ND Security reports recent rash of thefts from student rooms

By MARK PANKOWSKI
News Editor

The recent warm weather is partly to blame for the 20 thefts from rooms reported to Notre Dame Security in the last five days, Director of Security Rex Rakow said yesterday.

"It's so nice outside that people go out, leaving the dorms empty," Rakow said.

Most of the thefts occurred in Grace and Flanner halls, he said. None of the 20 thefts involved break-ins, but instead were from rooms with unlocked doors, he said.

Rakow also said that 16 reported bike thefts have occurred during and since spring break.

Stolen from the dorm rooms were cash, jewelry and credit cards, he said. The total loss was estimated at $1,450, he added.

Security has made no arrests in the reported thefts from rooms, nor does it have any suspects, said Rakow. Students are not suspected of the thefts, he noted.

Although the sunny weather might be blamed for some of the thefts, it can't be blamed for all of them. According to Rakow, a few of the thefts occurred at night while students were sleeping inside.

"We've been receiving reports of people getting up in the morning and seeing their stuff has been stolen," he said.

In the case of the Security officer assaulted early Sunday morning, Rakow said the three students identified as responsible have admitted to the assault. The investigation into the incident has ended, he said. The officer returned to work last night.

In the case of the student assaulted in the LaFortune Student Center early Saturday morning, Rakow said Security has made no arrests.

Hurley celebrates birthday

By BETH CORNWELL
Staff Reporter

Kevin Hurley, the Notre Dame freshman who was struck and injured by a hit-and-run driver Sept. 7 when crossing U.S. 31-33, celebrated his 19th birthday yesterday by fixing lunch for his father.

Since Dec. 10, Kevin has been in the Greenery Center, undergoing physical therapy, said his father, Richard Hurley.

"For his birthday today, he took me down to the center's kitchen and grilled us some ham and cheese sandwiches," said Hurley.

Kevin's physical condition is fair, according to Mr. Hurley. He is currently being fitted for a temporary artificial limb and preparing for major surgery in early or mid-May, which will ready the muscles in the stump of his left leg for a permanent limb, he said. His lower left leg was amputated because of injuries suffered in the Sept. 7 accident.

mentally, Kevin is doing fairly well, said his father. "He talks all the time. . . his long-term memory is great, it's the short-term which is fuzzy, like what he had for breakfast or whether things happened today or yesterday.

"When he woke up, it took a long time. It's not like on TV when they open their eyes and ask: Where am I? It's a terribly long process. His biggest concern was the loss of his leg. It still is," said Hurley.

"I can't describe how much help we've gotten from all of you at Notre Dame. Kevin can't understand it. I mean, he was only there for a couple of weeks. . . he doesn't know how you could love him so much.

"All I can ask is that you keep praying for him. Keep sending those letters and cards. . . he reads every one of them. Boy, it really works. . . he's getting better," said Hurley.

Booster design problems existed, NASA says

Associated Press

Cape Canaveral, Fla. - A top NASA investigator said yesterday that a faulty rocket joint definitely caused the explosion of Challenger, and that engineers failed to take notice when design flaws "winked at us" on earlier flights.

"We missed it in this joint," said J.R. Thompson, vice chairman of a National Aeronautics and Space Administration investigation task force. "We missed it in the design, and I think some of the prior flight anomalies were not taken seriously."

Thompson told a news conference that he was positive the explosion was caused by a failure in the joint between the bottom two segments of the right solid fuel booster rocket.

"Clearly the failure was in that joint," he said. "Clearly that joint has to be redesigned."

The presidential commission investigating the disaster has said for weeks that the joint was the leading suspect, and other possible causes have been systematically eliminated. Thompson's statements, however, appeared to be the most emphatic yet on the subject.

Thompson is deputy director for technical operations at the Plasma Physics Laboratory at Princeton University. Before that he worked 21 years with NASA at the Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala., where he managed development of the space shuttle's main engines.

Thompson said the task force investigation is focusing on possibly defective O-rings designed to stop hot gases from escaping through the joint; on the effect of the rotation of the joint when subjected to ignition pressures; on characteristics of the putty intended to put pressure on the rings; a possible joint alignment problem, and the effect the freezing temperatures on launch day might have had on the rings or the putty.

"It may be a combination of some of these factors," he said. "We're weighing each one on what part it might have played."

Launch day photographs show a puff of black smoke spurting from the joint just after ignition and a plume of flame shooting from the area 58 seconds later.

Challenger exploded 73 seconds after liftoff on Jan. 28, killing the crew of five men and two women.

Bomb scare mars Weinberger's Thailand trip

Associated Press

BANGKOK, Thailand - Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger drew cheers on a border tour and protest in the capital yesterday, then had his dinner plans changed by a bomb explosion in a hotel parking lot.

The bomb, which wounded three people, went off about 15 feet from where Weinberger was to have passed 90 minutes later on his way to a state dinner at the government-owned Erawan Hotel given by Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanonda.

Officials moved the reception and dinner to the Hilton Hotel, where the defense secretary was staying.

The U.S. Embassy said Weinberger's delegation had no comment on the explosion. Foreign Minister Siddhi Savetsila told reporters that the secretary shrugged it off, commenting, "Thailand is one of the safest places in the world. It's safer than New York."

Narond Mahanond, chief of the national police, said the bombing was under investigation and "we attach great importance to this case." There was no immediate claim of responsibility.

Earlier yesterday Weinberger toured the tense Thai-Cambodian border and got a rousing welcome from villagers who have suffered from border battles between Cambodian rebels and Vietnamese forces that occupy the neighboring country.

His trip to the frontier province of Surin was regarded as a demonstration of U.S. support for Thailand against hostile, Soviet-backed neighbors in Indochina.

Weinberger is to leave today for Australia. He visited South Korea, Japan and the Philippines before Thailand.

Don't dismiss complaints - address them constructively

"Well, if you don't like it here, why don't you leave?"

How many more times am I going to have to hear this fabulous rebuttal whenever some student has a problem? Why is it that here at Notre Dame, where we are supposed to be learning new and better answers to old and new questions, I keep hearing this same old answer? Can't people think of a legitimate answer to students' gripes?

I think it unreasonable for us to expect everyone to be totally satisfied here. If Notre Dame is everything that you hoped and dreamed it would be, that is great. The rest of us have several problems which range from the major to the insignificant.

Some people can accept these problems; some people cannot. Regardless, the problems are real. They have to be confronted.

Some students would have us believe that you have to be totally satisfied with life here. To see anything other than perfection means you are deluded.

Everyone's perception of happiness is different; therefore, it is ludicrous to expect everyone here to be totally happy.

Notre Dame cannot be all things to all people. Students should not expect it to be.

If everyone can see that, then why are some students so intolerant of others' complaints?

A few weeks before break a couple of friends and I were arguing about some of my strongest objections to University life. Among the complaints were the alcohol policy, parietals, and no meat on Fridays. Of course, those immortal words of wisdom were spoken: "If you do not like it here, leave."

Needless to say, I was not going to sit back and let them say something like that without commenting.

Just because I disagree with the administration in a few areas does not mean I should transfer, does it?

According to these two, it does. To them, either you view Notre Dame as a paradise or you bite the apple and leave.

Perhaps this philosophy should be added to duLac, and then around the beginning of second semester they can start handing out transfer applications to those students who have a gripe.

I told my friends I was not entirely happy, but I also said I did not want to transfer.

William Curran wrote a wonderful column in Viewpoint two days ago, April 7. He said people often complain, and some even consider transferring. Rarely does anyone do so. What keeps the students here is "the people and the spirit that make Notre Dame special ... The special feeling is a sense of belonging, the friendly atmosphere, and helpful students who care," Curran said. "Notre Dame is still a special place despite its problems," he concluded.

This is exactly what I told my friends. I only wish Curran had written his column earlier.

At the time of my argument, my friends said I should stop complaining if I do not agree with the University's policies. I realize I may not be able to change the administration's policies; however, if no one complained, no one would know anything needs to be improved. Thus, nothing would be improved.

Drew Sandler

Or are those who complain just trouble-makers and nay-sayers? If everyone just ignores the problems, they are not going to go away on their own.

An example would be the alcohol policy. Why? It is not because I think we should all be running around in a drunken frenzy, but because the policy's value system is all wrong.

An alcohol policy should be teaching us how to control our drinking habits and about social drinking. Instead, as a professor said, we learn to drink behind closed doors, how to sneak a beer past an RA and how to get around the rules.

Besides, everyone knows the way the school enforces the policy is haphazard, and changes from dorm to dorm and rector to rector. If the administration is so adamant about the alcohol policy, why do I see every Friday afternoon a sea of beer being brought into the dorms?

The administration should get its values straight. Maybe, as has been suggested, the alcohol policy is to prevent libel and the administration already has set its values - money over students.

So if you have a gripe or grumble, speak up. It is the only way we can hope things will change here. Maybe it will not do any good, but will silence help anything? And to my two friends with whom I was arguing, maybe I cannot do anything to change those things I dislike.

But I am trying.

Freeze-dried pets newest way to preserve dead animals

Associated Press

NISSWA, Minn. - Fido or Fluffy can lie by the hearth forever thanks to the wonders of freeze-drying, says a man whose company offers pet owners a way to preserve the remains of their four-legged loved ones in lifelike fashion.

"The natural thing for a human being to do is to hang on to that animal, to want to keep it," said

Roger Saatzer, president of Preserve-A-Pet. "The next best thing to bringing it back to life is to have it freeze-dried."

"We've done everything from rabbits to turtles, dogs, cats, snakes and gerbils," said Saatzer. He has even freeze-dried a lion.

Freeze-drying gives the animal a far more realistic appearance than traditional taxidermy, he said.

"Everything remains intact," Saat-zer said. "The color, the size, even the texture of the hair is the same."

Saatzer, who also owns a company that manufactures freeze-drying equipment, said the idea came to him a couple of years ago when a taxidermist said he wasn't sure he could afford a freeze-drying machine he wanted.

"Just off the top of my head I suggested he advertise doing pets," Saatzer said. "He tried it and it worked."

"Pet owners ship their deceased pets to the company frozen. They also send photographs so the company can get an idea of how the owner wants the pet to look," Saatzer said. The animal is then thawed and shaped into position.

Once the animal's body is shaped it is freeze dried - placed in a vacuum chamber at a temperature of 5 degrees below zero. The process extracts all water from the body without altering its size or shape, so that decomposition is halted. The animal's remains thus will not shrink and will have no odor.

The cost varies depending on the size and posture desired, Saatzer said. "A small house cat in a sitting position would run about $450, while a large German shepherd in an attack position would cost around $2,000," he said.

Bush visits U.S. forces in Mideast

Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain - Vice President George Bush said yesterday that U.S. warships patrolling the oil-rich Persian Gulf are a signal to potential troublemakers that "they'd better think twice" and blunt Soviet influence in the region.

Bush visited the USS LaSalle, the command ship for a U.S. naval task force in the gulf, to stress American military power in the region. The white-painted flagship, docked at a Bahrainian port, is known as "the Great White Ghost of the Arabian Coast."

Standing under a canopy on the sun-drenched flight-deck, Bush told sailors the task force helps blunt Soviet influence in the gulf.

"The fact that you're here helps friendly countries resist Soviet attempts to gain influence, gain dominance in this area," Bush said.

"The fact that you're here is a warning to anyone who might even be thinking of fundamentally disrupting this area that they'd better think twice ... and if that doesn't stop them, then they'd better think again," he said.

The gulf has been rocked by a 55-year war between Arab Iraq and Persian Iran. Arab countries in the region fear Iranian attacks on Persian Gulf oil tankers and the spread of the religious fundamentalism of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Tehran's spiritual leader.

Gulf shipping, including large oil tankers, have been targets for both the Iranian and Iraqi air forces.

"We have no plan that can lead to the end of the war," said Bush, who noted U.S. relations with both countries have not "been superb over the years."

"We are concerned and our concern stems mainly from the fact that we don't want to see Iran shift the balance of power in the area nor threaten any of the friendly countries - the Gulf Cooperation Council countries," he said. That group includes Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, Oman, Qatar, United Arab Emirates and Kuwait.

Bush also discussed last month's U.S.-Libya confrontation in the Gulf of Sidra. The Reagan administration said U.S. forces sunk at least two Libyan patrol boats and attacked a missile site after Libya fired missiles at U.S. warplanes.

"Navy ships and Navy and Marine fliers didn't blink twice when they were attacked in the Mediterranean two weeks ago," Bush said.

"They responded swiftly and there's a great pride all across the United States because of that," he said.

Bahrain makes its facilities available to the U.S. Navy but is sensitive about attention focused on its military ties with the United States.

"Go see it (the ship). Don't make too much fuss about it," Sheik Mohammed bin Mubarak al-Khalifa, Bahrain's foreign minister, told reporters earlier.

Bush, nearing the end of a 38-hour visit to this island country off the coast of Saudi Arabia, conferred with the emir of Bahrain on the Iran-Iraq war, Middle East peace efforts and oil prices.

Student government considers UBC system

By BOB MUSSELMAN
Senior Staff Reporter

Financial officers of student government are considering a move to abandon their own internal accounting system and become part of the university's accounting system, Unit Budget Control (UBC).

There is no consensus, however, among past and former officials whether the change should be made.

Most university departments, including all physical operations, and some student organizations, including The Observer, use UBC to keep track of their finances.

Ed Hums, assistant university comptroller, said the system merely records transactions and budgets. How the funds are used, he said, is up to the individual organizations.

"Whether the switch will be made will be worked out through Student Affairs," he said.

Currently, the student body treasurer oversees a student government accounting system which monitors funds distributed to student government, the Student Activities Board, clubs and organizations affiliated with Student Activities and the Hall Presidents' Council.

Last year, student activities fees generated $246,000.

"I was totally against it (the change to UBC) for the fact that we've been individual for a long time now and we've been checked by the university's internal audit staff," said Eric Parzianello, former student body treasurer.

Parzianello said the internal auditors found no major problems the last time they were audited, in 1983.

The push for the change, he said, came earlier this year when several SAB commissioners wanted more up-to-date records of where their accounts stood.

He said, however, that a move to UBC won't solve the time-lag problems about which the commissioners were complaining. Rather, he said, the situation should be "taken care of internally."

"Students' money should be put in students' hands," he said, "and we're very accountable to students."

"My feeling, and I believe the current treasurer's feeling, is that we should stay on our system," Parzianello said.

But the new treasurer, Becca Curren, didn't want to talk about it.

"Until we've reached a formal decision on Unit Budget Control, I don't wish to comment," she said.

Curren did say since student government's fiscal year ends June 30, she expects a decision by then. She also said there is no pressure at this time from the administration to make the change.

Lee Broussard, former manager of SAB, said SAB currently works with two systems: wages are reported through the university employment system, while other expenses are recorded with the student body treasurer. A move to UBC, he said, would help reconcile expenses immediately and give each commissioner more accurate financial information.

Pigment in black skin may cause positive results in marijuana tests

Associated Press

NEW YORK - Pigments in dark-skinned people are chemically similar to marijuana and may lead to wrongful accusations of marijuana use based on inaccurate urine tests, according to a chemist who testifies frequently in court cases concerning drug abuse.

James Woodford of Atlanta said the pigment, melanin, breaks down into fragments in the urine that are chemically similar to the active ingredient in marijuana.

In very sensitive urine tests, melanin can produce positive results in people who have not used marijuana, Woodford said in a telephone interview yesterday.

Melanin is present in everyone, but it is present in higher levels in blacks and Hispanics, for example, than in whites, Woodford said. Darkskinned people are therefore more likely than others to be wrongly accused of marijuana use, he said.

Last month Woodford testified in Cleveland in the case of a group of police cadets who tested positive for marijuana use a month before their graduation from the police academy.

Ten of 20 black and Hispanic cadets tested positive for marijuana use and 3 of 23 white cadets were positive, Woodford said. He filed an affidavit suggesting that melanin was responsible for the larger percentage of positives among the blacks and Hispanics. He said the case has not yet been resolved.

"Those kinds of splits in the test results are seen across the board," said Woodford, who was prompted to suggest the melanin theory after noticing that dark-skinned people seemed more likely to test positive for marijuana use.

Arthur McBay, a drug-testing expert with the state medical examiner's office in North Carolina, said he knew of no evidence to support Woodford's claim, but he acknowledged that the extremely sensitive tests for marijuana use can provide false results.

He said he had read Woodford's affidavit in the Cleveland case, and it "didn't give me enough information to evaluate whether this could occur or couldn't occur."

Woodford said that melanin, in addition to being chemically similar to marijuana's active ingredient, also "acts like a sponge" soaking up chemical compounds similar to THC, or tetrahydrocannabinol, the active ingredient in marijuana.

Third World Awareness

ODN strives to provide students with initiative to help

features writer

Students troubled by injustices taking place in the Third World often may wonder how they could help improve the plight of underdeveloped countries. This sense of helplessness is reflected in a typical student attitude that an individual could not possibly make a difference.

Yet in the past few years, concerned college students across the country have found an outlet in the Overseas Development Network. ODN is a national, student-run organization that aims to educate campuses about international development.

An ODN branch was initiated at Notre Dame in February largely through the efforts of senior Paul Aiello and junior Sophia Twarog. After Professor Kenneth Jameson of the Kellogg Institute was contacted by the national ODN headquarters, he approached Aiello with the idea of forming a Notre Dame chapter. Twarog became involved in the group's early formation after she heard about ODN in an economics class last semester.

Since its inception the local ODN chapter has grown to include over 30 students. The members come from a wide variety of backgrounds, including many students from foreign countries.

The group meets every Thursday at 7 p.m. in the center for Social Concerns to talk and listen to music.

The ODN comprises three basic programs. The first program focuses on establishing a partnership between a college ODN chapter and a Third World community that is engaged in development projects but is short of necessary funds. Through fundraising activities, the ODN raises the capital for the early operation of a particular community project. An important aspect of the ODN projects is their concern for the local people's view of their needs rather than the outsider's view.

According to Executive Secretary Sophia Twarog, the tentative plan for the Notre Dame chapter is to select and begin funding a project next fall. Listings of the many community projects that need sponsors are provided by the national ODN headquarters.

Generally, project costs run between $2,000 and $6,000. Campus chapters unable to raise this amount of funds can borrow money from the national ODN revolving fund. In return for their support, ODN members get both the satisfaction of indirectly working for Third World improvement and are able to directly communicate with project participants.

The second program concentrates on building awareness of the various problems facing Third World countries. In fulfilling this aspect, the Notre Dame ODN chapter is hoping to promote more student-oriented lectures at accessible campus locations. Also, the group is interested in establishing a faculty advisory board that will share its knowledge with students.

The third program essentially provides an informational service concerning the opportunities for student internship or employment in international development programs. This information is available from the opportunities clearinghouse run by the national ODN.

Twarog attributes the overall appeal of ODN to the consequence of students seeing other students involved and realizing that they, too, can aid the effort of development work.

Third World countries should know they have a friend in America's Overseas Development Network.

RASTA, SOLA and WHC work to sponsor week's activities

Gerry Scimeca
features staff writer

Third World Awareness Week has arrived at Notre Dame, and four clubs - including the newly formed Overseas Development Network - are trying to open the campus' eyes toward various social concerns. The clubs are busily planning events which they hope will get students involved.

Alejandro Foxley, a senior government major from Chile, is currently in charge of running Students Organized for Latin America. SOLA primarily provides the campus with information concerning Latin American current events.

SOLA has planned several events for Third World Awareness Week. Monday they sponsored a small cultural buffet in the Center for Social Concerns with a variety of talent including poetry, music and art. Their main event is scheduled for April 18 at the Wilson Commons. From 8 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. they will recreate a traditional Latin American gathering known as the Pena Folclorica at the Commons. Latin American music, poetry and a film about Chilean singer Eduardo Peralta will be the entertainment, and food will be provided.

SOLA utilizes Third World Awareness Week to inform students who are unfamiliar with the situations of various South and Central American countries as well as to provide them with valuable information on current events, cultures and lifestyles.

Another organization with big plans for the week is the Rally Against Starvation. With its first birthday this past February, RASTA has been both popular and successful in getting its message across. Their main objective is to break people's media-imprinted image of Africa as a large mass of starving people and portray them on a more human and personal level.

Chairman Cathy Ann Reynolds, a senior English writing and art major at Saint Mary's, first became involved with the organization last year when it formed and is pleased with the response RASTA has received from the students. "Through the reggae musical groups who we get to play on campus, we see people becoming aware of the situation in Africa," said Reynolds.

A main concern of RASTA is to help Africa become developed and self-sufficient through resources they already possess rather than with the more frequently used methods of Western colonization.

With the guidance of faculty advisor and Zaire native Mutombo Mpanya, RASTA has planned a busy week. Among the highlights is the African Show of Arts tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the Hagar Parlor at Saint Mary's. The show will host a range of African music and poetry as well as photographs, people, art exhibits and free food.

Some of the other events RASTA has planned include a movie about reggae singer Jimmy Cliff, a presentation on South Africa by Professor Peter Walshe and a concert by the Ethiopian band, Dallol.

The World Hunger Coalition is another socially active organization whose main goal is to call attention to situations that exist in areas of great hunger and to fund various rural development projects to help alleviate the problem. Kevin Moser, a senior theology major, is president of WHC and has outlined a series of events which will be sponsored by the WHC during Third World Awareness Week and will complement the other events of RASTA and SOLA. A good many of the events planned are sponsored by the ODN.

The ODN sponsored a dance Saturday in the South Dining Hall with the dance-band Rhythm Methods. Last night at the CSC a talk was given by Charles Wilver on the Bishops' Pastoral letter and its economic effects. Sunday the WHC will sponsor a crop walk through South Bend in a show of support for the world's hunger problems. "It's going to be a lot of fun," said Moser. "But we still need a lot of support from the students. We would like to get about 150 people if we could. Overall though, ideas like this don't seem to be too popular right now," he said.

In the 10-kilometer walk around South Bend, the participants will meet various groups and church organizations who will greet them along the way with encouragement as well as free food.

Third World Awareness Week is a time for students to become more involved and more informed about the conditions of foreign countries while they have fun. The enthusiasm and participation of the students is essential for the week's success.

Cardinals get cold reception; Irish tennis team wins, 5-4

By RICK RIETBROCK
Sports Writer

Ball State's tennis team arrived yesterday sporting a nifty 12-2 record, but Notre Dame gave the visiting Cardinals a cold reception and took a 5-4 win at the Courtney Courts.

The Irish got some good singles play to take a 4-2 match lead, and the doubles team of Tony Cahill and Joe Nelligan came through with the deciding victory in the afternoon's final match.

Irish head coach Tom Fallon said he felt the tough win would do the Irish more good than just a win in the record book.

"This is really a good win for the team," he said. "Ball State is definitely a quality team, as their record would indicate.

"This match should be a big confidence-builder for our club. Coming into the season, I felt there would be a number of 5-4 matches, and you have to be able to win your share of the close ones in the course of a season.

"If you lose a few tough matches in a row, you tend to hang your head a little and feel down," he continued. "This win should prevent that from happening and keep us in a good frame of mind."

Brian Kalbas got a 6-4, 6-3 singles victory and Tim Carr added a 7-5, 6-2 win to go with Cahill's quick 6-4, 6-1 triumph which gave Notre Dame's freshman crew another solid outing. Dave Reiter suffered a 2-6, 5-7 loss and Nelligan came up just short in a 5-7, 4-6 defeat.

The key victory in Coach Fallon's view was the number-one singles win by Dan Walsh, who took a 6-4, 2-6, 7-6 marathon win over Marty Reist.

"Dan's victory was definitely the key one for us," Fallon said. "He's been taking a beating this year because he always has to play the other team's top guy. But, even though he doesn't always get the wins, he has really improved greatly throughout this year and I thought today's match really showed that progress."

Going into the doubles competition with a 4-2 lead, the Irish seemed to be in good shape, but Ball State quickly tied the score at four with wins over the teams of Walsh and Paul Daggs, 6-0, 6-3, and Carr and Reiter, 6-3, 6-3. That left the match up to Cahill and Nelligan and they responded with a 6-3, 6-3 victory to give the Irish the win.

Notre Dame's record now stands at 13-6. They will be off until the weekend when they start a string of games which will see them play every day from Saturday until Wednesday, all at home.

Cordelli follows in footsteps of Holtz on field

By TRISH SULLIVAN
Sports Writer

Don't always expect to see a smile on the face of receiver coach Pete Cordelli during practice. It isn't necessarily that he doesn't like what he sees, it is just that he has a job to do and he knows what it will take to get it done.

"During the two years that I worked with the Cowboys people always asked me why Coach Landry never smiled," recalls the first-year coach. "When you're out there at practice, it's the most important time of the day. It's like when you're taking a test - you don't smile during that test. What's there to laugh about when you're trying to get better?

You have to enjoy it but you also have to concentrate and be real intense in your practice."

Intensity in coaching is something Cordelli has learned from his guide and current boss, Lou Holtz. Cordelli played for Holtz at North Carolina State and then spent two years as a graduate assistant under Holtz at Arkansas. His most recent duties were at Minnesota these past two seasons as its receiver coach. Cordelli obviously espouses to Holtz' philosophy as coach and motivator and tries to implement the same in his coaching duties.

"Lou (Holtz) has always had a plan and a theory of how to do things," says the 32-year-old Blakely, Pa., native. "Then he just goes out and does it. Since the time I played under him until now, the only thing that has changed is that he has become a little more patient. He still has the intensity he has always had and I think that is the key to his success."

Cordelli doesn't believe there can be too much intensity on the part of a coach either, and he has kept this in mind as he helps the Irish team prepare for the 1986 season. With only 20 more practice days left, Cordelli will be working with the receivers on building their strength and improving their toughness.

"Spring ball is to come out and work on the fundamentals," adds Cordelli. "This is the time we get this team ready for the fall. We want to know what we should be doing in every situation. Overall as a group, the receivers have come a long way. But we have to increase our intensity and increase our concentration.

"Individually we have two great athletes in Milt Jackson, who I am very happy to have back this year, and Tim Brown who has the ability to be a big playmaker. We also have some depth, but I think we can even improve on that."

Cordelli also strives to instill a team concept into the players. The early morning workouts helped to emphasize this togetherness according to the coach, and he stresses that team rights should supercede individual rights. The team concept spells success for Cordelli and for him, Notre Dame is a dream come true.

"My experience thus far has been fantastic," says Cordelli. "The people have been super in this community and the players are committed to winning. It is just a matter of us going out and working them hard to get them ready for that season opener."

With so much enthusiasm and intensity radiating from Cordelli, it seems that Irish eyes will have plenty to smile about when the football season kicks off against Michigan.

SMC tennis team falls to Toledo

By CHRISTINE FORTIN
Sports Writer

The Saint Mary's tennis team dropped its first match of the spring season, falling to the University of Toledo on Saturday, 9-0. The Belles, an NAIA team, are competing against only NCAA teams during the spring season. The official NAIA season is played during the fall.

The Belles retained most of the same players who played this past fall, with the exception of losing two players and gaining freshman Sandy Hickey. Hickey is playing in the number-four singles position as well as the number-two doubles position with her partner Heather Temofeev.

"Sandy and Heather's personalities and playing abilities go hand in hand," said Coach Debbie Laverie, noting that this is the optimum goal for a doubles team.

Saturday morning's rain forced the doubles matches indoors. The Belles' doubles arrangements are new due to injuries.

The outdoor courts were dried in time for the singles matches.

"Heather Temofeev played an excellent match at number-two singles," said Laverie. "I was very happy with her play.

"Charlene Szajko also played a good match at number-six singles. Her games were very close."

The NCAA has put into effect a no-advantage rule for deuce play to prevent the matches from being played in the dark. This rule will have an effect on the game and match scores.

The NCAA teams are tough competition for the Belles. Laverie stated that the spring season is played to provide more experience for fall season play.

"There has been exceptional progress from the fall season," noted Laverie. "The young team betters itself with every match, which is encouraging," said Laverie.

This weekend Saint Mary's will face two more NCAA teams. Saturday the Belles will travel to Ohio State and Sunday the team will be playing on the road at the University of Cincinnati.

Shumate is named assistant coach

By JEFF BLUMB
Sports Writer

Only hours after Gary Brokaw had left his job as assistant basketball coach at Notre Dame for the head coaching job at Iona College, Irish head coach Digger Phelps already had a replacement.

John Shumate, formerly a volunteer assistant coach and a player for the Irish, will fill the vacancy created by Brokaw's departure. Shumate has spent the last three years as head coach at Grand Canyon College in Phoenix after leaving Notre Dame at the conclusion of the 1982-83 season.

"John was happy to be able to come back home," said Phelps. "he is familiar with the situation here. He knows where to pick it up."

Shumate put together records of 21-9, 18-16, and 19-8 at Grand Canyon, an NAIA school. In addition he had two NAIA all-Americans and his team won a total of nine different tournaments.

When he arrived at the school, the team grade point average was 1.3. After Shumate had stressed academics for three years, the average had risen to 2.5.

A 1974 graduate of Notre Dame, Shumate started at center for the Irish in his junior and senior seasons. As a junior, he averaged 21.0 points and 12.2 rebounds to help Notre Dame to an 18-12 record and a second-place finish in the 1973 National Invitation Tournament.

Shumate was an all-America selection following his senior year after averaging 24.2 points and 11.0 rebounds.

He stands 11th on the Notre Dame career scoring list with 1,334 points. Shumate also is the Irish career field goal percentage leader, having shot at a .610 clip during his career.

A first-round draft pick of the Phoenix Suns in 1974, Shumate spent seven years in the NBA, but missed two and one-half years because of illness. Shumate also played for Buffalo, Detroit, Houston, and San Antonio after making the league's all-rookie team in his first professional season.

A native of Elizabeth, N.J., Shumate returned to Notre Dame following his pro career to become a volunteer assistant for two seasons.

Shumate's return to Notre Dame will coincide with the arrival of freshmen frontcourt players Keith Robinson, Scott Paddock and Tony Jackson next fall. Phelps believes this could be a blessing for the Irish.

"We've got a green front line coming in next fall," Phelps said. "John will be able to work with those three the way he did with (Tim) Kempton, (Ken) Barlow and (Jim) Dolan when they were freshmen."

tain Kirk, led his team with six points on 21 attempts from the field. Andy Schiltz, as Scotty, shot 2-of-19, but was quick to point out the true mission of the Enterprise.

"We're here to observe," said Schiltz. "Basketball is not our forte, it's a secondary thing."

Kevin Fitzsimmons led the victorious Gash team with six baskets. Teammates Peter Kiernan and Tom Schiesser added five apiece, while Rob Houlihan pulled down 22 rebounds.

Yesterday witnessed the longest game in Bookstore XV thus far. In a marathon struggle, Managerial Units outlasted Four Jerks and a Squirt, 31-29. Mark Gess was the most important unit, shooting 16-of-33 from the field. John Adams, Tim Carnesi and Eddie White each added four baskets for the victors.

"Do we have to play another game?" asked a wheezing White, Notre Dame's assistant sports information director. "It was a tough win. They were a tough team. I'm just glad we didn't have to play a team with a hyphen in its name in the first round."

For the losing Jerks, Tim Adams shot 10-of-17 and Michael Hertel made eight of his 15 attempts.

In other first round action, Doug Nierle's 8-of-9 performance led Fun with Small Rodent Stimulation past Duke and the Miserable Social Problems, 21-11. W.R. Mack shot 10-of-12 from the field as Team Many Martoonies pounded Third Time's a Charm, 21-4.

Beeuwsaert will leave Notre Dame, plans to transfer to Cal-Berkeley

By JEFF BLUMB
Sports Writer

Matt Beeuwsaert, reserve small forward on the Irish basketball team, will transfer to the University of California-Berkeley next year to play for the Golden Bears of Coach Lou Campanelli. The Observer has learned.

Beeuwsaert, a sophomore who averaged 6.1 minutes per game this season for Notre Dame, cited a lack of court time as his primary reason for leaving the University.

"I decided to transfer mostly because of playing time," Beeuwsaert said yesterday. "I could see myself getting only 10-15 minutes a game next year. I want to play 30-35 minutes, or even the whole game."

"I started thinking about transferring during the second semester. I was pretty certain I would transfer after the Arkansas-Little Rock game."

Beeuwsaert informed Irish head coach Digger Phelps of his decision to transfer on March 19. After Notre Dame gave him his official release, Beeuwsaert initiated contact with Cal, and made an official visit to the campus over spring break.

Because Beeuwsaert has neither been accepted to the school nor signed a letter-of-intent, Campanelli's office said he could not comment on the situation by NCAA regulations.

Cal is much closer to Beeuwsaert's Santa Ana, Calif., home than Notre Dame. Santa Ana is just south of Los Angeles, and Berkeley is only an hour flight north near Oakland.

Beeuwsaert, who was bothered throughout his career at Notre Dame by chronic tendinitis, averaged 1.5 points and 1.6 rebounds per game this season in 17 games for the Irish. He scored his career high, 14 points against Valparaiso, in his freshman season.

"Part of his problem here was that he had trouble getting into the lineup because he was in and out with the tendinitis," said Phelps. "It's no negative on either side, there's no hard feelings. Matt was just concerned with getting more playing time."

"It's hard to say, and it's hard to talk about what kind of playing time he would have gotten next year."

Cal was 19-10 overall this season, Campanelli's first at the school, and its 11-7 conference record was good for third place in the Pacific 10. The Bears lost to Loyola-Marymount at home in the first round of the National Invitation Tournament.

The year before Campanelli arrived, Cal went 13-15 and finished tied for eighth in the Pac 10.

By NCAA rules, Beeuwsaert must sit out a year before playing for the Bears. But Cal will lose a whopping nine seniors at the conclusion of next season.

"There will be a small forward spot open there after next season," said Beeuwsaert. "(Campanelli) said if I made a commitment to them, they would make a commitment to me."

"It's a good school and Coach Campanelli is a good coach. He

Bookstore tourney is invaded by 'Star Trek'

By MIKE CARDINALE
Sports Writer

Bookstore Basketball XV celebrated the return of Star Trek to Michiana television yesterday, as two teams of Trekkies, Captain Kirk and Four Guys with Big Phasers and Crew of the Enterprise, battled to defend the federation against enemy attack.

Captain Kirk and Four Guys were successful against the Four Fatboys and a Cheese Head menace, winning by a 21-4 score. Chris Krochak and Jim Folstrom led the team with five baskets apiece. Both captain James T. Callaghan and Mike "Spock" Gregory chipped in four points, and Tim Laboe added three to the cause.

According to Laboe, the team formed around a Star Trek viewing club in Sorin Hall.

"We watch it every night, whenever possible," he said. "We have a pretty good following, with about 10-15 people a night in the room."

John Brabazon managed to penetrate the Enterprise's shields, shooting 8-of-12 in a losing effort.

Unfortunately for Trekkies, Crew of the Enterprise was defeated by Masters Of Gash by a 21-10 score. The Crew relied heavily on the "photon torpedo tactic," which involved long bombs from halfcourt and beyond. More successful was the "deflector shields up" defense, in which the Crew raised their hands to disrupt the enemy's shots.

Area ballparks provide spring fun for baseball fans

There is a time for all things and this is the time for baseball.

The season has started, much to the delight of all right-thinking Americans, and now people are starting to make their plans to head for the ball park and find the answers to these questions and more.

- Can Kansas City repeat in '86? (No.)
- Will the Cardinals fly back to the top? (No.)
- Could it be the year for a Subway Series in New York? (No.)

You can either put faith in my prognosticative ability (not a shrewd move) or go to the ball park during the next six months to find out the answers yourselves. Should you choose the latter, here's our annual guide to the ballparks so you can take yourself out to the ballgame.

Looking for a short trip.

Comiskey Park, home of the Chicago White Sox. This is one place where they believe baseball is for the entertainment of the entire family. Even if you don't like baseball, you can enjoy yourself at Comiskey with the best variety of concessions in baseball, the sport's top organist, and a flashy scoreboard that ignites with each Chicago home run. If you are a baseball fan, you'll appreciate the old-time atmosphere and the presence of natural grass. A treat for any visitor to the Windy City, located just off the Dan Ryan Expressway.

Sox Home Dates - April 9-10 Milwaukee; April 11-13 Boston; April 14-16 Detroit; April 29-30 Baltimore; May 2-4 Cleveland; May 5-7 New York. Tickets range from $9.50 for Golden Boxes to $3 for general admission. Best bet is to lay down the three bucks and sit in the bleachers in left or right field. To order tickets in advance, call 312-559-1212.

Wrigley Field, home of the Chicago Cubs. This is mecca. Nothing but green grass, ivy-covered walls and plenty of sunshine. Take the Dan Ryan to the Edens Expressway and leave at the Wrigley Field exit. It's best to go a little early to grab one of the few parking spots, but that will get you there in time for batting practice when you can sit in the bleachers and grab a souvenir and a few rays. The park for the true baseball aficionado.

Chuck Freeby

Irish Items

Cubs Home Dates - April 18-20 Pittsburgh; April 21-23 St. Louis; April 24-27 Montreal. Tickets range from Club Boxes for $9.50 to the sun-drenched bleachers for $3.50. Now that bleacher seats are sold in advance, it's best to order early. Call 312-281-5050 for tickets.

For a one-day trip.

County Stadium, home of the Milwaukee Brewers. A fun park to go to because there are no hassles. The stadium has easy access off I-94 and plenty of parking means lots of tailgate parties before and after the game. Brats and beer are plentiful at the concession stands, but in April or May, hot chocolate or coffee may be a necessary beverage substitute. As far as baseball is concerned, the Brewers aren't that great, but maybe you'll see a future Hall of Famer like Milwaukee announcer Bob Uecker.

Brewer Home Dates - April 14, 16, 17 Texas; April 18-20 New York; April 22-23 Chicago; April 29-30, May 1 Oakland; May 2-4 California. Tickets range from $8.50 for mezzanine seats to $3 for the remote bleachers. Best bet is to lay down $5.50 for a very good upper grandstand seat behind home plate. To order tickets, call 414-933-1818.

Tiger Stadium, home of the Detroit Tigers. Motown should be rocking this spring, and it's not because of The Four Tops or The Temptations. The Tigers are certainly contenders in the AL East, and this old ball park will be a fun place to be during the spring. Some of the food isn't the greatest, but a ball park hot dog is still good anytime. Just take I-80 to I-69 and then to I-94 to get to the ball park and good luck in getting a parking spot.

Tiger Home Dates. April 9-10 Boston; April 18-20 Cleveland; April 25-27 Chicago; April 29-30 Kansas

City; May 2-4 Minnesota. Tickets run from $9 for box seats to $3.50 for bleachers, which aren't bad seats at all. Call 313-963-9944 to order.

Municipal Stadium, home of the Cleveland Indians. OK, OK. Enough of the jokes about Cleveland. The big ball park on the banks of the Cuyahoga isn't the prettiest place inside or out, but let's look at the positives. First, they have the best mustard in baseball. Secondly, the Tribe has new uniforms. Third, as of this printing, Cleveland is in first place in the AL East. What more could you ask for? Take I-80 into Cleveland and follow the signs to see a team which hasn't finished as high as third since 1968.

Tribe Home Dates - April 11-13 Detroit; April 15-17 New York; April 21-23 Baltimore; May 5-7 Kansas City. No need to call ahead for tickets, because there's always plenty available. Just buy a bleacher seat for $2, because after the third inning you can sit where you please.

For the weekend traveller.

Riverfront Stadium, home of the Cincinnati Reds. There's nothing special about the stadium, except that it may be one of the cleanest in the major leagues. Plenty of concession stands and some exciting baseball as Pete Rose's Reds look to contend in the NL West. It's easy to find, but not easy to get to so plan accordingly.

Reds Weekend Dates - April 18-20 Houston; May 2-4 New York. Tickets range from a reasonable $8 for box seats to $3 for nose bleed "Top Six" seats which are better suited for seeing Halley's Comet. Best bet is to lay down six bucks for green reserved seats beyond the outfield wall. Call 513-421-7337 for tickets.

Metrodome, home of the Minnesota Twins. If you're a glutton for punishment, return to the scene of the NCAA basketball crime. Take I-94 to the 5th street exit and then walk into plastic land. This isn't baseball, it's indoors and in the American League. But if that's what you want, have a good time.

Twins Weekend Dates - April 11-13 Seattle; April 25-27 California. I don't have the ticket information handy, but if you're interested call the Metrodome ticket office at 612-333-5577.
