Dow drops again, loses 157 points

Associated Press

NEW YORK -The Dow Jones industrial average suffered its second-largest point loss ever Monday, falling 157 points and wiping out most gains made after last week's staggering 508-point plunge.

The selling followed a record loss on the prime Hong Kong exchange, which lost one-third of its value on the first day of trading in a week. Tokyo, London and other foreign markets also had large losses.

Investors appeared to be unmoved by deficit-reduction talks between President Reagan and congressional leaders that were called after last week's market panic.

"It's a slow fade, sinking in the sunset," said Dennis Jarrett, a technical analyst for the investment firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co.

Analysts said the market was still reeling from the history-making plunge Oct. 19, when the Dow industrials fell a record 508 points. In six days of seesaw trading, the Dow has dropped about 450 points.

The value of all U.S. stocks Monday fell $203 billion to $2.23 trillion, or 8.4 percent, a one-day evaporation of wealth exceeded only by the $503 billion drop one week earlier. The Dow average of 30 industrials fell 156.83 points to 1,793.93.

"It was a panic, and it's still to some degree continuing," said Morton Brown Jr., research director for Edward D. Jones & Co., a St. Louis-based brokerage company that serves small investors in 38 states.

Gulf still active; Iran 'aggressive'

Associated Press

KUWAIT -An Iranian leader Monday urged Iran to mobilize for an all-out war against the United States, and senior officials from Iraq and Kuwait met to discuss a coordinated defense against Iran.

British officials meanwhile confirmed that Kuwait has registered two of its tankers to fly the British flag and is in the process of registering a third.

A prominent Palestinian guerrilla leader pledged that

Palestinians would fight alongside Kuwait to help gulf Arab states deter Iranian "aggression."

The British move would entitle the Kuwaiti vessels to the protection of British warships. At least three British warships and four mine sweepers are stationed in the Persian Gulf.

Eleven of Kuwait's 22 tankers have been registered under the American flag, giving them U.S. naval protec-

Film may focus on ND but officials not excited

By ERIC BERGAMO

Speculation that the Notre Dame campus may be the setting for a feature-length movie does not excite the administration, Director for Public Relations and Information Richard Conklin said.

"We're not turning hand-springs over this," Conklin noted.

An article in the South Bend Tribune on Oct. 16 reported that South Bend was being considered as the main shooting location for the movie.

The Tribune said a source close to the project added that the moviemakers have not looked at other locations in the state and do not plan to look. The source speculated that Notre Dame was the setting for the movie.

Negotiations between officials of the Indiana Film Commission and the filmmakers have ended, and the producers are now raising money for the production.

Information on the movie is being kept secret under orders of the producers, the Tribune reported.

South Bend has also been scouted as a location for two other films.

But the University has not been approached about filming a movie on the campus and is not excited at the prospect of films being made on campus, Conklin said.

Notre Dame is approached on the average of

Reagan works to lower deficit

Associated Press

WASHINGTON -President Reagan and congressional leaders talked face to face Monday as they began a new effort to reduce the federal deficit, saying the need to reassure the nation's shaky financial markets added urgency to their task.

The president met for nearly an hour with the Democratic and Republican leaders of Congress. Participants said there was no discussion of specifics on such subjects as possible tax increases or spending cuts, but there was agreement on the importance of their task.

"We have to be serious. All of us have to be serious," said House Speaker Jim Wright.

"Today's session at the White House was the first move in a high stakes game that we can't afford to lose," said Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole.

"We're going to work as hard and fast as we can," said Sen. Robert Byrd, the Senate majority leader.

Many analysts have cited the huge federal deficit as contributing to Wall Street's major declines last week. Stocks fell sharply again Monday on the New York Stock Exchange, with the Dow Jones Industrial Average down about 157 points.

House Majority Leader Thomas Foley said to keep the talks going "everybody agreed" not to make disparaging remarks about others who might have different proposals.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater also said there was a "truce on critical comments." And he said there would be little said while detailed, substantive talks, scheduled to begin Tuesday, were under way.

"We will, in effect, have a news lid on the specifics of the negotiations," he said.

The Monday meeting was a prelude to the later talks on the meat and potatoes of crafting a $23 billion reduction in the fiscal 1988 deficit as called for by the Gramm-Rudman budget balancing law. If the talks fail to achieve that deficit reduction some other way, the law mandates across-the-board cuts on Nov. 20.

Wright said Reagan's comments at the meeting indicated a desire to avoid either a budget freeze at last year's levels or automatic cuts under the deficit-reduction law.

Several lawmakers spoke of going beyond the Gramm-Rudman goal, and of making sure that the deficit-reduction steps carried over into future fiscal years.

Scorning others' troubles doesn't help solve ours

You can learn a lot of things when sitting in a bar. I think I came to this distinct conclusion when I was in fact sitting in a bar back home in New Orleans over October break.

I did not come up with this admittedly less than profound thought out of thin air. There were two distinct experiences which I had that will support my opening statement. The first case has to do with the stock market crash on "Black Monday" and the second with something a bit more abstract. On last Monday, Oct. 17, as I was sitting in a neighborhood bar by my house with a group of friends from my hometown and an import from Notre Dame, I first heard about the news of the stock market's plummet earlier that day. (Granted, I picked up on the news a bit late; I was out all day doing touristy things with my friend from ND and had no access to the news media.) I was sober as were most of the people in the establishment, so there were no dramatic reactions to the news from anyone.

The reaction from most of the people in the bar, however, was of interest and wonder. All ten or so of the patrons hushed as the 10 o'clock news came on and the anchor tried to explain what had happened. The silence continued through the half hour special aired immediately after the news.

What was so striking to me about the bar crowd's reaction was the levity with which the "closest thing to an (economic) meltdown" was taken. All throughout the man-on-the-street clips featuring somewhat hysterical investors, the obviously forced optimistic advice of some economic and investing bigwigs, and a usual caustic performance by Sam Donaldson, calm pervaded. Everyone listened to the news, talked a bit about how this may affect the future of the economy, and wondered aloud what he or she would be doing in a couple of years.

More drinks were ordered. End of story.

The second case concerned the following Wednesday night in a bar that was a bit less subdued than the first. It was quarter draft night, and local college students packed the place.

After my group of friends and I had been there for a little under an hour, a man around 40 years-old made his way to the back of the half-filled dance floor and started dancing.

The man was quite a spectacle. He did not have a partner and moved his body in wild gyration. He would kick up a leg, spin around, then touch the ground John Travolta-style, and start all over again. He was like some whirling dervish with a cult all his own. For upon further examination, it was obvious that he was dancing not with himself but with his shadow.

Of course, everyone in the crowd looked at this guy and just laughed. People pointed him out to the unaware and a bartender was repeatedly yelling, "every night! every night!", explaining to everyone who would listen that this man's dancing was no anomaly, it was ritual. The man went on dancing with his shadow, however, oblivious (or at least indifferent) to the taunting and laughter behind him.

Kevin Becker

Editor-in-Chief

In both instances, the people in a bar were faced with a problem. The first was a potential economic crisis, the second was the loneliness of a middle-aged man. In the first instance, I thought it was somewhat comforting that everyone was concerned about the stock market problem but not hysterical about its ramifications. For the most part, no one in that small bar could do anything about the world's economic woes except wait and do their best to adjust.

In the second, however, it was a bit distressing to see the group revel in one man's problem or quirky ritual. For as long as that man wanted to dance there were people who wanted to laugh and point and taunt as if they had never been lonely. And although no one may have felt it their duty to help that guy, few bothered to simply leave him alone.

I guess sociologists and psychologists may claim that my observations are quite unscientific. There were two different bars, two different groups of people, and two totally different situations. But I find it funny that people can shrug off the big, bad problems so easily and then take joy in really sticking it to the little guy and his little problem. Or is it that the way we deal with the big stuff is by storing it all up until we come across the guy who is worse off than we and then let it all out by laughing at his predicament in praise of the God who has made ours less difficult?

You can learn a lot of things when sitting in a bar.

Mother of First Lady dies of stroke at 91 in Arizona

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Edith Davis, the mother of First Lady Nancy Reagan, died on Monday at her home in Phoenix, Ariz., of "cerebral thrombosis," the White House announced.

A cerebral thrombosis is a blood clot in the brain, a form of stroke.

Davis, the wife of the late Chicago neurosurgeon Loyal Davis, had been ailing for several years.

The White House, in a statement, said President Reagan and the first lady will travel to Phoenix on Tuesday.

Dr. Davis, 91, was born on July 16, 1896.

Mrs. Davis has been a resident of Phoenix for several years, the White House said.

She had lived in Phoenix since 1963, where she retired with her husband, Loyal Davis. The couple moved to the southwest when he retired as head of the surgery department at Northwestern University.

The First Lady's father died in August 1982 of congestive heart failure at age 86.

Mrs. Davis, often known by her nickname of "Lucky," was the ninth and last child of Sarah Whitlock and Charles Edward Lockett of Petersburg, Va. Her father worked for the Adams Express Co., and was transferred to Washington, D.C., where she spent her childhood.

Throughout her life, she was known for her vivacious, outgoing style and kindnesses to those in need.

"They broke the mold after they made my mother," wrote her daughter Nancy in a tribute to her mother in 1984. "If I could be half the woman she is, I'd be happy. . . ." Her daughter described her as having a "delicious, wicked, wonderful sense of humor" and a "fierce loyalty to her family."

Mrs. Reagan wrote that her mother, a budding actress, got her first break at age 14 when her brother Joe gave her her first job in a theater he ran.

Her career on the stage included appearances in New York with George M. Cohan and Spencer Tracy - who later became a close friend. She also worked with Walter Huston, Zasu Pitts, David Belasco, Louis Calhern and Hilla Nazimova, the famous actress who became her daughter's godmother.

The young actress was married briefly to Kenneth Robbins, a New Jersey businessman, but the union broke up shortly after Nancy's birth, and the couple was later divorced.

SMC Board announces speaker series, October events

By MIMI TUOHY

"Life After Saint Mary's," an alumnae speaker series sponsored by student government will begin Wednesday night, Smith Hashagen told the Saint Mary's Programming Board on Monday night.

The featured alumna is Kathleen Hessert Gunderman, president of Communications Concepts, and a television journalist for 14 years.

"Ms. Gunderman is a very successful woman, and she is very excited about returning to her alma mater. It should prove to be a very interesting evening and a great start for the series," said Hashagen, vice president of Student Activities.

In other business, Hashagen said the student government will celebrate Halloween by selling candy-grams in the dining hall on Wednesday and Thursday for fifty cents each. Candy-grams will be delivered to the dorms on Friday, Hashagen said.

The Student Activities Board is also presenting the movie

"Halloween" on Thursday and Friday, Oct. 29 and 30, in Carroll Auditorium at 7, 9 and 11 p.m., Student Activities Board Commissioner Halane Young said.

Freshman Class Advisor Julie Wagner said that the Regina Pool Party will be held Wednesday, Nov. 4, from 9 to 11 p.m. Scheduled activities include a belly flop contest, team relays and diving for pennies.

Young stated that the next Club Tuesday will feature the band "Shawn and the Sun Kings" on November 10 from 9-11 p.m. "The first Club Tuesday was a huge success. We're looking for a similar attendance at the next one," she said.

Entrepreneurs take advantage of drunk driving law

Associated Press

SCHERERVILLE, Ind. — An Illinois law is being turned into a moneymaker by an Indiana business providing take-home service for those who drink.

Illinois has a so-called dram shop law which puts the responsibility for property damage or personal injury accidents caused by drunken drivers on the last establishment to serve the driver a drink.

The law is different in Indiana, which places the major responsibility for the damages with the driver but does allow the filing of civil action against the last place serving the driver a drink.

Since 1983, the Guardian Escort service of Schererville has been offering its service to bars and restaurants in Lake and Porter counties, driving customers from the establishment to their home.

The flat fee paid by the bar covers the entire trip home "no matter what," said Guardian sales manager James Stanton. "The customer doesn't get charged even if we pick him up in Crown Point and have to take him to Schaumburg."

After realizing dram shop laws put Illinois tavern owners at a greater legal risk than their Hoosier counterparts, Stanton began approaching establishments in Cook, Will and DuPage counties last year.

He says more than 120 places in that tri-county area, with the majority in Cook County, have signed up for the service.

"They are under such a strict law there they have been glad to see us," Stanton said.

Participating in the program doesn't free a business from responsibility, Stanton said.

"But, it is another bullet in their gun of defense."

About 80 Indiana businesses are paying a $39 monthly rate, while Illinois businesses are paying $50 a month because of the dram law.

Guardian's current president, former Schererville policeman Trace Embry began the service.

"The service is for the customer," Stanton said. "It's important that they have driven there. This is not a taxi service."

once a year by filmmakers who wish to use the University as a locale in feature and made-for-television films, said Conklin, adding that few of the projects get to the script stage because of lack of funds.

If the script is written, it must meet the approval of the University and not place Notre Dame in an "inappropriate light," Conklin said.

The producers of a film called "Four Friends" wanted to film scenes on the campus, Conklin said, but were declined because of objections to the script.

The University has to take in consideration that alumni and friends of Notre Dame are sensitive to the way Notre Dame is portrayed when approving a script, Conklin said.

The script for a movie called "One For The Gipper," a remake of the 1940 film "Knut Rockne-All American," was approved by the University, Conklin noted. The film was never made because of a lack of funding.

The University must also consider if the filming will disrupt the educational life of Notre Dame, Conklin said.

Conklin did not rule out the possibility of films being made on the campus, but he said past experiences make it unlikely.

Conklin sent a letter to Karen Galvin, Director of the Indiana Film Commission, explaining the University's view about filming on campus.

The last film made on the Notre Dame campus was a 1980 documentary on Knute Rockne narrated by actor Cliff Robertson, Conklin noted. Notre Dame also cooperated with CBS and NFL Films to produce "Wake Up The Echoes."

Notre Dame does film documentaries through WNDU, which is owned by the University, Conklin said. WNDU is currently working on a documentary about the 100 years of Notre Dame football.

Pole sitter gets record, engaged

INDIANAPOLIS—An 18-year-old woman who has spent a year living in a 42-square-foot box atop an Indianapolis restaurant has found a fiancé while falling short of her financial goal for the project.

Melissa Sanders moved into her 6-by-7 foot room, 43 feet in the air, hoping to raise $100,000 in donations and pledges. She said that she'd give 70 percent of the money raised to charity, use 10 percent for expenses and keep the rest for herself.

She says she's raised about $5,000 to help fight cancer and has also met the man she intends to marry through publicity the project has produced.

Sanders entered the room on Oct. 26, 1986, planning to break the listed world pole-sitting record of 488 days with a 505-day break from the everyday world.

tion from attack by Iran, which considers Kuwait an ally of Iraq in the seven-year Iran-Iraq war.

One tanker, the Sea Isle City, was hit by an Iranian missile in Kuwaiti waters Oct. 16, wounding 18 crewmen, including the American captain.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency quoted Interior Minister Hojatollah Ali Akbar Mohtashemi as urging "people in every Iranian city and village to be prepared for a full-fledged war" with the United States in the gulf.

"Since we are facing a savage enemy, we should mobilize all our resources and manpower to deal effective blows against" the United States, Mohtashemi, a leading radical, was quoted as telling regional governors in Tehran.

He branded the Americans as "weak and cowardly" and declared that "any slight blow" would intensify President Reagan's political problems over the deployment of U.S. warships in the gulf.

Iraq's First Deputy Prime Minister Taha Yassin Ramadan and Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz wound up several hours of defense talks with Kuwaiti officials.

In the past 11 days, there have been three Iranian missile attacks on Kuwait. Kuwaiti newspapers also have blamed Iran for Saturday's bombing of a ticket agency representing Pan American World Airways.

State-run Kuwait Radio said the Iraqi officials discussed Tehran's "repeated aggressions" against Iraq, Kuwait and Saudi Arabia with the Kuwaitis. It did not elaborate.

The Iraqis' visit followed a meeting in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia of foreign ministers of the Saudi-led Gulf Cooperation Council. Member states closed ranks with partner Kuwait against Iran, which attacked Kuwait with Chinese-made Silkworm missiles.

China has sold Iran as many as 96 missiles under a $1 billion-a-year arms program that is complicating efforts to end the war, officials in Washington told The Associated Press.

Investor kills broker, self after stock loss

Associated Press

MIAMI -An investor who reportedly suffered heavy stock market losses shot and killed one broker and critically wounded another in their brokerage house Monday, then turned his gun on himself, police and witnesses said.

The gunman, Arthur Kane, 53, of Miami, was dead at the scene, said Metro-Dade Police Cmdr. William Johnson.

"We believe it was, in fact, related to losses suffered in the market during the recent downturn," Johnson said.

A Merrill Lynch spokesman said the slain brokerage manager was Jose Argilagos, 51. The wounded stockbroker was Lloyd Kolokoff, 39, of Miami. Both men were local vice presidents.

Kolokoff was in critical condition at Baptist Hospital following surgery to remove bullet fragments, said hospital spokeswoman Adrienne Silver. He had a gunshot wound to the back and suffered injury to a lung and the spinal cord, she said.

Johnson said it's possible there were no other witnesses to the shooting at the Merrill Lynch office near The Falls shopping center in southwest Dade County.

"I think they went into an office to talk and I think everyone who was in there was shot," he said.

Aaron Perry, a broker with Profile Investments, said friends at Merrill Lynch told him Kane was a longtime customer who had received a margin call because of last week's decline.

People who buy stock on margin use money borrowed from a brokerage to cover up to half the cost of securities. If the value of a stock falls, a brokerage issues what is known as "a margin call," asking the client to put up more assets to cover the falling value of the stock.

ued at a heavy pace. A total of 308.82 million shares changed hands, which made Monday the sixth busiest session on record.

The New York and American stock exchanges, the Chicago Board Options Exchange, the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, the Chicago Board of Trade and the Midwest Stock Exchange announced they would close two hours early throughout the week, a policy begun late last week to cope with the heavy trading volume.

There was violence Monday when a Florida investor who reportedly suffered heavy losses in the market killed one broker and critically wounded another in their Miami brokerage office.

The market's decline is proving a blow for small companies that need to raise money for expansion and job creation, analysts said.

Nervous investors have been pulling their money out of small companies and putting it into bigger ones, which they apparently believe are more stable in a time of trouble.

Some privately held companies have already delayed plans to go public because of the depressed price their shares would be likely to fetch, and small public companies may be holding off on issues of extra stock.

"Today seemed to be a particularly devastating day for the over-the-counter market, and the over-the-counter market is where most young companies start out their lives," said Harry Miller, portfolio manager for Johnson, Lane, Space, Smith & Co. in Atlanta.

The NASDAQ composite index of over-the-counter stocks fell 9 percent, or 29.55 points to 298.90. Since Oct. 13, the day before the market's slide began, the OTC index has fallen 31.3 percent, or a bit more than the 28.5 percent decline by the Dow industrials.

Professor casts doubt on dinosaur extinction date

Associated Press

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. -A Purdue University professor says he has evidence that creatures thought to have become extinct 65 million years ago actually lived hundreds of thousands of years past that time.

The findings by William Zinsmeister were presented Monday at the annual Geological Society of America conference in Phoenix, Ariz.

He said the findings may cast doubt on a prominent theory of how dinosaurs became extinct at the end of the Cretaceous Period. The theory holds that a giant asteroid hit the earth and kicked up enough dust to block sunlight, thus killing plants and, eventually, the dinosaurs.

During a December 1986 research expedition to Seymour Island, about 30 miles north of the northeastern tip of Antarctica, Zinsmeister collected about six fossils of ammonites ancestors of the pearly nautilus that lived past the Cretaceous Period. The fossils were found in a layer of rock that proves they lived past that period, he said.

"The evidence shows that the theory of a giant rock hitting the earth and causing catastrophe is not as cut and dried as people thought," said Zinsmeister, an associate professor of geology.

He predicted the evidence and conclusions would create controversy in the scientific community.

It will not be the first time Zinsmeister has captured the attention of researchers. His research over the past five years has helped explain the theory of continental drift, species development and climate changes during the late Cretaceous Period, according to Donald Levandowski, head of the Department of Earth and Atmospheric Sciences at Purdue.

Herbert Howe, an associate professor of geology at Purdue, said Zinsmeister's most recent findings are important evidence that will help explain the extinction of the dinosaurs.

"The more evidence you can find to show that creatures survived the Cretaceous Period, the more difficult it will be to prove that an asteroid caused worldwide extinction," Howe said.

Pregnant addict denied baby she sold for cocaine

Associated Press

CHICAGO -Authorities started paperwork Monday to deny a pregnant drug addict custody of her two babies, one day after she looked through a glass partition and identified a 22-month-old boy as the child she traded for $50 worth of cocaine.

"The child pointed at her. A child knows its mother, strange as circumstances might be, tragic as circumstances might be," police youth division investigator Frank Giunta said Monday, describing the brief reunion between Lou Ann Powell and her son, Anthony.

"Even though she's an admitted addict, a mother is a mother," he said. "She had tears in her eyes, she looked at the kid and asked if she could get a little closer."

Anthony has been in foster care since he was found abandoned outside a day labor agency June 16 and turned over to the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services, said agency spokesman Dave Schneidman.

Police, not realizing Anthony had been found and placed with foster parents by the Family Services agency, had been looking for him since they arrested Powell on an outstanding prostitution warrant July 23.

Powell, 26, was well known to case workers from Family Services because of past reports of neglect involving Anthony and his 9-month-old brother, Joseph, Schneidman said.

"Naturally, the first question we asked when she's arrested is, 'Where's Anthony?'" said Schneidman. "And she comes out with this business of using him as collateral for a $50 coke buy."

"She talked about making 150 deals with this guy and falling behind, then offering the kid as collateral," said Giunta. "She apparently planned to redeem him when she got some money, kind of like when you take a promissory note from the bank."

The dealer who Powell said took Anthony as payment is serving time on an unrelated drug conviction and police are trying to get permission to interview him, he said.

Police raid arrests 99, party hosts charged

Associated Press

LEBANON, Ind. -A weekend police raid resulted in the arrests of 99 people, including many who are under the legal drinking age, for alcohol-related offenses.

The arrests late Saturday and early Sunday at the party near Zionsville involved people ages 13 to 37, including 77 juveniles from Boone, Marion, Hamilton, Hendricks, Hancock and Johnson counties, police said.

"We want to send a loud message to these people: if they want to have under-age drinking parties, be prepared to have uninvited guests," Boone County Sheriff Judith Hudson said Sunday.

Thirteen kegs of beer were seized by authorities in the raid, including 10 empty ones. Sheriff's authorities said the party was so well-organized a concession stand was set up to sell hot dogs to accompany the estimated 210 gallons of beer.

ND faculty, researchers receive over $1 million for various programs

Special to The Observer

The University of Notre Dame received $1,218,287 in grants during September for the support of research and various programs. Research funds totaled $959,913, including:

-$172,346 from the U.S. Geological Survey for research on characterizing fracture geometry by Stephen Silliman, instructor in civil engineering, and William Gray, chairman and professor of civil engineering.

-$160,000 from the National Endowment for the Humanities for research by Terry Brogan, adjunct assistant professor in the freshman writing program, and Roger Skurski, director of the Center for the Study of Contemporary Society and professor of economics, for research on the Princeton Encyclopedia/Poetry and Poetics, Third Revised Edition.

-$134,782 from the National Institutes of Health for research by Paul Grimstad, associate professor of biological sciences, on the ecology of vectors of Jamestown Canyon virus.

-$111,116 from the National Institutes of Health for research by Michael Fennewald, assistant professor of biological science, on inhibitors of site-specific recombination.

-$107,705 from the National Institutes of Health for research by Malcolm Fraser Jr., assistant professor of biological sciences, on transposon mediated mutagenesis of NP viruses.

-$69,100 from the National Science Foundation for research by Huseh- Chia Chang, professor of chemical engineering, on the application of nonlinear techniques to control fluid dynamics.

-$40,217 from the U.S. Department of Energy for research on the effects of radiations by Robert Schuler, director of the radiation laboratory and Zahm professor of radiation chemistry.

-$37,274 from the Amoco Chemical Research Center for research by Charles Kulpa Jr., associate professor of biological sciences, on pathways for fine acid degradation.

-$30,000 from the S.H. Kress Foundation for research by John Van Engen, director of the Medieval Institute and associate professor of history, on the Mary Davis Collection of Italian Renaissance Art.

-$21,960 from the Whirlpool Corp. for the Whirlpool Corporation Fellowship in Engineering with research directed by Kwang-Tzu Yang, Hank professor of aerospace and mechanical engineering.

At Continental Bank, we're making financial history—and we're looking for people who want to help write a chapter or two.

If you're a finance or accounting major, we invite you to attend a presentation from some of our corporate and institutional bankers about the career opportunities at Continental Bank. The presentation will be held in the Notre Dame Room at Morris Inn on Tuesday, October 27, and will begin at 7:00 pm.

If you are interested, we urge you to stop by. Because when all's said and done, it's a lot more fun to write history than to read it.

Rangers learning to be all they can be

"Rangers? Is it true you guys crawl in mud and eat bugs?" (impressed friends and neighbors).

"All I know is that I heard grunts and curses at four in the morning" (disgruntled roommate).

"What do you have to do to join the Rovers, dear?" (polite parental interest).

"This is going to be good for me." (personal pride with gritted teeth).

Hell Week with the Irish Rangers.

Robin Squyres

guest column

The Irish Ranger Company, an extracurricular activity affiliated with Army R.O.T.C. at the University of Notre Dame, proclaims itself "one of the most elite organizations in the free world." The IRC offers a different kind of education: hands on experience in the finer points of soldiering and the opportunity to learn just how good you are.

At the beginning of each semester, the Rangers stage a week long test of physical and mental endurance involving many hellishly creative cales-thenics and practical exercises.

Physical challenges are the most obvious. Rising at the refreshing pre-dawn hour of 3:45 am for a 4:30 formation. Breathing in the bracing ethanol while groping through inky blackness to Green Field, Ranger home. Push-ups are the answer to the stray flicker of an eye - a gleeful sergeant will push you to the limit of your elbow ligaments.

Mentally, you'd better believe in yourself (or have a very supportive mother), because the opportunity to quit is ever-present and always beckoning.

Hell Week is a combination of stresses: the immediate mental and physical fatigue, and the after-effects of trying to continue in school and keep up normal appearances when every muscle aches and craving sleep becomes an obsessive pastime.

In that first pitch-black formation, we were a jumbled combination of petrified freshmen, laid-back veterans, muscled males and the occasional female. After the initial burst of yelling and push-ups, we stood silently and were told about the Ranger rule: "Always help your buddy." Our commander said it again and again, "If your buddy's hurting, you better help him out!"

Teamwork is essential to any close-working unit, and it's something that has to be built and maintained. It doesn't come as a packaged option.

On that first day, teamwork glimmered here and there.

"Hang in there, just one more step!"

"Hey, this man needs help!" And five heads would swivel to see what they could do.

But it was still very individual; it took personal pride to finish the run, to do one more push-up, to laugh inwardly even as Sergeant X was screaming we were all boneheads. Yeah - this is easy!

The second day was God-prepared. It had poured the night before, and perfect mudholes and wallowing pits awaited our shining boots and starched uniforms.

We low crawled over gravel, face down in the dirt. If someone had told me a year ago I would be doing this I would have laughed.

But teamwork was stronger; we went back for our "wiped out" buddies and dragged them along; we cheered as someone finished, high-fiving left and right. This felt good!

Day Three gave us the Assault Course from Hell, a formidable array of body twisting obstacles to be negotiated with smoking speed: a tunnel, a stream, a rope bridge, barbed wire, hills, mud, a 10-foot wall, and many other landscaped treats designed to build confidence and team work.

That day, individuality vanished. "Help your buddy" took on a new meaning because people were really hurting and everyone's support was essential to group morale. Teams crossed the course competing for time. Just finishing the course was a true challenge, and smooth teamwork was essential to success.

Clawing my way up a hill by my fingertips, I was having muscle spasms and sucking for air. Behind me, "Keep going! Let's go!" In front of me, "Here come on!" Extended agony. But another impossible obstacle was behind us, the adrenaline was pumping, and I was feeling good again. I had no idea I could do so much before University Food Services even opened.

Every morning just as the horizon was brightening, we would stand in formation while "Motivational Music" blared around us. It varied from Sousa marches to the Stones, but it achieved the same basic purpose of giving us time to catch our breath and get psyched for the real challenges of the day. Which, when surrounded by your platoon all standing in the darkness, was amazingly easy to do.

Silhouetted against the lightening sky, the officers stood in groups of two and three, walking back and forth, joking quietly among themselves. As Jagger wailed, one figure air guitaried a few lines and I could imagine the smile on his face as he felt the rally gathering.

Yeah, it was a good feeling to be standing there while the rest of Notre Dame was asleep.

The whole idea of Hell Week had been rather amusing, something to commiserate with friends about. But once I was in the middle of it, I realized it wasn't a joke, it wasn't all chuckles and antics; it was proving to yourself that you could take the heat and still smile about it afterwards.

P.O. Box Q

Verbal abuse has no place on field

Dear Editor:

We are writing in response to James Bobb's October 13 letter. We believe it unfairly represented the Breen-Phillips Hall football team and we would like to set the record straight.

We are assuming that James Bobb was not aware of the events that preceded the remark he overheard. These comments were not without provocation, although it would have been better to let the situation end there.

Throughout both halves of the game we heard abusive language from the Lewis players and coaches. We considered writing a letter about the game, but decided it would be unfair to generalize about a team for the actions of certain individuals. We do not believe the injury to our running back was intentional. Collisions are inevitable when sixteen women are running on the turf at once.

We know every team is intense and wants to win, but there is a fine line between that and hostility. We had close, hard-fought games against Lyons and Pasquerilla West. But those games, and even our contest against our archrival Farley, were not marred by such unsportsmanlike behavior. We readily admit that sometimes when the competition is heated, there will be unfriendly remarks by players of both teams. But when abuse comes directly from a coach to an opposing team it is inexcusable. The referees should try to curb the language on both the field and sidelines.

B.P. regrets the unfortunate incident. No player should verbally attack another regardless of the circumstances. Breen-Phillips is dedicated to clean play and good sportsmanship. We are just as guilty of "heat of the moment" remarks as the next, but everyone should keep the game in perspective and remember that above all else we play for fun and enjoyment.

For the first time this season, Tony Rice assumed the starting position behind center (above) against Air Force Oct. 17. Rice also spent a lot of time in the Air Force secondary (left), as Falcon cornerback Greg Palko (41) tries to bring Rice down after a short gain.

Rice leads 'back to basics' victory over Air Force

By RICK RIETBROCK
Assistant Sports Editor

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — After losing for the first time and losing its starting quarterback, Notre Dame went back to basics against Air Force. The result was a solid 35-14 victory.

Tony Rice, starting his first game at quarterback in place of the injured Terry Andrysiak, directed a machine-like running attack that piled up 354 yards net rushing yards, the most by an Irish squad since 1980.

"I thought he had great composure today," Notre Dame head coach Lou Holtz said of Rice. "He handled the ball really well. He did a good job of doing exactly what we asked him to do."

The Irish wasted little time gaining the upper hand. After the Falcons returned Billy Hackett's opening kickoff to the Notre Dame 47, the Irish defense, with Mike Griffin leading the way, stuffed fullback Andy Smith on a fourth-and-one to take possession.

Notre Dame then went 61 yards on nine consecutive running plays, capped by a one-yard Rice run, to take a 7-0 lead.

After three Air Force plays and a punt, the Irish went back to work. This time, the offense moved 57 yards in nine plays before Rice scored on a four-yard carry. A 12-yard Mark Green run and a 15-yarder by Ricky Watters, along with Notre Dame's only pass completion of the day, a 10-yarder to Tim Brown, were the big plays.

Besides keeping the attack simplified for Rice, Holtz had several reasons for limiting the passing game to only five attempts.

"We felt that coming into the game we were a little bit bigger, a little bit stronger and consequently, we wanted to try and control the football because Air Force has a fine offensive team," he explained. "We thought if they controlled the clock, we'd have trouble stopping them."

With that approach, the Irish controlled the ball for over 35 minutes. That enabled the defense to hold down, if not stifle, the Falcon wishbone.

The defense held the fullbacks, Smith and Quinton Roberts, to 40 yards on 19 carries. Holtz gave the defensive line of Tom Gorman, Griffin and Bryan Flannery, who started in place of the injured Jeff Kunz and registered nine tackles, most of the credit.

"I feel our three defensive down linemen did an excellent job," he said. "They did exactly what we asked them to today."

While the fullbacks were controlled, quarterback Dee Dowis was able to break off some big plays. In the second quarter, Dowis rammed 62 yards to the Irish nine. That set up Albert Booker's four-yard touchdown run with under three minutes remaining in the quarter, cutting the Irish lead in half going into the half.

Notre Dame quickly put to rest the Falcons' hopes of drawing any closer by scoring the first two times it had the ball in the second half. The Irish went 80 yards on nine carries after receiving the second-half kickoff. Green, Watters, Rice and Anthony Johnson ate up the yardage, with Johnson taking it over from one yard for the score.

On the next drive, Notre Dame took over on its own 43, and again took it in on nine running plays. Rice continued to impress in orchestrating the option and ripped off gains of 29 and 10 yards. Braxton Banks scored on a one-yard dive to make the score 28-7.

Rice, who left the game with a sprained shoulder in the second quarter but returned to finish the game, said he was generally pleased with his performance, even if he didn't do a whole lot of throwing.

"I felt much more comfortable this week," Rice said. "I just want to prepare every week. It doesn't matter what the coaches want to do, as long as it works it's fine with me."

Air Force scored again in the fourth quarter on a one-yard Dowis dive. The shifty quarterback, who finished with 132 yards rushing, provided the big play again when he scampered 20 yards to the Irish 13 on a second-and-25 quarterback draw.

Notre Dame sealed the contest when Tim Brown returned a punt 74 yards for a touchdown, his third punt return for a touchdown this season.

Brown had been held down on throughout the day. The run-dominated offense took away his receiving chances, the Air Force kicking game kept the ball away from him and the referees took away a 78-yard touchdown reception with a holding call. No one, however, could take away the punt return.

"We had a middle return on," Brown said. "I thought they would probably kick it out of bounds again but it went high and short. I wasn't sure if I was going to have fair catch it, but I just took it and got some good blocks to open it up."

Once again, the Irish featured great balance in their running attack. Green led the way with 90 yards, the highest Notre Dame total of the year. Rice added 70 and Watters gained 62.

ball a grand total of one time - a 19-yard screen to Watters.

"I thought our offensive line really performed excellently in the first half," Holtz said. "I thought our whole football team did. You can point out the offensive line."

I thought Ricky Watters ran well, Mark Green, Banks, Johnson, Taylor all did as well."

Gradel added another field goal from 32 yards, and the Irish were up at halftime, 20-7.

"To tell you how much I know about this game, the one thing I preached to them was we had to set the momentum right at the start or we would be in trouble," Holtz shook his head, smiled and said. "You had to make things happen right off the bat. That shows you how much I know."

The second half featured another Irish touchdown drive of 42 yards. This time Green took it in form 11 yards. How many passes did Rice attempt on this drive? Zip, nada, not once.

But what the second half really featured was Bolcar and his defensive teammates. A Bolcar interception set up Green's score, and he recovered a Steve Webster fumble at the Irish eight yardline. The Trojans wouldn't come any closer until, with just 50 seconds remaining in the game, Scott Lockwood carried it in from five yards.

Afterward, Smith said that the Trojan's early success may have hurt them in addition to the Irish defensive efforts.

"I'm going to tell you what, it takes the edge off," Smith said. "It was a well executed drive - bang, bang, bang we were in the endzone. Things appear easy right away. I can't say that's the reason for the game. Had we been able to stop them, come back, score again and get our own offense going a little better, it would have helped."

"They did a good job getting off blocks. It wasn't that we were missing people. They were just more tenacious."

IRISH ITEMS - The confusion caused by Brown's second-quarter catch was caused by a referee's inadvertent whistle. Brown made the catch of a Kent Graham pass despite an interference penalty and then appeared to run for several more yards. The referee blew his whistle and ruled Brown had stepped out of bounds. Replays showed the error, and the clock continued to run. Rice suffered a slight concussion needed 14 stitches in his chin after being knocked out of the game big gains through the middle all afternoon.

"Our biggest concern on the sideline was that we weren't tackling the dives," said first-year Trojan head coach Larry Smith. "The quarterback got out there a couple times and I think that loosened us up, so everybody started running at the quarterback and nobody was tackling the fullback dives."

"Against an option football team you have to stop the dive, the quarterback and the pitch. I don't think we stopped any of those."

With Rice, in only his second start and sixth appearance in a Notre Dame football uniform, directing the offense, the Irish have gained nearly as many rushing yards in the last two games as in the previous four (705 to 710).

"I thought his decision-making was very good," said Irish head coach Lou Holtz of his young quarterback. "(But) in all honesty, other than a blocking scheme or two, we have not changed our offense. This is the same offense we had last year. We've just accentuated what the quarterback can do."

The Irish repeated their first touchdown drive with a 90-yard, four-minute campaign late in the second quarter, ending with a Tim Brown five-yard touchdown run.

Despite taking a mere two-and-a-half minutes to jump ahead 7-0 on a Rodney Peete touchdown pass, Southern Cal's offense seemed to come to a grinding halt for the remainder of the game. You can't score when you're not on the field, and the slow-paced, but effective, Notre Dame running attack kept Peete and Company on the sidelines.

"We couldn't get on the field," said Smith. "They had two long drives that kept our offense off the field, and our offense just lost synch and went cold. I think the root of the whole thing was that we couldn't stop them and get the ball back."

The Irish continued their running success in the second half, using a balanced attack of fresh runners to run up the field, not the score, in the second half.

"It's a long game and you don't want to use just one horse," said Notre Dame head coach Lou Holtz. "You try to do what the Pony Express did - you don't use just one horse all the way."

Junior Mark Green's 11-yard touchdown run in the third quarter provided the only Irish points in the second half, although Notre Dame controlled the ball for 19:39 of the final 30 minutes.

"We weren't particularly interested in scoring," added Holtz. "By that point we were just interested in controlling the game."

Tailback Green led the Irish with 73 yards while freshman tailback Ricky Watters turned in his best performance this fall with 64 yards.

"I'm starting to be able to read the blocks better now," said Watters, who added a 28-yard run on a pass reception to his big plays Saturday. "A lot of times in the Michigan State game, I'd make a bad cut, but if I had stayed on track it would have been a big gain."

Irish center Chuck Lanza (51) shows why playing in the trenches is not all that glamorous - unless, of course, CBS is covering the game.

Browns trounce Rams, 30-17

Associated Press

CLEVELAND - Safety Felix Wright returned a goal-line interception 68 yards to set up a field goal and took a second interception 40 yards for a touchdown Monday night as the Cleveland Browns beat the Los Angeles Rams 30-17.

Wright's interceptions helped the Browns, 4-2, to a 23-7 halftime lead, and Bernie Kosar then hit Brian Brennan with a 53-yard scoring pass on the second play of the second half for what seemed to be a comfortable 30-7 advantage.

The Rams, 1-5, who played most of the game with halfback Eric Dickerson on the sidelines, ran off 10 straight third-quarter points on Charles White's 1-yard dive and a 27-yard Mike Lansford field goal, but could get no closer.

Los Angeles Coach John Robinson benched Dickerson at the start of the game because of the running back's complaints last week that his $680,000 annual salary was inadequate.

Vikings 34, Broncos 27

MINNEAPOLIS - Darrin Nelson's runs of 72 and 16 yards set up two of D.J. Dozier's three short rushing touchdowns Monday night, leading the Minnesota Vikings to a 34-27 victory over the Denver Broncos in the teams' first game since the NFL strike ended.

The Vikings, who are 3-0 with their regular players but whose replacements went 0-3 during the 24-day strike, won even though Wade Wilson was intercepted five times.

Crew earns return trip to Boston

Rowing Club coach Chris Nye knew his men's squad would be in for a tough race at the Head of the Charles. The Irish, however, responded with one of their strongest performances of the season.

The men's four finished seventh in a field of 38 at one of the most prestigious events in the country. The regatta included teams from Stanford, Cal-Berkley, the University of Washington and the U.S. Merchant Marines.

The seventh-place Irish squad consisted of coxswain Kristin Galli, Mark Gwadz, Brian Lapps, Rich Lark and Tom Barnhorst. The men's eight, meanwhile, took 20th in the regatta.

Only the select boats in the country are allowed to compete in the Head of the Charles, the largest single-day regatta in the world, thus making it a showcase of rowing powers. Only the top finishers are automatically invited to return, while others must request a spot. The seventh-place finish is good enough to insure the Irish of a return trip. "I expected them to place in the top boats," Nye said. "The goal was to place high enough to enter next year, and we did."

The impressive showing on the East Coast coupled with earlier successes has given Nye reason for optimism. "The team is doing real well," he said. "It was supposed to be a rebuilding year because we graduated 10 seniors. However, the team is performing better than I expected."

The club will travel to Knoxville this weekend, then will put on the annual alumni row, set for Nov. 7 before the Boston College football game.

Members of the Boxing Club completed their organized training for the Bengal Bouts with the novice tourney before fall break.

Fights were held in seven weight classes. In the 135-pound division, Pat Kauszman won when Mike Zacchea had to withdrawal because of an injury. At 142 pounds, Shawn Wilks won a split decision over Larry Morrissey, as did Doug Biolchine at 157 pounds against Greg Branch. Phil Wehby won a unanimous decision over Norman Conley in the 160-pound class, while Paul Ackerman downed John Hilar at 167 pounds with a unanimous decision. At 184 pounds, Mike McPeak stopped Joe McCarthy in the second round, and Hugh Wade took a split-decision victory over John Soutar at 189 pounds. "There were some really good fights," Club President Kevin Duggan said. "The guys are in really good shape and trained really hard." All of the fighters will benefit from the tourney when the Bengal Bouts get underway next spring.

"They'll at least have one fight under their belts," Duggan said. "I think they will do well at the Bengals. Two or three of the guys can get to the finals. It all depends on how much time and work they put into it."

The Rugby Club did not play over fall break, but will be in action Saturday in a home contest with Michigan State behind Stepan Center.

The Water Polo Club ended its fall season on a positive note with a successful East Coast trip during fall break.

The squad defeated Boston College, Boston University and Yale before losing to highly-ranked Harvard. Marty Watts, Tom Cashman and Steve Coffey were vital cogs in the successful trip. "Overall, I was quite surprised," Club President Cashman said. "The trip was a good time and we played well." The club finished the season with a 5-3 ledger, twice as many wins as its last campaign, and is already looking to the spring season. "In looking back at the season, I think we would have been nowhere without team loyalty and unity," Cashman said. "We're looking forward to the spring season with the possibility of a home tourney."

tered only 27 kills for the match. Notre Dame had more success against Texas A&M, winning 15-11, 16-18, 15-2, 15-10. Bennett tallied 24 kills while Shea added 16 kills and six blocks. Senior Kathy Baker contributed 11 kills and 25 digs to help the cause.

The Irish also handed Baylor its 12th loss of the season, winning 15-6, 15-6, 6-15, 15-9. Shea and Bennett kept control in the front row while freshman Amy White added six digs and assisted on four blocks as the Irish bounced back from their earlier loss to Texas. The eighth-ranked Longhorns trampled the Irish 15-13, 15-6, 15-1 on Oct. 17, the first match of their road trip. Shea turned in a consistently strong performance on both offense and defense, tallying nine kills and adding 12 digs. The Irish are trying to adjust to the loss of sophomore Kathy Cunningham who will be out for the season after dislocating her shoulder. Cunningham was second on the team in kills average (3.43) and digs average (3.14). Notre Dame will face an aggressive Purdue team Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the JACC Pit.

Jets make moves

Associated Press
HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. -The New York Jets cut six replacement players Monday, including four-year veteran linebacker Jay Brophy. Waived along with Brophy, who played parts of three seasons with Miami, were defensive backs George Radachowsky and Sean Dykes. wide receiver Scott Holman, center Eric Coss and tackle John Thomas. Radachowsky and Dykes also had previous NFL experience. The moves left the Jets with 49 players, putting them six below the roster limit set by the NFL. Of the 55 players that can be kept, 45 can suit up for games.

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS - Twice in three years, the St. Louis Cardinals have had their wings clipped in the World Series. This time, they possibly shouldn't have been there.

"If somebody had told me all the bad things that were going to happen to us this year, I'd have said we'd be lucky to get where we did," center fielder Willie McGee said following Sunday night's 4-2 loss to the Minnesota Twins in Game 7.

"But we just kept playing as hard as we could and doing our jobs every day," McGee said. "We had a lot of adversity, but sometimes that's how you form your character. I feel that in spite of getting beat, it may even make us better."

The team Minnesota defeated was not to be mistaken for the team that started the year for St. Louis.

First baseman Jack Clark, whose bat provided the only legitimate power to supplement the Cardinals' speed for the first half of the season, sat out the last seven weeks with an injured ankle. As if that weren't enough, third baseman Terry Pendleton joined Clark on the bench for all but designated-hitter duties during the Series because of a rib-cage injury.

"I know this team isn't one that likes to make excuses, so I won't do that," Pendleton said of St. Louis.

"But, still, it makes you wonder. You wonder what we might have achieved without all the injuries. I guess we'll never know, and that's what makes it a little tough."

Almost from the beginning, the Cardinals had the makings of a team that was star-crossed.

Catcher Tony Pena suffered a broken thumb on the season's third day. Nine days later, pitcher John Tudor broke his leg. Other subsequent injuries, although less devastating, persisted.

"At one point in the season, I almost hated to check with (trainer) Gene Gieselmann to see who was hurt," Manager Whitey Herzog said.

"Fortunately, we got a lot of help from players we really hadn't counted on and that kept us from falling apart. If we hadn't, we could have been buried by July. I'd say the last half of the year, we were just holding on."

Help for the Cardinals, who limped home from a lead of 9 1/2 games they held shortly after the All-Star break to win the National League East by three games over the New York Mets, came from players who eventually wound up playing in the World Series.

Twins

1986 after the Twins fired Ray Miller, who had replaced the fired Billy Gardner the previous season. "I just hope I can be around a while longer to experience this some day again."

Frank Viola, who won two World Series games, was voted Most Valuable Player in the series. Gary Gaetti, the offensive and defensive leader against the Detroit Tigers in the American League playoffs, was MVP of that series. Viola, Gaetti, Puckett, Brunansky, Kent Hrbek, Jeff Reardon and Greg Gagne all will receive votes as the season's most valuable Twin.

But there are some who believe that the Metrodome, the downtown bubble that holds in all that eardrum-shattering noise, was the true MVP.

After all, that's where the Twins fashioned baseball's best regular-season home record, 56-25, and where they recorded six of their eight postseason victories, including all four World Series triumphs. More than 2 million fans, a club record, attended Twins games in 1987.

Meanwhile, the Twins were the 29-52 on the road, the worst record ever for a first-place finisher.

"We appreciate the fans and their support. They've been great and we love them," Kelly said. "But it's the boys on the field that get the job done, not the fans. The boys are the ones that have to perform, to pitch, to hit, to field."

The boys on the field had a most interesting season.

For all intents and purposes, it began Sept. 12, 1986, when the Twins named Kelly interim manager to close out a 71-91 season. During the offseason, Pohlad turned over total control to Andy MacPhail, whose first official duty was persuading Pohlad to hire Kelly for 1987. MacPhail, 34, is the youngest top executive in the majors; Kelly, 37, is the majors' youngest manager.

On Dec. 16, MacPhail decided not to sign right-hander Jack Morris, the winningest pitcher of the 1980s who had offered to sign with the Twins as a $2 million free agent. When MacPhail said, "Hit the road, Jack," he instantly became the least popular person in Minnesota.

Irish run away with 26-15 win over USC

ND's line controls USC

By DENNIS CORRIGAN
Sports Editor

In just under two-and-a-half minutes, Southern Cal held a 7-0 lead against Notre Dame Saturday afternoon. The Trojans took the opening kickoff and marched 70 yards in six plays for the score. It was the first time this season the Irish had allowed a score on the opponent's first possession.

Can you say ominous? The Irish couldn't and didn't because that was the last the Trojans saw of the end zone until the game was well decided. With a punishing running attack and a dogged defense, the Irish controlled the Trojans and the rest of the game en route to a 26-15 victory.

The Irish ran the ball an almost overwhelming 68 times for an equally overwhelming total of 351 yards—that's almost 5.2 yards a crack for you non-math majors.

"Going into the game I really didn't know how our team would react," Irish head coach Lou Holtz. "I didn't think our practices were intense. Even though we weren't in school, it didn't all mesh in. When we went out, I just didn't know."

"They took the ball and drove it down the field, I just thought, 'golly.' But you're going to be in on of those types of ballgames, and you've got to answer the challenge."

And the Irish answered in a manner the Trojans couldn't have liked.

"They came out and prepared well for us," said Irish linebacker Ned Bolcar. "The first time, we didn't expect them to throw as much (three times, all completions). Our defensive backs were in different coverages which created problems. Then we regrouped and our line was able to put more pressure on them."

"We stayed here during the off-week and worked our butts off. We weren't going to come home and lose in front of the home crowd."

After a Tony Rice interception, the Irish held the Trojans on the preceding series to zero yards and punt in four plays. A Ted Gradel 26-yard field goal ensued after the Irish got the ball on their own 47. All afternoon, the Trojans would sacrifice field position and not give Tim Brown the chance to beat them single-handedly.

"I don't have a kicker who can kick the football 40 to 45 yards," bristled USC head coach Larry Smith when asked about the tactic. "Why should I kick line-drive kicks and give him the chance to beat me?"

After halting the Trojans inside Notre Dame territory after the kickoff, the Irish began to hand out the punishment. They took over at their 12 and went the distance in 12-play, 5:35-long drive, culminating in a 26-yard run by Rice to take the lead. On the drive, Rice went to the air once—a 14-yard completion to Brown.

The Irish again turned the Trojans away inside ND territory and got the ball at their own 10. After 11 plays and 4:36, the Irish found paydirt again as Brown went in from five yards. Again, Rice threw the Notre Dame vs. Southern Cal. A classic college football rivalry embedded in tradition and glory unlike any other.

In the late 1960s and the 1970s, Trojan tailbacks like O.J. Simpson, Mike Garrett and Charles White often dominated the Irish en route to the Heisman Trophy. But on Saturday it was the Irish backs who ran by, and through, Southern Cal defenders.

Notre Dame used an old-fashioned, stop-us-if-you-can running attack to defeat its inter-sectional rival for the fifth consecutive time, 26-15. In doing so the Irish tallied 351 net yards rushing on 68 carries, and were able to control the clock throughout the game.

Going into the contest Notre Dame averaged 212.8 yards on the ground per game, while Southern Cal's defense was giving up only 138.3 yards per outing. But thanks to an overpowering Irish offensive line and a well-executed option running attack, anchored by sophomore quarterback Tony Rice, the Irish had little trouble marching down the field against the Trojans.

And when the final seconds elapsed, CBS named the Notre Dame offensive line as the game's MVP. Four of the five linemen, Tom Freeman, Chuck Lanza, Tom Rehder and Byron Spruell, are fifth-year seniors who have beat USC five years in a row.

"What we were saying," said Rehder, "was 'We're going to come right at you, big on big, and let's see what happens.'"

What would happen became evident in Notre Dame's third series of the game. After a Tim Brown fair catch at the Irish 12-yard line, Notre Dame marched 88 yards on 12 plays, 11 of which were on the ground, for a touchdown and 10-7 lead.

After fooling the entire USC defense by faking a hand-off to fullback Braxton Banks, Rice capped off the five-minute drive by rolling around the left side of the line and scampering 26 yards for the score.

Rice's success on keepers of the option (nine carries for 56 yards) kept the Southern Cal defenders off balance and allowed Irish fullbacks to break

Twins' win completes turnaround

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS—Five years ago, the Minnesota Twins lost 102 games. Three years ago, they almost left town. One year ago, they fired their manager for the second straight season.

This week, they won the World Series.

"I can't even begin to describe how far this organization has come," said Tom Brunansky, one of six Twins remaining from the 60-102 club of 1982. "We were bad. Worse than bad. And look what we are now. World champions."

"We've come a long way. We've overcome a lot of adversity," said Kirby Puckett, who joined the team in 1984, when then-owner Calvin Griffith almost sold the team to a group that wanted to move it to Florida. Griffith finally sold the Twins to Minneapolis banker Carl Pohlad.

"I'm very proud of the organization," said Manager Tom Kelly, hired at the end of Home sweet home.

After winning two of four matches on the road last week, the Notre Dame volleyball team returned to the friendly confines of the Joyce ACC Pit Saturday night to defeat Wisconsin 15-3, 7-15, 15-12, 15-10.

After losing to Texas and Nebraska and defeating Texas A & M and Baylor on their road trip, the Irish returned home to a crowd of over 600 fans to win career victory number 100 for Irish head coach Art Lambert.

Notre Dame dominated the first game, as the scrappy play of senior Gretchen Kraus and the strong net play of juniors Maureen Shea, Zanette Bennett and Mary Kay Waller proved to be too much for the Badgers, who were slow to start offensively.

The Irish continued their offensive assault as Shea, Bennett and Waller combined register all 18 of Notre Dame's kills in the second game.

But Wisconsin's aggressive defensive play slowed Notre Dame's momentum enough to allow the Badger attack to take control of the game.

After a slow start in the third game that left Notre Dame down 12-9, the Irish regained their intensity at the net with help of Waller and Bennett.

Waller was the catalyst that lit the comeback fire, recording two blocks, one solo and one with Bennett, and two kills to put the Irish on top.

Notre Dame continued in the fourth game with a well-balanced attack that gradually found the holes in the Badger's scrappy defense that at times seemed impenetrable.

The Irish took an early lead in the fifth game and coasted to their 17th victory on the season.

Impressive net play and the aggressive hustle of Kraus were the key to the home victory in the JACC Pit, where the Irish have won 17 of their last 18 matches.

"I'm glad to see them come off with a win," said Lambert. "We needed it after the beating we took to Nebraska on the road."

The Irish fell to 7th-ranked Nebraska 15-3, 15-1, 15-9. A lack of communication on the floor halted the offense that regis-
