 200-yard individual medley.

Coach Welsh stressed the fact that the 1985-86 men's swimming team was a team without a superstar.

"Team balance was essential," Welsh commented. "Everyone did his best, and no one person stood out. The relay events were quite indicative of this because the individual times were very close."

"This was a spirited, congenial and supportive group. They trained very hard since August, and the Midwest Invitational was a nice climax to a wonderful year."

Approximately 100 tickets will be made available on campus to students for Notre Dame's NCAA tournament game with Arkansas-Little Rock Friday in Minneapolis. The tickets, which remain from Notre Dame's allotment of 250, will go on sale tomorrow at 9 a.m. at Gate 10 of the ACC.

The price of the tickets, which also will be good for admission to the North Carolina State-Iowa game that night, is $15. To purchase a ticket students must present a valid ID card, and on-

Tickets will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis, and Notre Dame Ticket Manager Mike Bobinski expects all of them to be sold quickly.

Should Notre Dame win Friday, those persons who purchase these tickets will have first chance to purchase tickets in Minneapolis for Sunday's second-round game, which tentatively is set for 1:15 p.m. More details on this arrangement will be given by the ticket office at the time of sale on Wednesday.

This sale of tickets is only for students.
