Reagan eases gulf policing operations

Associated Press

NEW YORK -- Citing the Iran-Iraq cease-fire agreement, the Reagan administration said Monday it will end America's ship-escorting operation in the Persian Gulf while maintaining a presence there.

President Reagan's decision to terminate the close-quarter convoying of neutral commercial ships came after U.S. officials reviewed how the Aug. 20 cease-fire was working, said White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater.

The move substantially lowers the U.S. profile in the troubled waters nearly three months after a U.S. navy Aegis cruiser shot down an Iranian civilian airliner with 290 people on board. The United States said it regretted the accident, and officials have been weighing a program to compensate relatives of the victims.

Talking to reporters aboard Air Force One while Reagan flew here from Washington, Fitzwater said the administration decided to relax the Persian Gulf sea-lane policing operation only after "consulting with allies and friends in the region."

Fitzwater said it would take a few days to revamp the U.S. military presence in the region. He said there would be no formal announcement when that takes place.

In effect, the United States will replace its close-quarter escorting of commercial ships with a sort of arms-length surveillance operation. The formation was likened by U.S. officials to a "zone" coverage of shipping rather than a "man-to-man" coverage.

The analogy to a kind of coverage used in basketball means that U.S. ships will watch selected areas of the gulf for trouble, rather than focusing the protective operation on individual vessels.

In a speech to the United Nations General Assembly, Reagan said the world can feel "the uplift of hope" in the gulf war, which he called "one of the bloodiest conflicts since World War II."

During a brief exchange with reporters after a private meeting with U.N. secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar, Reagan also said he hoped the easing of tensions in that part of the world could lead to the release of nine Americans held hostage by pro-Iranian elements in Lebanon.

But Fitzwater told reporters "there is no new morsel of information" to encourage U.S. officials, and said "there is no new signal" indicating a hostage release.

In announcing the phase-down of the U.S. ship protection operation, Fitzwater stressed that "the U.S. intends to maintain in the gulf the forces required to protect U.S.-flagged shipping and support our national objectives. These changes in no way alter our commitment to freedom of navigation in the gulf."

The White House said the modification in the U.S. operation "entails a change from a tight escort procedure to an 'accompany' regime. In an accompany regime, U.S. forces will be positioned such that they can take appropriate action if U.S.-flagged ships are directly threatened."

There have been no attacks on neutral shipping in the gulf since the ceasefire began on Aug. 20.

The U.S. convoy operation began 14 months ago and involved a precise Navy formation used to protect against potential Iranian attacks against Kuwaiti tankers re-registered under the U.S. flag.

The United States had 26 ships in its Joint Task Force Middle East, including 17 in the Persian Gulf, as of Sept. 16.

Astronauts arrive at Cape as countdown begins for Discovery

Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. -- The five Discovery astronauts flew through stormy skies to this launch site Monday for the first U.S. foray into space in three years, and their commander said: "We're excited, we cannot wait to do this."

Before landing at the Kennedy Space Center, the astronauts took their T-38 jets in a turn around the space shuttle, almost obscured on the oceanside launch pad by low-hanging clouds.

The astronauts, who had flown from their training base in Houston, delayed their departure from a refueling stop at MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa because of lightning warnings at the Cape and arrived 45 minutes late.

NASA set the countdown clock in motion Monday morning for liftoff at 9:59 a.m. EDT Thursday of the first shuttle flight since the Challenger disaster.

Shuttle commander Frederick Hauck said based on the troublesome weather history at the Cape, "There is a 60 percent chance" of a launch on schedule.

"The mission control team is ready," Hauck said. "I know the launch control team in Florida is ready, the bird is ready and we're ready."

NASA's rules, tightened since Challenger, forbid launching when there is lightning within 10 miles of the pad or rain.

Thursday's forecast was for scattered and broken clouds, a wind of 10-15 knots from the southeast, temperatures of 85 degrees and widely scattered showers. Winds over 17 knots from the south or 24 knots from any direction would automatically scrub the liftoff.

Hauck said he would keep his fingers crossed.

"But I tell you, we're excited," he said. "We cannot wait to do this, and we are ready."

With a wave to scores of waiting journalists, Hauck said, "We're back on track. Y'all take care."

Hauck and pilot Richard Covey spent the morning in liftoff rehearsals in Houston before flying to Florida.

Donahue and Pozner to co-host lecture at Notre Dame

Special to The Observer

Phil Donahue, host of the nationally syndicated Donahue television talk show, and Vladimir Pozner, Soviet television commentator, will deliver a joint lecture entitled "U.S.-Soviet Relations: Two Journalists' Views," on Thursday, Oct. 6 at 8 p.m. in the Joyce Athletic and Convocation Center.

This will be the second time Donahue and Pozner have appeared together. In January of 1986 they co-hosted the television feature, "A Citizen's Summit," a dialogue via satellite between audiences in Seattle and Leningrad.

Vladimir Pozner appears frequently on both U.S. and Soviet television and is heard regularly on the North American Service of Radio Moscow. Employed by the U.S.S.R. state committee for television and radio, Pozner holds the rank of political observer, the top classification in Soviet journalism.

Pozner was born in Paris in 1934 and spent his formative years, from 1940 to 1949, in Brooklyn. In 1949 his family moved to East Germany, and then to Moscow in 1952. A graduate of Moscow University, where he majored in human and animal physiology, Pozner entered journalism in 1961 with Novosti Press Agency. He later was managing editor of both Sputnik and Soviet Life magazines. Soviet Life was written for and distributed to readers in the U.S.

Phil Donahue has won the George Foster Peabody Award and seven national Emmys since beginning his broadcasting career while a student at Notre Dame. He graduated from the University in 1957 and, for the following ten years, worked in a variety of television and radio jobs in his native Cleveland; in Adrian, Mich.; and in Dayton.

Donahue premiered his television talk show locally in Dayton in 1967, after briefly retiring from broadcasting. Within two years the program was being syndicated nationally. Donahue moved to Chicago in 1974 and to New York City in 1985. In addition to his own show, he has hosted and contributed to programs on ABC, NBC and PBS. His autobiography, published in 1980, became a national best seller.

The Donahue/Pozner lecture, sponsored by the Ideas and Issues Commission of the Notre Dame Student Union Board, is presented as an event in the University's Year of Cultural Diversity.

Tickets for the lecture are available now at Gate 10 of the J.A.C.C. The price is $6 for the general public and $4 for University students, faculty, and staff.

IN BRIEF

Father Theodore Hesburgh, president emeritus of the University, was among an international group of 45 university presidents who agreed last week to organize a new effort for disarmament through education. The gathered presidents issued a declaration recommending the development of a new interdisciplinary curriculum to address arms control and negotiation; university support for scholars and courses focussing on arms control and conflict management; and the development of international information centers.

The presidential debate was viewed by about 60 percent of those watching television Sunday night, according to preliminary figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. In the 16 largest markets, the 90-minute live, prime-time debate between Vice President George Bush and Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis had a rating of 17.4 and a 27 share on NBC, an 11.9 and 18 share on CBS and a 9.8 and 15 share on ABC. The rating is a percentage of the estimated 90.4 million U.S. households with televisions. The share is a percentage of sets in use. NBC interrupted its Olympics coverage for the debate. Ratings were not available Monday for CNN and PBS, which also carried the debate live.

INSIDE COLUMN

Movie doesn't pervert beliefs; it stirs thought

Robyn Simmons

Accent Copy Editor

I saw it.

After weeks of hearing how blasphemous "The Last Temptation of Christ" was going to be, I decided to go and form my own opinion. When I came out of the theater and thought about what I had just seen, I realized that it wasn't that bad.

This movie that I had heard so many terrible things about didn't pervert me, and it didn't change my belief in Jesus Christ. Instead, it made me think -- something that few movies nowadays are able to do.

Martin Scorsese did a splendid job of avoiding Hollywood glitz throughout the film, but I will admit that in the love scene between Jesus and Mary Magdalene he resorts to mainstream media titillation. The fantasy sequence could have suggested how Jesus imagined life as a husband and father without resorting to a passionate love scene. However, I did not receive the dubious honor of directing the film, so I cannot tell Scorsese how to direct.

Most people who have heard about the film "know" (and I use this word in the loosest possible sense) that Jesus is portrayed as weak and confused. It's true that there are scenes where Scorsese's Jesus is very unsure of Himself, but these indecisive moments are followed by moments of brilliance. Jesus is portrayed as a teacher of people and a pupil of God -- and since He is the son of God I see nothing wrong with that.

This vacillating characteristic of Scorsese's Jesus brings up the question: Did Jesus know all along what His mission was -- from every parable He was going to recite until His death on the cross -- or did He learn it as He told Judas in the film, "a little at a time?"

In the film, Judas is Jesus' personal confidant -- and people seem to have a problem with that. I don't see why, because the Bible never tells us how close Jesus and Judas were before the crucifixion, and there must have been a reason why Jesus chose Judas to be one of His disciples in the first place. Judas had to betray Jesus to fulfill the scripture, and whether he did so willingly or with a heavy heart we simply do not know.

Another part of the film that people find problematic is when Jesus asks Mary Magdalene to forgive Him because He is a sinner. This can be viewed in two ways: 1) Jesus, the son of God, is a "sinner;" or 2) Jesus, who died for all our sins, is calling Himself a sinner in a symbolic rather than personal sense. I chose to believe the latter.

I already mentioned the love scene that was part of the fantasy sequence, and maybe I should comment on the overall sequence. People tend to focus on the 30 second love scene and ignore the message of the 30 minute sequence.

At one point in the sequence, Jesus the "man" confronts Paul who has been preaching about the Christ of the Resurrection. Jesus tells him how he came down from the cross to lead a normal life, but Paul says he will continue to preach about the Resurrection anyway, because the belief that Christ died for everyone's sins is vital to His followers.

In the final analysis, Jesus did not do any of the things in the dream sequence -- the film ended with His death on the cross. He was tempted, but he defied temptation, temptations that most of us would've given in to. The real message behind the sequence was Jesus needed to, and did, die to save us.

It is not my place to tell people to see or not to see this movie. If you think it will offend you, don't see it -- there's nothing wrong with that and it doesn't make you less of a thinking person. It would be wrong for me to tell you what you should think about this movie. Just don't tell me what I should think about this movie.

Bush, Dukakis trade jabs

Associated Press

Michael Dukakis and George Bush exchanged post-debate jabs from a distance Monday, the Democrat saying his rival would "lead America nowhere" and the vice president charging his opponent with trying to obscure a liberal past.

The two candidates renewed campaign hostilities as their aides waited for the impact of Sunday night's nationally televised debate to show up in the close race for the White House. The first polls rated the 90-minute confrontation a toss-up.

"One debate down. How'd I do?" Bush asked a cheering crowd of supporters at a railroad amusement park in Jackson, Tenn.

Republican running mate Dan Quayle swiftly declared Bush the winner. But overhead, a small plane carried a banner of dissent. "Dukakis 1. Bush 0," it read.

"After last night, for most people the notion of President Dukakis is a very, very troubling notion today," said Quayle. That was an attempt to reverse Dukakis' debate-night declaration that the prospect of a President Quayle was a troubling idea for many people.

The vice president devoted much of his debate time to depicting Dukakis as a liberal. "We're going to keep on doing it," Bush said as he left Winston-Salem, N.C., for a round of campaigning.

Despite the outward display of confidence, Bush and his aides sought to deflect any repercussions from the vice president's debate comment that he hadn't decided whether women who obtain abortions should face legal penalties.

Campaign manager James Baker III told reporters that after giving it more thought overnight, Bush was opposed to the idea. Bush told reporters he had "no change" on the subject, although during the debate he said he hadn't "sorted out" the subject of possible penalties.

Crime of the week

This week's Crime of the Week is the larceny of custom-made signs from Notre Dame Stadium. Sometime on Sept. 1 or Sept. 2, 1988, six plastic signs were stolen from concession stands at Gates 11, 18, and the Press Box.

These signs measure approximately 2 feet square. Three signs are white and have the University seal in blue on the center of the sign. The Food Service leprechaun and the block "ND" are printed near the top of these three signs. The other three signs are white and have a "7-UP" logo on them. The signs were designed to be mounted in lighted menu boards located above concession stands and are valued at $600.

Notre Dame Crime Stoppers will pay up to a $300 Reward for information leading to the identification of the person(s) responsible for taking the signs. If you know who took the signs or where they are now, call Crime Stoppers at 288-STOP. You won't be asked to give your name.

Notre Dame Crime Stoppers will pay cash rewards for information leading to the identification or arrest of anyone involved in unlawful activity. If you know about a crime at Notre Dame, call 288-STOP. You won't be asked to give your name and you'll be eligible for a cash reward.

South Quad buzzes with bee study

By JULIE FLANAGAN
News Staff

South Quad continues to buzz with the activity of an ongoing honeybee experiment conducted by biology graduate student Dave Schmitt. Schmitt has been researching how honeybees navigate using magnetic fields for the past four years.

"What Dave has been doing is unique. No one is using his approach," said Harald Esch, professor of biological sciences and Schmitt's advisor. He labeled Schmitt's work "very exciting."

Schmitt has assembled a feeding station near Alumni Hall as one of the initial points of the experiment. A sugar and water solution lures the bees to the station, Schmitt said. He then marks the bees for identification, enabling him to trace the routes of certain bees which return to the hives by Galvin Life Science Center, he said.

In addition to the field research which produces interesting data concerning distance and direction, Schmitt said, he employs numerous laboratory experiments. He usually places the bee in an apparatus, devoid of flight cues such as light, in the center of a magnetic field. The flight patterns of the bees are then monitored and fed to a computer for further analysis.

Since the onset of the experiment, Schmitt has individually tested 886 bees to determine the part the magnetic field plays in the flight patterns of the insects, he said. Concerning the findings, Schmitt said, "There are different patterns depending on distance and hopefully some results will allow us to determine what physical aspects of the magnetic field the bees are using."

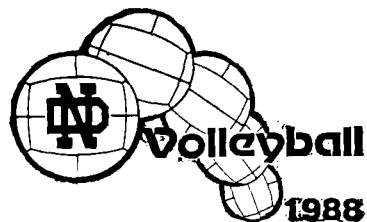

The study of biomagnetism is a relatively new field so it is difficult to tell the possible applications, said Schmitt. Magnetism is already being used as a diagnostic tool, he said.

Schmitt said he became interested in this field following a course in bioinstrumentation. "I felt it was something I could do well and it seemed like fun."

So far there has only been one complaint regarding the bee experiment, said Schmitt. He said bees are not dangerous; they only sting when provoked.

Schmitt hopes to complete his project by May, he said.

ND should explore abortion questions

Twice in recent weeks, the White Center on Law and Government has been criticized in the pages of The Observer for inviting Dr. Theodore Cooper, the Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of the Upjohn Corporation, to speak at the Law School on the policy options that governments should exercise in response to the AIDS epidemic. Because I believe my critics have profoundly misunderstood the role that a university should play in the life of the community that supports it, I have decided that some sort of response to their criticism is required of me.

John Robinson

A community consists of persons bound together by common traditions, common aspirations, and commitment to practices thought to embody and express those traditions and aspirations. Consider, in this regard, the Church. To be a Christian is to believe that Jesus overcame death and sin by his taking flesh and "pitching his tent" among us, as the prologue to John's Gospel puts it. It is also to hope that this paradigmatic victory will be realized in our own lives and, somehow, in the culmination of human history. And it is to be committed to a life of self-sacrificing love for the weak, for the despised, even for those who wish us ill. Consider, from the same perspective, American political life. To be a member of this community is also to refer back to epochal events as historic anchors to our national career. It is also to look forward to a more pure realization of our basic values, as when, for example, wealth does not skew the political process. It is also to be committed to certain practices that are expressive of that tradition and those ideals, as for example fearless dissent from policies now favored by the government might be. Wherever people live in stable communities, similar commitments to tradition, aspiration, and expressive practices will emerge—as recent developments in Iran, China, and the Soviet Union reveal.

There is something else about stable community life that deserves our attention. As between the creative event at the dawn of the community's existence and the actual moment in which we live, there is always a gap such that two people of good will, can in good faith differ over what should be done to remain faithful to the spirit of that event. This gap is not due to some defect in our insight or in the founders'—or the Founder's—vision; it is instead, the condition of the possibility of our living autonomously while participating fully in the experience of the multiple communities in which we live. It is also the occasion of our individual appropriation of the vision. As such, the gap between the constitutive vision and current decision is what makes it possible for us, living here and now, to enter into the enduring community, to take our place in the tradition, and to contribute to the realization of its idea.

Consider in this regard the experience of the early Church. At first it seemed that fidelity to the Christ event required a life of shared assets. Experience nullified that perception. For most early Christians, to be won over to the way of Jesus was to become an observer of Jewish dietary practices. After a debate that shook the Jerusalem community to its foundations, Paul of Tarsus changed his view too. So it has gone for the better part of two millennia in the Church, and so it has gone for more than two centuries in American political life. Fidelity to the revolution was once thought to mean hostility to all centralized power, then it was seen to require unheard of levels of centralization in a federal system. Where once the Revolution was understood as the rejection of the Common Law and of the judges who made it, later it was seen as consistent with both. Where once the Revolutionary ideal was thought to be consistent with Negro slavery and the exclusion of women from political life, now it is seen not to be.

It is the gap between constitutive vision and concrete decision that, for both the ecclesial and the political community, makes universities mandatory. The university is the place, par excellence, where the implications of the vision for decision are worked out. It is the place where the underdetermination of conduct by shared vision is made manifest and where the relative merits of mutually incompatible policy options can be debated. Most of all, it is the place where the young appropriate the community's commitments by grappling with the problems raised by the gap between vision and decision, and where proponents of divergent ways of realizing the ideal in the present moment are set free to make the best case they can for their way of seeing things.

Consider, in this regard, the abortion question. For both our ecclesial and our political communities, their respective stands on abortion are embedded in complex clusters of further questions. The Church's understanding of the moral status of abortion is tied to its understanding of the proper role of sexual pleasure and interpersonal intimacy in human life, to its notions

It ought to be the case that here at Notre Dame our faculty and students are engaged in the most creative, most far-reaching inquiry into questions of sexuality, family, sex roles, child care, and the like.

about the leadership roles that women should assume in business, politics and religion, and to its belief that to be a Christian it to be on the side of the powerless and the despised. The American polity's understanding of the legal status of abortion is tied to its understanding of the effectiveness and propriety of legal efforts to affect adult decisions that relate to conception and child bearing, of the role of liberty in American political life, and, of its sense that the law legitimizes its coercive imposition upon us, in large part by its willingness to vindicate the rights of those who are politically most powerless among us.

For neither the Church nor the state is there unanimity as to the relative weight of these considerations, as to their implications for current practice, nor as to the definitive wisdom of the community's current stand on them. In the church's case, it is in deep conflict over what the sexual morality of Christians should be. Witness the critical reception of papal teaching on marital intimacy, the doubts about the wisdom of mandatory celibacy for priests, the difficulty the Church is having in envisioning a world in which women are not assigned essentially ancillary roles in social or liturgical life. For its part, the state is riven by discord over the weight that rights should have in the implementation of policy, over the wisdom of letting people go to hell in a handbasket in the name of liberty, and over letting the hormonal storms of adolescence rage uncontrolled, thereby dooming another generation of ghetto teenagers to the cycle of welfare dependency.

What both the Church and the state desperately need at this point in their lives is to have the questions in which the abortion issue is embedded subjected to the most searching scrutiny that the communities can muster. American Catholic universities ought, therefore, to be places where abortion, and one's stand on it, function not as grounds for exclusion, but as a catalyst for the great debate that both of our communities so badly need. It ought to be the case that here at Notre Dame our faculty and students are engaged in the most creative, most far-reaching inquiry into questions of sexuality, family, sex roles, child care, and the like. Envisioning a world in which millions of women don't opt for abortion is an immensely difficult thing to do, but it is precisely that task that Notre Dame should be engaged in. Whatever keeps us from this task keeps us from offering to those communities that support us the service that we are uniquely positioned to offer.

In short, the problem at Notre Dame is not that an occasional "abortion profiteer" gets past our moral guardians, but, on the contrary, that we are not subjecting the whole range of abortion-related questions to the sustained exploration that a university should provide. Where we all fear to speak lest our orthodoxy be questioned, the appropriation of the vision is impeded. Where every side of every issue is thoroughly explored, the life of the mind thrives and the university plays its role in the realization of the ideal.

Lewis Hall: More Than Meets the Eye

accent writer

Nestled behind the Golden Dome, and often mistaken for the infirmary, Lewis Hall enjoys a quiet and serenity not often found on the busy North and South Quads, as well as relative proximity to almost anything on campus.

Lewis was built with funds from the Challenge I fund-raising drive, initiated by the Ford Foundation in 1960. The dorm was completed in 1965 and served as a residence for women religious. Today Lewis is the Alumni Hotel in the summer, where visiting alumni can stay with their families for $10 a night while visiting the campus or passing through South Bend.

During the school year, however, Lewis is the home-away-from-home for 308 students, making it the most populous woman's dorm on campus. Despite the large number of women who live there, Lewis has developed a strong sense of community.

Lewisites find it easy to meet each other at the frequent receptions after Sunday Mass, daily aerobics, monthly birthday parties, and special events such as the famous midnight barbecues, and Progressive Ice Cream parties.

"Architecturally straight-forward" is the description that accompanies Lewis in the freshman registration guide. There's a lot more to Lewis than meets the eye, however. Residents living in the west section receive an unparalleled view of the dome and the spire of Sacred Heart Church, and those with rooms in the rear of the building can watch the seasons change around St. Joseph's Lake.

Another fairly unknown feature of Lewis is our courtyard, featuring the statue of the Virgin and Child. Here residents can study, cook-out, or catch some rays in peace and quiet.

Lewis traditionally has had strong interhall sports teams. The basketball team won the championship in 1986, and last year the soccer team captured first place. In their first two games this year, the flag football team has gone into overtime nail-biters, the results of which were one win over Knott, and one loss to the ever-tough Farley.

Residents find it easy to relax in the lobby of Lewis.

"Lots of people join our interhall sports because we're very intense and play tough, but we leave the competition on the field," says junior center and athletic commissioner, Christine Wallmeyer.

Theoretically one of the "God Quad" dorms, Lewis actually is not physically part of any quad. While some may say that this is a drawback, and prevents the dorm from being a part of a larger campus identity, others view it as an advantage.

"Most of my friends from North Quad don't know many people from the South Quad and vice versa," states senior Resident Advisor, Ellen Mouch. "We eat in North or South Dining Hall depending on who we're meeting, and because Lewis is kind of in-between quads, it allows us to go back and forth."

Lewis continues to grow with each passing year, and more and more people are finding out about the best-kept secret on campus. Stop by and visit anytime; it's the building with the porch swings behind the dome.

Clarification

In last week's "Dorm of the Week" article, the conclusion and the headline to the article on Alumni Hall were not written by the author, Matt Spatz, so he should therefore not be credited (or associated) with it whatsoever.

The "Dorm of the Week" is a weekly series in which the focus is an explanation of the history and traditions of every dorm on campus. The order in which each dorm appears is a result of random selection, and in no way is the series to be construed as a competition or glorification of one dorm over another.

Giving through the Urban Plunge

accent writer

In addition to promoting campus involvement, Notre Dame gives its students the chance to become involved in community service. One of these opportunities takes shape as the Urban Plunge. This program is designed to give students an introduction to conditions of extreme poverty.

The experience began with a tour of the South Bend Welfare Department and an attempt to fill out applications for food stamps. I found myself struggling with the instructions, and I wondered, "How could someone who is either illiterate or minimally educated understand this?"

One of the most amazing aspects that we learned about welfare is that the system is actually set up on the basis of maintaining unemployment rather than decreasing it. It's a common assumption that those on welfare are lazy. But it is reality that they are people who have limited schooling and a low degree of work skills. Therefore, the only jobs available to them are minimum wage jobs, such as those at McDonald's. Adding the responsibility of child care and transportation, one can see that it pays more to be on welfare and to stay home with the children.

After leaving the Welfare Department, our group split in different directions. Six students went to help set up an emergency 24-hour shelter with South Bend's Mayor Kernan (whom we met with on the Plunge). At the same time, the other half of the group went to the police station where we each drove around with a South Bend police officer from 10 p.m. to 7 a.m. We experienced first hand, domestic disputes, an armed robbery (which led to a stakeout and capture), and of course, the traditional donut shops.

The next day was filled with meetings with government agencies. Here, we learned of the various programs to help the poor. The support they provide is very minimal, and for each child a mother will only receive an extra $75.00 a month to support that child. Fortunately, though, neighborhood churches often help the families.

The highlight of the Plunge occurred that night when myself and three other girls went to stay at the Home for Battered Wives. Here, we talked with women who have left everything they owned to get themselves and their children to a place of safety. Like us Notre Dame students, they have hopes of getting a college degree and a good job. Unlike Notre Dame students, though, these women have no place to go and will end up trapped in the vicious circle of the Welfare Department.

Despite this situation, they retain the hope that their children will be able to finish school and go to college. The mothers stressed how lucky Notre Dame students are to be receiving such an education, and they hoped that we would be able to contribute to society to help make people's lives better. That, for myself and for the other students also, was the important lesson of the Urban Plunge--the realization that we are getting an education not only for ourselves, but also, and more importantly, to make a contribution to society.

In essence, the Urban Plunge is the beginning of a journey of service to society. It allows one to meet people in many adverse situations and to better understand what can be done to help them. Putting this together with our education, we'll know better how to give back to society what's already been given to us.

Katie burst out to Kimberly, As they pumped iron limberly, "I can't stand this; I've got to see Tim!" So off Katie went to Ohio As fast as her tooties could fly-o. As to what then ensued, Well, to tell would be rude, But when Kim heard she gasped, "My oh my-o!"

Rowing Club captures first major regatta win

The Rowing Club won its first major regatta ever last weekend in the Head of the Ohio meet in Pittsburgh. The Irish, who won the Press Cup, finished first out of 13 teams in the overall standings. The attending squads included Brown, Cornell, Pittsburgh, and Villanova.

Notre Dame came up with gold medals in the men's and women's lightweight four-person boats and the men's open four-person boat. In winning the men's open four, the Irish received the Mayor's Cup. Silver medals were awarded to the men's lightweight eight-person boat and the women's open four-person boat.

"We are very excited about winning a major regatta. The team can do nothing but improve," said crew president Mike Hammett.

The Irish crew team will travel to Rockford, Ill., on Oct. 9 to compete in the Head of the Rocks regatta.

Club Corner

Last weekend, the Sailing Club attended the Sloop Championship at the Detroit Yacht Club. They finished a respectable seventh out of nine teams.

Another group of Irish sailors went to the University of Michigan for a three team regatta. That team finished second.

Next weekend, the sailing club will again travel to the University of Michigan for a regatta. There will be 20 teams competing.

This year the Squash Club has been elevated to Non-Varsity club status. They will be the first squash team ever sponsored by the NVA.

Last Saturday, the football team was not the only big winners against Purdue. The Irish squash club nailed the Boilers 4-2 in its opening meet. This was the first meet at Notre Dame in three years.

Runner loses 100m medal

Associated Press

SEOUL -- Ben Johnson was stripped of his victory in the 100 meters for taking steroids, and Carl Lewis was given the gold medal Tuesday as the Olympic movement recoiled in shock over one of its grimmest moments.

"This is a blow for the Olympic Games and the Olympic movement," International Olympic Committee president Juan Antonio Samarach said.

Johnson also was banned from competition for two years by the International Amateur Athletic Federation and almost certainly will be stripped of the world record he set here.

Thus, at age 26, Canada's "Big Ben" will lose two of best years of his career.

And the Olympics loses one of its proudest moments, now cast in shame.

"We feel sick about it," Pat Reid, a Canadian coach, said. "The whole world feels sick about it."

"We are acutely aware of how devastating this news will be to millions of people," Canadian chef de mission Carol Anne Letheren said.

Johnson left Seoul Tuesday morning aboard a Korean Air Line flight destined for New York, unable to defend himself or his actions.

Greg Louganis won his second diving gold medal Tuesday, edging Xiong Ni of China by 1.14 points in the men's platform event and becoming the first male diver to win two golds in consecutive Games.

Louganis needed 85.56 points on his final dive to tie Xiong and he scored 86.70 to finish with a total of 638.61 to 637.47 for the Chinese diver.

Jesus Mena of Mexico won the bronze medal with 594.39 points.

With under a minute to play, Walsh passed its way to within Howard's 20-yard line. Quarterback Farabaugh looked to pass again, but could not find an open receiver. Seeing an opening to the left, Farabaugh took it in for the score, making it 18-14 Walsh.

Walsh's third conversion attempt failed but Howard was unable to take the ball down the field in the remaining 15 seconds.

Farley 8, Knott 0: Defense was the key in Farley's victory over Knott. Farley received the opening kick-off and scored on its first drive. A 40-yard run by Tammy Goodwin and the two point conversion put Farley ahead for good.

"Their defense played incredibly well," said Knott player Monica Martinez. "We couldn't put it in."

Knott was also hampered by the fact that only nine team members showed up.

PW 13, Breen Phillips 0: Defending champion Breen Phillips fell to 0-2 as PW remained undefeated.

"We're not the same team as we were last year," remarked Breen Phillip captain Karen Marsh.

The game was marred by what Marsh referred to as a "lack of sportsmanship." At one point, the referees stopped the game issuing a warning that the coaches were becoming 'too aggressive,' and the game would be stopped if that

"Since we won last year everyone is out to get us," said Marsh.

PW scored twice on runs by quarterback Jill Bodensteiner. Christin Swenerton was one-of-two on PAT attempts. Despite the lopsided score it was a tight, hard fought game. Interceptions by Beth Bolger and Pandora Fecko came at crucial moments, and prevented Breen Phillips from scoring.

Lewis 8, PE 6: PE suffered its first defeat at the hands of undefeated Lewis.

As was par for the day, this game was a defensive showdown. Neither team could reach the end zone in the first half. Lewis was able to get by PE's defense on an Ellen Mouch pass to Sue Lippa. Mouch converted the two-point conversion with a pass to Lynn Arnold, making the score 8-0.

Lewis's defense then lapsed as PE scored a touchdown of its own. The two-point conversion attempt failed and Lewis held on to the victory.

Siegfried 7, Lyons 6: Despite numerous attempts to score, Lyons was unable to overcome Siegfried.

Lyons scored the game's first points but was unable to successfully complete the two-point conversion. The scoring drive was sparked by the excellent running of Debbie Niichel. Lyons' player Elizabeth Holtz (yeah, that's Lou's daughter) scored on a quarterback option, and Lyons converted the PAT for a 7-6 lead.

Lyons missed a field goal attempt and a penalty on fourth down moved the ball from the one to the six-yard line and ended the scoring threat. Siegfried improved to 1-1 and the loss dropped Lyons to 1-1.

only victory of the competition against Paul Cruse of Navy, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. Dave Reiter, the number six player, posted an 0-2 record for the tournament.

However, in the eyes of Bayliss, the best was saved for last. Odland and Brown seemed to be the biggest benefactors from the trip to the Naval Academy. Odland went 2-1 for the tournament posting victories over John Sanzari of Arkansas, 6-2, 5-7, 6-2 and Doug Brown of Texas A&M, 6-2, 6-1.

matches and lead the team in service with 10.

Individually, Waller's 2.150 block average ranks her fourth nationally and Bennett's 4.318 kill average places her at 18th.

Freshman setter Julie Bremner has also been a silent source of consistency for the Irish thus far and is ranked 18th nationally with an assist average of 11.087 and 20th with a hitting percentage of .4286.

The team as a whole became a statistical leader as well, ranking 10th with a dig average of 18.783, 11th with a block average of 3.522 and 16th with a kill average of 15.217.

A good part of the team's success this year can be attributed to the play of Notre Dame's senior captain and right side hitter Maureen Shea.

She hasn't been fancy or dramatic, but she has gotten the job done for the Irish—especially when they seemed to be faltering.

"I'm not as physically talented as Mary Kay or Zanette, so I have to work hard at what I do," said Shea. "That's good motivation for me. I know I have to lead by example. You have to prove yourself by your actions and then people will respect you."

Shea has been earning respect from opponents and coaches as of late, especially after tallying an incredible .429 hitting percentage -- 24 kills on 56 attack attempts with only three errors -- in the last two matches.

"Shea has come a long, long way as a volleyball player," said Lambert. "She can carry her career as far as she wants. She has a lot of physical talent, but like all the girls, now she's got to have enough mentally to go out and improve her game."

Shea has been a versatile player for the Irish since arriving from Erlanger, Kan., as a freshman and had to switch from middle blocker to left-side hitter and now to her position at right-side hitter. But she has no complaints.

"I'm most comfortable as a right-side hitter," said Shea, "but you've got to be able to adjust to your role in other positions. Volleyball is a game of the mind and if you can get it in your head you're going to do it, then no one's going to stop you."

And thus far in the season, few opponents have been able to stop her, as she has recorded 95 kills, 21 blocks and 80 digs for the Irish. The possibility of playing as a professional even lurks on the horizon for Shea.

"I want to go out and make the best of this year right now," said Shea. "I've learned a lot here at Notre Dame and I think decisions will come I'm ready. If its time to hang up my knee pads it is and if it isn't is isn't. Either way I'll be happy."

Mike Brown continued his winning ways in the second round by knocking off Tim Semeton, 6-3, 6-7, 6-2. His third round match was canceled due to a lack of time.

In doubles competition, the Irish experience echoed the path of the singles competition. The number-one tandem of DiLucia and Dohlare fell at the hands of Mancini and Nair of West Virginia, 2-6, 6-2, 7-6 (11-9). They were forced to withdraw from the tournament because of Dohlare's sprained ankle.

The number two pair of Weiter and Wallace fell in the first round yet conquered Phillips and Amaliene of Wake Forest, 6-3, 6-4 and Cruse and Jang of Navy, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 to win their flight. At the number-three spot, Kalbas and Wenger recorded their sole victory in the second round of the consolation bracket by defeating Chapman and Simanis of Wake Forest, 6-2, 6-4.

At the number-four slot, Brown and Odland joined forces to conquer Powell and Rooney of West Virginia.

Stanford avoids upset by improved Cavanaugh

By DAVE MCMAHON
Sports Writer

Defending Leahy division champion Stanford narrowly escaped a major upset with a 10-6 win against an improved Cavanaugh squad.

Kicker Gon Sanchez booted a 27-yard field goal in the second quarter to put Stanford ahead 3-0. On its next possession, Stanford increased its lead with a 50-yard run off tackle.

Cavanaugh used an effective passing game in the second half to score its first touchdown in several Interhall seasons. A 33-yard Chris Fox threw a 33-yard touchdown pass to Kurt Schubert on its first possession of the second half, but the extra point failed. In the final two minutes of the game, Stanford lined up to punt, but the punter was sacked at the Stanford 9-yard line. The Stanford defense rose to the occasion, holding Cavanaugh on four downs. Fox finished the day 9-of-14 for 114 yards.

"I wasn't satisfied with our performance. We didn't play up to our potential," commented Stanford captain Tom Walsh.

Cavanaugh captain Ken Cotter was happier about his team's play in a losing cause. "We played almost flawless in the second half," said Cotter. "But at the end their defense came through when they needed to. I just hope we gained a little respect."

Keenan vs. Flanner: Dave Cane and Mike O'Neill scored first half touchdowns to lead Flanner to 13-0 win over Keenan. "We didn't have any penalties and our defense dominated," said captain Dave Kelly.

Off-Campus vs. Grace: Quarterback Bob Allard threw a touchdown pass to Robert Sedlack and Jim Kosler kicked a field goal as Grace slipped past Off-Campus 10-7. Pete Walsh had fifteen solo tackles in the losing effort. Morrissey vs. Dillon: The Big Red's offense passed for over 170 yards and its defense played well, allowing Morrissey 30 total yards in a 31-0 victory. Paul Drey scored three times for the winning Dillon squad.

Zahm vs. Alumni: Mike Brcik scored on a 25-yard sweep, and John Neirs hit Pete Parten for a 35-yard touchdown pass to lead Alumni to a 12-0 win over Zahm.

"I think we played well for the first game. I didn't think we would be ready, but we put everything together," said Brcik.

St. Edward's vs. Fisher: "We stopped their passing game cold," said Fisher captain Jim Turecek after a 7-0 victory against St. Ed's.

Sorin vs. Carroll: Reserve quarterback Kevin Kramer threw a 15-yard touchdown pass to Tom Howard to lead Sorin past Carroll 14-0.

Kramer also scored on a five-yard bootleg after a 45-yard strike to Steve Gary.

Shea, ND volleyball hope for Big Ten win

The Notre Dame women's volleyball team, now 5-5 after last Friday's victory over Rice, will try to tally another win tonight, this time against visiting Northwestern.

The Irish will try to tame the Wildcats, who are ranked ninth in the NCAA Midwest Regional Poll. Northwestern won last year's contest in a hard-fought, five-game match 15-10, 10-15, 12-15, 15-11 and 8-15.

"Northwestern is a team that year after year has great talent," said Irish head coach Art Lambert. "They have always been a ranked team and they're another Big 10 team we have to beat."

The Irish are 2-1 against teams from the Big 10 Conference and 1-2 in their series history against Northwestern and will have to control the Wildcats' net play and adjust to the novelty of a different lineup.

The new lineup, which has welcomed the arrival of sophomores Rachel Hall and Tracey Shelton, performed well against Rice, but will have to avoid the communication breakdowns which have hindered the team's play at times.

"We'll stay with the same lineup as we did against Rice because they're getting the job done," said Lambert. "But I want to spend some time now working on our middle attack because we're putting way too much pressure on our outside hitters right now."

Bearing much of the burden as an outside hitter has been Shelton, who has played outstanding in her first two collegiate matches for the Irish.

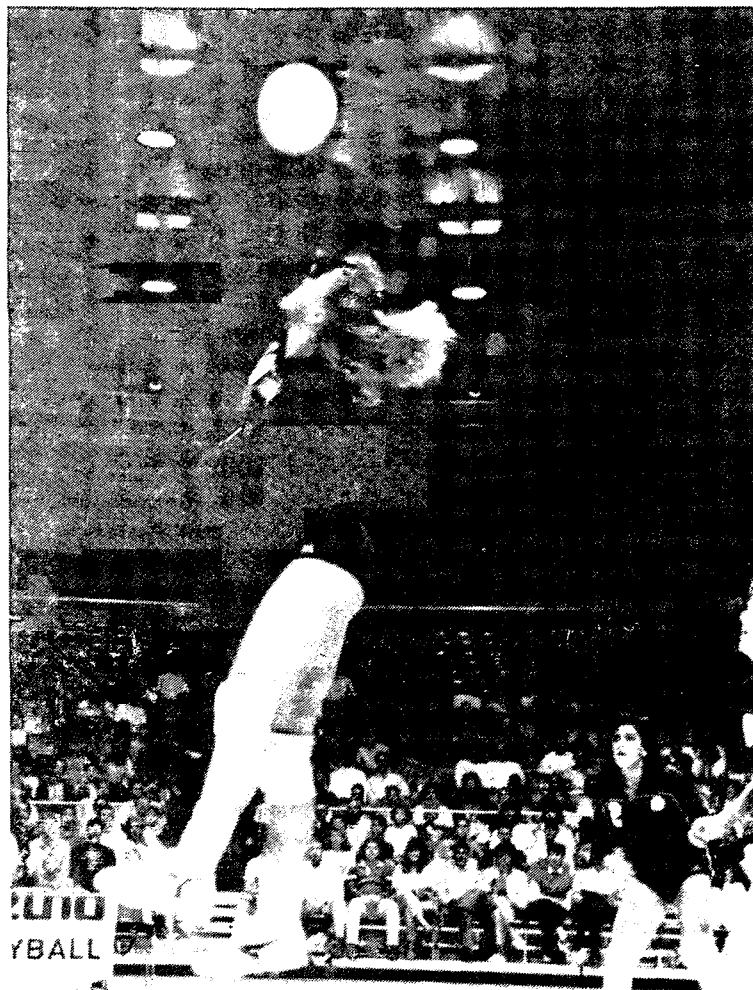

Shelton, a native of San Antonio, Texas, already has five service aces in her first two matches and has a .302 hitting percentage thus far. She also has been consistent defensively, tallying a team-high 3.14 digs per game.

"Tracey Shelton has been hitting extremely well," said Lambert. "She has passed well and played fine defense. She's earned her spot out there."

Seniors Mary Kay Waller and Zanette Bennett have earned their keep as well, as they lead the team -- and the nation -- in several categories statistically.

The terrifying tandem have both tallied a team-high 124 kills in the team's first 10

After falling behind 14-0 at the half, Walsh scored 18 unanswered points en route to their first victory of the season against Howard.

Howard was sparked in the first half by Laura Gonzales and Julie Snook, both of whom scored touchdowns. Walsh's offense was marred by penalties, but the team did score a touchdown in the closing moments of the first half. A 40-yard pass from Margo Macheca to Amy Farabaugh set up a one-yard run by Eileen Collins for the touchdown.

In the second half, Walsh maintained the intensity that it showed on their final drive of the first half.

"In the second half," Howard team captain Cathy Keenan explained, "we couldn't get anything going."

Walsh's second score was a 15-yard pass from quarterback Amy Farabaugh to Colleen Stepan. Walsh, although dominating Howard's team, still trailed 14-12 after missing its second conversion attempt.

The defenses of both teams controlled the remainder of the game until Walsh's final drive.

Trip a rollercoaster for Irish

"Encouraged but frustrated"

These words of head coach Bob Bayliss epitomized the Notre Dame men's tennis team's fortunes in Annapolis, Md. The Irish accumulated an overall record of 13-15 (9-10 in singles and 4-5 in doubles) in the Navy National All-Conference Tournament against a nationally ranked field.

Although the Irish may have come short according to the statistics, Bayliss believes that his team can play at the national level.

"We are right there knocking at the door," said Bayliss. "We know that we can play at this level and now we have to do something about it."

The first day of competition was not kind to the young Irish squad in the singles competition. Paul Odland and Mike Brown, the seventh and eighth players respectively, recorded the only victories of the day. Odland beat Gary Fry of West Virginia, 6-3, 6-3. Brown, a freshman, edged Scott Wooten of Kansas, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3. The other members of the Irish squad were placed in a consolation bracket.

Notre Dame found itself in friendlier surroundings on the second and third days of the tournament. Dave DiLucia, the number-one player, rebounded from a first round loss to down Chris Thompson of Wake Forest, 6-1, 4-6, 6-4. DiLucia went on to win the consolation bracket of the number-one seeds by trouncing Gilles Ameline of Wake Forest, 6-2, 6-2.

"Dave learned that he will have to play to win, the other players are not just going to give him the match," said Bayliss. "Dave can indeed play at this level, there is no question about that."

Brian Kalbas, the number-two player, suffered a first round defeat yet earned victories over Doron Hartal of Wake Forest, 7-5, 6-0 and Craig Whittaker of Texas A&M, 1-6, 6-4, 6-3 to win his flight. Kalbas was plagued by a very sore toe throughout the competition.

"Brian made the extra effort this weekend," said Bayliss. "It was sheer force and determination that produced the victories."

Walter Dohrle, the number-three player, fell in the first round and was forced to withdraw from the tournament due to a severely sprained ankle.

"Our top three showed that they can compete at the national level," said Bayliss.

As for the rest of the Irish squad, Mike Wallace, the number-four player, registered an 0-2 record for the tournament. The number-five player, Ryan Wenger, recorded his

Soccer team hits the road

The Notre Dame men's soccer team puts its 8-0-1 record and two-year unbeaten streak in the Great Lakes Region on the line tonight at Bowling Green.

"Bowling Green is a critical regional game for us," said Irish head coach Dennis Grace. "In order to get a chance at an NCAA bid, we need to go unbeaten in the region."

The Irish own a 15-0-2 record in the region over the last two years, with ties coming against No. 2 Indiana earlier this month and Wright State last year.

With Akron losing at Indiana Friday night 3-1, Notre Dame took the Zips' position as the No. 3 team in this week's regional poll. Indiana is still first, followed by Evansville. The Irish are ranked 18th nationally in Soccer America magazine, and the ISAA board of coaches, which did not rank the Irish in last week's poll, will have a new poll this afternoon.

A couple of early-season losses has put Bowling Green in the bottom half of the regional poll, but the 4-3 record is deceiving. Two losses came against Indiana and Illinois State, and the Falcons have always given the Irish trouble.

Last season Notre Dame needed overtime at Krause Stadium to beat Bowling Green 2-1. And in 1986 the Irish traveled to Bowling Green and began a three-game losing streak by falling to the Falcons 3-1 in a physical match.

The women's soccer team, 6-2, also is in action on the road tonight, facing the University of Chicago.
